tam'a·dine (tăm'ä·dĭn). Var. of TAMIDINE.

Ta'mah (tä'mä). Bib.

tamahauk. † TOMAHAWK.

‖ta·mal' (tä·mäl'). Var. of TAMALE.

tam'a·rac. Var. of TAMARACK.

tam'a·rao' (tä'mä·rou'). Var. of TIMARAU.

tamaric. † TAMARISK.

Tam'a·rin'dus (tăm'ȧ·rĭn'dŭs), n. [NL.] Bot. a Genus of trees, probably of tropical African origin, of the senna family (Caesalpiniaceae), having as the only known species T. indica, the tamarind.

tam'a·risk (tăm'ȧ·rĭsk), n. [LL. tamariscus, L. tamarix, tamarice, of obscure origin; cf. F. tamaris.] a Any shrub or tree of the genus Tamarix. b The German tamarisk (which see).

tam'a·risk. Erron. for TAMARACK.

tamarisk family. The Tamaricaceae.

tamarisk salt tree. An East Indian tamarisk (Tamarix articullata) which produces an incrustation of salt (tamarisk salt).

Tam'a·rix (tăm'ȧ·rĭks) n. [L., tamarisk.] Bot. a A large genus of shrubs or small trees typifying the family Tamaricaceae, natives of the eastern Mediterranean region and tropical Asia, commonly called tamarisks. They have minute scalelike leaves and feathery racemes of small white or pinkish flowers with free stamens and 3–4 styles. T. gallica, the salt cedar, is grown for ornament esp. along warm seacoasts. Several Oriental species yield a manna. Tamarisk galls, having a large amount of tannin, are yielded by T. articulata. b [not cap.] A shrub or tree of this genus.

tamarix, or tamarisk, family. The Tamaricaceae.

Tam'a·ro'a (tăm'ȧ·rō'ȧ), n. An Indian of an extinct Algonquian tribe of the Illinois Confederacy.

ta'mas (tŭm'ȧs), n. [Skr.] Hindu Philos. Ignorance, spiritual or intellectual darkness; dullness; inertia. Cf. GUNA, n., 1.

ta·ma'sha (tȧ·mä'shȧ), n. [Ar. tamāsha a walking about.] 1. A spectacle; a pageant; excitement. Anglo-Ind. 2. A commotion; fuss. Colloq., Anglo-Ind.

Ta'ma·shek' (tä'mä·shĕk'), n. The Berber and Tuareg languages of Mauritania and the Sahara. See HAMITIC LANGUAGES a.

Ta'mau·li'pe·can (tä'mou·lē'pē·kăn), adj. Pertaining to or designating a Mexican Indian linguistic family, comprising several tribes, now extinct, of Coahuila and Durango.

tam'bac (tăm'băk), n. Agalloch.

tam'bac. Var. of TOMBAC.

Tam'ba·roo'ra (tăm'bȧ·rōō'rȧ), n. [From a town in Queensland.] A dice game in which equal amounts are subscribed to a pool, to be won by the entrant making the highest throw on condition that he pay for drinks for all the others. A somewhat similar game, in which the winning of the pool is by dicing or any other agreed means, is called selling the horse. Orig. Australia.

tam'ber (tăm'bĕr), n. Timbre.

tam'bo (tăm'bō), n. [Sp., fr. Quechua tampu inn, storehouse.] a Peruvian Archaeol. An inn or way station on the high roads of the Incas. b In and near Peru, a wayside tavern. c Argentina & Paraguay. A cattle corral; a cow stable.

tam'bo (tăm'bō), n. = TAMBOURINE, 2.

Tam·boo'kie, Tam·bou'ki (tăm·bōō'kĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to Tembuland.

tam·boo'kie (tăm·bōō'kĭ), n. [S. Afr. D., fr. Tembu a Kaffir tribe (see KAFFIR, 2 a) + dim. suff. -kje.] A South African shrub or small tree (Erythrina acanthocarpa); also, its extremely light wood (marble cork).

tambookie grass. Also Tambookie grass. A handsome South African grass (Sorghum verticiliflorum) growing to a height of six or eight feet and used for thatching and in making paper. S. Africa.

tam'bor (tăm'bĕr). Variant of TAMBOUR.

tam'bor (tăm'bĕr), n. [Sp., drum. See TAMBOUR.] a Sp. Amer. Any of several puffers. b The red rockfish (Sebastopyr ruberrimus) of the Pacific coast.

tam'bour (tăm'bōōr; -bōr; 181), n. [F. See TABOR; cf. TAMBOURINE.] 1. Music. a A drum. b A drummer.

2. a A frame, usually circular, consisting of two parts fitting one within the other so as to hold firmly a piece of cloth stretched over the smaller one for embroidering. b The embroidery done on such a frame. c Tambour lace. See TAMBOUR LACE.

3. Arch. a = 2d DRUM, 10. b = 1st BELL, 5.

4. Fort. A rough stockadelike work, usually in the form of a redan, to enclose a space before a door or staircase, or at the gorge of a larger work to give flanking defense to a straight wall.

5. Phonet. A similar device for recording certain movements of speech. See KYMOGRAPH.

6. Physiol. A shallow metallic cup or drum with a thin elastic membrane supporting a writing lever. One or more of these may be connected by an India-rubber tube and used to transmit and register arterial pulsations, blood pressure, respiratory movements, peristaltic contractions, and other slight motions.

7. Sports. In court tennis, fives, etc., a sloping buttress or projection for deflecting a ball which strikes it.

tam'bour, v. t. & i.; TAM'BOURED (-bōōrd; -bōrd); TAM'BOUR·ING. To embroider on a tambour; to ornament with tambour. — tam'bour·er (-ĕr), n.

tam'bour, adj. 1. Engaged or used in, or made by, tambour (sense 2 a).

2. Like a tambour (sense 1); specif.: designating a type of rolling top or front esp. of a desk, or a desk having such a top or front which is composed of narrow half-round strips of wood glued on canvas.

tam'bour. Variant of 2d TAMBOR.

tam·bou'ra (tŭm·bōō'rȧ), tam·bu'ra, n. [Per. ṭanbur. Cf. TABOR.] Music. An Asiatic, esp. Indian, instrument of the lute type, but without frets, and used only to produce a drone accompaniment to singing.

tambour clock. A clock enclosed in an upright tambour-shaped case having usually an extended base.

Tambour Clock.

‖tam'bour' de basque' (tăN'-bōōr' dĕ băsk'). [F.] = TAMBOURINE, 1.

tam'bour·et (tăm'bōōr·ĕt; tăm'-bĕr-), n. [tambour + -et.] A small drum. Rare.

tam·bour'gi (tŭm·bōōr'jē), n. [Turk. ṭanbūrjī a player or seller of the ṭanbūr a kind of guitar. See TAMBOURA.] A drummer. Byron.

tam'bou·rin' (tăN'bōō'răN'; E. tăm'bōō·rĭn), n. [F.] 1. a A long, narrow drum, or tabor, used in Provence. b An Egyptian bottle-shaped drum.

2. A lively old Provençal dance, orig. with tambourin accompaniment; also, its music or its quick duple measure, commonly with a drone bass on the tonic or dominant.

tam'bou·rin (tăm'bōō·rĭn), v. i. To play on the tambourin.

tam'bou·rine' (tăm'bōō·rēn'; -bŭ-rēn'), n. [F. tambourin, dim. of tambour. See TAMBOUR; cf. TABORINE.] 1. A small drum; esp., a shallow one-headed drum with loose metallic disks or jingles at the sides; a timbrel. It is played by shaking, striking with the hand, or rubbing its head with the thumb.

Tambourine, 1.

2. A tambourine player, esp. in a minstrel show.

3. An African wild dove (Tympanistria tympanistria or related form), mostly white, with black-tipped wings and tail. Its resonant note is said to be ventriloquous.

Tambourine, 3. (1/10)

tam'bou·rine', v. i. To play on the tambourine.

tam'bour·ist (tăm'bōōr·ĭst; tăm'bĕr-), n. A tambourer.

tambour lace. A lace made by embroidering or darning a pattern on machine-made net; — so called because the net is held in a tambour. Cf. LIMERICK LACE.

tambour stitch. A loop stitch, or railway stitch, like chain stitch, made with a hook on sheer material. — tambour stitcher.

tambour work. = TAMBOUR, 2 b & c.

tam'breet (tăm'brĕt), n. The duckbill. Australia.

tam'bu·ran' (tăm'bōō·răn'), n. A title among the Nairs.

tam'bu·rel'lo (tăm'bōō·rĕl'lō), n. [It.] A modification of pallone, played with a ball and rackets like battledores.

Tam'bur·laine (tăm'bĕr·lān; -lăn'), n. Var. of TAMERLANE (see Biog.) used in Marlowe's tragedy Tamburlaine the Great (printed in 1590).

‖tam'bu·ro'ne (tăm'bōō·rō'nȧ), n. [It.] A large drum; a bass drum.

tame (tām), adj.; TAM'ER (tām'ĕr); TAM'EST (tām'ĕst; 119). [ME. tame, fr. AS. tam; akin to D. tam, G. zahm, OHG. zam, Dan. & Sw. tam, ON. tamr, L. domare to tame, Gr. daman, Skr. damayati he tames, and perh. to E. beteem to vouchsafe. Cf. ADAMANT, DAME, DAUNT, DIAMOND, DOE, INDOMITABLE.] 1. Reduced from a state of native wildness; specif.: a Of animals, domesticated; made tractable and useful to man; not wild. b Not showing or not having the ferocity, timidity, etc., characteristic of a wild state; as, the deer in the park are quite tame; a tame bear; — now used only of animals.

2. Cultivated; as, tame land, hay, cherries.

3. Rendered tractable or docile; hence, crushed; subdued; spiritless; also, harmless; gentle.

4. Deficient in spirit, zest, interest, or the like; mild; dull; insipid; as, a tame poem; tame scenery.

5. Obs. a Accustomed; familiar. b Ineffectual. Shak.

Syn. — Domesticated. See GENTLE.

Ant. — Wild, untamed.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tame-grown	tame-lived	tame-natured tamehearted	tame-looking, adj.	tame-spirited tameheartedness	tame-minded	tame-witted tame, v. t.; TAMED (tāmd); TAM'ING (tām'ĭng). [ME. tamen, fr. tame tame; cf. AS. temian, akin to D. temmen, G. zähmen, OHG. zemmen, ON. temja, Goth. gatamjan. See TAME, adj.] To reduce from a wild to a domestic state; to make gentle, tractable, etc.; to domesticate. Hence, to deprive of spirit, courage, or the like; to humble; subdue; also, of colors, to soften; to tone down. — v. i. To become tame.

tame (tām), v. t. [From ATTAME, v. t.] Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. a To broach; cut into; begin. b To prune.

Ta'me (tä'mā), n. Tunebo.

tame cat or pussy. A habitué of another's household; a docile person used as a convenience.

tame cheater. A decoy. Obs.

tame'-grief', adj. & n. That (which) subdues grief.

tame hay. Agric. Hay cut from cultivated grasses.

ta·mein' (tä·mīn'), n. [Burmese thameiñ (written thamin).] In Burma, a woman's draped garment like the Indian sari.

‖ta·mĕ́n' (tä·mān'), n.; pl. TAMENES (-mā'nās). [Sp.] A Mexican Indian porter or burden carrier.

tame poison. The swallowwort (Cynanchum vincetoxicum), formerly regarded as an antidote for poisons.

tam'er (tām'ĕr), n. One who or that which tames; specif., a device for controlling animals.

Tam'er·lan·ism (tăm'ĕr·lăn·ĭz'm), n. A practice characteristic of the Tatar conqueror Tamerlane (see Biog.).

Ta'mi·as (tȧ'mĭ·ăs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tamias a dispenser, steward.] The genus of ground squirrels comprising the chipmunks, usually limited to the species of eastern North America.

tam'i·dine (tăm'ĭ·dĭn; -dēn), n. [Origin uncert.] A cellulose formerly used in filaments for incandescent electric lamps.

Tam'il (tăm'ĭl; tŭm'ĭl), n. 1. A member of the most enterprising branch of the Dravidian race, mostly Hindus, though a few are still animists. They are numerous throughout southern India and northern Ceylon.

2. The oldest, most cultivated, and best known of the Dravidian languages. It has numerous dialects, and the standard language itself is divided into a poetic and an ordinary dialect. Ancient Tamil had an alphabet of its own, the Vatteluttu, "round writing"; modern Tamil uses one descended from the Brahmi character. See DRAVIDIAN LANGUAGES.

Tam'il, adj. Of or pertaining to the Tamils or their language or literature.

Ta·mil'i·an (tȧ·mĭl'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n. a Tamil. b Dravidian.

Ta·mil'ic (-ĭk), adj. a Tamil. b Dravidian. — n. a The Tamil language. b The Dravidian languages.

tam'ine, tam'in (tăm'ĭn), n. [F. étamine, fr. L. stamineus made of threads, fr. stamen warp, a thread, cloth. See STAMEN; cf. ESTAMENE, ETAMINE, STAMIN, TAMMY.] = STAMIN, 1 a. Obs.

Tam'ing of the Shrew, The (tām'ĭng). A comedy by Shakespeare. The date of its composition is not certain; it was first published in the 1623 folio. See KATHARINE.

tam'is (tăm'ĭs), n. [F., a kind of sieve, of uncert. origin.] A strainer made of a kind of woolen cloth; also, the cloth; tammy.

tam'ise (tăm'ĭs; tȧ·mēz'), n. [Cf. TAMIS.] A thin woolen fabric. Trade Name.

Tam' Lin' (tăm' lĭn'). The hero of an old Scottish ballad of this name, delivered from the fairies by his brave lass, who, following his instructions, holds him fast while they transform him into various dreadful shapes.

tam·lung' (tăm·lŭng'), n. sing. & pl. [Siamese tamlīñ.] See WEIGHT, Table.

Tam'mann's rule (tăm'ănz). [After Gustav Tammann (b. 1861), Ger. chemist.] a Metal. The rule that in binary alloys a less fusible metal dissolves more of a more fusible metal (in the solid phase) than the more fusible does of the less fusible. b Physical Chem. The rule that if one metal in a group of the periodic table combines chemically with a metal not of the group, the other members will do so, and if one metal fails to combine with a metal not of the group, the others will also fail to do so.

Tam'ma·ny (tăm'ȧ·nĭ), n. [From Lenape Tamanend, name of a Delaware chief, lit., the affable. See TAMMANY, SAINT.] The Tammany Society or Tammany Hall; — often used as a byname for corrupt influence in municipal government and politics. See TAMMANY, SAINT. — Tam·ma'ni·al (tă·mā'nĭ·ăl), adj. — Tam'ma·ny, adj.

Tammany, Saint. A Delaware chief, Tamanend, Tammenund, or Tammany, of the 17th and 18th centuries, traditionally famous for wisdom in council and friendliness toward the whites. He was facetiously canonized as the patron saint of the republic, and his name was adopted by the Tammany Society, a fraternal and benevolent organization founded in New York City in 1789. The society's building, Tammany Hall, is leased to, and gives its name to, a nominally distinct political club which has usually controlled the local Democratic party. See TWEED RING.

Tam'ma·ny·ism (tăm'ȧ·nĭ·ĭz'm), n. The system or principles attributed to Tammany.

Tam'ma·ny·ite (tăm'ȧ·nĭ·īt), n. A member or adherent of the Tammany Society or of Tammany Hall.

Tam'ma·ny·ize (-īz), v. t. Also Tam'ma·nize (tăm'ȧ-nīz). To bring under Tammany rule, or a domination such as that of Tammany Hall.

tam'mie (tăm'ĭ), n. [Var. of TOMMY.] A loaf or roll of bread. Local, Scot.

tam'mie no'rie, or tam'my no'rie (tăm'ĭ nō'rĭ). The puffin Fratercula artica. Scot.

Tam'muz (tăm'mōōz; Bib. tăm'ŭz), n. [Heb. Tammūz, fr. Assyr.-Bab. Du'ūzu, Dūzu, fr. Sumerian Dumuzi, lit., real child, or perh. the son who rises.] 1. Babylon. Relig. A god of agriculture and flocks, and spirit of vegetation. He is the lover of Ishtar, by whom he is brought back with infinite pains from the lower world after having mysteriously perished, his life thus symbolizing the dying of vegetation in the winter and its return in the spring. The hot summer month, Tammuz, is named after him. His annual festival was just before the summer solstice, and consisted of a period of mourning for his loss (cf. Ezek. viii. 14, "The women weeping for Tammuz"), followed by rejoicing at his reappearance. His worship was widespread among the northern Semites. Among the Phoenicians his counterpart was Adonis.

2. See JEWISH CALENDAR.

tam'my (tăm'ĭ), n.; pl. -MIES (-īz). [Prob. fr. TAMINE.] A kind of woolen, or woolen and cotton, cloth, often highly glazed, used for gowns, linings, curtains, etc.

tam'my, n. [Prob. fr. TAMIS.] A strainer, or sieve, made of this material; a tamis.

tam'my, v. t. To strain through a tammy.

tam'my, n. A tam-o'-shanter.

Ta·mo'ne·a (tȧ·mō'nē·ȧ), n. [NL., of Arawakan or Cariban origin.] Bot. a Syn. of MICONIA. b [not cap.] Any flower or plant of the genus Miconia.

Tam'o·ra (tăm'ȯ·rȧ), n. The Queen of the Goths in Titus Andronicus.

Tam' o' Shan'ter (tăm'ŏ shăn'tĕr). 1. The title and hero of a poem by Burns. He is a drunken farmer, who, riding home late from Ayr, in a stormy night, disturbed a witch revel in the haunted kirk of Alloway. The hags pursued him to the keystone of the bridge over the river Doon, but there stopped, as they could not cross running water. One, however, plucked the tail from his mare Maggie.

2. [not cap. and usually hyphened.] A Scottish cap of wool or the like, having a round, flattish top much wider than the headband and usually a tassel in the center.

tam'/—o'—shan'tered (-tĕrd), adj. Wearing a tam-o'-shanter.

tamp (tămp), v. t.; TAMPED (tămpt); TAMP'ING. [Prob. fr. F. tamponner to plug or stop. See TAMPION.] 1. To fill up (a drill hole) above the blasting charge with clay, earth, sand, or other material.

2. To drive in or down by a succession of light or medium blows; as, to tamp earth; to tamp tobacco in a pipe; to tamp clay over a blasting charge.

3. To fill in or pack round with clay, earth, moss, etc.

tamp, n. A tool for tamping.

tam'pan (tăm'păn), n. A venomous South African tick.

tam'pang (tăm'păng), n. sing. & pl. [Malay tampaṅ.]

1. See WEIGHT, Table.

2. = HAT MONEY, 2.

tamp'er (tămp'ĕr), n. One who or that which tamps; specif.: a One who prepares for blasting by filling the hole in which the charge has been placed. b A tamping iron. c A tool or machine for tamping or compressing a pavement in the making.

tam'per (tăm'pĕr), v.; -PERED (-pĕrd); -PER·ING. [F. tempérer to temper. See TEMPER, v.] Intransitive:

1. To work clay so as to mix it. Obs.

2. To deal secretly or unfairly; to scheme or plot; specif., to use bribery.

3. To meddle so as to alter a thing; esp., to make corrupting or perverting changes; as, to tamper with a document or a text; to interfere improperly.

4. To meddle; to busy oneself rashly; to try trifling or foolish experiments; — commonly with with; as, to tamper with a disease.

—, Transitive: 1. To temper (clay). Obs.

2. To influence improperly by one's tampering.

Syn. — See MEDDLE.

Tamper c.

tam'per·er (-ĕr), n. One who tampers.

Tam·pi'co (tăm·pē'kō), adj. Of or from Tampico, a seaport city in Mexico.

Tampico fiber. Also Tampico hemp. See ISTLE b.

Tampico jalap. Pharm. The root of a Mexican morning-glory (Ipomoea simulans); also, the resin obtained from this root.

tamp'ing (tămp'ĭng), n. Act of one who tamps; specif., act of filling up a hole preparatory to blasting; also, the material used in tamping.

Tam'ber·laine. Var. of TAMBURLAINE. [BOOtam·boo' (tăm·bōō'), adj. = TAtam'bou·rin·ade', n. See 1st -ADE a. [TEMBU.

Tam·bu'ki (tăm·bōō'kē), n. = tam·bu'ra. Var. of TAMBOURA.

tam'bu·rin'. Var. of TAMBOURINE.

tame'a·ble (tām'ȧ·b'l). Var. of TAMABLE. — tame'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — tame'a·ble·ness, n. — tame'a·bly, adv.

tame'less, adj. See -LESS. — tame'less·ly, adv. — tame'less·ness, n.

tame'ly, adv. of TAME. See -LY.

tame'ness, n. See -NESS.

tamerim. ✝ TAMARIND.

tam'kin. ✝ TAMPION.

‖tam Mar'te quam Mi·ner'va. [L.] As much by Mars (war) as by Minerva (wisdom).

‖tam Mar'ti quam Mer·cu'ri·o. [L.] As much for Mars as for Mercury; as fit for war as for business.

tam'mock. Var. of TUMMOCK.

Ta'mo·yo' (tä'mō·yō'), n. See TUPINAMBA.

tam'pe·on (tăm'pē·ŭn). Var. of TAMPION.

tam'per·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

tam'pin. ✝ TAMPON.

tam'pin. Var. of TAMPION.

tamping bar. a A long-handled metal bar with a wide, flat head for tamping the ballast under ties. b A tamping stick; — called also tamping iron.

tamping pick. A pick built with a wide flat head on one end for driving ballast under the ties. See PICK, n., Illust.

tamping stick. A round wooden stick, or copper-tipped metal bar, used in packing tamping in a drill hole.

tam'pi·on (tăm'pĭ·ŭn), n. [F. tampon, var. of tapon, tape, plug, of Teut. origin. See TAP a pipe or plug; cf. TAMP, TAMPON, TOMPION.] 1. = 1st PLUG, 1. Obs.
2. A plug for the upper end of an organ pipe. See FLUE PIPE.
3. Ordn. a Obs. A plug used as wadding. b A stopper, or plug, for the muzzle of a piece of ordnance not in use; also, a metal or canvas cover for the muzzle of a gun, sometimes combined with a plug. c Obs. The bottom to which grape-shot are fixed.
4. Plumbing. A turnpin.
5. Veter. = TAMPON, 1.

tam'pi·oned (-ŭnd), adj. Furnished with a tampion.

tam'pon (tăm'pŏn), n. [F. See TAMPION.] 1. Surg. A plug of cotton or the like introduced into a natural or artificial cavity to arrest hemorrhage or absorb secretions.
2. Lithog. A tympan. Eng.
3. Music. A two-headed drumstick sometimes used in playing the bass drum.

tam'pon, v. t. [Cf. F. tamponner.] To plug with a tampon.

tam'pon·age (tăm'pŏn·ĭj), n. Also tam'pon·ade' (tăm'pŏn·ăd'), tam'pon·ment (tăm'pŏn·mĕnt). Surg. The use of tampons.

tam·poy' (tăm·poi'), n. [Ult. fr. Tag. tampoi Jambosa jambos.] A kind of drink in the Moluccas and Philippines. Obs.

tam'-tam' (tŭm'tŭm'), n. [Hind., of imitative origin.] A tom-tom or Chinese gong. See TOM-TOM, 1 b. — v. t. & i. To play on a tam-tam.

‖ta·mu're (tä·mōō'rā), n. [Maori.] The snapper Pagrosomus auratus. N. Z.

Ta'mus (tā'mŭs), n. [NL., fr. earlier Tamnus, fr. L. tamnus a vine bearing a kind of grape.] Bot. A genus of tuberous-rooted vines (family Dioscoreaceae) with twining stems, cordate leaves, and flowers in axillary racemes. T. communis, the Old World black bryony, and T. edulis, of Madeira, are the only species.

Tam'worth (tăm'wĕrth), n. [From Tamworth, Staffordshire, Eng.] A long-established English breed of large swine. They are red, often spotted with black, and are valued as bacon producers.

tan (tăn), v. t.; TANNED (tănd); TAN'NING. [OF. tanner, fr. ML. tannare, whence AS. getanned, past part., tanned. See TAN, n.] Transitive: 1. To convert (skin) into leather by impregnation with an infusion of oak bark or some other form of tannin, or a substitute, or, in an extended sense, by any process. Tanning proper results in the adsorption and, probably, the combination of the tanning agent with the constituents of the derma, or corium, which is rendered tougher, less permeable, and nonputrescible. Vegetable tanning (with plant infusions) is now chiefly used for heavy leather (as sole leather and belting) and the more rapid mineral tanning (with metallic salts) for lighter leathers (as shoe uppers and glove kid). The most important mineral process is chrome tanning, in which the skin is impregnated with chromium salts, but tawing (treatment with alum, salt, etc.) is also practiced (esp. for glove kid). Chamois is the product of oil tanning (in which oil is used instead of tannin, etc.). Before tanning, the hides or skins are soaked, limed, unhaired, delimed, and washed; after tanning, the leather is dried, staked, and dressed, and often also dyed.
2. To make brown or tan, as by exposure to the rays of the sun; as, to tan the skin.
3. To apply a mixture to, for preservative or hardening purposes, as of oak bark and coloring matter to sails, or of gelatin and gum to the material of artificial marble.
4. To thrash or beat; to flog; switch. Colloq.
5. Photog. To render the gelatin layer of a photographic material insoluble in water, by chemical treatment or by the action of light, — used in many processes of color photography, also in bromoil and related methods.
—, Intransitive: To get or become tanned.

tan (tăn), n. [F. tan, ML. tanum, perh. of Celt. origin; cf. OIr. tan(a)e thin. Cf. TAN, v. t., TAWNY.] 1. a Tanbark. b Tannin. c Tan liquor.
2. A brown color imparted to the skin by exposure to the sun or weather; as, hands covered with tan.
3. a The color of tan (sense 1 a), red-yellow in hue, of high saturation and medium brilliance; called also adust, leather, oriole. Cf. COLOR. b By extension, any of several colors varying in hue from red-yellow to yellowish red-yellow, in saturation from low to high, and in brilliance from medium to high; tawny.
4. pl. Tan-colored articles of wear, esp. shoes.
5. [cap.] a An English breed of small rabbits marked with tan. b Short for BLACK AND TAN b.
6. A path or track covered with tanbark, as a circus ring.
7. Chem. A tanning substance; as, the tans and non*tans* in a tanning material.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tan-burning, adj.	tan-mouthed	tan-tinted tan-colored	tan-sailed	tan-trodden tan-faced	tan-skinned	tanworks tanhouse	tan-strewn	tanyard tan (tăn), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or for tan or tanning 2. Of the color tan.

tan (tăn), n. Fan-tan.

tan (tăn), n. sing. & pl. [Chin. (Pek.) tan[1].] = PICUL. See WEIGHT Table.

tan, n. sing. & pl. [Jap.] See MEASURE, Table.

‖tan (tăn), n. [Romany than home, lit., place, fr. Skr. sthāna.] Tent; camp. Gypsy.

tan (tăn). Var. of THEN. Obs. exc. Dial.

tan (tăn). Obs. past part. of TAKE. Scot. & N. of Eng.

ta'na (tä'nä; as Lat. tä'nä), n. [Malay (in Sumatra) tupai tana.] a A Sumatran squirrel shrew. b [cap.] Zool. The genus containing the members of this group in which the snout is lengthened and the naked nose pad is extended backward above.

ta'na (tä'nä). Var. of THANA. India.

ta'na (tä'nä). Var. of TANNA. See TANNAIM.

ta'na (thō'nä), n., pl. of 2d TAIN.

tan'a·ce'tin (tăn'ä·sē'tĭn), tăn·ăs'ē·tĭn), n. Chem. The bitter principle of tansy (Tanacetum vulgare).

Tan'a·ce'tum (tăn'ä·sē'tŭm), n. [NL. See TANSY.] Bot. A genus of chiefly Old World strong-scented herbs (family Carduaceae), having usually dissected foliage, and small discoid flower heads in flat-topped corymbs. T. vulgare, the common tansy, is naturalized in North America. See TANSY, 1.

ta·nach', ta·nak' (tä·näk'), n. [Heb. tnk, tnkh, abbr. for tōrāh law, nĕbhī'īm prophets, kĕthūbhīm writings, hagiographa, with vowel a supplied after the first two consonants.] Jewish. An acrostic of the Hebrew words Torah (Law), Nebi'im (Prophets), Kethubhim (Hagiographa); — used in popular speech to designate the Hebrew Scriptures.

tan'a·ger (tăn'ä·jĕr), n. [NL. Tanagra, fr. Pg. tángara, fr. Tupi tangará.] Any of numerous American oscine birds constituting the family Thraupidae (syn. Tangaridae), closely allied to the Fringillidae. They chiefly inhabit woodland and are mainly unmusical. The males usually are very bright-colored. Several species inhabit the United States, as the scarlet tanager and summer tanager (which see) and the western, or Louisiana, tanager (Piranga ludoviciana), the male of which is black, yellow, and orange red. See TANAGRA.

1/6

Western Tanager (Piranga ludoviciana).

Tan'a·gra (tăn'ä·grō; tā·năg'rä), n. 1. A town of ancient Boeotia (see Gaz.). Numerous terra-cotta figurines have been found there.
2. Hence, one of such figurines. See FIGURINE, Illust.
3. Brown madder.
—Tan'a·grae'an (tăn'ä·grē'ăn), adj. — Tan'a·grine (tăn'ä·grĭn; -grīn; tä·năg'rĭn; 156), adj.

Tan'a·gra, n. [NL. See TANAGER.] Zool. A genus of small, fruit-eating, tropical American tanagers of variegated colors and having short tails and broad gapes.

Tan·a·i·da'ce·a (tăn'ä·ĭ·dā'shē·ä), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. Tanaïs, the river Don, fr. Gr. Tanaïs.] Zool. An order of crustaceans (subclass Malacostraca) intermediate, as in carapace development, between the Cumacea and Isopoda.

One of the Tanaidacea (Leptochelia algicola).

Ta·na'la (tä·nä'lä), n. sing. & pl. One of an aboriginal forest people in southeastern Madagascar.

tan'bark' (tăn'bärk'), n. 1. Any bark rich in tannin, bruised or cut into small pieces, and used in tanning. Spent tanbark is used for circus rings, race tracks, etc.
2. A brown, red-yellow in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance; called also Algerian. Cf. COLOR.

tanbark beetle. A small, black, boring beetle (Stephanopachys substriatus) which infests hemlock tanbark.

tanbark oak. Any oak yielding tanbark; specif.: a An evergreen oak (Lithocarpus densiflora) of the Pacific coast of the United States. b In the eastern United States, the chestnut oak Quercus prinus or the quercitron.

tanbark tree. The hemlock Tsuga canadensis.

tan bay. = LOBLOLLY BAY a.

tan·bur' (tăn·bōōr'), n. [Per. ṭanbūr.] Music. = TAMBOURA.

tan'cel (tăn'sĭl; -s'l), v. t. To thrash; beat; abuse. Dial.

Tan·chel'mi·an (tăng·kĕl'mĭ·ăn), adj. Eccl. Hist. Of or pertaining to Tanchelm, or Tanquelin, a religious teacher in the Netherlands in the 12th century, who denounced the church and the sacraments and led an armed revolt. He was murdered by a priest, probably in 1115. — n. A follower of Tanchelm.

Tan'cred (tăng'krĕd), n. 1. A Norman leader (d. 1112) in the first crusade. In Tasso's Jerusalem Delivered, he is represented as in love with the fair infidel Clorinda, but as unwittingly slaying her in a night combat.
2. See GUISCARDO.
3. The hero of Thomson's Tancred and Sigismunda, who received the throne of Sicily from his grandfather on condition of his marrying the daughter of his father's slayer, thus uniting the rival lines. This Tancred tacitly assented to, intending to obtain a dispensation to marry the chancellor's daughter Sigismunda. She, in a fit of wounded pride, married, but was slain by her husband after he was mortally wounded in a duel with Tancred.

tan'dan (tăn'dăn), n. [Native name.] An Australian freshwater catfish (Copidoglanus tandanus).

Tandan. (1/12)

tan'dem (tăn'dĕm), adv. [L. tandem at length (of time only), punningly taken as meaning, lengthwise.] One after or behind another; — used in regard to two or more things so arranged, esp. and orig. of horses so harnessed and driven, instead of abreast.

tan'dem, n. 1. A two-seated carriage drawn by horses harnessed one before the other; hence, a team so harnessed. "He drove tandems." Thackeray.
2. A set of two, or, loosely, more, objects or parts arranged one behind another.
3. Short for TANDEM BICYCLE, TANDEM AIRPLANE, etc.

tan'dem, adj. Consisting of two arranged one behind the other; as, a tandem arrangement (of engine cylinders; see TANDEM ENGINE); tandem bicycle; tandem dynamo.

tan'dem (tăn'dĕm), v. i. Also tan'dem·ize (-īz). To drive or ride a tandem. — v. t. To arrange tandem. — tan'dem·er (-ĕr), n. — tan'dem·ist (-ĭst), n.

tandem airplane. See AIRPLANE.

tandem bicycle, tricycle, etc. A bicycle, etc., for two or more persons, in which one sits before the other.

tandem cart. A kind of two-wheeled vehicle with seats back to back, the front one somewhat elevated.

tandem colon. The sign [. .], a turned colon, used after abbreviations of the most usual feminine Christian names. Library Cant.

tandem compound. A tandem compound steam engine. See TANDEM ENGINE, COMPOUND ENGINE.

tandem engine. A steam engine having two or more steam cylinders in line, with a common piston rod.

tandem hitch. A type of hitch in which two or more horses are placed in line tail to head, or two rows of several horses abreast are placed one row ahead of the other.

tandem office. Teleph. A telephone central office or switchboard used entirely for the interconnection of telephone exchanges. Its use reduces the number of trunk circuits. Cf. TRUNK.

tan'dem-punch', v. t. To punch a number of holes in tandem, usually in a longitudinal direction.

tandem roller. A steam or gasoline roller in which the weight is divided between two heavy iron rolls, one behind the other.

tandem system. Elec. The cascade system.

tandem tricycle. See TANDEM BICYCLE.

tan'dem·wise' (tăn'dĕm·wīz'), adv. Tandem.

tan disease. Plant Pathol. A condition of roots or woody stems caused by moisture, in which patches of dry brownish powder, consisting of dead cells, form on the surface.

tan'dle (tăn'd'l), n. [Prob. fr. ON. tandri fire; akin to E. TINDER.] A bonfire. Scot.

‖tänd'stick'a (tăn(d)'stĭk'ä; tăn(d)'-), or, Anglicized, taend'stik'ker (tănd'stĭk'ĕr), n. [Sw. tändsticka, pl. -stickor; akin to E. TINDER; STICK.] A kind of Swedish safety match.

Ta'ne (tä'nā), n. [Polynesian.] One of the principal gods of the Polynesian pantheon, variously regarded as god of forests and plants and as representing the procreative principle and the vivifying powers of the sun and nature.

tane (tān). Var. of TAKEN. Obs. exc. Dial.

tane (tān). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TONE, the one.

ta'ne·ka'ha (tä'nä·kä'hä), n. [Maori.] The celery-topped pine Phyllocladus trichomanoides. Its bark contains much tannin. N. Z.

tang (tăng), n. [ME. tange, fr. ON. tangi a projecting point; perh. akin to E. TONGUE.] 1. A serpent's tongue; a sting, as of an insect. Now Dial.
2. A projecting shank, prong, fang, tongue, or the like; as: The piece forming an extension from the blade or analogous part of a table knife or fork, file, chisel, sword, or the like, to connect with the handle. Sometimes it is a thin flat plate on each side of which a rounded piece is secured to form the handle; otherwise it is a tapered piece inserted into the haft or handle.
3. A sting; a pang.
4. Something that pricks or spurs one on; a spur.
5. Scot. & Dial. Eng. a A low projecting cape or narrow strip of land. b Any of the prongs of a fork. c A pointed knife, pike, foil, etc. d A buckle tongue. e A tine of a stag's horn. f The tongue of a Jew's harp. g A root or branch of a tree.
6. Any surgeonfish, esp. any of the several West Indian species, the common tang (Acanthurus, syn. Teuthis, hepatus), the blue tang (A. caeruleus), and the ocean tang (A. bahianus).
7. a A strong or offensive lingering taste; esp., a taste of something extraneous to the thing itself; as, wine or cider with a tang of the cask. b A pungent odor. c A trace or suggestion; smack; — with of.

Some little tang of gentry. Fletcher.

d A sharp specific flavor or tinge. Cf. TANG, a twang.

A cant of philosophism, and a tang of party politics. Jeffrey.

8. Archaeol. The butt of a prehistoric arrowhead which fitted into the shaft.
9. Firearms. The strip or plate sometimes extending from a firearm breech by which it is secured to the stock.
10. Stereotyping. A projecting superfluous piece on an untrimmed stereotype. Cf. POUR, n., 3.
Syn. — See TASTE.

tang (tăng), v. t.; TANGED (tăngd); TANG'ING (tăng'ĭng).
1. To sting. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
2. To furnish with a tang, as a buckle. See 1st TANG, 2.
3. To affect with a tang. See 1st TANG, 7.
4. Obs. a To prick. b To pierce, as with grief. c To give point or force to.

tang, n. [Of imitative origin. Cf. TWANG.] A sharp twanging sound, as of a single stroke on metal or of the plucking of a string; a twang.

tang, v. t. To cause to ring or sound loudly; to ring; also, to utter with a tang.

Let thy tongue tang arguments of state. Shak.

— v. i. To make a ringing sound; to ring; also, to move with a tang.

tang bees. To cause a swarm of bees to settle, by beating metal to make a din.

tang (tăng), n. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Dan. & Nor. tang seaweed, ON. thang. Cf. TANGLE seaweed.] Any of various large coarse seaweeds, esp. a rockweed of the genus Fucus, as F. vesiculosus, the black tang, F. serratus, the prickly tang, and Ascophyllum nodosum, the yellow tang; tangle. Called also SEATANG.

Tang (tăng), n. [Chin. (Pek.) T'ang[2].] A dynasty in Chinese history, A.D. 618–907, distinguished by wide territorial conquests, great wealth, strength of Buddhism, and the invention of printing. The period is known as the golden age of Chinese poetry and art. — adj. Of or pertaining to this period; as, Tang pottery.

tang (tăng), n. sing. & pl. [Siamese thaṅ.] See MEASURE, Table.

tang, n. [Jav. teñ penny, lit., half (of two pence).] See BAR MONEY.

tan'ga (tŭng'gä), n. Also tang'ka, tan'ka, tan'kah. [Hind. tangā.] Any of various Eastern coins; specif.: a A former silver coin of India, corresponding to the rupee. b A debased silver coin unit of Tibet. See COIN, Table. c A former bronze coin of Portuguese India.

tan'ga·lung (tăng'gä·lŭng), n. [Malay.] An East Indian civet (Viverra tangalunga).

tang'an·tang'an (tăng'ăn·tăng'ăn), n. [Tag.] The castor-oil plant. Phil. I.

Tang'a·ro'a (tä'ngä·rō'ä; tăng'ä·rō'ä), n. [Maori and Rarotongan.] One of the principal gods of the Polynesian pantheon.

Tang'a·ro'an (-ăn), n. Anthropol. One of an ethnic group or late wave of conquering Polynesians; — so called because their supreme god is assumed to have been Tangaroa.

tang chisel. See WOODWORKING CHISEL.

tanged (tăngd), adj. Having or furnished with a tang (in various senses).

tan'ge·ite (tăng'gē·ĭt), n. [From the Tange gorge, Fergana, Uzbek.] Mineral. A hydrous vanadate of copper and calcium, $2CuO.2CaO.V_2O_5.H_2O$, occurring as dark-green rounded masses.

tan'ge·lo (tăn'jē·lō), n. [*tange*rine + pom*elo.*] A hybrid between the tangerine orange and the grapefruit, or pomelo; also, the fruit.

---

tampkin. † TAMPION.

tam·poon', Var. of TAMPION.

Tam'ul, Ta·mu'li·an, Ta·mu'lic. Vars. of TAMIL, TAMILIAN, TAMILIC.

Tam'uz. Var. of TAMMUZ.

Tam'zine, n. Dim. of THOMASINE.

tan'a·ce'tone (tăn'ä·sē'tōn; tăn·ăs'ē·tōn), n. Chem. See THUJONE.

tan'a·ce'tyl (-tĭl), n. = THUJYL.

Ta'nach (tä'näk). Bib.

ta'na·dar' (tä'nä·där'). Var. of THANADAR. India.

Ta·nag'ri·dae (tā·năg'rĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of THRAUPIDAE. See TANAGER. — tan'a·grine (tăn'ä·grĭn; -grīn; tä·năg'rĭn; 156), adj. — -groid (-groid), adj.

ta·na'im (tä·nä'ĭm). Var. of TANNAIM.

tan'aist. Var. of TANIST.

ta·nan' (tä·nän'), n. sing. & pl. Also tha·nan'. [Siamese thanān.] See MEASURE, Table.

tand. Tanned. Ref. Sp.

tan·dour', Var. of TENDOUR.

tanga. Var. of TONGA.

Tan'ga·lo's. Var. of TAGALOA.

tangan. † TANGUN.

Tan·gar'i·dae (tăng·gär'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of THRAUPIDAE. See TANAGER.

tangd. Tanged. Ref. Sp.

tange. † TANG, TANGA, TONG, TONGUE.

tan'gence (tăn'jĕns), n. [F.] Tangency. Rare.

tan'gen·cy (tăn'jĕn·sĭ), n. Quality or state of being tangent.

tang end. A projection on the end of a rod used to strengthen the joint between the rod and a pipe.

tan'gent (tăn'jĕnt), adj. [L. tangens, -entis, pres. part. See TANGENT, n.] 1. Touching; touching at a single point; specif., Geom., meeting a curve or surface at two or more consecutive points and hence having there the same direction as the curve or surface; — said of a straight line, curve, or surface; as, a line tangent to a curve; a curve tangent to a surface; tangent surfaces. See CIRCLE, Illust. The tangent position of a line at an ordinary point P of a curve (fig. 1 in Illust.) is the unique limiting position of the secants PQ and PQ' as the points Q and Q' (on the curve) approach P indefinitely from both sides of P. There are cases where PQ and PQ' approach different limit positions (PT and PT', fig. 2); there is then a tangent up to P and another on from P, but not at P; or where they oscillate faster and faster as Q and Q' near P indefinitely, then the curve is crinkly and has no tangent at P. Similarly if P be fixed on a surface, as Q and R approach P in any way along the surface, the plane PQR tilts about P. If P be an ordinary point, as Q and R approach P indefinitely, no matter how, the plane PQR approaches a limiting plane through P which is the plane tangent at P. Analytically, if $x_1 = x_1(t), \ldots x_n = x_n(t)$ are the Cartesian co-ordinates of the points of a curve in space of n dimensions, the tangent line at any point P_o, for which t has the value t_o, has the equations $x_r = x_r(t_o) + x'_r(t_o)(t - t_o)$ when $r = 1, 2, \ldots n$ and where the prime denotes differentiation with respect to the independent parameter t. The tangent plane at any point P_o of a surface, or spread of two dimensions, is the plane containing the tangent lines at P_o to all curves on the surface passing through P_o; and so on for spreads of higher dimensionality. Tangent curves (or surfaces) have a common point P_o and a common tangent line (or plane) at P_o, and are said to be tangent to one another at P_o.

Tangent Lines (T, T'), 1, 2 As Limiting Positions of Secants; 3 At a Point of Inflection; 4 At a Cusp; 5 At a Node.

2. a Divergent; hence, erratic. b Contiguous.

tan'gent (-jĕnt), n. [L. tangens, -entis, pres. part. of tangere to touch; akin to Gr. tetagōn having seized, AS. thaccian to pat, clap. Cf. ATTAIN, CONTACT, CONTAMINATE, CONTINGENT, ENTIRE, INTACT, TACT, TANGIBLE, TANGO, TAX.] 1. A tangent line, curve, or surface; specif.: a Geom. Portion (of the straight line tangent to a curve) between the point of tangency and a given line, as the axis of abscissas or a radius of a circle produced. b Trig. The tangent (in sense a) of the arc subtending or measuring the angle; the quotient of the sine divided by the cosine of the angle. See TRIGONOMETRIC FUNCTION. Abbr. tan. c A course abruptly deviating from that previously pursued; — esp. in the phrases at, in, upon, a tangent.

2. Music. The small, upright, flat-ended metal pin at the inner end of a clavichord key, which strikes the string to produce the tone and fixes the pitch by damping the string.

3. Railroads. Any piece of straight track. Colloq., U. S.

tan·gen'tal (tăn·jĕn'tăl), adj. Tangential. — -tal·ly, adv.

tangent arc. Meteorol. Any halo that touches a circular halo.

tangent balance. A balance having a heavy normally vertical lever pointed at its lower end and pivoted near its upper end, which is curved over to support a scalepan. The pointer moves over a vertical quadrant, the divisions of which are proportional to the tangent of the angle of deviation of the lever.

tangent curve. See TANGENT, adj., 1.

tan'gent–cut', adj. Tangent-sawed; — called also bastard-cut.

tangent galvanometer or compass. Elec. A galvanometer consisting of a very small magnetic needle in the center of a large vertical circular coil of wire through which the current is passed and whose plane is in the magnetic meridian. In this instrument the intensity of the current is proportional to the tangent of the angle of deflection of the needle— hence, the name.

tan·gen'tial (tăn·jĕn'shăl), adj. 1. Math. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a tangent; in the direction of a tangent.

2. Acting along or lying in a tangent.

3. a Divergent; digressive; hence, erratic. b Merely contiguous.

4. Arranged, or having parts arranged, like tangents.

— tan·gen'ti·al'i·ty (tăn·jĕn'shĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — tan·gen'tial·ly (-jĕn'shăl·ĭ), adv.

tan·gen'tial, n. A point at which a tangent of a (cubic) curve meets the curve again; — called conic tangential when the tangent is a conic meeting the cubic in five points consecutive at a primitive point.

tangential co–ordinates. Math. See CO-ORDINATE, n., 2.

tangential creep. Geol. Slow horizontal movement of material composing the earth's crust.

tangential equation (of a plane curve or surface). Math. An equation connecting the tangential co-ordinates of an arbitrary tangent line (or plane) to the curve (or surface), which is the envelope of its tangent lines (or planes). Also called line equation when of a plane curve.

tangential force. Mech. A force that acts on a moving body in the direction of a tangent to the curved path of the body.

tangential net. See 1st NET, 7 b.

tangential strength. Engin. Resistance to tangential stress.

tangential stress. a = SHEAR, n., 7 c. b Geol. A force acting in a generally horizontal direction, as one which produces mountain folding and overthrusting.

tangential velocity. Astron. The velocity of a star's apparent motion perpendicular to the line of sight.

tan'gent·ly (tăn'jĕnt·lĭ), adv. Tangentially.

tan'gent–saw', v. t. To saw (a log) lengthwise by parallel cuts in regular succession. Cf. QUARTERSAW. — tan'gent–sawed', adj.

tangent scale. Gun. A range scale on a tangent sight.

tangent screw. Mach. a A worm; — so called because it works tangentially on a worm wheel to which it imparts an endless motion. b A very fine screw giving a tangential movement for making the final adjustment to an instrument of precision, as a surveyor's transit.

tangent sight. Firearms. A rear sight, the graduations of which correspond to the tangents of the angles of elevation. It is usually graduated to read in yards of range.

tangent spoke. A tension spoke of a bicycle or similar wheel, secured tangentially to the hub.

tangent surface. See TANGENT, adj., 1.

tangent wheel. a A worm or worm wheel; a tangent screw. b A wheel with tangent spokes.

tang'er (tăng'ĕr), n. One who forms, finishes, or rivets on, tangs. See 1st TANG, 2 a.

Tan'ge·rine' (tăn'jĕ·rēn'), adj. Of, pertaining to, or from, Tangier (see Gaz.).

Tan'ge·rine', n. [From Tangier, Morocco.] 1. A native or inhabitant of Tangier.

2. [not cap.] (pron. tăn'jĕ·rēn; -rēn'). A yellowish-red orange with easily detached rind; a mandarin. See MANDARIN, 4.

3. [not cap.] A color, yellowish-red in hue, of high saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

tang'fish' (tăng'fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -Iz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. [tang seaweed + fish.] The harbor seal. Shetland I.

tan'ghin (tăng'gĭn), n. [F., fr. Malagasy voa tanghin.] A virulent poison derived from the kernels of the ordeal tree (sense a); hence, the tree itself.

Tan·ghin'i·a (tăng·gĭn'ĭ·ä), n. [NL. See TANGHIN.] Bot. A genus of Madagascan trees (family Apocynaceae) having as the only known species T. venenifera, the ordeal tree. It has evergreen oblanceolate leaves, clustered at the ends of the branches, and terminal cymes of small white flowers. See ORDEAL TREE a.

tan'ghi·nin (tăng'gĭ·nĭn), n. Chem. A poisonous crystalline compound, the active principle of the ordeal tree.

ta'ngi (tä'ngē; colloq. täng'ē), n. [Maori.] A wake for the dead; a lamentation; dirge. Australasia.

tan'gi (tăng'gē), n. [Per. tanghi, lit., narrowness.] A gorge. India.

tan'gi·ble (tăn'jĭ·b'l), adj. [LL. tangibilis, fr. tangere to touch. See TANGENT.] 1. Capable of being touched; also, perceptible to the touch; tactile; palpable.

2. Capable of being realized by the mind; externally real; substantial; objective.

Direct and tangible benefit to ourselves and others. Southey.

3. Capable of being affected emotionally.

4. Accounting. Capable of being appraised at an actual or approximate value; as, tangible assets.

Ant. — Impalpable, immaterial. SEE INTANGIBLE.

— tan'gi·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — tan'gi·ble·ness, n. — tan'gi·bly, adv.

tan'gi·ble, n. Now always in pl. Accounting. 1. A physical object, as distinct from a claim or franchise.

2. More broadly, an asset of any kind which can be made the subject of appraisal.

tangible property. Law. Corporeal property either real or personal.

tang'ie (täng'ĭ), n. A sea spirit, appearing sometimes as a horse and at other times as an old man. Shetland & Orkney Islands.

Tan·gier' (tăn·jēr'), n. 1. A town in Morocco.

2. Burnt Roman ocher.

Tangier Agreement. A convention effective June 1, 1925, signed (Dec. 1923) by England, France, and Spain, and adhered to by the Powers signatory to the Act of Algeciras (1906), by which a zone (Tangier Zone) of about 225 square miles in northwest Morocco is permanently neutralized and demilitarized.

Tangier pea. A showy-flowered wild pea (Lathyrus tingitanus) of northern Africa, somewhat like the sweet pea, but inodorous.

tan'gi·lin (tăn'jĭ·lĭn), n. [Malay.] An East Indian pangolin (Manis javanica).

Tan'gi·pa·hoa' (tăn'jē·pä·hō'; colloq. tănch'pä·hō'), n. An Indian of an extinct tribe, probably of Muskhogean stock, of southeastern Louisiana.

tan·glad' (tăng·glăd'), n. [Tag. & Visayan.] The lemon grass (Cymbopogon citratus). Phil. I.

tan'gle (tăng'g'l), n. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Nor. tongul, ON. thōngull. See TANG seaweed.] 1. Any large seaweed; tang; specif., Laminaria saccharina or L. digitata; sea tangle. See KELP, 3.

2. Scot. & N. of Eng. a Obs. A tall, lank person. b An icicle. c A lock of hair.

tan'gle, adj. Feeble because too long and thin. Scot.

tan'gle (tăng'g'l), v.; -GLED (-g'ld); -GLING (-glĭng). [ME. tangilen, tagilen, prob. of Scand. origin; cf. Sw. dial. taggla.] Transitive: 1. To involve so as to hamper, obstruct, or embarrass.

2. To unite or knit together confusedly; to interweave or interlock, as threads, in a knot hard to unravel; to entangle.

3. To involve; ensnare; entrap; as, to be tangled in lies.

——, Intrans.: To be or become entangled; to intertwine.

tan'gle, n. [From TANGLE, v.] 1. A tangled condition or mass; a knot of threads, or other things, united confusedly, or so interwoven as not to be easily disengaged; a snarl; a ravel; as, hair or yarn in tangles.

2. a A state of perplexity or bewilderment; a quandary. b An assemblage of complications; a medley; muddle.

3. A bar or frame to which short lengths of chain, bearing bundles of frayed rope, cotton waste, or like material, are attached. It is dragged over the sea bottom to entangle and catch animals, as starfish.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tangle-haired, tangle-headed, tangle-tailed.

tan'gle·ber'ry (tăng'g'l·bĕr'ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-Iz). A species of huckleberry (Gaylussacia frondosa) of the eastern United States, with pink flowers and sweet blue fruit.

tan'gle·fish' (-fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -Iz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. A pipefish (Syngnathus acus) of Europe.

tan'gle·foot' (-fo̅o̅t'), n. 1. a The heath aster. b Calif. Deerweed.

2. Strong drink; whisky. Slang.

3. [cap.] A trade-mark applied to a sticky substance consisting of rosin and castor oil; hence [sometimes not cap.], the substance bearing this trade-mark. It is used on paper to catch flies, etc., and on tree trunks, etc., as a barrier against insects.

tan'gle–legs' (-lĕgz'), n. 1. The hobblebush.

2. Strong drink. Slang.

tangle picker. The turnstone. Local, Eng.

tan'gler (tăng'glĕr), n. One who or that which tangles.

tan'gle·root' (tăng'g'l·ro̅o̅t'; 200), n. Plant Pathol. An abnormal condition of the pineapple in which the main roots wind around the rootstock instead of growing out into the soil.

tan'gle–tail' (tăng'g'l·tāl'), n. The stonecrop Sedum acre.

Tan'gle·wood' Tales (-wo̅o̅d'). A collection of stories (1853) for children, by Nathaniel Hawthorne.

tan'gling (tăng'glĭng), adj. That tangles. — tan'gling·ly, adv.

tan'gly (-glĭ), adj. Covered or strewn with seaweed.

tan'gly, adj. Snarly; full of tangles or knots; entangled; intricate.

tan'go (tăng'gō), n.; pl. TANGOS (-gōz). [Argentine Sp., dance, fiesta, fr. Sp. tango a gypsy festival, dance, music, fr. tangir to play (an instrument), touch, fr. L. tangere. See TANGENT.] Any of several ballroom dances of Spanish-American origin commonly in ⅜ time and characterized by posturing, frequent pointing positions, and a great variety of steps; specif., a dance of this character, known as the Argentine, distinguished by low dips and twisting steps on the toes. — tan'go, v. i.

tan'go·re·cep'tor (tăng'gō·rē·sĕp'tĕr), n. [From L. tangere to touch + receptor.] Psychol. & Physiol. A receptor of the sense of touch.

tan'gram (tăng'grăm), n. [Cf. TRANGAM.] A Chinese toy made by cutting a square of thin material into seven pieces, these pieces being capable of combination in many different figures.

Tangram.

tangue (tăng), n. [Ult. fr. Malagasy tàndeke.] A tenrec.

tan·gui'le (tăng·gē'lā), n. [Sp., fr. Tag. tanguili.] A Philippine timber tree (Shorea polysperma), family Dipterocarpaceae; also, its reddish-brown wood, sometimes sold as Philippine mahogany.

tan'gun (tăng'gŭn), tan'gum (-gŭm), n. Also tan'ghan (-gŭn). [Hind. ṭaṅg(h)an.] A small strong pony of Tibet and Bhutan, usually piebald. Anglo-Ind.

Tan·gut' (tăn·go̅o̅t'), n. A Tibetan, esp. of Chinghai; — so called by Mongols. — Tan·gut', adj.

tang'y (täng'ĭ), adj. Having or suggestive of a tang. See 1st TANG, 7.

tan'ha (tŭn'hä), n. [Pali taṇhā, fr. Skr. tṛṣṇā thirst, desire; akin to E. THIRST.] Buddhism. Desire; the will to live.

tan'ia (tăn'yä), tan'ier (-yĕr), n. [Of Arawakan, Cariban, or Tupian origin, cf. Arawak taya, Calinago tâia, Tupi taiá.] a Any of several aroids having edible farinaceous roots, esp. the taro (Colocasia esculenta) and Xanthosoma sagittifolium. C. antiquorum is the blue tania. W. I. b See YAUTIA.

ta·ni'ca (tä·nē'kä), n. sing. & pl. [Tigriña tanika.] See MEASURE, Table.

tan'ist (tăn'ĭst; thŏn'ĭst), n. [Ir. tānaiste second, second person in rank.] Irish Tribal Law. The lord or proprietor elected under the system of tanistry. — tan·is'tic (tăn·ĭs'tĭk; thŏn-), adj. — tan'ist·ship, n.

tan'ist·ry (tăn'ĭst·rĭ; thŏn'ĭst·rĭ), n. [See TANIST.] Early Irish Law. The Irish law of succession, by which the heir or successor of a chief or king was appointed during the lifetime of the reigning chief and was not necessarily his oldest son. He was generally the worthiest and wisest of the male relatives of the chief and was elected by the people from among the eligible candidates. This often led to bloody wars and feuds between families, and the system of tanistry was declared illegal by a decision of the Anglo-Irish Judges in the first year of James I.

Ta'nite (tā'nīt), adj. Of or pertaining to ancient Tanis in Egypt, or designating, or pertaining to, the kings (XXIst and XXIIId dynasties) who made it their capital. — Ta·nit'ic (tä·nĭt'ĭk), adj.

Ta'nith, Ta'nit (tā'nĕt), n. [Phoenician.] A Carthaginian goddess, tutelary of the city, prob. the same as Astarte, but with a more pronounced lunar character. She was worshiped in Rome as Dea, or Virgo, Caelestis.

Ta'ni·wha (tä'nē·hwä), n. [Maori.] A fabulous saurianlike monster of Maori legend usually said to be anthropophagous and amphibian but sometimes harmless and inhabiting caves. New Zealand.

tan·jib' (tŭn·jĕb'), n. [Beng. tanjīb, fr. Per. tan-zīb, lit., ornament of the body.] A fine muslin fabric made in India.

tan'jong (tăn'jŏng), n. [Malay tanjoṅ.] A point or cape.

tank (tăngk), n. [Pg. tanque, for estanque, fr. L. stagnum. See STAGNATE.] 1. a In India, a pool, lake, or reservoir. b U. S. & Dial. Eng. A pond, pool, or small lake.

We stood in the afterglow on the bank of the tank and saw the ducks come home. F. Remington.

2. A large basin, cistern, or other artificial receptacle for liquids; as, a swimming tank; a gasoline tank.

3. A canvas bag for provisions. Colloq.

4. Short for TANK ENGINE, TANKER, TANK LOCOMOTIVE, etc.

5. Slang. a The stomach. b A habitual hard drinker. c Tank drama.

6. Glass Mfg. A tank furnace.

7. Mil. A self-propelling engine of destruction consisting of a casement of heavy armor plates mounted on a tractor (esp. of the caterpillar type) and armed with guns or machine guns or both. It is capable of traversing very rough ground, passing over trenches, shell craters, etc. Such tanks were first used by the British in the advance on the Somme in September 1916. The name tank as applied to these armored tractors arose from the fact that the hull was called "a water carrier for Mesopotamia" in the shop orders in England for those first made, in order to conceal their real purpose, and this was soon shortened to "tank," which came to be used for the completed tractors.

8. Photog. A container for any photographic solution.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tank driver	tankman	tank rivet
tankmaker	tank meter	tankroom tankmaking

tank (tăngk), v. t.; TANKED (tăngkt); TANK'ING. 1. To place or enclose in a tank; to subject to some operation in a tank; specif., to treat, as animal refuse, in a closed tank with steam and hot water to extract fat. Cf. TANKAGE, 4.

2. To cause to flow into a tank; to store in a tank.

3. To yield in tankage.

tank up. To supply oneself with drink; esp., to drink liquor to excess. Slang.

tank. Corruption of THANK.

tank (tăngk), n. & v. Knock; hit; bang. Chiefly Dial. Eng.

tank (tăngk), n. sing. & pl. [Hind. ṭaṅk.] See WEIGHT.

tan'ka (täng'kä), n. sing. & pl. [Chin. (Cantonese) t'eng.] One of a tribe of aborigines driven to live in boats on the river at Canton, China.

tan'ka, n. [Jap.] A Japanese fixed form of verse of five lines, the first and third of which have five syllables, the others seven. Cf. HOKKU.

---

tan'ghan (täng'gŭn), tan'gham (-gŭm). Vars. of TANGUN.

tan'gib. Var. of TANJIB.

tan·gib'i·le (tăn·jĭb'ĭ·lē), n. [LL., neut. of tangibilis tangible.] = TANGIBLE, n. Rare.

tan'gier·ine. Var. of TANGERINE, 2.

tang'ka. Var. of TANGA.

tang'ld. Tangled. Ref. Sp.

tan'gle·ment, n. See -MENT.

tan'gle·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

tan'gle·some, adj. See -SOME.

tang'less, adj. See -LESS.

tan'gle·wrack', n. = 1st TANGLE, 1.

tan'go. † TANGA.

tangs (tăngz; tängz). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TONGS.

tangue. † TANG. [TANGHIN.]

tan'guin (tăng'gĭn). Var. of tanh (thăn), n. See HYPERBOLIC FUNCTIONS. [Ṭāb.]

Tan·hu'meth (tăn·hō'mĕth).

Ta'ni·a Aus·tra'lis (tā'nĭ·ä ôs·trā'lĭs). [NL.] See STAR, Table.

Ta'ni·a Bo're·a'lis (bō'rē·ā'lĭs). [NL.] See STAR, Table.

Ta'nis (tā'nĭs). D. Ṭāb.

tan'ka (tŭng'kȧ), n. [Tibetan thaṅka picture.] In Tibetan art, a religious painting mounted on brocade for use as a processional banner.

tan'ka, tan'kah (tŭng'kä). Vars. of TANGA.

tank'age (tăngk'ĭj), n. 1. Act or process of putting or storing in tanks; also, fees charged for storage in tanks. 2. The capacity or contents of a tank or tanks. 3. Waste matter from tanks. 4. Agric. Dried animal residues, as bones, tendons, etc., a by-product of slaughterhouses, rendering plants, etc., usually freed from the fat and gelatin and used as a fertilizer and feeding stuff. See DIGESTER TANKAGE.

tank'ard (tăngk'ẽrd), n. [Cf. MF. tanquart, MD. tanckaert, of uncert. origin.] 1. Orig., a tublike vessel, esp. for carrying water; later, a hooped vessel of staves for drinking; now, a tall, one-handled drinking vessel, esp. one of pewter with a lid. 2. A drink suitable for a tankard. — tankard bearer. — tank'ard–bear'ing, adj.

tank car. Railroads. A railroad car especially constructed for transporting liquids or gases in bulk in nondetachable tanks.

tank circuit. Radio. a An oscillatory circuit associated with the output circuit of a tube generator, which absorbs the generator output in the form of energy impulses of high value and short duration and in turn delivers its output to an antenna. b Any tuned circuit connected in the plate circuit of a tube generator. c An absorption circuit.

tank dome. See DOME, 3 b.

tank drama. Melodrama having as its chief sensation the use of a tank, or reservoir, of water, as in representing a rescue from drowning; hence, any spectacular, sensational play, especially one with cheap or claptrap effects. Also, drama suitable for, or played in, tank stations or towns.

tanked (tăngkt), adj. Intoxicated. Slang.

tank engine. An engine carrying its own fuel and water.

tank'er (tăngk'ẽr), n. 1. A steel cargo boat fitted with tanks for the carrying of oil, molasses, or other liquid, in bulk. 2. One who tends to tanks, as a compounder.

tank'er (tăngk'ẽr), tank'ert. Scot. vars. of TANKARD.

tank·ette' (tăngk·ĕt'), n. [See -ETTE.] A small military tank.

tank farm. Petroleum. Any continuous area used exclusively for the field storage of oil in tanks; esp., such an area with all of the tanks and equipment.

tank furnace. Glass Mfg. A hearth or basin, into one end of which the batch is shoveled, the melted glass flowing into the other end, whence it is drawn.

tank'ie (tăngk'ĭ), n. Nav. One in charge of the tanks. Slang, Brit.

tank iron. Plate iron thinner than boiler plate and thicker than sheet iron or stovepipe iron.

tan'kle (tăng'k'l), n. [From tinkle-tankle, redupl. of TINKLE.] A sound louder and less acute than that represented by "tinkle." — tan'kle, v. i.

tank liquor. Chem. See LEBLANC PROCESS.

tank locomotive. A tank engine.

tank nipple. Mach. A nipple for a tank wall; specif., a nipple first threaded over a considerable length with an American National external lock-nut thread and then recut on the end with an American National taper pipe thread.

tank'o·drome (tăngk'ō·drōm), n. [tank + -drome as in air*drome*.] A parking place for tanks.

tank runner. The pheasant-tailed jaçana.

Tank school. See SPECIAL SERVICE SCHOOL.

tank ship, tank steamer. = TANKER, 1.

tank station. A stopping place at which there is a tank for supplying railroad locomotives with water. Hence, a small, insignificant town. Slang, U. S.

tank table. A table whose top is tank-shaped, as one suitable for collecting oil cast in it.

tank town. A town at which trains stop for water. Slang, U. S.

tank truck or wagon. A truck or wagon having a tank for the transportation of liquids, as oil, milk, or gasoline.

tank waste. Chem. See LEBLANC PROCESS.

tan'ling (tăn'lĭng), n. [tan + 1st -ling.] One tanned by the sun. Rare.

tan liquor. Tanning liquor.

tan'nage (tăn'ĭj), n. 1. Act, process, or result, of tanning; also, the material used in tanning. 2. A tannery. Scot. 3. = TANNING b. Rare. Browning.

tan·na'im (tä·nä'ĭm), n. pl.; sing. TANNA (tăn'ä). [Heb. tannā'īm, pl. of tannā teacher, fr. Aram. tĕnā' to repeat, teach.] Jewish Hist. The rabbis and teachers in Palestine during the first two centuries A.D., whose interpretations of Biblical law and oral tradition are recorded in the Mishnah, Tosephta, and other works, together with their parables and homiletic comments on Scripture. — tan·na'ic (-ĭk), adj. — tan'na·it'ic (tăn'ȧ·ĭt'ĭk), adj.

tan'na·kin (tăn'ȧ·kĭn), n. [See ANNA; -KIN.] A young woman, esp. Dutch or German. Obs.

tan'nase (tăn'ās), n. [See -ASE.] Biochem. An enzyme that accelerates the hydrolysis of a tannin.

tan'nate (tăn'āt), n. Chem. A salt or ester of tannin.

tanned (tănd), adj. That has been treated or colored by tanning; hence, sunburnt; brown or tawny; also, covered with tan.

tan'ner (tăn'ẽr), n. One whose occupation is to tan hides.

tan'ner (tăn'ẽr), n. [Origin uncert.] A sixpence. Slang, Eng.

tan'ner's bark (tăn'ẽrz). Tanbark.

tanner's, or tanning, sumac. A European sumac (Rhus coriaria) widely grown in Sicily for use in tanning and dyeing.

tanner's tree. a The shrub Coriaria myrtifolia. See CORIARIA. b The tanner's sumac.

tanner's–tree' fam'i·ly. The Coriariaceae.

tanner's wool. Slipe.

tan'ner·y (tăn'ẽr·ĭ), n.; pl. -NERIES (-ĭz). [Cf. F. tannerie.] 1. A place where the work of tanning is carried on. 2. The art or process of tanning; tannage. Rare.

tannery fungus. A slime mold (Fuligo septica) common on tanbark.

Tann'häu·ser (tăn'hoi·zẽr; tăn'-), n. [G.] A German knight and minnesinger of the 13th century, identified with a legendary hero in various works, esp. Wagner's opera Tannhäuser. Tannhäuser, moved by the philosopher Hilario, entered the enchanted cavern in the Venusberg (symbolic of sensual passion). Escaping thence, he sought the Pope, who said: "You can no more hope for pardon than this dry wand can bud and bear leaves." Tannhäuser in despair returned to the Venusberg. Meanwhile the staff miraculously budded and the Pope sent messengers to search for Tannhäuser, but in vain. In Wagner's opera, the knight, on invoking the Virgin, is suddenly released from the Venusberg, and, led by the memory of Elizabeth, niece of the Landgrave of Thuringia, he returns to the castle of Wartburg. In a musical contest he is suddenly impelled to sing of sensual love, and but for Elizabeth would have been killed. He seeks absolution at Rome in vain. Elizabeth dies of grief. Tannhäuser, while returning to the Venusberg, is saved by the mention of Elizabeth's name. Seeing her dead he dies of grief. Meanwhile the Pope's staff has blossomed, indicating that Tannhäuser is forgiven, but the pilgrims seeking him to tell him the news arrive after his death. Cf. ECKEHART, 2.

tanni-. Comb. form for tannin, as in *tanni*ferous.

tan'nic (tăn'ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to tan; derived from, or resembling, tan; as, tannic acid.

-tan'nic. A combining form of tannic, as in caffe*tannic*, gallo*tannic*, querci*tannic*. Corresponding nouns are formed in -tannin.

tannic acid. Chem. Tannin, or a tannin. See TANNIN, 1.

tan'nide (tăn'ĭd; -ĭd), n. Also tan'nid. [tannin + -ide.] Chem. A substance, whether a tannin or not, that gives microchemical tannin reactions. Tannides occur often in the same plant cells with alkaloids, sometimes combined with them.

tan·nif'er·ous (tăn·ĭf'ẽr·ŭs), adj. [tannin + -ferous.] Yielding tannin.

tan'nin (tăn'ĭn), n. [F. tanin.] Chem. 1. a An amorphous, strongly astringent substance obtained in the form of brownish-white shining scales from gallnuts (of which it constitutes 50 per cent or more), sumac, valonia, and other plant products; — called also tannic acid, gallotannin, gallotannic acid. It precipitates gelatin solutions, tans hides, and forms a bluish-black compound with ferric salts. It is of complex structure (see DEPSIDE) and yields by hydrolysis gallic acid and (in the case of some preparations at least) dextrose. It is used in tanning, making ink, dyeing, etc., and in medicine as an astringent. b Any of a group of substances including ordinary tannin and characterized by many of its properties; — called also tannic acid. They are amorphous or crystalline, are widely distributed in plants, and are used in tanning, dyeing, and inkmaking. Some are made synthetically. 2. Anal. Chem. & Com. Any substance that has a tanning effect, as determined by its absorption by hide powder; a tan.

-tan'nin. See -TANNIC.

tan'nined (tăn'ĭnd), adj. Impregnated or treated with tannin.

tan'ning (tăn'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TAN. Specif.: n. a Art or process by which a skin is tanned. b A browning, as of the skin, by exposure to the sun. c Slang. A flogging; beating.

tanning extract. An extract, either liquid, semisolid, or solid, made from oak bark, sumac leaves and twigs, quebracho wood, or other tanniferous material for use in tanning.

tan'no- (tăn'ō-). A combining form for tannin and tannic, denoting presence of tannin, as in tan'no·caf·fe'ic, tan'no·gal'late, tan'no·gal'lic, tan'no·gel'a·tin.

tan'no·gen (-jĕn), n. [tanno- + -gen.] Chem. Any of a group of compounds, as gallic acid, from which the tannins are regarded as formed.

tan'noid (tăn'oid), adj. Of the nature of, or resembling, the tannins. — tan'noid, n.

tan·nom'e·ter (tăn·ŏm'ē·tẽr), n. [tanno- + -meter.] a An apparatus for determining the strength of a tanning liquor by drawing it through hide and measuring its resulting loss in density. b A barkometer.

tan'nyl (tăn'ĭl), n. [tannin + -yl.] Chem. A radical derived from tannin.

tannyl acetate. Acetyltannic acid.

Ta'no (tä'nō), n. An Indian of a group of Tanoan tribes, formerly occupying several pueblos in Santa Fe County, New Mexico. They were conquered and scattered by the Spaniards during the Pueblo revolts in the 17th century. A few survivors live in other Tanoan pueblos. Cf. PUEBLO.

ta·no'a (tä·nō'ä), n. [Samoan.] A huge bowl for kava. Samoa & Fiji.

tan oak. = TANBARK OAK a.

Ta'no·an (tä'nō·ăn), adj. Designating, or pertaining to, a linguistic family of North American Indians occupying pueblos in the Rio Grande and tributary valleys, in central New Mexico. They now number over 3,000.

tan pickle. Tanning liquor.

tan pit. A tan vat.

tan'quam (tăn'kwăm), n. [L., as much as.] One learned enough to associate with university fellows. Obs. Eng. Univ. Slang.

tan'quam (tăn'kwăm), n. = QUI TAM, 1. Obs.

tan ride. A riding track covered with tan.

tan spud. A spud or chisel for stripping tanbark from trees.

tan'sy (tăn'zĭ), n. [OF. tanoisie, tanesie (F. tanaisie), fr. ML. athanasia, fr. Gr. athanasia immortality; cf. ML. tanacetum tansy.] 1. a Any plant of the genus Tanacetum. The common tansy (T. vulgare) has a strong aromatic odor, and a very bitter taste. It was formerly much used in cookery and medicine as a bitter tonic. b Sometimes, any of certain other plants, esp. the silverweed, or goose tansy (Argentina anserina). 2. A dish made of eggs, sugar, rose water, cream, and the juice of herbs, baked with butter in a shallow dish. Archaic & Dial. 3. A village feast on Shrove Tuesday. N. of Eng.

tansy mustard. A North American cresslike herb (Descurainia pinnata) with tansylike leaves.

tansy oil. See OIL, Table I.

tansy ragwort. A common European ragwort (Senecio jacobaea) with pinnatifid leaves and compact corymbs of yellow flower heads.

‖tan'ta (tăn'tȧ), n. [D. tante.] An aunt. S. Africa.

tan·tad'lin (tăn·tăd'lĭn), n. A kind of tart; a dumpling or dainty. Now Dial.

tan'ta·late (tăn'tȧ·lāt), n. Chem. A salt of tantalic acid.

Tan·ta'le·an (tăn·tā'lē·ăn), Tan·ta'li·an (-lĭ·ăn), adj. Pert. to or like that of Tantalus; elusive; tantalizing; illusory.

tantali-. A combining form for tantalum, as in tan·ta·lif'er·ous. See -FEROUS.

Tan·tal'ic (tăn·tăl'ĭk), adj. Tantalean.

tan·tal'ic (tăn·tăl'ĭk), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or derived from, tantalum.

tantalic acid. Chem. Any of several acids derived from tantalum pentoxide and known chiefly in their salts, the tantalates; specif., the acid $HTaO_3$ (metatantalic acid).

Tan·tal'i·dan (tăn·tăl'ĭ·dăn), adj. Descended from Tantalus. Obs.

tan'ta·li·flu'o·ride (tăn'tȧ·lĭ·flōō'ō·rīd; -rĭd), n. Also -rid. Chem. A fluotantalate.

tan'ta·lite (tăn'tȧ·lĭt), n. Mineral. A heavy iron-black mineral of submetallic luster, essentially iron tantalate, $Fe(TaO_3)_2$, but containing manganese and also columbium, and thus grading into columbite. H., 6. Sp. gr., up to 7.3.

tan'ta·lize (-lĭz), v. t. & i.; TAN'TA·LIZED (-lĭzd); TAN'TA·LIZ'ING (-lĭz'ĭng). [From TANTALUS.] 1. To tease or torment by presenting some good to the view and exciting desire, but continually frustrating the expectations by keeping that good out of reach; to tease; torment. 2. To torment or suffer like Tantalus. 3. To force into artificial form.

Syn. — See HARASS. Ant. — Satisfy, gratify. See CONTENT — tan'ta·li·za'tion (-lĭ·zā'shŭn; -lĭ·zā'shŭn), n. — tan'ta·liz'er (tăn'tȧ·lĭz'ẽr), n. — tan'ta·liz'ing·ly, adv. — tan'ta·liz'ing·ness, n.

tan'ta·lo·flu'o·ride (tăn'tȧ·lō·flōō'ō·rīd; -rĭd), n. Also -rid. [tantalum + fluoride.] Chem. A fluotantalate.

tan'ta·lum (tăn'tȧ·lŭm), n. [NL.; — in ref. to the difficulties met in isolating it. See TANTALUS.] Chem. A metallic element of the vanadium family, found (combined) in tantalite, columbite, and other rare minerals. Symbol, Ta; at. no., 73; at. wt., 180.88. Tantalum is a hard, very ductile, gray-white metal, highly resistant to acids. Sp. gr., 16.6. Melting point, about 2850° C. (5162° F.). It is used in electrolytic rectifiers and for certain fine tools and apparatus, often as a substitute for platinum. For electric lamp filaments it has been replaced by tungsten. Its chief valence is five.

tantalum lamp. Elec. An incandescent lamp with tantalum filament. Cf. TUNGSTEN LAMP.

Tan'ta·lus (-lŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tantalos.] 1. Gr. Myth. A wealthy king, son of Zeus and father of Pelops and Niobe. For an atrocious sin (sometimes stated to be the serving up his son Pelops as a meal to the gods, sometimes the revealing of divine counsels), Tantalus was punished in the lower world by being placed in the midst of a lake whose waters reached to his chin, but receded whenever he attempted to allay his thirst, while over his head hung branches laden with choice fruit which likewise receded whenever he stretched out his hand to grasp them. 2. Zool. Syn. of MYCTERIA. 3. [not cap.] A kind of locked case or cellaret for wines and liquors; — so called because its contents are visible but not attainable without a key.

Tan'ta·lus, or Tan'ta·lus's, cup (-lŭs-ĭz). A scientific toy consisting of a cup with a puppet in its bowl. Water may be poured into the bowl as high as the puppet's chin, and then it will recede, being let out at the bottom through a siphon concealed in the puppet's body.

tan'ta·mount' (tăn'tȧ·mount'), adj. [From tantamount, n., fr. tantamount, v., fr. AF. tant amunter to amount to as much. See 1st TANTI; AMOUNT.] Equivalent in value, signification, or effect.

A usage nearly tantamount to constitutional right. Hallam.

Syn. — See IDENTICAL.

tan'ta·mount', v. i. & t. To be tantamount; equal. Obs.

tan'ta·mount', n. An equivalent. Obs.

tan'–tan', n. [Imitative; cf. obs. F. tantan.] a Obs. A bell. b A monotonous repeated sound, as of a kettledrum.

tan'ta·ra (tăn'tȧ·rȧ; ‚tăn·tăr'ȧ; -tä'rȧ), n. Also tan'ta·rar'a (tăn'tȧ·răr'ȧ; -rä'rȧ). [Imitative. Cf. TARATANTARA.] The blare of a trumpet or horn; a fanfare.

‖tan'ti (tăn'tĭ). [L., gen. sing. of tantum, so much.] Worth while; esp., as an exclamation, a fig; a fico; — from the Latin interrogation est tanti? is it worth while?

tan'ti (tăn'tĭ), n. [Skr., weaver.] One of a Hindu caste of weavers of Assam and Bengal.

‖tan'tième' (tăn'tyăm'), n. [F.] A percentage or proportional share (of profits or earnings); also, a bonus.

tan·tiv'y (tăn·tĭv'ĭ), adv. [Prob. imitative of a gallop.] Swiftly; speedily; headlong; as, to ride tantivy. Archaic. — adj. Swift; speedy; rapid. — interj. An exclamation expressing the sound of galloping, and later of the horn.

tan·tiv'y, n.; pl. -TIVIES (-ĭz). 1. A rapid gallop or ride; a rushing movement; an impetuous rush. 2. [cap.] An English Royalist or Tory of the last quarter of the 17th century. 3. Hunting. A cry or call to signal full speed or full chase. — tan·tiv'y, adj.

tan·tiv'y (tăn·tĭv'ĭ), v. i. To ride or go away in haste. Obs. — v. t. To call (one) a Tantivy. Obs.

tan'tle (tăn'tl), v. i. To dawdle; also, to give solicitous attention. Dial. Eng.

‖tan'to (tăn'tō), adv. [It.] So much; also, in musical directions, not too much; not so very; as, allegro non tanto (brisk, but not too brisk).

Tan'to·ny (tăn'tō·nĭ; tăn'-), n. [From Saint Anthony.] Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. a St. Anthony; — in various phrases; as, Tantony cross, pouch, pig. b An Anthony pig. c A hand bell.

tan'tra (tăn'trȧ), n. [Skr.] Hinduism. The fourth class of the shastras, including the religious texts revealed by Siva as the specific scripture of the fourth or present age (Kali Yuga). Tantric cults include so-called right-handed and left-handed sects, the latter practicing orgiastic rites. Also [cap.], one of the sacred works of the worshipers of Shakti. — tan'tric, tan'trik (-trĭk), adj.

tan'trism (-trĭz'm), n. The system of doctrines and rites taught in the tantras. — tan'trist (-trĭst), n. & adj.

tan'trum (tăn'trŭm), n. [Cf. dial. antrums, antrims.] A burst of ill humor; a fit of ill temper or caprice. Colloq.

tan tub. A tan vat. Obs.

tan'tum (tăn'tŭm; tăn'-), n. [L. tantum so much.] A stint; a fixed allowance. Local, Eng.

tan'ker·a·bo'gus, n. See BOGUS, Ely.

tank'ful, n. See -FUL.

tank'less, adj. See -LESS.

tank'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tankt. Tanked. Ref. Sp.

tank'wise', adv. See -WISE.

tan'na, tan'na·dar'. Vars. of THANA, THANADAR. [-ABLE.]

tan'na·ble (tăn'ȧ·b'l), adj. See tan·nal'bin (tăn·ăl'bĭn), n. [tannin + albumen + -in.] = ALBUTANNIN.

tanne. + TAN, v.; THAN; THEN.

Tan'nen·berg (tăn'ĭn·bẽrk), n. See BATTLE, Table.

tan'nia (tăn'yȧ), tan'nier (-yẽr). Vars. of TANIA, TANIER.

tannin color. = BASIC DYE.

tan'nin·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tan'ny, tannye. + TAWNY.

tan'ram·ram' (tăn'ȧ·rȧm'), n. See -PROOF.

Tan'que·lin'i·an (tăng'kē·lĭn'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n. Eccl. Hist. = TANCHELMIAN. [TANGHIN.]

tan'quen (tăng'kĕn). Var. of Tan'que·ray, Mrs. See SECOND MRS. TANQUERAY. [REC.]

tan'rec (tăn'rĕk). Var. of TENtan'sel. Dial. var. of TANCEL.

tan'sey. Var. of TANSY.

tan'stuff', n. See -STUFF.

tant. + TAINT.

‖tan·tae'ne a'ni·mis cae·les'ti·bus i'rae? (ăn'ĭ·mĭs). [L.] Does such anger (dwell) in heavenly souls? Vergil (Aeneid, I. 11).

tan·taff'lin. Var. of TANTADLIN.

tan'ta·lism, n. [See TANTALIZE.] Tantalization. Obs.

tan·ta'li·um (tăn·tā'lĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Tantalum. Obs.

tan'ta·mou'ti·ng·ly adv. Equivalently. Obs.

Tan'ta·ny. Var. of TANTONY. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. [Ely.] tan'ta·ra·bo'bus, n. See BOGUS,

‖tant' bien' que mal' (tăn'-byăn' kē mäl'). [F.] As well as ill; indifferently.

‖tant' mieux' (tăn' myō'). [F.] So much the better.

tantoblin. + TANTADLIN.

‖tant' pis' (tăn' pē'). [F.] So much the worse.

‖tant pro. Tit for tat. Obs.

tan'trik. Var. of TANTRIC.

‖tant' s'en faut' (tăn' săn fō'). [F.] Literally, so much is wanting, or lacking; so far from it.

‖Tan'tum Er'go (tăn'tŭm ûr'gō). [L., lit., so great, therefore.] R.C.Ch. The last two stanzas of the hymn beginning "Pange, lingua, gloriosi corporis mysterium," sung when the Eucharist is borne in procession and at benediction; — from words beginning these stanzas. Also, a musical setting of them.

tan vat. A vat in which hides steep in liquor with tan.

tan'wood' (tăn'wŏŏd'), n. Any wood yielding a tanning extract.

tan'y- (tăn'ĭ-). Zool. A combining form, Greek tany-, from tanyein, to stretch, meaning stretched out, as in *tany*stomatous.

Tan'y·sto'ma·ta (tăn'ĭ·stō'mȧ·tȧ; -stŏm'ȧ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL. fr. tany- + -stomata.] Zool. A division of dipterous insects in which the proboscis is large and contains lancelike mandibles and maxillae. The horseflies and robber flies are examples. — tan'y·stome (tăn'ĭ·stōm), n. — tan'y·stom'a·tous (-stŏm'ȧ·tŭs; -stō'mȧ·tŭs), adj.

‖Tan·zi'mat (tän·zē'mät), n. [Turk. & Ar. tanẓīmāt, pl. of Ar. tanẓīm regulation.] An organic statute for the government of the Turkish Empire, issued by the sultan Abdul-Medjid in 1839, intended to establish reforms in taxation, military service, etc.

tao (dou; tou), n. [Chin. (Pek.) tao[4].] 1. A road; a way. 2. a Chinese Philos. Figuratively [often cap.], the course of nature; the absolute; the cosmic order. Hence: b Truth. c Right conduct.

ta'o (tä'ō), n.; pl. TAOS (-ōz). [Tag.] Man; usually, a native of the lower class; a peasant. Phil. I.

tao (tou), n. sing. & pl. [Annamese tau.] See MEASURE, Table.

Tao'ism (dou'ĭzm; tou'-), n. A religion and philosophy of China. Its traditional founder was Lao-tse, 6th century B.C. Its greatest classic, the Tao Tê Ching, teaches conformity to the Tao and simplicity of social and political organization. Taoism is a liberal religion in contrast to the conservative absolutism of Confucianism. Later, the system largely degenerated into magic. Both magical and philosophical Taoism still survive. — Tao'ist (-ĭst), n. & adj. — Tao·is'tic (dou·ĭs'tĭk; tou-), adj.

Tao'ist Trin'i·ty. The three chief gods of Taoism, often given as the Heavenly Jewel (T'ien[1]-pao[3]), the Mystic Jewel (Ling[2]-pao[3]), and the Spiritual Jewel (Shên[3]-pao[3]), who is identified with Lao-tse.

Ta'o·nu'rus (tā'ō-nū'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. taōs or taōn peacock + oura tail.] Paleontol. A genus of Devonian fossil algae, of which Spirophyton (which see) is often considered a synonym.

Ta'os (tä'ōs), n. An Indian of a Tanoan tribe of Taos, the most northerly of the pueblos, on the upper Rio Grande in New Mexico. See TIGUA.

tao'tai' (dou'tī'), n. [Chin. (Pek.) tao[4]-t'ai[2] intendant of a circuit or tao; changed after 1911 to tao[4]-yin[2].] Formerly, in China, an official at the head of the civil and military affairs of a circuit, which consisted of two or more fu, or territorial departments; — called also, by foreigners, intendant of circuit. Foreign consuls and commissioners of customs associated with taotais as superintendents of trade at the treaty ports were ranked with the taotai.

Tao Tê Ching (dou dĕ jĭng). [Chin. (Pek.) tao[4], way, reason + tê[2] virtue + ching[1] classic.] Taoism. The chief classic of Taoism, traditionally the work of Laotse, but probably not the product of any one writer. It teaches of Tao (which see), and tê, right conduct in conformity to the Tao. It advocates the minimum of social, economic, and political, organization.

tao'-tieh' (tou'tyĕ'), n. [Chin. (Pek.) t'ao'-t'ieh[4].] The ogrelike figure of a mythical animal's face appearing on very ancient, mostly pre-Han, objects of Chinese art.

tao'yin' (dou'yĭn'), n. [See TAOTAI.] In China, formerly, the chief official of a provincial district.

tap (tăp), v.; TAPPED (tăpt) or TAPT; TAP'PING. [ME. tappen, fr. OF. taper, of imitative origin.] Transitive: 1. To strike with a slight audible blow; to rap lightly; as, to tap one with the hand or a cane; figuratively, to reprove; censure.
2. To give a light blow or blows with; as, to tap a pencil.
3. To make by tapping, or striking repeatedly with light blows; as, a woodpecker tapped a hole in the tree.
4. Basketball. To strike (the ball) with the hand, diverting it to a player of one's own side.
5. Shoe Mfg. To repair by putting a tap on.
—, Intransitive: 1. To strike a slight audible blow; to rap.
2. To drum with the feet; — of hares and rabbits.
3. To walk with light audible steps.
4. To tap-dance.

tap off. Basketball. To start the play from the center circle by tapping a jump ball toward a player of one's own side.

tap, n. [Cf. F. tape. See TAP to strike.] 1. A light audible blow; a light rap; also, its sound.
2. A slight amount; as a tap of work. Ire.
3. pl. Mil. & Nav. A signal, by drum, bugle, or trumpet, for extinguishing all lights in soldiers' or sailors' quarters and going to bed and preserving silence.
4. Shoemaking. A partial sole put on over the worn sole; loosely, a half sole.

tap (tăp), n. [ME. tappe, fr. AS. tæppa; akin to D. tap, G. zapfen, OHG. zapfo, Dan. tap, Sw. tapp, ON. tappi. Cf. TAMPION.] 1. a Chiefly Brit. A cock, faucet, or small valve, esp. for turning on the water over a sink, bathtub, or the like. b A corporation tap. c Any slender, cylindrical, tapering object.
2. A hole or pipe through which liquor is drawn.
3. A plug or spile to stop a hole, as in a cask; a spigot.
4. Liquor drawn through a tap; hence: a A certain kind or quality of liquor; as, liquor of the same tap. b A special variety or type. "Sentiment was n't his tap." Holmes. c Colloq. A place where liquor is drawn for drinking; taproom; bar.
5. A request for a loan or gift. Slang.
6. Short for TAP CINDER, TAPHOLE, TAPHOUSE, TAPROOM, TAPROOT, etc.
7. Elec. a A connection to a coil making it possible to place only part of the coil in circuit. b A wire brought from a winding to which connections may be made. c A current tap. d An intermediate point where an electrical connection may be made.
8. Leather Mfg. A vat, or leach.
9. Lumbering. A cut from the interior of a log.
10. Mach. a A tool for forming an internal screw thread, as in a nut, consisting of a hardened tool-steel male screw grooved longitudinally so as to have cutting edges. Taps turned by hand are called hand taps; those turned by machinery machine taps. In tapping a hole, three taps, varying from machine screw sizes up, may be successively used, the final one giving the finishing cut. These are called taper tap, plug tap, and bottoming tap, or serial taps, numbers 1, 2, and 3, in the United States, and taper tap, second tap, and plug tap, in England, respectively. Cf. 2d HOB, 4 a. Usually, a hand tap has a square head by which it is turned with a wrench.

Taps, 5. 1 Taper; 2 Plug or Second; 3 Bottoming or Plug.

A pipe tap is formed to produce pipe threads. A collapsing tap is a composite tap, so constructed that its cutting chasers may be drawn toward the tap center line to permit withdrawing the tap from the hole without the necessity of unscrewing. Cf. PULLEY TAP; TAPPER TAP; SCREW THREAD. b Local, U. S. A nut.

☞ PHRASES are:

tap chuck	tap gauge	tap tool
tap cutter	tap grinder	tap wrench
tap extractor	tap reamer

11. Metal. The quantity of molten metal run out from a furnace or cupola at any one time.

— on tap. a Ready to be drawn; as, ale on tap. b Broached or furnished with a tap. c On hand. d See TAP RATE.

tap (tăp), v. Transitive: 1. To furnish with a tap.
2. a To let out or cause to flow by piercing, or by drawing a plug from, the containing vessel; as, to tap a liquor. b To sell in small amounts.
3. To open or break into so as to extract something. Hence, to draw from (anything) in any analogous way; as, to tap telegraph wires; to tap a treasury.
4. To pierce so as to let out, or draw off, a fluid; to draw off or drain off fluid from; as, to tap a cask, a tumor, etc.
5. To connect (a street, gas, or water, main) with a local supply, as at a house, by a corporation tap.
6. To remove the tap root from.
7. To get money from (one), as a loan or gift. Cf. TOUCH, v. i., 20 b. Slang.
8. Elec. To connect or cut in (a circuit) on another circuit.
9. Mach. To form a female screw in (anything) by means of a tap; as, to tap a nut. See BOLT, Illust.
—, Intransitive: 1. To be, or act as, a tapster.
2. To give or spend freely. Obs. Slang.

tap the admiral. Naut. To tap, and steal liquor from, a cask; — from the yarn that a cask of liquor in which Nelson's body was sent to England was so tapped. Slang.

tap the bank. In gambling, to win from the bank; figuratively, to open the flow of cash from the banker's capital.

tap, n. A tapnet.

tap (tŭp), n. [Hind., fr. Skr. tapa heat, a burning.] Heat; malarial fever; also, penance. India.

tap (tăp). Var. of TOP. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

ta'pa (tä'pä), tap'pa, n. [Marquesan; cf. Hawaiian kapa.] The bark of the paper mulberry or of the tree Pipturus albidus; hence, tapa cloth.

Ta'pa (tä'pä), n. A Colima.

Ta'pa·chu'la (tä'pä·chōō'lä), Ta'pa·chul·te'ca (-chōōl-tā'kä), n. An Indian of a Zoquean tribe of southern Chiapas.

tapa cloth. In the Pacific islands, a fabric or cloth made from tapa by steeping and beating.

tap'a·co'lo (tăp'ȧ·kō'lō), tap'a·cu'lo (-kōō'lō), n. [Sp. tapaculo.] A peculiar small, plainly colored, clamatorial, terrestrial bird (Pteroptochus albicollis) of Chile and Argentina, having short rounded wings and short tail carried erect; also, a bird of an allied species.

tap'a·de'ra (tăp'ȧ·dā'rä), tap'a·de'ro (tăp'ȧ·dā'rō), n. Also, erron., tap'i·de'ro. [Sp. tapadera lid, cover.] One of the leather hoods which cover the stirrups of a Mexican saddle.

Ta'pa·jo' (tä'pä·hō'), n. An Indian of an extinct Tupian tribe formerly dwelling about the mouth of the Tapajos River in northeastern Brazil.

ta'pa·lo (tä'pä·lō), n. [Mex. Sp. tápalo, lit., cover(s) it.] A coarse cloth worn as a scarf. Sp. America.

ta'pa·mak'ing (tä'pä·mäk'ĭng), n. The art or process of making tapa cloth. — ta'pa·mak'er (-ĕr), n. — ta'pa·mak'ing, adj.

tap'as (tŭp'ȧs), n. [Skr., lit., heat.] Hinduism. The ardor of asceticism, a source of energy prerequisite to creative activity.

tap'as·vi (-wē), n. [Skr. tapasvin, fr. tapas heat. See TEPID.] Hinduism. An ascetic; a hermit.

tap bolt. Mach. A headed bolt for screwing into a hole, used without a nut. See BOLT, Illust.

tap borer. An implement for boring tapholes. Hence: a Archaeol. A coarsely pointed stone tool of the Upper paleolithic cultures, assumed to have been used in drilling holes. b Plumbing. A tool for cutting an opening in an iron pipe, trap, etc.

tap cinder. A mill cinder.

tap dance. Any step dance, esp. one in a difficult syncopated rhythm, tapped out audibly with the feet or parts of the feet, as the toes or heels, by means, often, of clogs or of specially made hard-soled shoes (tap shoes). — tap'-dance', v. i. — tap dancer. — tap dancing.

tap dressing. Decoration of wells, as at Whitsuntide. Local, Eng.

tap drill. Mach. A drill for drilling a hole of exact diameter for tapping.

tape (tāp), n. [ME. tape, tappe, fr. AS. tæppe, of uncert. origin. Cf. TAPESTRY, TAPET.] 1. A narrow fillet or band of cotton or linen; a narrow woven fabric for strings and the like.
2. Hence, any narrow strip or band, as of paper, steel, or other material; as: a The paper strip of a printing telegraph, ticker, etc. b A specially calibrated flexible scale for measuring the circumference and diameter of car wheels.
3. Short for FRICTION TAPE, RED TAPE, TAPELINE, TAPEWORM.
4. Intoxicating liquor, esp. gin. Slang.
5. Athletics. A piece of worsted string stretched breast-high above the finishing line to aid the judges in determining the winner of a race; hence, erroneously, a finishing line.
6. Bookbinding. A woven cotton band sewn on machine-sewn books to strengthen the binding.
7. Print. A flexible band which guides the sheets into or from a folder, press, or other machine.
8. Weaving. A length of warp yarn used on a loom.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tape-bound	tape-printing, adj.	tape-tied tapemaker	tape-slashing, adj.	tape-tying, adj.
tapemaking	tapestring	tapework tape (tāp), v.; TAPED (tāpt); TAP'ING (tāp'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To furnish with tape; to fasten, tie, bind, or the like, with tape; specif., to cover with electric tape.

2. To measure (out) sparingly. Scot.
3. To measure with a tapeline.
4. Bookbinding. To join the sections of with tape.
5. Furriery. To insert strips of leather into (a pelt) to increase the size.
6. Gun. To get the range of; — of artillery. Slang.
—, Intransitive: 1. To measure.
2. Weaving. To operate a tape-sizing machine.

Ta·pé' (tä·pā'), n. sing. & pl. An Indian of a former Tupian tribe dwelling on the headwaters of the Uruguay River, and southward on the coast of Rio Grande do Sul and Uruguay as far as Montevideo.

tape (tāp), n. [Var. of TALPE.] A mole. Dial. Eng.

Ta·peats' (tȧ·pēts'), adj. [From Tapeats Creek, Grand Canyon, Ariz.] Geol. Designating a sandstone formation of the Cambrian in the Grand Canyon region of Arizona. See GEOLOGY, Chart. — Ta·peats', n.

tape fern. See FERN, Table.

tape grass. A submerged aquatic plant (Vallisneria spiralis) with long ribbonlike leaves. In the southern United States, where it is a favorite food of the canvas-back duck, it is called wild celery. — tape'-grass', adj.

tape'-grass' fam'i·ly. The Vallisneriaceae.

ta·pei'no·ceph'a·ly (tȧ·pī'nō·sĕf'ȧ·lĭ), n. [Gr. tapeinos lying low + -cephaly.] Craniol. Lowness of the skull due to synostosis of the great wings of the sphenoid with the frontal bone. — ta·pei'no·ce·phal'ic (-sē·făl'ĭk), adj. — ta·pei'no·ceph'a·lism (-sĕf'ȧ·lĭz'ĭm), n.

tape'line' (tāp'līn'), n. A graduated tape, now often of steel, marked with linear dimensions, as inches, feet, etc., and often enclosed in a case. It is used for measuring.

tape'man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). Surv. One who handles the measuring tape under the direction of the transitman.

tape measure. A tapeline.

tap'en (tāp'ĕn), adj. Of tape. Rare.

tape needle. = BODKIN, n., 4.

tape price. Stock Exchange. The price quoted on the tape of a stock ticker.

ta'per (tā'pĕr), n. [AS. taper, tapor, tapur, fr. L. papyrus papyrus, in ML. also taper, wick. See PAPER.] 1. Orig., a small wax candle; now esp., a long waxed wick; hence, any small light, or, figuratively, a source of light.
2. A tapering form or figure, as a spire; hence, gradual diminution of thickness or width in an elongated object; as, the taper of a spire in spring leaves. Tapers are usually expressed in inches per foot, inches per inch, or by numbers. In the Jarno taper system, the taper is 0.600 inch per foot, the diameter at the large end equals the number of the taper divided by 8, the diameter at the small end equals the number of the taper divided by 10, and the length of taper equals the number of the taper divided by 2. In the Brown and Sharp taper system, the taper is 0.500 inch per foot, except in the case of the number 10 taper, which has a taper of 0.5161 inch per foot; in the Morse taper system, the tapers vary from 0.600 to 0.630 inch per foot depending on the number of the taper; in the Sellers taper system, the taper is ¾ inch per foot, and a keyway of definite size is specified for each shank and socket. According to common practice, the amount of taper of a conical piece is the change in diameter per unit of length.
3. Gradual decrease of action, power, or capacity.
4. A taper wire such as is used to splice electric cables.
5. Founding. A kind of trowel used by molders.
6. Patternmaking. = DRAFT, n., 22 a.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

taperbearer, taper-fashion, taper-lighted, tapermaker, tapermaking.

ta'per, adj. [From taperwise. See 1st TAPER; -WISE.] Regularly narrowed toward a point; conical; pyramidical; as, taper fingers; hence, Colloq., diminishing.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

taper-bored	taper-headed	taper-molded taper drill	taper-limbed	taper-pointed taper-grown	taper mandrel	taper reamer ta'per, v. i.; TA'PERED (tā'pĕrd); TA'PER·ING. Orig., to rise like a flame or spire; now, to become gradually smaller toward one end; as, a sugar loaf tapers; hence, to grow gradually less; to diminish. — v. t. To make or cause to taper.

taper off. a To become taper; to taper. b Colloq. To stop gradually; to cease little by little.

ta'er (tā'pĕr), n. A worker who puts on tape or tends a taping machine.

tape reading. Exchanges. The study and interpretation of transactions printed on the ticker tape, to determine the price movements likely to follow.

ta'pered (tā'pĕrd), adj. Lighted with a taper or tapers.

ta'pered-in', adj. Made to taper inward.

tapered reamer. Mach. See REAMER, n., 1.

ta'per·er (tā'pĕr·ĕr), n. 1. One who bears a taper.
2. One who or that which tapers.

ta'per-fash'ion ar'row. A bobtailed arrow.

taper file. See 4th FILE, 1.

taper gauge. See 2d GAUGE, 10.

ta'per·ing (tā'pĕr·ĭng), adj. That tapers. — -ing·ly, adv.

tapering curve. An easement curve.

taper pin. A tapered rod of metal or hardwood, used as a dowel to locate one part with reference to another, or to secure two parts by means of a driving fit in a tapered hole passing through both parts.

taper pipe thread. Mach. Pipe thread formed with a slightly tapering diameter, to secure a firm and leakproof joint. See SCREW THREAD.

taper reducer sleeve, or taper sleeve. Mach. A sleeve, as one externally tapered to fit a specified socket, that is also tapered internally to receive a tapered shank, as of a drill; — called also reducer sleeve, shell socket.

taper tap. Mach. See 3d TAP, 10 a.

taper tool. See TURRET TAPER TOOL.

ta·pe'si·um (tȧ·pē'zĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tapēs carpet.] Bot. In certain sac fungi, a dense superficial mycelium bearing ascophores.

tape sizer. Weaving. One who operates a machine for sizing tapes. — tape sizing.

tape'ster (tāp'stĕr), n. [See TAPISER, TAPESTRY.] A weaver of tapestry. Obs.

---

tany. † TAWNY.
tan'ya (tăn'yȧ). Var. of TANIA.
Tan·yo'an. Var. of TANOAN. tan·zeb', tan·zib' (tăn·zĕb'). Vars. of TANJIB.
Tan'zine, n. Dim. of THOMASA. tan'zy. Var. of TANSY. tap'a·ble. Var. of TAPPABLE.
Ta'pa·cu'ra (tä'pä·kōō'rä). Var. of CHAPACURA. tape. † TAP.
tapecer. † TAPISER. tape'less, adj. See -LESS. tape'like', adj. See -LIKE.
ta'per-ly, adv. = TAPERINGLY. ta'per·ness, n. See -NESS. ta'per-wise' (tā'pĕr·wīz'), adv. See -WISE. ta'per·y, n. Tape (sense 1) collectively. Obs.
tapes. † TAPIS. tapesere. † TAPISER.
tapessarie. † TAPISERY. tapester. † TAPSTER.

tap'es·try (tăp'ĕs·trĭ), n.; pl. -TRIES (-trĭz). [F. tapisserie, fr. tapisser to carpet, to hang or cover with tapestry, fr. tapis a carpet, carpeting, fr. OF. tapis, fr. Gr. tapētion, dim. of tapēs a carpet, rug; cf. L. tapete, fr. Gr. Cf. TAPE, TAPET, 1st TAPIS.] 1. a A heavy hand-woven textile of cloth weave, or sometimes twill, commonly figured and used as a wall hanging, carpet, or furniture covering. In a tapestry the weft threads do not run from selvage to selvage but form the pattern, each one being woven back and forth over the warp threads only where its particular color is needed. In most European tapestries, where weft threads of one color meet weft threads of another color a slit is left in the weaving (slit tapestry). In many oriental tapestry weaves, such as cashmere shawls, weft threads of one color interlock with adjacent weft threads of another color (interlocking tapestry). In many primitive tapestries weft threads of one color are dovetailed with adjoining weft threads of another color (dovetailed tapestry). In all true tapestries both sides are the same except that loose ends of threads usually appear on the wrong side. b A machine-made imitation of the above, which is of entirely different weave and not reversible.
2. a A wall paper imitating tapestry (sense 1). b A tapestry carpet.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tapestry-covered	tapestry-making, adj.	tapestry work tapestry maker	tapestry weaver	tapestry-worked tapestry making	tapestry weaving	tapestry-woven tap'es·try, v. t.; TAP'ES·TRIED (-trĭd); TAP'ES·TRY·ING. To furnish or adorn with or as if with tapestry; also, to weave or depict in tapestry.

Tapestry Beetle. A Imago; B Larva. (× 4).

tapestry beetle. The carpet beetle Attagenus piceus. tapestry Brussels. See BRUSSELS CARPET. tapestry carpet or rug. A carpet or rug, as tapestry Brussels or tapestry velvet, in which the designs are printed in colors on the threads before the fabric is woven; esp., a kind of carpet the threads of which are printed before even the warp is formed, often used in place of real tapestry for hangings.
tapestry glass. A glass decorated to resemble tapestry. tapestry moth. = CARPET MOTH a & b. tapestry needle. = BLUNT, n., 2. tapestry painting. Painting or material painted in imitation of tapestry. tapestry stitch. The Gobelin stitch. tapestry velvet carpet. See VELVET CARPET. tap'et (tăp'ĕt; -ĭt), n. [ME. tapet, tapit; cf. OF. tapiz, LL. tapetum, L. tapete, AS. tapped (fr. L.). See TAPESTRY.] Worked or figured cloth; carpet; hangings; tapestry. Hist. tap'et, v. t. To hang or adorn with tapestry. Obs.
tap'e·tal (tăp'ē·tăl), adj. Of or pertaining to the tapetum. tape thermometer. A small thermometer attached temporarily to a steel measuring tape for the purpose of indicating the temperature of the tape.
tap'e·ti (tăp'ē·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIS (-tĭz). [Tupi.] a A small South American rabbit (Sylvilagus braziliensis). b [cap.] A subgenus of which the above species is the type. It includes the swamp rabbits of the United States.
ta·pe'tum (tȧ·pē'tŭm), n. [LL. fr. L. tapete a carpet, a tapestry. See TAPESTRY.] 1. Bot. A layer of nutritive tissue commonly investing the archespore in a developing sporangium. Its cells disorganize as the spores mature.
2. Anat. & Zool. a Any of certain membranous layers or areas, esp. of the chorioid and retina of the eye. b The layer of nerve fibers derived from the corpus callosum which roofs in part of each lateral ventricle of the brain.
‖ta·pe'tum lu'ci·dum (lū'sĭ·dŭm). [NL.] Anat. A layer in the chorioid of the eye of many mammals, which reflects light and causes the eye to appear luminous; also, a similar reflecting structure in the eyes of certain nocturnal insects. In ruminants it contains wavy connective-tissue fibers, and is called the ‖tap'e·tum fi·bro'sum (fī·brō'sŭm). In Carnivora it contains platelike cells and is called ‖tap'e·tum cel'lu·lo'sum (sĕl'ū·lō'sŭm).
‖tap'e·tum ni'grum (nī'grŭm). [NL.] The pigmented layer of the retina.
tape'worm' (tāp'wûrm'), n. Any of numerous cestode worms belonging to Taenia and many allied genera, parasitic when adult in the intestine of man and various animals. The body is long, flat, and composed of numerous segments, or proglottids, those toward the end of the body being much larger and longer than the anterior ones and containing the fully developed sexual organs. The head is small and is furnished with two or more suckers, and sometimes hooks for adhesion. There is no mouth or digestive canal, but nutriment is absorbed from the digested food of the host through the surface of the body. The larvae (see CYSTICERCUS) live in the flesh of animals, and when swallowed by another animal of the right species develop into the tapeworm in its intestine. The chief species infesting man in America is the unarmed, or beef, tapeworm (T. saginata), the larvae of which live in young cattle, causing beef measles. It has no hooks on the head. The pork tapeworm is the armed tapeworm (which see). The common fish tapeworm (Diphyllobothrium latum), which infests man, attains a length of 20 or 30 feet. Its larvae live in fishes, especially the pike. Cf. ECHINOCOCCUS.

Tapeworm (Taenia solium). a Head; b Mature Proglottid. Much enlarged.

tapeworm plant. The centipede plant.
tap funnel. Chem. A funnel with a stopcock. taph'e·pho'bi·a (tăf'ē·fō'bĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. taphē a burial, a grave + -phobia.] Fear of being buried alive.
tap holder. Mach. A device, as a chuck or grip, for holding a tap when tapping holes in screw-machine, turret-lathe, or other work.
tap'hole' (tăp'hōl'), n. A hole for a tap; specif.: a Metal. A hole at or near the bottom of a furnace or ladle, through which molten metal, matte, or slag, can be tapped. b Steel Mfg. A hole in a cementation furnace for the withdrawal of trial bars for testing.
tap hose. A strainer for a taphole. Now Dial.
tap'house' (tăp'hous'), n. A tavern; a taproom. — tap'-house', adj.
Taph·ri'na (tăf·rī'nȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. taphrē a ditch or trench.] Bot. A genus of parasitic fungi, the leaf-curl fungi, constituting the family Exoascaceae, or Taph'ri·na'ce·ae (tăf'rĭ·nā'sē·ē). T. deformans causes leaf curl of the peach; T. cerasi, witches'-broom of the cherry; and T. pruni and T. communis, plum pockets of species of Prunus. Certain species formerly placed in a separate genus, Exoascus, are now included in Taphrina.
ta'pia (tä'pyä), n. [Sp.] In Spanish countries, a building material made chiefly of clay or earth. When mixed with lime it is called ta'pia re·al' (rä·äl'). Cf. PISÉ.
tap'i·no- (tăp'ĭ·nō-), tapin-. A comb. form, Greek tapeino-, from tapeinos, low, denoting low, small, base, as in: tapinocephalic, tapinceophalism, tapinocephaly, tapinophobia, tapinophoby.
Tap'i·no'ma (tăp'ĭ·nō'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tapeinōma that which is made low, humility.] Zool. A genus of small ants. tap'i·no'sis (tăp'ĭ·nō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tapeinōsis lowness of style, a lowering.] Rhet. Degradation of a subject by use of base words.
Ta'pi·o (tä'pē·ō), n. [Finn.] In Finnish mythology, a god of the forest. tap'i·o'ca (tăp'ĭ·ō'kȧ), n. [Pg., Sp., F., fr. Tupi & Guarani typyóca, tipyóca, fr. ty juice + pÿa heart, bowels + ocô to be removed. Cf. TIPITI.] A granular preparation of cassava starch obtained by heating the latter when moist. It is much used in puddings and as a thickening for soups. Fine-grained tapioca is known as pearl tapioca. See CASSAVA, n., 2. tapioca plant. The bitter cassava. See CASSAVA, 1. ta'pir (tā'pĕr), n.; pl. TAPIRS (-pĕrz), sometimes TAPIR. See PLURAL, Note. [Sp., fr. Tupi tapyra, tapira, any large mammal.] Any of several large perissodactyl ungulates of the family Tapiridae, all but one of which (the Malayan) inhabit South or Central America. They have a heavy, sparsely hairy body, the snout prolonged into a short mobile proboscis, a rudimentary tail, stout legs, and four front and three hind toes. They are chiefly nocturnal, shy, and gentle, and frequent heavy forests in the vicinity of water. Their nearest living allies are the horses and rhinoceroses. The Malayan, or Indian, tapir (Tapirus indicus) of Sumatra and the Malay Peninsula, is blackish with a broad white area on the body. The others are uniform blackish brown when adult, but all are streaked and spotted with whitish when young. The common Brazilian tapir is T. terrestris (syn. americanus). T. roulini, or T. pinchaque, inhabits the Andes. Two Central American species (T. bairdi and T. dowi) form the genus Tap'i·rel'la (tăp'ĭ·rĕl'ȧ) (syn. Elasmognathus), distinguished by cranial characters. The Old World tapir is sometimes regarded as constituting a distinct genus, Arcocodia.

Malayan Tapir (Tapirus indicus).

Ta·pir'i·dae (tȧ·pĭr'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. The family consisting of the tapirs. — tap'i·rid'i·an (tăp'ĭ·rĭd'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n. — ta'pir·ine (tā'pĕr·ĭn; -īn), adj.
tapir mouth. Med. A condition in which the mouth resembles that of a tapir, usually because of atrophy of its muscles.
Ta·pi'ro (tȧ·pē'rō), n. sing & pl. One of a dwarf Negrito tribe in the northern part of Dutch New Guinea. ta'pir·oid (tā'pĕr·oid; tăp'ĕr-), adj. [tapir + -oid.] Like, or pertaining to, the tapirs. — n. A tapir or tapirlike mammal.
Tap'i·rus (tăp'ĭ·rŭs), n. [NL.] The typical genus of tapirs. tap'is (tăp'ĭs; tā'pĭs; tăp'ĭs; F. tȧ'pē'; 277), n. [F. See TAPESTRY.] Tapestry, or like material, used for hangings, floor coverings, tablecloths, etc. Obs. exc. Hist.
— on, or upon, the tapis (pron. in this use perh. more often as F. tȧ'pē'). [Transl. of F. sur le tapis.] On the floor, or under consideration; as, to lay a motion in Parliament on the tapis. tap'is (tăp'ĭs), v. t. [OF. tapissier to cover with tapestry (F. tapisser). See TAPESTRY.] To work with figures as in tapestry; to hang with tapestry. Archaic.
ta'pis (tä'pēs), n. [Tag.] A broad band or sash worn by women around the body from the waist to the knee and over the upper part of the saya. Phil. I.
tap'is (tăp'ĭs), v. i. & t. [F. se tapir to squat.] To hide. Archaic & Dial. tap'is·er (tăp'ĭ·sĕr), n. [F. tapissier.] A maker of tapestry; also, an upholsterer. Obs.
‖ta'pis'se·rie' (tȧ'pē's'·rē'), n. [F.] Tapestry; also, a tapestrylike fabric, as for upholstery or curtains.
‖ta'pis'sier' (tȧ'pē'syā'), n. [F.] A dealer in tapestries. tap'ist (tăp'ĭst), n. A user of tape; hence, a stickler for formality. — tap'ism (-ĭz'm), n.
ta'pis' vert' (tȧ'pē' vâr'). [F., green carpet.] a A formal garden; specif. [caps.], a lawn adorned with sculpture, vases, etc., in the gardens of Versailles. b A gambling table. c Grass green.
tap'lash' (tăp'lăsh'), n. Bad small beer or dregs of liquor. Now Dial.
tap'let (tăp'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A small tap; specif., Elec., an insulating block, usually of porcelain, provided with screw terminals for connection of circuits where there is no change in the size of wire.
Tap'ley, Mark (tăp'lĭ). The body servant of Martin Chuzzlewit. He is noted for his irrepressible jollity and optimism. — Tap'ley·ism (-ĭz'm), n.
tap line. a A logging railroad whose owners share with the trunk line in a division of the freight earnings on products originating on the logging railroad. b An industrial railroad.
tap'net (tăp'nĕt), n. A rush basket for packing figs; a frail.
ta·po'a (tä·pō'ä), n. [Native name.] A Tasmanian phalanger (Trichosurus fuliginosus). ta·po'a ta'fa (tä'fä). [Native name in New South Wales.] A small ratlike Australian marsupial (Phascogale penicillata) having a very long tufted tail.
tap'–off', n. Basketball. The start of play from the center circle by the tapping of a jump ball.
tap of tow (tăp ō tō). The tow, or hurds, put on the distaff; figuratively, a cross person. Chiefly Scot.
Ta·po'sa (tȧ·pō'sȧ), n. An Indian of an extinct Muskhogean tribe, confederated with the Chickasaw.
‖ta'pote'ment' (tȧ'pōt'mäN'), n. [F.] Percussion as used in massage. tap'oun (tăp'ōōn), n. Obs. Scot. a A peg. b A branch of a root. tap'pa·ble (tăp'ȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being tapped; fit for tapping. — tap'pa·ble·ness, n.
tap·pall' (tȧ·pôl'), n. Also tap·paul'. [Telugu tappāłu.] Mail; mail delivery, usually by hand. S. India & Ceylon.
tap'pen (tăp'ĕn), n. An obstruction, chiefly of pine leaves, in the intestine of hibernating bears.
tap'per (tăp'ĕr), n. [AS. tæppere.] 1. An innkeeper. Obs. 2. One who or that which taps; as: a A workman who taps by hand or machine, esp. to make or open holes. b A machine for tapping nuts, etc. c A machine for milking.
tap'per, n. One who or that which taps; as: a Local, Eng. A woodpecker. b A workman who taps. c Slang. A clog dancer. d Teleg. A telegraph key; specif., a double-contact key that makes one contact and breaks another by one movement; — called in full Morse tapper. Also, a tapping device, as a bell, for sound signalling. e Wireless Teleg. A decoherer that acts by tapping. tap'per·er (tăp'ĕr·ĕr), n. A woodpecker. Local, Eng.
tap'per–out', n. One who taps something out.
tapper tap. Mach. A tap designed primarily for use in a nut-tapping machine. Tapper taps usually have a short thread length and a long shank which is smaller than the minor diameter of the thread, to provide a space on the shank for the tapped nuts to accumulate.
Tap'per·tit, Si'mon (tăp'ĕr·tĭt). In Dickens's Barnaby Rudge, an apprentice to Gabriel Varden. He is an embodiment of youthful conceit and bumptiousness. — Tap'per·ti'tian (-tĭsh'ăn), adj.
tap'pet (tăp'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [Cf. 1st TAP.] Mach. A lever or projection moved by some other piece, as a cam, or intended to tap or touch something else, to cause a particular motion, as in forms of steam-engine or internal-combustion-engine valve gear or in a stamp battery for crushing ore; also, a cam or wiper, as for moving the heads in some forms of power loom. A tappet for causing to-and-fro movement is called a positive tappet; one causing a movement in only one direction, a negative tappet.
tap'pet (tăp'ĭt). Variant of TAPPIT. Scot. tappet motion. Mech. A valve motion worked by tappets, used in steam pumps, etc.
tappet rod. Mech. A rod carrying a tappet or tappets, as one for opening or closing the valves in a steam or an internal-combustion engine.
tappet wrench. Mach. A wrench for adjusting tappets. tap'–pick'le, n. The grain at the top of the stalk. Scot.
tap'ping (tăp'ĭng), n. 1. Act, process, or means, by which something is tapped; specif., Surg., paracentesis.
2. pl. That which is taken from a tap or from something tapped. tapping chuck. Mach. See 6th CHUCK, 5. tapping clay. Metal. Clay used for plugging a taphole. tapping drill. Mach. a A tap drill. b A machine for tapping nuts, etc. tapping hole. Mech. A hole made smaller than the nominal size of a screw or pipe, to allow for tapping; — distinguished from clearing hole, a hole made full-size or slightly oversize.
tapping key. Elec. A light, flexible, metallic strip, provided with contacts, which when momentarily pressed either makes or breaks an electric circuit. When it is released, the opposite effect is automatically produced.
tap'pit (tăp'ĭt), part. adj. [Dial. for topped, i. e., crested. See TOP, n.] Tufted; crested. Scot.
tap'pit–hen', n. Scot. a A crested hen. b A drinking vessel containing two Scottish pints or more; — so called from a knob on the lid, thought to resemble a crested hen.
tap·poon' (tă·pōōn'), n. [Sp. tapón a stopper.] Irrigation. A piece of wood or sheet metal fitted into a ditch to dam up the water so as to overflow a field. U. S. tap rate. Finance. The rate of discount on Treasury bills bought in the London money market at times other than the regular Friday offerings. Such bills are said to be bought on tap. Colloq., Brit.
tap rivet. A screw rivet. — tap'–riv'et, v. t.
Ta·prob'a·ne (tȧ·prŏb'ȧ·nē), n. [L., fr. Gr. Taprobanē.] Ceylon; — its ancient and medieval name. Cf. SERENDIB. tap'room' (tăp'rōōm'; 200), n. A room where liquors are kept on tap; a barroom. — tap'room', adj.
tap'root' (-rōōt'; 200), n. A primary root which grows vertically downward, giving off small lateral roots in acropetal succession. — tap'root'ed, adj.
tap'root', v. i. To put forth a taproot. tap'sal–tee'rie (tăp'săl·tēr'ĭ), adv. Topsy-turvy. Scot. tap screw. A tap bolt.
tap'–shack'led, adj. Intoxicated. Obs. Slang. tap shoe. See TAP DANCE.
tap'ster (tăp'stĕr), n. [AS. tæppestre a female tapster. See TAP a plug, pipe; -STER.] Orig., a barmaid; later, any one employed to tap, or draw, liquors. tap'stress (-strĕs; -strĭs; 119), n. A woman tapster. tap'–tap', n. Also tap'–tap'–tap'. A series of taps; also, their sound. — adv. With tap-taps. — tap'–tap', v. i.
ta'pul (tä'pōōl), n. [Origin uncert.] A body part in later medieval armor, explained as a vertical ridge down the center of the breastplate. Hist.
Ta·pu'ya (tä·pōō'yä), n. sing. & pl.; also pl. TAPUYAS (-yäz). [Pg. Tapuyo, Tapuya, fr. Tupi tapuya savage, enemy, any non-Tupian Indian.] a An Indian of the Tapuyan stock. b In Brazil, any uncivilized Indian. Cf. AUCA; ȝd BRAVO; BUGRE; CABOCLO. — adj. Tapuyan.
Ta·pu'yan (-yăn), adj. Pertaining to or designating an important linguistic family of South American Indians, comprising more than 50 tribes and formerly occupying an immense territory. When discovered, the Tapuyas posessed most of the eastern highlands of Brazil and are believed to have occupied at an earlier date most of the coast of Brazil, south of the Amazon. The archaeological remains found in the most ancient strata of the sambaquis, or kitchen middens, of the region are ascribed to them. They were naked cannibals who built only the rudest shelters, manufactured no canoes or pottery, subsisted almost entirely by hunting and fishing, and had practically no tribal organization. They were, however, skillful workers in polished stone, and expert with the bow and arrow. A few tribes still maintain their primitive life in the more remote regions. Among the more important tribes are: of the northern division, the Timbiras; of the eastern division, the Botocudos, Camacans, and Coroados; of the central division, the Cayapos and Chavantes; and of the southern division, the Caingangs and the Goyanas. Cf. TUPIAN. — n. A Tapuya; — called also Ge, Gesan.

tap water. Ordinary water from a tap or faucet, as contrasted with water that has been distilled.

tar (tär), n. [ME. terre, tarre, fr. AS. teru, teoru (cf. also tyrwe); akin to D. teer, G. teer, ON. tjara, Sw. tjära, Dan. tiære, and to E. TREE. Cf. TARPAULIN.] 1. a A thick, dark-brown or black, viscous liquid obtained by the distillation of wood, coal, peat, and other organic materials, and having a varied composition according to the temperature and material employed in obtaining it. See COAL TAR, WOOD TAR. b Any substance resembling the above in appearance, formed by chemical change.
2. A salve containing tar. Obs. Piers Plowman.
3. [Abbr. fr. TARPAULIN.] A sailor; seaman.
4. Stuffing; gimp. Slang.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tar-bedaubed	tar-heating, adj.	tar-roofed tar-bind, v.	tar kettle	tar-scented tar-boiling, adj.	tar-laid	tar-sealed tar-brand, v.	tarman	tar-soaked tar bucket	tar-paint, v.	tar-spray, v.
tar-burning, adj.	tar-paved	tar sprayer
tar-clotted	tar pavior	tarworks tar-dipped	tar-removing, adj.	taryard tar distiller

tar (tär), v. t.; TARRED (tärd); TAR'RING. To smear with or as with tar; as, to tar ropes, cloth, one's body. — v. i. To form, or change to, tarry matter.

tar and feather (a person). To smear (a person) with tar and cover with feathers, as a punishment or an indignity.

tar with the same brush or stick. To mark with the same characteristics, esp. the same faults. Colloq.

tar, adj. Of, from, or like tar; containing or covered with tar; used in making tar.

tar, tarr (tär), v. t. [ME. tarien. See TARRY, v.] a Obs. To irritate; provoke. b Archaic & Dial. To incite; tease.

tar (tär), n. An Oriental lute.

tar (tär), n. [Hind. tār, lit., a wire.] A telegram. India.

ta'ra (tä'rä), n. [Kanarese tāra silver, fr. Skr. tāra.] A small silver coin formerly current in southern India.

ta'ra (tä'rä), n. [Nepali tār(a), tār. See TODDY.] The book palm.

ta'ra (tä'rä), n., or tara fern. [Maori tara spear.] A fern or brake (Pteris esculenta) the thickened rootstock of which is eaten in Polynesia and Australasia.

Ta'ra (tä'rä), n. In Mahayana Buddhism, a savior goddess, Shakti of a Bodhisattva.

ta'ra (tä'rä). Variant of TARO.

ta'ra·boo'ka (tä'rä·bōō'kä), n. [Ar. darābukkah.] A kind of Arab drum made of fishskin stretched on a gourd.

tar acid. Chem. Any phenol obtained from tar.

tar'af (tŭr'ŭf), n. [Hind. ṭaraf extremity, district, fr. Ar. ṭaraf to graze at the corner of a field.] India. a A subdivision of a pargana, somewhat larger than a patti. b One of the four divisions of the empire ruled by the Bahmani dynasty.

tar'af·dar' (-där'), n. [Hind. ṭarafdār partisan, assistant, fr. ṭaraf (see TARAF) + Per. -dār holding.] India. a An officer administering a taraf. b A ruler over a taraf or province.

tar'age (tär'ĭj), n. [Prob. fr. OF. terrage manorial dues, through the meaning the proper due, that which properly belongs to a thing.] Natural quality or disposition; flavor. Obs.

tarage table. Ballistics. An empirical table of compression in copper plugs which are used to determine internal pressures in guns.

Ta·ra'hu·ma're (tä·rä'ōō·mä'rā), n. Also Ta·ra'hu·ma'ra (-rä), Ta·ra'hu·ma'ri (-rē), and Ta·ra'hu·mar' (-mär'). An Indian of a Piman tribe, of low culture, dwelling in the Sierra Madre, in southern Sonora and Chihuahua, Mexico. Although early Christianized by Spanish missionaries, they have mostly returned to their primitive paganism. They number about 40,000.

ta·ra'i·ri (tä·rä'ē·rē; colloq. tä·rī'rē), n. [Maori.] A New Zealand timber tree (Beilschmiedia tarairi), family Lauraceae; also, its light, easily worked wood.

Tar'ak·tog'e·nos (tär'ăk·tŏj'ē·nŏs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. taraktos disturbed + genos stock, race.] Bot. A genus of four species of Indo-Malayan trees (family Flacourtiaceae) containing T. kurzii, the chaulmoogra.

ta'ra·mel'ite (tä'rä·mĕl'īt), n. [After T. Taramelli, It. mineralogist.] Mineral. A basic barium iron metasilicate, occurring in brownish-red, radially fibrous aggregates. H., 5.5. Sp. gr., 3.9.

Ta·ran'chi' (tä·rän'chē'), n. sing. & pl. A Turkic tribe of mixed Iranian origin formerly living in eastern Turkestan, subject to China, but settled in Kazak republic under Russian rule.

tar'and (tär'ănd), n. [F. tarande, fr. ML. tarandus, L. tarandrus, fr. Gr. tarandos, of uncert. origin.] The reindeer, fabled to change color like the chameleon. Obs.

Ta·ran'de·an (tä·rän'dē·ăn), Ta·ran'di·an (-dĭ·ăn), adj. [From L. tarandus, fr. Gr. tarandos reindeer.] Archaeol. Designating or pertaining to the later part of the Magdalenian period, in which remains of reindeer are found.

Tar'a·nis (tär'ä·nĭs), n. [L., of Celt. origin; cf. W. & Corn. taran thunder.] One of the greatest of the Gaulish divinities, equated by the Romans with Jupiter. He was a sanguinary deity as well as god of thunder and rain. See ESUS.

ta·ran'ta·rize (tä·rän'tä·rīz), v. i. To sing or sound tantara. Obs.

ta'ran·tass', ta'ran·tas' (tä'rän·täs'), n. [Russ. tarantas.] A low four-wheeled carriage used in Russia. The carriage body rests on two long, springy poles. When snow falls, the body is mounted on a sledge.

tar'an·tel'la (tär'ăn·tĕl'ä), n. [It., dim. fr. Taranto. See TARANTULA.] a A lively, passionate Neapolitan folk dance in 6/8 time, usually performed by couples accompanied by the tambourine. It is popularly supposed to be a remedy against the bite of the tarantula. Also, an Italian social dance evolved from this. b Music suited to such a dance, or in its presto sextuple measure (sometimes 6/8 or, in early examples, quadruple), usually alternating suddenly between the major and the minor modes.

‖ta'ran'telle' (tä'rän'tĕl'), n. [F.] Music. A tarantella.

tar'ant·ism (tär'ăn·tĭz'm), n. Also tar'ent·ism (tär'ĕn-). [NL. tarantismus, fr. It. tarantismo, fr. Taranto. See TARANTULA.] Med. A nervous affection characterized by melancholy, stupor, and an uncontrollable desire to dance. It is popularly supposed to be due to the bite of the tarantula, and to be cured only by protracted dancing to appropriate music.

tar'ant·ist, n. One affected by tarantism.

ta·ran'tu·la (tä·rän'tū·lä), n.; pl. -LAS (-läz), -LAE (-lē). [ML. tarantula, It. tarantola, fr. L. Tarentum, now Taranto, in the south of Italy.] 1. Any of several large venomous spiders. The true tarantula is a large European wolf spider (Lycosa tarentula), whose bite was supposed to cause tarantism. The tarantulas of Texas and the American tropics are large hairy spiders of Eurypelma, Avicularia, and allied genera of the family Aviculariidae. In Australia, a harmless spider of the genus Voconia.

European Tarantula (Lycosa tarentula).

2. [cap.] A genus of whip scorpions typifying the family Tarantulidae.
3. Erron. a Tarantism.
b = TARANTELLA a.
— ta·ran'tu·lar (-lĕr), ta·ran'tu·lar'y (-lĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -lär·ĭ), ta·ran'tu·lous (-lŭs), adj.

Tarantula Hawk.

tarantula hawk or killer. Any large wasp of the genus Pepsis, esp. certain species of the southwestern United States, which capture tarantulas as food for their young.

ta·ran'tu·lat'ed (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Bitten by a tarantula; affected with tarantism.

Tar'an·tu'li·dae (tär'ăn·tū'lĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Tarantula + -idae.] Zool. A family of arachnids (order Pedipalpida) lacking the taillike appendage; the tailless whip scorpions. — ta·ran'tu·lid (tä·rän'tū·lĭd), n. & adj.

One of the Tarantulidae (Phrynus lunatus).

ta·ran'tu·lite (tä·rän'tū·līt), n. [From Tarantula Spring, Nevada.] Petrog. A rock intermediate between alaskite and igneous quartz, composed of orthoclase, less albite, and quartz.

Ta·ras' Bul'ba (tä·räs' bōōl'bä). A novel (1835) by Nikolai Gogol, dealing with Cossack life of the 16th century.

Ta·ras'can (tä·räs'kăn), adj. a Pertaining to or designating a Mexican Indian linguistic family, comprising the Tarascos. b Amer. Archaeol. Pertaining to or designating the archaic culture of the Mexican plateau before the invasions of the Nahuas; — so called because it persisted among the Tarascos.

Ta·ras'can, n. A Tarasco.

Ta·ras'co (tä·räs'kō), Ta·rasc' (-räsk'), n. An Indian of a civilized people of Michoacán, who, according to tradition, migrated from the north at about the same time as the Aztecs, against whom they were able to maintain their independence. Their culture, comparable to that of the Nahuas, preserved many features of the archaic culture of central Mexico. They were the tallest and handsomest Indians of the region. Their descendants now number about 250,000. See TARASCAN, adj.

Ta'rasque' (tä'räsk'), n. [F.] In French folklore, an amphibious monster which devoured many persons about Tarascon. According to the Golden Legend, St. Martha, patroness of Tarascon, tamed him by throwing holy water on him. The festival of Tarasque is celebrated annually with great pomp at Tarascon and Beaucaire.

ta·ras'sis (tä·räs'ĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tarassein to disturb.] Med. Hysteria in males.

ta·ra'ta, ta·ra'tah (tä·rä'tä; colloq. tä·rä'tä), n. [Maori.] A small evergreen tree (Pittosporum eugenioides) of New Zealand, having white bark and fragrant corymbs of pale-yellow flowers; — called also hedge laurel, turpentine tree, white mapau.

tar'a·tan'ta·ra (tär'ä·tăn'tä·rä; -tăn·tär'ä; -tĭr'rä), n. [L.] A tantara; a blare, as of a trumpet. — tar'a·tan'ta·ra, v. i. — tar'a·tan'ta·rize (-rīz), v. i.

ta·rau' (tä·rou'), n. [Burmese tayau.] A Burmese viol instrument with three silk strings.

ta·rax'a·cin (tä·răk'sä·sĭn), n. [Taraxacum + L. cera wax + -in.] Chem. A bitter crystalline extract from the root of the common dandelion. Both it and tar'ax·ac'er·in (tär'äks·äs'ēr·ĭn) are indefinite mixtures.

Ta·rax'a·cum (tä·răk'sä·kŭm), n. [NL., fr. Ar. ṭarakhshaqūq, -aqūn, of Per. origin.] 1. Bot. A genus of chiefly weedy, nearly cosmopolitan herbs (family Cichoriaceae), with bitter foliage, usually yellow flower heads, and fluffy achenes. T. officinale is the dandelion (which see).
2. [not cap.] Pharm. The dried rhizome and roots of the dandelion T. officinale, used as a bitter and laxative.

tar baby. a A character in a widespread myth, the fundamental incident in which is the trapping of someone who sticks fast to this character; — called also pitch man. b [cap.] A character in Joel Chandler Harris's "Uncle Remus" stories who by his stickiness catches Br'er Rabbit. See UNCLE REMUS.

tar base. Chem. Any organic base, as aniline, pyridine, or quinoline, obtained from tar.

tar'bet (tär'bĕt), n. [Gael. tairbeart, prop., a portage; akin to L. trans across, over (see TRANS-), and E. BEAR to carry.] Scot. a An isthmus. b A portage.

tar'board' (tär'bōrd'; 181), n. A tough millboard made from junk and old tarred rope. — tar'board', adj.

tar·boosh' (tär·bōōsh'), n. [Ar. ṭarbūsh; cf. F. tarbouch.] A red cap formerly worn by Turks and still worn by other Easterners, alone or swathed with linen or other stuff to make a turban. See FEZ. — tar·booshed' (-bōōsht'), adj.

tar'box' (tär'bŏks'), n. A box of salve for anointing sores on sheep; hence, a shepherd. Obs.

tar'boy' (-boi'), n. A boy employed to apply tar to wounds given to sheep in shearing. Australasia.

tar'brush' (tär'brŭsh'), n. A brush for applying tar; — esp. in phrases; as, knight of the tarbrush, a sailor; touch of the tarbrush, a strain of Indian or negro blood.

tar'bush' (-bōōsh'), n. a The yerba santa. b Any of several Californian shrubs of the genus Chamaebatia. c A sticky shrub (Flourensia cernua), family Carduaceae, of the southwestern United States and Mexico.

‖tar·bush' (tär·bōōsh'). Var. of TARBOOSH.

tar'butt·ite (tär'bŭt·īt), n. [After P. C. Tarbutt, who collected it.] A basic zinc phosphate, $Zn_3(PO_4)_2 \cdot Zn(OH)_2$, in clusters of colorless or pale-yellow, red, or green triclinic crystals. H., 3.75. Sp. gr., 4.12.

tar camphor. Naphthalene.

tar cancer. Med. Cancer caused by the irritating action of tar, as in the skin of an experimental animal.

tar'-coal', adj. Coal-black. Southern U. S. tar concrete. = TAR MACADAM b. U. S.

‖tar'da·men'te (tär'dä·mĕn'tā), adv. [It.] Music. Slowly; — a direction.

‖tar·dan'do (tär·dän'dō), adj. [It.] Ritardando.

tarde (tärd), adj. & adv. [L. tardus slow.] Late; slow. Obs.

‖tar'de (tär'dā), n. [Sp.] Afternoon; evening.

Tar'de·nois'i·an (tär'dĕ·noiz'ĭ·ăn), adj. [From Fère-en-Tardenois, France.] Designating a transition period between the Paleolithic and Neolithic ages, the culture of which is characterized by small flint implements of geometric form. By some authorities it is regarded as contemporaneous with the Azilian, by others as immediately following that period. The type station is Fère-en-Tardenois, France, but such flint implements are found in western Europe, northern Africa, and the coast of Asia as far east as India. The culture is prob. that of a fishing people.

Tar'di·gra'da (tär'dĭ·grā'dä), n. pl. [NL. See TARDIGRADE, adj.] 1. Zool. In old classifications, an order of mammals equivalent to the Bradypodidae, or sloths.
2. A division of arthropods containing numerous microscopic mitelike creatures found in water, damp moss, etc. They resemble arachnids in having four pairs of legs, but they lack mouth appendages and circulatory and respiratory organs, and have a pair of peculiar styliform piercing organs connected with the pharynx. Leading genera are Macrobiotus and Echiniscus, the former including the species most commonly known as bear animalcules, or water bears, names extended to all the group.

One of the Tardigrada (Macrobiotus schultzii), dorsal view. a Mouth; b Pharynx; c Stomach; d Salivary Glands; e Ovary; f Accessory Gland; g Excretory Tubes. Much enlarged.

tar'di·grade (tär'dĭ·grād), adj. [F., fr. L. tardigradus, fr. tardus slow + gradi to step.] 1. Moving or stepping slowly; slow-paced; sluggish.
2. Of or pertaining to the Tardigrada.

tar'di·grade, n. One of the Tardigrada.

tar·dil'o·quous (tär·dĭl'ō·kwŭs), adj. Also tar·dil'o·quent (-kwĕnt). Slow of speech. — tar·dil'o·quence (-kwĕns), n. — tar·dil'o·quy (-kwĭ), n. All Obs.

tar distillate. In petroleum refining, a fraction containing heavy oils and paraffin.

tar'di·ty, n. [L. tarditas.] Slowness; tardiness. Obs.

tar'dive (tär'dĭv), adj. [F. tardif. See TARDY.] Tending to or characterized by lateness.

tar'dle (tär'd'l), n. A tangle. Dial. Eng.

‖tar'do (tär'dō), adj. [It.] Music. Slow; — a direction.

tar drum. In petroleum distilling, a separator in which the heavier vapors are condensed.

tar'dy (tär'dĭ), adj.; TAR'DI·ER (-dĭ·ĕr); TAR'DI·EST. [F. tardif (cf. OF. nom. tardis), fr. VL. tardivus, fr. L. tardus slow, of obscure origin. Cf. RETARD.] 1. Moving with a slow pace or motion; slow; not swift. "The tardy flight of time." Sandys.
2. Not being in season; late; also, dilatory; given to delay; — opposed to prompt; as, tardy in one's payments.
The tardy plants in our cold orchards placed. Waller.
3. Unprepared; off guard; also, remiss. Obs.
Syn. — Behindhand, remiss, lagging. See SLOW.
Ant. — Punctual, ready. See PROMPT.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
tardy-gaited, tardy-moving, tardy-rising.
— tar'di·ly (tär'dĭ·lĭ), adv. — tar'di·ness (-dĭ·nĕs; 119), n.

tar'dy, adv. Tardily.

tar'dy, n. One who is tardy.

tar'dy, v. t. To retard. Obs. — v. i. To delay. Rare.

tare (tär), n. [Cf. dial. tarefitch the wild vetch, and D. tarwe wheat.] 1. The seed of a vetch.
2. Any of several vetches, esp. Vicia sativa and V. hirsuta, the latter called also tare vetch.
3. a Bib. A weed of grainfields, supposed to be the darnel. b = SEED, n., 3 b; — in a bad sense.

tare, n. [F. tare; fr. Ar. ṭarḥah that which is thrown away, removed, fr. ṭaraḥa to reject, remove.] 1. Com. A deduction from the weight of goods and a container or vehicle, made in allowance for the weight of the cask, bag, or whatever contains the commodity and is weighed with it. Tare is actual or real when determined by the actual weight of the container; average when estimated by the weight of a number of packages out of a large number of similar ones; customary when a uniform rate is established by custom; customs tare when fixed arbitrarily by customs laws and regulations; estimated tare, when fixed upon for any

---

Ta·pu'yo (tä·pōō'yō). Var. of TAPUYA.

tap'wort', n. Tap beer. Obs.

ta'qua (tä'kwĕ). Var. of TAGUA.

tar'a·did'dle. Var. of TARRADIDDLE.

tar'a·gon (tär'ä·gŏn). Var. of TARRAGON.

Ta'rah (tä'rä; tär'ä; 79). Bib.

Ta·ra'i. Var. of TERAI.

ta'ra·ki'hi (tä'rä·kē'hē), n. Var. of TERAKIHI.

Tar'a·iah (tär'ä·ī·ä). Bib.

ta'ra·pin. Var. of TERRAPIN.

Ta'ra·pon (tä'rä·pŏn), n. See AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES, Table.

ta·rax'a·con, n. Taraxacum. Obs.

n. [tarantula + -ism.] = TARANTISM.

tar'a·ped (tär'ä·pĕd). Var. of TAROPATCH.

tar'a·patch (tär'ä·păch). Var. of TARAPED.

tar'aph. Var. of TARAF.

ta·ra·ra·ka (tä·rä·rä·kä), n. See AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES, Table.

ta·rax'a·con, n. Taraxacum. Obs.

Tar'a·zed (tär'ä·zĕd), n. See STAR, Table.

tar'ba·dil'lo, n. = TABARDILLO.

tar'ble (tär'b'l). Illit. corrupt. of TERRIBLE, TOLERABLE.

tar·bog'an, tar·bog'gin (tär·bŏg'ăn, -ĭn). Vars. of TOBOGGAN.

tar'breech', n. A sailor. Obs.

tar'cel. ✝ TASSEL, TERCEL.

tarce'let. ✝ TERCELET.

tarchon. ✝ TARRAGON.

tard. Tarred. Ref. Sp.

tard'ance, n. Tardiness. Obs.

tard'ant, adj. [F., pres. part. of tarder to linger.] Slow; lingering. Obs.

tar·da'tion (tär·dā'shŭn), n. Erroneously tar'di·da'tion (tär'dĭ·dā'shŭn). [LL. tardatio.] Retardation; slowness. Obs.

tar'di·gra'dous (tär'dĭ·grā'dŭs; tär·dĭg'rä·), adj. = TARDIGRADE.

tar'di·tude, n. [L. tarditudo.] = TARDITY. Rare.

particular package by judging from the weight of other similar packages; supertare, when specially allowed in excess of the usual amount.
2. Chem. a A counterweight; esp., an empty vessel similar to one being used as a container, used to counterpoise any change in weight of the container due to temperature, moisture, etc. b A deduction made for the weight of a container.
3. Sugar Making. Soil and like material adhering to sugar beets; as, the percentage of tare for a load is estimated from a sample.

tare (târ), v. t.; TARED (târd); TAR'ING (târ'ĭng). To ascertain or mark the tare of; to weigh so as to determine the tare. — v. i. Wool Trade. To yield top over noil (in a specified proportion or degree); as, this wool tares well.

tare (târ; târ). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. and archaic & dial. Eng. past tense & past part. of TEAR, v.

tare (târ). Variant of TEAR, TUR.

ta're (tä'rĕ), n. [Kanarese tāre silver.] = 1st TARA.

tare' an' ag'es (târ' ăn ăj'ĭz). Also tare' an' ouns' or oun'ty (ounz', oun'tĭ). A mild oath. Ir.

tare and tret. Allowances for weight of boxes or packages containing goods and for waste respectively. Obs.

tare'fitch' (târ'fĭch'), n. Tare vetch. See 1st TARE, 2. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

tare grass. a = 1st TARE, 2. b Cow vetch.

ta·ren'te (tä·rĕn'tā; F. tà'rĕNt'), n. [F.] A gecko (Tarentola mauritanica) of southern Europe and adjacent countries, found esp. among old ruins.

Tar'en·tine (tăr'ĕn·tĭn; see -INE), adj. [L. Tarentinus, fr. Tarentum, fr. Gr. Taras, -antos.] Of or pertaining to Tarentum, a Greek city of ancient Italy, now Taranto. — n. An inhabitant of Tarentum.

tare room. A room at a sugar-beet dump where the tare on samples of sugar beets is determined.

tare vetch. See 1st TARE, 2.

tar·fa' (tär·fä'), n. [Ar. ṭarfa.] A tropical African tree (Sterculia cinerea) with ashy foliage and pinkish, paniculate flowers.

tarfe (târf), n. The brim of a hat. Obs.

tar'flow'er (tär'flou'ĕr), n. An evergreen undershrub (Bejaria racemosa), family Ericaceae, of the southern United States, with pinkish-white, racemose flowers, and bristly-hairy twigs.

targe (tärj), n. [OF. See TARGET.] 1. a Archaic. A shield or target. See TARGET, n., 1. b Obs. A protection.
2. A document; an official paper. Obs.

targe (tärj; Scot. tärj), v. t.; TARGED (tärjd; tärjd); TARG'ING (tär'jĭng; tär'-). [Origin uncert.] Chiefly Scot. a To beat; scold. b To cross-question; to harass with questions; also, to censure; to reprimand sharply. c To keep in order or under strict discipline.

targe (tärj), n. A targer. Scot.

targe'man (tärj'măn), n. A man carrying a targe.

targ'er (tär'jĕr), n. [From TARGE, v. t.] A scold; shrew. Scot., N. of Eng., & Ir.

tar'get (tär'gĕt; -gĭt; 119), n. [OF. targette, later targuete, dim. of targue (cf. It. targa, dim. targhetta), targe, of Teut. origin; cf. AS. targe, targa (perh. fr. ON.), G. zarge a frame, case, border, OHG. zarga, ON. targa shield.] 1. A kind of small shield or buckler, esp. one of circular form. Obs. exc. Hist.

Military Skirmish Target. Common Target, 2 a. 2 Outer; 3 Inner; 4 Center; 5 Bull's-eye.

2. A butt or mark to shoot at, as for practice, or to test the accuracy of a firearm or the force of a projectile. Hence: a A butt or mark that is marked by the shots fired at it to complete a score; as, he made a good target. b A shooting match; also, the score made at such a match. c Any solid object or hard surface in the path of a stream of projectiles.
3. Anything made the object of remarks, ridicule, criticisms, etc.; a butt; as, an unwitting target for their jeers.
4. An object like a target (sense 1); as: Obs. a A metal ornament, esp. for the head. b A coin. c A cymbal. d Scot. A tassel or pendant; also, a shred; tatter.
5. Archery. A mat of straw four feet in diameter with a canvas face painted in five circles (see PRINCE'S RECKONING), mounted on a tripodal stand.
6. Cookery. A thin cut; a slice; specif., of lamb, a piece consisting of the neck and breast joints. Eng.
7. Elec. An indicator to show that an electrical relay has functioned. Cf. DROP, n., 7 f.
8. Mil. & Nav. Anything that is fired at; as, the enemy's cavalry was the battery's target.
9. Physics. The metallic surface, usually of platinum or tungsten, upon which the stream of cathode rays within an X-ray tube is focused. The target thus becomes the source from which the X-rays emanate.
10. Railroads. A day signal attached to a switch stand, indicating by its position (position target), by its shape (shape target), by its color (color target), etc., whether the switch is open or closed. A position target is usually a single disk of metal (cf. SEMAPHORE); a shape target or a color target usually consists of two plates of different shapes or colors set at right angles. The two features of shape and color are often combined. A blind target is a flat disk of metal, usually turned edgewise (the blind position) to indicate safety. U. S.

1 High Target (10) with Switch Stand; 2–6 Other forms of Target.

11. Surv. The vane or sliding sight on a leveling staff.
Syn. — Object, butt, mark.

tar'get (tär'gĕt; 119), v. t.; TAR'GET·ED; TAR'GET·ING. 1. Orig., to shield; now, to use as a target.
2. Mil. To determine by experiment the firing data necessary for (a given firearm) to obtain accuracy at all ranges.
3. Railroads. To signal by means of a target.

target arrow. The light arrow of modern competitive archery, nearly identical with the ancient butt shaft.

target bass. = 7th BASS d. Archery.

target day. Archery. A day set by a club for formal shooting.

tar'get·ed (tär'gĕt·ĕd; -gĭt·ĭd; 119), adj. Furnished with a target.

tar'get·eer' (-ēr'), n. Also tar'get·ier'. One armed with a target or shield.

target frame. Mil. A frame used for supporting the cloth target used in range shooting; esp., the rectangular frame used for small-arms targets, or the base and mast which support the pyramidal target used for some seacoast guns.

target lamp or lantern. Railroads. A lamp or lantern for use at a switch target.

tar'get·man (tär'gĕt·măn; 119), n. Orig., one armed with a target (sense 1); now, one who uses a target (sense 10) in signaling.

target meeting. Archery. A competitive meeting conducted by a club, as disting. from a public meeting.

target practice. Practice in shooting at targets.

target range. Mil. = RANGE, n., 15 b. target rifle. Firearms. A rifle made with special care and accuracy for target shooting.

target rod. See LEVELING ROD.

target shaft. Archery. A target arrow.

target spot. Plant Pathol. Early blight of the potato and tomato. See EARLY BLIGHT.

Tar'gu al'pha·bet (tär'gōō). [From Tār(i)gi, Berber form of Ar. Tāriqi, adj. fr. Tāriq, pl. Ṭawāriq, Tuareg.] The alphabet used by the Tuaregs. See TIFINAGH.

Tar'gum (tär'gŭm; Heb. tär·gōōm'), n.; pl. -GUMS (-gŭmz), TARGUMIM (tär'gōō·mēm'). [Heb. Targūm, fr. Aram. targūm interpretation. Cf. DRAGOMAN.] A translation or paraphrase of some portion of the Old Testament in the Aramaic of Judea or Galilee (formerly often erroneously called Chaldee), mostly dating in the present form from the Geonic period and later, but in part based on oral tradition going back to the pre-Christian Roman period or earlier. Formerly called also Chaldee Paraphrase. See VERSION. Among the important Targums now extant are: For the Pentateuch, the Targum of Onkelos, or Babylonian Targum on the Pentateuch; the Targum of Jonathan (pseudo-Jonathan), or Jerusalem Targum I, a complete Targum on the Pentateuch; for the Prophets, the Targum of Jonathan bar Uzziel, called also the Babylonian Targum on the Prophets; for the Hagiographa, Targums for Psalms, Proverbs, Job, the Megilloth, and Chronicles. No Targums have been found for Ezra, Nehemiah, or Daniel. — Tar·gum'ic (tär·gŭm'ĭk), adj. — Tar·gum'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj.

Tar'gum, v. t. & i. Also Tar'gum·ize (-īz). To make a Targum, or paraphrased translation (of).

Tar'gum·ist (tär'gŭm·ĭst), n. The writer of a Targum; one versed in the Targums. — Tar'gum·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

Tar'heel' (tär'hēl'), n. Also Tar'heel'er. A native of the North Carolina pine barrens; — a nickname. Colloq., U. S.

Tarheel State. North Carolina; — a nickname.

tar'hood (tär'hŏŏd), n. Sailors collectively. Slang.

ta·rī' (tä·rē'), n. [It. tarì, taro, pl. tarì.] A minor medieval coin struck in Italy, Sicily, and Malta.

Ta'ri, n., or Ta'ri Pen'nu (tä'rē pĕn'ōō). The earth goddess of the Khonds, to whom human sacrifices were frequent.

Ta'ri·a'na (tä'rē·ä'nä), n. An Indian of an Arawakan tribe dwelling in northwestern Brazil.

tar'iff (tăr'ĭf), n. [It. tariffa, fr. Ar. ta'rīf information, explanation, definition, fr. 'arifa to know, to inform, explain.] 1. A schedule, system, or scheme of duties imposed by a government on goods imported or exported, esp. one on imports, as in the United States and Great Britain, which have no export duties. A tariff may be imposed solely for, and with reference to, the production of revenue (revenue tariff, or tariff for revenue), or for the artificial fostering of home industries (protective tariff), or as a means of coercing foreign governments, as in case of retaliatory tariffs intended to compel the grant of reciprocity privileges. Cf. PROTECTION, 5; FREE TRADE. In United States history, the most important tariffs are: a The high protective tariff of 1828, called by its opponents the Tariff of Abominations, which led to the nullification movement. b The tariff of 1833, known as the Compromise Tariff, introduced as a compromise measure by Henry Clay, which provided for a graduated reduction of the duties year by year until 1842, when they should stand at 20 per cent as a horizontal rate. c The Walker Tariff of 1846, framed by Robert J. Walker, then Secretary of the Treasury, which modified the protective duties and grouped articles into various schedules at different rates, all the articles in each paying at the same rate. d The Morrill Tariff of 1861, introduced by J. S. Morrill, senator from Vermont, which was made as a revenue tariff, but operated largely as a protective tariff. e The McKinley Act of 1890, which raised duties to a high point. f The Dingley Act of 1897 (repealing the Wilson Act of 1894, which had lowered duties in many lines) raised duties higher than under the McKinley Act. g The Payne-Aldrich Tariff of 1909, which showed some, but on the whole inconsiderable, reductions from the Dingley Act. h The Underwood Tariff of 1913, in which there are substantial reductions in a large number of duties. i The Fordney-McCumber Tariff Act of 1922, of very high protective duties.
2. The duty, or rate of duty, imposed in a tariff (sense 1); as, the tariff on wool; a tariff of two cents a pound.
3. A published schedule of rates or charges, esp. if arranged by a common carrier; as, a passenger tariff.
4. An arithmetical table, as for multiplication. Obs.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tariff-born	tariff maker	tariff-regulating, adj.
tariff-bound	tariff making	tariff-ridden tariff duty	tariff-protected	tariff-tinkering, adj.
tariff-fed	tariff-raised	tariff treaty tariff law	tariff-raising, adj.	tariff-wise, adj.

tar'iff (tăr'ĭf), v.; TAR'IFFED (-ĭft); TAR'IFF·ING. Intransitive: To be concerned with tariffs. Rare.
—, Transitive: 1. To make a list of duties on, as goods.
2. To list or schedule the tariff value of.
3. To effect or affect with a certain result by a tariff.
4. To make protariff.

Tariff Commission. An advisory board of six members established by Congress in 1916 to study the administration and effects of the customs laws and their relation to the federal revenues.

tar'iff·i·ca'tion (tăr'ĭf·ĭ·kā'shŭn), n. Fixation of a tariff; also, conversion to a protariff policy.

tar'iff·ist (tăr'ĭf·ĭst), n. Also tar'iff·ite (-īt). An advocate of tariff.

tar'iff·ize (-īz), v. t. To subject to tariff.

tariff reform. Reform of a tariff; usually, (1) in the United States, a reduction of import duties, as opposed to protection; (2) in Great Britain, an extension of import duties, as opposed to free trade. — tariff reformer.

tariff wall. A rate of custom duties which checks imports.

tar'in (tăr'ĭn), n. [F., perh. of imitative origin.] The European siskin.

ta·ri'qat (tä·rē'kŭt), n. The Sufi path or way of spiritual development. See AHWAL.

ta·rir'ic (tä·rĭr'ĭk), or tar'i·rin'ic (tăr'ĭ·rĭn'ĭk), ac'id. Chem. A crystalline compound, $C_{19}H_{28}O_3$, existing as an ester in the oil of the seeds of certain species of Picramnia (syn. Tariri). Its diiodide is used in medicine as a substitute for inorganic iodides.

tar'ish (tär'ĭsh), adj. Like tares.

Tar·ka'ni (tär·kä'nē), n. sing. & pl. Also Tar'ka·la'ni (tär'kä·lä'nē). One of a group of independent Pathan hill tribes, west of Panjkora River, North-West Frontier Province, India. They are of Durani descent.

tar'ka·shi (tär'kä·shē), n. [Per., pert. to wires.] The inlaying of woodwork with decorative designs in brass wire. Northern India.

tar'kee·an (tŭr'kē·ăn), n. [Cf. Hind., Panjabi, & Marathi tarkārī vegetables, Oriya tarakārī curry.] Vegetable curry. India.

tar·khan' (tŭr·kăn'), n. A member of a low Mohammedan caste of artisans of Upper India.

tar'la·tan (tär'lä·tăn), n. Also tar'le·tan (tär'lĕ·-). [F. tarlatane, of uncert. origin.] A kind of thin, stiff, transparent muslin, used for dresses, caps, etc.

tar'la·taned (-tănd), adj. Clad in tarlatan.

tar'leath'er (tär'lĕth'ĕr), n. A strip of dried sheepskin cut from the belly. Obs.

tarl'ton·ize (tärl'tŭn·īz), v. i. To improvise verses in the manner of the comedian Richard Tarlton (d. 1588). Rare.

Tar'mac (tär'măk), n. [tar + macadam.] A trade-mark applied to a bituminous binder for roads; hence [sometimes not cap.]: a This binder. b Eng. A tar-macadam road.

tar macadam. a U. S. A pavement constructed by spraying or pouring a tar binder over courses of crushed stone in situ, and then consolidating with a power roller. b Brit. A concrete of tar mixed in a plant and shaped on the roadway.

tar'mo·sined (tär'mō·sīnd), adj. [Cf. Gael. tar m-ais backwards.] Made so that either side may be worn outside; — said of a garment. Obs.

tarn (tärn), n. [ME. terne, of Scand. orig.; cf. ON. tjörn.] A small steep-banked mountain lake or pool.
☞ COMBINATIONS are: tarn'-brown', tarn'side'.

tar'nal (tär'năl), adj. & adv. Eternal; — used as an oath. — tar'nal·ly, adv. Both Dial. & Slang.

tar·na'tion (tär·nā'shŭn). [Cf. TARNAL, DAMNATION.] Euphemistic for DAMNATION; — used as adj., adv., & n. Dial. & Slang.

Tarn'helm (tärn'hĕlm), n. [G. See TARNKAPPE; HELMET.] In the Ring of the Nibelung, a helmet rendering its wearer invisible. It is the Tarnkappe (see SIEGFRIED) of the old legends.

tar'nish (tär'nĭsh), v. t.; TAR'NISHED (-nĭsht); TAR'NISH·ING. [F. ternir, fr. terne dull, dim, wan, perh. of Teut. orig.; cf. OHG. tarni hidden, OS. derni, AS. derne, dierne.] To diminish, dull, or destroy the luster of; to sully; to soil or dull, esp. by or as by a change due to the action of the air, dust, dirt, etc.; as, to tarnish a metal; hence, to spoil; taint; as, to tarnish one's reputation. — v. i. To lose luster; become dull, dim, discolored, or tainted.
Syn. — Stain, smirch, dim, obscure, cloud.
Ant. — Brighten, polish, shine.

tar'nish, n. 1. State of being tarnished; stain; soil; blemish; also, a tarnished surface or appearance.
2. Mineral. Altered luster or surface color of a mineral, due either to slight alteration or to a thin film of deposition.

tar'nished plant bug (tär'nĭsht). An abundant widespread bug (Lygus pratensis), family Miridae, destructive to many kinds of plants. It sucks the sap from buds, leaves, fruits, and nursery stock. See STOPBACK.

tar'nish·er (tär'nĭsh·ĕr), n. One that tarnishes.

tar number. Anal. Chem. A number, variously determined, measuring the amount of tarry or gummy matter in mineral oils under conditions of use.

ta'ro (tä'rō), n.; pl. TAROS (-rōz). [Tahitian and Maori.] a An aroid (Colocasia esculenta) of the Pacific islands, grown throughout the tropics for its edible starchy tuberous rootstocks and, in temperate regions, together with C. antiquorum, for ornament under the name elephant's-ear. b The rootstock of this plant, a food staple in the tropics. It is variously cooked, and in Hawaii is made into a fermented paste (poi).

ta'ro (tä'rō), n.; pl. TARI (-rē'). [It.] Numis. Tari.

tar oil. Any oil obtained from tar, usually by distillation.

tar'o·patch (tär'ō·păch), n. [taro + patch as in corn patch, cotton patch (with word for instrument understood).] A ukulele, esp. one with eight strings; — called also taropatch fiddle or violin.

tar'ot (tăr'ŏt), n. [F., fr. It. tarocco, of obscure origin.] A playing card, first used in Italy in the 14th century, having a grilled or checkered back. A pack had 78 cards, 22 being trumps (specif. tar'ots [-ŏts]). Also, chiefly in pl., a game with such cards.

tarp (tärp), n. Short for TARPAULIN.

tar'pan (tär'păn), n. [Russ.] A dun-colored, small, swift, and hardy wild horse of the steppes of Central Asia.

tar paper. Paper impregnated with some bituminous substance, used in building.

tar·pau'lī·an (tär·pô'lĭ·ăn), n. & adj. = TARPAULIN. Obs.

tar·pau'lin (tär·pô'lĭn), n. [Prob. fr. tar + palling a covering, fr. PALL cloth.] 1. Canvas covered with tar, paint, or other waterproof composition, esp. when in a large sheet and used for covering the hatches of a ship, hammocks, boats, etc.
2. A hat or coat made of, or covered with, tarpaulin.

---

ta·re'a, n. [Cuban Sp., fr. Sp. tarea task.] See MEASURE, Table. Ta're·a (tär'rē·ä; tä·rē'ä; 79). Bib.

ta·re'fa (tä·rē'fä), n. [Pg., task, day's work.] See MEASURE, Table.

tar'ent·ism. Var. of TARANTISM.

ta·ren'to·la (tä·rĕn'tō·lä), n. [It. tarantola salamander, tarantula.] = TARENTE. [TARANTULA.

ta·ren'tu·la (-tŭ·lä). Var. of tar'e·patch (tär'ē·păch). Var. of TAROPATCH.

tar'get·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tar'get·shy' (66), adj. See -SHY.

targuet. † TARGET.

tarie. † TAR, to incite; TARRY.

ta'rie (tä'rĭ), n. [Gael. crann*tara*, croi*tara*.] = CRANTARA, CROSTARIE. Scot.

tarier. † TARRIER, TERRIER.

tar'iff·a·ble. See -ABLE.

tar'iff·ism, n. See -ISM.

tar'iff·less, adj. See -LESS.

Ta·ri'ri (tä·rĭ'rĭ), n. [NL., fr. Calibi tariri, name of one species.] Syn. of PICRAMNIA.

tar'le·tan. Var. of TARLATAN.

tar'lies. † TRELLIS.

tar'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tar'mined (tär'mĭnd). Apbetic for DETERMINED. Dial.

tar'nish·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

tar'nish·ment, n. See -MENT.

tar'nish·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

Tarn'kap'pe (tärn'kăp'ē), n. [G. See TARNISH; CAP.] See SIEGFRIED.

tarn'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tar'oc (tăr'ŏk), n. [It. tarocco.] = TAROT.

ta·roc'co, n. [It.] = TAROT.

tar'ok. Var. of TAROT.

8. A sailor; a tar; — a nickname. Now Rare.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:
tarpaulin-covered, tarpaulin-lined, tarpaulinmaker.

tar·pau'lin (tär-pô'lĭn), adj. 1. Made of tarpaulin.
2. Sailorlike; sea-bred.

tar·pau'lin, v. t. & i. To cover with or take shelter under a tarpaulin.

tarpaulin muster. Naut. A pooling of funds for common use; — so called because originally all hands in a ship's crew gathered around and tossed their money into a tarpaulin. See TARPAULIN, n., 2.

Tar·pe'ia (tär-pē'yȧ), n. [L.] In Roman legend, a maiden who betrayed the citadel to the Sabines for the promise of "what they wore on their arms," meaning their gold bracelets. They threw their shields on her and killed her.

Tar·pe'ian (-yăn), adj. [L. Tarpeius.] Pertaining to or designating a peak of the Capitoline hill, Rome, from which condemned criminals were hurled as was Tarpeia. See SEVEN HILLS; cf. BARATHRUM.

Tar'pel·ites (tär'pĕl·īts), n. pl. Bib. A people settled in Samaria by the Assyrians.

tar'pon (tär'pŏn), n.; pl. TARPONS (-pŏnz), sometimes TARPON. See PLURAL, Note. [Origin uncert.; cf. D. tarpoen, and, among the negroes of Guiana, trapoeng, both perh. fr. E.] A marine fish (Tarpon atlanticus), order Isospondyli, common on the coast of Florida in the Gulf of Mexico and among the West Indies. Its body is elongate and compressed, with very large scales, brilliantly silvery on the sides and belly. It reaches a length of about six feet and a weight of about 200 pounds and is a noted game fish. Its flesh is not often eaten. Called also grande écaille, savanilla, silverfish, and silver king.

Tarpon. 1/30

tar pool. A natural pool of petroleum residues, usually asphaltic.

tar'pot' (tär'pŏt'), n. A pot containing tar; hence, Humorous, a sailor.

tar putty. A mixture of tar and lampblack.

Tar'quin (tär'kwĭn), n. In Roman legend, one of a family to which belonged the fifth king (Lucius Tarquinius Priscus) and the seventh king (L. Tarquinius Superbus). In consequence of the misdeed of Sextus, son of the latter, the family was expelled from Rome. Cf. LUCRECE, 2.

Tar'quin·ish, adj. Like Tarquin, the last king of ancient Rome; proud; haughty; overbearing.

tar'rack (tär'ăk), n. The common tern. See TERN. Local, Eng. & Scot.

tar'ra·did'dle (tär'ȧ·dĭd''l; 66), n. A fib; lie; also, a liar. — v. i. & t. To tell, or impose on by telling, tarradiddles. — tar'ra·did'dler (-dĭd'lẽr), n. All Colloq.

tar'ra·gon (tär'ȧ·gŏn), n. [Sp. taragona, fr. Ar. ṭarkhun, fr. Gr. drakōn a dragon; cf. L. dracunculus tarragon. See DRAGON.] 1. A European herb (Artemisia dracunculus) allied to wormwood; also, its aromatic herbage, used for seasoning.
2. A color, yellow-green in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

tarragon oil. See OIL, Table I.

tarragon vinegar. Vinegar, esp. cider vinegar, flavored with tarragon.

Tar'ra·teen (tär'ȧ·tēn), Tar'ra·tine (-tĭn), n. An Abnaki.

tarred (tärd), adj. Smeared, treated, or covered with tar.

tarred fittings. Naut. Spun yarn, marline, and other small rope, designated usually by the number of threads or yarns which it contains.

tar'rer (tär'ẽr), n. A workman who covers textiles, wood, etc., with tar.

tar'ri (tär'rē), n. [F. tarrie, perh. from Ar. ṭarār.] See MEASURE, Table.

tar'ri·ance (tär'ĭ·ăns), n. 1. Archaic. a Tarrying; delay. b Sojourn.
2. Obs. a Awaiting. b Hindrance.

tar'ri·er (tär'ĭ·ẽr), n. One who tarries or delays.

tar'ri·er (tär'ĭ·ẽr; tăr'-), n. Var. of TERRIER. Obs. exc. Dial.

tar'rish (tär'ĭsh), adj. Like tar; tarry; hence, sailorlike; nautical.

tar'rock (tär'ŭk), n. [Prob. fr. Greenland Esk. tâterâq.] Brit. a A kittiwake gull before the first molt. b A tern.

tar'row (tär'ō; -ŭ), v. i. [See TARRY, v.] To be reluctant or peevish; to grumble, as at food or payment; also, Obs., to tarry; linger; delay. Scot.

tar'ry (tär'ĭ), adj. [From TAR, n.] 1. Of or like tar.
2. Tarred; hence, black; soiled; unclean.
— tar'ri·ly (-ĭ·lĭ), adv. — tar'ri·ness, n.

tar'ry (tär'ĭ), v.; TAR'RIED (-ĭd); TAR'RY·ING. [ME. tarien to irritate, delay, hinder, fr. AS. tergan, tirgan, to provoke, irritate; akin to D. tergen, G. zergen; cf. OF. tarier to provoke. The word was perh. influenced by ME. targen to delay, fr. OF. targier.] Transitive: 1. Obs. a To irritate; vex. b To make weary; to fatigue. c To cause to tarry or stay; retard; keep waiting. d To defer; put off. e To outstay.
2. To wait or stop for; as, to tarry a reply. Archaic.
—, Intransitive: 1. To delay or be tardy in action; specif., to stay or rest in expectation; to wait.
2. To abide at or in a place; to stay; lodge.

Tarry all night, and wash your feet. Gen. xix. 2.
Tarry ye here for us, until we come again. Ex. xxiv. 14.

3. To put off going or coming; to linger; loiter.
4. Formerly, to bundle. U. S.
5. To continue unaltered. Obs.
Syn. — Abide, linger. Ant. — Hasten, hurry.

tar'ry, n. 1. Tarrying; delay. Obs.
2. Stay; sojourn.

tar'ry–breeks' (tär'ĭ·brēks'), n. Also tar'ry–jack'et, tar'ry–John'. A sailor. Orig. Scot.

tar'ry–fin'gered (tär'ĭ·fĭng'gẽrd; 66), adj. Having tarry fingers.

tarry fingers. Thieving fingers. Chiefly Scot.

tar'ry·ing (tär'ĭ·ĭng), adj. That tarries. — tar'ry·ing·ly, adv. — tar'ry·ing·ness, n. Rare.

tarry stool. Med. An evacuation from the bowels having the color of tar, caused by hemorrhage in the stomach or intestines.

tars, tarse (tärs), n. [OF., prob. fr. ML. T(h)arsia Tatary, Turkestan.] A silken stuff, supposedly from Tatary. Obs.

tars-, = TARSO- (which see), as in tars·ad'e·mi'tis, tars·al'gi·a, tars'ec·to'pi·a, tar·si'tis.

tar'sal (tär'sȧl; -s'l), adj. Anat. & Zool. a Of or pert. to the tarsus. b Designating, or pertaining to, plates of dense connective tissue which serve to stiffen the eyelids of man and many animals. — n. A tarsal bone or cartilage.

tarsal arch. Anat. Either of two arterial arches (superior and inferior) near the free margin of the upper or lower eyelid.

tarsal cartilage. Anat. The tarsal plate of an eyelid.

tar·sa'le (tär·sā'lē), n.; pl. -LIA (-lĭ·ȧ). [NL.] Anat. & Zool. One of the bones or cartilages of the tarsus, esp. one of those articulating with the metatarsals.

tarsal gland. The Meibomian gland.

tarsal ligament. Anat. One of the short fibrous bands attached to the orbit and the ends of the tarsal plates of the eye.

tarsal tetter. Med. An eruptive disease of the edges of the eyelids; a kind of bleareye.

tar sand. A natural impregnation of sand or sandstone with petroleum from which the lighter portions have escaped.

tars·ec'to·my (tärs·ĕk'tō·mĭ), n. [tars- + -ectomy.] Surgical removal of: a A bone of the tarsus. b Part of the tarsal plate of an eyelid.

tar'si·a (tär'sĭ·ȧ; It. tär·sē'ä), n. [It.] A kind of Italian inlay work in wood; = INTARSIA a.

tar'si·er (tär'sĭ·ẽr), n. [F., fr. tarse tarsus.] Any of several closely related nocturnal arboreal mammals of the genus Tarsius of the East Indies, related to the lemurs. They are about the size of a small squirrel and have soft grayish-brown fur, slender legs, a tufted tail, and very large goggle eyes. The fingers and toes have adhesive discs, and the proximal tarsal bones are very long.

tar'si·oid (tär'sĭ·oid), adj. [Tarsius + -oid.] 1. Designating a structural stage in the evolution of the primate lower jaw marked by a form narrow in front or in the space for the tip of the tongue.
2. Zool. & Paleontol. Resembling or pertaining to the genus Tarsius. — n. A lemur or fossil belonging or allied to the genus Tarsius.

Tar'si·pes (tär'sĭ·pēz), n. [NL., fr. tarsus + L. pes foot.] Zool. A genus of small mouselike Australian marsupials with one species (T. rostratus) allied to the phalangers. It has a slender prehensile tail, a sharp-pointed nose, and a long extensile tongue with which it secures its food of honey and insects from flowers. It is the type of a subfamily, Tar'si·pe·di'nae (-pē·dī'nē), or family, Tar'si·ped'i·dae (-pĕd'ĭ·dē).

Tar'si·us (-ŭs), n. [NL. See TARSUS.] Zool. The genus consisting of the tarsiers. It constitutes a family, Tar·si'i·dae (tär·sī'ĭ·dē).

tar'so (tär'sō), n. [It.] An Italian quartz. Obs.

tar'so- (tär'sō-), tars-. Med. & Zool. A combining form for tarsus, denoting: a Tarsus, as in:

tarsochiloplasty	tarsophyma	tarsoptosis
tarsoclasis	tarsoplasia	tarsorrhaphy
tarsomalacia	tarsoplasty	tarsotomy

b Tarsal plate, as in tarsitis. c Tarsal and, as in:
tarso-orbital, tarsophalangeal tarsotibal.

tar'some (tär'sŭm), adj. Annoying; vexatious. Dial.

tar'so·met'a·tar'sal (tär'sō·mĕt'ȧ·tär'sȧl; -s'l), adj. Anat. & Zool. a Of or pert. to the tarsus and metatarsus; as, tarsometatarsal articulations. b Of or pert. to the tarsometatarsus.

tar'so·met'a·tar'sus (-sŭs), n. [NL.] The large bone of the shank, or so-called tarsus, of a bird; also, the segment of the limb it supports. It consists of the fused metatarsal bones, united with the end of the distal tarsal elements.

Tar'so·nem'i·dae (tär'sō·nĕm'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. tarso- + Gr. nēma thread + -idae.] Zool. A family of small, soft-bodied, usually pale-colored mites. Some suck the juices of plants and others feed on insects and other animals. Tar'so·ne'mus (-nē'mŭs) is the type genus. — tar'so·ne'mid (-mĭd), n. & adj.

tar'so·tar'sal (tär'sō·tär'sȧl; -s'l), adj. Mediotarsal.

tar spot. Plant Pathol. A leaf-blotch disease of maple, willow, oak, etc., caused by fungi of the genus Rhytisma, producing raised tarlike spots (black stromatic cushions) on the foliage; also, one of these spots.

tar still. In petroleum refining, a still in which the heavy residuum from the first distillation is rectified. Cf. CRUDE STILL.

tar'sus (tär'sŭs), n.; pl. TARSI (-sī). [NL., fr. Gr. tarsos the flat of the foot, the edge of the eyelid.] 1. Anat. & Zool. The ankle; the part of the foot of a vertebrate between the metatarsus and the leg. Also, the small bones collectively which support this part of the limb. There may be nine such bones (a proximal row of three, a centrale, and a distal row of five), but commonly the number is reduced by disappearance or fusion of some elements. In man there are seven, the proximal row being represented by two, the talus (astragalus), which alone articulates with the leg bones, and the calcaneus, or heel bone. The others are the navicular (probably representing the centrale), and four distal elements, the first, second, and third (external, middle, and internal) cuneiform, and the cuboid. In birds the tarsal bones are fused with the metatarsal to form the tarsometatarsus. This third segment of the leg in birds is often called the tarsus.
2. Zool. The tarsometatarsus, or shank, of a bird's leg; the part between the so-called knee and foot.
3. Zool. The distal part of the limb in certain arthropods; esp.: a In insects, the foot, or part distal to the tibia, usually consisting of several (commonly four or five) segments and bearing two claws, and often a pulvillus, at the end. b In spiders, the distal segment of the foot.
4. Anat. The tarsal plate of the eyelid.

tart (tärt), adj. [AS. teart severe; perh. akin to TEAR, v.] 1. Sharp to the taste; sour; as, a tart apple; also, pungent.
2. Acute or severe; as, a tart pain, or punishment; also, keen; sharp; caustic; as, a tart reply; tart words.

Why art thou so tart, my brother? Bunyan.

3. a Dial. Eng. Painful; sensitive or tender, as a sore. b Keen; piercing; — of weather.
Syn. and Ant. — See SOUR.

tart, v. t. & i. To make or become tart.

tart (tärt), n. [ME. tarte, fr. OF. tarte, of obscure origin; cf. OF. (& F.) tourte, fr. LL. torta round bread, cake, of uncert. origin.] 1. Formerly, a pie; now: a A small pie or shell of pastry, esp. with no top crust, containing jelly, custard, fruit, or the like. b Eng. A fruit pie of any size.
2. A girl or woman, esp. one regarded as immoral; — orig. endearing. Slang.

tar'ta·go (tär'tȧ·gō), n. [Sp. tártago.] The physic nut.

Tar'tak (-tăk), n. Bib. A god worshiped in Samaria by the Avites. Cf. NIBHAZ. 2 Kings xvii. 31.

tar'tan (tär'tăn; 91), n. [Origin uncert.; cf. OF. tiretaine linsey-woolsey.] 1. Woolen cloth, checkered or crossbarred with narrow bands of various colors, much worn in the Scottish Highlands, where each clan had distinctive tartan; hence, any pattern of tartan; also, material of a similar pattern.
2. One who, or those who, wear tartan; a Highlander; Highlanders, collectively.
3. A tartan-purry. Scot.

Tartan of the Black Watch (42d Highlanders).

tar'tan, adj. Made of or like tartan.

tar'tan, v. i. To dress in tartan.

tar'tan (tär'tăn), n. [F. tartane, fr. It. tartana, perh. of Ar. origin.] Naut. A coasting vessel, used in the Mediterranean, having one mast carrying a large lateen sail, and a bowsprit with staysail or jib.

Tar'tan (tär'tăn; 91), n. [Assyr.-Bab. tartānu.] Bib. & Assyr. Hist. Literally, second (after the king); an Assyrian commander in chief.

tar·ta'na (tär·tä'nä), n. [Sp.] A kind of Spanish vehicle usually having two wheels and a cover, used esp. in Valencia.

tar'tan–pur'ry (tär'tȧn·pŏor'ĭ), n. A kind of pudding or porridge containing kale. Scot.

tartan velvet. Velvet having a short nap and tartan patterns.

tar'tar (tär'tẽr), n. [ME. tartre, fr. OF. tartre, fr. ML. tartarum, fr. MGr. tartaron, perh. of Ar. origin.] 1. A substance existing in the juice of grapes and deposited in wine casks, together with yeast and other suspended matters, as a pale or dark reddish crust or sediment; specif., a recrystallized product, distinguished from argol or wine stone (the crust), from lees (the sediment), and from cream of tartar, obtained by further purification. Tartar is essentially acid potassium tartrate.
2. a Any incrustation deposited from a liquid. b An incrustation on the teeth, consisting of salivary mucus, food residue, and phosphate of lime.

Tar'tar (tär'tẽr), n. [Per. Tātār, of Tatar origin: cf. F. Tartare, Tatare, ML. Tartarus. The spelling Tartar is due to confusion with Tartarus.] 1. One of the people of Tatary (Tartary), of Mongolic or Turkic origin. See TATAR.
2. [often not cap.] A person of a violent, intractable, or irritable temper; also, a shrew.
3. [not cap.] A person who, on being attacked, proves to be too strong for his assailant; — esp. in the phrase to catch a tartar.
4. [not cap.] A military valet.
5. The language of the Tartars. See TATAR.

Tar'tar, adj. Of or pertaining to Tatary or the Tatars. Also, Tartarlike.

Tar'tar, n. Tartarus. Obs.

tar'tar, n. = 2d TARTARINE. Obs.

Tar·tar'e·an (tär·tär'ē·ăn), adj. [L. Tartareus.] Of or pertaining to Tartarus; infernal.

Tar·tar'e·an, adj. Tartar. Obs.

tartar emetic. A poisonous white crystalline salt, having a sweetish metallic taste, used in dyeing as a mordant and in medicine as a diaphoretic, expectorant, emetic, and counterirritant. Chemically it is potassium antimonyl tartrate (or perhaps potassium tartryl antimonite), $KSbOC_4H_4O_6 \cdot \frac{1}{2}H_2O$.

tar·tar'e·ous (tär·tär'ē·ŭs), adj. [NL. tartareus.] 1. Consisting of, like, or of the nature of, tartar.
2. Bot. Having a rough crumbly surface, as the lichen Lecanora tartarea (tartareous moss), a source of archil.

Tar·tar'e·ous (tär·tär'ē·ŭs), adj. = 1st TARTAREAN.

tartareous acid. Chem. Tartaric acid. Obs.

tar'tare sauce (tär'tẽr; tär'tär'), [F. sauce tartare.] Cookery. A sauce consisting of mayonnaise dressing with chopped green herbs, pickles, olives, and capers, often served with fish.

tar'tar·et (tär'tẽr·ĕt), n. [MF.] Obs. a The passage hawk. b A worthless fellow.

Tar'tar horse (tär'tẽr). The tarpan.

Tar·tar'i·an (tär·tär'ĭ·ăn), n. a Obs. A Tartar. b Slang. A thief.

Tar·tar'i·an, adj. Tartar.

Tar·tar'i·an, n. [See TARTAR.] Any of several varieties of heart cherries; as, the black Tartarian.

Tar·tar'i·an, adj. = 1st TARTAREAN.

Tartarian aster. A commonly cultivated, late-blooming Siberian herb (Aster tataricus), often seven feet high.

Tartarian buckwheat. A buckwheat (Fagopyrum tataricum) grown in poor soils and cold climates.

Tartarian honeysuckle. An Asiatic bush honeysuckle (Lonicera tatarica) with cordate-ovate leaves.

Tartarian lamb. The Scythian lamb

Tartarian moss. Tartareous moss.

Tartarian oat. = SIDE OATS b.

Tar·tar'ic (tär·tär'ĭk), adj. Tatar.

tar·tar'ic (tär·tär'ĭk; tär·tär'ĭk), adj. Of, pertaining to, derived from, or resembling, tartar or tartaric acid.

-tar·tar'ic. Chem. A combining form of tartaric, as in:

dextrotartaric	mesotartaric	phosphotartaric
levotartaric	paratartaric	pyrotartaric tartaric acid. Chem. An acid, $C_2H_2(OH)_2(CO_2H)_2$, called also dihydroxysuccinic acid, occurring in four isomeric forms: (1) Ordinary tartaric acid, or dextrotartaric acid, a dextrorotatory compound crystallizing in monoclinic prisms. It is widely diffused among plants, as in grapes, mountain-ash fruits, etc., and is obtained chiefly from tartar. It is used in dyeing and calico printing, in photography, in medicine, esp. in the preparation of Seidlitz powders, and also as a substitute for lemon juice or citric acid. (2) Levotartaric, or antitartaric, acid, differing from the ordinary acid in being levorotatory. It is prepared from racemic acid. See RACEMIC a. (3) Racemic acid. (4) Mesotartaric, or antitartaric, acid, best prepared by heating tartaric acid with water. It crystallizes with one molecule of water and is optically inactive.

Tar'ta·rin' (tär'tȧ'răn'), n. [F.] In several of Alphonse Daudet's satirical novels, a boastful citizen of Tarascon who, to achieve fame as a hunter and adventurer, engaged in absurd exploits.

tar'pum (tär'pŭm). Var. of TARPON. tart. Var. of TAR, to tease. tartace. ✝ TERRACE, TRASS. tar'ra·go'na (tär'ȧ·gō'nȧ), n. = IRON-OXIDE RED a. tar'ras. ✝ TERRACE.
tar'ras, tar'rass. Vars. of TRASS. tarre. ✝ TAR.
tar'rid. Tarried. Ref. Sp. tar'rie (tär'ĭ). Var. of TERRIE. tar'ri·fy. Dial. var. of TERRIFY. tar'row. ✝ TARO. tarrying irons. = TIRING IRONS. tar'sal. ✝ TERCEL. [Obs.] tarse, n. [AS. teors.] The penis. tar'sel. ✝ TASSEL, TERCEL. tar'si (tär'sĭ), n., pl. of TARSUS.
Tar·si'i·dae (tär·sĭ'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. See TARSIUS. tar'tane. Var. of TARTAN, TERTIAN. tar'tar·at'ed (tär'tär·ĭt'ĕd; -ĭd), adj. = TARTRATED.

tar'tar·ine (tär'tĕr·ēn; -ĭn), n. Also -in. Potassium carbonate. Obs. — tar'tar·in·at'ed (-ĭ·nāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Obs.

tar'tar·ine (-ĭn), adj. Consisting of tartar. Obs.

tar'ta·rine (tär'tȧ·rĭn), n. [OF. tartarin, ML. tartarinus.] A costly silk fabric supposed to have been made by the Tartars. Obs.

tar'tar·ish (tär'tĕr·ĭsh), adj. Tending to form a tartar.

tar'tar·ize (tär'tĕr·īz), v. t.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). [Cf. F. tartariser.] To impregnate or combine with, or subject to action of, tartar; to rectify with cream of tartar. — tar'tar·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shĭn), n.

Tar'ta·rize (tär'tȧ·rīz), v. t. To condemn to Tartarus. — Tar'ta·ri·za'tion (-rĭ·zā'shŭn; -rĭ·zā'-), n.

Tar'tar·ize (tär'tĕr·īz), v. t. To make Tatar. — Tar'tar·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n.

tar'tar·ized an·tim'o·ny (tär'tĕr·īzd). Med. Tartar emetic.

tar'tar·ly, adj. & adv. Like or in the manner of a tartar. See 2d TARTAR, n., 2.

Tar'tar–nosed', adj. Snub-nosed.

Tar'ta·rol'o·gy (tär'tȧ·rŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [See TARTARUS; -LOGY.] Doctrine concerning hell.

tar'tar·ous (tär'tĕr·ŭs), adj. [Cf. F. tartareux.] Containing, consisting of, or of the nature of, tartar; due to or derived from tartar; like tartar.

tar'ta·rum (tär'tȧ·rŭm), n. Pharm. Tartar.

Tar'ta·rus (tär'tȧ·rŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tartaros.] 1. Gr. Myth. The infernal regions, described in the Iliad as situated as far below Hades as heaven is above the earth, and by later writers as the place of punishment for the spirits of the wicked. In the later poets, also, Hades.
2. A place suggestive of Tartarus; hell.

Tar'ta·ry (tär'tȧ·rĭ), or, more correctly, Ta'ta·ry (tä'-), n. The Tartar region of eastern Europe and of Asia.

Tar'ta·ry (tär'tȧ·rĭ), n. Tartarus. Obs.

Tartary buckwheat. Tartarian buckwheat.

Tartary cloth. = 3d TARTARINE. Obs. exc. Hist.

tartar yeast. A deposit of yeast cells, tartar, and other compounds, formed during the fermentation of grape juice in wine manufacture.

‖tarte (tärt), n. [F.] A tart.

tart'en (tär't'n), v. t. To make tart.

‖tar'tine' (tär'tēn'), n. [F.] A slice of bread spread with butter and, usually, preserved fruit.

tart'ish, adj. Somewhat tart. — tart'ish·ly, adv.

tar'tle (tär't'l), v. i. To hesitate in recognizing; to shy. Scot.

tart'let (tärt'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A small tart.

tart'ness (tärt'nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. [Cf. AS. tearthness.] The quality or state of being tart; as, the tartness of the rebuke startled him into hasty excuses.
Syn. — Sourness, acerbity, piquancy, asperity. See ACRIMONY.

tar·tram'ate (tär·trăm'āt; tär'trȧ·māt), n. Chem. A salt or ester of tartramic acid.

tar·tram'ic ac'id (tär·trăm'ĭk). [tartr- + -amic.] Chem. An acid, $C_4H_7NO_6$, obtained as a sirup by action of ammonia on tartaric anhydride.

tar·tram'ide (-ĭd; -īd), n. Also -id. [tartr- + amide.] Chem. A white crystalline compound, $C_4H_8N_2O_4$, the amide of tartaric acid.

tar'trate (tär'trāt), n. [F.] Chem. A salt or ester of tartaric acid.

tar'trat·ed (tär'trāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Pharm. Chem. Containing, or derived from, tartar; combined with tartaric acid.

tartrated antimony. Tartar emetic.

tartrated iron. Pharm. Iron and potassium tartrate prepared by mixing freshly precipitated ferric hydroxide with potassium acid tartrate.

tar'tra·to- (tär'trȧ·tō-). Chem. A combining form for tartrate, as in tar'tra·to·fer'ric ac'id, $HC_4H_3O_6Fe$.

tar'tra·zine (tär'trȧ·zēn; -zĭn), n. Also -zin. [tartr- + hydr*azine.*] See DYE, Table. — tar'tra·zin'ic (-zĭn'ĭk), adj.

tar'tro- (tär'trō-), tartr-. Chem. A combining form meaning tartar, used to denote presence of, or relation to, tartar or tartaric acid. — tar'tro (-trō), adj.

tar'tro·nate (tär'trō·nāt), n. A salt or ester of tartronic acid.

tar·tron'ic (tär·trŏn'ĭk), adj. [tartro- + malonic.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating a white crystalline acid, $CH(OH)(CO_2H)_2$, obtained by the decomposition of a nitro derivative of tartaric acid, by reducing mesoxalic acid, and in other ways.

tar'tro·nyl (tär'trō·nĭl), n. [tartronic + -yl.] Chem. The bivalent radical, $C_4H_2O_3$, of tartronic acid. Cf. BENZOYL.

tar'tro·nyl·u·re'a (-ū·rē'ȧ; -ū'rē·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. tartronyl + -urea.] Dialuric acid.

tar'trous (tär'trŭs), adj. Coated with tartar (sense 2 b).

tar'tryl (tär'trĭl), n. [tartr- + -yl.] Chem. The bivalent radical, $C_4H_4O_4$, of tartaric acid. — tar·tryl'ic (tär·trĭl'ĭk), adj.

Tar·tuf'e' (tär·tōōf'; F. tär'tüf'), Tar·tuffe' (tär·tōōf'), n. [F. Tartufe, tartuje, fr. It. Tartufo, tartufo, lit., truffle.] 1. The title and leading character of a play (1664) by Molière. He is a hypocritical religious devotee, in orders, who swindles his benefactor, Orgon, and attempts to seduce Orgon's wife, Elmire.
2. [not cap.] A hypocritical pretender to religion; a hypocrite. Hence: tar·tuf'er·y, tar·tuf'fer·y (tär·tōōf'ĕr·ĭ), n. — tar·tuf'i·an, tar·tuf'fi·an (-ĭ·ăn), adj. — tar·tuf'ish, tar·tuf'fish (-ĭsh), adj. — tar·tuf'ish·ly, tar·tuf'fish·ly, adv. — tar·tuf'ism, tar·tuf'fism (-ĭz'm), n.

tart'wom'an (tärt'wŏŏm'ăn), n.; pl. -WOMEN (-wĭm'ĕn; -ĭn; 119). A woman who sells tarts.

Ta'ru·ma' (tä'rōō·mä'), n. An Indian of an Arawakan tribe dwelling in southern British Guiana.

tarve (tärv), v. t., v. i., & n. [Cf. AS. torfian to throw, and E. topsy-turvy.] Turn; bend. U. S.

Tar'vi·a (tär'vĭ·ȧ), n. [tar + L. via road.] A trade-mark applied to a viscid surfacing and binding material for roads, made from coal tar; hence [sometimes not cap.], this material.

tar water. A cold infusion of tar in water, formerly regarded as a cure-all.

tar'weed' (tär'wēd'), n. a Any of various California resinous-glandular plants, esp. species of Madia and Grindelia. b The mountain misery.

tar well. Gas Mfg. A receptacle in which are drawn off the condensed products from the hydraulic main.

tar'whine' (tär'hwīn'), n. [Native name.] Either of two Australian sea breams (Sparus sarba and S. australis), both extensively used as food.

tar'wood' (-wŏŏd'), n. A New Zealand tree (Dacrydium colensoi); also, its yellowish-white wood, widely used there for railway ties, and for bridges, wharves, etc.

Ta·ry'ba (tä·rē'bä), n. [Lith.] The National Council of Lithuania, elected by the Diet of Vilna in 1917. It demanded the complete independence of Lithuania and so proclaimed it on Feb. 16, 1919.

Tar'zan (tär'zăn; -zăn), n. Hero of a series of stories of adventure by Edgar Rice Burroughs. He is a white man, of prodigious strength and chivalrous instincts, reared by African apes. — Tar'zan·ish (-zăn·ĭsh), adj.

ta·sa'jo (tä·sä'hō; 162), n. [Sp.] In South America, orig., dried strips of buffalo meat; now, jerked beef.

tas'cal (tăs'kŏl), n. [Gael. taisgeal the finding of anything.] Formerly, a reward for information about stolen cattle. Scot.

tas'co (tăs'kō), n. [It. tasconio, fr. L. tasconium a kind of clayey earth.] A kind of clay for making melting pots.

tas'e·om'e·ter (tăs'ē·ŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [Gr. tasis, taseōs, stretching + -meter. See TASIMETER.] Mech. An instrument for measuring structural stresses by means of the tones emitted by a wire equally or proportionally stressed.

tash (tăsh), v. t. & n. [Cf. F. tacher to stain, tache a stain.] Stain; soil; also, fatigue; disgrace. Cf. 1st & 2d TACHE. Both Chiefly Scot.

tash (tăsh), n. Also tass (tăs). [Hind. tāś, tās.] An East Indian fabric containing much gold or silver thread.

tash'ie (tăsh'ĭ), n. [Corrupt. of attaché.] An attaché case. Colloq.

tash·lik' (tăsh·lĕk'), n. [Heb. tashlīkh thou wilt cast (Micah vii. 19), imp. (fut.) of hishlīkh, fr. shālakh to cast, throw.] Among orthodox Jews, a propitiatory rite, celebrated on the afternoon of New Year's Day (Rosh Hashana), consisting in gathering at a running stream and, after reciting various Scriptural verses, esp. Micah vii. 18–20, offering prayers and shaking the ends of the garments over the water in the belief that thus one's sins are washed or swept away.

Tash'mi·tum (tăsh'mē·tŏŏm), n. [Assyr.-Bab. Tashmītum, lit., hearing, revelation.] Babylon. Relig. A goddess, the consort of Nebo (literally, announcer).

tash·rif' (tăsh·rēf'), n. Also tash'e·riff', tash·reef'. [Ar. tashrīf.] Honor; respect; attention or politeness from a superior; also, a gift; a complimentary present. Anglo-Ind.

Ta'si·an (tä'sĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to a predynastic neolithic civilization of Egypt, perhaps earlier than the Badarian.

ta·sim'e·ter (tȧ·sĭm'ē·tĕr), n. [Gr. tasis stretching, extension (fr. teinein to stretch) + -meter.] A modification of the microphone for detecting or measuring minute extensions or movements of solid bodies (and hence changes of temperature) by the changes of pressure produced.

tas'i·met'ric (tăs'ĭ·mĕt'rĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to tasimetry or the tasimeter.

ta·sim'e·try (tȧ·sĭm'ē·trĭ), n. The measurement of pressures; also, the use of the tasimeter.

task (tăsk; 83), n. [ME. taske, fr. ONF. tasque, for OF. tasche (F. tâche), fr. (assumed) VL. tasca, for taxa, fr. L. taxare to rate, appraise, estimate. See TAX.] 1. A tax; impost. Obs.
2. Labor or study imposed by another, often in a definite quantity; a lesson to be prepared; as, a schoolboy's task; broadly, anything imposed upon one by duty or necessity; undertaking; work.

> His mental powers were equal to greater tasks. Atterbury.

3. The amount of work required of a worker or group of workers in order to earn an established wage.
4. An accounting; censure; as, to take in or to task.
5. Games. That which a player undertakes to accomplish.
6. Psychol. The performance required of the subject in an experiment or test, usually made known to the human subject by verbal instructions.
Syn. — Employment, toil; stint, assignment.
— by task, to task. By the piece; — of work.

task (tăsk), v. t.; TASKED (tăskt); TASK'ING. 1. To tax. Obs.
2. To impose a task upon; to assign a definite amount of business, labor, or duty to.

> There task thy maids, and exercise the loom. Dryden.

3. To oppress with great labor; to keep busy at, or as at, a task; burden; as, to task one's mind with details.
4. To put to the proof; to test.
5. To charge; to tax, as with a fault.

> Too impudent to task me with those errors. Beau. & Fl.

Task, The. A descriptive and narrative poem (1785) in six parts, by William Cowper.

task'age (tăs'kĭj), n. Labor imposed as a task.

task'–and–bo'nus sys'tem. A system of wage payment whereby the worker receives a guaranteed hourly rate, and, if he accomplishes a set task, he receives his hourly rate for the time taken plus a percentage of that amount as bonus.

task'er (tăs'kĕr), n. 1. One who imposes or regulates taxes or prices. Obs.
2. One who imposes a task; a taskmaster.
3. One who performs a task; specif., a laborer at piecework; esp., a thresher or reaper. Now Chiefly Dial.

task'it (tăs'kĭt), adj. Fatigued; fagged. Scot.

task'mas'ter (tăsk'măs'tĕr; cf. MASTER), n. One who imposes a task, or burdens another with labor; one whose duty is to assign tasks; an overseer. Ex. i. 11.

task'mis'tress (-mĭs'trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n. A woman who imposes tasks.

task'set'ter (tăsk'sĕt'ĕr), n. One who sets a task or tasks. Specif.: a A workman whose rate of output on a specified task is used as a standard for other workers. b One who sets the tasks of workers, designating the output to be attained or the period of time for the performance of a task, and also usually determining the rate, when any wage-payment plan other than day rate is used. — task'set'ting, n.

task time. In the time-study of an industrial operation, the time set as proper for performance by the worker.

task wage. Econ. A wage paid by the day, or some fixed period, on condition that a minimum task be performed. When the workman is paid in proportion for excess over the minimum, the wage is one for piecework.

task'work' (tăsk'wûrk'), n. Work done as a task; also, work done by the job; piecework.

Tas·ma'ni·an (tăz·mā'nĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Tasmania. — n. a A native or inhabitant of Tasmania; specif., one of the extinct aborigines of Tasmania.

Tasmanian bluebell. The Australian bluebell.

Tasmanian box. The native box.

Tasmanian cherry or cranberry. = AUSTRALIAN CRANBERRY b.

Tasmanian cider tree. = SWAMP GUM a.

Tasmanian currant. The Australian currant.

Tasmanian devil. A carnivorous burrowing Tasmanian marsupial (Sarcophilus ursinus) of the dasyure family. It has coarse mostly jet-black fur. Though scarcely larger than a badger, it is very savage and it sometimes destroys sheep.

Tasmanian Devil. (1/20)

Tasmanian dogwood. An Australian shrub (Bedfordia salicina), family Cardualeae, with small, white heads in axillary panicles.

Tasmanian honeysuckle. A shrub (Banksia australis) closely related to the Australian honeysuckle.

Tasmanian hyacinth. A Tasmanian pink-flowered orchid (Thelymitra nuda).

Tasmanian ironwood. The shrub or tree Notelaea ligustrina.

Tasmanian kurrajong. The shrub Plagianthus sidoides (family Malvaceae).

Tasmanian laurel. A Tasmanian shrub or tree (Anopterus glandulosus), family Escalloniaceae, with glossy evergreen leaves and racemose white flowers.

Tasmanian myrtle. An Australian evergreen tree (Nothofagus cunninghamii).

Tasmanian pepper. An Australian shrub (Drimys aromatica) with spicy bark and black, aromatic fruit.

Tasmanian plum. = NATIVE PLUM b.

Tasmanian rope grass. Any plant of the genus Restio.

Tasmanian sassafras. The native sassafras, or plume nutmeg.

Tasmanian tiger or wolf. The thylacine.

tas'ma·nite (tăz'mȧ·nīt), n. [From Tasmania.] 1. Mineral. A compound of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, and sulphur in minute reddish-brown scales in shale.
2. Geol. A light-colored, shaly coal, composed largely of the mineral tasmanite, which yields a large quantity of petroleum on dry distillation; — called also combustible shale.

tass (tăs), n. [F. tasse, fr. Ar. ṭass, ṭassah, fr. Per. tast cup.] A drinking cup, bowl, or the like; also, the contents of a tass. Now Scot. & Dial.

tass (tăs; tăs), n. [F. tas.] A heap; a mow, as of hay. Obs. exc. Dial.

tass (tăs), n. See 2d TASH.

tas'sard' (tăs'sär'), n. [F. tassard, tassart, as in cailleu-tassart species of herring.] The frigate mackerel (Auxis rochei).

tasse (tăs), n. [MF., pocket, fr. MHG. tasche, fr. OHG. tasca, of obscure origin.] Armor. One of a series of steel splints forming a short skirt (called tass'es [-ēz; -īz; 119]) from which the tuilles hung. See ARMOR, Illust.

tas'sel (tăs'l), n. [ME., some part of a fastening of a mantle, fr. OF. tassel, taisel (F. tasseau a bracket), prob. fr. L. taxillus a little die.] 1. Orig., a clasp for a cloak; now, a pendent ornament, ending in a tuft of loose threads or cords, attached to headgear, to cushions, to curtains, and the like.
2. Something likened to a tassel; specif., the male inflorescence of some plants. See INDIAN CORN, Illust.
3. A narrow ribbon fastened to a book for a bookmark.
4. Obs. a A tuft or fringe. b An undergraduate; — from wearing a cap with a tassel.
5. Archery. A pendant of woolen yarn, for wiping arrows, hung from the belt.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
tassel hand, tassel-hung, tasselmaker, tasselmaking, tassel mold, tassel weaver.

tas'sel (tăs'l), v. t.; TAS'SELED (-'ld) or TAS'SELLED; TAS'SEL·ING. To adorn with tassels; to attach tassels to; also, to make into tassels; also, to detassel. — v. i. To put forth tassels or inflorescences; — often with out.

tas'sel (tăs'l), n. A careless, good-for-nothing person. Dial. Eng.

tas'sel, n. A tussle. Scot.

tas'sel (tăs'l). Var. of TERCEL, TORSEL.

tassel bush. The bear brush (Garrya fremontii); also, the related G. elliptica of the Pacific coast of the United States.

tas'sel·er (tăs'l·ĕr), n. One whose cap bears a tassel.

tas'sel·fish' (-fĭsh'), n. Any of various threadfins. Australia.

tassel flower. a A tropical Asiatic herb (Emilia flammea) having small tassellike heads of scarlet flowers. b A perennial herb (Brickellia umbellata), family Cardualeae, of the western United States. c Prairie clover.

tassel grass. Any aquatic herb of the genus Ruppia, esp. the marine species R. maritima.

tassel hyacinth. The feathered hyacinth.

tas·sel'lus (tȧ·sĕl'ŭs), n. [ML.] A gold, silver, or embroidered ornament such as a spangle on a cope or chasuble, a disk on the back of a bishop's glove, or a morse. Hist.

tassel plant. = BAY CEDAR b. West Indies.

tassel pondweed. The tassel grass Ruppia maritima.

tassel stitch. a An embroidery stitch for making open loops cut to form fringe. b A kind of plush stitch.

tassel tree. Any tree of the genus Garrya, with tassellike staminate aments.

tas'sel·y (tăs'l·ĭ), adj. Decorated with tassels.

tass'ie (tăs'ĭ), n. A small cup. Cf. 1st TASS. Chiefly Scot.

Tas'so (tăs'ō; Eng. tăs'ō), n. The title and hero of a drama, Torquato Tasso (1790), by Goethe, based on the life of the poet Tasso (see Biog.), its subject being the conflict between poetic genius and prosaic realities.

taste (tāst), v.; TAST'ED (tās'tĕd; -tĭd; 119); TAST'ING (tās'tĭng). [ME. tasten to feel, to taste, fr. OF. taster to tar·ta'ri·um (tär·tā'rĭ·ŭm; 79), n. = TARTARINE, a cloth. Obs.

---

Tar'tar·ism (tär'tĕr·ĭz'm), n. See -ISM.

Tar'tar·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tar'tar·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

tar'te·mo'ri·on, n. = TETARTE-MORION.

tar'terne, n. Var. of TARTARINE.

Tar·ti'ni's tone (tär·tē'nē·ēz). [After Tartini, an It. violinist, who discovered the tones in 1754.] Music & Acous. See COMBINATIONAL TONE.

tart'ly, adv. of TART. See -LY.

tartr-. = TARTRO-.

tartre. † TARTAR.

tar'trite, n. = TARTRATE. Obs.

tar'tron. † TARTARINE, a silk.

Ta'ru·ma'ri (tä'rōō·mä'rē). Var. of TARAHUMARI.

tas'ar (tŭs'ĕr). Var. of TUSSAH.

tash·lich'. Var. of TASHLIK.

Tash'nag·ist (tăsh'năg·ĭst), Var. of DASHNAKIST.

tasil. † TEASEL.

task'less, adj. See -LESS.

task'like', adj. See -LIKE.

task'mas'ter·ship, n. See -SHIP.

taskt. Tasked. Ref. Sp.

tas'let (tăs'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [Cf. OF. tasselet, dim. of tassel piece of cloth, and E. TASSET.] = TASSET.

tas·sa'go. Var. of TASAJO.

tas'sah (tŭs'ȧ). Var. of TUSSAH.

tas'sal (tăs'ăl; -l). Var. of TORSEL.

tas'sel. † TEASEL.

tas'sel·bur', n. A thistle. Obs.

tas'sel·et, n. A small tassel. Rare.

tas'ser (tŭs'ĕr). Var. of TUSSAH.

tas'set (tăs'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. = TASSE; — chiefly in pl.

tas·soo'. Var. of TASU.

tast'a·ble, taste'a·ble (tās'tȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — tast'a·ble·ness, taste'a·ble·ness, n. — tast'a·bly, taste'a·bly, adv.

feel, to try by the touch, to try, to taste (F. tâter), fr. (assumed) VL. tastare, perh. due to confusion of (assumed) LL. taxitare, v. freq. of L. taxare to touch sharply, to estimate, with L. gustare to taste. See TAX.] Transitive: 1. To try or test by or as by the touch; to touch for the purpose of testing; hence, to test; try; prove; as, to taste a bow. Obs.

Taste it well and stone thou shalt it find. Chaucer.

2. To try by the touch of the tongue; to ascertain the relish or flavor of (anything) by taking a small quantity into the mouth; specif., to test the quality of (anything) by its taste; as, to taste wine for the trade.

3. To eat or drink a small quantity of, as for testing; to partake of (food or drink), esp. in small quantities.

4. a To perceive, recognize, or experience by or as by the sense of taste. b To become acquainted with by actual trial; to feel; experience; undergo.

He . . . should taste death for every man. Heb. ii. 9

5. To impart a flavor to; to flavor. Now Rare.

6. To test (food) to certify its wholesomeness.

7. a To partake of; to participate in; — usually implying relish or pleasure. "A deeper joy to taste." Shelley. b Archaic & Dial. To like; appreciate; enjoy.

8. To smell; scent. Chiefly Poetic.

9. To partake of (alcoholic drink). Scot.

10. Obs. a To yield a pleasant taste or flavor to; to please. b To have sexual intercourse with. c To long for; to desire; wish.

—, Intransitive: 1. To touch, esp. so as to test. Obs.

2. a To try food with the mouth; to eat or drink a little only; to try the flavor of anything; as, to taste of wine.

For age but tastes of pleasures, youth devours. Dryden.

b To exercise the sense of taste; to distinguish flavors. c To serve as a taster.

3. To have a certain flavor when applied to the taste organs; to excite a particular sensation, by which the specific quality or flavor is distinguished; figuratively, to have a particular quality; savor; as, the milk tastes sour or of garlic.

Yea, every idle, nice, and wanton reason Shall to the king taste of this action. Shak.

4. To have perception, experience, or enjoyment; to partake; — often with of; as, to taste of nature's bounty.

The valiant never taste of death but once. Shak.

Syn. — Savor, sample.

taste blood. Figuratively, to experience a new and keen pleasure.

taste (tāst), n. [OF. tast, fr. taster. See TASTE, n.] 1. A touch or stroke; also, the sense of touch; esp., a touching in order to test; a test; hence, broadly, an essay; a trial. Obs.

2. a Obs. Act of tasting with the mouth; gustation. b A little piece tasted or eaten; a bit; a sample. c Colloq. Any trifling amount; a little.

3. The sense by which certain attributes (taste, savor, flavor) of bodies or substances are ascertained by contact with certain epithelial end organs (the taste buds) occurring in the papillae on the surface of the tongue. It is regarded as comprising four special chemical senses, distinguishing acid, bitter, salt, and sweet. The base of the tongue is found most sensitive to bitter substances, the point to sweet and acid substances. To affect the brushlike ends of the nerves of taste (reaching the brain through the glossopharyngeal and lingual nerves) which ramify in the taste buds, substances must be soluble. See TASTE BUD.

4. The objective quality or property perceived by this sense; savor.

5. A sensation excited by stimulating the sense of taste (see def. 3, above), popularly, the total blend of sensations obtained from a substance in the mouth, and consisting of taste sensations proper, plus tactile and olfactory sensations excited by the substance; flavor; as, the taste of an orange; a bitter, acid, or sweet, taste. Only four tastes, acid, bitter, salt, and sweet, are fundamental. All others are either combinations or, more commonly, sensations of taste modified by smell.

6. Intellectual relish; liking; fondness; inclination; — formerly with of, now with for; as, he had no taste for study.

7. The power of discerning and appreciating fitness, beauty, order, congruity, proportion, symmetry, or whatever constitutes excellence, esp. in the fine arts and belles-lettres; critical judgment, discernment, or appreciation.

Taste is nothing but sensibility to the different degrees and kinds of excellence in the works of Art or Nature. Hazlitt.

8. Manner indicative of such discernment or appreciation; aesthetic quality; style; as, an epitaph in bad taste.

9. That which one relishes or prefers; individual aesthetic liking; as, there is no accounting for tastes.

10. Obs. a Discrimination; judgment. b A smell; scent; odor. c Pleasure; relish. d Heed; attention.

Syn. — Dash, spice, touch, hint, thought, shade. — TASTE, FLAVOR, SAVOR, RELISH, SMACK, TANG are distinguished in their fig. senses. TASTE, as here compared, denotes a sample or specimen of something, rather than (as in the case of the other words) a property of it; as, "Come, give us a taste of your quality" (Shak.). FLAVOR, SAVOR, and RELISH suggest either a predominant or distinctive quality, or a tinge or trace of something; as, "The higher heroisms and the old rare flavors are passing out of life" (W. James); "The passing hour's supporting joys have lost the keen-edged flavor" (G. Meredith); "We have the art perception, we catch flavors, and roll them on our tongues" (T. E. Brown); "a Puritanism that still strove to keep in its creed the intense savor which had long gone out of its faith" (Lowell); "There was a slight savor of disappointment in his tone" (Mary Wilkins); cf. "the style here and there savoring too strongly of sermon" (Gray); "the full flavor, the whole relish of delight" (H. W. Beecher); "Your lordship . . . hath yet some smack of age in you, some relish of the saltness of time" (Shak.). SMACK and TANG (which denotes esp. a fresh or pungent flavor) are more homely and familiar; as, "the Saxon names of places, with the pleasant, wholesome smack of the soil in them" (M. Arnold); cf. "Too many negative superiorities begin to smack a little of the prig" (Stevenson); "The language has a tang of Shakespeare" (Gray); "Yankeeisms . . . whose salt-sea flavor has its own peculiar tang in it" (Lowell). See JUDGMENT.

— out of taste. a Without power to discern flavors, relishes, qualities, etc. b Not in accordance with good taste; aesthetically or morally offensive; as, the remark was out of taste.

— taste in the mouth. Figuratively, aesthetic feeling.

— to one's taste. To one's liking. — to the queen's taste. So or such as to satisfy the most fastidious.

-taste (-tāst). A combining form of the noun taste, as in aftertaste, foretaste.

taste'kin, n. See -KIN.

tast'i-ble (tăs'tĭ-b'l), adj. = TASTABLE. Obs.

tatch (tăch; tàch). Var. of tache, to fasten. Obs. exc. Dial.

tatch. † TACHE.

tat-che. Archaic var. of TACHE.

tatch'y (tăch'ĭ; tàch'ĭ). Dial. Eng. var. of TECHY.

ta'ter (tā'tĕr), n. Also ta'tie (tā'tĭ). = POTATO. Dial.

Ta'tes (tā'tēs), n., pl. of 10th TAT.

tat'l, tat'ld. Tattle; tattled. Ref. Sp.

tat'mon'ger, n. A cheat. Obs.

Tat'nal (tăt'nĭ; -nā-l). Bib.

ta-too', ta-too'er, ta-too'ing, etc. Vars. of TATTOO, etc. [KNIFE.]

Tat'sa-not'ti-ne', n. = YELLOW-

Ta Ta'ing. = TA CHING.

tatt. Var. of TAT. [TATTY.]

tat'ta (tăt'ä), -tee (-ē). Vars. of tat'-tat', interj., n., & v. Also tat'-tat-tat'. = RAT-TAT.

tat'terd. Tattered. Ref. Sp.

ta-tou', (tä-tōō'), n. [F., fr. Pg. tatu, fr. Tupi tatú; cf. Sp. tatu, fr. Guarani tatu. Cf. TATOUAY.] The armadillo; esp., the giant armadillo.

tat'ou-ay (tăt'ōō-ā; tä'tōō-ī'), n. [Sp. tatuay, fr. Guarani tatu-aí, fr. tatu armadillo + aí worthless, vile; so called because the flesh of this species is not edible. Cf. TATOU.] A large armadillo (Cabassous unicinctus) of tropical South America, having 12 or 13 movable bands or plates around the body. The tail, which has few plates, is shorter than the body, and the third front claw is very large and falcate.

tatou peba. [See TATOU; PEBA.] The peba.

tat'pur'u-sha (tăt'pōōr'ōō-shä; tŭt'-), n. [Skr. tatpuruṣa, lit., his servant or man.] A Sanskrit dependent compound. See 4th COMPOUND, 3 b.

tats'man (tăts'măn), n. One proficient at playing dice. Slang.

tat'ter (tăt'ĕr), n. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Icel. tötur, töttur, pl. ötrar, öttirar, Nor. totra, pl. totror.] 1. A rag or a part torn and hanging; pl., tattered clothing; rags.

Tear a passion to tatters, to very rags. Shak.

2. A tatterdemalion. Obs.

3. A rag gatherer; one who collects waste with a cart or barrow. Slang, Eng.

tat'ter, v. t. & i.; TAT'TERED (-ĕrd); TAT'TER-ING. To tear into shreds; to make or become ragged.

tat'ter (tăt'ĕr; tăt'-), v. i. [See TATTLE.] Obs. exc. Dial. a To chatter; gabble; tattle; scold. b To bustle; stir; hurry.

tat'ter, adj. [Origin uncert.] Peevish; testy. Dial. Eng.

tat'ter (tăt'ĕr), n. One who makes tatting.

tat'ter-de-mal'ion (tăt'ĕr-dē-măl'yŭn; -măl'yŭn; 277), n. [tatter, or tattered + an obscure second element.] A ragged fellow; a ragamuffin. — adj. Tattered; ragged. — tat'ter-de-mal'ion-ism (-ĭz'm), n. — tat'ter-de-mal'ion-ry (-rĭ), n.

tat'tered (tăt'ĕrd), adj. 1. Ragged; torn in shreds; as, tattered clouds or mist.

2. Clad in ragged clothes.

3. Broken; dilapidated; disrupted; as, tattered conventions.

Tattered cottages. Jane Austen.

4. Obs. a Jagged; slashed; also, clad in jagged or slashed garments. b Shaggy; disheveled. c Routed and dispersed.

— tat'tered-ly, adv. — tat'tered-ness, n.

tat'ter-ly (tăt'ĕr-lĭ), adj. Tattered. Rare.

Tat'ter-sall's (-sôlz; -s'lz), n. A famous horse market in London, established in 1766 by Richard Tattersall, also used as the headquarters of credit betting on English horse races; hence, a large horse market elsewhere.

tat'ter-wal'lop (tăt'ĕr-wŏl'ŭp), n. A ragged thing or person. Dial.

tat'ter-y (-ĭ), adj. Ragged; tattered. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

tat'tie bo'gle (tăt'ĭ bō'g'l; bŏg'l). A scarecrow in a potato field. Scot.

tat'tied (tăt'ĭd), adj. Having a tatty or tatties.

tat'tie doo'lie or du'lie (dōō'lĭ). = TATTIE BOGLE. Scot.

tattie lifting. The potato harvest. Scot.

tat'ting (tăt'ĭng), n. [Cf. 1st TAT.] A kind of knotted lace made from cotton or linen thread wound on a shuttle; also, the act or process of making it. — tat'ting, adj.

tat'ting. Corrupt. of TATTY.

tat'tle (tăt'l), v.; TAT'TLED (-'ld); TAT'TLING (-lĭng). [MD. tatelen, tateren, to stammer, of imitative origin.] Intransitive: 1. Orig., to prattle; now, to prate; to talk idly; to use many words with little meaning; to chatter.

2. To tell tales or secrets; to be a talebearer; gossip.

—, Transitive: 1. To utter or disclose by tattling.

2. To use up by tattling.

tat'tle, n. Idle talk or chat; trifling talk; chatter; gossip.

Syn. — See GOSSIP.

Tat'tle, n. In Congreve's comedy Love for Love, a half-witted beau, vain of his amours, yet priding himself on secrecy.

tat'tle, v. i. & t. = 2d TATTOO.

tat'tler (tăt'lĕr), n. 1. One who tattles; gossip; telltale.

2. An alarm watch or clock; a watch. Slang.

3. a Any of certain slender long-billed limicoline birds of Totanus and allied genera, as the willet, yellowlegs, and redshank; — so called from their loud notes. b U. S. The wandering tattler.

tat'tler-y (tăt'lĕr-ĭ), n. Tattle. Rare.

tat'tle-tale' (tăt'l-tāl'), n. A telltale. Colloq.

tat'tling (tăt'lĭng), adj. That tattles; given to idle talk; apt to tell tales; gossipy. — tat'tling-ly, adv.

tat-too' (tă-tōō'), n. [Earlier taptoo, fr. D. taptoe, fr. tap a tap, faucet + toe to, shut (i. e., the taps, or drinking houses).] 1. Mil. & Nav. A call sounded on drum and fife, trumpet, or bugle, shortly before taps, giving notice to soldiers or sailors to repair to quarters.

2. An evening entertainment given by troops, usually taking the form of outdoor military exercises with music; often by torchlight.

3. A beating of or as of a drum; a thumping or rapping.

tat-too', v. i. & t. To sound the tattoo; also, to drum or rap with the fingers. Rare.

tat-too', v. t.; TAT-TOOED' (-tōōd'); TAT-TOO'ING. [Of Polynesian origin; cf. Maori ta to tattoo, Tahitian tatu punctuation.] To mark or color (the skin) by pricking in coloring matter so as to form indelible marks or figures or by production of scars.

tat-too', n.; pl. -TOOS (-tōōz'). An indelible mark or figure fixed upon the surface of the body by the insertion of pigment under the skin or by the production of scars. Generally, the former method is practiced by clear-skinned peoples, and the latter is common among blacks, the scars being either gashes healing lighter than the surrounding surface, or raised weals or patches produced by prolonged irritation of the flesh. Tattooing serves both ornamental and heraldic purposes among savages.

Pattern of Tattoo on the face of Te Pehi, a Maori chief.

tat'too (tăt'ōō; tŭt'-), n. [Hind. ṭaṭṭū. Cf. 7th TAT.] A native-bred pony. India.

tat-too'age (tă-tōō'ĭj), n. Act or process of tattooing; a tattooed design.

tat-too'er (tă-tōō'ĕr), n. One who tattoos.

tat-too'ing, n. Act of one who tattoos; also, a mark or design, or marks or designs collectively, tattooed upon flesh.

tat-too'ist, n. A tattooer. — tat-too'ist, adj.

tat-too'ment, n. See -MENT.

tat'ter-wag', n. = TATTERWALLOP. Obs.

tat'ther. Ir. var. of 3d TATTER.

tat'tie. Var. of TATTY; TATTIE.

tat'tle-ment, n. See -MENT.

tat'tva (tŭt'wȧ), n. [Skr., reality.] Hindu Philos. One of the principles of existence or truth, in the Sankhya system.

tat tvam as'i (tăt tvăm ăs'ē; tŭt twŭm ŭs'ē). [Skr.] That art thou; — the most famous aphorism of the Upanishads. It is a statement of the ultimate identity of individual and absolute being.

tat'ty (tăt'ĭ), adj. Tauted. Scot., N. of Eng., & Ir.

tat'ty (tăt'ĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-ĭz). [Hind. ṭaṭṭī.] A mat or screen of fibers in a door or window kept wet to cool the air. India.

Tat'ty-co'ram (tăt'ĭ-kō'răm), n. In Dickens's Little Dorrit, the nickname of Harriet Beadle, a half-crazed foundling.

ta'tu-ki'ra (tä'tōō-kē'rȧ), n. [Prob. of S. Amer. Ind. origin.] A small, South American biting fly of the genus Phlebotomus, believed to carry leishmaniasis.

tau (tô; tou), n. [Gr.] 1. a The nineteenth letter (T, τ) of the Greek alphabet, equivalent to English t. See T. Tau is variously used for classifying, as, Astron., to designate some star, usually the nineteenth brightest, of a constellation; as, Tau (τ) Eridani. b Tav.

2. a An instance of the letter T, τ written, printed, etc. b As a numeral, 300. Cf. GREEK NUMERAL.

3. A mark, or thing marked or shaped, like T, as a St. Anthony's cross, a pastoral staff, the ankh, and varieties of fish and insects.

tau, adj. T-shaped.

Tau'be (tou'bĕ), n.; pl. TAUBEN (-bĕn). [G., lit., a dove.] A monoplane, characterized esp. by its pigeon-shaped wings with retreating, upturned wing tips capable of being flexed to maintain lateral stability.

Tauch'nitz (touk'nĭts), n. A cheap reprint of or like the series issued by Tauchnitz (see Biog.).

tau cross. A T-shaped cross; St. Anthony's cross. See CROSS, Illust.

taught (tôt), past tense & past part. of TEACH. Specif.: adj. Instructed; also, conveyed by instruction.

-taught. A combining form of taught, as in mistaught, self-taught, well-taught.

ta'u-la (tä'ōō-lä; tou'lä), n. [Catalan, fr. L. tabula. See TABLE.] Archaeol. One of a class of ancient massive crude stone structures of unknown use, suggesting a table, platform, or altar, found esp. in the Balearic Islands.

Tau'li' (tou'lē'), n. sing. & pl. One of a tribe of Japhetic Turkic hybrids in Terek district, North Caucasus Region; — called also Mountain Tatars.

taum (tôm; tăm), n. [ON. taumr, Nor. taum.] A rope; a line; a fishing line, esp. one of horsehair. Scot. & N. of Eng.

taun (toung), n. sing. & pl. [Burmese taun, written tȧn.] See MEASURE, Table.

Taungs skull (tôngz; tŏngz; toungs). [From Taungs, S. Africa.] A fossil skull, found in South Africa, indicating a previously unknown race of anthropoid apes called Australopithecus africanus.

Taung'thu (toung'tōō), n. One of a Karen people in eastern Burma; also, their speech, a dialect of Karen.

taunt (tônt; tänt), adj. [Cf. F. tant so much, so many, L. tantus of such size, so great, so much and E. ATAUNT.] 1. Haughty; also, pert. Obs. exc. Dial.

2. Naut. & Dial. Eng. Very high or tall.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:
taunt-masted, taunt-rigged.

taunt, adv. Pertly. Obs. exc. Dial.

taunt (tônt; tänt; 277), v.; TAUNT'ED; TAUNT'ING. [Perh. fr. OF. tanter to tempt, to try, var. of tenter (see TEMPT); cf. E. dial. taunt to tempt, to dare (one), to tease.] 1. Transitive: Orig., to answer with banter or mockery; now, to reproach with severe or insulting words; to upbraid, esp. by casting something in one's teeth; to jeer at.

2. a To drive by taunting; to provoke. b To say as a taunt. c Dial. To tease.

3. To make the subject of scornful censure or reproach; to cast in one's teeth. Obs. "Taunt my faults." Shak.

——, Intransitive: 1. To rejoin smartly; to banter. Obs.

2. To utter taunts.

Syn. — Deride, mock, twit. See RIDICULE.

Ant. — Praise, flatter, compliment.

taunt, n. 1. Orig., a smart reply or quip; banter; now, upbraiding language; a bitter or sarcastic reproach.

With scoffs, and scorns, and contumelious taunts. Shak.

2. One who is taunted; an object of scornful reproach. Obs.

taunt'er, n. One who taunts.

taunt'ing, adj. That taunts. — taunt'ing·ly, adv. — taunt'ing·ness, n.

Taun'ton (tän'tŭn; tôn'-), n. A kind of broadcloth once made at Taunton, England. Hist.

Taunton turkey. [From Taunton, Mass.] The alewife (Pomolobus pseudoharengus).

taunt'ress (tôn'trĕs; tän'-; -trĭs; 119), n. A woman who taunts.

taupe (tōp), n. [F., mole. See TALPE.] A color, yellow in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance, like the coat of the mole. Called also mole, mole gray, moleskin. Cf. COLOR.

taupe'-rose', n. Rose taupe.

tau·po' (tou·pō'), ta'u·po'u (tä'ōō·pō'ōō), n. [Samoan.] The village maiden or ceremonial hostess of a Samoan social community, selected by a chief from among the young girls of eligible rank. She is entitled to a seat in the Samoan council house and is viewed as embodying in herself the prestige, honor, and dignity of the village, receiving and serving distinguished visitors and acting on behalf of the community on all formal social, as distinguished from political, occasions.

tau're·an (tô'rē·ăn), adj. Also tau'ri·an (-rĭ·ăn). Taurine.

Tau'ri (tô'rī). Gen. of TAURUS.

Tau'ri (tô'rī), n. pl. [L.] An ancient people of the southern Crimea, probably Cimmerian.

tauri-. A combining form, Latin tauri-, from taurus meaning bull, as in tau'ri·cide, tau'ri·cor'nous, tau·rif'er·ous, tau'ri·form. See -CIDE, etc.

tau'ri·an (tô'rĭ·ăn), adj. [L. taurus a bull.] a Of or pertaining to a bull. b [cap.] Of or pertaining to Mount Taurus. c [often cap.] = 1st TAURIC, 2.

Taurian games. Rom. Antiq. Games in honor of the gods of the lower world, celebrated in the period of the Roman republic.

tau'ric (tô'rĭk), adj. [L. taurus + -ic.] 1. Taurine.

2. Astron. Relating to the constellation Taurus.

Tau'ric (tô'rĭk), adj. a Of or pertaining to the Tauri or their country. b = TAURIAN b.

Tau'rid (tô'rĭd), n. [Taurus + 1st -id.] Astron. Any of a group of meteors appearing November 20–23; — so called because they appear to radiate from a point in Taurus.

tau'rine (tô'rĭn; -rīn; 156), adj. [L. taurinus, fr. taurus a bull. See TAURUS; cf. TOREADOR.] 1. Of or pertaining to a bull; bovine.

2. Relating to the zodiacal sign Taurus, or to the interval from 4500 to 1900 B.C., when the sun was in Taurus at or near the vernal equinox.

tau'rine, n. A bull.

tau'rine (tô'rēn; -rĭn), tau'rin (-rĭn), n. [It was first found in ox bile. See TAURUS.] Biochem. A colorless crystalline compound, $H_3NCH_2CH_2SO_3H$, of neutral reaction, occurring in small quantity in the juices of muscle, in the lungs, and elsewhere, and obtained as a cleavage product of taurocholic acid; 2-amino-ethane-sulphonic acid.

Tau·ri'ni (tô·rĭ'nī), n. pl. [L.] An ancient Ligurian people from whom Turin was named.

tau'rite (tô'rīt), n. [G. Taurien Crimea + -ite.] Petrog. A spherulitic or granophyric aegirite-bearing soda-rhyolite.

tau'ro- (tô'rō-), taur-. A combining form, Greek tauro-, taur-, from tauros, meaning bull, as in:

taurocephalous	taurolatry	taurophile
tauroesque	tauromorphous	taurophobe tau'ro·bo'li·um (tô'rō·bō'lĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -LIA (-ȧ). [LL., fr. Gr. taurobolion, prob. for tauropolion, fr. tauropolos, an epithet of Artemis.] The sacrifice of a bull, involving baptism of the worshipers with the bull's blood. The rite probably originated in worship of the Anahita, but was adopted in the cults of Cybele and Mithras.

tau'ro·cho'late (-kō'lāt; -kŏl'āt), n. Biochem. A salt of taurocholic acid.

tau'ro·cho'lic (-kō'lĭk; -kŏl'ĭk), adj. [taurine + cholic.] Biochem. Pertaining to or designating a bittersweet deliquescent acid, $C_{26}H_{45}NO_7S$, occurring as the sodium salt in the bile of man, of Carnivora, and of the ox and a few other Herbivora. On hydrolysis it yields cholic acid and taurine.

tau'ro·col (tô'rō·kŏl), tau'ro·col'la (-kŏl'ȧ), n. [NL. taurocolla, fr. Gr. taurokolla, fr. tauros a bull + kolla glue; cf. F. taurocolle.] Glue made from bull's hide.

Tau·roc'to·nus (tô·rŏk'tō·nŭs), adj. [Gr. taurokotonos.] Bull-slaying; — an epithet of Mithras.

tau'ro·dont (tô'rō·dŏnt), adj. [taur- + -odont.] Anthropol. Having teeth resembling the bovine.

tau'ro·ka·thap'si·a (-kȧ·thăp'sĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [Gr. tauro-kathapsia, fr. tauros a bull + kathaptein to attack.] A bullfight as depicted in pre-Hellenic art.

tau'ro·ma'chi·an (-mā'kĭ·ăn), adj. [See TAUROMACHY.] Of, pertaining to, or favoring, bullfights. — n. A bullfighter.

tau'ro·mach'ic (-măk'ĭk), adj. Tauromachian. Rare.

tau·rom'a·chy (tô·rŏm'ȧ·kĭ), n. [Gr. tauromachia, fr. tauros + machē fight.] Bullfighting; a bullfight, esp. as depicted in art.

tau'ro·mor'phic (tô'rō·môr'fĭk), adj. [tauro- + -morphic.] Archaeol. Shaped in the form of, or resembling, a bull; — said of vases found in several early Mediterranean cultures, esp. in the Middle Minoan period.

Tau·rot'ra·gus (tô·rŏt'rȧ·gŭs), n. [NL., fr. tauro- + Gr. tragos goat.] Zool. The genus consisting of the elands.

Ta'–urt' (tä'ōōrt'), Tho'u·ē'ris (thō'ū·ē'rĭs), n. [Egypt. Taurit, in Gr. form Thouēris.] Egypt. Relig. A goddess having the body and head of a hippopotamus, the hind quarters of a lion, and the tail of a crocodile. She was the wife of Set, presided over the births of kings and gods, and was important in the underworld.

Ta-urt.

Tau'rus (tô'rŭs), n.; gen. TAURI (-rī). [L. See STEER young ox.] 1. Astron. a A zodiacal constellation, containing the Pleiades and Hyades; the Bull; — represented pictorially by a bull's fore quarters. b The second sign of the zodiac, which in Astrol. is a feminine nocturnal sign, fixed, southern, and of the earthly triplicity; earthy, melancholy, cold, and dry; the night house of Venus. See SIGN, n., 12.

2. Zool. Syn. of Bos.

Taurus cluster. Astron. A well-known moving cluster, of about 80 stars of the fourth to tenth magnitudes whose motions are similar.

Tau'rus Pon'ia·tow'ski·i (pŏn'yȧ·tôf'skĭ·ī) or Pon'ia·to'vi·i (-tō'vĭ·ī). [After Stanislas Poniatowski, king of Poland.] Astron. A constellation, not generally recognized by astronomers, comprising stars belonging to Ophiuchus, near Aquila.

tau'ryl (tô'rĭl), n. [taurine + -yl.] Chem. The univalent radical, $H_3NCH_2CH_2SO_2$-, of taurine. Cf. BENZOYL.

tau staff (tô; tou). A staff with a handle like a tau cross.

taut (tôt), adj. [ME. toght; obscurely akin to AS. tēon, togian, to pull. See 3d TOW.] 1. Obs. a Tough; firm. b Tight; distended.

2. Tightly drawn; tensely stretched; not slack.

This churl, with belly stiff and taut. Chaucer.
Sailing on a taut bowline. Dana.

3. Strict; severe; — of persons.

4. Snug; tidy; in neat and proper condition.

5. Tense; as, taut nerves.

Syn. — See TIGHT. Ant. — Slack.

— taut'ly, adv. — taut'ness, n.

taut'ed (tät'ĭt), adj. [Cf. Icel. tōt flock of wool, E. tatter a rag.] Tangled; matted. Scot.

tau'to·gor'y (tô'tō·gō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -gĕr·ĭ), n. [taut(o)- + allegory.] Expression of the same thing with different words. Coleridge. — tau'to·gor'i·cal (-gŏr'ĭ·kăl), adj.

taut'en (tôt''n), v. t. & i.; TAUT'ENED (-'nd); TAUT'EN·ING. To make, or become, taut.

taut helm. Naut. A weather helm.

ta'u·ti'rite (tä'ōō·tē'rĭt), n. [From Tautira Valley, Tairapu, Society Islands.] Petrog. A nephelite-bearing latite composed of orthoclase, andesine, nephelite, and sodalite, with hornblende, augite and mica, and considerable titanite.

tau'to- (tô'tō-). 1. A combining form, Greek tauto-, from to auto, meaning the same, as in tautomerism.

2. Chem. A prefix meaning tautomeric with a (specified) compound, as in tautourea (pseudo-urea).

tau'to·chrone (-krōn), n. [tauto- + -chrone; cf. F. tautochrone.] Math. The curve down which the time of descent under gravity from every point to the lowest point is the same. It is a cycloid under a horizontal base, gravity being constant and resistance zero.

tau·toch'ro·nous (tô·tŏk'rō·nŭs), adj. Math. Occupying the same time; having the properties of a tautochrone. — tau·toch'ro·nism (-nĭz'm), n.

tau·tog' (tô·tŏg'), n. [Narraganset tautauog, pl. of tautau blackfish.] An edible fish (Tautoga onitis) of the family Labridae, of the Atlantic coast of the United States. The adult is black, with greenish-gray blotches. Called also blackfish and oysterfish.

Tautog. (⅛)

tau·tol'o·gism (tô·tŏl'ō·jĭz'm), n. Use, or an instance, of tautology. — tau·tol'o·gist (-jĭst), n. & adj.

tau·tol'o·gize (-jīz), v. i.; -GIZED (-jīzd); -GIZ'ING (-jīz'ĭng). To repeat the sense in other words. — tau·tol'o·giz'er (-jīz'ẽr), n.

tau·tol'o·gy (-jĭ), n.; pl. -GIES (-jĭz). [LL. tautologia, fr. Gr. tautologia.] 1. Rhet. Repetition of the same words or use of synonymous words in close succession; also, an instance of this.

2. Repetition of a statement, of acts, experiences, etc., esp. when superfluous.

Syn. and Ant. — See REDUNDANCY.

— tau'to·log'ic (tô't·ō·lŏj'ĭk), adj. — tau'to·log'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. — -log'i·cal·ly, adv. — -log'i·cal·ness, n.

tau'to·mer (tô'tō·mĕr), n. [tauto- + -mer.] Chem. One of the forms of a tautomeric substance.

tau·tom'er·al (tô·tŏm'ẽr·ăl), adj. [tauto- + Gr. meros a part + -al.] Anat. Designating neurons whose processes form fiber tracts on the same side of the spinal cord.

tau'to·mer'ic (tô'tō·mĕr'ĭk), adj. 1. Tautomeral.

2. Characterized by or pertaining to tautomerism.

tau·tom'er·ism (tô·tŏm'ẽr·ĭz'm), n. [tauto- + Gr. meros part.] Chem. The phenomenon, shown by certain substances, of possessing (or reacting as if they possess) more than one structure. In some cases the separate isomeric forms of such a substance have been isolated; these change into each other easily and are held to exist together in dynamic equilibrium. A separate formula is assigned to each form. See ENOL-KETO ISOMERISM. Tautomerism held to be due to the existence together of such distinct isomers is often called desmotropism; the latter term is restricted by some to cases in which the forms have actually been isolated. Cf. DESMOTROPISM. On the other hand, tautomerism in which the separate forms cannot be isolated is sometimes called virtual tautomerism.

tau·tom'er·ize (-īz), v. t. & i. Chem. To change into a tautomeric form. — tau·tom'er·iz'a·ble (-īz'ȧ·b'l), adj. — tau·tom'er·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n.

tau·tom'e·ter (tô·tŏm'ē·tẽr), n. [tautness + -meter.] Device to measure tautness, as of fabric of an airplane wing.

tau'to·met'ric (tô'tō·mĕt'rĭk), adj. Also tau'to·met'ri·cal (-rĭ·kăl). [tauto- + metric.] Pros. Equal or identical in metrical structure, arrangement, or position.

tau'to·nym (tô'tō·nĭm), n. [tauto- + -nym.] Bot. & Zool. A binomial name in which the generic and specific names are alike, as Tinca tinca, a name of the European tench. Such names are now forbidden by the International Code of Botanical Nomenclature. — tau'to·nym'ic (-nĭm'ĭk), adj. — tau·ton'y·my (tô·tŏn'ĭ·mĭ), n.

tau'to·ou'si·an (tô'tō·ōō'sĭ·ăn; -ou'sĭ·ăn), adj. [tauto- + Gr. ousia being, essence.] Eccl. Hist. Substantially one (with); — a strengthened synonym for homoousian.

tau·toph'o·ny (tô·tŏf'ō·nĭ; tô'tō·fō'nĭ), n. [MGr. tautophōnia. See TAUTO-; -PHONE.] Repetition of the same sound. — tau'to·phon'ic (tô'tō·fŏn'ĭk), adj. — tau'to·phon'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj.

tau·top'o·dy (tô·tŏp'ō·dĭ), n. [ML. tautopodia, fr. Gr. tautopodia. See TAUTO-; -POD.] Repetition of the same type of metrical foot in a verse. — tau'to·pod'ic (tô'tō·pŏd'ĭk), adj.

tau'–topped' (tô'tŏpt'; tou'-), adj. Having a handle like a tau cross.

tau'to·syl·lab'ic (tô'tō·sĭ·lăb'ĭk), adj. [tauto- + syllabic.] Phonet. Belonging to the same syllable.

tau'to·type (tô'tō·tīp), n. [tauto- + -type.] Biol. A generic name identical with the specific name of one of its components. Cf. TAUTONYM.

tau'to·zon'al (tô'tō·zōn'ăl), adj. [tauto- + zonal.] Cryst. Belonging to the same zone. — tau'to·zo·nal'i·ty (-zō·năl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

taut ship. A ship, especially a man-of-war, with strict discipline, and a generally smart appearance.

tav, taw (tô; tou), n. [Heb. tāw, (tāv), lit., sign or cross.] The 22d letter (ת,ת) of the Hebrew alphabet, equiv. to t or the corresponding spirant th (cf. DAGHESH). Numerical value 400.

Ta·vast' (tȧ·văst'), n. Also Ta·vast'i·an (-văs'tĭ·ăn). a A Finn of a type characterized by broad, thickset figure and blond complexion. They occupy the central part of the country. Cf. KARELIAN. b The western dialect of Finnish. — Ta·vast'i·an, adj.

tave (tāv), v. i. & t. [Of obscure, perh. Scand. origin.] To rage; toss; struggle; labor; sprawl; to hurry clumsily. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

Tave (tāv), n. Dim. of OCTAVIA.

tav'ell (tăv'ĕl), n. [F. tavelle.] A bobbin on which silk is wound.

tav'ern (tăv'ẽrn), n. [ME. taverne, fr. OF. taverne, fr. L. taberna, for traberna, a hut, booth, tavern. See THORP; cf. TABERNACLE.] A house where wine or other liquors are sold to be drunk on the premises; also, a house where travelers or other transient guests are accommodated with rooms and meals; an inn or hotel. Orig. designating a place esp. for the retailing of wines, tavern is often used, esp. in rural districts of the United States, practically as synonymous with hotel.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:
tavern-gotten, tavern-hunting, tavern-tainted.

tav'ern, v. t. To apportion by subdivision. Obs. — v. i. To frequent or keep a tavern.

tav'ern, adj. Of, pert. to, or associated with a tavern.

tav'ern·er (-ẽr·nẽr), n. [OF. tavernier, fr. L. tabernarius.] One who keeps or frequents a tavern. Archaic.

Ta'tu (tä'tōō), n. = HUCHMON. ta·tu' (tä·tōō'). Var. of TATTOO. ta·tu' (tä·tōō'). Var. of TATOU.
Ta'tu (tä'tōō), n. [NL. See TATOU.] a Zool. Syn. of DASYPUS. b [not cap.; pron. tȧ·tōō'] A tatou.
Ta·tu'si·a (tȧ·tū'zĭ·ȧ; -sĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See TATOU.] Zool. Syn. of DASYPUS.
Tat'u·si'i·dae (tăt'ū·sĭ'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Tatusia + -idae.] Zool. Syn. of DASYPODIDAE. taught (tȧxt; tôxt). Var. of TAUGHT. Obs. exc. Scot. taught. ✝ TAUT.
taulch. ✝ TALLOW. tauld. Scot. past & past part. of TELL. tau'pie (tô'pĭ; tä'pĭ). Var. of TAWPIE. [Obs.] Taur, n. [L. Taurus.] Tauruus. taur-. = TAURO-. [N. Z.] tau·ran'ga, n. = CREEP, n., 12.
Tau·rid'i·an (tô·rĭd'ĭ·ăn), adj. = TAURIC.
tau·rob'o·ly (tô·rŏb'ō·lĭ), n. = TAUROBOLIUM.
Tau·rop'o·los (tô·rŏp'ō·lŏs), n. [Gr.] See ARTEMIS. tau'-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED. taut. ✝ TAUGHT.
taut (tôt; tät). Scot. var. of TAT, tangle. [PROG.] tau·taug' (tô·tŏg'). Var. of TAUTOG. taut'end. Tautened. Ref. Sp. taut'it. Var. of TAUTED. tau·tol'o·gous (tô·tŏl'ō·gŭs), adj. [Gr. tautologos.] = TAUTOLOGICAL. — tau·tol'o·gous·ly, adv.
tau·tom'er·y (tô·tŏm'ẽr·ĭ), n. = TAUTOMERISM. tau'to·mor'phous (tô'tō·môr'fŭs), adj. See -MORPHOUS a. tau'to·ou'si·ous (tô'tō·ōō'sĭ·ŭs; -ou'sĭ·ŭs), adj. = TAUTOOUSIAN. tau'to·u·re'a (tô'tō·ū·rē'ȧ; -ū'rē·ȧ), n. See TAUTO-, 2. tau·tou'si·an (tô·tōō'sĭ·ăn; -tou'sĭ·ăn), adj. Also tau·tou'si·ous (-ŭs). = TAUTOOUSIAN. tave (tāv), Contraction of TOHAVE. ta'ver. Var. of TAIVER.
Tav'er·er's Bi'ble. See BIBLE, 2.

tav'ern-ize (tăv'ĕr-nīz), v. i. To frequent a tavern.
tav'ern-ly, adj. Characteristic or suggestive of a tavern.
tav'ern-ous (tăv'ĕr-nŭs), adj. [From tavern, after cavernous.] Tavernlike. tav'ern-ry (tăv'ĕrn-rĭ), n. Dealings at a tavern. tavern table. A type of small table with oval or rectangular top and four turned legs, used as a service table in the tap-room of 18th-century taverns.

Tavern Table.

tavern token. A token issued by a tavern keeper. ta'vert (tā'vĕrt), adj. [Past part. of TAVER, TAIVER.] Tired, as from travel, labor, or struggle; hence, confused; stupid. Scot. tav'es-tock (tăv'ĭs-tŏk), n. [From Tavistock, Devonshire, Eng.] A kind of woolen cloth. Obs.
Tav-ghi' (tăv-gē'), adj. Of, pert. to, or designating a Samoyedic people between the Yenisei and Khatanga Rivers, in Siberia, or their language. — n. The Tavghi language. See URAL-ALTAIC LANGUAGES.
tav'is-tock-ite (tăv'ĭs-tŏk-īt), n. [From Tavistock, Devonshire, Eng.] Mineral. A basic calcium aluminum phosphate, in minute white crystals. ta'vo-la'tite (tā'vō-lā'tīt), n. [From Tavolato, Alban Hills, Italy.] Petrog. An extrusive rock, containing large phenocrysts of leucite in a groundmass of leucite, hauynite, and augite, with smaller amounts of orthoclase and labradorite. Garnets occur as accessories.
taw (tô), n. [Prob. because the point or line for beginning was orig. marked with a T, the Greek name, tau, of the letter being used by schoolboys. Cf. 4th TEE.] 1. A marble to be used as a shooter; also, a game at marbles.
2. A line or mark from which players at marbles shoot.
— to bring, or come, to taw. To bring, or come, to the scratch.
taw, v. i. To shoot a marble, or toe the mark for shooting. Colloq.
taw (tô), v. t.; TAWED (tôd); TAW'ING. [ME. tawen, fr. AS. tawian; akin to D. touwen, Goth. taujan to do, make. Cf. TEW to prepare, TOOL, 5th TOW.] 1. To prepare or dress, as hemp by beating; to tew; hence, to beat; to scourge. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. To prepare with alum, as skins of sheep, lambs, goats, and kids, for gloves, etc., by imbuing them with alum, salt, and other agents as an emulsion of egg yolk. Tawing is a form of mineral tanning. See TAN, v. t., 1.
3. Obs. a To make hard or tough; to toughen. b To harass; torment. taw (tô), n. [Cf. TAWS.] A whip. Scot. & N. of Eng.
taw (tô; tou). Var. of TAV. ta'wa (tä'wä; collog. tou'ä), n. [Maori.] A handsome evergreen tree (Beilschmiedia tawa), family Lauraceae, of New Zealand, with slender branches and graceful willowlike foliage. The white, straight-grained wood is used for buckets, casks, butter kegs, etc.
taw'dered (tô'dĕrd), adj. Clothed in tawdry apparel. Obs. taw'dry (tô'drĭ), adj.; TAW'DRI-ER (-drĭ-ĕr); TAW'DRI-EST. [From Saint Audrey, or Etheldreda (a Latinized form), implying therefore, originally, bought at the fair of St. Audrey at Ely, held on the saint's day, the 17th of October, where necklets, known as St. Audrey's laces or tawdry laces, were sold. The AS. form of the name is Æthelthrȳth; Audrey is prob. fr. an intermediate OF. form.] Showy, without taste or elegance; cheap and gaudy; as, a tawdry dress; tawdry colors, verse, courtiers; hence, tawdrily dressed or adorned.
Syn. and Ant. — See GAUDY.
— taw'dri-ly (tô'drĭ-lĭ), adv. — taw'dri-ness, n.
taw'dry, n.; pl. -DRIES (-drĭz). A piece of cheap finery or jewelry; sometimes, specif., a necklace or neck ribbon.
tawdry lace. Lacework worn by women as a tie at the neck. Obs.
taw'er (tô'ĕr), n. One who taws; a dresser of white leather.
taw'er, n. One who taws marbles. taw'er-y (-ĭ), n. A place where skins are tawed. taw'ie (tô'ĭ), adj. Tractable. Scot. ta'wite (tä'vĭt), n. [From *Tawa*ſok, Kola Peninsula.] Petrog. A coarsely granular plutonic rock composed essentially of pyroxene and sodalite. Feldspars are absent.
taw'kee (tô'kē), n. Also taw'kin (-kĭn). a The golden club. b The arrow arum Peltandra virginica. taw'ny, taw'ney (tô'nĭ), adj. TAW'NI-ER (-nĭ-ĕr); TAW'NI-EST. [OF. tané, tanné (F. tanné), past part. of tanner to tan. See TAN, v. & n.; cf. TENNÉ.] Of the color tenné; like things tanned, or persons who are tanned by the sun; as, the tawny lion; a tawny Moor; tawny Spain.
Syn. — See DUSKY.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

tawny-brown	tawny-gray	tawny-tanned
tawny-coated	tawny-green	tawny-visaged
tawny-colored	tawny-haired	tawny-whiskered tawny-faced	tawny-olive	tawny-yellow tawny-gold	tawny-skinned

— taw'ni-ly (tô'nĭ-lĭ), adv. — taw'ni-ness, n. taw'ny, n. 1. Tawny color; tenné.
2. A tawny-colored cloth or garments made of it. Obs.
3. a Archaic. A brown-skinned person. b Obs. An (American) Indian.
4. A bullfinch. Dial. Eng. taw'ny, v. t. To tan. Obs. tawny birch. The color sandstone. tawny bunting. The snow bunting. Local, Eng. taw'ny-coat', n. An ecclesiastical apparitor. Obs.
tawny eagle. a A brownish eagle (Aquila rapax) with varied purplish and rufous feathers on the back, found in Africa and parts of Asia, and rarely in Europe. b A smaller allied race (A. r. vindhiana) of the Indian Peninsula.
taw'ny-moor', n. A dark-skinned native of non-European lands. Obs.
tawny owl. A common owl (Strix, syn. Syrnium, aluco) of Europe and northern Africa, allied to the barred owl of America. It has no ear tufts, and the upper parts are reddish brown with blackish vermiculations. The under parts are buffy, streaked, and barred with brown.
tawny part. See PART, n., 1. tawny thrush. The veery.

taw'pie, taw'py (tô'pĭ), n. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Nor. taap, Dan. taabe.] A foolish, awkward, or slovenly young woman or, Rare, man. — taw'pie, taw'py, adj. Both Chiefly Scot.
taws, tawse (tôz; tăz), n. [Prob. pl. of dial. taw the point of a whip. See TAW to beat.] A leather strap with thongs or a slit end. Scot. — v. t. To whip. Scot.
tax (tăks), v.; TAXED (tăkst); TAX'ING. [OF. taxer, fr. L. taxare to touch sharply, to feel, handle, to censure, value, estimate; akin to L. tangere, tactum, to touch. See TANGENT; cf. TASK, TASTE.] Transitive: 1. Orig., to place a value upon; to estimate the worth of or fix the price of; now, Law, to assess, fix, or determine judicially, the amount of; as, to tax the costs of an action in court.
2. To assess with, or subject to the payment of, a tax or taxes; esp., to exact money from for the support of government; also, to lay any burden or demand upon; to task; as, to tax one's memory or strength.
We are more heavily taxed by our idleness, pride, and folly than we are taxed by government. Franklin.
3. To charge; accuse; also, to censure; — often followed by with, rarely by of; as, to tax a man with a crime.
Fear not now that men should tax thine honor. M. Arnold.
4. To charge as a price. Colloq., U. S.
5. Obs. a To prescribe; order; settle. b To enter in a list. c To dispute.
—, Intransitive: To censure; to make scornful reproaches. Obs.
tax (tăks), n. [From TAX, v.] 1. A charge, esp. a pecuniary burden imposed by authority; specif., a charge or burden, usually pecuniary, laid upon persons or property for public purposes; a forced contribution of wealth to meet the public needs of a government. For various forms of taxes, see DIRECT TAX; INCOME TAX; PROGRESSIVE TAX; DEATH DUTY; INHERITANCE TAX; SINGLE TAX; IMPÔT UNIQUE; CUSTOM, n., 6; EXCISE, 2; OCTROI, 2 a; etc.
2. A disagreeable or burdensome duty or charge; a strain or burden; as, a heavy tax on time, health, and strength.
3. A sum imposed or levied upon the members of a society to defray its expenses.
4. Obs. a A lesson to be learned; a task. b Charge; reproach; censure.
Syn. — Impost, tribute, levy, duty, toll, assessment, demand, exaction.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tax assessor	tax farmer	tax money
tax-born	tax-free	taxpaying tax-bought	taxgatherer	tax rate tax-burdened	taxgathering	tax receiver tax collecting	tax layer	tax-ridden tax collector	tax-laden	tax return tax dodger	tax levy	tax-supported tax-dodging, adj.	tax-levying, adj.	tax taker

— the taxes. The tax collector. Colloq., Brit. tax-. = TAXI-.
tax'a-ble (tăk'sȧ-b'l), adj. [AF.] 1. Capable of being taxed; liable by law to the assessment of taxes.
2. Law. That may be legally charged by a court against the plaintiff or defendant in a suit; as, taxable costs.
3. Obs. a Assessable. b Censurable.
— tax'a-bil'i-ty, n. — tax'a-ble-ness, n. — tax'a-bly, adv.
tax'a-ble, n. One that is liable to a tax.
Tax-a'ce-ae (tăks-ā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL. See TAXUS.] Bot. A family of mostly evergreen trees and shrubs, the yew family, distinguished from the Pinaceae by dioecious flowers, commonly fleshy fruit, and an embryo with but two cotyledons. Among its ten genera are Taxus, Torreya, Podocarpus, Cephalotaxus, Dacrydium. There are about 90 widely distributed species. — tax-a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.
tax'as-pid'e-an (tăk'săs-pĭd'ē-ăn), adj. [taxi- + Gr. aspis, -idos, shield.] Zool. Having or designating a tarsus (of a bird) with the scales of its hind side rectangular and arranged in regular rows. tax-a'tion (tăks-ā'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. taxatio a valuing, estimation, fr. L. taxare. See TAX, v.] 1. Valuation; assessment. Obs. exc. Hist.
2. Act of laying a tax, or of imposing taxes, as on the subjects of a state, by government, or on the members of a corporation or company, by the proper authority; the raising of revenue by the imposition of compulsory contributions; also, a system of so raising revenue. Cf. DOUBLE TAXATION.
The term taxation covers every conceivable exaction which it is possible for a government to make, whether under the name of a tax, or under such names as rates, assessments, duties, imposts, excise, licenses, fees, tolls, etc. (Hylton v. U. S., 3 Dall. 171; U. S. v. Tappan, 11 Wheat. 419). Quick & Garran.
3. A tax; revenue from taxes.
4. Charge; accusation; reproof. Obs.
5. Law. Act of taxing or assessing, as a bill of costs.
tax-a'tion-al (-ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to taxation.
tax'a-tive (tăk'sȧ-tĭv), adj. Orig., limitative; now: a Functioning so as to tax. b Taxational. — tax'a-tive-ly, adv.
tax-a'tor (tăks-ā'tĕr), n. [ML.] 1. An assessor. Hist.
2. = TAXER, n., 2.
tax bond. A government bond made receivable in payment of taxes.
tax book or roll. A document listing property subject to taxation. tax cart. A spring cart, formerly subject to a small tax. Eng.
tax certificate. Law. The certificate issued to the purchaser of land at a tax sale certifying to the sale and the payment of the consideration therefor, and entitling the purchaser upon certain conditions and at a certain time thereafter to a deed or instrument of conveyance (tax deed) of the land, to be executed by the proper officer.
tax'eat'ing (tăks'ēt'ĭng), adj. & n. Deriving support from public funds. — tax'eat'er (-ĕr), n.
taxed (tăkst), adj. Orig., assessed; now, subjected to a tax or taxation.
Tax'e-op'o-da (tăk'sē-ŏp'ō-dȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. & Paleontol. In some classifications, an order of mammals including the living and extinct Proboscidea, Condylarthra, Hyracoidea, and sometimes others.
tax'e-op'o-dous (-ŏp'ō-dŭs), adj. Also tax'e-o-pod' (tăk'sē-ō-pŏd'). [Gr. taxis arrangement + -podous, -pod.] Zool. a Having the carpal and tarsal bones in linear series, and articulating chiefly with but one bone above and one below, as usual in the Taxeopoda. b Pertaining to the Taxeopoda. — tax'e-op'o-dy (-dĭ), n.
tax'er (tăk'sĕr), n. [AF. taxeur.] 1. One who taxes.
2. One of two officers chosen yearly to regulate the assize of bread and to see that the true gauge of weights and measures is observed. Cam. Univ., Eng.

tax'-ex-empt', adj. Exempted from a tax; specif., free from the Federal income tax or from State taxes. All United States government bonds issued before Sept. 1, 1917, State or territory bonds, municipal bonds, Federal Land Bank bonds, etc., are tax-exempt bonds. — n. A tax-exempt bond. tax'i (tăk'sĭ), n.; pl. TAXIS (-sĭz). Short for TAXICAB.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

taxiauto	taxibus	taxi horn
taxi-bordered	taxi driver	taximan tax'i (tăk'sĭ), or tax'y, v. i.; TAX'I-ED (-sĭd); TAX'I-ING or TAX'Y-ING (-sĭ-ĭng). 1. To ride in a taxicab; go by taxicab.

2. Aviation. To travel along the ground or on the water under the machine's own power, when picking out a starting place or coming in after a landing.
— v. t. To take by taxiing. tax'i- (tăk'sĭ-), tax-. A combining form, Greek taxi-, tax-, from taxis, denoting arrangement, as in *taxi*dermy. tax'i-arch (tăk'sĭ-ärk), n. [Gr. taxiarchos, taxiarchēs.] Gr. Antiq. A commander of a taxis. tax'i-cab' (-kăb'), n. A passenger-carrying vehicle, usually a motor vehicle designed to seat five or seven persons, with or without a taximeter, maintained for hire on public thoroughfares or at public stations or stands, but not operated on a schedule; — orig. short for taximeter cab. — tax'i-cab', v. i.
Tax-id'e-a (tăks-ĭd'ē-ȧ), n. [NL., fr. ML. taxus badger.] Zool. The genus consisting of the American badger. tax'i-der'my (tăk'sĭ-dûr'mĭ), n. [taxi- + Gr. derma a skin, fr. derein to skin. See TACTICS; TEAR, v.] The art of preparing, stuffing, and mounting the skins of animals, esp. vertebrates, in lifelike form. — tax'i-der'mal (-dûr'măl), adj. — tax'i-der'mic (-mĭk), adj. — tax'i-der'mist (tăk'sĭ-dûr'mĭst), n. — tax'i-der'mize (-mīz), v. i.
tax'i-me'ter (tăk'sĭ-mē'tĕr; tăks-ĭm'ē-tĕr; 277), n. Also tax-am'e-ter (tăks-ăm'-), tax-om'e-ter (tăks-ŏm'-). [F. taximètre, taxamètre, or G. taxameter. See TAX; -METER.] 1. An instrument for use in a hired vehicle, as a taxicab, for automatically showing the fare due.
2. A taximeter cab; a taxicab.
tax'i-me'tered (-tĕrd), adj. Provided with or measured by a taximeter.
tax'ine (tăk'sĭn; -sīn), adj. [L. taxus a yew.] Pert. to the yew; taxaceous. tax'ine (tăk'sēn; -sĭn), n. Also -in. Chem. A bitter poisonous alkaloid, $C_{37}H_{41}NO_{10}$, obtained as an amorphous white powder from the leaves, shoots, and seeds of the European yew. tax'ing, adj. That taxes. — tax'ing-ly, adv.
tax in kind. A tax payable in goods instead of money.
tax'i-plane' (tăk'sĭ-plān'), n. [taxi-+plane.] An airplane used as a public vehicle for hire.
tax'is (tăk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. taxis a division or arrangement, fr. tassein to arrange.] In technical uses, arrangement; order; specif.: 1. Arch. Ordonnance. Obs.
2. Biol. Movement by freely motile (esp. small) organisms or organic bodies, as free-swimming zoospores, toward or away from a source of stimulation, as a source of light; — equivalent to tropism except in being usually applied to change of place as distinguished from simple orientation. A taxis is positive when the movement is toward the source of stimulation, and negative when away from it. See -TAXIS.
3. Gr. Antiq. In Greek armies, a division of troops, varying in size; a company or battalion, or sometimes, a larger unit.
4. Surg. The manual restoration of a displaced part or reduction of a hernia.
-tax'is. [NL.] A combining form, Greek -taxis, from taxis, denoting an arranging, arrangement, order; specif., Biol., taxis, as in chemo*taxis,* homo*taxis,* thermo*taxis.*

aerotaxis	heliotaxis	strophotaxis
anemotaxis	heterotaxis	thermotaxis
anthotaxis	hydrotaxis	thigmotaxis
barotaxis	phototaxis	tonotaxis caulotaxis	phyllotaxis	topotaxis
chemotaxis	pleiotaxis	traumatotaxis
cyrtotaxis	rheotaxis	trophotaxis
galvanotaxis	rhizotaxis	xygotaxis
geotaxis	stereotaxis

tax'ite (tăk'sĭt), n. [Gr. taxis arrangement.] Petrog. Any volcanic rock of clastic or schlieric appearance due to the aggregation of flows of different colors, textures, granularity, or mineral composition; eutaxite; ataxite. — tax-it'ic (tăks-ĭt'ĭk), adj.
tax lien. See LIEN, n.
tax list. The official schedule or list setting out the facts as to the taxable property or persons, or both, of a place taxo-. = TAXI- (which see), as in tax-ol'o-gy, taxonomy, tax-om'e-ter, a taximeter.
Tax-o'di-um (tăks-ō'dĭ-ŭm), n. [NL. Cf. TAXUS; 1st -ODE.] Bot. a A small genus of tall, deciduous trees (family Pinaceae) having drooping branches, spirally arranged linear leaves, and globose cones with thick woody scales. T. distichum is the common bald cypress of the southern United States. See AHUEHUETE. b [not cap.] A tree of this genus.
tax'o-dont (tăk'sō-dŏnt), adj. [tax- + -odont.] Zool. Having the hinge teeth of equal size and arranged in a long series, as certain bivalve mollusks. tax-on'o-my (tăks-ŏn'ō-mĭ), n. [F. taxonomie, fr. Gr. taxis an arrangement, order. See -NOMY.] Classification; esp., classification of animals and plants according to their natural relationships; also, the laws and principles of such classification. See CLASSIFICATION, 3. — tax-on'o-mer (-mĕr), n. — tax'o-nom'ic (tăk'sō-nŏm'ĭk), adj. — tax'o-nom'i-cal (-ĭ-kăl), adj. — tax'o-nom'i-cal-ly, adv. — tax-on'o-mist (tăks-ŏn'ō-mĭst), n.
tax'paid' (tăks'pād'), n. Philately. A revenue stamp without indication of value used by the government to show that the tax has been paid, as on beer, tobacco, snuff, etc. tax'pay'er (-pā'ĕr), n. 1. One who pays a tax.
2. Real Estate. A temporary building erected to earn something to meet the taxes on the land. tax roll. See TAX BOOK.
tax sale. A sale of property, usually at auction, for nonpayment of taxes assessed against it.
tax title. The title acquired under a tax sale.
Tax'us (tăk'sŭs), n. [L., yew.] Bot. A small genus of ornamental evergreen trees and shrubs, the yews, typifying the family Taxaceae, all with a poisonous juice. They have stiff somewhat petioled linear leaves, spirally arranged, and a drupelike fruit consisting of a fleshy disk enclosing the hard seed. Many are cultivated. See YEW, JAPANESE YEW.

---

tav'ern-less, adj. See -LESS. tav'ern-like', adj. See -LIKE.
tav'ern-wards (-wĕrdz), adv. See -WARDS. tavers. Var. of TAIVERS.
Tav-gī'. Var. of TAVGHI. ta'vo-la (tā'vō-lā), n.; pl. -LÆ (-lē). [It., fr. L. tabula board. See TABLE.] See MEASURE, Table.
Ta'vy (tä'vy), n. Dim. of OCTAVIA. tawe. ✝ TAW, TEW, TOW.
Taw-gī', Taw-gy'. Vars. of TAVGHI. ta'wha-i (tä'hwä-ē. Var. of TOWAI. tawn, n. & v. = TAN. Rare.
taw'nle (tô'n'l). Var. of TANDLE. tawt'ed. Var. of TAUTED. taw'tie (tô'tĭ), adj. = TAUTED. Scot. ta'wa-bl. Taxable. Ref. Sp.
tax-am'e-ter (tăks-ăm'ē-tĕr), n. = TAXIMETER. tax'i-a (tăk'sĭ-ȧ), n. [NL.] Chem. Taxine. Obs.
-tax'i-a. = -TAXY.
tax'i-a-ble (tăk'sĭ-ȧ-b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
tax-in'o-my, n. = TAXONOMY. — tax'i-nom'ic, adj. — tax-in'o-mist, n. tax'less, adj. See -LESS. — tax'-less-ly, adv. — tax'less-ness, n. tax'man (tăks'măn), n. = TAXGATHERER. tax'man. Var. of TACKSMAN.
Tax-o'di-a'ce-ae (tăks-ō'dĭ-ā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Taxodium + -aceae.] Syn. of PINACEAE (in part).
tax'or (tăk'sĕr), n. = TAXER. taxt. Taxed. Ref. Sp.

tax'us (tăk'sŭs), n. [ML.] The badger. Obs.

-tax'y (-tăk'sĭ). A combining form, Greek -taxia, from taxis, meaning arrangement, often equivalent to -taxis, as in anthot*axy*, heterot*axy*.

Ta·yas'su (tä·yäs'sōō), n. [NL., fr. Tupi tayasú, tajaçú, peccary.] Zool. A genus of peccaries, typical of a family, Ta'yas·su'i·dae (tä'yä·sū'ĭ·dē). See SUIDAE.

Ta·yg'e·ta (tä·ĭj'ē·tä), n. [L. Taygete, fr. Gr. Taugetē.] See PLEIADES, 1; STAR, Table.

ta'yir, ta'yer (tä'yĕr), n. Also tyre. [Tamil tayir.] Curdled milk. India.

Tay'lor de·vel'op·ment (tā'lĕr). Math. A power series development of a function $f(z)$ of a real or complex variable valid in the neighborhood of an assigned point a; it has the form $f(z) = f(a) + f'(a)\,(z-a) + f''(a)\,\frac{(z-a)^2}{1.2} + f'''(a)\,\frac{(z-a)^3}{1.2.3} + \ldots$ where the primes denote differentiations with respect to the independent variable z.

Taylor differential piece–rate system. [See TAYLOR SYSTEM.] See DIFFERENTIAL PIECE-RATE SYSTEM.

Tay'lor·ism (tā'lĕr·ĭz'm), n. Theol. The doctrinal system of Nathaniel William Taylor (1786–1858), professor of theology in New Haven, Conn., 1822–58, whose distinctive tenets were that man has the power of contrary choice, that virtue is the choice of the highest good of the universe, and that sin is not a propagated essential property of the human soul, nor the necessary means of the greatest good. — Tay'lor·ite (-ĭt), n.

Tay'lor·ism, n. Management by the Taylor System. — Tay'lor·ize, v. i.

tay'lor·ite (tā'lĕr·ĭt), n. [After W. J. Taylor, Am. mineralogist.] Mineral. A potassium ammonium sulphate, occurring in compact white lumps in the guano beds of the Chincha Islands, Peru. H., 2.

Tay'lor's cir'cle (of a triangle) (tā'lĕrz). [After Henry Martyn Taylor (1842–1927) Eng. mathematician.] Math. The circle through the feet of the perpendiculars let fall on each side of the triangle from the feet of the two altitudes of the triangle which are perpendicular to the other two sides.

Taylor's series. Math. The series which is the expansion of a function by Taylor's theorem.

Taylor's theorem. Math. A fundamental theorem (enounced by Brook Taylor, 1715) giving the rule for calculating by a power series the value of a function in the neighborhood of some point (representing an argument value or system of values) through the values of the function and of its successive derivatives (supposed uniform and continuous) at the point. Its form is $f(x) = f(a) + \sum_{r=1}^{r=n-1} \frac{(x-a)^r}{r!} f^r(a) + R_n$ where $f^r(a)$ denotes the value of the rth derivative of $f(x)$ at the initial point $x = a$. Commonly the remainder R_n is infinitesimal and the series is an infinite one. When applied to a function of a complex variable z which is analytic in the neighborhood of a, the infinite series is convergent and equal to $f(z)$ at all points z within a circle whose center is at a and whose circumference passes through that singularity of $f(z)$ which is nearest the point a.

Taylor System. The methods of factory management first developed and advocated by Frederick W. Taylor (1856–1915); — more often called scientific management.

Tay'lor–White' proc'ess. Metal. A process (invented about 1899 by Frederick W. Taylor and Maunsel B. White) for heat-treating high-speed steels (which see).

tay'ra (tī'rä), n. [Pg. taira, fr. Galibi tayra, prob. of Tupian origin. See EYRA.] a A long-tailed musteline mammal (Tayra barbara) of South and Central America, allied to the grison. It resembles the North American fisher in size, but has short fur and is black with a grayish head. b [cap.] The genus consisting of the tayra.

Tay·ro'na (tī·rō'nä), n. An Indian of a Chibchan tribe formerly occupying the northern highlands of the Department of Magdalena, Colombia.

tay'saam' (tī'säm'), n. [Cant. pron. of Chin. (Pek.) ta[4] large + ts'an[2] silkworm; — with ref. to the first or large crop of cocoons.] A Chinese raw silk of medium grade.

ta'–zaung' (tä'zoung'), n. In Burma, an elaborately decorated wooden canopy or shed over an image of Buddha.

‖taz'za (tăt'sä), n. [It.] An ornamental cup or vase, or other receptacle, with a large flat shallow bowl, resting on a pedestal or pillar and often having handles.

TAZZA.

T bandage. Surg. A bandage shaped like the letter T, and used chiefly for application to the groin, or perineum.

T bar or beam. A metal bar or beam having a cross section of the form of the letter T.

T'–beam' bridge. A reinforced-concrete bridge consisting of a floor slab monolithic with the supporting beams so that a cross section resembles a series of T beams.

T bevel. = BEVEL, n., 2.

T bob, T bone, T branch, T bulb, etc. See T, adj.

T bolt. A bolt having a crosspiece for a head.

T'–bone' steak. A steak cut from the loin over the kidney, containing a T-shaped bone; hence, any loin steak from which the tenderloin has been removed. U. S.

T cart. An open, two-seated wagon, with T-shaped body.

tch, interj. Also tch, tch. An exclamation expressing vexation or disgust.

1 T Bolt; T Slot.

tch-. For words formerly spelled tch-, see CH-.

tchai (chī), n. [Turk. chāy.] A small river; stream; brook.

tche (jĕ), n. [From F. romanization (also tch'ĕu) of Chin. (Pek.) ch'ih.[2]] Music. An old Chinese flute with the embouchure in the middle.

tche, n. [F. romanization of Chin. (Pek.) chē[4].] A shrub or small tree (Vanieria tricuspidata), family Moraceae, found in eastern Asia. It has edible, red fruit and its foliage yields food for silkworms.

Tche·by'sheff's, or Che·by'shev's, rule (chĕ·bĭsh'ĕfs). [After Patnutij Chebyshev (1821–94), Russian mathematician.] A rule for finding approximately the area of a curvilinear figure from ordinates laid off at given distances (taken from a table) along a base, the area equaling the product of the average ordinate into the base.

Tchebysheff's straight–line motion. See STRAIGHT-LINE, 1.

tcher·vo'nets, tcher·vo'netz. Vars. of CHERVONETS, etc.

Tche·tchen'tsish (chĕ·chĕn'tsĭsh), n. The Chechen language.

Tchet·nit'si (chĕt·nĭt'sĭ), n. pl. [Serb. & Bulg., pl.; sing. -nik.] Members of a troop or band of a former brigand class of Serbians similar to the Uskoks. Cf. USKOK.

tchick, n. [Imitative.] A slight sound such as that made by pressing the tongue against the roof of the mouth and explosively sucking out the air at one side, as in urging on a horse. — v. i. To make a tchick. Cf. CLICK, n., 5.

tchin (jĭn). Var. of CHIN (see WEIGHT, Table).

‖tchin (chĭn), n. [Russ. chin rank, grade, position, calling.] Rank; persons of rank.

tchu (chōō), interj. An exclamation expressing disgust.

tck, interj. An exclamation expressing surprise and displeasure.

T cloth. Plain cotton cloth stamped with a T, made in Great Britain and sold esp. in Asia.

T connection. Elec. The connection of two coils, as transformer coils, diagrammatically as a letter T, chiefly used for transforming two-phase systems into three-phase systems, and vice versa. One terminal of one coil is joined to the middle point of the other; the three free ends, which form the T, are then joined to the three wires of the outside system. When the three free ends are connected to a source of three-phase current, two-phase current may be derived from the secondary circuits, as shown in the illustration. The reverse arrangement may be used to transform from two-phase to three-phase. Called also T winding; Scott connection. Cf. STAR CONNECTION. — T'–con·nect'ed, adj.

T connector. Elec. A binding post consisting of three posts forming the three arms of a letter T.

T crank. See T, adj.

T cross. A tau cross.

T.D. A clay pipe; — so called from the initials, prob. of the maker, stamped on many of them. Colloq., U. S.

tea (tē; the older tā (cf. GREAT) remained in accepted use until about 1750), n. [From the Fukien province pronunciation of Chin. (Pek.) ch'a[2], better preserved in the earlier E. pron. (tä), and in that of G. tee, thee. Cf. CHA.]

1. a A shrub (Thea sinensis) cultivated from antiquity in China (where it is believed to be indigenous) and also grown in Japan, India, etc. It has lanceolate leaves and rather large fragrant white flowers. See THEA. b The leaves, leaf buds, and internodes of this plant prepared and cured for the market by certain recognized methods. Its use was introduced into Europe late in the 16th or early in the 17th century. Teas are classed as to their method of manufacture as green, black, and oolong. The leaves for green tea are withered, rolled and fired immediately. The leaves for black tea are fermented or oxidized before firing. The leaves for oolong are only partly oxidized before firing. According to the Pure Food and Drug Act, a tea must conform in variety and place of production to the name it bears. The chief teas of commerce are: green, hyson, and gunpowder from China, pan-fired and basket-fired from Japan; black, congou, and souchong from China, pekoe, and orange pekoe from Ceylon and India; oolong, Formosa oolong from Formosa. District names indicating special qualities are Moyune gunpowder, Lapsang souchong, Darjeeling and Assam (orange pekoes), and Keemun (a congou). These are further graded according to method and time of picking. In the newer tea countries, Ceylon, India, Sumatra, and Java where machine manufacture is largely used, tea is graded by size after firing, the most important grades being orange pekoe, pekoe, and souchong. For the retail trade teas are frequently blended.

Tea Plant (Thea sinensis). Flowering Branch, and Fruit. (½)

2. An aromatic beverage prepared from tea leaves by infusion with boiling water, and taken hot or cold, with or without lemon or cream and sugar. It has stimulant and tonic properties, due to the alkaloid caffeine, and from the presence of tannin is also strongly astringent.

3. Any of numerous other plants more or less remotely resembling tea in appearance or properties; also, an infusion prepared from their leaves and used medicinally or as a beverage; — commonly with qualifying adjective or attributive, as Abyssinian tea, Labrador tea, sage tea, etc.

4. A light collation, usually late in the afternoon, at which tea is commonly served; hence, the evening meal, when dinner is in the middle of the day; also, a social occasion, as a reception, at which tea is served.

5. A color, yellow-green in hue, of low saturation and high brilliance. Cf. TEA GREEN, COLOR.

6. Pharm. A medicinal aqueous drink prepared from herbs by infusion; also, a powdered mixture from which such a drink is prepared; as, breast tea; Hamburger tea.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tea bell	tea infuser	tea sampler
tea blender	tea-inspired	tea-scented tea-blending, adj.	tea-leaved	tea service teabox	tea-loving, adj	tea set tea caddy	tea maid	teashop teacake	teamaker	tea sifter
tea can	teamaking	tea-sodden tea canister	tea mixer	tea strainer tea checker	tea-mixing, adj.	tea-swilling, adj.
tea-colored	tea packer	teatime
tea cooper	tea-packing, adj.	tea tray tea-covered	tea percolator	tea urn tea drinker	tea plant	tea wagon
tea drunkard	tea planter	teaware tea-growing, adj.	tea planting	tea weigher tea hour	tea-producing, adj.

tea (tē), adj. Of or pertaining to tea or the tea plant; dealing in tea; used for or in connection with tea.

tea, v. i. & t.; TEAED (tēd); TEA'ING. To partake of, or entertain with, tea (the beverage or the meal). Colloq.

tea up. To become intoxicated. Slang.

tea ball. A perforated metal ball for tea leaves, esp. adapted for making tea in cups; also, a similar device suspended in a tea pot.

tea'ber'ry (tē'bĕr'ĭ; -bĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-ĭz). a The wintergreen, or checkerberry (Gaultheria procumbens). b The creeping snowberry.

tea biscuit. A kind of short or sweet biscuit served with afternoon tea.

tea blight. Mosquito blight.

tea'board' (tē'bōrd'; 181), n. A tray for serving tea.

tea borer. The larva of a moth (Zeuzera coffeae), family Cossidae, which bores into the stems and branches of coffee, tea, and sandal.

tea'boy' (tē'boi'), n. Manservant. Ir.

tea bread. Sweetened bread or buns to be eaten with tea.

tea broom. The tea tree Leptospermum scoparium of Australia and New Zealand.

tea'cart' (tē'kärt'), n. A tea wagon.

tea ceremony. Chanoyu. Japan.

teach (tēch), v.; past tense & past part. TAUGHT (tôt); pres. part. & verbal n. TEACH'ING. [ME. techen, pret. taughte, tahte, fr. AS. tǣcean, pret. tǣhte, tāhte, past part. getǣht, getāht, to show, teach; akin to AS. tǣcn token. See TOKEN.] Trans.: 1. To show; guide; direct. Obs.

2. a To make to know how; show how; hence, to school, train, or accustom to some action; as, to teach one to read. They have taught their tongue to speak lies. Jer. ix. 5. b Colloq. To make (one) know the disagreeable consequences of some (specified) action; as, I 'll teach you to lie.

3. To direct as an instructor; to guide the studies of, or to conduct through a course of studies; to give instruction to; as, to teach a child or a class.

4. To impart the knowledge of; to instruct in the rules, principles, practice, or the like, of; to give lessons in; as, to teach Greek, music, morality, dancing.

5. To make aware by information, instruction, experience, or the like; to instruct; tell; to cause to know; as, nature teaches a man when to eat; teach us the folly of worry.

6. To conduct as master or teacher, as a school or classes in a school; as after college he taught school. Now Chiefly U. S.

7. Obs. a To commit. b To bid adieu to.

—, Intrans.: 1. To give instruction; to act as teacher.

2. To be capable of exposition or explanation, as by an instructor; as, a book that teaches easily.

3. Shipbuilding. To point; — of lines.

Syn. — Instruct, tutor, school, train, enlighten.

☞ Used in many colloquial phrases proverbial of superfluous or impossible instruction; as, teach a cock to crow, teach a dog to bark, teach a fish to bite; teach a hen to cluck, teach a serpent to hiss, teach iron to swim.

teach an old dog new tricks. To make a mature person adopt new ways. Colloq.

teach. Var. of TEACHE.

teach'a·ble (tēch'ä·b'l), adj. 1. Able to teach. Obs.

2. Capable of being taught; — said of a subject of instruction or of the learner; esp., apt or willing to learn; docile. — teach'a·bil'ĭ·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), teach'a·ble·ness, n. — teach'a·bly, adv.

teache (tēch), n. [Also tach(e), fr. Sp. tacho, tacha.] Sugar Mfg. Any, esp. the last, of the series of boilers or evaporating pans.

teach'er (tēch'ĕr), n. 1. One who teaches, or instructs; esp., one whose occupation is to instruct; an instructor; tutor.

2. One who instructs in religion; a preacher; sometimes, one who preaches without regular ordination. Chiefly U. S.

3. A teacher bird.

4. Mormon Ch. One in the Aaronic priesthood of the grade between deacon and priest.

Syn. — Educator, preceptor, trainer, director, guide, mentor. Ant. — Student, follower. See DISCIPLE.

teach'er, v. t. To tutor or coach. Obs. — v. i. To serve as a teacher.

teach'er·age (-ĭj), n. A residence provided for teachers; — after parsonage. Chiefly Western U. S.

teacher bird. a = OVENBIRD, 2; — from its note. b The red-eyed vireo.

teacher clerk. An assistant in the office of a school principal with training of a teacher but doing office duties.

teacher edition. An edition with special features for the use of teachers.

teach'er·ess (tēch'ĕr·ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. A female teacher. R.

teach'er·ly (-lĭ), adj. Teacherlike.

teachers college. A college for training teachers.

teachers' council. A representative assembly chosen from the teaching staff of a school system which makes recommendations to the superintendent of schools and to the board of education.

teachers' institute. See INSTITUTE, n., 3 c.

teacher training. Professional instruction of teachers, esp. in methods of teaching. — teacher trainer.

teach'er·y (tēch'ĕr·ĭ), adj. Suggestive of a teacher.

tea chest. A small, square wooden case, usually lined with sheet lead or tin, in which tea is exported.

teach'ing, n. [AS. tǣcing, tǣcung.] The act or profession of instructing; also, that which is taught; instruction teach'ing, adj. That teaches. — teach'ing·ly, adv.

Syn. — See INSTRUCTION.

teaching elder. Presbyterian Ch. A minister. See ELDER, n., 3.

Teaching of the Twelve. The Didache. See APOSTOLIC FATHERS.

teach'less (tēch'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Not teachable.

teach'y (tēch'ĭ). Var. of TECHY. Obs. exc. Dial.

tea clipper. A clipper engaged in the tea trade.

tea cloth. A small tablecloth for use on a tea table.

tea cozy or cosy. See COZY, n., 1.

tea'cup' (tē'kŭp'), n. A cup for tea; also, a teacupful.

tea'cup·ful (-fōōl), n.; pl. -FULS (-fōōlz). As much as a teacup can hold; enough to fill a teacup. It is sometimes, for special purposes, estimated as about four fluid ounces.

tead (tĭăd). Var. of TOAD. Scot. & N. of Eng.

tea dance. An afternoon tea at which there is dancing.

tea dan'sant'. Corrupt. of THÉ DANSANT.

tea'dish' (tē'dĭsh'), n. = TEACUP.

tea'er (tē'ĕr), n. One who takes tea or attends teas.

tea'ey (-ĭ), adj. Of the nature of or like tea.

---

tax'wax', n. = PAXWAX. Now Dial.

tay (tā). Var. of TEA, THEE, TIE, TOE. Obs. exc. Dial.

tayl. ✝ TAEL, TALE, TAIL, TEAL.

ta'zel (tä'zĕl). ✝ TEASEL.

ta·zi'a (tä·zē'ä), n. Also ta·zee'a. [Ar. ta'siyah mourning for the dead.] = TABUT. India.

Tca'wi. Var. of CHAUI.

tcha, n. Var. of CHA.

tchang. Var. of CHANG (see WEIGHT, Table).

tcha'rik, tscha'rik (chä'rĭk), n. sing. & pl. See WEIGHT, Table.

tchar'ka. Var. of CHARKA (see MEASURE, Table).

tchast (chăst), n. sing. & pl. [Russ. chast' part, portion.] See MEASURE, Table.

tchei'rek' (chĭ'rĕk'), n. sing. & pl. [Per. chārek, colloq. cheyrek, one fourth.] See WEIGHT, Table.

Tche'ka, n. = CHEKA.

tchek'e, tchek'i. Vars. of CHEKE (see WEIGHT, Table).

Tcher'e·mis. Var. of CHEREMISS.

Tcher·kess', n. = CHEREKESS. See CIRCASSIAN, n., 2.

tcher'no·zem, tcher'no·zom. Vars. of CHERNOZEM.

tchet'ver·ik', Var. of CHETVERIK (see MEASURE, Table).

tchet'verte. Var. of CHETVERT (see MEASURE, Table).

tchi. Var. of CH'IH (see MEASURE, Table).

Tchi. Var. of TSHI.

Tchi'am. Var. of CHAM.

Tchoud (chōōd), Tchud, Tchud'·ic. Vars. of CHUD, CHUDIC.

Tchuk'chi. Var. of CHUKCHI.

Tchu·vash'. Var. of CHUVASH.

Tchwi. Var. of TSHI.

Tci·we're. Var. of CHIWERE.

te (tā), n. See SOLMIZATION.

te (tätä), n. See SOL-FA SYLLABLES, SOLMIZATION.

te. Var. of THOU; THEE. Dial.

tē, n. See TAO TÊ CHING.

teached (tēcht). Var. of TAUGHT. Obs. exc. Dial.

teach'er·dom, n. See -DOM.

teach'er·hood, n. See -HOOD.

teach'er·less, adj. See -LESS.

teach'er·like', adj. See -LIKE.

teach'er·ship, n. See -SHIP.

teach'ment, n. = TEACHING. Archaic exc. Humorous.

tea family. The Theaceae. tea fight. A tea party. Slang. — tea fighting. Slang.
tea garden. a A public garden where tea and other refreshments are served. b A tea plantation.
— tea′-gar′dened, adj. — tea gardener.
tea′gar′den·y (tē′gär′d'n·ĭ), adj. Like a tea garden.
tea girl. A waitress in a teahouse; a mousmee. Japan.
tea′gle (tē′g'l), n. Dial. var. of TACKLE. teagle post. A post supporting one end of a tie beam in a frame.
tea gown. A gown, usually made of delicate material, and with flowing lines worn at afternoon tea at home.
tea green. A color, yellow-green in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Called also Queen Anne green. Cf. TEA, n., 5; COLOR. — tea′-green′, adj.
Teague (tēg; tāg; thāg; thīg), n. [Ir. Tadhg.] 1. Irish masc. proper name; — often equated with Thaddeus and with Timothy; also, as a nickname, an Irishman.
2. A mischievous, blundering, faithful Irish servant lad in Sir Robert Howard's The Committee.
— Teague′land (-lănd), n. — Teague′land·er (-lăn·dĕr), n.
tea hound. A man who frequents teas. Slang.
tea′house′ (tē′hous′), n. A house of refreshment where tea is a specialty.
teak (tēk), n. [Pg. teca, fr. Malayalam tēkka.] 1. A tall East Indian timber tree (Tectona grandis), family Verbenaceae, having large entire leaves which yield a red dye; also, its moderately hard, strong, durable yellowish-brown wood, used for shipbuilding, etc. Nearly all teak now comes from planted forests.

Flowering Branch of Teak.

2. Any of several more or less similar trees, or their wood; as: a The Australian teak Endiandra glauca. b An Australian timber tree (Dissiliaria baloghioides), family Euphorbiaceae, often called Hill's teak. c = PURIRI. N. Z. d In South Africa, either of the trees Strychnos atherstonei and Copaifera coleosperma.
3. The color cocoa.
☞ COMBINATIONS are: teak-built, teak-complexioned, teak-lined, teak-producing, adj. teak, adj. Of or pertaining to the teak; made of teakwood.
teak brown. The color cocoa. — teak′-brown′, adj.
tea′ket′tle (tē′kĕt′'l), n. A kettle, usually with a handle and spout, for boiling water for tea, coffee, etc.
tea kettle broth. Bread soaked with boiling water, drained, and seasoned. Eng.
tea kitchen. A large teakettle or urn. Now Dial. teak of New South Wales. = AUSTRALIAN TEAK a. tea kombu. A chakobu.
teak′wood′ (tēk′wŏŏd′), n. 1. The wood of the teak (sense 1).
2. The color soot brown.
teal (tēl), n.; pl. TEAL, TEALS (tēlz). See PLURAL, Note. [ME. tele; akin to D. teling, taling.] a Any of certain small short-necked river ducks of the genera Nettion and Querquedula, esp., in Europe N. crecca (see GREENWING). The garganey of the Old World and the American green-winged teal are other well-known species. The blue-winged teal (Q. discors) and cinnamon teal (Q. cyanoptera), of America (the latter confined in North America to the West, and distinguished by the deep chestnut head and under parts of the male), are allies of the garganey, and have a light-blue area on the forepart of the wing. b Any of certain other small wild ducks, as Nyroca novae-seelandiae of New Zealand and Stictonetta naevosa of Australia. c The flesh of these birds used as food.

European Teal (Nettion crecca).

teal. Dial. var. of TILL, v.
teal duck. 1. A teal; esp., the common European teal.
2. A color, bluish green-blue in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR. tea lead (lĕd). A metal alloy used to line tea chests.
tea leaf. a A leaf of the tea plant. b One of the dried leaves constituting tea. — tea′leaf′y (tē′lēf′ĭ), adj.
teall′ite (tēl′ĭt), n. [After J. J. H. Teall, Eng. geologist.] Mineral. A thiostannite of lead, $PbSnS_2$, occurring in black, metallic, flexible folia. H., 1–2. Sp. gr., 6.4. team (tēm), n. [ME. tem, team, fr. AS. tēam offspring, progeny, family, a line of animals harnessed together (in this sense also the kindred AS. getȳme); akin to D. toom a bridle, LG. toom progeny, team, bridle, G. zaum a bridle, taumr a rein, bridle, Dan. tømme, Sw. töm, and to E. tow to drag, tug to draw. See 3d TOW; cf. TEEM to bear.]
1. Progeny; lineage; race. Obs.
2. a Now Dial. A brood of young animals, esp. of pigs or ducks. b A number of animals moving together. c A flock of birds flying in a string.
3. a Two or more horses, oxen, or other beasts harnessed to the same vehicle, as to a coach, wagon, sled, or to the same plow or other implement. b The animals with their harness and attached vehicle; also, in popular use and in statutes, esp. those exempting from sale on execution, a single animal (as well as two or more) used for labor and service, often with harness and vehicle (if any).

A team of dolphins. Spenser.

c U. S. Erroneously, a wagon, carriage, or other vehicle.
4. A number of persons associated together in any work; as: a A group of persons pulling together. b A number of persons selected to contend on one side in a match, as in cricket, football, rowing, a debate, etc. c A group of workmen each completing one of a set of operations.
5. An individual as able, or as difficult to manage, as several put together. Colloq.
6. Dial. a The horses or beasts, collectively, of one owner. b A chain.
7. O. Eng. Law. A vouching to warranty; also, a right or franchise of holding a court into which foreigners, or persons out of the jurisdiction, may be vouched as warrantors, as where a purchaser vouches his seller as warrantor to prove that the goods were not stolen.
— in the team. Nav. Stationed in line. team (tēm), v.; TEAMED (tēmd); TEAM′ING. Transitive: 1. To yoke or join in a team.
2. To convey or haul with a team; as, to team lumber.
3. To let out (work under a contract) to a subcontractor to be done by his teams, or gangs, of laborers. Slang.
——, Intransitive: 1. To engage in the occupation of driving a team; to be a teamster.
2. To associate oneself in or as in a team; — with up.
team, adj. Of, pertaining to, or performed by a team or teams.
team. Variant of TEEM, pour.
tea′man (tē′măn), n. A dealer in tea. team boat. A boat propelled by horses. U. S. tea meeting. A meeting at which tea is served.
team′ing, n. 1. The act or occupation of driving a team, or of hauling or carrying with a team.
2. Work done by a number of workmen each doing a clearly defined portion; sometimes, Mfg. Cant., work given to a contractor employing men so working; also, the system of giving work to such a contractor to be so done.
tea mite. Any of several mites which infest and injure the tea plant, as the yellow tea mite (Tarsenomus translucens) and the five-legged tea mite (Eriophyes theae).
team′land′ (tēm′lănd′), n. O. Eng. Law. The area of land that is plowed by or supports a plow team.
tea mosquito. = MOSQUITO BLIGHT a. team play. Collective play of a team, as in football. team′ster (tēm′stĕr), n. One who drives a team or engages in teaming as a business.
team track. Railroad. A sidetrack on which freight cars are placed for loading or unloading by shippers and consignees. Colloq., U. S. team′work′ (tēm′wûrk′), n. 1. Work done with a team, as distinguished from that done by personal labor.
2. Work done by a number of associates, usually each doing a clearly defined portion, but all subordinating personal prominence to the efficiency of the whole; as, the teamwork of a football eleven or a gun crew.

Is the teamwork system employed, or does one workman make the whole cigar? U. S. Consular Repts.

tean′al (tēn′'l), n. [AS. tēnel.] A kind of large basket. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
tea of heaven. The dried leaves of a shrub (Hydrangea serrata) of Japan and Korea. The plant is cultivated in showy horticultural varieties. tea oil tree. A Chinese tree (Camellia sasanqua), from the seeds of which a cooking oil, tea oil (see OIL, Table I), is derived. tea olive. Any of several cultivated Asiatic shrubs of the genus Osmanthus. teap (tēp), n. [Cf. TUP, and dial. tip a ram.] A ram. Dial.
tea party. 1. A social gathering at which tea is served.
2. [caps.] With the; see BOSTON TEA PARTY.
3. An exciting disturbance or proceeding. Slang.
tea plate. See PLATE, 6 a. tea′pot′ (tē′pŏt′), n. A vessel with a spout, in which tea is made and from which it is served. — tea′pot·ful, n.
Teapot Dome. U. S. Hist. A naval oil reservation in central Wyoming (Natrona Co.), which in 1922 was leased, among others (see ELK HILLS), to private interests by Secretary of the Interior A. B. Fall. A Congressional investigation into the legality of the leases led to disclosure of irregularities that caused several lawsuits and the return of the oil lands to the government. Also attrib.; as, the Teapot Dome scandals. tea′poy (tē′poi), n. [Hind. tipāī, fr. Hind. tīn three + Per. pāē foot.] Orig., an ornamental stand with three legs; hence, such a stand for a tea service; a tea table. tear (tēr), n. [ME. ter, tere, tear, fr. AS. tēar, teagor, teher; akin to G. zähre, OHG. zahar, OFris. & ON. tār, Sw. tår, Dan. taare, Goth. tagr, Olr. dēr, L. lacrima, lacruma, for older dacruma, Gr. dakry, dakryon, dakryma. Cf. LACHRYMOSE.] 1. A drop of the limpid saline fluid secreted, normally in small amount, by the lachrymal gland, and diffused between the eye and the eyelids to moisten the parts and facilitate their motion. Ordinarily the secretion passes through the nasolachrymal duct into the nose, but when profuse it overflows the lids.
2. Something in the form of a transparent drop of fluid matter; also, a solid transparent tear-shaped drop, as of some balsams or resins.
3. An expression of grief; a lament. Rare.

Some melodious tear. Milton.

4. A thing like or suggestive of a tear, as a Rupert's drop.
5. Glass Mfg. Undissolved material in glass; a partially vitrified bit of clay in glass.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

tear-acknowledged	tear-filled	tear-procured tear-affected	tear-forced	tearproof tear-angry	tear-fraught	tear-protested tear-arresting	tear-freshened	tear-provoking tear-attested	tear-glistening	tear-purchased tear-baptized	tear-imaged	tear-quick tear-bedabbled	tear-kissed	tear-raining tear-bedewed	tear-lamenting	tear-reconciled tear-besprinkled	tear-lined	tear-regretted tear-blinded	tear-marked	tear-resented tear-bright	tear-melted	tear-revealed tear-commixed	tear-mirrored	tear-reviving tear-compelling	tear-misty	tear-salt tear-composed	tear-mocking	tear-scorning tear-creating	tear-moist	tear-sealed tear-damped	tear-mourned	tear-shaped tear-derived	tear-owned	tear-shedding tear-dewed	tear-pale	tear-shot tear-dimmed	tear-pardoning	tear-stained tear-distained	tear-paying	tear-stubbed tear-distilling	tear-persuaded	tear-swollen tear-dropped	tear-phrased	tear-thirsty tear-drowned	tear-pictured	tear-washed tear-eased	tear-pitying	tear-wet tear-embarrassed	tear-plagued	tear-wiping tear-expressed	tear-pouring	tear-worn tear-falling	tear-practiced	tear-wrung

— in tears. Weeping; distressed with sorrow.
tear (tēr), v. i. To weep; to shed tears. — v. t. To fill with or as with tears.
tear (târ), v.; past tense TORE (tōr; 181), Obs. TARE (târ); past part. TORN (tōrn; 181); pres. part. & verbal n. TEAR′ING. [ME. teren, fr. AS. teran; akin to OS. fartērian to destroy, D. teren to consume, G. zerren to pull, to tear, zehren to consume, Goth. gatairan to destroy, Lith. dirti to flay, Gr. derein, Skr. dar to burst. Cf. DARN, EPIDERMIS, TART, adj., TAXIDERMY.] Transitive: 1. To separate parts of, or pull apart, by force; to rend; to make a rent or rents in; as, to tear cloth; also, to lacerate; as, to tear the skin.

Tear him to pieces; he's a conspirator. Shak.

2. Figuratively, to divide by violent measures; to disrupt; rend; as, a nation torn by factions; a mind torn by doubts; also, to wound sharply; as, a heart torn with grief.
3. To remove by force; to drag violently; to wrench; as, a child torn from its home; to tear out one's eyes.
4. To split or shatter by impact. Now Dial.
5. To pierce with a loud sound; to rend; as, a shout that tore the sky.
6. To make, effect, or the like, by or as by tearing; as, to tear a hole in cloth; to tear a way through a wall.
7. To fritter away; to waste; — a Latinism (cf. tero). Obs.
——, Intransitive: 1. To divide or separate on being pulled; to be rent; as, this cloth tears easily.
2. To tear something; to make a rent.
3. To move or act with violence, excited haste, etc.; as, the horse tore down the road; also, Colloq., to rage; storm.

Syn. — TEAR, RIP, REND, SPLIT, CLEAVE, RIVE. To TEAR is to pull forcibly apart; to RIP is to separate forcibly esp. along a line or surface of juncture; REND is elevated or poetical, and implies greater violence than tear; as, to tear a garment (through the texture); to rip a garment (along a seam); "Thou didst rend thy clothes" (2 Chron. xxxiv. 27). SPLIT implies separation esp. in the direction of grain or layers; CLEAVE (commonly somewhat rhetorical) emphasizes more strongly the idea of sundering; RIVE is elevated or poetical for cleave; as, "Thou . . . split'st the unwedgeable and gnarled oak" (Shak.); "to cleave a heart in twain" (id.); "Blunt wedges rive hard knots" (id.). Cf. CUT, FRACTURE.

tear a, or the, cat. To rant violently; to rave. Obs.
tear around or round. To go about in excited haste or temper. Colloq.
tear down. To cause to decompose. tear into. To attack vituperatively. Slang.
tear one's beard or hair. To pull or pluck the hair violently as an indication of rage, grief, or the like.
tear oneself away. To leave unwillingly. Colloq.
tear up. a To rip up; to remove from a fixed state by violence; as, to tear up a floor; to tear up the foundations of government or order. b To tear into pieces; as, to tear up a letter.
tear up Jack. To make a commotion. Southern U. S.

tear (târ), n. 1. Act of tearing; damage from being torn.
2. The place where something is torn; a rent.
3. A rush; a tearing pace; hence, a violent passion, rage, or flurry.
4. A spree; as, to go on a tear. Slang, U. S.
5. Wool. The proportion of top to noil. See TARE, v. t.
tear (târ), adj. [MD. teer.] Delicate; dainty; fine. Obs. — n. A thing, now specif. flax or hemp, of the finest quality.
tear (tēr). Var. of TEER.
tear′age (târ′ĭj), n. Amount of or allowance for tearing. tear bag (tēr). A tearpit. tear bomb (tēr). See TEAR GAS. tear bottle (tēr). See LACHRYMATORY, 1. tear′cat′ (târ′kăt′), adj. Swaggering; ranting. Obs. — n. A blusterer. Archaic.
tear′down′ (târ′doun′), n. = DISASSEMBLY. tear′drop′ (tēr′drŏp′), n. A tear.
tear′drop′, adj. Furniture. Pear-drop; — esp. applied to handles. tear′er (târ′ĕr), n. 1. One that tears or rends anything.
2. One who rushes or blusters; also, anything that violently attracts attention, as for size, vigor, or the like. Slang.
tear′-fall′ing (tēr′fôl′ĭng), adj. Shedding tears; tender. Poetic.
tear′ful (tēr′fŏŏl), adj. Abounding with or causing tears; weeping. — tear′ful·ly, adv. — tear′ful·ness, n.
tear gas (tēr). A substance that, when dispersed in the atmosphere, blinds the eyes with tears and hence is used in war, in dispelling mobs, etc.; — called also lachrymatory gas or lachrymator. The tear gases of the World War were liquids, as bromoacetone and benzyl bromide, and were used in shells, bombs, and grenades (tear shells, tear bombs, tear grenades).
tear gland (tēr). A lachrymal gland. tear grass (tēr). = JOB'S-TEARS, 1. tear′ing (târ′ĭng), adj. That tears; hence, harrowing; hasty; violent; furious; tremendous; as, a tearing hurry, rage; also, Colloq., impressive; splendid. — adv. Furiously; as, tearing angry. Colloq.
tear′less (tēr′lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Shedding no tears; free from tears. — tear′less·ly, adv. — tear′less·ness, n.
Tearless Battle. Gr. Hist. A battle in 367 B.C. in which the Spartans defeated the Arcadian troops without losses. tear′-off′ (târ′ŏf′; 185), n. Part of a piece of paper intended to be torn off.
tea′room′ (tē′rōōm′; 200), n. Orig., a room, as in a public building, where tea is served; hence, a small restaurant providing light meals, esp. tea.
tea rose. 1. Any of many tea-scented, tender or half-hardy, garden roses descended, chiefly by hybridization, from Rosa odorata of China and the French rose (R. gallica). Bride, Bon Silène, etc., are varieties. See ROSE, n., 1.
2. A color, yellowish-red in hue, of medium saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
— tea′-rose′ (66), adj.
tear′-out′ (târ′out′), n. A tear sheet.
tear′pit′ (tēr′pĭt′), n. Also tear sac. A sebaceous gland opening beneath the lower eyelid of most deer and antelope; the lachrymal sinus. It is capable of being opened at pleasure, and secretes a waxy odorous substance. tear sheet (târ). A sheet torn from a publication, esp. one to send to an advertiser whose advertisement appears on it.
tear shell (tēr). See TEAR GAS.
tears of Saint Lawrence (tēr′z). Astron. The Perseid shower of meteors, seen every year on or about the eve of Saint Lawrence, August 9. tears of wine (tēr′z). Drops which form and roll down a glass above the surface of strong wine The phenomenon is due to the evaporation of alcohol from the surface layer, which, becoming more watery, increases in surface tension and creeps up the sides until its weight causes it to break.
tear′stain′ (tēr′stān′), n. 1. A stain from tears.

---

tea′ish (tē′ĭsh), adj. See -ISH.
tea′ism (-ĭz′m), n. = 1st THEISM. teal′er·y (tēl′ēr·ĭ), n. See -ERY c. tea′less, adj. See -LESS. team′e·o (tēm′ē·ō), n. = TEAMSTER. team′er, n. = TEAMSTER. team′ful. † TEEMFUL.
team′less, adj. See -LESS. team′man (tēm′măn), n. = TEAMSTER. team′mate′ (tēm′māt′), n. See [-MATE. teams′man (tēmz′măn), n. = TEAMSTER. team′wise′, adv. See -WISE. tean (tān). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TONE, one.
tea′pot′ty·kin (tē′pŏt′ĭ·kĭn), n. Dim. of TEAPOT. tear′a·ble (târ′ə·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — tear′a·ble·ness, n. — tear′a·bly, adv. [ARAWA, 2.
Te A′ra·wa (tē ä′rä·wä). See tearce. † TERSE, TIERCE. tear′let (tēr′lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. See -LET.
tear′like′ (tēr′līk′), adj. See -LIKE. tearm, tearm′er. † TERM, TERMER. tear′mouth′ (târ′mouth′), n. A ranter. Obs.
tea-rose pink. = TEA ROSE, 2. tear′proof′ (66), adj. See -PROOF.
Tearsheet, Doll. See DOLL TEARSHEET.

2. Plant Pathol. A reddish or reddish-green streaking of citrus fruits occurring in certain diseases, as anthracnose, melanose, or caused by attacks of the rust mite; — called also tear streak.

tear'thumb' (têr'thŭm'), n. Any plant of the genus Tracaulon.

tear'y (tē'rĭ), adj.; TEAR'I·ER (-I-ĕr); TEAR'I·EST. [ME. tery, fr. AS. tēarig.] 1. Wet with tears; tearful; also, consisting of tears, or drops like tears.
2. Provocative of tears; pathetic; as, a teary story.

tea scrub. In Australia, a scrub formed by the tea tree; also, the tree itself.

tease (tēz), v.; TEASED (tēzd); TEAS'ING (tēz'Ĭng). [ME. tesen, fr. AS. tēsan to pluck, tease; akin to MD. tēsen, D. teezen, OHG. zeisan, Dan. tæse, tæsse. Cf. TEASEL.] Transitive: 1. To disentangle and lay parallel, as fibers; to comb or card, as wool or flax.
2. To scratch, as cloth, to raise a nap; to teasel.
3. To tear in pieces; now, to separate (a tissue or specimen) into minute shreds for microscopic examination.
4. To vex with importunity or impertinence; to harass, annoy, disturb, or irritate by petty requests, or by jests and raillery; to plague; harass; also, sometimes, loosely, to importune; beg; as, a child teases one to play with it.
Teased by the crisscross of the world. Galsworthy.
5. To stir; to provoke stimulatively; as, a teasing thought.
—, Intransitive: To practice teasing; to act as a tease.
Syn. — Torment, tantalize. See HARASS.

tease out. To obtain by teasing; as, to tease out tubules.

tease up. To improve gradually by small changes.

tease (tēz), n. 1. Act of teasing, or state of being teased.
2. One that teases or plagues. Colloq.

tease (tēz), v. t. Also teaze. [F. tiser.] To operate, or keep up the fire of (a glass-melting furnace).

tease'hole' (tēz'hōl'), n. [Corrupted fr. F. tisard fire door.] Glass Mfg. The opening in a furnace for fuel.

tea'sel (tē'z'l), n. [ME. tesel, fr. AS. tēsel, tǣsel, the fuller's herb; akin to OHG. zetsila, and E. TEASE. Cf. TOUSLE.]
1. A plant of the genus Dipsacus, esp. D. fullonum, the fuller's teasel.
2. A flower head of the fuller's teasel, covered with firm, finely hooked bracts and used, when dried, to raise a nap on woolen cloth. See DIPSACUS.
3. Any contrivance formerly used as a substitute for teasels (in sense 2).

Wild Teasel (Dipsacus sylvestris).

☞ PHRASES are:

teasel clipper	teasel merchant
teasel cutter	teasel packer teasel grower	teasel sorter tea'sel, v. t.; -SELED or -SELLED (-z'ld); -SEL·ING or -SEL·LING. To subject, as woolen cloth, to the action of teasels, to raise a nap.

—v. i. To cut and gather teasels.
— tea'sel·er, tea'sel·ler (-ĕr), n.

teasel family. The Dipsacaceae.

teasel frame. A frame in which teasels are fixed for use.

teasel gourd. The hedgehog gourd.

tea'sel·wort' (tē'z'l·wûrt'), n. Any plant of the Dipsacaceae.

teas'er (tēz'ĕr), n. 1. One who teases, esp. by machine, as a carder, curler, sniper, or willower.
2. A thing which teases; Colloq., anything temptingly attractive.
3. A jaeger gull.
4. Advertising. An advertisement meant to arouse curiosity, sometimes by withholding part of the material information. Trade Slang, U. S.
5. Elec. One of two coils or transformers forming a T connection.
6. Textile Mfg. A willow.
7. Theater. = TEASER CURTAIN.

teas'er (tēz'ĕr), n. Also teaz'er. An operator or fireman of a glass-melting furnace.

teaser curtain. Theater. A short curtain so draped when the main curtain is up as to conceal the gridiron from the front rows.

tease tenon (tēz). Carp. A long tenon at the top of a post to receive two beams crossing one above the other.

teas'ing (tēz'Ĭng), adj. That teases. — teas'ing·ly, adv.

tea'spoon' (tē'spōōn'; 200), n. A spoon, commonly holding a third as much as a tablespoon, used in stirring and sipping tea, coffee, etc., and for other purposes.

tea'spoon·ful (-fŏŏl), n.; pl. -FULS (-fŏŏlz). Enough to fill a teaspoon. It was generally reckoned in the past at 1 fluid dram (3.7 ml.) or one quarter of a tablespoonful, but recent investigations in the United States have shown that table teaspoons as well as measuring teaspoons are closer, on the average, to 1⅓ fluid drams (4.9 ml.) or one third of a tablespoonful.

teas'y (tēz'ĭ), adj. Teasing; inclined to tease.

teat (tēt), n. [ME. tete, fr. OF. tete (F. tette), of Teut. origin; cf. MLG. & MD. titte; akin to D. tet, G. zitze, AS. tit, titt (whence ME. titte). Cf. TIT a teat.] 1. The protuberance through which milk is drawn from the udder or breast of a mammal; a nipple or mammilla.
2. Mach. a A small projecting part, as on a countersink or counterbore to guide it in a drilled hole; a snug or stop. b A nib or projection on a leaf spring.

teat (tēt). Var. of TATE.

tea table. 1. A table used or spread for tea; specif., Furniture, a low table for serving afternoon tea.
2. The place of gathering or company at tea.
— tea'–tab'u·lar (tē'tăb'ū·lĕr), adj. Humorous.

tea'tast'er (tē'tăs'tĕr), n. An expert who judges or grades tea by tasting a standard brew. — tea tasting.

teat cup. One of the cup-shaped parts of a milking machine, fitting around the teat.

teat'ed (tēt'ĕd; -Ĭd; 119), adj. Having teats.

teat'fish' (-fĭsh'), n. A trepang; — so called from the shape of the tentacles.

tea'–things' (tē'thĭngz'), n. pl. Articles used for serving tea.

teat'man (tēt'măn; dial. tĭt'-), n. An undersized pig supposed to be the last born in a litter.

tea tortrix. A small Indian moth (Homona coffearia) whose larva feeds on the leaves of tea, coffee, and other plants, webbing the leaves together.

tea tree 1. The tea plant. See TEA, n., 1 a.
2. Bot. a In Australia and New Zealand, any of various shrubs or trees of the genera Leptospermum and Melaleuca, forming dense thickets; specif., the shrubs Leptospermum scoparium and Melaleuca squarrosa. b = AFRICAN TEA TREE.

Tea Tree (Leptospermum scoparium). (¼) teat'y (tēt'ĭ), adj. [See TETTISH.] Fretful; cross; peevish. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

tea wagon. a Naut. Formerly, an East Indiaman in the tea trade. b A small table on wheels, used in serving tea and light refreshments.

Tea'zle, Lady (tē'z'l). The heroine of Sheridan's The School for Scandal, the young wife of Sir Peter Teazle, an exacting but kindly old gentleman who marries late in life.

Te·bet' (tā·văth', tā'vĕs), n. Also Te·beth'. [Heb. tebēth.] See JEWISH CALENDAR.

tec (tĕk), n. A detective. — tec, v. t. & i. Both Slang.

te'ca (tā'kä), n. [Sp.] Teak. Phil. I.

Te'ca (tā'kä), n. = TECO.

te'ca·li' (tā'kä·lē'), n. [Sp. tecalí, fr. Tecalí, village in Puebla, Mexico, fr. Nahuatl Tecalli, fr. tetl stone + calli house.] Mexican onyx.

tech·ne'ti·um (tĕk·nē'shĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. technētos artificial + -ium.] Chem. A metallic element discovered by bombarding molybdenum with deuterons or neutrons. Symbol, Tc; at. no., 43.

tech'nic (tĕk'nĭk), adj. [Cf. F. technique.] Technical.

tech'nic (tĕk'nĭk), n. [Cf. F. technique. See TECHNICAL adj.] 1. A technical term or detail; a technicality.
2. Chiefly pl. a Technique. b Technology.

tech'ni·ca (-nĭ·kä), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. technika, neut. pl. of technikos. See TECHNICAL.] Technics; also, technique.

tech'ni·cal (-nĭ·kăl), adj. [Gr. technikos, fr. technē an art; akin to Gr. tektōn a carpenter, Skr. takṣati he forms, constructs, takṣan carpenter, L. texere to weave, construct. Cf. ARCHITECT, TECTONIC, TEXT.] 1. Of or pertaining to the useful or mechanic arts, or any science, business, profession, sport, or the like; specially appropriate to any art, science, business, or the like; as, technical training, problems, skill, words.
2. a Of a word or expression, or a meaning, confined chiefly to a particular occupation or specialized field of thought, esp. to the mechanical arts and applied sciences. Many words are purely technical: Hominidae, for example, is used only in zoology, and is therefore labeled Zool. Many meanings are purely technical, although other meanings of the same word are literary or general: acerose means, in the general sense, "chaffy"; in the technical botanical sense, applied to a leaf, it means "having a sharp, rigid point," and in this sense it is labeled "Bot." b Using such diction.
3. Of a grade produced by ordinary commercial processes; as, technical sulphuric acid.
4. Practicing, using, or made with technique.
5. Stock Exchange. Designating, or pertaining to, a market the price in which is mainly determined by manipulation or speculative conditions.
— tech'ni·cal·ly, adv. — tech'ni·cal·ness, n.

tech'ni·cal, n. A technic (sense 1); — chiefly pl.

technical and administrative staff. Mil. A group of specialists who furnish advice on technical matters to a commander and his general staff and who operate the administrative agencies of the command.

technical chemistry. Industrial chemistry.

technical estoppel. See ESTOPPEL, 1.

technical foul. Basketball. See FOUL, n., 3 b.

technical high school. A high school which emphasizes instruction in the practical arts.

tech'ni·cal·ism (tĕk'nĭ·kăl·ĭz'm), n. Addiction to technicality; a technical expression, detail, or procedure. — tech'ni·cal·ist (-ĭst), n.

tech'ni·cal'i·ty (-kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. pl. -TIES (-tĭz). 1. Quality or state of being technical; use of what is technical.
2. A particular which is technical, or peculiar to any trade, profession, sect, or the like, esp. in terminology or method of procedure; as, medical and legal technicalities.

tech'ni·cal·ize (tĕk'nĭ·kăl·īz), v. t. To make technical.

technical sergeant. See SERGEANT, n., 6.

technical traverse. Law. See 2d TRAVERSE, 12.

tech·ni'cian (tĕk·nĭsh'ăn), n. One versed or skilled in the technical details of a subject or art.

tech'ni·cism (tĕk'nĭ·sĭz'm), n. A technicalism.

tech'ni·cist (tĕk'nĭ·sĭst), n. A technician.

tech'ni·col'o·gy (-kŏl'ō·jĭ), n. Technology. — tech'ni·co·log'i·cal (-kō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj.

tech'ni·con (tĕk'nĭ·kŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. technikon, neut. of technikos pertaining to art.] A gymnastic device for developing the hands for piano or organ playing.

tech'nics (tĕk'nĭks), n. The doctrine of arts in general; branches of learning relating to the arts. See -ICS.

-tech'nics. A combining form from Greek technika, technical matters, as in:

balneotechnics	iatrotechnics	pyrotechnics chreotechnics	mnemotechnics	zootechnics electrotechnics	optotechnics	zymotechnics ethnotechnics	psychotechnics tech'ni·phone (tĕk'nĭ·fōn), n. [Gr. technē art + -phone.] Music. A dumb clavier for finger practice.

tech·nique' (tĕk·nēk'), n. [F.] 1. Expert method in execution of the technical details of accomplishing something, especially in the creative arts; as, the technique of a master violinist; the formal elements, collectively, of an art; as, the technique of versification; manner of performance with respect to mechanical features or formal requirements; as, a bad technique.
Even her manner of bowing her head and smiling as she replied to him had a technique. Anne Douglas Sedgwick.

2. Philol. The method and degree of uniting linguistic elements into unities. The chief types are the isolating technique, the juxtaposing or agglutinative, the fusional, and the symbolic. Cf. INFLECTIONAL LANGUAGES.

tech'nism (tĕk'nĭz'm), n. Technicality. — tech'nist (-nĭst), n.

techno-. A combining form, Greek techno-, from technē, meaning art, skill, craft, as in technography; denoting also technical, technological, applied, as in technocracy, technonomy, technopsychology.

tech'no·cau'sis (tĕk'nō·kô'sĭs), n. [NL., fr techno- + Gr. kausis burning.] Surgical use of the cautery.

tech'no·chem'is·try (-kĕm'ĭs·trĭ), n. [techno- + chemistry.] Industrial chemistry. — tech'no·chem'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj.

tech·noc'ra·cy (tĕk·nŏk'rə·sĭ), n. [techno- + -cracy.]
1. Government or management of the whole of society by technical experts, or in accordance with principles established by technicians.
2. An organization of technicians that studies the possibilities of such management.
— tech'no·crat (tĕk'nō·krăt), n. — tech'no·crat'ic (-krăt'ĭk), adj.

tech·nog'ra·phy (tĕk·nŏg'rə·fĭ), n. [techno- + -graphy.] Description of arts and crafts; specif., the study of the geographical distribution of technological processes, as weaving, ceramics, etc. — tech·nog'ra·pher (-fĕr), n. — tech'no·graph'ic (tĕk'nō·grăf'ĭk), adj. — tech'no·graph'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. — tech'no·graph'i·cal·ly, adv.

tech'no·lith'ic (tĕk'nō·lĭth'ĭk), adj. [techno-+lithic.] Of, designating, or pert. to, stone implements shaped by design, rather than by chance or wear; — opposed to protolithic.

tech·nol'o·gy (tĕk·nŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. technologia systematic treatment. See TECHNO-; -LOGY.] 1. Industrial science; the science or systematic knowledge of the industrial arts, esp. of the more important manufactures, as spinning, weaving, metallurgy, etc.
2. Terminology used in arts, sciences, or the like.
3. Any practical art utilizing scientific knowledge, as horticulture or medicine; applied science contrasted with pure science.
4. Anthropol. Ethnotechnics.
— tech'no·log'ic (tĕk'nō·lŏj'ĭk), adj. — tech'no·log'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. — tech'no·log'i·cal·ly, adv. — tech·nol'o·gist (tĕk·nŏl'ō·jĭst), n.

tech·non'o·my (tĕk·nŏn'ō·mĭ), n. [techno-+-nomy.] The laws or principles of the industrial arts. — tech'no·nom'ic (tĕk'nō·nŏm'ĭk), adj.

tech'no·psy·chol'o·gy (tĕk'nō·sĭ·kŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [techno- + psychology.] Applied psychology. See PSYCHOLOGY, n., 1.

-tech'ny (-tĕk'nĭ). A combining form, Greek -technia, from technē, denoting an art or skill in a (specified) field, as in:

agrotechny	phytotechny	theotechny hydrotechny	pyrotechny	zootechny mnemotechny	siderotechny	zymotechny tech'ous (tĕch'ŭs), adj. [Cf. tech touch + -ous. Cf. TOUCHY, 3.] Uncertain; risky. Southern U. S.

tech'y (tĕch'ĭ), adj.; TECH'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); TECH'I·EST. [From ME. teeche, tache, a habit, quality, bad habit, fr. OF. teche, a mark or quality (good or bad), tache a spot, blemish, of obscure origin. Cf. 1st TACK, TOUCHY.] 1. Peevish; fretful; irritable; touchy.
2. Likely to cause irritation; vexing.
Syn. — See IRASCIBLE.

teck (tĕk), n. A ready-made cravat imitating a four-in-hand.

teck. Variant of TEAK, TEC.

tecno-. A combining form, Greek teknon, from teknon, meaning child, as in tec'noc·to'ni·a, infanticide, tec·nol'o·gy, pedology.

Te·co'ma (tē·kō'mä), n. [NL., fr. Nahuatl tecomaxochitl Solandra guttata, lit., pot-tree flower, fr. tecomatl clay pot, calabash, calabash tree (whose blossoms it resembles) + xochitl flower. Cf. TACAMAHAC.] Bot. a A genus of tropical American shrubs and trees of the trumpet-creeper family (Bignoniaceae), having large showy flowers with a 5-toothed calyx, a nearly regular corolla, and four perfect stamens. Besides the peroba (T. peroba) and the fiddlewood T. pentaphylla several other species yield valuable woods. Syn. Bignonia b. b [not cap.] Any plant of the related genus Campsis, esp. the trumpet creeper (C. radicans).

Tecoma yew. The angelin (Andira inermis). W. Ind.

te'con (tē'kŏn), n. [Origin unknown.] A kind of salmon. Rare. Walton.

tec'tal (tĕk'tăl), adj. Of or pertaining to the tectum.

Tec'ti·bran'chi·a (tĕk'tĭ·brăng'kĭ·ə), n. pl. Also Tec'ti·bran'chi·a'ta (-ā'tə). [NL., fr. L. tectus (past part. of tegere to cover) + Gr. branchion a gill.] Zool. A suborder of gastropods (order Opisthobranchia) in which the gill is usually situated on one side of the back, and protected by a fold of the mantle. When there is a shell, it is usually thin and often rudimentary and largely or entirely covered by the mantle. The bubble shells and sea hares are examples. Cf. PTEROPODA. — tec'ti·branch (tĕk'tĭ·brăngk), adj. & n. — tec'ti·bran'chi·an (-brăng'kĭ·ăn), adj. & n. — tec'ti·bran'chi·ate (-āt), adj. & n.

tec'ti·form (tĕk'tĭ·fôrm), adj. [L. tectum roof + E. -form.] Roofilke; serving as a cover or lid.

tec'ti·form, n. Any of certain tent-shaped designs painted on the walls of caves by paleolithic man, as at Font-de-Gaume, assumed to represent dwellings and thus regarded as evidence of the use of housing in paleolithic times.

tec'to- (tĕk'tō-). A combining form, Greek tekto-, from tektōn, a carpenter, builder, as in tectospondylic.

tec'to-. A combining form from Latin tectum roof, equivalent to scapho-, as in tec'to·ce·phal'ic, tec'to·ceph'a·ly. See -CEPHALIC.

tec·tol'o·gy (tĕk·tŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [1st tecto- + -logy.] Biol. A division of morphology in which the organism is regarded as composed of morphons of different orders. Haeckel.
— tec'to·log'i·cal (tĕk'tō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj.

Tec·to'na (tĕk·tō'nə), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tektōnia carpentry, fr. tektōn carpenter. See TECHNICAL.] Bot. A small genus of trees (family Verbenaceae) of India, Malaysia, and the Philippine Islands, having entire woolly leaves and paniculate cymes of small white or bluish flowers. See TEAK.

tec·ton'ic (-tŏn'ĭk), adj. [L. tectonicus, fr. Gr. tektonikos, fr. tektōn, -onos, a carpenter, builder. See TECHteart (tērt). Dial. Eng. var. of TART. [ranting actor. Obs.] tear'throat' (târ'thrōt'), n. A teas'a·ble, tease'a·ble (tēz'ə·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — teas'a·ble·ness, tease'a·ble·ness, n. — teas'a·bly, tease'a·bly, adv.

---

teas'-seed' oil. See OIL, Table I.

teas'el·like' (tē'z'l·lĭk'), adj. See -LIKE.

tease'ment, n. See -MENT.

teaser. ✝ TEISER.

teas'i·ness (tēz'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs), n. See -NESS.

tea'sle (tē'z'l). Var. of TEASEL.

tea'sler. Var. of TEASELER. teathe (tēth), n. & v. [Cf. ON. tethja, v.] = TATH. Dial. Eng.

teath'er (tēth'ĕr). Var. of TETHER. Obs. exc. Scot.

Te'a·tine (tē'ə·tĭn). Var. of THEATINE.

teat'ish. ✝ TETTISH.

teat'like', adj. See -LIKE.

teat'ling, n. = SUCKLING, 1. R.

tea tongs. Sugar tongs. Obs.

teave (tāv; tĕv). Var. of TAVE. Dial. Eng.

teaze, teaze'hole', teaz'er. Var. of TEASE, etc.

tea'zel, tea'zle (tē'z'l). Var. of TEASEL.

tea'zler. Var. of TEASELER.

Te'bah (tē'bä). Bib. [Bib.]

Teb'a·lī'ah (tĕb'ə·lī'ə; tē·bā'lī·ə). [Bib.]

Teb'bath (tĕb'ăth). D. Bib.

teb'bet (-ĭt). Var. of TABET.

Te'bu. Var. of TIBBU.

tech. ✝ TACHE, TEACH, TETCH.

tech. Dial. var. of TOUCH.

Tech (tĕk), n. Short for Institute of Technology or Technical High School.

teche. ✝ TACHE, TEACH, TECHY.

tech'i·ly (tĕch'ĭ·lĭ), adv. of TECHY.

tech'i·ness, n. See -NESS.

tech·ni'quer (tĕk·nē'kĕr), n. = TECHNICIAN.

tech'no·logue (tĕk'nō·lŏg; 185), n. = TECHNOLOGIST.

Tec'la (tĕk'lə). Var. of THECLA.

tecnic. Technic; technique. R. S.

tec·nol'o·gy. Technology. R. S.

Te'co (tĕ'kō), n. = CUTTLATECO.

te·co'min (tē·kō'mĭn), n. = LAPACHOL. [TEPANEC.

Tec'pa·nec' (tĕk'pä·nĕk'), n. = tect, adj. [L. tectus, past part. of tegere.] Covered; hidden. Obs.

— tect'ly, adv. Obs.

NICAL.] Of or pertaining to construction. Specif.: a Architectural. b Biol. Structural. c Geol. & Phys. Geog. Of, pertaining to, or designating, the rock structures and external forms resulting from the deformation of the earth's crust. d Surg. Plastic.

tec·ton'ics (tĕk·tŏn'ĭks), n. See -ICS. 1. The science or art by which implements, vessels, buildings, etc., are made, both in relation to their use and to their artistic design. 2. Geol. a Structural features as a whole. b The branch of geology concerned with structure, especially with folding and faulting.

tec·to'ri·al (tĕk·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. [L. tectorius.] Anat. Of the nature of a covering.

tectorial membrane. Anat. The membrane of Corti.

tec·to'ri·um (tĕk·tō'rĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., a covering.] The membrane of Corti.

tec'to·sphere (tĕk'tō·sfēr), n. [Gr. tektōn craftsman, sculptor + -sphere.] Geol. The asthenosphere.

tec'to·spi'nal (-spī'năl; -n'l), adj. [NL. tectospinalis.] Anat. From the tectum mesencephali to the spinal cord. See SPINAL CORD, Illust.

tectospinal tract See SPINAL CORD, Illust.

Tec'to·spon'dy·li (-spŏn'dĭ·lī), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A division, now usually an order, of elasmobranch fishes typically having tectospondylic vertebrae and comprising the spiny dogfishes (Squalidae) and related forms and the angelfish (Squatinidae). It formerly included the rays and sawfishes now placed in the order Batoidei. Cf. CYCLOSPONDYLI.

tec'to·spon·dyl'ic (-spŏn·dĭl'ĭk), adj. [Gr. tektōn a builder + spondylos a vertebra.] Zool. Having or designating a type of vertebra in certain elasmobranchs, similar to the cyclospondylic, but with additional calcified cylinders outside of and concentric with that surrounding the notochord. Cf. CYCLOSPONDYLIC.

tec'to·spon'dy·lous (-spŏn'dĭ·lŭs), adj. Zool. a Tectospondylic. b Pertaining to the Tectospondyli.

tec·tri'ces (tĕk·trī'sēz; tĕk'trĭ·sēz), n. pl.; sing. TECTRIX (tĕk'trĭks). [NL., fr. L. tegere, tectum, to cover.] Zool. The wing or tail coverts of a bird. See COVERT, n., 6. — tec·tri'cial (tĕk·trĭsh'ăl), adj.

tec'tum (tĕk'tŭm), n. [L., roof.] Anat. Any structure resembling, or serving as, a roof; specif., ‖tec'tum me'sen·ce'pha·li (mĕs'ĕn·sĕf'ə·lī), the dorsal part of the midbrain, including the corpora quadrigemina.

ted (tĕd), n. A toad. Scot.

ted (tĕd), v. t. [Cf. TEETHE.] To put a serrated edge on, as on a scythe. Local, Eng.

ted (tĕd), v. t.; TED'DED; TED'DING. [From or akin to ON. tethja to dung, manure; akin to ON. tath manure, Nor. & Sw. tad, MHG. zetten to scatter, spread. Cf. TATH.] 1. To spread, or turn from the swath and scatter, for drying, as new-mown grass.

The smell of grain or tedded grass. Milton.

2. Fig., to spread out; to scatter; sometimes, to waste.

ted'der (-ĕr), n. One who or that which teds; specif., Agric. Mach., a machine for stirring and spreading hay to hasten drying and curing.

Tedder.

ted'der (tĕd'ĕr). Var. of TETHER. Obs. exc. Dial.

Ted'dy (-ĭ), n. 1. Dim. of THEODORE, EDWARD. 2. Theodore Roosevelt, twenty-sixth president of the United States; — an affectionate or jocular diminutive.

Teddy bear. A stuffed toy bear of plush or like material; — so named after Theodore ("Teddy") Roosevelt, in playful allusion to his fondness for hunting big game.

‖te·des'co (tē·dĕs'kō), adj. masc.; pl. -DESCHI (-kē). ‖te·des'ca (-kä), fem.; pl. -DESCHE (-kä). [It., of Teut. origin. See DUTCH.] German; — used esp. of art, music, literature, etc.; hence, Music, ‖alla tedesca, in the German style. — te·des'can (-kăn), adj.

‖Te De'um (tē dē'ŭm). [L., fr. te (accus. of tu thou) + Deum, accus. of Deus God. See THOU; DEITY.] 1. An ancient and celebrated Christian hymn, of unknown authorship, but often, wrongly, ascribed to St. Ambrose; — so called from the first words, "Te Deum laudamus." It forms part of the daily matins of the Roman Catholic breviary, being recited at the end of matins on all festivals and on all Sundays except in Advent and Lent, and is sung on all occasions of thanksgiving. In its English form (beginning, "We praise thee, O God") it forms a part of the regular morning service of the Church of England and of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America, being sung or said after the first lesson, except when the Benedicite is used. 2. Hence: a A musical setting of this hymn. b A religious service in which this hymn forms a principal part. c Loosely, any expression of praise or thanksgiving.

tedge (tĕj), n. Founding. An ingate or runner.

te'di·os'i·ty (tē'dĭ·ŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Tediousness. Rare.

te'di·ous (tē'dĭ·ŭs; tēd'yŭs; tē'jŭs; 277), adj. [OF. & L.; OF. tedieus, fr. LL. taediosus, fr. taedium. See TEDIUM.] 1. Involving tedium; tiresome from continuance, prolixity, slowness, or the like; wearisome; as, a tedious life, speech, hour.

2. Giving offense through boredom; boring; hence, irksome; displeasing; noxious.

A feeble and tedious old man. Arnold Bennett.

3. Slow; dilatory. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

4. Bored; exhausted; hence, peevish; irritable.

Syn. and Ant. — See IRKSOME.

— te'di·ous·ly, adv. — te'di·ous·ness, n.

te'di·ous, adv. Tediously. Dial. Eng.

te'dious·some (tē'dĭ·ŭs·sŭm; tēd'ĭ-), n. te'di·some, adj. [See TEDIOUS; 1st -SOME.] Tedious. Scot. & N. of Eng.

te'di·um (tē'dĭ·ŭm), n. [L., taedium, fr. taedet it disgusts, it wearies one, of uncert. origin.] 1. Irksomeness; weariness; tediousness. "The tedium of his office." Dickens.

2. A period of tedium.

Long tediums of strained anxiety. H. G. Wells.

Syn. — TEDIUM, ENNUI, BOREDOM. TEDIUM is irksomeness or weariness; the word applies either to a quality of objects or to a state of mind; ENNUI is languid weariness or listless discontent; BOREDOM (a recent and more or less colloquial word) often implies a more specific cause than ennui; as, "the tedium of the way" (Hawthorne); "the tedium of the squire's society" (Trollope); "His sister, wife, and children yawned, with a long, slow, and drear ennui" (Shelley); "The spirit of laziness . . . begins to possess even me . . . ; yet has it not so prevailed but that I feel that discontent with myself, that ennui, that ever accompanies it in its beginnings" (Gray); "I suppose I shall go on 'existing' till the boredom of it becomes too great" (J. R. Green). Cf. IRKSOME, MELANCHOLY.

Ant. — Interest, excitement, variety.

tee (tē), n.; pl. TEES (tēz). 1. The letter T, t. 2. Anything having the shape of the letter T (see T); specif.: a A short piece of pipe having a lateral outlet, used to connect a line of pipe with a pipe at a right angle with the line. b A short piece of iron fastened at its middle to the end of a tube. It is passed through a hole and turned crosswise to secure the chain. c A metal bar or beam of T section. d A T-shaped metal piece attaching a horse's collar to the shafts of the cart or wagon.

3. Basketry. A lattice weave in which upright and horizontal rods are twined together.

tee, adj. Having the form of capital T.

tee, v. t. To connect or secure by means of a tee.

tee (tē), n. [Prob. fr. the sign T to mark the exact place.] 1. The mark aimed at in various games, as curling.

2. An exact or precise point; — in the phrase to a tee, exactly; precisely; as, the two colors matched to a tee.

3. Golf. The place from which the ball is struck in starting play on a hole; also, specif., a small artificial elevation, as of sand, rubber, or wood, on which the ball is poised.

4. Aviation. A wind tee (which see).

tee (tē), v. i. & i.; TEED (tēd); TEE'ING. Golf. To place (the ball) on a tee; — also with up.

tee off. To drive from a tee; hence, in general, to begin.

tee, v. t. [AS. tēon. See 1st TOW.] To draw; lead; bring. — v. i. To go; proceed. Both Obs.

tee, n. [Burmese thē umbrella.] The umbrella-shaped ornament, usually gilded and hung with small bells, crowning a Buddhist tope or pagoda.

tee (tē). Dial. Eng. var. of TIE.

tee bar. A T bar. See also T, adj.

tee beam. = T BEAM.

tee'dle (tē'd'l), v. i. & t. To croon; hum. Scot.

tee'–hole', n. The entrance to a beehive. Dial. Eng.

tee'ing ground. Golf. A cleared space provided for teeing the ball; the tee; specif., a rectangular space, two club lengths in depth, the front boundary being a straight line between the points established by markers.

tee iron. = T IRON.

tee joint or connection. Elec. A connection used for uniting a branch conductor to a main conductor, where the latter continues beyond the branch.

teem (tēm), v. [ME. temen, fr. AS. tēman, tīman, tīeman; akin to E. TEAM.] Intransitive: 1. To bring forth young, as an animal; to produce fruit, as a plant; to bear; to be pregnant; to conceive. Now Rare or Dial.

2. To be full, or ready to bring forth; to be stocked to overflowing; to be prolific; to abound.

His mind teeming with schemes of future deceit. Scott.

3. To betake oneself; resort; go. Obs.

—, Transitive: 1. To produce; to bring forth; to generate.

That [grief] of an hour's age doth hiss the speaker;
Each minute teems a new one. Shak.

2. In Obs. uses: a To bear (witness); to summon as witness. b To bring about; effect. c To bring; fetch; lead; also, reflexively, to go.

teem (tēm), v.; TEEMED (tēmd); TEEM'ING. [ME. temen, fr. ON. tæma; akin to ON. tōmr empty, AS. tōm, OS. tōmig, OHG. zuomig. Cf. TOOM empty.] Transitive: 1. To pour; empty; — commonly followed by out; as, to teem out ale. Obs. exc. Dial.

2. To drain; as, to teem boiled potatoes. Colloq., Eng.

3. Steel Mfg. To pour, as steel, from a melting pot; to fill, as a mold, with molten metal.

—, Intransitive: To rain heavily; to pour. Chiefly Dial.

teem, n. Heavy or continued rain. Dial., Chiefly Eng.

teem (tēm), adj. [Cf. TEEM to pour.] Empty. Scot. & N. of Eng.

teem. Var. of TEAM. Obs. exc. Dial.

teem'er (tēm'ĕr), n. One who or that which teems.

teem'er, n. One who or that which teems, or pours; specif., a workman who empties receptacles, as of coal or molten steel.

teem'ful (tēm'fo͝ol; -f'l), adj. [Cf. AS. tēamfull.] Teeming. Obs. exc. Dial. — teem'ful·ness, n. Obs. exc. Dial.

teem'ing, adj. Abundantly productive; prolific; full; overflowing; also, abounding; crowding; as, teeming tenements. — teem'ing·ly, adv. — teem'ing·ness, n.

teem'ing, adj. Pouring; as, teeming rain. Chiefly Dial.

teem'less, adj. Not fruitful or prolific; barren. Poetic.

teems (tēmz), n. pl. [From 1st TEEM.] Lots; plenty. Dial.

teen (tēn), n. [ME. tene, fr. AS. tēona reproach, wrong, injury; akin to OFris. tiona, ON. tjōn, to AS. tēon to accuse, G. zeihen, Goth. gateihan to tell, announce, and to E. TOKEN.] 1. Injury; damage; also, grief; sorrow; affliction; pain. Now Chiefly Dial.

2. Anger; vexation; hate. Now Chiefly Dial.

teen, v. t. [AS. teōnian, tīnan, to slander, vex. See TEEN, n.] 1. To provoke; vex; irritate; trouble; also, to harm; injure; distress. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

2. To reproach; calumniate; abuse. Obs.

teen, adj. [See TEEN, n.] Vexed; vexatious; also, keen. Obs.

teen, adv. Short for at e'en, at evening. Scot.

teen (tēn). Scot. var. of TUNE.

teen (tēn). Var. of TIND. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

teen. Dial. Eng. var. of TEND, TINE, to shut; to lose; Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TEIND.

-teen (-tēn). [ME. -tene, fr. AS. -tīne, -tēne, -tīene; akin to D. -tien, G. -zehn. See TEN.] The termination of the cardinal numbers from thirteen to nineteen inclusive, signifying and ten. Corresponding ordinal numbers are formed with the termination -teenth (-tēnth), as in thirt*eenth,* nine*teenth.* See 2d -TH. See Pron., §66.

teen (tēn), adj. Within the teens; between thirteen and nineteen; as, boys of teen age. — teen'–age', adj.

teen'age (tēn'ĭj), n. Also teen'et (-ĭt). [From teen, var. of TINE to enclose.] Brushwood used for fences and hedges. Dial. Eng.

teens (tēnz), n. pl. [From -TEEN.] The years of one's age, or any numbers, having the termination -teen; as, a girl in her teens.

teen'y (tēn'ĭ), adj. Malicious; fretful; peevish. Obs. exc. Dial.

tee'ny (tē'nĭ), adj.; TEE'NI·ER (-nĭ·ĕr); TEE'NI·EST. [Var. of TINY.] Very small; tiny; wee. Colloq.

tee'ny–wee'ny (tē'nĭ·wē'nĭ), adj. [teeny + weeny.] Exceedingly small; tiny; minute; — chiefly a child's expression.

tee plate. Golf. A marker placed to define the limits of the teeing ground.

te'er (tē'ĕr), n. Golf. One who tees.

teer (tēr), v. t. a Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. To plaster; daub. b To stir up, as colors in block calico printing. — teer'er (-ĕr), n.

tee rail. = T RAIL. See T, adj.

tee slot. = T SLOT.

tee square. = T SQUARE.

teest (tēst), n. A tinsmith's stake, or small anvil.

Tees'wa'ter (tēz'wô'tĕr), n. [From the river Tees, northern England.] a A breed of cattle formerly bred in England, and supposed to have originated by crossing Holland bulls on native cows, and to have been the principal stock from which the Shorthorns were derived. b An old English breed of sheep allied to the Leicester and prob. the progenitors of the Wensleydale.

teet (tēt), v. i. & n. [Perh. altered fr. toot to see, to spy.] Peep; PRY. Scot.

tee'tan (tē'tăn), n. A pipit. Orkney & Shetland I.

tee'ter (tē'tĕr), v. i. & t.; TEE'TERED (-tĕrd); TEE'TER·ING. [E. dial. titter to tremble, to seesaw, fr. ME. titeren, fr. ON. titra to tremble; akin to OHG. zittarōn, G. zittern. Cf. TITTER to laugh, TITTER to wabble.] 1. To move up and down on the ends of a balanced plank, or with a similar motion, as children do for sport; to seesaw.

2. Hence, to waver uncertainly; to jiggle.

That old man, teetering on his cane. Amy Lowell.

3. Ore Dressing. To move up and down, seesaw, or be alternately rising and falling, as particles in suspension in a rising current of air or water.

tee'ter, n. 1. Act of teetering; also, a seesaw. U. S.

2. In a spring suspension, a transverse rolling or rocking.

tee'ter (tē'tĕr), n. Also tee'ter·er (-ĕr). The spotted sandpiper. Local, U. S.

tee'ter·board' (tē'tĕr·bōrd'; 181), n. Also tee'ter·ing–board'. A seesaw.

tee'ter·tail' (tē'tĕr·tāl'), n. Zool. Spotted sandpiper.

tee'ter–tot'ter, n. [teeter + titter-totter.] A seesaw. — v. i. To seesaw.

tee'ter·y–bend'er (tē'tĕr·ĭ·bĕn'dĕr), n. Something that bends back and forth in the manner of a teeter, or seesaw.

teeth (tēth), n., pl. of TOOTH; — often in figurative use, where the singular tooth seldom occurs: a sharp, painful, or menacing part or attribute of an object; as, the teeth of the wind.

☞ COMBINATIONS, chiefly dialectal vars. of corresponding forms in tooth-, are:

teethache	teeth-chattering, adj.	teeth-gnashing, adj.
teethbrush	teeth-edging, adj.	teeth-grinding, adj.

— in the teeth of. Directly in defiance of; counter to; as, to proceed in the teeth of public opinion. Hence, in one's teeth. — to the teeth. To the limit; completely.

teethe (tēth), v. i.; TEETHED (tēthd); TEETH'ING (tēth'-ĭng). To grow teeth; also, to cut one's teeth. — v. t. Usually teeth (tēth). To provide with teeth. Scot & Dial.

teeth'ing (tēth'ĭng), n. The first growth of teeth, or the phenomena attending their issue through the gums; dentition.

teething ring. A ring, usually of bone, ivory, or composition, for a teething infant to bite on.

teeth'less (tēth'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Having no teeth, esp. (exc. Dial.) in a figurative sense (see TEETH, n.).

teeth'ridge' (-rĭj'), n. The ridge of the jaw where the sockets for the teeth are situated; specif., Phonet., the upper front alveolar process or ridge. See Pron., § 19.

teeth'y (tēth'ĭ; tēth'-), adj.; TEETH'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); TEETH'I·EST. 1. Having an abundant supply of teeth; also, showing one's teeth; as, a teethy grin.

2. Biting; crabbed; irritable; cross. Scot. & N. of Eng.

teet'ing (tēt'ĭng), n. A titlark. tee·to'tal (tē·tō't'l), adj. [For T-total, used to emphasize the word.] 1. Entire; total. Colloq.

2. Of or pertaining to total abstinence from intoxicating drink; as, a teetotal pledge or meeting.

tee·to'tal, v. i.; -TALED, -TALLED (-t'ld); -TAL·ING, -TAL·LING. To advocate or practice teetotalism.

tee·to'tal·er, tee·to'tal·ler (tē·tō't'l·ĕr), n. One who abstains totally from intoxicating drink or who advocates such total abstinence.

tee·to'tal·ism (-ĭz'm), n. Principle or practice of entire abstinence from intoxicating drinks; total abstinence. — tee·to'tal·ist (-ĭst), n.

tee·to'tal·ly, adv. 1. Completely; entirely; totally.

2. In regard to, or from the standpoint of, teetotalism. R.

tee·to'tum (-tŭm), n. [For T-totum. See TOTAL.] 1. A child's toy, somewhat like a top, twirled by the fingers; also, a game played with this or a similar device. Originally it was used for games of chance, and was four-sided, one side bearing the letter T, standing for Latin totum, all, meaning, take all the stakes, whence the name. The other sides each bore a letter, as P (put down), or D (Latin depone, meaning put down); N (nothing, or Latin nil, nihil, nothing); H (half); or A (Latin aufer, take away).

2. Hence, a person or thing of small size; also, one that wavers or jiggles, like a top.

— tee·to'tum·ism (-ĭz'm), n. — tee·to'tum·ize (-ĭz), v. i.

tee·to'tum, v. i. To spin like a teetotum. Colloq.

tee·to'tum (tē·tō'tŭm), n. [From teetotal, after teetotum the toy.] A workingmen's resort conducted under religious influences as a counteractant to the drinking saloon. Colloq.

tee'whaap' (tē'hwäp'), n. The lapwing. Local, Eng. & Scot.

teff (tĕf), n. [Amharic ṭāf, Tigré ṭāf.] An important Abyssinian grain plant (Eragrostis abyssinica), the grain of which yields a white flour of good quality.

Tef'nut (tĕf'nōōt), n. [Egypt.] Egypt. Relig. A lion-headed goddess, sister and wife of Shu (which see).

teg (tĕg), n. [Var. of TAG a sheep.] A sheep in its second year, or its fleece. Also, formerly, a doe in its second year, or a woman.

Tec·tos'a·ges (tĕk·tŏs'ə·jēz), n. pl. See VOLCAE.

tec'ture, n. [LL. tectura a covering.] Covering; roof. Obs.

tecul. + TICAL.

te'cum (tē'kŭm). Var. of TUCUM.

te'cu·mā' (tē'kōō·mä'), n. = TUCUMA.

Te·cu'na (tā·kōō'nä). Var. of TUCUNA.

Te'da (tē'dä), n. See TIBBU.

tede. + TEAD.

ted'er. + TETHER.

‖ Te De'um lau·da'mus (lô·dä'-mŭs). [L.] We praise thee, O God! See TE DEUM.

te'di·um-proof', adj. See -PROOF.

‖ te'di·um vi'tæ (vī'tē). [L. taedium vitae.] Lit., the tiresomeness of life; ennui; boredom.

tee. + TEA.

tee'-bulb', adj. = BULB-TEE.

teecall. + TICAL.

tee-hee', Var. of TE-HEE.

teek. + TEAK.

tee'ka (tē'kä). Var. of TICCA.

teel. Var. of TIL.

teel, v. t. & i. [Dial. var. of TILL.] = TILL, to cultivate. Obs. exc. Scot.

teele. + TEAL.

teel oil. = SESAME OIL. See OIL, Table I.

teem. + THEME.

teeme. + TEAM, TEEM, THEME.

teem'-name', Var. of TO-NAME. Scot.

teend. + TEND, to kindle.

teen'ful, adj. See -FUL. Obs. exc. Dial. [Jocose.] teen'sy, adj. = TEENY. Dial. or Jocose.

teen'ty, adj. = TEENY. Colloq. or Jocose.

tee'pee. Var. of TEPEE.

teer. + TAR, TEAR, TIER. [Dial.] teer'y. Var. of TEARY. Obs. exc.

teese. + TEASE.

tee'tee (tē'tē). Var. of TITI.

tee'terd. Teetered. Ref. Sp.

teeth'ful, adj. See -FUL.

teeth'i·ly, adv. of TEETHY.

teeth'ike', adj. See -LIKE.

tee·to'tum·wise', adj. See -WISE.

teet'y. Var. of TETTY, testy.

tee'wit (tē'wĭt). Var. of TEWIT.

te·fil'lin. Var. of TEPHILLIN.

Te'ge·an (tē'jē·ăn), adj. [L. Tegeeus, Tegeaeus.] Of or pertaining to Tegea; as, the Tegean heads by Scopas, from a pediment of the temple of Athena Alea.

teg'men (tĕg'mĕn), n.; pl. TEGMINA (-mĭ·nä). [L., fr. tegere, tectum, to cover. See TEGMENTUM.] A tegument, or covering. Hence: a Bot. = ENDOPLEURA. b Zool. (1) One of the elytra of a beetle, or one of the thickened forewings of certain Orthoptera. (2) The covering of the oral surface of a crinoid or blastoid. c Anat. A thin plate of bone which covers the middle ear and separates it from the cranial cavity. More fully called ‖teg'men tym'pa·ni (tĭm'pä·nī).

teg·men'tal (tĕg·mĕn'tăl; -tĭ), adj. Biol. Of or pertaining to a tegument or tegmentum; covering.

teg·men'tum (-tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tä). [L., a covering. See TEGUMENT.] 1. Anat. A covering; specif., the part of the cerebral peduncles above the substantia nigra, formed of longitudinal white fibers with arched transverse fibers and gray matter.

2. Bot. The outer covering of scales upon a leaf bud.

teg'mi·nal (tĕg'mĭ·năl), adj. Pertaining to, or of the nature of, a covering or tegmen.

te'gua (tā'gwä; -wä), n. [Keresan.] A sandal, usually of buckskin. Southwestern U. S.

te·guex'in (tē·gwĕk'sĭn), n. [NL. teguixin, fr. Nahuatl tecoixin, tecuxzin.] A teju (lizard).

teg'u·la (tĕg'ū·lä), n.; pl. TEGULAE (-lē). [NL., fr. L. tegula a tile. See TILE.] 1. Rom. Antiq. A tile; esp., a roof tile. The tegula, as a flat tile, is distinguished from the imbrex, of semicylindrical shape, which covered joints between the tegulae.

2. Zool. a One of a pair of small scalelike appendages of the mesothorax of some insects, esp. Hymenoptera and Lepidoptera, which cover the bases of the forewings. By some the elytra of beetles are supposed to be greatly developed tegulae, the true forewings having disappeared. b A patagium (appendage of the prothorax) of a lepidopterous insect. c In dipterous insects, the squama thoracicalis or alula (see ALULA b). When an antisquama is present, the latter is sometimes called the upper tegula, and the squama thoracicalis the lower tegula.

teg'u·lar (-lĕr), adj. [L. tegula a tile. See TEGULA.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or resembling, a tile; arranged like, or consisting of, tiles; as, a tegular pavement.

2. Zool. Pertaining to a tegula.

— teg'u·lar·ly, adv.

teg'u·lat'ed (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Composed of small overlapping plates; — said of a kind of ancient armor.

teg'u·men (tĕg'ū·mĕn), n. [L.] Bot. The tegmen.

teg'u·ment (-mĕnt), n. [L. tegumentum, fr. tegere to cover. See THATCH; cf. DETECT, PROTECT.] An integument. — teg'u·men'tal (-mĕn'tăl; -tĭ), adj.

teg'u·men'ta·ry (-mĕn'tä·rĭ), adj. Of or pert. to, or consisting of, a tegument or teguments; serving as a covering.

te·gu'ri·um (tē·gū'rĭ·ŭm), tu·gu'ri·um (tū-), n.; pl. TEGURIA (-ä), TUGURIA. [L. tegurium, tugurium, a hut.] Rom. Antiq. 1. A primitive hut or cabin, of circular form, often imitated in the making of cinerary urns.

2. In the classical period, an open shrine, the roof of which is supported by four or more columns.

te–hee' (tē·hē'), interj. [Imitative.] An exclamation expressing amusement and derision. — n. A tittering laugh; a titter.

te–hee', v. i. To titter; to laugh derisively.

Te·heran' (tē·h'rän'; tĕē·rän'; -rän'), n. [From Teheran, now Tehran, Persia.] Any of a group of industrially produced, high-grade Persian carpets; — a collective name used in the trade.

Te·hil'lim (tē·hĭl'lĭm), n. pl. [Heb. tĕhillīm, pl., songs of praise.] Jewish Relig. The Hebrew title of the Book of Psalms.

Te·huan'te·pec' winds (tā·wän'tā·pĕk'). Violent northeast and north-northeast winds on the Pacific coasts of Nicaragua and Guatemala, blowing from Tehuantepec.

Te·hue'co (tā·wā'kō), n. An Indian of a Cahita tribe, living on the Río Fuerte in Sonora, Mexico. See CAHITA.

Te·huel'che (tā·wĕl'chā), n. [Native word in Patagonia meaning southeast, though now applied to the northern Patagonians.] a A member of one of several closely related Patagonian tribes, of the Tsonecan stock, the "Patagones," or "Big Feet," of Magellan's expedition, characterized by great stature, a height of six feet six inches being not uncommon. They are of a low culture. Cf. PATAGONIAN. b = PUELCHE, n. — Te·huel'che·an (-ăn), adj.

Te'ian (tē'yăn), adj. [L. Teius.] Of or pertaining to Teos, an ancient Greek city of Asia Minor, where the poet Anacreon was born; hence, Anacreontic. — Teian Muse. Anacreon.

teich'er (tĕk'ĕr), v. i. [Dial. var. of TEAR.] To ooze or bleed in drops. Scot. & N. of Eng.

Teich'mann's crys'tals (tĭk'mänz). Biochem. Hemin crystals; — so called because first described (1852) by L. Teichmann, a German physiologist. See HEMIN.

te' ig'i·tur (tē' ĭj'ĭ·tĕr). [L., thee therefore.] The first words of the Canon of the Mass in the Roman rite. It was formerly customary to take oaths on this prayer.

teig'lech (tīg'lĕk; tĭg'-), n. pl. [Yiddish, dim. fr. G. teig dough.] Small unsweetened cakes with a sweet crisp coating resulting from their being boiled in honey.

Te'ii·dae (tē'yĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See TEJU.] Zool. A family of mostly tropical, American lizards having a flat, elongate, scaly tongue ending in two long smooth points. The teju and the race runner (Cnemidophorus sexlineatus) are examples. — te'ioid (-yoid), adj. & n.

teil (tēl), n., or teil tree. [OF. & L.; OF. til(le), teil(le), fr. L. tilia.] A European linden, or lime tree.

Teil lime (tĕ'y'). Hydraulic lime manufactured at Le Teil, France.

teind (tēnd), n. [ME. teind(e), tend(e), tenth; cf. ON. tīund. See TENTH; cf. TITHE.] In Scotland, a tithe (which see); tithes collectively. At the Reformation most of the property of the pre-Reformation church, including the teinds, was seized by powerful laymen, and the reformed church attempted in vain to recover any reasonable share of it for the support of its ministers. Charles I was forced to compromise but in 1633 a commission was appointed to fix the stipends to be paid to the parish ministers. At the union of the canons in 1707 the regulation of matters connected with the teinds was transferred to the Court of Session, sitting for this purpose as a Court of Teind or Teind Court. By the Church of Scotland (Property and Endowments) Act of 1925 the church's interest in the teinds was commuted for fixed money payments, which are the absolute property of the church.

teind (tēnd), v. t. To assess for tithes. — v. i. To pay tithes. — teind'er (tēn'dĕr), n. All Scot. & N. of Eng.

teind'a·ble (tēn'dä·b'l), adj. Subject to payment of teinds. Scot.

teind boll. Scots Law. A boll (see 1st BOLL) of grain accepted in lieu of teind.

Teind Court. Scots Law. A court for the control of teinds, consisting of the judges of the Court of Sessions acting as "The Commission for Plantation of Kirks and Valuation of Teinds," established by Act of 1707, c. 9, vesting in it powers held previously by commissions of Parliament. This court had authority to determine increases in the stipends of parish ministers in parishes where there was available any teind not already appropriated for the stipends (free, or unexhausted, teind).

teind sheaves. Sheaves paid as a tithe. Scot.

Teind Wednesday. The day when the Teind Court sits to hear tithe questions. Scot.

tein'land (tān'lănd), n. O. Eng. Law. Thaneland.

tei'no·scope (tī'nō·skōp), n. [Gr. teinein to extend + -scope.] An instrument using prisms so combined that objects may be seen in diminished or increased dimensions, the chromatic aberration of the light being also corrected; a prism telescope.

te·jon' (tā·hōn'; 162), n. [Sp. tejón a badger.] A coati. Mexico.

Te·jon' (tā·hōn'; 162), n. Also Tejon formation. Geol. The uppermost of the three divisions of the marine Eocene of California.

te·ju' (tē·yōō'), n. [Pg. teju, teiu, fr. Tupi teiú, tiu.] A large South American lizard (Tupinambis teguixin, syn. nigropunctatus) of the family Teiidae, blackish with yellow or white spots and growing about three feet long. Its flesh is eaten as a delicacy.

te'ki·ah' (tĕ'kē·ä'; tĕ·kē'ä), n. [Heb. tĕqīʿāh.] One of the notes sounded on the shophar on certain Jewish festivals or ceremonies.

tek'ke (tĕk'kĕ), tek'ya (-yä), n. [Ar. or Turk.; Ar. takīyah, fr. Turk. tekyeh.] In Moslem countries, a convent or monastery.

Tek'ke (tĕk'kĕ), n. sing. & pl. 1. One of a Turkoman tribe on the frontiers of Persia, Afghanistan, and the Turkomen republic.

2. A rug or carpet made by the Tekke.

tek·non'y·my (tĕk·nŏn'ĭ·mĭ), n. [Gr. teknon child + onyma name.] Ethnol. The custom of certain savage races of naming the parent from the child. — tek·non'y·mous (-mŭs), adj.

tek'tite (tĕk'tīt), n. [Gr. tēktos molten, soluble + 1st -ite, 4.] A glassy body of unknown origin and rounded but indefinite shape. Tektites have been found in Bohemia and Moravia (moldavites); in the Dutch East Indies (billitonites) and in Australia (australites).

‖te'la (tē'lä), n. [L., a web. See TELARY.] Anat. A tissue.

‖te'la cho'rĭ·oi'de·a (kō'rĭ·oi'dē·ä). [NL. See CHORIOID.] Anat. A fold of pia mater covering the roof of one of the ventricles of the brain. That of the third ventricle is called also velum interpositum.

‖te'la cho·roi'de·a (kō·roi'dē·ä). = [NL.] TELA CHORIOIDEA.

tel'a·cous'tic (tĕl'ä·kōōs'tĭk; -ä·kous'-), adj. [1st tele- + acoustic.] Pertaining to auditory telesthesia.

te'la·ku'cha (tā'lä·kōō'chä), n. [Beng. telākucā.] An East Indian vine (Coccinia indica), family Cucurbitaceae, with oblong, berrylike scarlet fruit used as a vegetable in India.

tel'a·mon (tĕl'ä·mŏn), n.; pl. -MONES (-mō'nēz). [L., fr. Gr. telamōn a bearer, fr. root of tlēnai to bear. See ATLAS.] Arch. A male figure used like a caryatid as a supporting column or pilaster. Cf. ATLANTES, CARYATID.

Tel'a·mon (tĕl'ä·mŏn), n. [L., fr. Gr. Telamōn. See TELAMON.] Gr. Myth. Brother of Peleus and father of Ajax. He was a participant in the Argonautic expedition and the Calydonian boar hunt, and a companion of Hercules in some of his expeditions. Cf. AEACIDES, PHOCUS.

tel·an'gi·ec'ta·sis (tĕl·ăn'jĭ·ĕk'tä·sĭs), n.; pl. -SES (-sēz). [NL., fr. Gr. telos end + angeion vessel + -ectasis.] Med. Dilatation of blood or lymph capillary vessels or terminal arteries, sometimes producing a form of angioma. — tel·an'gi·ec·tat'ic (-ĕk·tăt'ĭk), adj.

tel·an'gi·o'sis (-ō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. telos end + angi- + -osis.] Any disease of the capillaries.

Tel·an'ther·a (tĕl·ăn'thĕr·ä), n. [NL., fr. Gr. teleos complete + L. anthera. See TELEO-; -ANTHERA.] Bot. A large genus of tropical herbs or shrubs (family Amaranthaceae), distinguished from Alternanthera by having five perfect stamens and five staminodia united into a cup or tube. Many of the species are cultivated as foliage plants for beds and borders, usually under the name Alternanthera.

te'lar (tē'lĕr), adj. Anat. & Zool. Pertaining to a tela.

te·lar'i·an (tē·lâr'ĭ·ăn), adj. [See TELARY.] Spinning a web. — n. A webmaking spider.

te'lar·ly (tē'lĕr·lĭ), adv. In a weblike manner. Obs.

te'la·ry (tē'lä·rĭ; tĕl'ä·rĭ), adj. [L. tela a web. See TOIL a snare.] Of or pertaining to a web; hence, spinning webs; retiary. "Telary spiders." Sir T. Browne.

tel·au'to·gram (tĕl·ô'tō·grăm), n. A message transmitted and recorded by a telautograph.

tel·au'to·graph (-gräf), n. [tele- + autograph.] A facsimile telegraph for reproducing writing, pictures, maps, etc. In the transmitter the motions of the pencil are communicated by levers to two rotary shafts, by which variations in current are produced in two separate circuits. In the receiver these variations are utilized by electromagnetic devices and levers to move a pen as the pencil moves. — tel·au'to·graph'ic (-grăf'ĭk), adj. — tel'au·tog'ra·phist (tĕl'ô·tŏg'rä·fĭst), tel'au·tog'ra·phy (-fĭ), n.

Tel·chi'nes (tĕl·kī'nēz), n. pl. [L., fr. Gr. Telchines.] Gr. Myth. A primitive tribe or people associated chiefly with Rhodes. Rhea entrusted Poseidon to their care. They are credited with inventing useful arts, esp. metalworking. They were, however, also regarded as dangerous sorcerers and demons, and were thought to have incurred the enmity of Apollo and of Zeus, who, according to some myths, destroyed them. See CORYBANT; cf. CURETES. — Tel·chin'ic (-kĭn'ĭk), adj.

tel'e- (tĕl'ē-; tĕl'ĕ-), tel-. A combining form, Greek tēle-, tēl-, from tēle, meaning far, far off, used to denote operating at a distance, esp. in Elec. and Psychics, as in television, telautogram, telekinesis, tel'e·a·nem'o·graph tel'e·bar'o·graph, tel'e·ba·rom'e·ter.

tel'e- (tĕl'ē-; tē'lē-). = TELEO-.

tel'e·chem'ic (tĕl'ē·kĕm'ĭk; tĕl'ĕ-), adj. [1st tele- + chemic.] Petrog. Relating to minerals, such as apatite, zircon, magnetite, etc., which crystallized at a very early stage of the consolidation of the magma, and which differ greatly in chemical composition from the remaining minerals.

tel'e·chi'ro·graph (-kĭ'rō·gräf), n. [1st tele- + chiro- + -graph.] An instrument for telegraphically transmitting and receiving handwritten messages, as photographically by a beam of light from a mirror. Cf. TELAUTOGRAPH.

tel'e·cin'e·ma·tog'ra·phy (-sĭn'ē·mä·tŏg'rä·fĭ) n. [1st tele- + cinematography.] The transmission, as on a motion-picture film, of eight or more photographic images per second from a distant point, commonly by suitable electrical devices, resulting in a picture at the receiving end which, as viewed, gives the illusion of motion.

tel'e·code' (tĕl'ē·kōd'; tĕl'ĕ-), n. Any telegraphic code using a single word to represent an article of commerce or a sentence.

tel'e·com·mu'ni·ca'tion (-kō·mū'nĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [1st tele- + communication.] Communication at a distance, as by telegraph, telephone, cable, or radio.

tel'e·cryp'to·graph (-krĭp'tō·gräf), n. [1st tele- + cryptograph.] A kind of printing telegraph, capable of use on telephone lines, and insuring privacy.

te·lec'tro·scope (-tē·lĕk'trō·skōp), n. A telelectroscope.

tel'e·du (tĕl'ē·dōō), n. [Malay. tĕledu.] A small carnivorous mammal (Mydaus meliceps), family Mustelidae, of the mountains of Java and Sumatra. It resembles the badger, and, like the skunk, secretes an offensive fluid, which it can expel a short distance. It is blackish brown with a yellowish-white stripe down the back. Called also Javanese skunk.

te·le'ga (tē·lĕg'ä), n. [Russ.] A rude four-wheeled, springless wagon, used among the Russians.

Telega.

tel'eg·no'sis (tĕl'-ĕg·nō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. 1st tele- + -gnosis.] Knowledge of distant happenings obtained by occult or unknown means; clairvoyance. — tel'eg·nos'tic (-nŏs'tĭk), adj.

Te·leg'o·nus (tē·lĕg'ō·nŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tēlegonos.] Gr. Myth. The son of Odysseus by Circe. According to a late myth he slew his father. He was the traditional founder of Tusculum and Praeneste in Latium.

te·leg'o·ny (tē·lĕg'ō·nĭ), n. [1st tele- + -gony.] The supposed carrying over of the influence of a sire to the offspring of subsequent matings of the dam with other males. Cf. SATURATION. — tel'e·gon'ic (tĕl'ē·gŏn'ĭk; tĕl'ē-), te·leg'o·nous (tē·lĕg'ō·nŭs), adj.

tel'e·gram (tĕl'ē·grăm; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + -gram.] A message by telegraph; a telegraphic dispatch.

A friend desires us to give notice that he will ask leave . . . to introduce a new word into the vocabulary. It is telegram, instead of telegraphic dispatch, or telegraphic communication. Albany [N. Y.] Evening Journal (April 6, 1852).

tel'e·gram, v. t. & i. To telegraph.

tel'e·gram·mat'ic (-grə·măt'ĭk), adj. Telegrammic. Rare.

tel'e·gram'mic (-grăm'ĭk), adj. Pertaining to, or resembling, a telegram; laconic; brief. Rare.

tel'e·graph (tĕl'ē·gräf; tĕl'ĕ-; 83), n. [F. télégraphe. See 1st TELE-; -GRAPH.] 1. Orig., an apparatus for communication at a distance by means of preconcerted signals; in the broadest sense, any apparatus, system, or process for communication at a distance other than the ordinary ones of speech, letter writing, etc.; — now commonly restricted to those employing electric transmission. The semaphore telegraph was adopted by the French in 1794, and was in use among various nations until displaced by the electric telegraph, of which the form still in most common use is the Morse telegraph, first used publicly in 1844. This consists essentially of the line, a wire which forms, either in itself or in connection with the earth or water, a complete circuit; a battery or other electric generator for sending a current over the line; a transmitter, or key, by which the circuit can be made or broken at will; and the receiver, an electromagnetic device affected by every make and break.

A Telegraph Key. 1 Terminals, connecting the ends of a break in the line wire; 2 Key Lever, depressed by its Button (3), thus bringing together the platinum Points (4) and closing the circuit. When not in use, the Spring (5) holds up 2, which then rests on its Backstop (6), the break being closed by setting the Lever (7) in the position shown. B Morse Telegraph Sounder. Currents from the line pass through the Magnet (1), causing it to draw down its Armature (2), which brings the Stop (3) against the Anvil (4) with a click for each current passing.

Teg'e·tic'u·la (tĕj'ē·tĭk'ū·lä), n. [NL.] Zool. See PRONUBA.

tegg. Var. of TEG.

tegge. Var. of TEG.

teg'ment, n. [L. tegmentum.] A covering. Obs.

teg'mi·na, n., pl. of TEGMEN.

Teg'mi·ne (tĕg'mĭ·nē), n. [Prob. fr. L. tegmen a covering.] See STAR, Table. [OPATA.]

Te·gu'ma (tā·gō'mä), n. = teg·u'men·tum (tĕg'ū·mĕn'tŭm), n. [L.] = TEGMENTUM.

Te·haph'ne·hes (tē·hăf'nē·hēz). Bib.

Te·hin'nah (tē·hĭn'ä). Bib.

tehr (tär), n. Var. of 2d TUR.

teh·seel', or -sil' (tē·sēl'), teh·seel'dar', or -sil'dar' (-sēl'där'). Vars. of TAHSIL, TAHSILDAR.

tehte. Obs. past tense of TEACH.

Te·huan'te·pec'an (tā·wän'tā·pĕk'ăn), adj. = MIXTECAN.

Te·hue'let (tā·wā'lĕt), n. = PUELCHE, n.

Teig. Var. of TEAGUE.

teigh, past tense of TEE, draw. Obs.

teighte, teihte. ✝ TAUGHT.

teil. ✝ TAIL, TEAL, TILL.

tein (Scot. tēn). Var. of TEEN. Obs. exc. Scot.

teint. ✝ TAINT, TENT, TINT.

teinter. ✝ TENTER.

teinture. ✝ TAINTURE.

Tei·re'si·as (tī·rē'sĭ·ăs; -shĭ·ăs), n. = TIRESIAS.

teise, v. Var. of TEASE. — teis'er, n. Both Obs.

teist'y (tē'stĭ). Var. of TYSTE.

teize. Var. of TEASE.

Te'ji·dae (tē'jĭ·dē; tē'jĭ·ĭ-), n. pl. [NL.] Var. of TEIIDAE.

teke. ✝ TEAK, TICK.

te'kel, n. Bib. See MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN.

Te·kint'si, Tek·kint'zi (tē·kĭnt'sĭ), n. = 2d TEKKE, 1. tek'ken. Var. of TAKEN. Dial. Eng.

Te·ko'a (tē·kō'ä). Bib.

Te·ko'ite (-ĭt). Bib.

tel. Tell. Ref. Sp.

tel-. a = TELE-. b = TELO-.

Tel'-a/bib (tĕl'ä/bĭb). Bib.

tel'aes·the'si·a, tel·aes'the·sy. Var. of TELESTHESIA. [THETIC.]

tel'aes·thet'ic. Vars. of TELES-Te'lah (tē'lä). Bib.

Te·la'im (tē·lā'ĭm). Bib.

tel·an'gei·ec'ta·sis (-jĭ·ĕk'tä·sĭs). Var. of TELANGIECTASIS.

tel·an'gi·ec·ta'si·a (-jĭ·ĕk·tā'zhĭ·ä; -zĭ·ä), tel·an'gi·ec'ta·sy (-ĕk'tä·sĭ), n. = TELANGIECTASIS.

Te·las'sar (tē·lăs'ĕr). Bib.

tel·au'to·graf. Telautograph. Ref. Sp.

tel·au'to·mat'ics (tĕl·ô'tō·măt'ĭks), n. = RADIO CONTROL. — tel·au'to·mat'ic (-ĭk), adj. — tel·au'to·mat'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv. All Rare.

teld, n. [AS. See TILT tent.] A tent; pavilion; building; habitation; cover. — v. t. a To pitch or spread, as a tent. b To set, as a trap. c To erect; raise; build. d To cover. — v. i. To encamp; dwell; reside. All Obs.

teld. Obs. past part. of TELL.

telde. Obs. past tense of TELL.

tele. ✝ TEAL, TELL, TILE, TILL.

tel'e·an'gi·ec·ta'si·a, n. Med. = TELANGIECTASIS.

tel'e·den'dri·on (-drĭ'ŏn), tel'e·den'drite (tĕl'ē·dĕn'drīt), tel'e·den'dron (-drŏn), n. = TELODENDRION.

tele·fone, tel'e·fon'ic tel'e·fote, tel'e·fo'to·graf. Telephone, etc. Ref. Sp.

tel'e·graf, tel'e·graf'ic, te·leg'ra·fone, tel'e·graft, te·leg'ra·fy. Telegraph, telegraphic, telegraphone, etc. Ref. Sp.

---

which it indicates by deflection of a pointer, by marks made on a moving tape, or merely, as in the common sounder, by sharp clicks. (See MORSE ALPHABET.) On long lines a relay becomes necessary, and in submarine telegraphy the long sheathed cable has so great an inductive effect that a very sensitive receiver such as the siphon recorder must be used. Of later development are the printing telegraph (see PRINTER, 2 c), the writing telegraph, or facsimile telegraph (see TELAUTOGRAPH), and the various systems, many highly complicated, for sending two or more messages simultaneously over a single wire. See also RECORDER, 6; SOUNDER, 1 b; TRANSMITTER; WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY, etc.
2. A telegram.
3. A device, as an elevated board or framework, on which certain information can be displayed, as for the benefit of spectators at a game or race.
4. Short for TELEGRAPH ROPE.
5. Coal Mining. An inclined trough, chute, or similar device, through which coal, or other material, slides to a lower level.

☞ PHRASES are:

telegraph bar	telegraph insulator	telegraph sounder telegraph box	telegraph jack	telegraph superintendent telegraph bracket	telegraph key	telegraph switchboard telegraph bug	telegraph laborer	telegraph tape telegraph clerk	telegraph lineman	telegraph transmitter telegraph coil	telegraph mechanic	telegraph tubing telegraph connector	telegraph messenger	telegraph wire telegraph form	telegraph operator	telegraph wireman
telegraph hook	telegraph pole telegraph inspector	telegraph protector telegraph instrument	telegraph relay telegraph repeater

☞ PHRASES in which telegraph is the terminal word are:

dial telegraph	field telegraph	solar telegraph disk telegraph	indicator telegraph	typewriting telegraph facsimile telegraph	multiple telegraph	wireless telegraph needle telegraph	writing telegraph

tel'e-graph (tĕl'ē-grăf; tĕl'ē-), v. t. & i.; -GRAPHED (-grăft); -GRAPH'ING (-grăf'ĭng). 1. To send or communicate by telegraph; also, to send a telegram to (a person).
2. To display (a score or the like) on a telegraph board.
3. To signal; to make known by signs; as, she telegraphed (a message) with a quick glance.

-tel'e-graph. A combining form of telegraph, as in:

autotelegraph	pantelegraph	radiotelegraph
magnetotelegraph	phototelegraph	typotelegraph

Corresponding nouns are formed in -te-leg'ra-phy.

telegraph block. Naut. A block with many small sheaves used in making flag signals.

telegraph blue. A color, reddish-blue in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

telegraph board. = TELEGRAPH, n., 3.

telegraph cable. A telegraphic cable of several conducting wires, enclosed by an insulating and protecting material, so as to bring the wires into compact compass for use on poles, or to form a strong cable impervious to water, to be laid under ground, as in a town, or under water, as in the ocean.

A form of Submarine Telegraph Cable. a Piece showing seven Copper Conducting Wires, with Envelopes of Gutta-percha, Yarn, Iron Wire, etc.; b Transverse Section of it.

telegraph clock. A clock in an electrical system regulated by telegraph.

telegraph editor. In a newspaper office, one who takes, writes, and edits news coming in over the telegraph.

tel'e-graph-eme' (tĕl'ē-grăf-ēm'), n. [Cf. NGr. tēlegraphēma.] Telegram;—a puristic synonym.

te-leg'ra-pher (tē-lĕg'rȧ-fẽr; tĕl'ē-grăf'ẽr; tĕl'ē-), n. One who sends telegraphic messages; a telegraphic operator.

te-leg'ra-pher's cramp. Med. Spasm, with paralysis, of certain muscles of the fingers and hand, caused by overwork in sending telegraph messages.

tel'e-graph-ese' (tĕl'ē-grăf-ēz'; -ēs'; tĕl'ē-), n. [See -ESE.] Language characterized by terseness and elliptical expressions such as are common in telegrams.

tel'e-graph'ic (tĕl'ē-grăf'ĭk; tĕl'ē-), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to the telegraph; made or communicated by a telegraph.
2. Communicated over a distance, as by telegraph; as, he stopped in answer to a telegraphic glance from his companion.
3. Of the style of a telegram; hence, short; concise; terse; as, he spoke in clipped, telegraphic sentences.
Life has become too telegraphic for curiosity to linger on any given point. Edith Wharton.
4. Designating a place for the receipt of telegrams; as, my telegraphic address while I am away from home.
— tel'e-graph'i-cal (-ĭ-kăl), adj.— tel'e-graph'i-cal-ly, adv.

telegraphic alphabet. = MORSE ALPHABET.

telegraphic transfer. Cable transfer. See CABLE, n., 5. Abbr. T. T. Eng.

te-leg'ra-phist (tē-lĕg'rȧ-fĭst; tĕl'ē-grăf'ĭst; tĕl'ē-; cf. TELEGRAPHER), n. One skilled in telegraphy; a telegrapher.

te-leg'ra-phone (tē-lĕg'rȧ-fōn), n. [1st tele- + -graph + -phone.] An instrument for recording and reproducing sound by the local magnetization of a steel wire, disk, or ribbon, moved against the pole of a magnet connected electrically with a telephone receiver, or the like.

tel'e-graph'o-phone (tĕl'ē-grăf'ō-fōn; tĕl'ē-), n. [1st tele- + graphophone.] An instrument for making a telephonic record at a distance, or for obtaining sounds from a distant telephonic record. Cf. TELEGRAPHONE.

tel'e-graph'o-scope (-skōp), n. [1st tele- + -graph + -scope.] An instrument for telegraphically transmitting a picture and reproducing its image as a positive or negative. The transmitter includes a camera obscura and a row of minute selenium cells. The receiver includes an oscillograph, relay, equilibrator, and an induction coil the sparks from which perforate a paper with tiny holes that form the image.

telegraph plant. An East Indian tick trefoil (Desmodium gyrans), whose lateral leaflets jerk up and down like the arms of a semaphore, and also rotate on their axes.

telegraph rope. Mech. An endless cord connecting an engine with a derrick so that steam can be turned on or off from the derrick. U. S.

te-leg'ra-phy (tē-lĕg'rȧ-fĭ), n. 1. The use or operation of a telegraph apparatus or system, now only of the electric telegraph, for transmitting or receiving communications, often as an occupation; as, submarine or railroad telegraphy.
2. Transmission of intelligence or information over a distance as if by telegraph; as, mental telegraphy.

-te-leg'ra-phy (-tē-lĕg'rȧ-fĭ). See -TELEGRAPH.

tel'e-hy'dro-ba-rom'e-ter (tĕl'ē-hī'drō-bȧ-rŏm'ē-tẽr; tĕl'ē-), n. [1st tele- + hydrobarometer.] An instrument for indicating the level of water in a distant tank or reservoir.

Te-lei' (tē-lā'), n. sing. & pl. One of a Papuan-speaking tribe of Bougainville, Solomon Islands; also, their language. See PAPUAN LANGUAGES.

tel'ei-an'thous (tĕl'ī-ăn'thŭs), adj. [Gr. teleios finished + -anthous.] Bot. Monoclinous.

tel'e-i-con'o-graph (tĕl'ē-ī-kŏn'ō-grȧf), n. [1st tele- + iconograph.] a An instrument essentially the same as the telemetrograph. b A form of facsimile telegraph.

tel'ei-o'sis (tĕl'ī-ō'sĭs), n. [Gr. teleiōsis.] Perfection. Rare.

tel'e-ki-ne'sis (tĕl'ē-kĭ-nē'sĭs; -kī-; tĕl'ē-), n. [See 1st TELE-; KINESIS.] Psychical Research. The apparent production of motion in objects by a spiritualistic medium, without contact or other physical means. — tel'e-ki-net'ic (-nĕt'ĭk), adj.

tel'e-lec'tric (tĕl'ē-lĕk'trĭk), adj. [1st tele- + electric.] Elec. Of or pertaining to transmission, as of music, to a distance by electricity. Cf. TELHARMONIUM.

tel'e-lec'tro-graph (-trō-grȧf), n. [1st tele- + electro- + -graph.] An apparatus for transmitting electrically a photograph or other picture.

tel'e-lec'tro-scope (-trō-skōp), n. [1st tele- + electro- + -scope.] Any apparatus for making distant objects visible by the aid of electric transmission.

Te-lem'a-chus (tē-lĕm'ȧ-kŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tēlemachos.] Son of Odysseus and Penelope. As related in the Odyssey, he goes to find his father, but, failing, returns to Ithaca in time to assist in slaying Penelope's suitors.

tel'e-ma-nom'e-ter (tĕl'ē-mȧ-nŏm'ē-tẽr; tĕl'ē-), n. [1st tele- + manometer.] Elec. An apparatus for exhibiting or recording at a distance the indications of a manometer.

Tel'e-mark (tĕl'ē-märk; tā'lē-), n. [From Telemark, southern Norway.] Skiing. A turn in which the ski which is to be on the outside of the turn is advanced considerably ahead of the other ski and then turned inward at a steadily widening angle until the actual turn; — called also Telemark turn. — tel'e-mark, v. i.

Te-lem'bi (tē-lĕm'bē), n. An Indian of a Barbacoan tribe of southwestern Colombia. See BARBACOAN.

tel'e-me-chan'ic (tĕl'ē-mē-kăn'ĭk; tĕl'ē-), adj. [1st tele- + mechanic.] Designating, or pertaining to, any device for operating mechanisms at a distance. — tel'e-mech'a-nism (-mĕk'ȧ-nĭz'm), n.

tel'e-me-chan'ics (-ĭks), n. [1st tele- + mechanics.] The science of operating apparatus or mechanisms, as motors, at a distance from the operator; specif., the art of transmitting electrical power without wires.

tel'e-met'a-car'pal (-mĕt'ȧ-kär'păl), adj. [1st tele- + metacarpal.] Zool. Having the terminal parts of the first and fifth metacarpals vestigial, as in certain of the Cervidae.

tel'e-me'te-or-o-graph' (-mē'tē-ŏr'ō-grȧf'; -mē'tē-ŏr'ō-grȧf), n. [1st tele- + meteorograph.] Any apparatus recording meteorological phenomena at a distance from the measuring apparatus, as by electricity or by compressed air; esp., an apparatus recording conditions at many distant stations at a central office. — tel'e-me'te-or-o-graph'ic (-grăf'ĭk), adj. — tel'e-me'te-or-og'ra-phy (-ŏg'rȧ-fĭ), n.

te-lem'e-ter (tē-lĕm'ē-tẽr), n. [1st tele- + -meter.] 1. An instrument for measuring the distance of an object from an observer, as a telescope with a micrometer for measuring the apparent diameter of an object whose dimensions are known, or a telescope with stadia hairs.
Telemeter is a term variously employed to designate some form of an instrument for determining distances by means of a visual angle subtended by a short base. I. O. Baker.
2. A device for measuring strains. It is composed of a stack of carbon plates, of which the electrical resistance varies with their displacement, and suitable apparatus for measuring this resistance.
3. Elec. An electrical instrument which includes the complete equipment for measuring a quantity, transmitting the result to a distant station, and there indicating or recording the quantity measured.
— tel'e-met'ric (tĕl'ē-mĕt'rĭk; tĕl'ē-), adj. — tel'e-met'ri-cal (-rĭ-kăl), adj., — te-lem'e-trist (tē-lĕm'ē-trĭst), n. — te-lem'e-try (-trĭ), n.

te-lem'e-ter, v. t. & i. Elec. To transmit electrically to a distant station, and there indicate or record, the value of a quantity.

tel'e-met'ro-graph (tĕl'ē-mĕt'rō-grȧf; tĕl'ē-), n. [1st tele- + metro- + -graph.] A combination of the camera lucida and telescope for drawing and measuring distant objects. — tel'e-me-trog'ra-phy (-mē-trŏg'rȧ-fĭ), n. — tel'e-met'ro-graph'ic (-mĕt'rō-grăf'ĭk), adj.

tel'e-mo'tor (tĕl'ē-mō'tẽr; tĕl'ē-), n. [1st tele- + motor.] Naut. A hydraulic device by which the movement of the wheel on the bridge operates the steering gear at the stern.

tel'en-ceph'a-lon (tĕl'ĕn-sĕf'ȧ-lŏn), n. [NL., fr. tel- + encephalon.] Anat. & Embryol. The anterior subdivision of the prosencephalon, or forebrain; the endbrain. See BRAIN, 1 a. — tel'en-ce-phal'ic (tĕl'ĕn-sē-făl'ĭk), adj.

tel'en'er-gy (tĕl-ĕn'ẽr-jĭ), n. [tel- + energy.] Display of force or energy at a distance, or without contact; — applied to mediumistic phenomena. Cf. TELEKINESIS. — tel'en-er'gic (tĕl'ĕn-ûr'jĭk), adj.

tel'e-neu'rite (tĕl'ē-nū'rīt; tĕl'ē-), n. [1st tele- + neurite.] Anat. The terminal arborization of an axis cylinder.

tel'e-neu'ron (-rŏn), n. [NL., fr. 1st tele + neuron.] a The terminal neuron; the last in a chain of neurons conducting a nervous impulse. b Loosely, a telodendron.

te-len'gi-scope (tē-lĕn'jĭ-skōp), n. [1st tele- + Gr. engys near + -scope.] Optics. An instrument of such focal length that it may be used as an observing telescope for objects close at hand or as a long-focused microscope.

Te-len'o-mus (tē-lĕn'ō-mŭs), n. [NL.] Zool. A large and widespread genus of minute Hymenoptera (superfamily Serphoidea) whose larvae are parasitic in the eggs of various insects.

tel'e-o- (tĕl'ē-ō-; tē'lē-ō-; cf. TELEOLOGY), tel'e- (tĕl'ē-; tē'lē-). A combining form from Greek teleos, complete, perfect, as in *Teleo*cephali, *teleo*don*t*, tel'e-o-phyte'. Used also for TELO-, as in teleology.

tel'e-ob-jec'tive (tĕl'ē-ŏb-jĕk'tĭv), adj. Equipped with a lens, or objective, fitted for photographing objects at a distance.

Tel'e-o-ceph'a-li (tĕl'ē-ō-sĕf'ȧ-lī; tē'lē-), n. pl. [NL., fr. teleo- + Gr. kephalē head.] Zool. In some classifications, a division of teleosts including those having the typical number of cranial and opercular bones, separate anterior vertebrae, and no mesocoracoid, as the perches, pike, etc. — tel'e-o-ceph'a-lous (-lŭs), adj.

Tel'e-oc'er-as (tĕl'ē-ŏs'ẽr-ăs; tē'lē-), n. [NL., fr. teleo- + -ceras.] Paleontol. A genus of rhinoceroses from the American Upper Miocene and Lower Pliocene. The animals were short-legged, and had a small nasal horn.

Tel'e-o-des-ma'ce-a (-ō-dĕs-mā'shē-ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. teleo- + Gr. desma bond.] Zool. A large group of bivalves having well-developed cardinal teeth in the hinge. It is nearly equivalent to the order Eulamellibranchia. — tel'e-o-des-ma'cean (-shăn), adj. & n. — tel'e-o-des-ma'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

tel'e-o-dont' (tĕl'ē-ō-dŏnt'; tē'lē-), adj. [2d tele- + -odont.] Zool. Having large mandibles; — said of some insects, esp. certain stag beetles. Cf. PRIODONT.

tel'e-o-log'ic (-lŏj'ĭk), adj. Teleological.

tel'e-o-log'i-cal (-lŏj'ĭ-kăl), adj. Pert. to teleology; of the nature of, or relating to, design, purpose, or final intention. — tel'e-o-log'i-cal-ly, adv.

tel'e-ol'o-gism (-ŏl'ō-jĭz'm), n. Belief in, or acceptance of, teleology.

tel'e-ol'o-gist (-ŏl'ō-jĭst), n. One versed in teleology; an advocate of a doctrine of teleology; one who believes in the actuality of teleology.

tel'e-ol'o-gy (tĕl'ē-ŏl'ō-jĭ; tē'lē-; 277), n. [NL. teleologia, fr. Gr. telos, teleos, end + -logia.] 1. The fact or the character of being directed toward an end or shaped by a purpose; — said esp. of natural processes, or of nature as a whole, conceived as determined by final causes (see CAUSE, n., 1), or by the design of a divine Providence, and opposed to purely mechanical determinism or causation exclusively by what is temporally antecedent.
By real teleology I mean the embodiment or operation of a conscious purpose entertained by human intelligence. B. Bosanquet.
2. Sometimes, the philosophical study of evidences of design in nature; more commonly, the doctrine or belief that ends are immanent in nature; esp., the vitalist doctrine that the processes of life are not exclusively determined by mechanical causes, but are directed to the realization of certain normal wholes or entelechies; — opposed to mechanism. Cf. MECHANISM, 4 b.
The rejection of teleology, which begins with Descartes and extends to Comte, appears also difficult to harmonize with any moral theory of life. J. Martineau.
Every art is thus a joint result of laws of nature disclosed by science, and of the general principles of what has been called teleology, or the doctrine of ends. J. S. Mill.
3. The use of design, purpose, or utility as an explanation of any natural phenomenon.

tel'e-o-pho'bi-a (tĕl'ē-ō-fō'bĭ-ȧ; tē'lē-ō-), n. [NL., fr. teleo- + -phobia.] Dislike and rejection of teleology; dysteleology.

tel'e-o-phore' (tĕl'ē-ō-fōr'; tē'lē-ō-; 181), n. [teleo- + -phore.] Zool. A gonotheca.

tel'e-op'tile (-ŏp'tĭl; -tīl), n. [teleo- + Gr. ptilon down.] A mature feather; — distinguished from a neossoptile.

tel'e-or-gan'ic (tĕl'ē-ôr-găn'ĭk; tē'lē-), adj. [2d tele- + organic.] Physiol. Vital; as, teleorganic functions.

tel'e-o-roent'gen-o-gram', tel'e-o-rönt'gen-o-gram' (-rûnt'gĕn-ō-grăm'; -rĕnt'-), n. [teleo- + roentgenogram.] Med. An X-ray photograph taken at a distance, usually 6 feet, with resultant practical parallelism of the rays and production of shadows of natural size.

tel'e-o-roent'gen-og'ra-phy, tel'e-o-rönt'gen-og'ra-phy (-ŏg'rȧ-fĭ), n. [teleo- + roentgenography.] Med. The act, science, or practice of making teleoroentgenograms.

Tel'e-o-sau'rus (-ō-sô'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. teleo- + -saurus.] Paleontol. A genus of crocodilian reptiles of the Jurassic, having a long and slender snout like a gavial, and platycelous vertebrae. It is the type of a family, Tel'e-o-sau'ri-dae (-rĭ-dē). — tel'e-o-saur' (tĕl'ē-ō-sôr'; tē'lē-), n. — tel'e-o-sau'ri-an (-sô'rĭ-ăn), adj. & n.

tel'e-ost (tĕl'ē-ŏst; tē'lē-), n. Zool. One of the Teleostei. — adj. Pert. to, or having the characteristics of, the Teleostei.

tel'e-os'te-an (-ŏs'tē-ăn), adj. & n. Teleost.

Tel'e-os'te-i (-ŏs'tē-ī), n. pl. [NL., fr. teleo- + Gr. osteon bone.] Zool. A subclass or other division of fishes including the ordinary fishes as distinguished from the ganoids, dipnoans, crossopterygians, and elasmobranchs. Its members are called bony fishes, from the well-ossified vertebrae and skull (the latter complicated by the presence of many membrane bones) and from the usually dense bony tissue of the other parts of the skeleton. Enameled, or ganoid, scales (see GANOID SCALE), fulcra on the fin rays, a spiral valve in the intestine, and a conus arteriosus with several rows of valves, characters common in more primitive fishes, have disappeared. The optic nerves simply cross each other, the suspensorium is hyostylic, and a large membrane bone, the clavicle, forms the chief part of the pectoral arch. The true pelvic arch has disappeared; the pelvic fins are often displaced forward. The tail is apparently perfectly homocercal. The group comprises most living fishes, but is geologically rather recent, developing in the Mesozoic, but not becoming predominant until the Upper Cretaceous. The more primitive teleosts (Isospondyli) differ little from, and are evidently descendants of, certain ganoids (Holostei), and in many recent classifications the group Teleostei, if retained, is made a division of the Teleostomi.

tel'e-os'te-ous (-ŭs), adj. Zool. Teleost. Rare.

tel'e-o-stome' (tĕl'ē-ō-stōm'; tē'lē-), n. Zool. One of the Teleostomi; a true fish.

Tel'e-os'to-mi (-ŏs'tō-mī), n. pl. [NL., fr. teleo- + Gr. stoma mouth.] Zool. a In some classifications, a subclass (sometimes a class) containing all existing fishes except the elasmobranchs (inclusive of the Holocephali) and characterized by having membrane bones developed in connection with, and entering into the structure of, the jaws, cranium, pectoral arch, and opercular apparatus. The gill arches bear filamentous gills and there are no claspers on the ventral fins. b In a narrower sense, a group equivalent to the above, but excluding the dipnoans. It thus consists of the ganoids (including the crossopterygians) and teleosts, and is further characterized by the hyostylic suspensorium, bony fin rays, and lack of cerebral hemispheres, the prosencephalon being individual. — tel'e-os'to-mous (-ŏs'tō-mŭs), adj.

tel'e-o-tem'po-ral (tĕl'ē-ō-tĕm'pō-răl; tē'lē-), n. [teleo- + 1st temporal.] Zool. The postclavicle of a fish.

tel'e-o-zo'ic (-zō'ĭk), adj. Zool. Having tissues composed of cells; metazoan.

tel'e-o-zo'on (-ŏn), n. [NL., fr. teleo- + -zoon.] Zool. A metazoan.

tel'e-path (tĕl'ē-pȧth; tē'lē-), v. i. & t. To communicate by telepathy. — n. A telepathist.

tel'e-path'ic (-pȧth'ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to telepathy; transferred or communicated by telepathy.

---

tel'e-graph-ese' n. See -ESE.
Tel'e-gu (tĕl'ē-gōō). Var. of TELUGU.
Te-le'ia (tē-lē'yȧ; -lī'ȧ), n. [Gr. teleia perfected.] See HERA.
Tel'e-kin'e-ma-tog'ra-phy, n. Var. of TELECINEMATOGRAPHY.
Te'lem (tē'lĕm). Bib.
tel-en'ce-phal (tĕl-ĕn'sē-făl), n. = TELENCEPHALON. [TELEUT.] Tel'en-get' (tĕl'ĕn-gĕt'), n. See TELEUT. teleological argument. = ARGUMENT FROM DESIGN. teleological necessity. See NECESSITY, 6. [Var. of TELEMETER.] tel'e-om'e-ter (tĕl'ē-ŏm'ē-tẽr).
tel'e-os'to-mate (tĕl'ē-ŏs'tō-māt; tē'lē-), adj. = TELEOSTOMOUS. tel'e-o-sto'mi-an (-ō-stō'mĭ-ăn), adj. = TELEOSTOMOUS. tel'e-ot'ro-cha (-ŏt'rō-kȧ), n. Syn. of TELOTROCHA. tel'e-path'i-cal-ly, adv. of TELEPATHIC.

te·lep'a·thist (tē·lĕp'ȧ·thĭst), n. A believer in telepathy; also, one having telepathic power.

te·lep'a·thize (-thīz), v. t. & i. To affect telepathically; to cultivate telepathy.

te·lep'a·thy (tē·lĕp'ȧ·thĭ), n. [1st tele- + -pathy.] Apparent communication from one mind to another otherwise than through the channels of sense; thought transference.

tel'e·pheme (tĕl'ē·fēm; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + Gr. phēmē a saying.] A message by telephone. Rare.

tel'e·phone (tĕl'ē·fōn; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + -phone.] 1. An instrument for reproducing sounds, esp. articulate speech, at a distance. The mechanical, or string, telephone is a device in which the voice or sound causes vibrations in a thin diaphragm, which are directly transmitted along a wire or string connecting it to a similar diaphragm, thus reproducing the sound. The first electrical telephone was publicly described by its German inventor, Reis, in 1861, but the first capable of practical use was patented by Bell in 1876. This was the magnetic telephone, or magnetotelephone, transmitter and receiver being alike constructed of a diaphragm of soft iron placed close to the pole of a magnet upon which is wound a coil of fine wire. The vibrations of the transmitting diaphragm produce by induction variable currents in the circuit connecting with the receiver, and these in turn cause the receiving diaphragm to vibrate. In the modern telephone, the microphone replaces the transmitter, but the receiver is essentially the same. See Illust.

Modern Telephone. Top, Combined Handset; Bottom, Handset Cross Section. 1 Receiver; 2 Transmitter; 3 Carbon Granules; 4 Magnet; 5 Diaphragm.

2. Any of various devices resembling or suggesting the telephone (sense 1) in appearance, use, or function, as a sound-signaling device, a speaking tube, etc.

3. Hort. a [cap.] A large-seeded, tall-growing variety of garden pea of high quality. b Also telephone pea. pl. Large peas obtained in grading for commercial canning.

☞ PHRASES are:

telephone amplifier	telephone fitter	telephone pad telephone arm	telephone fuse	telephone plug telephone attendant	telephone generator	telephone protector telephone bell	telephone holder	telephone receiver telephone box	telephone instrument	telephone relay telephone cabinet	telephone insulation	telephone selector telephone cable	telephone insulator	telephone stand telephone case	telephone jack	telephone supervisor telephone cell	telephone knob	telephone support telephone closet	telephone laborer	telephone switch telephone coil	telephone lineman	telephone switchboard telephone condenser	telephone magneto	telephone table telephone connector	telephone mechanic	telephone terminal telephone cord	telephone mouthpiece	telephone tester telephone counter	telephone operator	telephone wire telephone desk	telephone pad	telephone wireman telephone faultsman

-tel'e·phone. A combining form of telephone, as in:

magnetotelephone	monotelephone	radiotelephone
microtelephone	pantelephone	thermotelephone

Corresponding nouns are formed in -TELEPHONY.

tel'e·phone, v. t. & i.; -PHONED (-fōnd); -PHON'ING (-fōn'-ĭng). 1. To send or communicate by telephone; to speak to (a person) by telephone; to call on the telephone.

2. To equip with a telephone or telephones.

telephone booth. An enclosure within which one may stand or sit while calling a number over the telephone; — called also, Eng., call box.

telephone engineering. See ENGINEERING, n., 1. — telephone engineer.

telephone exchange. A central office in which the wires of telephones may be connected to permit conversation.

tel'e·phon'er (tĕl'ē·fōn'ẽr; tĕl'ĕ-), n. One who telephones.

telephone receiver. Elec. A device for converting electric impulses or varying current into sound. It usually comprises a coil of wire through which the electric current flows, a diaphragm for producing the sound, and a magnetic or electric arrangement for producing motion of the diaphragm corresponding to current variations. In some forms the diaphragm is of magnetic material, and is acted on directly by the coil.

telephone transmitter. Elec. See MICROPHONE.

tel'e·phon'ic (tĕl'ē·fŏn'ĭk; tĕl'ĕ-), adj. Also tel'e·phon'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl). Conveying sound to a distance; also, of or pertaining to the telephone; carried or conveyed by telephone. — tel'e·phon'i·cal·ly, adv.

tel'e·pho'nist (tĕl'ē·fō'nĭst; tĕl'ĕ-; tē·lĕf'ō·nĭst), n. One who uses or operates a telephone; specif., a switchboard operator in a telephone exchange.

tel'e·pho'no·graph (tĕl'ē·fō'nō·grȧf; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + phonograph.] A combination of a telephone receiver and a phonograph for recording and reproducing telephone messages. Cf. TELEGRAPHONE. — tel'e·pho'no·graph'ic (-grăf'ĭk), adj.

te·leph'o·ny (tē·lĕf'ō·nĭ; tĕl'ē·fō'nĭ; tĕl'ĕ-), n. The use or operation of an apparatus, now only of a telephone employing electric waves or a system of such telephones, for transmission of sounds between widely removed points; as, wireless telephony. Cf. HIGH-FREQUENCY TELEPHONY.

-te·leph'o·ny. See -TELEPHONE.

tel'e·phote (tĕl'ē·fōt; tĕl'ĕ-), n. A telelectric apparatus for reproducing images photographically of distant objects.

tel'e·pho'to (-fō'tō), adj. Telephotographic; specif., designating a lens consisting of a combination of lenses specially designed to give a large image of a distant object in a camera of relatively short focal length.

tel'e·pho'to (tĕl'ē·fō'tō; tĕl'ĕ-), n. a Phototelegraph. b Phototelegraphy.

tel'e·pho'to·graph (-tō·grȧf), n. [1st tele- + photograph.] A photograph, image, or impression, reproduced by or taken with a telephotographic apparatus.

tel'e·pho'to·graph, v. i. To use a telephoto lens or camera.

tel'e·pho'to·graph'ic (-fō'tō·grăf'ĭk), adj. Designating, or pertaining to, the processes of telephotography.

telephotographic lens. A telephoto lens.

tel'e·pho·tog'ra·phy (-fō·tŏg'rȧ·fĭ), n. 1. The photography of distant objects in more enlarged form than is possible by the ordinary means, usually by a camera provided with a telephoto lens or mounted in place of the eyepiece of a telescope, so that the real or a magnified image falls on the sensitive plate.

2. The art or process of electrically transmitting and reproducing photographic or other pictures through a distance by methods similar to those used in electric telegraphy.

3. Less properly, phototelegraphy. See PHOTOTELEGRAPHY.

Tel'e·phus (tĕl'ē·fŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tēlephos.] See AUGE.

tel'e·plasm (tĕl'ē·plăz'm; tē'lē-), n. [2d tele- + -plasm.] Spiritualism. Ectoplasm. — tel'e·plas'mic (-plăz'mĭk), adj.

tel'e·plas'tic (-plăs'tĭk), adj. [2d tele- + -plastic.] Spiritualism. Designating phenomena of materialization.

tel'e·post (tĕl'ē·pōst; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + post a dispatch.] A high-speed automatic telegraph system invented by Patrick B. Delany. The transmitter is operated by a perforated tape; the receiver prints electrochemically.

tel'er. Var. of TILER, TILLER. Obs.

tel'e·ra'di·o·phone' (tĕl'ē·rā'dĭ·ō·fōn'; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + radiophone.] A radiophone. Rare.

tel·er'gic (tĕl·ûr'jĭk), adj. [1st tele- + Gr. ergon work.] Operating or functioning at a distance.

tel'er·gy (tĕl'ẽr·jĭ), n. [1st tele- + Gr. ergon work.] The hypothetical action of one person's thought and desire upon the brain of another person by the transmission of some unknown form of energy. — tel·er'gi·cal (tĕl·ûr'jĭ·kăl), adj. — tel·er'gi·cal·ly, adv.

tel'e·scope (tĕl'ē·skōp; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [NL. telescopium, fr. Gr. tēleskopos viewing afar, farseeing, fr. tēle far, far off + skopos a watcher, skopein to view. Cf. TELEGRAPH; -SCOPE.] 1. An optical instrument used as an assistance to the eye or camera in viewing or photographing distant objects, as the heavenly bodies. The two chief advantages of the use of a telescope are enlargement of the visual angle under which a distant object is seen and a consequent magnifying of the object, and collection and concentration of a larger beam of light, rendering objects visible or more distinct. The essential parts of the telescope are the object glass or the concave mirror which collects the beam of light and forms the image, and the eyepiece, by which the image is magnified. Telescopes having an object glass are called refracting telescopes; the largest are the Lick telescope (36 inches aperture) and the Yerkes telescope (40 inches). To this class belongs the Galilean telescope, in which the eyeglass is a concave instead of a convex lens, as in the common opera glass, the construction originally adopted by Galileo, in 1609. It exhibits objects erect, that is, in their natural position. If the light is collected by a mirror, the instrument is called a reflecting telescope, the earliest form being the Gregorian telescope, perfected by James Gregory of Edinburgh in 1663. In the axis is a small concave mirror having its focus coincident with that of the large reflector and transmitting the light received from the latter back through a hole in the center of the large mirror to the eyepiece behind (see E, Fig. 2). The Cassegrainian telescope (invented by Cassegrain in 1672) is a reflecting telescope whose primary parabolic mirror is pierced with a central hole; the light is first reflected from the primary mirror to a smaller hyperboloidal secondary mirror in the axis of the telescope, and thence passes back through the hole to the photographic plate or ocular. The form is the most compact and efficient for celestial photography, and the large linear scale resulting from equivalent focal lengths of large dimensions can be secured with a comparatively short telescope tube. In the Newtonian telescope (invented by Sir Isaac Newton) the rays from the large speculum are received by a diagonal plane mirror (now usually a prism) near the open end of the tube, and are reflected at right angles to one side, where the image is formed and viewed through the eyepiece (see Fig. 1). In the Herschelian telescope (invented by Le Maire, but extended by Sir William Herschel) only one speculum is employed (S in Fig. 3), by slightly inclining which an image of the object is formed near one side of the open end of the tube, and to this the eyepiece (E) is directly applied. In a mercurial telescope the rays are reflected from a basin of mercury, either in revolution or at rest. The largest reflector ever constructed is that at Mt. Palomar (200 inches in diam.). See EQUATORIAL, n.; POSITIVE EYEPIECE; NEGATIVE EYEPIECE; LENS, 1.

Telescope of the Lick Observatory, Mt. Hamilton, California. Length of Tube, 57 feet. Diameter of Object Glass, 36 inches.

Reflecting (Cassegrainian) Telescope by Grubb at Melbourne, Australia. The Small Mirror, or Secondary Speculum; is at a. Diameter of Large Mirror, 4 feet.

Fig. 1. Newtonian Telescope: ABCD Section of Tube; E Eyepiece; G Large Mirror; F Small Mirror. Fig. 2. Gregorian Telescope: ABCD Section of Tube; E Eyepiece; F Small Mirror; GH Large Mirror, or Object Mirror. Fig. 3. Herschelian Telescope.

2. A telescope bag.

3. A telescopic sight.

4. Short for TELESCOPE FISH.

5. [cap.] Astron. = TELESCOPIUM.

☞ PHRASES are: telescope finder, telescope lens, telescope tube.

☞ PHRASES are:

dumb telescope	panoramic telescope	vernier telescope elbow telescope	prism telescope	water telescope inverting telescope	terrestrial telescope	zenith telescope tel'e·scope (tĕl'ē·skōp; tĕl'ĕ-), v.; -SCOPED (-skōpt); -SCOP'ING (-skōp'ĭng). Intransitive: To slide or pass one within another, like the sections of a small telescope or spyglass; to force a way into, or enter, another lengthwise as the result of collision.

> The ice had telescoped during the night . . . a trail which we had crossed about a mile before camping now was only about 300 yards away. Stefansson.

— ,Transitive: 1. To cause to telescope; to cause to jam one into another, or one part into another part; as, in the accident the front cars of the rear train were telescoped into the last cars of the front train.

2. To shorten or simplify.

telescope bag. An adjustable traveling bag consisting of two cases, the larger slipping over the other.

telescope box. A box that telescopes into another container.

telescope chimney. A telescopic smokestack, as for a steamer.

telescope door. A door divided horizontally into two or more sections sliding one behind another.

telescope eye. An eye on a retractile stalk, as in land snails.

telescope fish. A breed of goldfishes having a very short thick body, a large and double tail fin, and protuberant eyes. In the usual variety the pupils of the eyes are directed outward, but in the variety known as the celestial telescope the pupils are directed upward. The breed is said to have originated in China, but has been best developed by the Japanese.

telescope fly. Any dipterous fly of the genus Diopsis or related genera, of Africa and Asia, with eyes on very long stalks.

telescope jack. Mach. A lifting jack the male screw of which (a in the Illust.) is a telescope screw in which works another (solid) male screw (b). The two screws have threads of unequal pitch or opposite direction, so that the effect is similar to that produced by a differential screw (which see).

Telescope Jack. a Telescope Screw; b Interior Screw; c Base; d Handle.

telescope joint. A telescopic joint.

telescope screw. Mach. A screw consisting of a hollow cylinder threaded internally and externally.

telescope shell. An elongated marine univalve (Telescopium fuscum), family Cerithiidae, having straight-sided whorls.

telescope sight. A telescope on a firearm for use as a sight.

telescope stack. = TELESCOPE CHIMNEY.

telescope table. = EXTENSION TABLE.

telescope word. = PORTMANTEAU WORD.

tel'e·scop'ic (tĕl'ē·skŏp'ĭk; tĕl'ĕ-), tel'e·scop'i·cal (-skŏp'ĭ·kăl), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to a telescope; performed by a telescope.

2. Seen or discoverable only by a telescope; as, telescopic stars; also, figuratively, suggesting a telescope in sharpness of outline, clarity and fixity of definition, etc.; as, she indulges in telescopic phrases and idioms derived from the pictorial suggestion of objects.

3. Able to discern objects at a distance; farseeing; far-reaching; as, a telescopic eye; telescopic vision.

4. Having the power of extension by joints sliding one within another, like the tube of a small telescope or a spyglass; esp., constructed of concentric tubes, either stationary, as in the telescopic boiler, or movable, as in a telescopic drinking cup.

— tel'e·scop'i·cal·ly, adv.

telescopic boiler. A boiler with rings tapered so as to fit one within the other at the transverse joints.

telescopic sight. A sight consisting of a small telescope, as on a rifle.

tel'e·sco'pi·form (tĕl'ē·skō'pĭ·fôrm; tĕl'ĕ-), adj. Zool. Consisting of joints that slide one within the other. Rare.

te·les'co·pist (tē·lĕs'kō·pĭst; tĕl'ē·skŏp'ĭst; tĕl'ĕ-), n. One skilled in the use of the telescope.

Tel'e·sco'pi·um (tĕl'ē·skō'pĭ·ŭm), n.; gen. TELESCOPII (-pĭ·ī). [NL.] Astron. A southern constellation, south of Sagittarius and Corona Australis; the Telescope.

te·les'co·py (tē·lĕs'kō·pĭ; tĕl'ē·skō'pĭ; tĕl'ĕ-), n. The art or practice of using or of making telescopes.

tel'e·scribe (tĕl'ē·skrīb; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + L. scribere to write.] Elec. A phonograph for recording telephonic messages. Obs.

tel'e·scrip'tor (-skrĭp'tĕr), n. [1st tele- + L. scriptor a writer.] A form of teletypewriter.

tel'e·seism (tĕl'ē·sīz'm; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + Gr. seismos shock.] An earth tremor caused by an earthquake in a part of the world remote from the recording station. — tel'e·seis'mic (-sīz'mĭk; -sīz'-), adj.

tel'e·seis·mol'o·gy (-sīs·mŏl'ō·jĭ; -sīz-), n. [1st tele- + seismology.] Seismology dealing with records obtained at long distances. Cf. ENGYSSEISMOLOGY.

tel'e·seme (tĕl'ē·sēm; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + -seme.] A system of apparatus for electric signaling providing for automatic transmission of a definite number of different signals or calls, as in connection with hotel annunciators.

tel'e·sis (tĕl'ē·sĭs), n. Also te·le'si·a (tē·lē'sĭ·ȧ; -shĭ'-ȧ). [NL., lit., completion; formed with Gr. term. -sis (as if telesis) fr. teleein, telein, to complete, perform, fr. telos end.] Progress intelligently planned and directed; the attainment of desired ends by the application of intelligent human effort to the means. L. F. Ward.

tel'e·si·ur'gic (tĕl'ē·sĭ·ûr'jĭk), n. [LGr. telesiourgikos.] The art of working magic with telesms. Obs.

tel'esm (tĕl'ĕz'm), n. [MGr. telesma. See TALISMAN.] A talisman. — tel'es·mat'ic, tel'es·mat'i·cal (tĕl'ĕs·măt'ĭk, -ĭ·kȧl; tĕl'ĕz-), adj. — tel'es·mat'i·cal·ly, adv. All Obs.

te·les'me·ter (tē·lĕz'mē·tĕr; tē·lĕs'-), n. A telemeter having a telescope with a micrometer eyepiece and a short drawtube with a system of reflecting prisms.

tel'e·so·mat'ic (tĕl'ē·sō·măt'ĭk; tē'lē-), adj. [2d tele- + somatic.] Teleplastic. Rare.

tel'e·spec'tro·scope (tĕl'ē·spĕk'trō·skōp; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + spectroscope.] Astrophysics. A spectroscope arranged to be attached to a telescope to obtain spectra of celestial bodies.

tel'e·ster'e·o·graph' (-stĕr'ē·ō·grȧf'; -stēr'ē-), n. [1st tele- + stereograph.] An instrument for telegraphically reproducing a photograph. — tel'e·ster'e·og'ra·phy (-ŏg'rȧ·fĭ), n.

tel'e·ster'e·o·scope' (-stĕr'ē·ō·skōp'; -stēr'ē-), n. [1st tele- + stereoscope.] A binocular telescope, esp. one in which the distance between the objectives is greater than the interocular distance. It is used to obtain enhanced impressions of relief in distant objects.

tel'es·te'ri·on (tĕl'ĕs·tē'rĭ·ŏn), n. [Gr. telestērion.] Gr. Antiq. A place for initiation in the mysteries. The most famous was that at Eleusis, of early origin, but enlarged and remodeled by the architect Philo in the 4th century B.C.

tel'es·the'si·a (tĕl'ĕs·thē'zhĭ·ȧ; -zhȧ; -zĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. 1st tele- + esthesia.] An impression, similar to a sense impression, received at a distance without the normal operation of the organs of sense. — tel'es·thet'ic (-thĕt'ĭk), adj.

te·les'tic (tē·lĕs'tĭk), adj. [Gr. telestikos.] Rare. a Tending or relating to a purpose or end. b Mystical.

te·les'tich (tē·lĕs'tĭk; tĕl'ĕ·stĭk), n. Also te·les'tic. [Gr. telos the end + stichos a line.] A poem in which the consecutive final letters of the lines spell a name. Cf. ACROSTIC, 1 a.

tel'e·tac'tile (tĕl'ē·tăk'tĭl; tĕl'ĕ-), adj. Of or pertaining to a teletactor.

tel'e·tac'tor (-tăk'tĕr), n. [See 1st TELE-; TACT; -OR.] An electric apparatus for use by the deaf, which converts sound waves into vibrations detectable with the finger tips.

tel'e·tape' (tĕl'ē·tāp'; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [telegraph + tape.] Teleg. A tape perforated in accordance with the telegraph code by a special typewriter. After completion, the tape is run through a telegraph transmitter, thus obtaining higher speed of transmission.

tel'e·ther'a·py (-thĕr'ȧ·pĭ), n. [telepathy + -therapy.] Telepathic treatment of disease.

tel'e·ther'mo·graph (-thûr'mō·grȧf), n. [1st tele- + thermo- + -graph.] Physics. a A record of fluctuations of temperature made automatically at a distant station. b An instrument, usually electrical, making such records. — tel'e·ther'mo·gram (-grȧm), n.

tel'e·ther·mom'e·ter (-thĕr·mŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [1st tele- + thermometer.] Physics. An apparatus for indicating the temperature of a distant point, as by a thermoelectric circuit and a galvanometer. — tel'e·ther·mom'e·try (-trĭ), n.

tel'e·to·pom'e·ter (-tō·pŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [1st tele- + Gr. topos place + -meter.] A kind of telemeter with two telescopes.

Tel'e·type (tĕl'ē·tīp; tĕl'ĕ-), n. a A trade-mark applied to a kind of teletypewriter; also [sometimes not cap.], the device bearing this trademark. b [often not cap.] A system of communication in which the Teletype is used. — tel'e·type, v. t. & i. — tel'e·typ'er (-tīp'ĕr), n.

tel'e·type'set'ter (-tīp'sĕt'ĕr), n. [1st tele- + typesetter.] A trade-mark for an apparatus for simultaneously setting type mechanically in as many places as are connected by an electric circuit with the master apparatus; hence [sometimes not cap.], this apparatus. Perforations, made in a roll of paper by the operation of a keyboard, release electric impulses, by means of which corresponding perforations in another roll may be made at a distance. The perforated roll operates a linotype or intertype.

tel'e·type'writ'er (-tīp'rĭt'ĕr), n. Teleg. & Teleph. A form of printing telegraph, recording like a typewriter.

tel'e·typ'ing (tĕl'ē·tīp'ĭng; tĕl'ĕ-), n. a Use of the teletype, as in transmitting information. b Typewriting or typesetting at a distance. See TELETYPEWRITER.

Tel'e·ut' (tĕl'ē·ōōt'), n. a One of a group of nomadic Altaic Tatar tribes of the Altai plateau, West Siberia Region, Mongolian in type, Buddhists in religion, and speaking a Turkic language of the Ural-Altaic family; — called also Telenget, and Kara-Kalmuck. b The Turkic language of this group. See URAL-ALTAIC LANGUAGES.

te·leu'to- (tē·lū'tō-). A combining form from Greek teleutē, completion, as in teleutospore.

te·leu'to (tē·lū'tō), n. Short for TELEUTOFORM, TELEUTOSPORE.

te·leu'to·form (tē·lū'tō·fôrm), n. [teleuto- + -form.] Bot. The teliostage.

te·leu'to·so'rus (-sō'rŭs), n. [NL.] Bot. A telium.

te·leu'to·spore (tē·lū'tō·spōr; 181), n. [teleuto- + spore.] Bot. A teliospore. — te·leu'to·spor'ic (-spŏr'ĭk), adj. — te·leu'to·spo·rif'er·ous (-spō·rĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. See -FEROUS.

tel'e·vise (tĕl'ē·vīz; tĕl'ĕ-), v. t. To transmit or receive (a facsimile of a view, etc.) by television.

tel'e·vi'sion (tĕl'ē·vĭzh'ŭn; tĕl'ĕ-; tĕl'ē·vĭzh'ŭn), n. [1st tele- + vision.] Vision at a distance; hence, the transmission and reproduction of a view or scene, esp. a view of persons or objects in motion, by any device which converts light rays into electrical waves and reconverts these into visible light rays. — tel'e·vi'sion·al (-ăl), adj. — tel'e·vi'sion·ar'y (-vĭzh'ŭn·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ēr·ĭ), adj.

tel'e·vi'sor (tĕl'ē·vī'zĕr; tĕl'ĕ-), n. a A transmitting or receiving apparatus for television. b One using a television receiver; — a proposed term.

tel'e·vis'u·al (-vĭzh'ū·ȧl), adj. Of, pertaining to, designating, or having the characteristics of television.

tel'e·vo'cal (tĕl'ē·vō'kȧl), adj. [1st tele- + vocal.] Pertaining to or operated by the voice at a distance; as, a televocal system of operating machinery.

tel'e·vox (tĕl'ē·vŏks; tĕl'ĕ-), n. [1st tele- + L. vox voice.] A robot (sense 2) equipped with a set of electrified diaphragms that enable it to respond to instructions transmitted by tones of varying pitch.

Tel·fair'i·a (tĕl·fâr'ĭ·ȧ; tĕl'fâ·ĭr'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Charles Telfair, Ir. naturalist.] Bot. A genus of tropical African vines (family Cucurbitaceae) having only two species, remarkable for the length of their shoots, which may exceed 45 feet. They have purplish flowers and immense gourds, the seeds of which, esp. in T. pedata, are edible and yield an oil resembling olive oil. Syn. Ampelosicyos.

tel·fair'ic ac'id (tĕl·fâr'ĭk). Chem. An unsaturated acid, $C_{18}H_{32}O_3$, occurring as a glyceride in the oil from the seeds of a tropical African vine (Telfairia scandens).

tel'ford (tĕl'fĕrd), adj. [After Thomas Telford (1757–1834), Scot. road engineer.] Designating, or pertaining to, a road pavement having a surface of small stone rolled hard and smooth, distinguished from macadam road by its firm foundation of large stones with fragments of stone wedged tightly in the interstices; as, telford pavement, road, etc.

tel'ford, n. A telford road, etc.

tel'ford·ize (-īz), v. t.; TEL'FORD·IZED (-īzd); TEL'FORD·IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). To furnish (a road) with a telford pavement.

tel'har·mon'ic (tĕl'här·mŏn'ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to the telharmonium.

tel'har·mo'ni·um (-mō'nĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. 1st tele- + harmonium.] An instrument for producing music (tel·har'mo·ny [tĕl·här'mō·nĭ]), at a distant point or points by means of alternating currents of electricity controlled by an operator who plays on a keyboard.

te'li (tē'lē), n. [Hind. telī, fr. tel oil.] A member of a low Hindu caste, characteristically oil makers and merchants.

te'li·al (tē'lĭ·ăl; tĕl'ĭ-), adj. Of or pertaining to a telium.

tel'ic (tĕl'ĭk), adj. [Gr. telikos, fr. telos the end.] 1. Tending toward an end; purposive; teleological.

2. Gram. Denoting the final end or purpose; — distinguished from ecbatic.

—tel'i·cal (-ĭ·kȧl), adj. — tel'i·cal·ly, adv.

te·lif'er·ous (tē·lĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [L. telum a missile, weapon + E. -ferous.] Bearing a dart or weapons Obs.

Te·lin'ga po·ta'to (tē·lĭng'gȧ). The yam.

te'li·o·spore' (tē'lĭ·ō·spōr'; tĕl'ĭ-; 181), n. [telium + spore.] Bot. One of the thick-walled chlamydospores, or winter spores, developed in the final stage (teliostage) in the life cycle of rust fungi. On germination they give rise to promycelia. See TELIUM. — te'li·o·spor'ic (-spŏr'ĭk), adj.

te'li·o·spo·rif'er·ous (-spō·rĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. Bot. Bearing teliospores.

te'li·o·stage' (tē'lĭ·ō·stāj'; tĕl'ĭ-), n. [telium + stage.] Bot. The final, or late summer, stage in the life cycle of a typical rust, characterized by the production of telia; the telial stage. See TELIUM; RUST, 6.

te'li·um (tē'lĭ·ŭm; tĕl'ĭ-), n.; pl. TELIA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. telos, teleos, end, completion.] Bot. The spore fruit formed during the teliostage of rust fungi, consisting of an aggregate of either sessile or stalked teliospores. Telia are formed beneath the cuticle or epidermis or in the epidermal cells, and may remain embedded or covered or become exposed by the rupture of the host tissue. Cf. AECIUM.

tell (tĕl), v.; past tense & past part. TOLD (tōld); pres. part. & verbal n. TELL'ING. [AS. tellan; akin to D. tellen to count, G. zählen, OHG. zellen to count, tell, say, ON. telja, Dan. tale to speak, tælle to count, and to E. TALE.] Transitive: 1. To mention one by one, or piece by piece; to enumerate; reckon; number; count; as, to tell money; to tell one's beads (in counting on a rosary the prayers said).

He telleth the number of the stars. Ps. cxlvii. 4.

2. To relate in detail; to narrate; recount; as, to tell a yarn; also, to utter; say; as, to tell a lie.

Of which I shall tell all the array. Chaucer.

3. To make known; disclose; divulge; as, to tell the news; to tell one's name; to reveal or manifest in any way; as, fossils tell much of the past; also, to express in words; as, I cannot tell how sorry I am.

4. To inform; to report or communicate to.

Why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife? Gen. xii. 18.

5. To order; request; direct; as, he told her to go.

6. To discern so as to report; to ascertain by observing; to find out; recognize; decide; as, he told the guilty one by his look; how can I tell what to do?

7. To inform positively, as of one's own knowledge; to assure emphatically; as, he did do it, I tell you.

8. To make account of; to regard; reckon; value. Obs.

—, Intransitive: 1. To give an account; to make report.

That I may . . . tell of all thy wondrous works. Ps. xxvi. 7.

2. To announce; say; speak. Archaic.

3. To talk; chat. Now Dial.

4. To take effect; to have a marked effect; to be of account; as, every shot tells; the hard work told on him.

5. To act as a talebearer; to inform;—usually with on or of; as, to tell of a companion in mischief. Archaic or Colloq.

Lest they should tell on us. 1 Sam. xxvii. 11.

6. To serve as evidence or indication; to be significant; — usually with of; as, his tanned and wrinkled face told of long years of outdoor life.

7. To stand forth clearly; to be apparent, evident, or known.

His strong, clean-cut face told manful and self-reliant against the deepening shadows. Haldane Macfall.

Syn. — Communicate, impart, reveal; acquaint; report, repeat, rehearse, recite.

tell down. a Scot. Pay down. b Scot. & Ir. To deny.

tell it not in Gath. Keep this bad or secret news to yourself lest it become known to those who would rejoice over it; — with allusion to 2 Sam. i. 20.

tell no store of. To set no store by. Obs.

tell off. a To number and set apart; esp., Mil., to number and detail for special duty; as, to tell off a squad for police. b Colloq. To reprimand, denounce.

tell one's, or its, own tale. To need no explanation.

tell (one) where to get off. See get off d, under GET, v.

tell out. To count out, as a player in a game.

tell tale. To make account; to set store. Obs.

tell tales out of school. To tell secrets, or what was not to be told.

tell that to the marines. An expression of disbelief, the marines being traditionally scorned by sailors. Colloq.

tell the bees. Folklore. To announce to the bees a death in the family, by putting a bit of black crape on the hives. Brittany, Scot., Ir.

tell the world. To tell abroad as a certain truth; hence, to be sure or positive; as, I 'll tell the world we won that race. Colloq.

tell tother from which. To tell one from another. Colloq.

tell (tĕl), n. That which is told; talk; tale; account.

Local or Dial.

Then I 'll have a tell with you. Eden Phillpotts.

tell (tĕl), n. [Ar. tall.] Hill; mound; specif., Archaeol., in the Near East, an ancient mound.

tell. Dial. var. of TILL.

Tell, Wilhelm or William. See WILLIAM TELL.

tel'lach (tĕl'ăk), n. [OIr.] Brehon Law. A seizure of immovable property by a process analogous to a distraint.

Tell' el-A·mar'na (tĕl' ĕl·ä·mär'nȧ). [Ar. Tall al-'Amārinah the hill of the 'Amārinah or the banu-'Imrān Bedouins.] A station on the Nile, midway between Thebes and Memphis, forming the site of the capital of Amenhotep IV, whose archive chamber was discovered there in 1887. A collection of tablets (called the Tell el-Amarna, or Amarna, tablets) was found here, forming the Asiatic correspondence (Tell el-Amarna letters) of Amenhotep IV and his father, Amenhotep III, written in cuneiform characters. It is an important source of our knowledge of Asia during the Amarna Age (about 1375–1360 B.C.). Cf. ARZAWA, 2; MITANNI.

tell'er (tĕl'ĕr), n. 1. One who tells, relates, or communicates; an informer, narrator, or describer.

2. A device or apparatus that announces; an annunciator; esp., Local, Eng., one of the strokes made by a church bell in tolling for a death.

3. One who reckons, counts, or the like; specif.: a One of four officers of the English Exchequer formerly appointed to receive and count moneys due to the king and to pay moneys payable by the king. b One appointed to count the votes in a legislative body, public meeting, assembly, etc.

4. Banking. In a bank, any of several employees especially concerned with the direct handling of money received by, or paid out by, the institution; as, a receiving teller accepts and records deposits, a paying teller pays out money against checks and other collection items, a note teller accepts and records payments on notes due to the bank, etc. A teller may or may not be an officer of the bank.

5. A telling blow, remark, or the like. Slang.

-tell'er. A combining form of the noun teller, often written separately, as in:

fortuneteller	newsteller	taleteller money teller	storyteller	truthteller tel'ler (tĕl'ĕr). Dial. Eng. var. of TILLER, sprout, shoot.

tell'er·out', n. One who tells out, as a mingler or counter.

Tel'li·cher'ry bark (tĕl'ĭ·chĕr'ĭ). [From Tellicheri, seaport in India.] The bitter bark of any of several East Indian or African trees of the family Apocynaceae, as Wrightia zeylanica, Holarrhena antidysenterica, H. africana, etc., used locally as a remedy for dysentery; Conessi bark.

tel'li·graph (tĕl'ĭ·grȧf), n. [Anglo-Lat. telligraphum. See TELLURIAN; -GRAPH.] A landbook. Hist.

Tel·li'ma (tĕ·lī'mȧ), n. [NL., arbitrarily formed from Mitella.] Bot. A genus of herbs (family Saxifragaceae) of western America, with mostly palmately lobed leaves and delicate flowers resembling those of Mitella. T. grandiflora is the false alumroot.

Tel·li'na (tĕ·lī'nȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tellinē a kind of shellfish.] Zool. A genus of marine bivalve mollusks having the siphons long and separate, and the foot and labial palpi very large. The shell is thin, delicate, and often handsomely colored. The genus is the type of a family, Tel·lin'i·dae (tĕ·lĭn'ĭ·dē), and of an extensive suborder, Tel'li·na'ce·a (tĕl'ĭ·nā'shē·ȧ) of the Eulamellibranchia. — tel'li·na'cean (-shăn), adj. & n. — tel'li·na'ceous (-shŭs), adj. — tel'li·noid (tĕl'ĭ·noid), adj.

Tellina (T. donacina).

tell'ing (tĕl'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TELL. Hence: n. Action of one who or that which tells, in various senses; as, the telling of her beads; a good story improved in the telling.

tell'ing (tĕl'ĭng), adj. Operating with effect; effective; as, a telling speech, blow, phrase. — tell'ing·ly, adv.

Syn. — See PERTINENT.

Ant. — Ineffectual, futile, unavailing.

tell'some (tĕl'sŭm), adj. Talkative; esp., officiously forward in offering advice. Local, U. S.

tell'tale' (-tāl'), n. 1. One who officiously gives information of the private concerns of others; one who tells what should be withheld; a talebearer; informer.

2. A thing that serves to disclose something or give information; a hint or indication.

3. A device to indicate or record something, esp. to keep a check on employees, as factory hands, drivers, check takers, etc.; esp., a time clock.

4. A tattler (bird).

5. Music. An indicator on an organ that shows the amount of wind pressure.

6. Naut. a A mechanical attachment to the steering wheel, which shows the position of the helm or rudder. b A compass in the cabin where the captain can see it.

7. Plumbing. A small overflow pipe that indicates by dripping when a tank is full.

8. Rackets, Squash, etc. A strip, usually of wood or metal, on the front wall of the court to a height of from 2 to 2½ feet above the ground, over which the ball must be hit.

9. Railroads. Any device serving as a warning; as: a A row of long strips hung from a bar over the tracks to warn freight brakemen of their approach to a low overhead bridge. b A low fender or the like placed near a hole in the permanent way to warn trackwalkers and others of it.

tell'tale', adj. 1. Officiously telling what one should hold secret or in confidence; informing; talebearing.

2. Disclosing or indicating something of a private nature; betraying. "A telltale blush." Poe.

---

telestial glory. Mormon Ch. See CELESTIAL GLORY.

te·le·writ'er, n. [1st tele- + writer.] = TELAUTOGRAPH. Brit.

tel'fer, tel'fer·age, tel'fer·way. Vars. of TELPHER, TELPHERAGE, TELPHERWAY.

Tel'-ha·re'sha (tĕl'hȧ·rē'shȧ; -hȧr'ē·shȧ), or Tel'-har'sa (-här'sȧ). Bib.

tel'i·con'o·graph (tĕl'ĭ·kŏn'ō·grȧf). Var. of TELE-ICONOGRAPH.

Te·lin'ga (tē·lĭng'gȧ), n. = TELUGU.

te'li·o·so'rus, n. [NL., fr. telium + sorus.] Bot. = TELIUM.

tell. ✝ TALE, TILL.

tell'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

tell'clock', n. An idler. Obs.

tells. ✝ TEAL; TELL; TILL, v.

tell'ee' (tĕl'ē'), n. See -EE.

tell'er·ship, n. See -SHIP.

tellt, past & past part. of TELL. Chiefly Scot.

3. Designating any of various devices for giving warning, keeping a watch or record, etc.; as, a telltale pipe, clock; also, designating a process or operation by which such a device warns or records; as, a telltale operation.
— tell′tale′ly, adv.

tell′tale′ (tĕl′tāl′), v. t. To perform a telltale operation; as, to telltale forgings to determine whether there is sufficient stock for finishing.

tell′truth′ (tĕl′trōōth′), n. 1. Frankness; honesty. Rare. 2. A truthteller; a frank and honest person.

tellur-. Chem. A combining form for tellurium.

tel·lu′ral (tĕ-lū′răl), adj. [L. tellus, -uris, the earth.] Of or pertaining to the earth. Rare.

tel′lu·rate (tĕl′ū-rāt), n. Chem. A salt of telluric acid.

tel′lu·ret′ed, tel′lu·ret′ted (-rĕt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Chem. Combined or impregnated with tellurium; tellurized; as, tellureted hydrogen (hydrogen telluride, H_2Te).

tel′lur·eth′yl (tĕl′ûr-ĕth′ĭl), n. [tellur- + ethyl.] Chem. Ethyl telluride.

tel′lur·hy′dric ac′id (-hī′drĭk). Chem. Hydrogen telluride.

telluri-. Chem. A combining form for telluric.

tel·lu′ri·an (tĕ-lū′rĭ-ăn), adj. [L. tellus, -uris, the earth.] Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, the earth.

tel·lu′ri·an, n. A dweller on the earth.

tel·lu′ri·an, n. Also tel·lu′ri·on (-ŏn). An apparatus to illustrate the causation of day and night by the rotation of the earth on its axis, the dependence of the seasons on the sun's declination, etc.

tel·lu′ric (-rĭk), adj. [L. tellus, -uris, the earth.] Of or pertaining to the earth; proceeding from the earth.

Amid these hot, telluric flames. Carlyle.

tel·lu′ric, adj. [From TELLURIUM.] Chem. Of, pertaining to, or containing, tellurium; specif., designating those compounds in which the element has a higher valence than in the tellurous compounds.

telluric acid. Chem. A feeble acid, H_2TeO_4, analogous to sulphuric acid, obtained by oxidizing tellurium.

telluric bismuth. Mineral. = TETRADYMITE.

telluric lines. Astrophysics. Atmospheric lines.

telluric silver. Mineral. Hessite. Obs.

tel′lu·ride (tĕl′ū-rīd; -rĭd), n. Also -rid. Chem. A binary compound of tellurium with another element or a radical; — formerly called telluret.

tel·lu·rif′er·ous (-rĭf′ĕr-ŭs), adj. [telluri- + -ferous.] Containing or yielding tellurium.

tel′lu·rism (tĕl′ū-rĭz′m), n. [L. tellus, -uris, the earth + E. -ism; cf. F. tellurisme, G. tellurismus.] 1. A hypothesis of animal magnetism propounded by Dr. Kieser, in Germany, in which the phenomena are ascribed to the agency of a telluric spirit or influence. Rare.
2. Med. The morbific influence of the earth or soil.

tel′lu·rist (-rĭst), n. A believer in tellurism.

tel′lu·rite (-rīt), n. 1. Chem. A salt of tellurous acid.
2. Mineral. Native tellurium dioxide, TeO_2, occurring sparingly in tufts of white or yellowish crystals.

tel·lu′ri·um (tĕ-lū′rĭ-ŭm), n. [NL., fr. L. tellus, -uris, the earth.] 1. Chem. A nonmetallic element analogous to sulphur and selenium, occurring sparingly native as a crystalline substance of tin-white metallic luster (sp. gr., 6.24), but usually combined with metals, as with gold and silver in sylvanite. Symbol, Te; at. no., 52; at. wt., 127.61. It may be obtained by precipitation as a dark-gray amorphous powder which burns in air with a blue flame, forming the dioxide, TeO_2. Tellurium finds a limited use as an electric rectifier and in coloring glass and porcelain.
2. A place for the care and exhibition of selected flora and fauna, as in a school for instruction purposes.

tellurium glance. Nagyagite.

tel′lu·rize (tĕl′ū-rīz), v. t.; -RIZED (-rīzd); -RIZ′ING (-rīz′ĭng). Chem. To combine, impregnate, or treat, with tellurium; — chiefly in past part.; as, tellurized ores.

telluro-. Chem. A combining form for tellurous. Specif., designating bivalent tellurium, Te<, analogous to thio-.

tel·lu·ro′ni·um (tĕl′ū-rō′nĭ-ŭm), n. [NL., fr. tellur- + -onium.] Chem. a The univalent radical H_3Te, analogous to sulphonium. b Less desirably, the bivalent radical H_2Te.

tel′lu·rous (tĕl′ū-rŭs; tĕ-lū′-), adj. Chem. Of, pert. to, or containing, tellurium; specif., designating compounds in which the element has a lower valence than in the telluric compounds.

tellurous acid. A feeble acid, H_2TeO_3, obtained as a white amorphous precipitate when a dilute nitric acid solution of tellurium is poured into water, and otherwise.

Tel′lus (tĕl′ŭs), n.,or Tel′lus Ma′ter (mā′tĕr). [L.] Rom. Relig. The goddess of the earth, esp. of cultivated fields, who received and nourished the sown seed. Her special feast was the Fordicidia, April 15, although she was worshiped at other times along with Ceres. See CERES.

tel′ma·to- (tĕl′mȧ-tō-), telmat-. A combining form, Greek telmato-, telmat-, from telma, telmatos, meaning stagnant water, mud, as in telmatology.

tel′ma·tol′o·gy (tĕl′mȧ-tŏl′ō-jĭ), n. [telmato- + -logy.] A branch of physiography treating of peat bogs, swamps, etc.
— tel′ma·to·log′i·cal (-tō-lŏj′ĭ-kăl), adj.

tel′o- (tĕl′ō-), tel-. A combining form Greek telo-, tel-, from telos, meaning end, as in teloblast, telophase.

tel′o-. [Gr. tēlo-, fr. tēle far, far off.] = 1st TELE-, as in telotype.

tel′o·blast (tĕl′ō-blăst), n. [1st telo- + -blast.] Embryol. One of the large cells which produce lines of smaller cells at the growing end of many embryos, as those of many annelids. — tel′o·blas′tic (-blăs′tĭk), adj.

tel′o·den′dri·on (-dĕn′drĭ-ŏn), n.; pl. -DRIA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. 1st telo- + Gr. dendrion, dim. of dendron tree.] Anat. a The terminal arborization of a dendrite. b Loosely, a teleneurite.

tel′o·dy·nam′ic (tĕl′ō-dī-năm′ĭk; -dĭ-năm′ĭk), adj. [2d telo- + dynamic.] Relating to the transmission of power to a distance, specif. by a system of ropes or cables and pulleys.

tel′o·ki·ne′sis (tĕl′ō-kĭ-nē′sĭs), n. [NL., fr. 1st telo- + Gr. kinēsis motion.] Biol. The rearrangement of nuclei and other bodies in the telophase stage of mitosis.

tel′o·lec′i·thal (tĕl′ō-lĕs′ĭ-thăl), adj. [1st telo- + Gr. lekithos yolk.] Embryol. Designating a type of egg in which the food yolk is mainly at one pole. Cf. CENTROLECITHAL.

tel′o·lem′ma (tĕl′ō-lĕm′ȧ), n. pl. TELOLEMMATA (-ȧ-tȧ). [NL., fr. 1st telo- + -lemma.] Anat. The delicate covering of the end organ of a nerve fiber where it expands on the surface of a muscle fiber.

tel′o·mit′ic (tĕl′ō-mĭt′ĭk), adj. [1st telo- + Gr. mitos a thread + -ic.] Biol. Having the spindle fibers attached terminally, as certain chromosomes; — distinguished from atelomitic.

tel′o·nism (tĕl′ō-nĭz′m), n. [Gr. telos end.] A nom de plume consisting of the final letters of a person's names. R.

Te·lo′pe·a (tē-lō′pē-ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tēlōpos seen from afar.] Bot. A genus of Australian shrubs and trees (family Proteaceae), notable for their beautiful scarlet terminal flowers, which have a common involucre at the base of the clusters, and which are followed by capsules with winged seeds. T. speciosissima is one of the waratahs. See WARATAH, Illust.

tel′o·phase (tĕl′ō-fāz), n. [1st telo- + phase.] Biol. The final stage of mitosis, in which the entire cell divides and the new nuclei are formed.

tel·op′sis (tĕl-ŏp′sĭs), n. [NL., fr. 2d tel(o)- + -opsis.] Psychical Research. Clairvoyance of objects other than mental.

tel·op′tic (tĕl-ŏp′tĭk), adj. [1st tele- + -optic.] Of, pertaining to, or designating, visual telesthesia.

‖te′los (tē′lŏs), n. [Gr., end.] The ultimate end or object.

tel′o·syn·ap′sis (tĕl′ō-sĭ-năp′sĭs), n. [NL., fr. 1st telo- + synapsis.] Biol. End-to-end union of chromosomes at synapsis; — distinguished from parasynapsis. — tel′o·syn·ap′tic (-tĭk), adj. — tel′o·syn·ap′tist (-tĭst), n.

tel′o·te·rop′a·thy (-tē-rŏp′ȧ-thĭ), n. [Gr. tēloteros, adv., tēloterō, adv., farther away + -pathy.] Psychical Research. Telepathy between living beings. — tel′o·ter′o·path′ic (-tĕr′ō-păth′ĭk), adj. — tel′o·ter′o·path′i·cal·ly (-ĭ-kăl-ĭ), adv.

Tel′o·trem′a·ta (tĕl′ō-trĕ′mȧ-tȧ; -trĕm′ȧ-tȧ) n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. telos end + trēma hole.] Paleontol. An order of brachiopods having the opening for the peduncle shared by both valves in earlier stages, but usually confined to one in later stages, and more or less limited below by a pair of deltidial plates. The spiral arms are supported by calcareous bars, loops, or spirals. — tel′o·trem′a·tous (-trĕm′ȧ-tŭs; -trē′mȧ-tŭs), adj.

tel′o·troch (tĕl′ō-trŏk), n. [See TELOTROCHA.] Zool. 1. a The preanal tuft of cilia in the trochophore larva of annelida. b A ciliated girdle at the hinder end of the actinotrocha of Phoronis and the tornaria of hemichordates.
2. = TELOTROCHA.

te·lot′ro·cha (tē-lŏt′rō-kȧ), n.; pl. -CHAE (-kē). [NL., fr. Gr. teleos complete + trochos wheel.] Zool. The larva of certain annelids having a preoral and a posterior circlet or tuft of cilia. — te·lot′ro·chal (-kăl), adj. — te·lot′ro·chous (-kŭs) adj.

tel′o·type (tĕl′ō-tīp), n. [2d telo- + -type.] A printing telegraph; also, an automatically printed telegram.

tel′pher (tĕl′fĕr), n. Also tel′fer. [Used instead of telephore, to avoid confusion with telephone; fr. Gr. tēle far, far off + pherein to bear.] A light car suspended from, and running on, aerial cables, esp. one automatically propelled by electricity. See TELPHERAGE. — v. t. To transport by telpher.

tel′pher·age (-ĭj), n. Also tel′fer·age. [telpher + -age.] Any system of automatic electric transportation; esp., an automatic electric system in which the cars are hung from, and run on, wire cables suspended in the air; hence, any similar system operated by other than electric power.

telpher carrier. The carriage, car, bucket, or other unit container used in a telpher conveyor system.

telpher line. The route of a telpherage system.

tel′pher·man (tĕl′fĕr-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A telpher operator.

telpher railway. A telpherage system which uses cars for the container units.

tel′pher·way′ (tĕl′fĕr-wā′), n. A telpher ropeway.

‖tel quel (tĕl kĕl). [F.] 1. Literally, such as [it is]; — a clause inserted in certain contracts in foreign commerce which are made to hold good in any case, each party to bear any loss that may accrue to him.
2. Designating a bill of exchange which has a currency different from the customary periods, as a bill which matures in seven weeks or in twenty-six days. The rate at which such bills are discounted is known as a tel quel rate. Brit.

tel′son (tĕl′sŭn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. telson a boundary, limit.] Zool. The terminal segment of the body of an arthropod or segmented worm, esp. that of a crustacean, as the lobster, where it forms the middle lobe of the tail. The term is used esp. in reference to the embryo. — tel·son′ic (tĕl-sŏn′ĭk), adj.

Tel′u·gu (tĕl′ōō-gōō), n. Also Tel′e·gu (tĕl′ĕ-). 1. sing. & pl. One of a Dravidian people in Hyderabad, India, northwest of Madras, now fairly civilized. They number about 20,000,000.
2. A Dravidian language of east central India, spoken by over twenty million people. The language is euphonious, every word ending in a vowel, and employs an alphabet essentially the same as the Kanarese, the characters consisting of graceful curves suitable for palm-leaf writing. See DRAVIDIAN LANGUAGES.

Telugu, as a vernacular, is more widely spread than Tamil. It occupies practically the whole of the east of the peninsula till it meets Tamil on the south. Census of India, 1901.

Tel′u·gu, adj. Of or pertaining to Telugu or the Telugu.

tel′ur·gy (tĕl′ûr-jĭ), n. [1st tel(e)- + -urgy.] The hypothetical action of one person's thought and desire upon the brain of another person by the transmission of some unknown form of energy.

tel′yn (tĕl′ĭn), n. [MW.] Music. An old Celtic harp.

Tem (tĕm), n. [Egypt. Atumū.] Egypt. Relig. A sun-god regarded as the "closer" of the day, or the setting sun, and often as the creator of the world. He wears the pschent and carries the ankh and a scepter. Called also Atmu, Atum, or Tum. Cf. RA.

‖te′ma (tā′mȧ), n. [It.] Music. A theme.

Te′ma (tē′mȧ), n. A district (modern Taima) and people of northern Arabia. Gen. xxv. 15.

te′ma·cha (tā′mä-chä; tä-mä′-), n. [Per. tamākhra a joke, jest.] A Persian type of comedy or farce, somewhat like an interlude, performed by traveling players.

te′ma·la·ca′tl (tā′mȧ-lä-kä′t'l; -tȧ), n. [Nahuatl, lit., spindle stone, fr. tetl stone + malacatl spindle.] A stone to which victims were attached in the human sacrifices of the Aztecs. Called also spindle stone, because of its shape teman (tĕm′n), n. sing. & pl. [Ar. thumn one eighth.] See MEASURE, Table.

Te′man (tē′măn), n. Bib. A district in Edom. Jer. xl. 20.

Te′man·ite (tē′măn-īt), n. Bib. One of the inhabitants of either Teman or Tema.

tem′be (tĕm′bĕ), n. [Appar. fr. Bantu niumba tembe a few houses, a village; but really an error, as niumba means houses, and tembe means few.] Ethnog. A native house of dried mud or clay, usually square or rectangular with a court. East Africa.

‖tem·be′ta (tĕn-bā′tȧ), tem′be·i·te′ra (tĕn′bā-tā′rȧ), n [Pg.] The wooden plug worn in the lower lip, or ear, by the Botocudos.

tem·blor′ (tĕm-blōr′), n.; pl. TEMBLORS (-blōrz′); TEMBLORES (-blō′rās). [Sp.] An earthquake. U. S.

Tem′bu (tĕm′bōō), n. A Kafir of one of the chief tribes, occupying Tembuland, South Africa; — called also Amatembu. See KAFFIR, 2.

tem′e·nos (tĕm′ĕ-nŏs), n.; pl. TEMENE (-nē). [Gr.] Gr. Antiq. A sacred precinct.

tem′er·ar′i·ous (tĕm′ĕr-âr′ĭ-ŭs), adj. [L. temerarius. See TEMERITY.] Unreasonably venturous; rash; headstrong; reckless; heedless; also, Obs., chance; fortuitous. — tem′er·ar′i·ous·ly, adv. — tem′er·ar′i·ous·ness, n te·mer′i·ty (tē-mĕr′ĭ-tĭ), n. [F. témérité, fr. L. temeritas, fr. temere by chance, rashly, orig., in the dark; akin to Skr. tamas darkness, OIr. temel, L. tenebrae. Cf. TENEBROUS.] Unreasonable contempt of danger; extreme venturesomeness; rashness.

Syn.—See RASHNESS. Ant.—Timidity, caution; cowardice.

tem′er·ous (tĕm′ĕr-ŭs), adj. Rash; venturesome; bold. — tem′er·ous·ly, adv. — tem′er·ous·ness, n. All Rare.

tem·iak′ (tĕm-yăk′), n. [Esk. tinpmiag, tingmeak, lit., bird.] An outer coat or jacket of bird skins worn by the Eskimos.

Te·mis′ka·ming (tĕ-mĭs′kȧ-mĭng), n. An Indian of an Algonquian tribe, living about Lake Temiskaming in Ontario and Quebec.

Tem′ne (tĕm′nē), n. a A Negro of the dominant tribe, of the interior of Sierra Leone; — called also Tinni, Timmani, and Timneh. b The language of the Temnes, related to Wolof.

tem′no- (tĕm′nō-). Zool. A combining form from Greek temnein, to cut, sever, as in temnospondylous.

tem′no·spon′dy·lous (tĕm′nō-spŏn′dĭ-lŭs), adj. [temno- + Gr. spondylos vertebra.] Zool. & Paleontol. a Rachitomous. b Of or pertaining to a suborder, Tem′no·spon′dy·li (-lī), of stegocephalian amphibians having some of the vertebrae rachitomous. Eryops, Cricotus, and Archegosaurus are genera included in the group.

Tem·pe′an (tĕm-pē′ăn), adj. Of, pertaining to, or resembling, Tem′pe (tĕm′pē), a valley in Thessaly, celebrated by Greek poets for its beauty; hence, beautiful; charming.

tem′per (tĕm′pĕr), v.; TEM′PERED (-pĕrd); TEM′PER·ING. [From AS. temprian, but influenced by OF. temprer, F. tempérer; cf. also F. tremper to dip, to soak, to temper (steel); all fr. L. temperare; akin to L. tempus time. See TEMPORAL pertaining to time; cf. DISTEMPER, TAMPER, TEMPERAMENT, TEMPERANCE.] Transitive: 1. To mingle in due proportion; to prepare by combining; to compound; blend. Archaic. "To temper poisons." Shak.
2. To regulate, esp. by moderating; to qualify, as by an ingredient; hence, to soften; mollify; assuage; as, to temper justice with mercy; to temper one's ecstasy; also, Now Rare, to restore to good health; to cure or heal.

God tempers the wind . . . to the shorn lamb. Sterne.

3. To fit together; to adjust; accommodate. Now Rare.

Thy sustenance . . . serving to the appetite of the eater, tempered itself to every man's liking. Wisdom xvi. 21.

4. To moisten to a proper consistency and stir thoroughly, as loam for molding, etc.
5. To govern; manage; direct. Obs. A Latinism.
6. To attune; to make accordant. Chiefly Poetic.

To which the birds tempered their matin lay. Shelley.

7. Ceramics. To mix (clay) with water and knead to a uniform texture.
8. Glass Mfg. To anneal or toughen (glass) by a process of gradually heating and cooling.
9. Leather Mfg. To make uniformly moist and soft.
10. Milling. To moisten (grain) or, sometimes, to remove moisture from (damp grain), to secure the best grinding.
11. Music. Orig., to adjust the pitch of (an instrument); to tune; now, specif., to adjust the pitch of (a note, chord, instrument, or the like) to a temperament (sense 6).
12. Painting. To mix oil with (colors) in making paint ready for use.
13. Physics. To bring to a specified consistency; specif., Metal., etc., to bring (steel, glass, or the like) to a proper degree of hardness and toughness. Steel that has been hardened by high heating and sudden cooling, as by plunging into water, usually requires to be gently reheated to a degree depending on its proposed use, and it is this latter process (called also drawing the temper or simply drawing) that is tempering in the strict sense, although the word is loosely applied to the combined hardening and reheating or the hardening alone, esp. when done in oil (see OIL-TEMPER). The colors assumed by a smooth surface of the steel as a result of the reheating are due to thin films of oxide, and correspond to definite temperatures, as follows: very pale yellow, 430° F.; pale straw, 450°; yellow, 470°; brownish, 490°; purple brown, 510°; purple, 530°; bright blue, 550°; darker blue, 560°; very dark blue, 600°. The reheating temperature for various articles is given as: razors, 450°F.; shears and scissors, 490°; woodworking tools, 530°; swords and springs, 570°; handsaws, 600°. See TEMPER, n., 7; ANNEAL, v. t., 2. Cf. HEAT-TREAT.

Thus steel is in its hardest and most brittle state when hardened; in its softest and toughest when annealed; and in an intermediate condition when tempered. Int. Encyc.

14. Sugar Mfg. To treat (juice), as with lime in clarifying.

—, Intransitive: 1. To have or get a proper or desired state or quality; esp., to grow soft and pliable.

I have him already tempering between my finger and my thumb, and shortly will I seal with him. Shak.

2. Metal. To produce satisfactory temper (see TEMPER, n., 7); — said of metallic alloys which can be treated to give the desired physical properties.

Syn. — Moderate, adjust, mitigate.

Ant. — Intensify, exaggerate, emphasize.

tem′per (tĕm′pĕr), n. [From TEMPER, v.] 1. State of any compound substance resulting from the mixture of ingredients; mixture, esp. due or just mixture of different qualities: as, the temper of mortar.

---

tel′lu·ret (tĕl′û-rĕt), n. A telluride. Obs. [n.]

tel·lu′ri·on. Var. of TELLURIAN.

Tel′-me′lah (tĕl′mē′lȧ). Bib.

tel′o·den′dron (tĕl′ō-dĕn′drŏn), n. = TELODENDRION.

Tel′oo·goo. Var. of TELUGU.

tel′o·phrag′ma (tĕl′ō-frăg′mȧ), n.; pl. TELOPHRAGMATA (-mȧ-tȧ). [NL.] = KRAUSE'S MEMBRANE.

tel′o·troph′ic (-trŏf′ĭk), adj. [1st telo- + trophic.] = ACROTROPHIC.

Tel′ra·mund, Count (tĕl′rȧ-mōōnt), n. [G.] See LOHENGRIN.

telt (tĕlt), past & past part. of TELL. Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng.

Tem′a·ni (tĕm′ȧ-nī; tē′mȧ-). Bib.

‖tem′be·ta′ra. Var. of TEMBETA.

tem·bou′ki grass. Var. of TAMBOOKIE GRASS.

[THEME.]

teme. † TEAM, TEEM, TOOM.

Tem′e·ni (tĕm′ē-nī; tē′mē-). Bib.

tem′er·ar′y, adj. Rash. Obs.

tem′er·ate, v. t. [L. temeratus, past part. of temerare.] To violate; desecrate. Obs. — tem′er·a′tion, n. Obs.

tem′er·ous. † TIMOROUS.

te·min′ (tā-mēn′), n. [Turk. temin, fr. Ar. thamīn one eighth.] = LUIGINO.

Tem′minck's·tint (tĕm′ĭngks). [After C. J. Temminck (1778–1858), Dutch naturalist.] See STINT.

temp (tĕmp), v. t. = TEMPT. Chiefly Scot.

temp (tĕmp). Short for TEMPERATURE, TEMPO.

Tem′pel-L. Swift's′ com′et. [After E. W. L. Tempel (see TEMPEL'S COMET) and L. Swift, Am astronomer.] See COMET, Table.

Tem′pel's com′et (tĕm′pĕlz). [After E. W. L. Tempel (1821–89), Ger. astronomer.] See COMET, Table.

tem′per. † TAMPER.

2. Constitution or condition of body; temperament; in old writers, the mixture or relative proportion of the four humors, blood, choler, phlegm, and melancholy; also, temperature. Obs.
3. Disposition or frame of mind, particularly with regard to the passions and affections; as, a calm or fiery temper.
The consequents of a certain ethical temper. J. H. Newman.
4. Calmness of mind; equanimity; composure. Archaic, exc. in the phrases, to keep or lose one's temper.
To fall with dignity, with temper rise. Pope.
5. Heat of mind or passion; irritation; proneness to anger, or the like; as, to display temper.
6. Middle state or course; mean; medium. Obs.
The perfect lawgiver is a just temper between the mere man of theory . . . and the mere man of business. Macaulay.
7. The state of a metal or other substance, esp. as to its hardness and toughness. Among steelmakers the word refers to the carbon content of the steel, which affects its hardening properties; among steel users it refers to the actual physical state of the metal as shown by its color in tempering. The two senses are contrasted in the table below (see also TEMPER, v. t., 13). Steelmakers use also

TEMPER	STEELMAKER'S MEANING	STEEL USER'S MEANING very high	150 carbon or over (= 1.50 per cent carbon)	light straw high	100 to 120 carbon	straw medium	70 to 80 "	brown to pigeonwing mild	40 to 60 "	light blue low	20 to 30 "	dark blue soft, or dead soft	under 20 "	black the following nomenclature: razor temper (about 150 carbon); saw-file temper (140); tool temper (125); spindle temper (112.5); chisel temper (100); set temper (87.5); die temper (75).

8. A substance added to or mixed with something else to modify the properties of the latter. Specif.: a Sugar Mfg. Lime or other substance used in clarifying the juice. b Metal. Any of various mixtures of metals added to another metal or metals in making an alloy.
9. Milling. The condition of relative dryness (of grain) proper for treatment in processing.
Syn. — Humor, mood. See DISPOSITION.
— out of temper. Not in good temper; irritated; angry.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
temper-spoiling, temper-trying, temper-wearing.
tem'per·a (tĕm'pĕr·ä; tĕm'pä·rä), n. [It.] A process of painting, in which an albuminous or colloidal medium is employed as a vehicle instead of oil. While not entirely distinct from distemper in meaning the term tempera is usually confined to the field of the fine arts.
tem'per·a·ble (tĕm'pĕr·ä·b'l), adj. Orig., temperate; mild; now, capable of being tempered. — tem'per·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — tem'per·a·bly, adv.
tem'per·al'i·ty (tĕm'pĕr·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Temper. Shak.
tem'per·a·ment (tĕm'pĕr·ä·mĕnt; 59), n. [L. temperamentum a mixing in due proportion, proper measure, temperament. See TEMPER, v.] 1. Internal constitution; mixture of constituents or ingredients in a compound; state with respect to the relative proportion of different qualities, or constituent parts; consistency.
The common law . . . has reduced the kingdom to its just state and temperament. Sir M. Hale.
2. In ancient physiology, the relative proportions of the elements, dry, moist, hot, and cold, constituting the body; the state of the body as regards these proportions, esp. as affected by their relative quantities. Hence, also in modern usage, the peculiar physical and mental character of an individual; as, the sanguine, phlegmatic, choleric (or bilious), or melancholic temperament, denoting types formerly believed to be due to the preponderance of one or other of these humors. See HUMOR, n., 2.
3. Constitution or frame of mind; temper; disposition; esp., the character of mind or of mental reactions characteristic of an individual. Cf. sense 7, below.
4. Act of tempering, or modifying; adjustment, as of clashing rules, interests, passions, or the like; also, the means or result of such adjustment or the adjustment itself.
Wholesome temperaments of the rashness of popular assemblies. Sir J. Macintosh.
5. Temperature; also, climate. Obs.
6. Music. The system or process of slightly modifying the intervals of the pure scale (see 6th SCALE, 11 a) so as to admit of modulations without the use of an inconveniently large number of distinctions in pitch; also, the adjustment so made. A series of pure scales on the different keynotes, C, D, etc., have comparatively few tones coinciding in pitch: thus, c♯ of the key of D differs by a perceptible interval from d♭ of the key of A♭. Temperament produces a set of compromise tones, certain intervals in each scale being made slightly dissonant in order that single tones may answer for two or more of nearly like pitch (as C♯ and d♭) and twelve fixed tones to the octave may answer for all the scales or keys. In treating these dissonances two kinds are distinguished: unequal temperament, which keeps pure or nearly pure intonation in certain keys, and accumulates the dissonances, called the "wolf," in the remaining little used keys; equal temperament, which divides the octave into twelve equal parts, all keys being thus available for modulation. The latter is now universal in keyboard instruments.
7. Psychol. The characteristic of an individual which is revealed in his proneness to certain feelings, moods, and desires, and which may depend upon the glandular and chemical characteristics of his constitution.
Syn. — See DISPOSITION.
tem'per·a·ment, v. t. To imbue with a temperament, or a characteristic disposition or frame of mind.
tem'per·a·men'tal (tĕm'pĕr·ä·mĕn'tăl), adj. Of or pertaining to temperament; constitutional; esp., having or showing a sensitive, easily excited temperament. — tem'per·a·men'tal·ly, adv.
tem'per·a·men'tal·ist (-ĭst), n. A temperamental person.
tem'per·a·ment'ed (tĕm'pĕr·ä·mĕn'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Having a temperament.
tem'per·ance (tĕm'pĕr·ăns), n. [AF. temperance, fr. L. temperantia; cf. F. tempérance. See TEMPER, v.] 1. Habitual moderation in the indulgence of the appetites and passions; moderation; as, temperance in eating and drinking; temperance in any pleasure; specif., moderation in, or sometimes, narrowly, abstinence from, the use of intoxicants.
2. Moderation of action, thought, or feeling; self-restraint; self-control; calmness. Archaic.
He calmed his wrath with goodly temperance. Spenser.
3. Temperature; esp., moderate temperature. Obs.
4. Act of tempering, or mingling; combination, esp. the proper combination to give a desired consistency. Obs.
Syn. — See ABSTINENCE.
Ant. — Excess, intemperance, extravagance, overindulgence. tem'per·ance (tĕm'pĕr·ăns), adj. Of, pertaining to, advocating or practicing, temperance; — often predicatively; as, she was strictly temperance. Chiefly Colloq.
temperance drink. Any nonalcoholic drink; esp., a carbonated or flavored water or extract, as sarsaparilla, root beer, or the like.
temperance hotel. A hotel in which no intoxicating liquors are sold or served. temperance liquors. Beverages used as temperance drinks; nonintoxicating liquors. temperance movement, society, etc. A movement, society, etc., to diminish excessive use, or, sometimes, abolish the use, of alcoholic liquors as a beverage.
tem'per·ate (tĕm'pĕr·ĭt; 59), adj. [L. temperatus, past part. of temperare. See TEMPER, v.] 1. Moderate; evincing, or characterized by, moderation; not excessive; as, temperate heat; a temperate climate; temperate enthusiasm; specif.: a Moderate in the indulgence of the natural appetites or passions; as, temperate in eating and drinking. b Not violent or extravagant; self-controlled; restrained; as, temperate language; a temperate speaker. c Moderate or abstemious in the use of intoxicating liquors.
2. Having a moderate climate or temperature; mild; as, a temperate country; the temperate zones.
3. Proceeding from temperance. Rare.
The temperate sleeps, and spirits light as air. Pope.
4. Using one's power in a moderate, considerate way; respecting constitutional limitations. Rare.
Our loyal passion for our temperate kings. Tennyson.
5. Designating a moderate temperature, usually 66°; — a point indicated on some thermometers.
6. Music. Tempered; — of an interval or scale.
Syn. — Abstemious, sober, calm, cool. See MODERATE.
Ant. — Ardent, passionate, unrestrained.
— tem'per·ate·ly, adv. — tem'per·ate·ness, n. tem'per·ate (-āt), v. t. 1. To render temperate; to moderate; soften; temper. Now Rare.
2. = TEMPER. Obs.
temperate rain forest. Ecology. A woodland found in cool, but mostly frost-free, regions of heavy annual rainfall. It is characterized by having many tree species, but, unlike tropical rain forests, there is usually a dominant one, as in the Nothofagus forests of southern South America and the Podocarpus forests of New Zealand. Temperate rain forests occur, in any considerable quantity, only in the region of Tierra del Fuego, southeastern Australia, New Zealand, and parts of Japan. See RAIN FOREST.
Temperate Zone. Geog. The zone between either tropic and the corresponding polar circle. See ZONE, Illust.; NORTH TEMPERATE ZONE; SOUTH TEMPERATE ZONE.
tem'per·a'tive (tĕm'pĕr·ä'tĭv; -ä·tĭv), adj. [LL. temperativus.] Having power to temper; hence, moderating; soothing.
tem'per·a·ture (-ä·tûr; 59), n. [L. temperatura due measure, proportion, temper, temperament; cf. F. température.]
1. Mixture; compound. Obs.
Made a temperature of brass and iron together. Holland.
2. Constitution; state; temperament; disposition. Obs.
The nurse . . . shall be chosen . . . according to the temperature of the babe. J. Jones (1579).
3. Moderation; freedom from passion, extravagance, or excess; also, mildness, as of climate. Obs.
4. Act of tempering, or condition of being tempered; temper, as of a metal. Obs.
5. Degree of hotness or coldness measured on a definite scale based on some physical phenomenon (as the expansion of mercury in a thermometer); as, the temperature of the air was 20°C. (68° F.); high or low temperature. The theoretical lower limit of temperature is absolute zero (which see); the lowest temperature actually attained is about 1° absolute, or −272° C. There is no theoretical upper limit; the temperature near the surface of the sun is about 6000° C., while that at its center is supposed to be of the order of 40,000,000° C. See THERMOMETER.
6. Physiol. & Med. The degree of heat of the body of a living being; also, loosely, body heat above the normal; a feverish condition. The normal temperature in the mouth of a human adult is approximately 98.6° F.
temperature coefficient. Physics & Chem. A numerical value indicating the relation between a change in temperature and a simultaneous change in some other property, as solubility; specif., Elec., the factor α in the equation $R_t = R_0 (1 + \alpha t)$, in which R_t equals the resistance of a conductor at $t°$ Centrigrade and R_0 equals its resistance at 0° Centrigrade. temperature curve. A graph recording changes in temperature over given periods of time. temperature gradient. Rate of change of temperature with increase of height; lapse rate. temperature relay. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3. temperature sensation. A sensation of warmth or cold. Certain points, esp. on the skin (cold spots) are sensitive to cold stimuli, and other points (warm spots) are sensitive to warm stimuli, whereas the rest of the skin is relatively insensitive to temperature. A cold spot will yield a sensation of cold not only in response to its appropriate stimulus, but also in response to certain electrical, chemical, and mechanical stimuli, and even to heat (40° to 60° C). The so-called sensation of heat results from the joint stimulation of warm and cold spots. temperature sense. The sense, largely cutaneous, that responds to warmth and cold. See TEMPERATURE SENSATION. temperature signal. See WEATHER SIGNAL, and Colored Plate VII. temperature spot. A warm spot or cold spot. See TEMPERATURE SENSATION. temper color. Metal. See TEMPER, v. t., 13. tem'pered (tĕm'pĕrd), adj. 1. Having a temper.
2. Moderated, mollified, diminished in intensity or the like by the influence or mixture of an additional ingredient; as, his tempered words caused the tension to relax; tempered wisdom.
3. Angry; in a bad temper. Dial., U. S.
4. Music. Conformed to temperament, esp. equal temperament; — said of an interval, intonation, semitone, or scale.
— tem'pered·ly, adv. — tem'pered·ness, n.
— tem'pered. A combining form of tempered, as in:

bad-tempered	hot-tempered	short-tempered even-tempered	ill-tempered	tender-tempered good-tempered	quick-tempered	ugly-tempered tempered lead (lĕd). A lead alloy containing about 1.3 per cent of sodium with a small quantity of antimony and tin. It is harder than lead, and may be rolled into thin sheets.

tempered semitone. See SEMITONE. tem'per·er (tĕm'pĕr·ĕr), n. One who or that which tempers; specif.: a A machine in which lime, cement, etc., are mixed with water. b A workman who tempers metal, clay, etc. c One who mitigates or soothes.
tem'per·ish (-ĭsh), adj. Prone to exhibit temper. temper pin. Chiefly Scot. 1. The regulating pin of a spinning wheel.
2. A peg or screw of a violin or similar instrument.
3. Figuratively, temper.
temper screw. 1. A screw link, to which is attached the rope of a rope-drilling apparatus, for feeding and slightly turning the drill at each stroke.
2. A setscrew used for adjusting.
tem'per·some (tĕm'pĕr·sŭm), adj. Displaying or marked by a display of temper; hotheaded.
tem'per·y (tĕm'pĕr·ĭ), adj. Marked by or showing temper, irritation, or the like.
tem'pest (tĕm'pĕst; -pĭst; 119), n. [OF. tempeste (F. tempête), fr. (assumed) VL. tempesta, for L. tempestas a portion of time, a season, weather, storm; akin to L. tempus time. See TEMPORAL pert. to time.] 1. An extensive violent wind, esp. one attended with rain, hail, or snow; a furious storm; sometimes, Dial., a thunderstorm.
2. Figuratively, any violent tumult, commotion, or agitation; as, a political tempest; a tempest of tears.
3. See 2d DRUM, 6. Archaic.
Syn. — Gale, storm; tumult, turmoil. See WIND.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

tempest-bearing	tempest-loving	tempest-threatened tempest-beaten	tempest-proof	tempest-torn tempest-blown	tempest-rent	tempest-tossed tempest-born	tempest-rocked	tempest-troubled tempest-clear	tempest-scattered	tempest-walking tempest-driven	tempest-scoffing	tempest-winged tempest-flung	tempest-shattered	tempest-worn tempest-gripped	tempest-sundered tempest-harrowed	tempest-swept tem'pest, v. t. & i. [OF. tempester.] To move or to send forth like a tempest; to agitate; storm.

Who straight with thunder of the drums and shot Tempest their wraths on them that wist it not. Chapman.
She tempested out of Miss Colton's house. W. D. Howells.
Tem'pest, The. A play by Shakespeare, probably written 1611, published 1623. See PROSPERO, ARIEL, MIRANDA, CALIBAN. tem·pes'ti·cal (tĕm·pĕs'tĭ·kăl), adj. Tempestuous. Dial. tempest in a teapot. A great commotion about a matter of small importance.
tem·pes'tive (tĕm·pĕs'tĭv), adj. [L. tempestivus.] Seasonable. — tem·pes'tive·ly, adv. Both Archaic.
tem·pes·tiv'i·ty (tĕm'pĕs·tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. [L. tempestivitas.] Obs. a Seasonableness; timeliness. b A period of timely character.
tem·pes'tu·ous (tĕm·pĕs'tū·ŭs), adj. [OF. tempestueus (F. tempêtueux), fr. LL. tempestuosus.] Involving or resembling a tempest; stormy; turbulent; violent; as, tempestuous weather; a tempestuous night; a tempestuous debate. — tem·pes'tu·ous·ly, adv. — tem·pes'tu·ous·ness, n. tem'pest·y (tĕm'pĕst·ĭ; -pĭst·ĭ), adj. Tempestuous; stormy.
‖ tem'pête' (tăn'pât'), n. [F., lit., tempest.] A 19th century dance similar to a quadrille.
tem'plar (tĕm'plĕr), adj. Of or pert. to a temple. Rare.
Tem'plar (tĕm'plĕr), n. [ME. templere, fr. OF. templier, ML. templarius. See TEMPLE church.] 1. One of a celebrated religious and military order first established at Jerusalem about A.D. 1118 for the protection of pilgrims and of the Holy Sepulcher. These Knights Templars, or Knights of the Temple, were so named because for a time they occupied quarters in the palace of Baldwin II in Jerusalem, next to the building known as Solomon's Temple. The order was at first limited in numbers, and its members were bound by vows of chastity and poverty. After the conquest of Palestine by the Saracens the Templars spread over Europe and were enriched by donations of money and lands. Their great power and wealth, however, made them political enemies, until, on the accusation of heresy and other offenses, the order was finally suppressed by the Council of Vienne in 1312.

Templar, 1.

2. [not cap.] A barrister or student of law who had chambers in the Temple, London, the original buildings having belonged to the Knights Templars. Eng.
3. One of an order among temperance men, styled Good Templars.
4. Freemasonry. = KNIGHT TEMPLAR, 2. tem'plar·dom (tĕm'plĕr·dŭm), n. The field of activity of the Templars; the motives of the Templars; Templars collectively; specif., religious chivalry.
The ideal of the well-born man without possessions was embodied in knight-errantry and templardom. Wm. James.
tem'plar·ism (-ĭz'm), n. The principle ascribed to the order of the Templars; the life, actions, and ideals of the Templars.
tem'plar·y (-ĭ), n. a Obs. A Templar. b Templars collectively; esp., the Templars (sense 4) as an organization. tem'plate (-plĭt), tem'plet (-plĕt; -plĭt; 119), n. [F. templet, dim. of temple; cf. L. templum a small timber. See 3d TEMPLE.] 1. Usually spelled templet. A bezel in a cut gem.
2. = 3d LUTE, 2.
3. Arch. A short piece placed in a wall under a girder or other beam to distribute the weight or pressure; also, a beam spanning a doorway or the like and supporting joists.
4. Mach. A gauge, pattern, or mold, commonly a thin plate or board, or a light frame used as a guide to the form of the work to be executed.
tem'plate, tem'plet, v. t. To mark or lay off the pattern or position of with a template; as, to template rivet holes. — tem'plat·er (-plĭt·ĕr), n.
template excavator. An excavator in which a small scoop moves back and forth along the under side of a vertical steel template having the form of the cross section of the ditch to be excavated.
tem'ple (tĕm'p'l), n. [F. See TEMPLATE.] Weaving. A device in a loom for keeping the web stretched transversely, as a flat wooden bar with small pins at each end.

---

tem'per·an·cy (tĕm'pĕr·ăn·sĭ), n. Temperance. Obs.
tem'per·ant, adj. [L. temperans, -antis, pres. part.] Temperate. Obs. tem'perd. Tempered. Ref. Sp. tem'per·less, adj. See -LESS. tem'per·ure, n. [OF. tempreüre.] See TEMPERATURE. Obs. = TEMPERATURE. Obs.
tem·pes'tious. † TEMPESTUOUS. tem·pes'tous, adj. Tempestuous. Obs. tem'pl. Temple. Ref. Sp. tem'plar·like', adv. See -LIKE. — tem'plar·like'ness, n. template jig. Mach. = CLAMP JIG. tem'pld. Templed. Ref. Sp.

tem'ple (tĕm'p'l), n. [OF. (F. tempe), fr. (assumed) VL. tempula, dim. of L. tempora, pl. of tempus. See TEMPORAL pertaining to time.] 1. The space, on either side of the head of man and some other mammals, back of the eye and forehead, above the zygomatic arch and in front of the ear.
2. One of the side bars of a pair of spectacles, jointed to the bows, and passing one on either side of the head.
3. An ornament, as of needlework or jewelry, formerly worn at the side of the head.
4. Zool. The posterior or upper part of the gena of an insect.

tem'ple, n. [From AS. temp(e)l, and fr. OF. temple, both fr. L. templum a space marked out, sanctuary, temple. See TEMPORAL pertaining to time; cf. CONTEMPLATE, TEMPLAR.] 1. An edifice dedicated to the worship of a deity, and anciently usually regarded as a residing place of the deity, whose presence was symbolized by a statue or other sacred token. See COLUMNIATION.
2. [cap.] One of three successive buildings in ancient Jerusalem for the worship of Jehovah, the original one built by Solomon and destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar about 586 B.C.; the second built by the Jews after the Captivity (c. 537–516 B.C.); and the third begun by Herod the Great, and destroyed by the Romans in A.D. 70.

Temple of Heaven, Peiping.

3. Hence, among Christians, an edifice for public worship; a church; esp., in France, a Protestant church.
4. Figuratively: Any place in which the divine presence specially resides. "The temple of his body." John ii. 21.
Know ye not that ye are the temple of God? 1 Cor. iii. 16.
5. [cap.] Orig., either of two establishments of the Knights Templars in London and Paris; now: a Two Inns of Court (Inner and Middle Temple) which occupy the site of the London establishment. b The church of St. Mary, a royal peculiar and the only extant building of the original London establishment; — called The Temple.
6. A local organization of Odd Fellows.
7. [cap.] Hort. A variety of orange of the mandarin type, presumably a hybrid between the mandarin and sweet orange.
8. Mormon Ch. A building constructed, dedicated, and used for the administration of sacred ordinances to and for the living, and to the living in behalf of the dead, such as baptism for the dead, the endowment, and sealing in marriage.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:
temple-crowned temple-haunting temple-sacred temple-guarded temple-robbing temple-treated tem'ple, adj. Pertaining to, or associated with, a temple.

tem'ple (tĕm'p'l), v. t. To build or appropriate a temple to; also, to provide with temples, or churches. Rare.

temple axis. A line defined by the masonry of ancient temples, or by pillars, according to which the positions of the celestial bodies could be checked, to determine the time of year or day.

Temple Bar. A famous stone gateway, which formerly (it was removed in 1878 and set up at Waltham Cross, Hertfordshire) stood before the Temple in London at the junction of Fleet Street and the Strand. It marked the boundary between the City proper and Westminster. According to ancient custom the sovereign asked permission of the lord mayor to pass it when he visited the City. The heads of executed traitors, etc., used to be exposed there.

Temple Butte. Geol. Designating a limestone formation (Temple Butte limestone) representing the Devonian in the Grand Canyon region of Arizona. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

tem'pled (tĕm'p'ld), adj. Supplied with a temple or temples, or with churches; also, enclosed in a temple.

temple flower. The frangipani (Plumiera acuminata); — from its use as a decorative tree around temples in India.

temple mound. Amer. Archæol. 1. A mound, used as the foundation of a temple, characteristic of Mayan and Aztec architecture. Cf. TEOCALLI.
2. A mound, of a special truncated form, found in the eastern United States, and sometimes supposed to have been the site of an altar, or rude temple. Cf. MOUND BUILDER.

temple name or title. The posthumous dynastic title of a Chinese emperor.

Temple of Heaven. [Tr. of Chin. (Pek.) t'ien[1]-t'an[2], lit., heaven's altar.] A group of very important religious buildings in Peiping where the emperor used to offer periodic sacrifices. They are in an enclosed space, over a mile square, and include the Altar of Heaven, an exquisite circular, triple-terraced platform of white marble with elaborate carved balustrades and arches, etc. Specif., in this group, the Temple of Prayer for the Year (Chin. Ch'i[2]-Nien[2] Tien[4]), a circular, triple-roofed structure on a platform similar to that of the Altar of Heaven. It was constructed in 1420, but has frequently been repaired.

Temple of Onias. Jewish Hist. The temple founded at Leontopolis in Egypt, according to tradition, by the Jewish high priest Onias who fled from Jerusalem during the religious persecution by the Seleucids and Hellenizing Jews in the first quarter of the 2d century B.C.

Temple of Reason. The cathedral church of Notre Dame, in Paris, during the period of the French Revolution in which formal Christianity was under the ban of the Republic, and many churches were put to secular use.

Temple of the Sphinx. A building, erected perhaps by Khafre of the IVth dynasty, lying a little to the southeast of the Sphinx, and about 150 feet square. It may have been merely a gate, and not a temple.

temple prostitute. See PROSTITUTION b.

Temple Societies. See HOFFMANNITE.

tem'plet (tĕm'plĕt; -plĭt; 119), n. [temple church + -et.] A small temple. Cf. -LET.

tem'plet, n. [F. See 1st TEMPLE.] = 1st TEMPLE.

tem'plet, n. [F. templette. See TEMPLE of the head.] = 2d TEMPLE, 3.

tem'plet (tĕm'plĕt), n. [F.] = TEMPLATE. — tem'plet, v. t.

temple title. = TEMPLE NAME.

Tem'ple·to'ni·a (tĕm'p'l·tō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after John Templeton, Irish botanist.] Bot. A genus of Australian shrubs (family Fabaceae) having simple leaves, red or yellow flowers with a reflexed standard, and narrow wings. T. retusa, the coralbush, is cultivated.

temple tree. Any tree grown in temple gardens; specif. the temple flower.

tem'plize (tĕm'plīz), v. i. To become a temple. Rare. Fuller.

‖tem'plum (tĕm'plŭm), n. [L.] A temple or a place for auguries. See AUGUR, n., 1. Cf. AEDES.

tem'po (tĕm'pō), n. [Jap. tempō.] An obsolete oval bronze coin of Japan having a square hole in the center, coined in the last period of feudalism called "tempo" (1830–43).

tem'po (-pō), n.; pl. TEMPI (-pē), TEMPOS (-pōz). [It., fr. L. tempus. See TEMPORAL pert. to time.] 1. Literally, time; rate of movement; specif., in music, the rate of speed at which a piece or passage moves. The tempo is generally indicated at the beginning of a piece or movement by such adjectives as largo, adagio, andante, moderato, allegro, presto, etc., often further qualified by adverbs, as molto, non troppo, etc., and by reference to the metronome. Tempo is found in many Italian phrases used as directions: ‖tem'po co'mo·do (tĕm'pō kō'mō·dō). Moderate speed. — ‖tem'po di bal'lo (dē bäl'lō). Dance rhythm. — ‖tem'po di mar'ci·a (mär'chä). March rhythm. — ‖tem'po di val·zer' (väl·tsär'), or [F.] valse' (vals'). Waltz rhythm. — ‖tem'po gius'to (jōōs'tō). Exact tempo. — ‖tem'po or'di·na'ri·o (ôr'dē·nä'rē·ō). Moderate ⅔ tempo. — ‖tem'po pri'mo (prē'mō). The first or original speed, another having intervened. — ‖tem'po ru·ba'to (rōō·bä'tō). Literally, robbed or borrowed time; hence, an irregular tempo in which, for artistic reasons, some tones are made longer, some shorter than their legitimate time.
2. Figuratively, rate of motion, esp. of motion suggesting rhythm or measured movement; rhythm; hence, rate of activity in general; as, the tempo of an eight-oared shell; the tempo of the speaker's oration; the tempo of our age.

tem'po·ral (tĕm'pō·răl), adj. [LL. temporalis, fr. tempora the temples. See 2d TEMPLE.] Anat. & Zool. Of or pertaining to the temple or temples or the sides of the skull behind the orbits; of or pertaining to the temporal bone; — applied, specif., to any of one or more elongated scales behind the postoculars and between the parietals and supralabials, in certain reptiles.

tem'po·ral, n. A temporal bone, muscle, scale, etc.

tem'po·ral (tĕm'pō·răl), adj. [L. temporalis, fr. tempus, temporis, time, portion of time, the fitting or appointed time; akin to L. tempus temple (of the head), templum space marked out, sanctuary, Lith. tempti to pull, stretch; basic idea: to stretch, extend. Cf. CONTEMPORANEOUS EXTEMPORE, TEMPER, TEMPEST, TEMPLE of the head, TEMPLE church, TEMPO, 1st TEMPORAL, TEMPT, TENSE, n.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or limited by, time, esp. the present time or some designated time or period. Cf. SPATIAL.
2. Pertaining to, or limited by, time in the sense of the present life, or this world; secular; also, transitory; temporary; — distinguished from sacred or eternal.
The things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal. 2 Cor. iv. 18.
3. Civil or political, as distinguished from ecclesiastical; as, temporal power; temporal courts.
4. Chronological.
5. Gram. a Pertaining to or distinguished by the quantity of syllables. See AUGMENT, n., 2. b Of or pertaining to a tense, or tense distinction; expressive of a distinction as to time; as, a temporal clause.
Syn. — See EARTHLY, TEMPORARY.
Ant. — Spiritual; eternal; ecclesiastical.

tem'po·ral, n. Anything temporal or secular; a temporality; — chiefly in pl.

temporal artery. Anat. Any of certain arteries of the sides of the head. The deep temporal arteries are branches of the internal maxillary supplying the temporal muscle. The superficial temporal artery of each side is one of the two terminal branches of the external carotid artery, and a direct upward continuation of it. It gives off the middle temporal artery above the zygoma, and farther up divides into the anterior and posterior temporal arteries.

temporal augment. See AUGMENT, n., 2.

temporal bone. Anat. A compound bone of the side of the human skull. It consists of four principal parts: the squamous portion (representing the squamosal of other vertebrates), a large scalelike plate forming part of the wall of the brain case and temporal fossa and bearing externally the zygomatic process; the petrous portion, containing the internal ear and representing the periotic bones of lower vertebrates; the mastoid process, a posterior and external outgrowth of the petrous portion, containing air cells; and the tympanic portion, a plate surrounding the external auditory meatus and forming a vaginal sheath at the root of the styloid process. Other elements are also united with these. As these elements are mostly distinct in other vertebrates and even in many mammals, the term temporal bone is little used outside of human anatomy. It has, however, been applied to the sphenotic and hyomandibular bones of teleost fishes, and, in combination, as in supratemporal (which see), to other elements.

temporal convolution. Anat. One of the three chief convolutions, called, from their position, superior, middle, and inferior, of the external surface of the temporal lobe of the cerebrum. The sulci forming their lower boundaries are called the first, second, and third, temporal sulci.

temporal crest. = TEMPORAL LINE.

tem'po·ra'le (tĕm'pō·rä'lē), n. [ML., prop. neut. of L. temporalis pert. to time.] Eccl. That part of the breviary and missal which contains the proper portions of the daily offices in their order, beginning with Advent.

temporal fascia. A broad fascia covering the temporal muscle and attached below to the zygomatic arch.

temporal fossa. Anat. & Zool. One of the broad fossae on the sides of the skull behind the orbit, lodging muscles for raising the lower jaw. In man it is separated from the orbit by the zygomatic bone and greater wing of the sphenoid, lying mostly above the zygomatic arch, and is occupied by the temporal muscle. In other mammals and many other vertebrates, a corresponding fossa is recognizable. In many reptiles the supratemporal arch divides it into an upper supratemporal fossa and a lower or more lateral infratemporal or lateral temporal fossa.

temporal gyrus. = TEMPORAL CONVOLUTION.

‖tem'po·ra'lis (tĕm'pō·rä'lĭs), n. [NL.] Anat. The temporal muscle.

tem'po·ral·ism (tĕm'pō·răl·ĭz'm), n. 1. The theory favoring the papal claim to temporal power.
2. Philos. Any doctrine which emphasizes the ultimate reality of time and temporal things, as contrasted with doctrines which reduce the temporal to a manifestation of the eternal.
— tem'po·ral·ist (-ĭst), n. & adj.

tem'po·ral'i·ty (tĕm'pō·răl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [LL. temporalitas, in ML., church possessions.] 1. State or quality of being temporary or temporal; — opp. to perpetuity.
2. The realization of time relations; the conception of time and its opportunities and limitations as affecting man. "The idea of time, or rather, temporality, resumed its hold over men's minds." Am. Mercury.
3. The laity; temporalty. Obs. Sir. T. More.
4. Eccl. Usually pl. a Properties, possessions, and goods of churches and ecclesiastical corporations, and the revenues from dues, fees, tithes, collections, offerings, etc. b See SPIRITUALITY, 5 b.

tem'po·ral·ize (tĕm'pō·răl·īz), v. t. To place or define in time relations; also, to secularize. Rare.

temporal line. Craniol. Either of two curved lines or ridges on the frontal, parietal, and temporal bones, the inferior marking the upper limit of attachment of the temporal muscle and the superior marking the upper limit of attachment of the temporal fascia.

temporal lobe. Anat. A large lobe of each cerebral hemisphere situated below the fissure of Sylvius, and in front of the occipital lobe. It contains the middle, or descending, cornu of the lateral ventricle.

temporal lord. See LORD TEMPORAL.

temporal muscle. Anat. A large muscle in the temporal fossa, serving to raise the lower jaw. In man it is composed of fibers arising from the surface of the temporal fossa and converging to an aponeurosis which contracts into a thick, flat tendon inserted into the coronoid process of the mandible.

temporal nerve. Anat. Any of several nerves supplying the structures of the temporal region. They are derived from the facial and mandibular nerves.

temporal pattern. Psychol. The unitary impression produced by a succession of stimuli, as in a melody or rhythm.

temporal power of the Pope. Formerly papal sovereignty in the States of the Church; now, such sovereignty in the Vatican State.

temporal ridges. Anat. Two nearly parallel curved ridges or lines on each side of the skull, chiefly on the parietal bone.

temporal sign. Psychol. & Philos. A character or mark indicating the temporal locus or temporal relations of something perceived.

temporal sulcus. See TEMPORAL CONVOLUTION.

tem'po·ral·ty (tĕm'pō·răl·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [See TEMPORALITY.] 1. The laity; secular persons. Obs.
2. A secular possession; a temporality.

temporal vein. Anat. Any of several veins draining the temporal region; specif., the superficial temporal vein, a large vein on each side of the head formed by anterior and posterior tributaries from the scalp, etc., and receiving a middle temporal tributary from the temporal muscle. It unites with the internal maxillary vein to form the posterior facial vein. The deep temporal veins, from behind the temporal muscle, empty into the pterygoid plexus.

tem'po·ra'ne·ous (tĕm'pō·rā'nē·ŭs), adj. [LL. temporaneus happening at the right time, fr. tempus, temporis, time.] a Rare. Temporary. b Now Rare. Temporal. — tem'po·ra'ne·ous·ly, adv. — tem'po·ra'ne·ous·ness, n. Obs.

tem'po·rar'y (tĕm'pō·rĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -rĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. temporarius, fr. tempus, temporis, time.] 1. Lasting for a time only; existing or continuing for a limited time; not permanent; ephemeral; transitory; as, temporary relief; a temporary position.
2. Pertaining to a certain time; timely; also, pertaining to time as contrasted with eternity. Obs.
3. Temporal; secular. Obs.
Syn. — TEMPORARY, TEMPORAL. TEMPORARY (cf. PROVISIONAL) is opposed to permanent, lasting; TEMPORAL (cf. EARTHLY) is opposed to spiritual, eternal, ecclesiastical; as, a temporary arrangement, a temporary scaffolding; temporal power, lords temporal; "We can inform the detail of life, all that is passing, temporary, and insignificant, with beauty and nobility" (Mrs. Humphry Ward); "If such temporal pride is ridiculous, surely the spiritual is odious and detestable" (Fielding).
Ant. — Permanent, enduring, stable. See LASTING.
— tem'po·rar'i·ly (tĕm'pō·rĕr'ĭ·lĭ; -rĕr·ĭ·lĭ; emphat. also -rär'ĭ·lĭ), adv. — tem'po·rar'i·ness (-ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

tem'po·rar'y, n.; pl. -RARIES (-ĭz). 1. pl. Temporal or secular possessions.
2. A person temporarily in a place or position.

temporary annuity. See ANNUITY, 2.

temporary chairman. A presiding officer not permanently chosen, esp. one serving at the opening of an assembly or meeting; specif., U. S. Politics, the presiding officer, usually a prominent member of the party, chosen by the national committee to preside at the opening of a national convention and to deliver the keynote address.

temporary equilibrium price. = EQUATION PRICE.

temporary hardness. See HARDNESS, n., 2.

temporary life annuity. See ANNUITY, n., 2.

temporary nebula. Astron. A nebula which undergoes slow changes of brightness analogous in character to those of new or temporary stars.

temporary partial disability. In workmen's compensation, an injury which has temporarily impaired a worker's earning capacity.

temporary star. Astron. = NOVA.

temporary total disability. In workmen's compensation, an injury which has temporarily destroyed a worker's earning capacity.

tem'po·ra'tor (tĕm'pō·rā'tĕr), n. [Cf. L. temperator one that arranges.] A device for regulating temperature.

‖tem'po·re (tĕm'pō·rē), adv. [L., abl. of tempus time.] In the time of; as, tempore Henry IV.

‖tem'po·re re'gis (rē'jĭs). [L.] In the time of the king.

tem'po·ri·za'tion (tĕm'pō·rĭ·zā'shŭn; -rī·zā'shŭn), n. [Cf. F. temporisation.] a Act of temporizing; procrastination. b Rare. Timeserving.

tem'po·rize (tĕm'pō·rīz) v. i.; TEM'PO·RIZED (-rīzd); TEM'PO·RIZ'ING (-rīz'ĭng). [F. temporiser. See TEMPORAL pert. to time.] Intransitive: 1. To comply with the time or occasion; to humor, or yield, in reality or ostensibly and temporarily, to the current of opinion, circumstances, a demand, or the like; also, to trim, as between parties; as, he dared not refuse, but could not comply fully, so he temporized.
2. To delay; procrastinate. Now Rare.
3. To negotiate; parley. Obs.
—, Transitive: To soothe. Obs.

tem'po·riz'er (-rīz'ĕr), n. One who temporizes; a trimmer; a timeserver.

tem'ple·ful, n. See -FUL. tem'ple·less, adj. See -LESS. tem'ple·like', adj. See -LIKE. tem'ple·ward, adv. See -WARD. tem'pli·fy (tĕm'plĭ·fī), v. t. To make into a temple. Obs.
tem'po·ra (tĕm'pō·rȧ). Var. of TEMPERA. tem'po·ra. Pl. of TEMPUS. tem'po·ral·ly, adv. of TEMPORAL. tem'po·ral·ness, n. See -NESS.
‖tem'po·ra mu·tan'tur, nos et mu·ta'mur in il'lis. [L.] The times are changed, and we are changed with (in) them.
temporat. † TEMPORATE. temporaunce. † TEMPERANCY. tem'po·rist, n. Temporizer. Obs.

tem'po·riz'ing (tĕm'pō·rīz'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TEMPORIZE. Hence: adj. That temporizes. — tem'po·riz'ing·ly, adv.

tem'po·ro- (tĕm'pō·rō-). Anat. A combining form from Latin tempora, temples, denoting temporal and, as in temporomaxillary and the following:

temporoalar	temporofrontal	temporoparietal temporoauricular	temporohyoid	temporopontine temporocentral	temporomalar	temporosphenoid
temporocerebellar	temporomastoid	temporosphenoidal temporofacial	temporooccipital	temporozygomatic tem'po·ro·man·dib'u·lar (-măn·dĭb'ū·lĕr), adj. Anat. Pertaining to the temporal bone and the mandible, or designating the ginglymoarthrodial joint between them.

tem'po·ro·max'il·lar'y (-măk'sĭ·lĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -măk·sĭl'ā·rĭ), adj. Anat. Pertaining to the temporal bone or region and the upper jaw; designating the posterior facial vein.

tempt (tĕmpt; 206), v.; TEMPT'ED; TEMPT'ING. [ME. tempten, tenten, fr. OF. tempter, tenter (F. tenter), fr. L. temptare, tentare, to handle, feel, attack, try, test, urge, intens. fr. tendere, tentum and tensum, to stretch (see THIN); or perh. orig. temptare, with idea of outstretched hand, and akin to Lith. tempti to stretch (see TEMPORAL pertaining to time). Cf. ATTEMPT, TAUNT, TENT to probe.] Transitive: 1. To put to trial; to prove; test; try. Archaic.

God did tempt Abraham. Gen. xxii. 1.

2. To endeavor to persuade; to induce; incite.

Tempt not the brave and needy to despair. Dryden.

3. To lead, or endeavor to lead, into evil; to entice to what is wrong by promise of pleasure or gain; to seduce.

Every man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. James i. 14.

4. To provoke, as anger or a person to anger.

Ye shall not tempt the Lord your God. Deut. vi. 16.

5. To endeavor to accomplish or reach; to attempt. Obs.

—, Intransitive: To offer temptation, inducement, seduction, or the like.

Syn. — Entice, lure, allure.

tempt, n. & v. Aphetic for ATTEMPT. Archaic & Dial.

tem·ta'tion (tĕmp·tā'shŭn), n. [OF. temptation, tentation (F. tentation), fr. L. tentatio.] 1. A testing; trial. Archaic.

2. Act of tempting, or enticing to evil; seduction.

3. State of being tempted, or enticed to evil.

Lead us not into temptation. Luke xi. 4.

4. That which tempts; an inducement; an allurement, esp. to something evil.

Dare to be great, without a guilty crown; View it, and lay the bright temptation down. Dryden.

temp·ta'tion·al (-ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to temptation.

temp·ta'tious (tĕmp·tā'shŭs), adj. Tempting. Obs. exc. Dial.

temp'ta·to'ry (tĕmp'tȧ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Tempting. Rare.

tempt'er (tĕmp'tĕr), n. One who tempts or entices; esp., [cap.], with the, the Devil, as the great enticer to evil.

So glozed the Tempter, and his proem tuned. Milton.

tempt'ing, adj. Adapted to entice or allure; as, tempting pleasures. — tempt'ing·ly, adv. — tempt'ing·ness, n.

tempt'ress (tĕmp'trĕs; -trĭs), n. A woman who tempts.

tempt'some (tĕmpt'sŭm), adj. Tempting. Scot.

‖tem'pus (tĕm'pŭs), n.; pl. TEMPORA (-pō·rȧ). [L.] Time as in music and prosody. See MENSURABLE MUSIC.

‖tem'pus de·li'be·ran'di (dē·lĭb'ē·răn'dī). [L.] See JUS DELIBERANDI.

‖tem'pus e'dax re'rum (ē'dăks rē'rŭm). [L.] Time devouring (all) things. Ovid (Metam., XV. 234).

‖tem'pus fu'git (fū'jĭt). [L.] Time flies.

‖tem'pus lu·den'di (lū·dĕn'dī). [L.] The time for play.

Tem'pyo (tĕm'pyō), n. [JAP. Tempyō.] Japanese Hist. A period covering several eras (729–766), notable for the development of the fine arts, particularly Buddhist sculpture.

temse, tems (tĕms; tĕmz), n. [AS. temes; akin to D. teems.] A sieve. — v. t. & i. To sift. Both Now Dial. temse'bread' (-brĕd'), n. Bread made of sifted flour. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. Hence: temse'loaf' (-lōf'), n. Obs.

tem'u·lence (tĕm'ū·lĕns), tem'u·len·cy (-lĕn·sĭ), n. [L. temulentia.] Intoxication. Rare.

tem'u·lent (-lĕnt), adj. [L. temulentus.] Intoxicated. — tem'u·lent·ly, adv. Both Rare.

tem'u·len'tive (-lĕn'tĭv), adj. Somewhat temulent. Rare.

ten (tĕn), adj. [AS. tēn, tīen, tȳn; akin to OFris. tian, OS. tehan, D. tien, G. zehn, OHG. zehan, ON. tīu, Sw. tio, Dan. ti, Goth. taihun, Lith. deszimt, Russ. desyat', W. deg, Ir. & Gael. deich, L. decem, Gr. deka, Skr. daśa, also to E. -TY (as in twenty, thirty, etc.), -TEEN. Cf. DEAN, DECADE, DECIMAL, DECEMBER, DICKER, EIGHTEEN, EIGHTY, TEENS, TITHE.] 1. One more than nine; twice five; — often with ellipsis of the noun; as, to wager ten to one.

2. Indefinitely, several, many; as, I had ten times rather.

3. Tenth. Obs.

4. That has the number ten; as, room ten.

☞ Ten is combined with a noun (ten-acre lot), often with the suffix -ed added to the combination (ten-cylindered engine), to form compound adjectives, such compounds being written usually with a hyphen, as in:

ten-acre	ten-headed	ten-pound
ten-acred	ten-horned	ten-rayed ten-armed	ten-horsepower	ten-ribbed ten-barreled	ten-hour	ten-roomed ten-bore	ten-inch	ten-second ten-cell	ten-jointed	ten-shilling
ten-cent	ten-keyed	ten-spined
ten-coupled	ten-league	ten-stringed ten-course	ten-mile	ten-syllable
ten-cylindered	ten-minute	ten-syllabled ten-day	ten-month	ten-talented ten-dollar	ten-oared	ten-ton
ten-fingered	ten-parted	ten-tongued ten-footed	ten-peaked	ten-toothed ten-grain	tenpenny	ten-wheeled ten-guinea	ten-point	ten-year ten (tĕn), n. 1. The number greater by one than nine; the sum of five and five; also, a group of ten persons, units, or objects.

2. A symbol representing ten units, as 10, X or x.

3. A person or object distinguished by the number ten, often the tenth in a series, as a playing card having ten spots, a contestant bearing the number ten in a game or race, an automobile having ten horsepower, etc.

4. Ten o'clock; — often combined with a number for the minutes past the hour; as, ten-five.

5. A ten-dollar bill, a ten-pound note, a tenpenny nail, etc. Colloq.

6. Usually pl. The numbers occupying the next place to the left of the units, in the Arabic notation, beginning with 10, as 10, 20, 30, etc., to 90, inclusive. Cf. TEENS.

7. A measure of coal, between 48 and 50 tons. Local, Eng.

ten (tĕn), adv. Ten times. Obs.

ten (tĕn). Var. of THEN. Obs. exc. Dial.

ten-. = TENO- (which see), as in te·nal'gi·a.

ten'a·bil'i·ty (tĕn'ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ; cf. TENABLE), n. Tenableness.

ten'a·ble (tĕn'ȧ·b'l; tē'nȧ-; 277), adj. [F. tenable, fr. tenir to hold, fr. L. tenere. See THIN; cf. ABSTAIN, CONTAIN, CONTINENT, CONTINUE, DETAIN, ENTERTAIN, MAINTAIN, OBTAIN, PERTAIN, RETAIN, SUSTAIN, TENACIOUS, TENANT, TENET, TENOR.] Capable of being held, maintained, or defended, as against an assailant or objector, or against attempts to take or possess; as, a tenable fortress; a tenable argument or cause. — ten'a·ble·ness, n. — ten'a·bly, adv.

ten'ace (tĕn'ās), n. [F., tenacious, demeurer tenace to hold the best and third-best cards and take both tricks, the adversary having to lead. See TENACIOUS.] Bridge, Whist, etc. A combination in one hand of the best and third-best cards remaining, or unplayed, in any suit, which must win two tricks if the intervening card is on the right, and is led through. Ace-queen is called major tenace; king-jack, minor tenace; ace-queen-ten, double tenace.

te·na'cious (tē·nā'shŭs), adj. [L. tenax, -acis, fr. tenere to hold. See TENABLE; cf. TENACE.] 1. Holding fast, or inclined to hold fast; inclined to retain what is in possession; pertinacious; — commonly used with of; as, men tenacious of their rights; hence, holding stoutly to one's opinion, purpose, etc.

2. Apt to retain; retentive; as, a tenacious memory.

3. Niggardly; closefisted; miserly. Obs.

4. Having parts apt to adhere to each other; cohesive; tough; as, steel is a tenacious metal.

5. Apt to adhere to another substance; glutinous; viscous; sticking; adhesive. "Tenacious clay." Cowper.

Syn. — TENACIOUS, PERTINACIOUS. TENACIOUS may apply either to persons or to things, PERTINACIOUS, to persons or personal qualities only. Tenacious implies retentiveness or aptness to adhere; pertinacious suggests doggedness, and (sometimes annoying) persistence; as, "the tenacious grasp of a falcon" (Scott); "He seemed to hold on to life by a single thread only, but that thread was very tenacious" (M. Arnold); "tenacious of his opinions" (Hazlitt); a pertinacious beggar, pertinacious as a mosquito. Cf. OBSTINATE. Ant. — Lax, loose, insecure.

— te·na'cious·ly, adv. — te·na'cious·ness, n.

te·nac'i·ty (tē·năs'ĭ·tĭ), n. [L. tenacitas; cf. F. ténacité. See TENACIOUS.] 1. Quality or state of being tenacious; persistency; as, tenacity of memory; tenacity of purpose.

2. Miserliness. Obs.

3. Cohesiveness; toughness; also, adhesiveness; glutinousness.

4. Physics. Tensile strength.

ten'a·cle (tĕn'ȧ·k'l), n. [LL. tenaculum.] A stalk of a plant; also, pl., the tentacles by which some plants, as ivies, attach themselves in climbing. Obs.

te·nac'u·lum (tē·năk'ū·lŭm), n.; pl. TENACULA (-lȧ). [LL., a holder, fr. tenere to hold. See TENABLE; cf. TENAILLE.] Surg. 1. A slender sharp-pointed hook attached to a handle, used mainly for taking up arteries, etc.

A form of Tenaculum.

2. Zool. In insects, a pair of partially fused appendages on the third abdominal segment of Collembola which holds the furcula in place.

te·naille', te·nail' (tē·nāl'), n. [F., a pair of pincers or tongs, a tenaille, fr. L. tenaculum, pl. tenacula. See TENACULUM.] Fort. An outwork in the main ditch between two bastions. A single tenaille has two faces forming an obtuse re-entering angle; a double tenaille has three faces and two re-entering angles. See RAVELIN, Illust.

te·naille', te·nail', v. t. Fort. To furnish with tenailles.

tenaille, or tenail, line. Fort. A line of connected redans forming alternate salient and re-entering angles.

te·nail'lon (tē·nāl'yŭn; -nāl'yŭn), n. [F. See TENAILLE.] Fort. A work constructed on each side of a ravelin, to increase its strength, procure additional ground beyond the ditch, or cover the shoulders of the bastions.

Te·nak'tak (tē·năk'tăk), n. An Indian of a Kwakiutl tribe. See KWAKIUTL, 2.

ten'an·cy (tĕn'ăn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [Cf. OF. tenance, ML. tenentia. See TENANT.] 1. Law. A holding, or a mode of holding, an estate; tenure; the temporary possession of what belongs to another. Various forms of tenancies designated by the names of the estates possessed by the tenant are sufficiently explained by the definitions of the estates. See CURTESY; in severalty, under SEVERALTY; ELEGIT; etc. Others requiring separate definitions are given in their alphabetic places.

2. A piece or parcel of land held of another, esp. formerly, a house for habitation, or place to live in.

3. The period of a tenant's occupancy or possession.

tenancy at, or by, sufferance. Law. The tenancy which arises in an estate (estate at sufferance) when a tenant under a lawful demise holds over after his estate is ended. Strictly it is to be regarded merely as a legal fiction to prevent the owner from treating the tenant as a trespasser until he has himself made an actual entry on, or has brought an action to recover, the land, since the landlord's acquiescence changes the tenancy at sufferance to one at will. The tenant at sufferance may at common law be ejected by such force as is reasonably necessary, and is not entitled to emblements. He is liable for use and occupation, but not for rent.

tenancy at will. Law. A tenancy of an estate (estate at will) terminable at the will of either party. It may be created by parol or by deed. The tenant at will is not responsible for permissive waste. He is entitled to notice to quit, generally for a time equal to the period between two rent days; and he may take the emblements if the tenancy be terminated by the landlord.

tenancy by entireties. Law. See ENTIRETY. tenancy by the rod or par' la verge' (pär' lȧ vĕrzh'). Law. A copyhold (which see). Obs.

tenancy from year to year. A tenancy in which the property is held for a year and upon the condition that the tenancy cannot be determined by either party alone except at the end of any number of entire years from the time of its beginning. It may be expressly created, or may arise by operation of law on the termination of a lease for a year or years. At common law notice of termination must be given at least six months before the expiration of the current year; and under the English Agricultural Holding Act (1883) one year's such notice must be given in the absence of a written agreement to the contrary. In some States of the United States the period has been shortened.

tenancy in common. The tenancy of those who hold lands or other property in common. See COMMON, n., 5; cf. JOINT TENANCY.

ten'ant (tĕn'ănt), n. [OF., orig. pres. part. of tenir to hold. See TENABLE; cf. LIEUTENANT, TENEMENT.] 1. Law. One who holds or possesses real estate, or sometimes personalty (as an annuity), by any kind of right, whether in fee simple, in common, in severalty, for life, for years, or at will; also (as correlative to landlord), one who has the occupation or temporary possession of lands or tenements the title of which is in another. See TENEMENT, 1.

2. One who has possession of any place; a dweller; an occupant. "Sweet tenants of this grove." Cowper.

ten'ant, v.; TEN'ANT·ED; TEN'ANT·ING. Transitive: 1. To hold, occupy, or possess as a tenant; as, a farm tenanted by Swedes.

2. To house as tenants; as, an apartment house that tenanted eight families.

3. To lease or let to a tenant or tenants.

—, Intransitive: To occupy a place as a tenant.

ten'ant. Dial. var. of TENON.

tenant at, or by, sufferance, will, etc. One who has a tenancy at sufferance, at will, etc. See these phrases.

tenant by copy of court roll. See COURT ROLL.

tenant by the curtesy initiate. See INITIATE TENANT BY CURTESY.

tenant by the verge. See VERGE, n., 2.

ten'ant·er (tĕn'ănt·ĕr), n. One who occupies a place as a tenant.

tenant farmer. A farmer who tills soil owned by another, paying rent either in cash or in shares of produce. Cf. MÉTAYER.

tenant in cap'i·te (ĭn kăp'ĭ·tē) or in chief. See IN CAPITE.

ten'ant·like' (tĕn'ănt·lĭk'), adj. Conforming to the rights and obligations of a tenant, as in respect of waste, repairs, etc.

tenant right. In Great Britain, the beneficial interest which remains in the tenant after the expiration of his lease; — an indefinite term used of various rights both legal and customary, such as the right to claim compensation for improvements not exhausted at the expiration of the lease, the right to claim fixity of tenure on condition of paying the former rent or some rent not arbitrarily fixed by the landlord, as in the case of the Ulster tenant right and that of judicial rents. Tenant right may be sold by the tenant, and is often of considerable value. — tenant righter.

ten'ant·ry (tĕn'ănt·rĭ), n. 1. Tenancy.

2. The body of tenants; as, the tenantry of a manor.

3. The holding of, or the premises occupied by, a tenant or tenants. Chiefly Scot.

Ten Articles. A series of ten doctrinal religious statements, drawn up in England in 1536. They were modeled in part after the Augsburg Confession. Cf. ARTICLES OF RELIGION.

Ten·as'ser·im ma·hog'a·ny (tĕn·ăs'ĕr·ĭm). [From Tenasserim, Burma.] Amboina wood.

Ten Canons or Tables. = EUSEBIAN CANONS.

ten'-cent' store. = FIVE-AND-TEN.

tench (tĕnch; 105), n.; pl. TENCHES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119), sometimes TENCH. See PLURAL, Note. [OF. tenche (F. tanche), fr. LL. tinca.] A European fresh-water cyprinoid fish (Tinca tinca) allied to the dace and ide, noted for its tenacity of life; also, its flesh used as food. It rarely weighs over eight pounds.

Tench. (1/6)

tench (tĕnch; 105), n. Short for HOUSE OF DETENTION, PENITENTIARY. Slang.

tench'weed' (-wēd'), n. A common pondweed Potamogeton natans), supposed to be the favorite food of the tench.

Ten Commandments. a The Decalogue, or summary of God's commands, given to Moses at Mount Sinai (Ex. xx.). b [not cap.] Old Slang. The ten fingers or fingernails (esp. a woman's) or marks scratched by them.

Tenc'te·ri (tĕngk'tē·rī), n. pl. [L.] See ISTVAEONES.

tend (tĕnd), v. i. [From INTEND.] To intend; purpose. Now Scot. & Dial. Eng.

tend (tĕnd), v.; TEND'ED; TEND'ING. [Aphetic form of attend. See ATTEND, TEND to move.] Intransitive: To pay attention; to give heed; apply oneself; as, tend to business. Obs. exc. Dial.

2. To wait, as attendants or servants; to serve; attend; — with on or upon. Shak.

3. Obs. a To listen; hearken. b To await; to be waiting; to expect. Shak.

—, Transitive: 1. To apply oneself to the care of; as: a To watch over and care for the wants of; minister to; as, to tend the sick; to cultivate or foster, as a plant. b To have or take charge of as a caretaker or overseer; as, to tend a flock, a tollgate. c To manage or oversee the operations of; as, to tend store; to work, as a pump or machine.

2. To attend as a retainer or servant; to accompany in order to render service. Archaic.

3. = ATTEND, v. t., 5. Now Chiefly Dial.

4. Obs. a To listen to; be attentive to; to attend to. b To await; watch for.

tend out on, or, rarely, to. To attend or attend to; as, to tend out on church; to tend out on the cooking. Dial., U.S.

tend (tĕnd), v. [OF. tendre, fr. L. tendere, tensum and tentum, to stretch, extend, direct one's course, tend; akin to Gr. teinein to stretch. See THIN; cf. TEND to attend, CONTEND, DISTEND, EXTENT, HYPOTENUSE, INTENSE, OSTENSIBLE, PORTENT, PRETEND, TENDER to offer, TENSE, adj., TENT a shelter.] Intransitive: 1. To move or direct one's course in a certain direction; — usually with to or toward.

Two gentlemen tending towards that sight. Sir H. Wotton.

---

tem'po·ro·sphe·noi'dal con'vo·lu'tion. = TEMPORAL CONVOLUTION. [TEMPORAL LOBE.]

temporosphenoidal lobe. = ‖tem'po ru·ba'to (tĕm'pō rōō·bä'tō). [It.] See 2d TEMPO, 1.

tem'pre, adj. [OF. tempré, past part. of temprer to temper.] Temperate. — -pre·ly, adv. Both Obs.

temps (as mod. F., tĕn), n. [OF. & F., for earlier tens. See TENSE, n.] = TIME. Obs.

temps. † TENSE.

tempse. † TENSE.

temptʼa·ble (tĕmp'tȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — temptʼa·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), temptʼa·ble·ness, n.

temp·ta'tion·less, adj. See -LESS.

temp·ta'tion-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

temp·ta'tor, n. [L.] = TEMPTER.

temp'tion, n. Temptation. Obs.

tems'er, n. = TEMSE. Dial.

ten'a·bl. Tenable. Ref. Sp.

ten'a·cy (tĕn'ȧ·sĭ), n. [L. tenacia obstinacy.] Tenaciousness; obstinacy. Obs. [ITALIAN MILLET.]

te·naï', n. [Tamil tinai.] = ‖ ten'ant. † TENENT.

ten'ant·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — ten'ant·a·ble·ness, n.

ten'ant·ism, n. See -ISM.

ten'ant·less, adj. See -LESS.

ten'ant·ship, n. See -SHIP. Rare.

ten'-a-pen'ny, n. = POM-POM. Soldiers' Slang.

2. To be directed or have a tendency, conscious or unconscious, to any end, object, or purpose; to exert activity or influence in a particular direction; to serve as a means; conduce; as, such an act must tend to weaken confidence.

The thoughts of the diligent tend only to plenteousness; but of every one that is hasty only to want. Prov. xxi. 5.

3. To extend; reach. Obs.

4. Naut. a To swing, while anchored, with the tide or wind. b To lead in a certain direction; — said of the anchor chain; as, the chain tends broad off the port bow.

——, Transitive: [F. tendre.] 1. Obs. a To proffer; tender. b To relate to. c To stretch.

2. To provide or supply. Obs. exc. Dial.

3. Naut. To stand by (a rope or the like), often with hands upon it, in readiness to prevent its fouling or suffering any mischance; — in distinction from man.

tend a vessel. To manage an anchored vessel so that in swinging with the tide she shall not foul the cable.

Tending ship is the art of keeping an anchor clear. Lucc.

tend (tĕnd), n. 1. Tending; tendency. Rare.

2. The angle made by the line of a vessel's keel and the direction of the anchor cable when she is swinging at anchor.

tend, v. t. & i. [ME. tenden, fr. AS. tendan (in comp.). See TIND to kindle.] To kindle; to burn. Obs. exc. Dial.

tend'ance (tĕn'dăns), n. [See TEND to attend; cf. ATTENDANCE.] 1. Bestowal of attention; ministration; attendance; watchful care.

2. Service done to gain favor; service or homage to the gods for divine favor; — used to render Gr. therapeia, as contrasted with aversion (translating apotropē).

3. Obs. a State of awaiting or expecting. b Persons in attendance; attendants. c An object of care.

tend'ant (tĕn'dănt), adj. & n. Attendant. Archaic.

ten'-day' fern. A widely distributed tropical fern (Polystichum adiantiforme), the ultimate pinnae of its large fronds resembling those of the maidenhair.

‖ten'de-jón' (tĕn'dā-hōn'; 162), n.; pl. TENDEJONES (-hōʼnās). [Sp.] A shop or small store.

tend'en·cy (tĕn'dĕn-sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [ML. tendentia, fr. L. tendens, -entis, pres. part. of tendere. See TEND to move.] 1. Direction or course toward any place, object, effect, or result; drift; hence, inclination; bias.

Writings of this kind, if conducted with candor, have a more particular tendency to the good of their country. Addison.

2. A proneness to or readiness for a certain type of thought or action; set; drive; propensity.

3. The influential trend of a discourse, writing, etc., esp. when designed. Cf. TENDENZ.

4. A presumptive course of future change in continuation of observed phenomena.

5. Obs. a Movement in advance. b Relation.

Syn. — Inclination, bias, proclivity, propensity, leaning; course, trend, set. — TENDENCY, TENOR, DRIFT. TENDENCY denotes a movement, course, or bias in a particular direction; TENOR suggests rather the prevailing course or (esp.) principle of continuity of the thing itself; DRIFT heightens the implication of intention, and is often (like tenor) equivalent to meaning or purport; as, "All tended to mankind, . . . but in completed man begins anew a tendency to God" (R. Browning); "the mighty stream of tendency" (Wordsworth); "Along the cool sequestered vale of life they kept the noiseless tenor of their way" (Gray); "She thus did keep the tenor of her tale" (Shelley); the tenor of a bond; "[a] treatise . . . which by the . . . drift, 't is thought could be the work of none but Swift" (Swift); "I see the whole drift of your argument" (Goldsmith). Cf. BENT, TURN.

tendency chord. Music. A dissonant chord of which the inclination to progress to a certain consonant chord is heightened by the dissonance of a particular tone or tones.

tendency play. A play illustrating in favor or disfavor some current tendency (sense 4).

tendency theory. Theol. The theory, of F. C. Baur and the Tübingen school, that the books of the New Testament exhibit an underlying practical aim with reference to an alleged Petrine-Pauline controversy.

tend'ent (tĕn'dĕnt), adj. [OF. tendant, pres. part.] Tending.

ten·den'tial (tĕn-dĕn'shăl), adj. Tendentious.

ten·den'tious (-shŭs), adj. Having or conforming to a tendency, esp. by design. — ten·den'tious·ly, adv. — ten·den'tious·ness, n.

‖Ten·denz' (tĕn-dĕnts'), n.; pl. -DENZEN (-dĕn'tsĕn). [G.] Tendency (sense 3); — in literary criticism used esp. in the phrase Tendenz roman, novel of purpose. — ‖Ten·denz', adj.

tend'er (tĕn'dĕr), n. [From TEND to attend. Cf. ATTENDER.] 1. One who tends; one who takes care of any person or thing; specif., locally, a waiter.

2. Naut. a A vessel employed to attend other vessels, to supply them with provisions and other stores, to transport catches of fish, etc., to the market, to convey intelligence. b A boat or small steamer for communication between shore and a larger vessel. c U. S. Navy. A depot ship.

3. Railroads. A vehicle attached to a locomotive, for carrying a supply of fuel and water. See LOCOMOTIVE, Illust.

-tend'er. A combining form of the noun tender, as in bartender.

tend'er, v. t. To ship on a tender.

ten'der (tĕn'dĕr), v.; TEN'DERED (-dĕrd); TEN'DER·ING. [F. tendre to stretch, stretch out, extend, offer, fr. L. tendere. See TEND to move.] Transitive: 1. Law. To offer in payment or satisfaction of a demand or obligation and in order to save a penalty or forfeiture; to make a tender of; as, to tender the amount of rent or debt.

2. To offer; to present for acceptance; as, to tender one a reception, a gift; to tender one's resignation.

——, Intransitive: To make a tender for a contract.

ten'der (tĕn'dĕr), n. [From TENDER, v.] 1. Law. An offer, either of money to pay a debt, or of service to be performed in satisfaction of a debt or an obligation, made in order to save a penalty or forfeiture which would be incurred by nonpayment or nonperformance; as, the tender of rent due, or of the amount of a note, with interest. To constitute a valid lawful tender the offer must comply with all the conditions of actual performance as regards time, place, and manner, and must be unconditional. In case of tender of payment there must be an actual production and offer of not less than the amount due in such money as the law requires (see LEGAL TENDER), without condition or demand of change or receipt (unless authorized by statute). In the case of mutual obligations readiness and ability to perform is the essential element. In any case the requirements of a tender may be dispensed with by the positive act or declaration of the person to whom it is made, as by his declaring that some act is unnecessary, or that he will not accept the thing offered, or such show of violence as makes a lawful tender unsafe, etc.

2. Any offer or proposal made for acceptance; as, a tender of a loan or of friendship; specif., an offer of a bid for a contract, usually for public supplies or work.

3. The thing offered; esp., money offered in payment.

ten'der (tĕn'dĕr), adj.; TEN'DER·ER (-ĕr); TEN'DER·EST. [ME. tendre, fr. OF. tendre, fr. L. tener; perh. akin to L. tenuis thin. See THIN; cf. TENDRIL.] 1. Easily impressed, broken, cut, masticated, or the like; not firm, hard, or tough; soft; fragile; succulent; as tender meat; tender fruit; tender ground.

2. Physically weak; not hardy or able to endure hardship; delicate. Specif., Scot. & Dial. Eng., in feeble health.

3. a Expressing, or expressive of, the softer feelings; loving; affectionate; as, a tender lover, memory, caress. b Susceptible to the softer passions, as love, compassion, kindness; easily excited to pity, forgiveness, or favor.

The Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy. James v. 11.

c Belonging or appropriate to the softer passions and feelings; affectionate; loving; kind.

4. Unwilling to injure, pain, or the like; considerate; careful; — usually with of or over.

Tender of property. Burke.

5. Feeble from immaturity; immature; weak; as, tender crops; tender knowledge. "Tender of age." Gower.

6. Adapted to, or conducive to, a delicate, sensitive, or feeble constitution or character; gentle; not rough, harsh, or severe; as, tender breeding, culture, handling.

7. Very susceptible to any impression, emotion, or the like, esp. to pain; impressionable; sympathetic; as, a tender nerve; a tender conscience.

8. Delicate or soft in quality or tone; — said esp. of color, etc.; as, a tender light; flowers of tender blue.

A tender interfusion of violet and gold. Shelley.

9. Fragile or delicate, so as to be easily injured or affected; as, a woman's tender honor.

10. Apt to give pain unless gently handled; delicate; ticklish; as, a tender subject; also, Dial., pathetic; touching; as, a tender sight.

11. Sensitive to injury; easily offended; touchy.

12. Careful in avoidance; wary; scrupulous; — usually with of or over.

Be tender of offending the Indians. B. Franklin.

13. Obs. a Slender; thin; tenuous. b Sensitive, keen, or the like, in registering impressions; as, a hound's tender scent; a tender balance. c Dear; precious. d Scot. Akin.

14. Hort. Incapable of resisting cold; not hardy.

15. Naut. Heeling over too easily when under sail; somewhat crank; — said of a vessel.

Syn. — Effeminate, soft, sensitive; softhearted, kind, humane, merciful, pitiful.

Ant. — Hardy, rugged; strong; hardened, indurated, callous; unfeeling; harsh, stern, rough.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tender-bearded	tender-footed	tender-nosed tender-bladed	tender-footedness	tender-personed tender-bodied	tender-handed	tender-rooted tender-boweled	tender-hoofed	tender-shelled tender-colored	tender-hued	tender-skinned tender-conscienced	tender-looking	tender-souled tender-eared	tender-minded	tender-taken tender-eyed	tender-mouthed	tender-tempered tender-faced	tender-natured	tender-witted ten'der, v. t. & i. To make or become tender; also, Archaic & Dial., to regard or treat with tenderness.

ten'der, n. [From TENDER, adj., cf. F. tendre.] 1. Tenderness. Obs.

2. One that is tender.

tender annual. Hort. An annual not able to withstand cold, as the tomato, squash, etc., which are killed by the first real frost; — opposed to hardy annual.

ten'der-dy'ing, adj. Dying young. Shak.

ten'der-ee' (tĕn'dĕr-ē'), n. One to whom something is tendered.

tender emotion. The emotion felt by a parent or by a protector toward the child or the one protected. It is not identical with love, though it is often combined with love.

ten'der·er (tĕn'dĕr-ĕr), n. One who tenders.

ten'der·foot' (-fo̅o̅t'), n.; pl. -FEET (-fēt'). 1. A newcomer in a comparatively rough or newly settled region, esp. when not inured to the hardship or rudeness of the life. Orig. Western U. S.

2. See BOY SCOUT.

— ten'der·foot', adj. — ten'der·foot'ish (-ĭsh), adj.

ten'der-fore'head·ed (-fôr'ĕd-ĕd; -ĭd-ĭd; 119), adj. Modest.

ten'der·ful (tĕn'dĕr-fo̅o̅l; f'l), adj. Full of tenderness. — ten'der·ful·ly, adv. Both Rare.

ten'der·heart' (-härt'), n. A tenderhearted person.

ten'der·heart'ed (66), adj. Easily moved to love, pity, or sorrow; susceptible to the softer passions or emotions; compassionate; impressionable. — ten'der·heart'ed·ly, adv. — ten'der·heart'ed·ness, n.

ten'der·ize (tĕn'dĕr-ĭz), v. t. To make tender.

ten'der·ling (tĕn'dĕr-lĭng), n. 1. One made tender by coddling; a weakling; also, a little child.

2. One of the budding antlers of a deer.

ten'der·loin' (-loin'), n. 1. A strip ot tender flesh on either side of the vertebral column, sold as a separate cut of beef and pork. It consists of the psoas muscles.

2. [cap.] In New York City, orig. the old twenty-ninth police precinct, west of Broadway between 23d and 42d streets, which afforded the police great opportunities for profit through conniving at vice and lawbreaking, one captain being reported to have said on being transferred there that whereas he had been eating chuck steak he would now eat tenderloin. Hence [sometimes not cap.], the region of a city which is the center of night life; a district largely devoted to vice and other forms of lawbreaking which encourage political or police corruption.

ten'der·loin', v. t. To make into a tenderloin.

ten'der·ly (-lĭ), adv. In a tender manner; specif.: a Softly; gently. b With love, kindness, care, or other tender feeling. c Delicately; effeminately. d Cautiously.

ten'der·ness, n. Quality, state, or instance of being tender; softness; weakness; kindness; compassion; effeminacy; sensitiveness.

tender of amends. Law. An offer of satisfaction for a wrong or breach of contract, the effect of a sufficient tender being in general to stop the further accruing of interest and to impose on the plaintiff liability for subsequent costs in the action.

tender of issue. Law. A form of words in a pleading, by which a party offers to refer the question raised upon it to the appropriate mode of decision.

tender passion. Love.

ten'der-sid'ed (tĕn'dĕr-sīd'ĕd; -ĭd; 66; 119), adj. Naut. Tender. Rare.

ten'der·some (tĕn'dĕr-sŭm), adj. & adv. Tender; tenderly. Dial. Eng.

tender wool. Wool which wastes too heavily in combing or is too weak to stand the strain of combing.

tender years. Youth.

ten'di·nal (tĕn'dĭ-năl), adj. Also ten·din'e·al (tĕn-dĭn'ē-ăl). Tendinous. Rare.

tend'ing, adj. That tends. — tend'ing·ly, adv.

ten'di·nous (tĕn'dĭ-nŭs), adj. [F. tendineux.] 1. Pertaining to a tendon; of the nature of a tendon.

2. Consisting of tendons; sinewy.

tendinous arch. Anat. A thickened fascial arch through which pass vessels or nerves or both, esp. that in the pelvic fascia giving origin to fibers of the levator ani.

tendinous ring of Zinn. Anat. A fibrous membrane surrounding the optic foramen and serving as a common origin for the rectus muscles of the eye.

‖ten'do (tĕn'dō), n.; pl. TENDINES (-dĭ·nēz). [NL.] Anat. A tendon.

tendo-. A combining form for tendo, equivalent to teno-, as in ten'do·mu'coid, ten'do·plas'ty, ten'do·syn'o·vi'tis, ten'do·tome, ten·dot'o·my, ten'do·vag'i·ni'tis.

‖ten'do A·chil'lis (ȧ-kĭl'ĭs). [NL.] Achilles' tendon.

‖ten'do cal·ca'ne·us (kăl·kā'nē-ŭs). [NL.] Anat. Achilles' tendon.

ten'don (tĕn'dŭn), n. [F. or ML.; F. tendon, fr. ML. tendo, fr. L. tendere to stretch, extend, after Gr. tenōn sinew, tendon, teinein to stretch. See THIN.] 1. Anat. A tough cord or band of dense, specialized, regularly arranged, white fibrous connective tissue uniting a muscle with some other part and transmitting the force which the muscle exerts; a sinew. Tendons are continuous with the connective-tissue sheaths (epimysium and perimysium) of the muscle and, when inserted into a bone, with the periosteum of the bone. A very broad flat tendon is called an aponeurosis.

2. Zool. The frenulum of a moth.

ten'don·ous (tĕn'dŭn-ŭs), adj. Tendinous. Rare.

tendon reflex. Physiol. A kind of reflex act in which a muscle is made to contract by a blow upon its tendon. Its absence is generally a sign of disease. See KNEE JERK.

tendon sense. Psychol. & Physiol. A sense adjunct to the muscle sense, served by receptors on or near the tendons. Cf. KINESTHESIA.

‖ten'do o'cu·li (ŏk'ū-lī), ‖ten'do pal'pe·bra'rum (păl'pē-brā'rŭm; 79). [NL.] The medial tarsal ligament.

ten'dour, ten'door (tĕn'dōōr), n. [Also tandour, fr. F. tandour, fr. Ar. tannūr, fr. Aram. tannūra, fr. Assyr.-Bab. tinūru furnace.] A kind of table or seat with a brazier of coals under it, used to sit on in cold weather in the East.

ten'do·vag'i·nal (tĕn'dō-văj'ĭ·năl; -vā-jĭ'năl; -n'l), adj. [NL. tendo-vaginalis. See TENDON; VAGINAL.] Anat. Of or pertaining to a tendon and its synovial sheath.

‖ten'dre (tän'dr'), n. [F.] A tender regard; love.

ten'dresse' (as F. tän'drĕs'), n. [F.] Obs. as Eng. a Tender feeling; fondness; also, expression of affection; love. b Solicitude; care. c Softness; delicacy.

ten'dril (tĕn'drĭl), n. [Shortened fr. F. tendrillon, fr. tendron, fr. tendre tender; hence, prop., the tender branch or sprig of a plant. See TENDER, adj.; cf. TENDRON.] 1. Bot. A slender, leafless, spirally coiling and sensitive organ of climbing plants serving as a means of attachment to a supporting body or surface. Morphologically, a tendril may be a modified stem axis, as in the grapevine; an axillary branch, as in the passionflower; a stipule, as in Smilax; or a modified leaf, as in the pea. Tendrils commonly attach themselves by coiling around the support, afterward contracting by coiling in the reverse direction. In the Virginia creeper they also develop adhesive disks at the tips, which are very sensitive, a slight touch inducing a curvature.

Tendrils: 1 of Grapevine; 2 of Virginia Creeper, with (3) Terminal Disks enlarged.

2. Something tendrillike; as: a A ringlet. b A fastening device that clings. c An influence that seems to cling.

ten'dril, v. t. & i. To curl like a tendril.

ten'dril, adj. Of, pert. to, or like a tendril; tendriled.

tendril climber. Bot. A plant which climbs by tendrils. — ten'dril·climb'ing, adj.

ten'driled, ten'drilled (tĕn'drĭld), adj. Having tendrils.

ten'dril·if'er·ous (tĕn'drĭl-ĭf'ĕr-ŭs), adj. Bearing tendrils.

ten'dril·ous (tĕn'drĭ-lŭs), adj. Tendriled; also, like a tendril.

ten'dron (tĕn'drŭn), n. [F. See TENDRIL.] 1. A sprout, shoot, or bud. Now Rare.

2. A piece of tender cartilage from the bones situated at the extremity of a breast of veal.

ten'dry (-drĭ), n. A tender or tendering; an offer; pl., tenets. Obs.

-tene (-tēn), Biol. A combining form from Greek tainia, a ribbon, denoting a filament in a synaptic stage, as in amphi*tene,* diplo*tene,* pachy*tene,* zygo*tene.*

ten'e·bra (tĕn'ē-brȧ), n. [L.] Darkness.

Ten'e·brae (-brē), n. [L., pl., darkness. See TENEBROUS.] R.C.Ch. The matins and lauds for the last three days of Holy Week, commemorating the sufferings and death of Christ, usually sung on the afternoon or evening of Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, instead of on the following days.

ten'e·brif'ic (-brĭf'ĭk), adj. [L. tenebrae darkness + facere to make.] Rendering dark or gloomy; loosely, tenebrous.

ten'e·brif'i·cate (-ĭ-kāt), v. t. To make tenebrous.

te·neb'ri·on (tē-nĕb'rĭ·ŏn), n. [L. tenebrio a shunner of light, trickster; cf. F. ténébrion goblin.] A nocturnal spirit or prowler. Obs.

tend. + TEND, TENTH.

tend'a·ble, adj. Attentive. Obs.

tend'ence (tĕn'dĕns). Var. of TENDANCE.

tend'ence, n. = TENDENCY.

ten·den'cious, -cious·ly, -ciousness. Vars. of TENDENTIOUS, etc.

ten'der·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — ten'der·a·bil'i·ty, n. — ten'der·a·bly, adv.

ten'derd. Tendered. Ref. Sp.

ten'der-hef't'ed, adj. Tenderhearted. Obs.

ten'der·hook'. Var. of TENTER-HOOK.

ten'der·ish, adj. See -ISH. ten'der-voiced', adj. See VOICED.

ten'di·cle, n. [L. tendicula.] A noose; snare. Obs.

ten'di·ni'tis (tĕn'dĭ-nī'tĭs), n. [ML.] = TENONITIS.

ten'di·nous·ness, n. See -NESS.

tend'ment, n. Attendance; care. Obs.

ten'drac (tĕn'drăk). Var. of TENREC.

ten'dre. + TENDER, TINDER.

ten'drel, n. [Obs. var. of TENDRIL.] A young girl; a lass. Obs.

ten'dril·lar (-ĕr), adj. = TENDRILOUS.

ten'dril·ly (tĕn'drĭl-ĭ), adj. = TENDRILOUS.

tene. Var. of TEEN. Obs. exc. Scot.

tene. Obs. past part. of TAKE.

ten'e·bres, n. [OF. (F. ténèbres).] Obs. a Darkness; obscurity. b Tenebrae.

te·neb'ri·cose (tē-nĕb'rĭ·kōs), adj. [L. tenebricosus.] = TENEBROUS.

ten'e·brif'i·cous, adj. Tenebrific. Obs.

Te·neb'ri·on'i·dae (tĕ·nĕb'rĭ·ŏn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. tenebrio, -onis, one who loves darkness (cf. F. ténébrion a meal worm) + -idae.] Zool. A large family of heteromerous, firm-bodied, mostly dark-colored, vegetable-feeding beetles, esp. characteristic of arid regions and often with the hind wings vestigial and functionless. Their larvae are usually hard cylindrical worms. They are popularly called darkling beetles. Te·neb'ri·o (tĕ·nĕb'rĭ·ō), containing the meal worms, is the type genus. — te·neb'ri·o·nid (-ō·nĭd), n. & adj.

te·neb'ri·ous (tĕ·nĕb'rĭ·ŭs), adj. Tenebrous. — te·neb'ri·ous·ly, adv.

te·neb'ri·ty (tĕ·nĕb'rĭ·tĭ), n. Tenebrousness.

te·ne·brose (tĕn'ē·brōs; see -OSE), adj. Tenebrous.

‖te'ne·bro'si (tā'nā·brō'sē), n. pl. [It., pl. of tenebroso somber.] In Italian painting, those artists who affect a very somber tone; — applied esp. to Caravaggio, Ribera, and their followers.

ten'e·brous (tĕn'ē·brŭs), adj. [OF. tenebrus (F. ténébreux), fr. L. tenebrosus, fr. tenebrae darkness. See TEMERITY.] Dark; gloomy; dusky; obscure; as, tenebrous cypress groves. — ten'e·bros'i·ty (-brŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n. — ten'e·brous·ly, adv. — ten'e·brous·ness, n.

The most dark, tenebrous night. J. Hall (1565).

ten'e·ment (tĕn'ē·mĕnt), n. [OF., a holding, a fief (F. tènement), fr. ML. tenementum, fr. L. tenere to hold. See TENANT.] 1. Law. Orig., that which is the subject of tenure; hence, land, or any of various forms of incorporeal property treated like land, held by a person of another, whatever the nature of the tenant's interest therein (whether an inheritable estate, an estate for life, or an estate for years), or held as owner. Also, specif., an estate of freehold, or frank tenement, in a corporeal or an incorporeal hereditament, as distinguished from a less estate, as an estate for a term of years. Among the common forms of tenement are houses, rents, commons, an office, an advowson, a franchise, a right of common, a peerage, etc.

The thing held is a tenement, the possessor of it a "tenant," and the manner of possession is called "tenure." Blackstone.

The doubts expressed by some modern lawyers as to whether a term of years is a tenement imply a conception of a metaphysical tenement which Bracton had not apprehended. Pollock & Maitl.

2. Hence: a A dwelling house; often specif.: (1) A rented house or one intended to be rented. (2) A tenement house (see below), esp. one of the poorer class. b An apartment, a suite or set of rooms, or a single room for use by one tenant or family. Cf. APARTMENT. c Scot. An edifice of several houses separately tenanted.

3. Dwelling; abode; habitation; hence, the body as the temporary abode of the soul.

ten'e·men'tal (-mĕn'tăl; -t'l), adj. Of or pertaining to a tenement; held by or leased to tenants.

ten'e·men'ta·ry (-tā·rĭ), adj. Consisting of tenements; tenemental.

ten'e·ment·er (tĕn'ē·mĕnt·ĕr), n. The tenant of a tenement.

tenement house. Commonly, a dwelling house erected or used for the purpose of being rented, esp. one divided into separate apartments, or tenements, for families. Often, esp. in reference to large cities, such a building occupied as dwellings by the poorer classes. Cf. APARTMENT HOUSE, 2d FLAT. Sometimes, as for building and sanitary purposes, what shall constitute a tenement has been prescribed by statute, as in New York and Pennsylvania. See Citation. Tenement house as used in a covenant (not to erect a tenement house) has been held not to include a modern high-class apartment house (82 App. Div. (N.Y. 1)). In the law no distinction is made between flat houses, apartment houses, and the poorest class of tenements popularly called "tenement houses." They all have many parts used in common by the different families of occupants, and receive some quasi-public care and supervision. The definition of tenement house of the New York Tenement House Act (see Cit.) is a typical statutory definition.

A tenement house is any house or building, or portion thereof, which is rented, leased, let, or hired out to be occupied, or is occupied, as the home or residence of three families or more living independently of each other, and doing their cooking upon the premises, or by more than two families upon any floor, so living and cooking, but having a common right in the halls, stairways, yards, water-closets, or privies, or some of them. N. Y. Tenement House Act, c. 1 §§ 1 & 2.

ten'e·ment·ize (tĕn'ē·mĕnt·īz), v. t. To make over into tenements. — ten'e·ment·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zăˈ-), n.

te·nen'das (tē·nĕn'dăs), n. [L., acc. pl. fem. See TENENDUM.] Scots Law. The tenendum of a deed.

te·nen'dum (tē·nĕn'dŭm), n.; pl. -DA (-dȧ). [L., fut. pass. part. of tenere to hold.] Law. The clause formerly used in deeds to designate the kind of tenure vested in the grantee; — so called from the distinguishing word, tenendum (in the Latin form), which was retained and annexed to the habendum after the clause was dropped, appearing as the words "to hold" in modern deeds. See HABENDUM.

ten'ent (tĕn'ĕnt), n. [L. tenent they hold.] A tenet. Obs.

ten'ent (tĕn'ĕnt), adj. [L. tenens, -entis, pres. part., holding.] Zool. Adapted for clinging. Rare.

ten'ent (tĕn'ĕnt). Var. of TENON.

ten'er·al (tĕn'ĕr·ăl), adj. [L. tener, -eri, tender, delicate.] Zool. Designating a state of the imago of insects immediately after molting, during which it is soft and immature in coloring.

‖te'ne·ra·men'te (tā'nā·rä·mĕn'tā), adv. [It.] Music. Tenderly; — a direction.

Ten'er·iffe' (tĕn'ĕr·ĭf'; -ēf'), n. [From Teneriffe, better Tenerife, one of the Canary Islands.] A white wine. See CANARY, n., 2.

Ten'er·iffe' lace. A needle-point lace made on the Canary Islands, and deriving its name from the island of Tenerife (see TENERIFFE), used chiefly as edging or insertion, and distinguished by wheel motifs.

te·nes'mus (tē·nĕz'mŭs; tē·nĕs'-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. teinesmos, fr. teinein to stretch; cf. L. tenesmo.] Med. An urgent and distressing sensation, as if a discharge from the intestines or from the bladder must take place, although none can be effected; also, ineffectual and painful straining to cause such an evacuation. — te·nes'mic (-mĭk), adj.

ten'et (tĕn'ĕt; -ĭt; tē'nĕt; -nĭt; 119; 277), n. [L. tenet he holds, fr. tenere to hold. See TENABLE.] Any principle, dogma, belief, or doctrine, held as true, esp. by an organization; loosely, any opinion so held.

Syn. — See DOCTRINE.

ten'fold' (tĕn'fōld'), adj. a Ten times as much or as many; decuple; ten times repeated. b Rare. In ten folds. — ten'fold'ness, n.

ten'fold' (66), adv. To ten times as much or as many.

ten'fold', v. t. To increase tenfold.

ten'fold', n. An amount ten times as much or as many.

ten'-for'ties (tĕn'fôr'tĭz), n. pl. Certain United States five per cent bonds issued in 1864, which were redeemable at any time after ten years and payable at the end of forty years; — popularly so called.

ten'-gal'lon hat (tĕn'găl'ŭn). A large broad-brimmed cowboy's hat. Western U. S.

ten'ge·re' (tĕng'gē·rā'; tĕng'grē), n. [Turk.] Heavens; sky.

teng'er·ite (tĕng'ĕr·īt), n. [After C. Tenger, Sw. chemist.] Mineral. A mineral supposed to be a carbonate of yttrium, occurring in white powdery coatings.

Teng'ger·ese' (tĕng'gĕr·ēz'; -ēs'), n. pl. Also Teng'gris (tĕng'grĭs). A primitive tribe of mountaineers of eastern Java, near Tosari, who retain a form of animistic Hinduism.

ten'gu (tĕn'ngōō), n. [Jap.] Japanese Folklore. Any of certain malevolent winged beings with birdlike beaks; also, their chief, who has a long protruding nose, carries a feather fan, and wears a coronet. Hence, an arrogant person.

‖te·nien'te (tā·nyĕn'tā) n. [Sp.] Literally, one holding (as a substitute); of certain Spanish officials, a lieutenant; a deputy, in the Philippines, also, a municipal officer, the headman of a barrio.

Te·ni'no (tĕ·nē'nō), n. One of a tribe of Shahaptian Indians of northern Oregon, now on the Warm Springs reservation.

te·ni'o (tā·nē'ō), n. [Sp. tenío, teníu, fr. Araucan thùniùn, lit., to be pounded to pieces; with ref. to the medicinal bark.] A timber tree (Weinmannia trichosperma) of southern South America; also, its rosy-brown wood suggesting that of the sweet birch.

ten'line', adj. Composed of ten lines; specif., Print., having the depth of ten lines of text type.

ten'man·tale' (tĕn'măn·tāl'), n. [ME. ten manna tale, lit., tale (number, reckoning) of ten men.] Obs. exc. Hist. In the parts of medieval England under Danish influence: a A tithing. b A land tax, or carucage.

ten'nant·ite (tĕn'ănt·īt), n. [After Smithson Tennant (1761–1815), Eng. chemist.] Mineral. A blackish lead-gray mineral, closely related to tetrahedrite, essentially of copper, arsenic, and sulphur ($Cu_3As_4S_7$).

ten'né (tĕn'ā), n. [MF. tenné, var. of tanné. See TAWNY.] 1. Her. A tincture, rarely used, considered as an orange or bright brown; — usually represented in engravings by diagonal lines from sinister to dexter, crossed by vertical.

2. A brown, red-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. TAWNY; COLOR.

ten'ner, ten'er (tĕn'ĕr), n. Slang. a A currency note or bill for ten dollars or pounds. b A prison sentence for ten years.

Ten'nes·se'an (tĕn'ē·sē'ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Tennessee. — n. A native or inhabitant of Tennessee.

Ten'nes·see' war'bler (tĕn'ē·sē'; 66). A small, olive-green, white-breasted warbler (Vermivora peregrina) of eastern North America, nesting in the fur countries.

ten'nis (tĕn'ĭs), n. [ME. tenys, tennes, tenetz, teneys, prob. through F. (whence It. tenes, c. 1325) fr. Ar. Tinnis, a medieval town in Lower Egypt noted for its fabrics; — the early balls were made of light cloth.] 1. An ancient and complicated game played with a ball, which is struck with a racket (in early times, with the palm of the hand), in an enclosed court, usually a covered building, of peculiar construction, there being used in play, besides a specially marked out floor with a net crossing it, the main walls, lower inner walls with sloping roof (penthouse), various openings, as the dedans, grille, and winning gallery, a projection in the main wall called the tambour, etc.; — now often called specifically court tennis. The service side is the part of the court between the net and the end wall beyond the dedans penthouse; the hazard side is the corresponding part opposite beyond the grille penthouse.

2. Short for LAWN TENNIS.

ten'nis, v. t. To drive backward and forward, as a ball in playing tennis. — v. i. To play tennis. Both Obs.

ten'nis, adj. Of or pertaining to, used in, or incurred in playing, tennis or lawn tennis; as, a tennis ball, court, etc.

Tennis Court Oath. = OATH OF THE TENNIS COURT.

tennis marker. A marker (sense 8).

tennis play. a Tennis or lawn tennis. b Obs. A tennis court. — tennis player. — tennis playing.

tennis racket. A racket (sense 1) used in tennis.

tennis shoe. A light-soled shoe worn in playing tennis and generally having rubber soles, but frequently made with taps or hemp soles.

ten'nis·y (tĕn'ĭs·ĭ), adj. Given to or suggestive of lawn tennis.

Ten·no' (tĕn·nō'), n. sing. & pl. [Jap. Tennō.] Literally, Heavenly Sovereign; — the official designation of the Emperor of Japan, who is said to be a lineal descendant of Amaterasu of the Shinto mythology. There have been 124 tenno, exclusive of the five of the northern court during the period 1331–1392. Cf. AMATERASU, MIKADO.

Ten'ny·so'ni·an (tĕn'ĭ·sō'nĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Alfred (Lord) Tennyson, the English poet (1809–92), or his writings; having characteristics like those of his poetry. — n. A student or imitator of Tennyson's writings.

Ten'ny·so'ni·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n. Also Ten'ny·son·ism (tĕn'ĭ·sŭn·ĭz'm). A trait or mannerism suggestive of Tennyson's style.

ten'o- (tĕn'ō-), ten-. A combining form from Greek tenōn, a tendon, equivalent to tenonto-, as in tenotomy and the following, the meanings of which can be understood from the definitions of their elements.

tenodesis	tenomyotomy	tenorrhaphy
tenodynia	tenophony	tenostosis
tenography	tenophyte	tenosuture
tenology	tenoplastic	tenotome
tenomyoplasty	tenoplasty	tenovaginitis

Te·noch'ti·tlan' (tā·nōch'tē·tlăn'), n. The ancient name of Mexico City, which with Texcoco and Tlacopan formed the Aztec confederacy, and became the capital of the Aztec Empire. Cf. AZTEC.

ten'on (tĕn'ŭn), n. [F., fr. tenir to hold. See TENABLE.] Carp. & Join. A projecting member left by cutting away the wood around it for insertion into a mortise to make a joint, esp. one passing entirely through the piece in which the mortise is cut. Cf. TUSK, TENON. See MORTISE, Illust.

ten'on, v. t. & i.; TEN'ONED (-ŭnd); TEN'ON·ING. 1. To cut or fit for insertion into a mortise, as the end of a timber.

2. To unite by or as by a tenon.

ten'on. Var. of TENDON. Obs. exc. Dial.

tenon auger. A hollow auger for forming tenons on the ends of spokes.

ten'o·nec'to·my (tĕn'ō·nĕk'tō·mĭ), n. [Gr. tenōn tendon + -ectomy.] Surgical removal of a tendon or part of one.

ten'on·er (tĕn'ŭn·ĕr), n. A workman or machine that tenons.

Te·no'ni·an (tē·nō'nĭ·ăn), adj. Anat. Discovered or described by J. R. Tenon (1724–1816), a French anatomist, as in Tenonian capsule, Tenon's capsule.

ten'o·ni'tis (tĕn'ō·nī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. ten- + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of a tendon.

tenon saw. A fine-toothed backsaw, for cutting tenons, dovetails, etc.

Te·non's' cap'sule (tē·nôNz'). [See TENONIAN.] Anat. A thin connective-tissue membrane insheathing the eyeball behind the conjunctiva. The lymph space between it and the sclerotic coat, Tenon's space, is traversed by delicate reticular tissue and by the optic nerve and ocular muscles.

tenont-. = TENONTO- (which see), as in:

tenontagra, tenontitis, tenontodynia.

te·non'to- (tē·nŏn'tō-), tenont-. Med. A combining form, Greek tenonto-, tenont-, from tenōn, tenontos, meaning a tendon, as in tenontology. For words below see the word or element with which tenonto- is combined.

tenontography	tenontomyoplasty	tenontoplasty
tenontolemmitis	tenontomyotomy	tenontothecitis tenontology	tenontophyma	tenontotomy tenon tooth. See SAW, n., Illust.

ten'or (tĕn'ĕr), n. [Corrupt. of tenon.] A tenon. Obs. exc. Dial.

ten'or (tĕn'ĕr), n. [OF. tenour (F. teneur), fr. L. tenor, fr. tenere to hold. See TENABLE; cf. TENURE.] 1. A holding on in a continuous course; general tendency or direction; course; procedure; trend.

They kept the noiseless tenor of their way. Gray.

2. That course of thought which holds on through a discourse, writing, or the like; the general drift of thought; purport; intent; drift; as, the tenor of a speech.

Does not the whole tenor of the divine law positively require humility and meekness to all men? Sprat.

3. Stamp; character; nature; habitual condition.

This success would look like chance, if it were not perpetual, and always of the same tenor. Dryden.

4. Finance. The time between the date of issue of a note or bond, or the date of acceptance of a draft, and the maturity date. Cf. USANCE, n., 3.

5. Law. An exact copy of a writing, set forth in the words and figures of it; a transcript.

6. Mining. The percentage or average amount of metal or mineral in an ore, a concentrate, tailing, or the like.

7. [OF. tenour (F. ténor, fr. It. tenore), fr. L. tenor a holding; — so called because the tenor voice took and held the principal part, the cantus firmus or plain song, to which the other voices supplied a harmony above and below.] Music. a The highest male voice (except the falsetto), having a compass between about c and c″ (see 4th PITCH, 19). A lyric tenor is a light, high voice with an upward compass to at least c″. A dramatic tenor is a full, powerful voice of a lower compass than the preceding, and with a quality approaching that of the baritone. b Hence, the part in the harmony adapted to this voice; the second (reckoning from the bass) of the four voice parts, and originally the air, to which the other parts were auxiliary. c A person who sings the tenor, or the instrument that plays it, as the viola. d Medieval Music. (1) The fermata or pause on a final note. (2) The compass or ambitus of a mode. (3) The repercussion or dominant of a mode. e See CHANGE RINGING.

Syn. — See TENDENCY.

ten'or, adj. Of, pertaining to, or adapted to, the tenor (esp. voice or part); as, tenor singer, quality, or solo; intermediate in size and compass between the bass and alto of its kind; — of an instrument; as, tenor banjo, bassoon, drum, or horn.

ten'or, v. i. To sing tenor.

tenor behind. See CHANGE RINGING.

tenor clef. See CLEF.

tenor covering. See CHANGE RINGING.

‖te·no're (tā·nō'rā), n. [It.] Music. A tenor (sense 7); as: ‖te·no're buf'fo (bōōf'fō), a tenor who sings comic roles; ‖te·no're leg·gie'ro (lĕd·jā'rō) or di gra'si·a (dē grä'tsē·ä), a lyric tenor; ‖te·no're pri'mo (prē'mō), first tenor; ‖te·no're ro·bus'to (rō·bōōs'tō) or di for'za (dē fôr'tsä), a dramatic tenor; ‖te·no're se·con'do (sä·kōn'-dō), second tenor.

‖te·no·ri'no (tā'nō·rē'nō), n. [It.] Music. Dim. of TENORE; sometimes, a castrato.

ten'or·ist (tĕn'ĕr·ĭst), n. One who sings tenor or plays a tenor instrument.

ten'o·rite (tĕn'ō·rīt), n. [After G. Tenore of Naples.] Mineral. Native cupric oxide, CuO, occurring in minute steel-gray or iron-gray scales or black earthy masses. Cf. MELACONITE.

tenor octave. Music. A small octave. See PITCH. Illust.

ten'o·roon' (tĕn'ō·rōōn'), n. [It. tenorone, aug. of tenore tenor.] Music. a An oboe di caccia. b An incomplete stop found in some old organs.

tenor violin. a = VIOLA a. b (1) Obs. Any of several instruments, intermediate between the viola and the violoncello. (2) Specif., a violotta.

ten'o·si'tis (tĕn'ō·sī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. teno- + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of a tendon.

te·not'o·my (tē·nŏt'ō·mĭ), n. [teno- + -tomy.] Surg. The division of a tendon, or the act of dividing a tendon. — te·not'o·mist (-mĭst), n. — te·not'o·mize (-mīz), v. t. & i.

ten'pence (tĕn'pĕns), n. The sum or value of, or a coin worth, ten pennies.

ten'pen'ny (tĕn'pĕn'ĭ; -pĕn·ĭ), adj. 1. Valued or sold at tenpence; as, a tenpenny cake. See PENNY, n., 1.

2. (pron. tĕn'pĕn'ĭ) Specif., designating a size of nails. See -PENNY.

ten'pen'ny, n. 1. A tenpenny coin or nail.

2. A child's reader formerly costing tenpence. Scot.

Ten Perfections. Buddhism. The virtues which a bodhisattva must exhibit to the highest degree to attain to Buddhahood. They are charity, good conduct, equanimity, energy, concentration in trance, discrimination, the use of convenient means, resolution (in fulfillment of vows), strength, and intelligence.

ten'pin' (tĕn'pĭn'), n. One of the pins used in tenpins.

ten'pins' (tĕn'pĭnz'), n. A game played, usually on a bowling alley, with ten wooden pins, usually arranged to form a triangle, at which a ball is bowled. In American tenpins, the pins are 15 inches high, with a maximum circumference of 15 inches, and the balls may not exceed 27 inches in cir-

Arrangement of the Spots on which the Pins are placed in Tenpins.

te·nec'to·my (tē·nĕk'tō·mĭ), n. = TENONECTOMY.

tener. † TENNER, TENOR, TENURE.

te·ner'i·ty (tē·nĕr'ĭ·tĭ), n. [L. teneritas. See TENDER, adj.] Tenderness. Obs.

‖te·nez' (tē·nā'). [F.] Lit., take it; as interj., listen; see.

teng (tĕng). Dial. Eng. var. of TANG, a prong, etc.

teng, n. sing. & pl. [Burmese.] See MEASURE, Table.

ten'-gauge', adj. Firearms. See GAUGE, n., 9.

te'ni·a (tē'nĭ·ȧ), te'ni·a·cid'al, te'ni·a·cide', te'ni·a·fuge', te'ni·al, te·ni'a·sis, te'ni·cide, te'ni·fuge, etc. Vars. of TAENIA, etc.

ten'i·ble, adj. = TENABLE.

ten'i·fy, v. i. [See TENUOUS; -FY.] To make tenuous. Obs.

te'ni·o·glos'sate, ten'i·oid, etc. Vars. of TAENIOGLOSSATE, TAENIOID, etc.

ten'-knot'ter, n. See -KNOTTER.

ten'ner. † TENDOUR, TENOR.

Ten'nes·see'an. Var. of TENNESSEAN.

ten'ney, ten'ny. Vars. of TENNÉ.

ten'nis·dom, n. See -DOM.

ten'o·nos·to'sis (tĕn'ō·nŏs·tō'sĭs), n. [NL.] = TENOSTOSIS.

ten'or. † TENURE. [TENORIST.]

ten'or·is'ter (tĕn'ĕr·ĭs'tĕr), n. = ten'or·less, adj. See -LESS.

ten'our. † TENOR, TENURE.

cumference or 16 pounds in weight. Each player has ten frames, or innings, bowling two balls in each frame. If all of the pins are knocked down by the first ball, it is a strike, if by the second, or first and second, it is a spare, and the player may add to the 10 thus scored whatever he may score on his next ball, or, in the case of a strike, his next two balls. With three successive strikes it is possible to score a maximum of 30 in one frame, 20 being the maximum that can be scored for a spare. The highest possible score for a game is 300. Cf. CANDLEPINS, NINEPINS.

ten′-point′, 10-point (tĕn′point′), n. Print. See TYPE, n., 17.

ten′-pound′er (-poun′dĕr), n. 1. Any large oceanic tarponlike fish of the genus Elops, esp. Elops saurus of the tropical Atlantic. See 2d AWA b.
2. Anything that weighs ten pounds.
3. A cannon firing a missile that weighs ten pounds.
4. One having the value of ten pounds; as: a See 1st POUNDER, 3. b Brit. A voter occupying property valued at ten pounds' annual income.

Ten Princes, The. The heroes of a Sanskrit prose romance by Dandin (about 6th century A.D.).

ten′rec (tĕn′rĕk), ten′drac (-drăk), n. [F. tanrac, tanrec, tenrec, tandrec, fr. Malagasy tàndraka, trândraka.] a Any of several mammals, some spiny, of the order Insectivora and family Tenrecidae (syn. Centetidae) of Madagascar; esp., a common tailless species (Tenrec ecaudatus). When young, it has longitudinal rows of white spines along the back. It feeds chiefly on earthworms. It is very prolific. b [cap.] The typical genus of tenrecs. Syn. Centetes.

Tenrec (Ericulus setosus).

Ten·rec′i·dae (tĕn·rĕs′ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A family consisting of the tenrecs and a few allies. Syn. Centetidae.

tense (tĕns; 232), n. [OF. tens (F. temps), fr. L. tempus time, tense. See TEMPORAL pert. to time.] 1. Time. Obs.
2. Gram. Distinctive form in a verb for the expression of distinctions as to time; the modification of verbal forms to express such distinctions for the action or occurrence signified; an inflectional form or phrase thus expressive of a time distinction. Tense forms are called point tenses when they express the action simply as falling at past, present, or future times (wrote, writes, will write); they are called durative tenses when they express aspects of duration, as the continuance of the act or its completion (am writing, have written). See PROGRESSIVE, PERFECT.

tense, adj.; TENS′ER (tĕn′sĕr); TENS′EST. [L. tensus, past part. of tendere to stretch. See TEND to move; cf. TOISE.] 1. Stretched tight; strained to stiffness; rigid; as, a tense fiber, pulse; — opposed to flaccid, relaxed.
2. Feeling or evincing nervous tension; mentally strained or high-strung; as, tense anxiety.
3. Phonet. Uttered with the tongue and associated muscles in a relatively tense state, as ē, ōō contrasted with ĭ ŏŏ; narrow. Cf. LAX, adj., 5, and see Pron. § 33.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
tense-drawn, tense-eyed, tense-fibered.
Syn. — TENSE, INTENSE, INTENT, RAPT. That is TENSE (both lit. and fig.) which is tightly stretched or under severe strain; as, "faces . . . delicately tinted . . . under the tense silk of parasols" (H. James); "Just as a bicycle chain may be too tight, so may one's carefulness and conscientiousness be so tense as to hinder the running of one's mind" (W. James); "Help him to unbend his too tense thought" (M. Arnold); "the group of [Poe's] tales . . . with their blazing vividness and tense compactness of substance" (J. M. Robertson), INTENSE implies extreme, sometimes excessive, strength, depth, acuteness, concentration, susceptibility, and the like; as, "the intense, clear, star-sown vault of heaven" (M. Arnold); "He was in such an intense mood that humor was entirely barred out" (Mary Wilkins); "for the intense Dante is intense in all things" (Carlyle); "Poetry should be memorable and emphatic, intense and soon over" (Bagehot). INTENT (the doublet of intense) applies esp. to faculties that are on the stretch or eagerly bent on something; RAPT, as here compared, implies extreme intentness, in which one is, as it were, taken out of oneself; as, "persons whose hearts are wholly bent toward pleasure, or intent upon gain" (Spectator); "She had sometimes an intent, considering, wise look" (M. Hewlett); "He [Tennyson] said that scarce any man's face could look so grave and rapt as a baby's could at times" (E. FitzGerald). Cf. RIGID, STIFF, ABSORBED.
Ant. — Loose, slack, lax, relaxed.
— tense′ly, adv. — tense′ness, n.

tense (tĕns), v. t. & i.; TENSED (tĕnst); TENS′ING (tĕn′sĭng). To make or become tense, as tendons or muscles.

tense auxiliary. See AUXILIARY VERB.

tense phrase. Gram. See VERB PHRASE.

ten′si·ble (tĕn′sĭ·b'l), adj. [ML. tensibilis. See TENSE, adj.] Capable of being extended; tensile. — ten′si·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), ten′si·ble·ness, n. — ten′si·bly, adv.

ten′si·fy (tĕn′sĭ·fī), v. t. To make tense.

ten′sile (-sĭl; see -ILE), adj. [NL. tensilis. See TENSE, adj.] 1. Capable of tension; ductile; tensible.
2. Of or pertaining to tension; as, tensile strength.
— ten′sile·ly, adv. — ten′sile·ness, n. — ten·sil′i·ty (tĕn·sĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n.

ten′sile, v. t. To make tensile. Rare.

tensile strength. Physics. Resistance to rupture; cohesiveness; specif., the greatest longitudinal stress a substance can bear without tearing asunder, usually expressed with reference to a unit area of cross section, as the number of pounds per square inch, or kilograms per square centimeter, necessary to produce rupture.

ten·sim′e·ter (tĕn·sĭm′ē·tĕr), n. [tension + -meter.] Instrument for measuring gaseous tension; manometer.

ten′si·om′e·ter (tĕn′sĭ·ŏm′ē·tĕr), n. Mach. A device for determining tension, as the surface tension of water, or tautness, as in the wires of an airplane.

ten′sion (tĕn′shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. tension, fr. L. tensio, fr. tendere, tensum, to stretch. See TENSE, adj.] 1. Act of stretching, straining, or tensing; state or degree of being stretched or strained to stiffness; as, the tension of the muscles.
2. Hence: a Mental strain; intensity of feeling or effort. b Nervous discontent and anxiety.
3. A strained condition of relations, as between nations, individuals, or groups.
4. A device to produce a desired tension, or pull, as in a sewing machine or a loom.
5. Elec. a The quality in consequence of which an electric charge tends to discharge itself, as into the air by a spark, or to pass from a body of greater to one of less electrical potential. It varies as the square of the quantity of electricity upon a given area. b Potential.
6. Mech. A force (either of two balancing forces) causing, or tending to cause, extension. It is measured usually per unit area of cross section; — the converse of pressure. b The stress or condition due to these forces in the body or part on which they act. c Erron., pressure.
7. Med. & Psychol. a Strain or pressure; as, arterial tension. b The feeling of muscular tenseness or of expectancy. c Unrest and striving due to inner physiological causes.

ten′sion (tĕn′shŭn), v. t.; TEN′SIONED (-shŭnd); TEN′SIONING. 1. To subject to tension.
2. To tighten to the desired degree, as warp yarns on a loom.

‖ten′sion′ (tăN′syôN′), n. [F.] Phonet. On-glide; closure.

ten′sion·al (tĕn′shŭn·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to tension; resulting from stretching; as, tensional strain.

tension carriage. Mach. A carriage, running on a rail or rails, supporting one wheel of an endless-rope system for power transmission and pulled back so as to regulate the tension on the driving rope.

tension element. Kinematics. A flexible link for transmitting tension only, as an endless belt with its pulleys. Cf. PRESSURE ELEMENT.

tension line. A tension zone.

tension pulley. Mach. A pulley over which a belt is caused to pass in order to keep it taut.

tension rod. Engin. A metal rod used as a tension member.

tension roller. Mach. A tightening roller for a belt.

tension zone. Biogeog. A zone between two competing plant or animal societies which is usually invaded by pioneers from both.

ten′si·ty (tĕn′sĭ·tĭ), n. Tenseness.

ten′sive (tĕn′sĭv), adj. [F. tensif. See TENSE, adj.] Tending to or causing tension.

ten′some (tĕn′sŭm), adj. Consisting of ten. — n. A company of ten. Both Scot.

ten′son (tĕn′sŏn), n. [F., lit., strife, fr. L. tensio, fr. tendere, tentum, to stretch, strive. See TEND to move; cf. CONTENTION.] Provençal Lit. A kind of lyric representing a more or less serious dispute, usually between two interlocutors, in alternating stanzas, on some question, esp. one concerning love. Cf. PARTIMEN, DÉBAT.

ten′sor (tĕn′sĕr), n. [OF. tense protection.] A noncitizen resident licensed as a tradesman. Obs. exc. Hist. — ten′sor·ship, n. Obs.

ten′sor (-sôr; -sĕr), n. [NL. See TENSION.] 1. Anat. A muscle that stretches a part, or renders it tense.
2. Geom. a See QUATERNION, 5. b A generalized concept of a vector, or vector quantity, requiring for its description more than three components, as the six tensor components by which a strain in a stretched wire may be described as opposed to the three vector components by which a force is described with reference to three orthogonal axes. It is a set of n^r ordered functions of the co-ordinates of an arbitrary point in space of n dimensions which is transformed linearly and homogeneously, according to certain rules, when a transformation of co-ordinates is made. Tensors are called covariant, contravariant or mixed according to the law of transformation and the number r is called the rank of the tensor. When a transformation from co-ordinates x to co-ordinates y is made the formulas for a covariant tensor of rank two, for example, are $Y_{pq} = \sum_{\alpha,\beta} X_{\alpha\beta} \frac{\partial x_\alpha}{\partial y_p} \frac{\partial x_\beta}{\partial y_q}$ while those for a contravariant tensor are $Y^{pq} = \sum_{\alpha\beta} X^{\alpha\beta} \frac{\partial y_p}{\partial x_\alpha} \frac{\partial y_q}{\partial x_\beta}$. The components of a covariant tensor are denoted by labels attached as subscripts and of a contravariant tensor by labels attached as superscripts; as X_{rs} (read X subscript r, s) and X^{rs} (read X superscript r, s). The n differentials dx^r of the co-ordinates of a point on a curve constitute a contravariant tensor of rank 1 while the n derivatives, $\frac{\partial\theta}{\partial x_r}$, of a scalar point function θ with respect to the co-ordinates constitute a covariant tensor of rank one. When all the functions which constitute a tensor have the value zero the tensor is said to be zero, and when a tensor is zero in one co-ordinate system it is zero in all. This is a property of decisive significance for the mathematical development of the generalized theory of relativity. Cf. ALTERNATING TENSOR, COVARIANT TENSOR, CONTRAVARIANT TENSOR, FUNDAMENTAL TENSOR. For curvature tensor, see CHRISTOFFEL SYMBOLS.
3. That which produces tension.

‖ten′sor fa′sci·ae la′tae (tĕn′sôr făs′ĭ·ē lā′tē). Also ‖ten′sor fa′sci·ae fe′mo·ris (fĕm′ō·rĭs). [NL. See FASCIA.] Anat. A muscle arising from the anterior part of the outer edge of the crest of the ilium and inserted into the fascia lata of the outer side of the thigh.

‖ten′sor pa·la′ti (pə·lā′tī). [NL.] Anat. The tensor veli palatini.

‖ten′sor tar′si (tär′sī). [NL.] Anat. A small muscle extending between the orbital surface of the lachrymal bone and the inner part of the tarsal plates.

‖ten′sor tym′pa·ni (tĭm′pə·nī). [NL.] Anat. A small muscle in a bony canal just above the Eustachian tube, attached by a long tendon to the manubrium of the malleus near its base. It serves to adjust the tension of the tympanic membrane.

‖ten′sor ve′li pa′la·ti′ni (vē′lī păl′ə·tī′nī). [NL. See VELUM; PALATE.] Anat. A muscle inserted into the hard and soft palate, arising from the scaphoid fossa and angular spine of the sphenoid bone and from the lateral cartilaginous lamina of the Eustachian tube. It renders the soft palate tense, and is said to dilate the Eustachian tube.

ten′-spot′ (tĕn′spŏt′), n. Slang. a A ten-dollar bill. b A playing card with ten pips.

ten′-strike′ (-strīk′), n. U. S. a Tenpins. A strike. b Colloq. Any successful and decisive stroke or act. — ten′-striker (-strīk′ĕr), n. Slang, U. S.

tent (tĕnt), n. [OF. tente, fr. L. tenta, fem. of tentus stretched out, past part. of tendere, tentum, to stretch; cf. ML. tenta, tentum, tent. See TEND to move; cf. TENT of lint.] 1. A portable lodge of skins, canvas, or strong cloth, stretched and sustained by poles, used for shelter, esp. by soldiers in camp. Common varieties are: A tent, a tent whose sides slope unbrokenly from the ridgepole to the ground, the ends, usually closed by flaps, having the form of an A without the crossbar; bell tent, a tent of circular ground plan and a central pole, the sides sometimes being extended by a hoop; fly tent, any tent having a fly (see 2d FLY, 4 b); shelter tent, (1) a small A tent, usually two or more pieces of waterproof cotton duck, fixed for buttoning or tying, with accessory cords and poles, each soldier to be sheltered carrying some portion, — called also dog tent in soldiers' slang; or (2) a tent erected with two poles and a ridge rope, the roof sloping to the rear only, often with a perpendicular drop, the sides being perpendicular and the front closed by a hanging flap, which can be raised as an awning; Sibley tent, a tent of conical shape, sometimes with a perpendicular drop near the bottom (erected on a tripod and having a ventilating device at the top, which permits of a fire being built in the center), — formerly used in the United States Army; wall tent, a tent with sides whose lower parts drop perpendicularly.
2. The occupants of a tent (sense 1).
3. A thing like or likened to a tent (sense 1); as: a A hut b Scot. A wooden pulpit for open-air preaching. c The web of a tent caterpillar. d Med. A tentlike screen for retaining vapors during administration. e Photog. A box used as a portable darkroom.
4. Figuratively, abode; habitation.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tent-clad	tent-fashion, adj. & adv.	tent pole tent-dotted	tentmate	tent-sheltered tent-dwelling, adj.	tent pin	tent stake — to your tents, O Israel! A rallying cry for a revolt. (1 Kings xii, 16).

tent, v. i. To lodge in or as in a tent. — v. t. Orig., to pitch (a tent); now, to lodge in tents; also, to cover with or as with a tent.

tent, adj. Of, pertaining to, or used in a tent or tents; dwelling in tents.

tent, n. [OF. tente. See TENT to probe.] Surg. a Obs. A probe for searching a wound. b A roll of lint or linen, or a conical or cylindrical piece of sponge or other absorbent, used chiefly to dilate a natural canal, to keep open the orifice of a wound, or to absorb discharges.

tent, v. t.; TENT′ED; TENT′ING. [OF. tenter. See TEMPT.]
1. Obs. a To test. b To tempt.
2. a Obs. To probe, as a wound. b To keep open with a tent; as, to tent a wound.

tent, n. [Aphetic for ATTENT, n., INTENT, n.] Attention; heed; care. Now Scot. & Dial. Eng.

tent, v. t. [ME. tenten. Cf. TENT attention, TEND to attend.] Now Scot. & Dial. Eng. a To attend to; care for; watch over or for; tend. b To observe; heed. c To prevent; hinder; stop. d To show; teach. — v. i. To take heed; beware.

tent, adj. Attentive; intent. Scot. Rare.

tent, v. t. [Var. of TEND.] To proffer; tender. — v. i. To tend; direct itself. Both Obs.

tent (tĕnt), n. [Sp. tinto, prop., deep-colored, fr. L. tinctus, past part. See TINGE; cf. TINT, TINTO.] A sweet deep-red wine, made chiefly in the vicinity of Rota, near Cádiz, Spain.

tent, n. [See 2d TENTER.] Formerly, a stretching frame, esp. for embroidery.

tent. Var. of TENTH. Obs. exc. Dial.

ten′a·bil′i·ty (tĕn′tə·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Temptability.

ten′ta·cle (tĕn′tə·k'l; -tĭ·k'l), n. [NL. tentaculum, fr. L. tentare to handle, feel. See TEMPT.] 1. Any of various elongate, flexible, simple or branched processes, usually tactile or prehensile in function or both (but sometimes with other functions, as respiration or locomotion), borne by animals generally on the head, or about the mouth. The structures so termed in different groups of animals are often not at all homologous. Examples are: The arms of cephalopods, crinoids, and polyps; the fleshy processes (sometimes bearing eyes) on the head of gastropod mollusks and many worms; the threadlike processes bearing stinging cells which depend from the margin of the umbrella of many jellyfishes; the tubular suctorial process of infusorians of the group Suctoria; the numerous small ciliated processes borne on the arms of brachiopods or the lophophore of bryozoans, etc.
2. Anything tentaclelike; as: a Figuratively, a tendril; a feeler. b Bot. Any irritable hair or emergence, as the gland-tipped insect-catching hairs on the leaves of the sundew; also, a tentaculum.
— ten′ta·cled (-k'ld), adj. — ten·tac′u·lar (tĕn·tăk′ū·lĕr), adj.

Ten·tac′u·la′ta (tĕn·tăk′ū·lā′tə), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. a A class of ctenophores having tentacles retractile into sheaths. These retractile tentacles may be long and pinnate (Cydippida, Platyctenea), small and unbranched (Cestida), or present only in the immature stage (Lobata). b The Pelmatozoa. — ten·tac′u·late (tĕn·tăk′ū·lāt), adj. — ten·tac′u·lat′ed (-lāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj.

tentaculi-. Comb. form for tentaculum, as in: tentaculiferous, tentaculiform, tentaculigerous.

Ten·tac′u·lif′er·a (tĕn·tăk′ū·]ĭf′ĕr·ə), n. pl. [NL., fr. tentaculum + L. ferre to bear.] 1. Zool. Syn. of SUCTORIA a (subclass of protozoans).
2. Zool. & Paleontol. Synonym of TETRABRANCHIA.

Ten·tac′u·li′tes (-lĭ′tēz), n. [NL.] Paleontol. A genus of small conical fossil shells, supposed to be of annelids or pteropods, found abundantly in some Paleozoic rocks. It is often made the type of a family, Ten·tac′u·lit′i·dae (-lĭt′ĭ·dē). — ten·tac′u·lite (-tăk′ū·līt), n.

Tentaculites (T. irregularis). × 2 ten·tac′u·lo·cyst′ (tĕn·tăk′ū·lō·sĭst′), n. [tentaculum + -cyst.] Zool. One of the sense organs situated on the margin of the umbrella of many jellyfishes. They each consist of a greatly modified and reduced tentacle containing a cavity with lithites, and are often sunk in a pit or enclosed in a pouch.

ten·tac′u·loid (-loid), adj. [tentaculum + -oid.] Tentaclelike. — n. Bot. One of the tentaclelike protuberances through the perigloea, in certain diatoms.

ten·tac′u·lum (-lŭm), n.; pl. -ULA (-lə). [NL. See TENTACLE.] 1. Zool. a A tentacle. b A vibrissa.
2. Bot. A hapteron, or holdfast.

tent′age (tĕn′tĭj), n. [From TENT a shelter.] Tents collectively; also, tenting.

ten·ta′men (tĕn·tā′mĕn), n. [L.] Attempt; experimental trial.

ten·ta′tion (tĕn·tā′shŭn), n. [L. tentatio. See TEMPTATION.] 1. Tentamen. Obs.
2. Mech. A mode of adjusting or operating by successive steps, trials, or experiments.

‖ten′ta′tion′ (tăN′tä′syôN′), n. [F.] Temptation; pl. specif., esp. in art, temptations of St. Anthony.

ten′ta·tive (tĕn′tə·tĭv), adj. [ML. tentativus, fr. L. tentare to try. See TEMPT.] 1. Of the nature of an attempt, experiment, or hypothesis to which one is not finally committed; as, primitive tentative men; offered or undertaken provisionally; as, tentative theories, interpretations.

2. Making trial; testing. Browning.
Syn. — See PROVISIONAL.
Ant. — Definite, final, conclusive.
— ten'ta·tive·ly, adv. — ten'ta·tive·ness, n.
ten'ta·tive (tĕn'tȧ·tĭv), n. [F.] A tentative undertaking, experiment, or offer; also, experimentation.
tent bed. a A bed for use in a tent. b A field bed. tent caterpillar. Any of several species of gregarious caterpillars which construct on trees large silken webs into which they retreat when at rest. The commonest American species is the larva of a moth Malacosoma americanum, the apple-tree tent caterpillar found on the wild cherry and some fruit trees. The forest tent caterpillar (M. disstrium) feeds on various forest trees.

Tent Caterpillar (Malacosoma americanum). a Larva; b Adult Moth. Both nat. size.

tent'ed (tĕn'tĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Covered with, sheltered by, or provided with, a tent or tents; also, tent-shaped.
tent'er (-tĕr), n. One who occupies, or lives in a tent.
ten'ter (tĕn'tĕr), n. [ME. tenture, tentoure; cf. F. tenture hangings, tapestry, prop. a stretching, fr. L. tendere, tentum, to stretch. See TEND to move.] A machine or frame for stretching cloth by tenterhooks, so that it may dry even and square; also, a tenterhook.
— on tenters. On tenterhooks. ten'ter, v. t. To hang or stretch on or as on tenters. — v. i. To admit of being tentered. ten'ter (tĕn'tĕr), n. 1. One who has charge or care of something.
2. Chiefly Brit. One who takes care of, or tends, machines in a factory; a kind of assistant foreman; one whose work is tending a (specified) thing, as in:
boiler tenter, cupola tenter, loom tenter, switch tenter.
3. See DUCK ON A ROCK.
ten'ter·bel'ly (tĕn'tĕr·bĕl'ĭ), n. [tenter, v. + belly.] One whose gluttony distends his belly. Obs.
ten'ter·er (-ĕr), n. One who tenters fish, wool, etc.
ten'ter·hook' (-hŏŏk'), n. 1. A sharp hooked nail used for fastening cloth on a tenter.
2. Any similar nail, spike, or hook; figuratively, that on or by which something is stretched or strained.
— on tenterhooks. Undergoing strain as if by stretching; hence, in uneasiness, or suspense, or under a distressing strain.
tent'ful (tĕnt'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. Attentive. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
tenth (tĕnth; 232), adj. [From TEN; cf. ME. tethe, fr. AS. tēotha. See TEN; cf. TITHE.] 1. Next in order after the ninth.
2. Constituting one of ten equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.
tenth, n. 1. a The unit or object coming next after the ninth in a series. b The quotient of a unit divided by ten; one of ten equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.
2. A tithe (in sense 1); specif.: (pl.) Eng. Law. a A temporary aid issuing out of personal property and granted to the king by Parliament; formerly, the real tenth part of all the movables belonging to the subject. b Eccl. Law. The tenth part of the annual profit of every benefice, after the first year formerly paid to the Pope, but afterwards (by 26 Hen. VIII, c. 3, 1534) transferred to the crown. It now forms a part of Queen Anne's Bounty.
3. Music. a An interval embracing ten degrees of the staff, as that between one of the scale and three of the octave above. Also, a note or tone at this interval; the octave of the third. b An organ stop sounding a tenth above the normal pitch of the digitals played upon; a decima.
4. Eng. Hist. See FIFTEENTH, n., 3. tenth, v. t. To decimate; to tithe. tenth'me'ter, tenth'me'tre (tĕnth'mē'tĕr), n. Physics. A unit 10^{10} of which make one meter; the ten millionth part of a millimeter. See MEASURE, Table.
tenth muse. 1. Sappho; — so called by Plato
2. A female poet or writer of superior talent.
3. Sometimes, loosely, literary and artistic criticism. tenth nerve, tenth cranial nerve. The vagus nerve.
ten'—thou'sand-aire' (tĕn'thou'zănd·ârʳ'; 66), n. A person rated at a yearly income of ten thousand dollars.
Ten'thre·din'ĭ·dae (tĕn'thrē·dĭn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. tenthrēdōn a kind of wasp.] Zool. An extensive family of Hymenoptera constituted by the sawflies, typified by the genus Ten·thre'do (tĕn·thrē'dō). In recent classifications it is restricted to certain typical forms, the entire group of sawflies being regarded as a superfamily called Ten'thre·di·noi'de·a (tĕn'thrē·dĭ·noi'dē·ȧ).—ten·thred'ĭ·nid (tĕn·thrĕd'ĭ·nĭd), n. & adj.—ten·thred'ĭ·noid (-noid), adj. & n.
tent'ĭ·form (tĕn'tĭ·fôrm), adj. [tent + -form.] Resembling a tent in form, as the nests of certain insects.
ten·ti'go (tĕn·tī'gō), n. [L.] Priapism; also, satyriasis. ten·til'lum (tĕn·tĭl'ŭm), n.; pl. -TILLA (-ȧ). [NL., dim.] Zool. A branch of a tentacle. tent'ĭ·ly (tĕn'tĭ·lĭ), adv. [From dial. tenty careful.] Carefully; watchfully. Scot.
'ten'tion (tĕn'shŭn), interj. Mil. Attention. Colloq.
tent'less (tĕnt'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Having no tent. tent'less, adj. Scot. a Careless. b Not cared for; untended. tent'let (tĕnt'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [See -LET.] A small tent. tent'mak'er (tĕnt'măk'ĕr), n. 1. One who makes tents.
2. Any of numerous species of moths whose gregarious larvae spin communal nests, usually in trees.
3. [cap.] With the, Omar Khayyām, Persian poet and philosopher; — so called probably from the occupation of his father [Per. (fr. Ar.) khayyām tentmaker.]
— tent'mak'ing, n. & adj.
tent of meeting. Bib. The tabernacle. Ex. xxxiii. 7 (R. V.). ten·to'rĭ·al (tĕn·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to the tentorium. tentorial ridge. Anat. A bony ridge on the inner surface of the skull, marking the attachment of the tentorium. tentorial sinus. Anat. The straight sinus. ten·to'rĭ·um (tĕn·tō'rĭ·ŭm; 181), n. [L., a tent.] 1. Anat. More fully, ‖ten·to'rĭ·um ce're·bel'lĭ (sĕr'ē·bĕl'ĭ). An arched fold of dura mater covering the upper surface of the cerebellum and supporting the occipital lobes of the cerebrum. Its posterior and lateral border is attached to the skull; its anterior border is free. In some forms, as the cat, the tentorium is completely ossified.
2. Zool. The internal chitinous skeleton of an insect's head. It is formed usually of two or three paired apodemes arising from the chitinous head capsule. Cf. ENDOCRANIUM. tent pegging. A sport originating in India of riding at a charging pace and endeavoring to uproot on the point of a lance a tent peg in the ground. — tent pegger.
Ten Tribes of Israel. The lost tribes. tent show. A show given in a tent. tent stitch. A short slanting stitch used in worsted work and embroidery and worked in even lines from left to right; — called also petit point.
tent stripe. A long stripe about 1 foot wide by 36 feet long, shuttle-woven with hand-knotted figures, used by Turkoman nomads to tie felt pads down to the wooden frame of a tent. tent tree. A tall screw pine (Pandanus forsteri), confined to Lord Howe's Island.
ten'ture (tĕn'tŭr), n. [F.] Wall decorations, esp. paper. R.
ten'—twen'ty—thir'ty, n. A cheap type of theater or show; — so called from the number of cents paid for admission. tent'work' (tĕnt'wûrk'), n. 1. Tentmaking; work done in or as in tents; also, a tentlike structure.
2. Work made with tent stitch. tent worm. A tent caterpillar. tent'wort' (tĕnt'wûrt'), n. The wall rue. tent'y (tĕn'tĭ), adj. Careful; attentive; watchful. — adv. Carefully; watchfully. Both Scot. ten'u·ate (tĕn'ū·āt), v. t. [L. tenuatus, past part. of tenuare to make thin. See TENUOUS.] To make thin; to attenuate. Rare.
‖te·nue' (tē·nüʳ'), n. [F.] Bearing; mode of dress; manner.
‖te·nue' (tē·nüʳ'), n. [F., adj.] Phonet. A speech sound, or its organic formation, exclusive of on-glide and off-glide.
ten'u·ĭ- (tĕn'ū·ĭ-). A combining form, Latin tenui-, from tenuis, meaning thin, as in ten'u·ĭ·cos'tate, having slender ribs, and the following:

tenuifasciate	tenuifolious	tenuirostrate
tenuiflorous	tenuirostral	tenuistriate

Ten'u·ĭ·ros'tres (-rŏs'trēz), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. tenuis thin + rostrum a beak.] Zool. In old classifications, an unnatural group of mostly passerine birds having slender bills, including humming birds, sunbirds, honey eaters, nuthatches, and others. — ten'u·ĭ·ros'ter (-tĕr), n.
ten'u·is (tĕn'ū·ĭs), n.; pl. TENUES (-ēz). [L., thin, fine, weak; used to translate Gr. psilos bare, unaspirated (used of these consonants). See TENUOUS.] Phonet. One of the three surd mutes (voiceless stops) κ, π, τ (k, p, t) in Greek; — so called in relation to their respective middle letters, or mediae, γ, β, δ (g, b, d), and their aspirates, χ, φ, θ (kh, ph, th). The term is also sometimes applied to the corresponding consonants in other languages.
ten·u'ĭ·ty (tĕn·ū'ĭ·tĭ), n. [L. tenuitas, fr. tenuis thin. See TENUOUS.] Quality or state of being tenuous; as: a Of a broad substance, thinness; of anything that is long, slenderness; as, the tenuity of a leaf or a hair. b Rarity; rareness; thinness, as of a fluid. c Poverty; indigence; meagerness. d Faintness, as of light or sound. ten'u·ous (tĕn'ū·ŭs), adj. [L. tenuis thin. See THIN; cf. TENGIS.] 1. Thin; slender; slim.
2. Rare; subtile; not dense; — said of fluids.
3. Unsubstantial; insignificant; flimsy.
4. Having slight support or basis.
— ten'u·ous·ly, adv. — ten'u·ous·ness, n.
ten'ure (tĕn'ŭr), n. [OF. tenure, teneüre, fr. tenir to hold. See TENOR.] 1. Act or right of holding, as property, esp. real estate, properly of a superior; also, the manner of holding real property, or land and tenements, properly of a superior. Tenure, in its strict sense of holding of a superior, is inseparable from the idea of property in land in the theory of the English common law; and this idea of tenure pervades, to a considerable extent, the law of real property in the United States, where the primary title to all land is held essentially in fee simple absolute, and not of a superior. See 2d FEE, 3 b. The main common-law tenures were by knight's service and socage. See these terms, and also GAVELKIND, COPYHOLD, FRANKALMOIGN, 2d SERGEANTY, BURGAGE, etc.
2. A property so held. Now Rare.
3. Manner, condition, or term, of holding, in general; as, tenure of public office; permanent tenure of teachers; the manner in, or the period for, which anything is had and enjoyed; as, to hold a right by a precarious tenure.
— ten·u'rĭ·al (tĕn·ū'rĭ·ăl), adj. — ten·u'rĭ·al·ly, adv.
tenure in chivalry. = CHIVALRY, 4. tenure in, or by, free alms. Frankalmoign.
Tenure of Office Act. U. S. Hist. An act passed by Congress, March 2, 1867, by which all persons appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, could be removed only with that consent. It was defiance of this act that led to the impeachment of President Johnson. The act was of doubtful constitutionality and was repealed in 1887. Both this act and a similar act of 1876 were explicitly declared unconstitutional by a decision of the Supreme Court, Oct. 25, 1926 (Myers v. the United States).
ten'u·ry (tĕn'ū·rĭ), n. Tenure. Obs.
‖te·nu'to (tā·nōō'tō), adj. [It., past part. of tenere to hold.] Music. Held firmly, as a tone or chord, to its full value; not staccato; — a direction. Abbr. ten. — A tenuto mark is often used. Thus: ▬.
ten'—weeks' stock. A form (Mathiola incana annua) of the common stock, blooming the first season. See STOCK, 19 b. ten'—wheeled' lo'co·mo'tive (tĕn'whēld'), ten'—wheel'er (-whēl'ĕr). See LOCOMOTIVE.
Ten Words. Bib. The Ten Commandments. Archaic.
ten'zon (tĕn'zŭn). Var. of TENSON. te'o·cal'lĭ (tē'ō·kăl'ĭ; tā'ō·kăl'yē), n.; pl. -LIS (-lĭz; -yēz). [Sp., also teucali, lit., house of the god, fr. Nahuatl teocalli, fr. teotl god + calli house.] N. Amer. Archaeol. A temple of Mexico or Central America, usually a structure built upon the summit of a truncated pyramidal mound; also, the mound itself; a mound of similar form built by the mound builders; specif. [cap.], the great temple of the Aztecs at Tenochtitlan. See MOUND BUILDER, TEMPLE MOUND 1. Cf. TEOPAN.
teo'—nong' (tū'nŏng'), n. [Annamese tĩ + nong (written tư nông) thick liquid.] An East Indian tree (Bleekrodea tonkinensis), family Moraceae, with latex yielding rubber. te'o·pan (tē'ō·păn; tā'ō·pän'), n. [Nahuatl, fr. teotl god + pan place of.] Mex. Archaeol. The precincts of a temple; a walled enclosure containing a teocalli and other buildings devoted to religious uses.
te'o·sin'te (tē'ō·sĭn'tē), n. [Sp., fr. Nahuatl teocentli, lit., divine maize, fr. teotl god + centli maize. Cf. CENTEOTL.] A large annual grass (Euchlaena mexicana), native to Mexico and Central America, closely related to maize and like it in habit of growth. It is grown for fodder and for cereal in many warm countries.
Te'o·ti'hua·cán' (tā'ō·tē'wä·kän'), adj. Pertaining to or designating the Toltec period of Nahua culture; — so called from the ruins of Teotihuacán, near Mexico City. See TOLTEC.
te·pa'che (tā·pä'chā), n. [Sp., fr. Nahuatl tepiatl, fr. tepitl, a kind of maize + atl water.] A Mexican beverage made from pulque and coarse sugar, the fermentation of which is retarded by timbe.
tep'al (tĕp'ăl; tē'păl), n. [F. tépale, fr. pétale, by transposition.] Bot. A divison of a perianth. Rare.
Te'pa·nec' (tā'pä·nĕk'), Te'pa·ne'ca (-nā'kä), n. An Indian of a Nahuatlan tribe (originally a branch of the Tezcucans) who were dominant in the valley of Mexico before the rise of the Aztecs. tep'a·ry bean (tĕp'ȧ·rĭ). Also tep'a·ry, n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [Said to be through Sp. fr. Papago.] An annual twining bean (Phaseolus acutifolius), native to the southwestern United States and Mexico. A cultivated variety (P. acutifolius latifolius), having roundish, white, yellow, brown, or bluish-black, edible seeds, has high powers of resistance against drought and heat.
Te'pe·ca'no (tā'pā·kä'nō), n. An Indian of a Piman tribe of northern Jalisco, Mexico, closely related to the Tepehuane. te'pee (tē'pē; tĕp'ē), n. [Dakota tipi, fr. ti to dwell + pi used for]. An American Indian conical tent, used by most of the Plains tribes. It consists of a covering spread over a frame of poles arranged in the shape of a cone.

Tepee. 1 Poles; 2, 2 Outside Poles for supporting Flaps (3, 3) for regulating draft and escape of smoke; 4, 4 Ears of flaps, into which ends of outside poles are inserted; 5, 5 Cover (made of hides); 6, 6 Pins holding two sides of cover together; 7 Door (of skin stretched on a frame); 8, 8 Pegs.

te'pe·fy (tĕp'ē·fī), v. t. & i.; -FIED (-fĭd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [L. tepefacere. See TEPID; -FY.] To make or become tepid. — tep'e·fac'tion (-făk'shŭn), n.
Te'pe·hua' (tā'pā·wä'), n. An Indian of a Totonacan tribe. See TOTONACAN.
Te'pe·hua'ne (tā'pā·wä'nā), Te' pe·huan' (-wän'), n. An Indian of a Piman tribe, now numbering about 5,000, dwelling in Durango and adjacent States, in northwestern Mexico.
te·phil'lin (tē·fĭl'ĭn), n. pl. [Heb. tĕphillāh attachment, phylactery; cf. Heb. tāphal, fr. ṭāphal to join, attach.] Jewish Relig. The phylacteries worn by orthodox Jewish males during morning prayers on week days, which consist of a leather strap with two boxes attached, one placed on the arm, one on the head, and secured by knots tied in a prescribed manner. The boxes contain parchment on which are written the biblical passages mentioning phylacteries, Deuteronomy vi. 4–9; xi. 13–21; Exodus xiii. 1–10, 11–16. Also, these passages. teph'ra·man'cy (tĕf'rȧ·măn'sĭ), n. [Gr. tephra ashes + -mancy.] Divination by means of ashes, esp. from an altar.
teph'rite (tĕf'rīt), n. [Gr. tephra ashes.] Petrog. A volcanic rock consisting essentially of plagioclase, augite, and leucite or nephelite. It differs from basanite in not containing olivine. — teph·rit'ic (tĕf·rĭt'ĭk), adj.
teph'ro- (tĕf'rō-). A combining form, Greek tephro-, from tephra, ashes, meaning ash-gray, as in tephroite; specif., Med., meaning gray matter, as in teph'ro·ma·la'cĭ·a, teph'ro·my'ē·lit'ĭc.
teph'ro·ite (-ĭt), n. [See TEPHROSIA.] A flesh-red or ash-gray silicate of manganese, Mn_2SiO_4, sometimes containing zinc.
Te·phro'sĭ·a (tē·frō'zhĭ·ȧ; tĕf·rō'sĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tephros ash-colored, fr. tephra ashes.] Bot. A genus of herbs or undershrubs of the pea family (Fabaceae), having handsome flowers. T. virginiana of the eastern United States is called goat's rue and catgut. Syn. Cracca.
te·phro'sis (tē·frō'sĭs; tĕf·rō'-). [NL., fr. Gr. tephrōsis.] Incineration. tep'id (tĕp'ĭd), adj. [L. tepidus, fr. tepere to be warm; akin to Skr. tapati gives out heat, tapas heat, OIr. tess.] Moderately warm; lukewarm; as, a tepid bath; tepid affections. — te·pid'ĭ·ty (tē·pĭd'ĭ·tĭ), n. — tep'id·ly, adv. — tep'id·ness, n.
tep'ĭ·dar'ĭ·um (tĕp'ĭ·dâr'ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [L., prop. neut. of tepidarius pertaining to a tepid bath. See TEPID.] A warm room for a bath; orig., in Roman thermae, a room to sit in, intermediate in temperature between the frigidarium and caldarium. te'po·naz'tli (tā'pō·näz'tlē), n. [Nahuatl.] Mex. Archaeol. A cylindrical wooden gong, usually decorated with carved figures, and so constructed as to produce two tones. te'por (tē'pŏr; tĕp'ŏr), n. [L. See TEPID.] Gentle heat; tepidness. te·qui'la (tā·kē'lä), n. [Sp., fr. Tequila district, Mexico, fr. Nahuatl Tequilan, lit., place of the divide.] A Mexican century plant (Agave tequilana) much cultivated as one of the chief sources of mescal; also, the distilled liquor made from its juice.
Te·quis'tla·te'ca (tā·kēs'tlä·tā'kä), n. The language of the Chontal of southeastern Oaxaca.
Te·quis'tla·te'can (-kăn), adj. Pertaining to or designating a minor linguistic family of Mexican Indians, comprising the Chontal on the Gulf of Tehuantepec. See CHONTAL.
-ter (-tĕr). A noun ending, where -er agent follows a stem ending in -t, as in mister.
ter- (tûr-; tĕr-). A combining form, Latin ter-, from ter, meaning three times, threefold, thrice, as in tercentenary; specif., Chem., = TRI-, 4, as in terchloride.

ten'terd. Tentered. Ref. Sp. ten'ter·hook' wĭl'ley. = FEARNOUGHT, n., 4. tent'ful, n. See -FUL, 2. tenth'ly, adv. of TENTH.
ten'ti·cle, n. A little tent. Obs. tent'ie. Var. of TENTY. ten·tig'ĭ·nous (tĕn·tĭj'ĭ·nŭs), adj. [L. tentigo, -inis, a tension, lecherousness, fr. tendere, tentum, to stretch.] Lustful; provocative of, or pertaining to, lust. Obs.
ten'tion. ✝ TENSION. ten'tive, adj. = ATTENTIVE. — -ly, adv. — -ness, n. All Obs. exc. Dial. tent'like', adj. See -LIKE.
ten'tor. ✝ TENTER. ten'to·ry, n. [L. tentorium tent.] A tent; an awning. Obs.
tent'-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED. ten'ture. ✝ TENTER. tent'wards (tĕnt'wĕrdz), adv. See -WARDS. tent'wise', adv. See -WISE. [U18.]
ten'u·es (tĕn'ū·ēz), n., pl. of TENUIS. te·nuĭ·ous (tē·nūʳ'ĭ·ŭs), adj. = TENUOUS. Now Rare. ten'ure. ✝ TENOR. [-IST. Obs. ten'ur·ist (tĕn'ŭr·ĭst), n. See te'pe·ta'te (tā'pā·tä'tā), n. = CALICHE. [SHEMONEH ESREH.
Te·phil'lah (tē·fĭl'ȧ), n. See te'poy. Var. of TEAPOY.
ter. ✝ TAR, TARE, TEAR, TOR. ter (tĕ). Dial. corrupt. of TO.

te'ra (tē'rä), n. [Jap.] In Japan, a Buddhist church or monastery.

ter'a·con'ic ac'id (tĕr'ȧ·kŏn'ĭk). [terebic + citraconic.] Chem. A crystalline diacid, $C_7H_{10}O_4$, obtained by the distillation of terebic acid, and otherwise. It is a dimethyl derivative of itaconic acid.

ter'a·cryl'ic ac'id (-krĭl'ĭk), [terpenylic + acrylic.] Chem. An unsaturated acid, $C_7H_{10}O_4$, obtained as a colorless liquid by distillation of terpenylic acid.

ter'a·glin (tĕr'ȧ·glĭn), n. [Native name.] Zool. A silvery-colored fish (Otolithes atelodus), family Otolithidae, becoming about two feet long, common on the coast of New South Wales.

Te'rah (tē'rȧ), n. Bib. The father of Abraham, who migrated with his family from Ur of the Chaldees to Haran.

Te·ra'i (tĕ·rä'ē; -rī'), n. [Hind. tarāī.] A swampy lowland belt in India north of the Ganges and at the foot of the Himalayas; hence [not cap.], a wide-brimmed, ventilated, felt hat (terai hat).

te'ra·ki·hi' (tā'rä·kē·hē'; colloq. tä'rä·kē'), n. [Maori.] The jackass fish. New Zealand.

ter'a·mor'phous (tĕr'ȧ·môr'fŭs), adj. [Gr. teras monster + -morphous.] Having a monstrous form or nature.

te·rap' (tĕ·räp'), n. [Malay tĕrap, the tree.] A tall Malayan tree (Artocarpus kunstleri); also, the coarse fiber from its bark.

ter'a·phim (tĕr'ȧ·fĭm), n. pl.; sing. TERAPH (tĕr'ăf), TERAPHIM. [Heb. tĕrāphīm.] Images, or other objects, representing the primitive household gods of the Jews and other Semitic peoples (Gen. xxxi. 19, 30). Their cults survived into the Greek period of Jewish history, and, possibly, into the early Christian centuries. Originally they may have been connected with ancestor worship. In later times they were esp. used in divination. In medieval cabalist use they are chiefly talismanic figures. Cf. LARES, PENATES.

ter'ras (tĕr'ăs; tĕr'ȧs), n.; pl. TERATA (tĕr'ȧ·tȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. teras, -atos, monster.] Med. A monster.

ter'a·tism (tĕr'ȧ·tĭz'm), n. [Gr. teras, -atos, monster.] 1. Med. Anomaly of form; a monstrosity. 2. Worship of monsters; also, love of the marvelous. — te·rat'i·cal (tĕ·răt'ĭ·kăl) adj.

ter'a·to- (tĕr'ȧ·tō-), terat-. A combining form, Greek terato-, terat-, from teras, teratos, meaning wonder, monster, as in teratology, teratoma, and the following:

teratoblastoma	teratogenetic	teratogenous
teratogenesis	teratogenic	teratogeny

ter'a·toid (tĕr'ȧ·toid), adj. [terat- + -oid.] Resembling a monster; abnormal; of a pathological growth, exceedingly complex or highly organized, as a teratoma.

ter'a·toid (tĕr'ȧ·toid), n. Med. A teratoid tumor.

ter'a·tol'o·gy (-tŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [terato- + -logy; cf. Gr. teratologia a telling of wonders.] 1. Fantastic mythmaking or story telling, in which prodigies and monsters play a large part; a story of this sort, or a collection of such stories. 2. In discourse, affectation of sublimity; bombast. Obs. 3. Med. The study of monstrosities, serious malformations, or marked deviations from the normal type of structure, esp. in man.

☞ Teratology is used in this Dictionary as a label for words and meanings in this special medical sense.

— ter'a·to·log'i·cal (-tō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. — ter'a·tol'o·gist (-tŏl'ō·jĭst), n.

ter'a·to'ma (-tō'mȧ), n.; pl. -TOMATA (-tō'mȧ·tȧ), -TOMAS (-tō'mȧz). [NL., fr. terat- + -oma.] 1. Med. A tumor derived from more than one embryonic layer, made up of a heterogeneous mixture of tissues, as epithelium, bone, cartilage, muscle, etc. 2. Plant Pathol. A plant tumor consisting of a mixture of different tissues with incipient roots or shoots. — ter'a·tom'a·tous (-tŏm'ȧ·tŭs; -tō'mȧ·tŭs), adj.

ter'a·tos'co·py (tĕr'ȧ·tŏs'kō·pĭ), n. [terato- + -scopy.] Divination by monstrosities.

ter'a·to'sis (-tō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. terat- + -osis.] Med. Monstrosity.

ter'bi·a (tûr'bĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Chem. Terbium oxide, Tb_2O_3, a white solid, one of the rare earths.

ter'bi·um (tûr'bĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Ytterby, in Sweden. Cf. ERBIUM.] Chem. A metallic element of the rare-earth group, resembling yttrium, found (in combination) in certain minerals, as gadolinite and samarskite. Symbol, Tb; at. no., 65; at. wt., 159.2. It is trivalent. — ter'bic (-bĭk), adj.

terce (tûrs), n. Var. of TIERCE; specif., Scots Law., the widow's right corresponding to the common-law dower.

ter'cel (tûr'sĕl), n. [OF. tercel, tercuel, fr. (assumed) VL. (ML.) tertiolus, dim. fr. L. tertius the third; — according to some, because every third bird in the nest is a male; according to others, because the male is a third smaller than the female. See TIERCE.] Falconry. The male of various hawks, esp. of the peregrine falcon and the goshawk.

tercel gentle. A male falcon.

ter'cen·te·nar'i·an (tûr'sĕn·tē·nâr'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n. (One) that is three hundred years old.

ter'cen·ten'a·rize (tûr'sĕn·tĕn'ȧ·rīz; -tē'nȧ·rīz), v. t. To celebrate at the tercentenary.

ter·cen'te·nar'y (tûr·sĕn'tē·nĕr'ĭ; 277: see CENTENARY), adj. [ter- + centenary.] Including, or relating to, an interval of three hundred years. — n. The three hundredth anniversary of any event; also, a celebration of such an anniversary.

ter'cen·ten'ni·al (tûr'sĕn·tĕn'ĭ·ăl), adj. & n. Tercentenary.

terc'er (tûr'sĕr), n. Scots Law. A widow entitled to terce.

ter'ce·ron' (tĕr'sȧ·rŏn'), n. [Sp. tercerón, fr. tercero third (person).] A mulatto.

ter'cet (tûr'sĕt; -sĭt; tûr·sĕt'), n. [It. terzetto, dim. of terzo third, fr. L. tertius; cf. F. tercet. See TIERCE; cf. TERZETTO.] 1. A group of three successive verses rhyming together or interlaced in their rhyming scheme with the preceding or succeeding tercet (or both); specif., one in the sestet of a sonnet. 2. Music. = TRIPLET, 6.

ter·chlo'ride (tûr·klō'rĭd; -rĭd), n. Chem. A trichloride.

ter'cine (tûr'sĭn), n. [L. tertius the third; cf. F. tercine.] Bot. A layer of the primine or secundine of an ovule, originally supposed to be a third coat.

ter'ci·o (tûr'sĭ·ō; Sp. tĕr'thē·ō; 103), n. [Sp., lit., a third.] a Hist. In the 16th and 17th centuries, a Spanish (or Italian) infantry regiment: hence, the main part of an army. b See WEIGHT, Table.

ter'di·ur'nal (tûr'dĭ·ûr'năl; -n'l), adj. [ter- + diurnal.] Of three times per day.

ter'e·bate (tĕr'ē·bāt), n. [See TEREBINTH.] Chem. A salt or ester of terebic acid.

ter'e·bel'la (tĕr'ē·bĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., fr. dim. of L. terebra a borer.] 1. Surg. A trephine or trepan. 2. [cap.] Zool. A genus of tubicolous marine annelids with very long cephalic cirri, three pairs of gills, and small chaetiferous lobes. It is the type of a family, Ter'e·bel'li·dae (-ĭ·dē). Hence, ter'e·bel'lid (-ĭd), n. & adj. — ter'e·bel'loid (-oid), adj.

Ter'e·bel'lum (-ŭm), n. [ML., supposed to be a corruption of Ptolemy's tetrapleuron, lit., a quadrilateral.] A group of four stars at the base of the tail of Sagittarius.

ter'e·bel'lum, n. [NL., dim. of L. terebrum a borer, trephine.] A cranial perforator.

ter'e·bene (tĕr'ē·bēn), n. [See TEREBINTH; cf. TERPENE.] Chem. A mixture of terpenes formed by action of sulphuric acid on oil of turpentine and distillation with steam. It should be optically inactive. It is used as an expectorant and antiseptic.

ter'e·ben'thene (-bĕn'thēn), n. [See TEREBINTH.] Levopinene (see PINENE).

te·reb'ic (tĕ·rĕb'ĭk; tĕ·rē'bĭk), adj. [terebinth + -ic.] Chem. Designating, or pertaining to, a white crystalline lactonic acid, $C_7H_{10}O_4$, obtained by the oxidation of oil of turpentine with nitric acid, and by other methods. It is a dimethyl derivative of paraconic acid.

ter'e·bi·len'ic ac'id (tĕr'ē·bĭ·lĕn'ĭk). Chem. A crystalline acid, $C_7H_8O_4$, formed indirectly from terebic acid.

ter'e·binth (tĕr'ē·bĭnth), n. [L. terebinthus, fr. Gr. terebinthos; cf. F. térébinthe. See TURPENTINE.] A small European tree (Pistacia terebinthus) yielding Chian turpentine; also, formerly, its resin.

ter'e·bin'thic (-bĭn'thĭk), adj. Pertaining to, or resembling, turpentine; as, terebinthic qualities.

ter'e·bin'thi·na (-bĭn'thĭ·nȧ), n. [NL.] Pharm. Turpentine.

ter'e·bin'thi·nate (-bĭn'thĭ·nāt), v. t.; -NAT'ED (-nāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -NAT'ING (-nāt'ĭng). To impregnate with turpentine. — (-nāt), adj. Terebinthinated. — (-nāt), n. A medical preparation from turpentine.

ter'e·bin'thine (-thĭn; 156), adj. [L. terebinthinus.] a Of or pertaining to the terebinth tree. b Pertaining to, consisting of, or like, turpentine. — n. Turpentine. Obs.

terebinth tree. The terebinth.

ter'e·bra (tĕr'ē·brȧ), n.; pl. -BRAS (-brȧz), -BRAE (-brē). [L., a borer. See THROW.] 1. Rom. Antiq. a A drill or auger. b A machine used in sieges to start a breach. 2. Zool. a The boring ovipositor of a hymenopterous insect. b [cap.] A genus of marine gastropods having a long, tapering spire, and typifying a family, Te·reb'ri·dae (tē·rĕb'rĭ·dē), of the group Toxoglossa. — ter'e·bral (tĕr'ē·brăl), adj.

ter'e·brant (tĕr'ē·brănt), adj. [L. terebrans, -antis, pres. part.] Boring, or adapted for boring; of or pertaining to the Terebrantia. — n. A bore. Humorous.

Ter'e·bran'ti·a (-brăn'shĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. a A division, sometimes a suborder, of Hymenoptera including those which have a boring ovipositor, as the sawflies, horntails, and certain parasitic hymenoptera; — disting. from Aculeata. b A suborder of hairy-winged Thysanoptera in which the females have a sawlike ovipositor.

ter'e·brate (tĕr'ē·brāt), adj. [See TEREBRA.] Zool. a Modified for boring. b Provided with a terebra.

ter'e·brate (tĕr'ē·brāt), v. t. [L. terebratus, past part. of terebrare, fr. terebra a borer.] To perforate; bore. — v. i. To be a bore. Humorous.

ter'e·bra'tion (-brā'shŭn), n. [L. terebratio.] Now Rare. a A boring; specif., trephining. b A boring pain. c Perforation.

Ter'e·brat'u·la (tĕr'ē·brăt'ū·lȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. terebratus, past part., perforated. See TEREBRA.] 1. Zool. & Paleontol. A genus of brachiopods with arms borne by a calcareous loop and the larger valve of the shell having a small hole through which the short peduncle projects. It includes many living and a few fossil species, and is the type of a family, Ter'e·bra·tu'li·dae (-brȧ·tū'lĭ·dē) of the order Telotremata. 2. [not cap.; pl. -LAE (-lē).] Any brachiopod of this genus; a lamp shell.

— ter'e·brat'u·lar (-brăt'ū·lĕr), adj. — ter'e·brat'u·lid (-lĭd), n. & adj. — ter'e·brat'u·li·form' (-lĭ·fôrm'), adj. — ter'e·brat'u·line (-lĭn; -līn; 156), adj. — ter'e·brat'u·loid (-loid), adj.

te·re'do (tē·rē'dō), n.; pl. -DOS (-dōz) -DINES (-rē'dĭ·nēz). [L., a worm that gnaws wood, clothes, etc., fr. Gr. terēdōn. See TERMES.] 1. A shipworm. 2. [cap.] Zool. The genus of mollusks containing the typical shipworms, the type of a family, Ter'e·din'i·dae (tĕr'ē·dĭn'ĭ·dē).

ter'ek (tĕr'ĕk), n. [From the Terek River, Russia.] A sandpiper (Terekia cinerea) of the Old World, breeding in the far north of eastern Europe and Asia and migrating to South Africa and Australia. It frequents rivers.

Terek (Terekia cinerea).

Ter'ence (tĕr'ĕns), n. [L. Terentius.] Masc. proper name.

Ter·en'tian (tĕr·ĕn'shăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Terence (see Biog.), or having qualities like those of his comedies, as refinement and poetic finish.

te·re'phah (tē·rā'fä), n. [Heb. ṭĕrēphāh animal torn (by wild beasts), torn flesh, fr. ṭāraph tear, rend, pluck.] Bib. The meat of animals killed by beasts of prey, which the Israelites were forbidden to eat. Hence, in later Jewish usage, any food not ritually clean and prepared.

ter'e·ph'tha·late (tĕr·ĕf'thȧ·lāt), n. Chem. A salt or ester of terephthalic acid.

ter'eph·thal'ic (tĕr'ĕf·thăl'ĭk), adj. [terebene + phthalic.] Chem. Designating, or pertaining to, a white crystalline diacid, $C_6H_4(CO_2H)_2$, obtained by oxidation of oil of turpentine. paraxylene, etc. It is para-phthalic acid. See PHTHALIC.

Te·re'sian (tĕ·rē'shăn; -zhăn), n. [Sp. Teresa Theresa.] Eccl. Hist. A barefooted Carmelite living under the rule founded by St. Theresa (1515–82). — Te·re'sian, adj.

Ter'e·si'na (tĕr'ē·sē'nȧ), n. [It. & Sp., dim. See THERESA.] Feminine proper name.

‖te'res ma'jor (tē'rēz mā'jôr), [NL. teres (sc. musculus) a round or smooth muscle + L. major greater.] Anat. A muscle arising from the lower third of the axillary border of the scapula and from a fibrous septum between itself and the teres minor and infraspinatus muscles, and inserted into the medial lip of the bicipital groove of the humerus.

‖te'res mi'nor (mī'nôr). [NL. teres (sc. musculus) a round or smooth muscle + L. minor less.] Anat. A muscle arising from the upper two thirds of the axillary border of the scapula and from the fibrous septa between itself and the teres major and infraspinatus muscles, and inserted into the lower part of the great tubercle of the humerus, passing behind the long head of the triceps.

te·rete' (tĕ·rēt'; tĕr'ēt), adj. [L. teres, -etis, rounded off.] Orig., rounded; now, cylindrical and tapering with circular cross section, as many plant stems.

ter'e·ti- (tĕr'ē·tĭ-). A combining form for terete, as in: tereticaudate, teretifolious, tereticaspular.

te·reu' (tē·rōō'), interj. [L., voc. of Tereus (see PHILOMELA, 1).] An exclamation imitating the note of the nightingale. — te·reu', n.

Te'reus (tē'rŭs; tē'rē·ŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tēreus.] See PHILOMELA, 1.

ter·fez' (tĕr·fĕz'), n. Also ter·fa' (tĕr·fä'). [F. terfez, terfex, fr. Tuareg tarfest, tĕrfest, pl. tirfas, tĕrfas, fr. Ar. tirfās, tirfāsh, truffle.] The edible fruit of a fungus (genus Terfezia) of the desert regions of Africa, Asia, and southern Europe.

Ter·fe'zi·a'ce·ae (tĕr·fē'zĭ·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See TERFEZ; -ACEAE.] Bot. A family of fungi (class Ascomycetes) closely related to the truffles, having subterranean tuberlike ascomata. — The type genus is Ter·fe'zi·a (tĕr·fē'zĭ·ȧ).

ter'gal (tûr'găl), adj. [L. tergum the back.] Zool. Pertaining to the back, or tergum; dorsal.

ter'gant (-gănt), adj. Showing the back.

ter·gem'i·nate (tûr·jĕm'ĭ·nāt), adj. [See TERGEMINOUS.] Also ter·gem'i·nal (-năl; -n'l). Bot. Thrice twin; forking with three pairs of leaflets.

ter·gif'er·ous (tûr·jĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [L. tergum the back + -ferous.] Dorsiferous.

ter'gite (tûr'jīt), n. [L. tergum the back.] Zool. The dorsal plate or dorsal portion of the covering, of a somite of an articulate animal. — ter·git'ic (tûr·jĭt'ĭk), adj.

ter'gi·ver'sant (tûr'jĭ·vûr'sănt), adj. Tergiversating. — n. A tergiversator.

ter'gi·ver·sate' (tûr'jĭ·vĕr·sāt'), v. i.; -SAT'ED (-sāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -SAT'ING (-sāt'ĭng). [L. tergiversatus, past part. of tergiversari to turn one's back, to shift, fr. tergum back + versare, freq. of vertere to turn. See VERSION.] To practice tergiversation; to become a renegade; apostatize; to use subterfuges; to shuffle.

ter'gi·ver·sa'tion (-sā'shŭn), n. [L. tergiversatio.] 1. Desertion of a cause, party, religious faith, etc.; also, a shifting; equivocation. 2. A shift, subterfuge, or evasion. 3. A turning of the back, as in flight.

ter'gi·ver·sa'tor (-sā'tĕr), n. [L.] One who tergiversates.

ter'gi·ver·sa'to·ry (-tō·rĭ; -vûr'sȧ·tĕr·ĭ), adj. Of the nature of tergiversation.

ter'gi·verse (tûr'jĭ·vûrs), v. i. To tergiversate.

ter'gi·verse, adj. That has tergiversated.

ter'go- (tûr'gō-). A combining form from tergum, denoting tergal and, as in ter'go·lat'er·al, dorsolateral.

ter'gum (tûr'gŭm), n.; pl. TERGA (-gȧ). [L., the back.] Zool. a The back of an animal. b A tergite. c One of the dorsal plates of the operculum of a barnacle.

-te'ri·a (-tē'rĭ·ȧ). [NL.] Comb. form from cafeteria, as in radioteria.

ter·lin'gua·ite (tĕr·lĭng'gwȧ·īt), n. [From Terlingua, Texas.] Mineral. A mercuric oxychloride, Hg_3ClO, occurring in yellow monoclinic crystals. H., 2–3. Sp. gr., 8.7.

term (tûrm), n. [ME. terme, fr. OF. terme, fr. L. terminus a boundary, limit, end; akin to Gr. terma, termōn, and to Skr. tarati he crosses over. See THRUM a tuft, TRANS-; cf. DETERMINE, EXTERMINATE, NECTAR, TERMINATE, TERMINUS.] 1. That which limits the extent of anything; limit; bound; termination; end. Archaic.

> Corruption is a reciprocal to generation, and they two are as nature's two terms, or boundaries. Bacon.

2. A limited or definite extent of time; the time for which anything lasts; duration; tenure; as, a term of five years; the term of life, of a policy; a presidential term.

> Seven years (the usual term of transportation). Byron

3. A time or date fixed, or agreed upon, for an action or as a boundary between periods. Archaic. 4. pl. Propositions, limitations, or provisions, stated or offered, as in contracts, for the acceptance of another and determining the nature and scope of the agreement; conditions; as, the terms of a sale; hence, specif., stipulations regarding payment, price, or wages; as, terms cash. 5. A word or expression designative of a definite conception; specif.: a A word or expression that has a precisely limited meaning in certain relations and uses, or is peculiar to a science, art, profession, or the like; as, a technical term. "Termes quaint of law." Chaucer. b pl. Diction of a (specified) kind; as, terms of high praise. 6. Point toward or from which something proceeds; esp., issue, conclusion, or outcome. Now Rare. 7. pl. a Mutual relationship; relative position; footing; — often with on or upon; as, to be on good terms, on visiting terms. "On the closest terms of friendship." Freeman. b Good or even footing; agreement; concord; as, to come to terms with one. 8. Any or each of a series, as of genera or chemical substances.

---

ter'a·fim. Teraphim. Ref. Sp. ter'a·pin. Var. of TERRAPIN. terat-. = TERATO-. terbentine. † TURPENTINE. terbium metals. Chem. See RARE EARTH. [of TERRIBLE.] ter'ble (tĕr'b'l). Dial. Eng. var. terce'let (tûrs'lĕt; -lĭt), n. [AF., dim. See TERCEL.] = TERCEL. ter'cel·tene (tûr'sĕl·tēn), n. = TERCEL. Obs. ter'ci·a (tur'sĭ·ȧ; Sp. tĕr'thē·ä; 103), n. [Sp. See TERTIARY.] See MEASURE, Table.
tere. † TAR, TEAR, TEER. ter'e·ben'ic (tĕr'ē·bĕn'ĭk), adj. Chem. = TEREBIC. ter'e·bil'ic (-bĭl'ĭk), adj. Also ter'e·bin'ic (-bĭn'ĭk). Chem. = TEREBIC.
Ter'e·bin·tha'ce·ae (-bĭn·thā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See TEREBINTH; -ACEAE.] Syn. of ANACARDIACEAE. ter'e·bin'thi·an (-bĭn'thĭ·ăn) adj. Also ter'e·bin'thi·al (-ăl). = TEREBINTHINE. ter'e·bin'thin. Terebinthine. Ref. Sp. [= TEREBINTHINE.] ter'e·bin'thi·nous (-thĭ·nŭs), adj.
Ter'e·bin'thus (-thŭs), n. [NL.] Syn. of PISTACIA. ter'e·brat'u·lite, n. See 1st -ITE.
Te·reb'ri·dae (tē·rĕb'rĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See -IDAE.] See TEREBRA, 2 b. ter'ef. Var. of TARAF.
te·re'fa, te·re'fe. Var. of TERPHAH. te·rel'la. Var. of TERRELLA.
Ter'ence Mul·va'ney. See MULVANEY, TERENCE. terene. † TERRENE.
ter'-e·quiv'a·lent (tûr'-), adj. [ter- + equivalent.] = TRIVALENT.
Te·re'sa. Var. of THERESA.
‖te'res at'que ro·tun'dus. [L.] Smooth [or polished] and round, i. e., complete or perfect like a globe; — said of a wise man. Horace (Satires, II. vii. 78).
Te'resh (tē'rĕsh). Bib.
te·re'tial (tē·rē'shăl), adj. = TERETE. ter'e·ti·pro·na'tor (tĕr'ē·tĭ·prō·nā'tŏr), n. [NL., fr. teretis + pronator.] = PRONATOR TERES. ter'e·ti·scap'u·la'ris (-skăp'ū·lā'rĭs), n. [NL. See TERETI-; SCAPULAR.] = TERES MAJOR. te·ret'ish (tē·rĕt'ĭsh; tĕr'ĕt·ĭsh), adj. See -ISH. ter'e·tism (tĕr'ē·tĭz'm), n. [See TERETE.] An unmelodious verse. Obs. [Obs.] te·re'tous (-tŭs), adj. = TERETE. ter'ga, n., pl. of TERGUM. ter·gem'i·nous (tûr·jĕm'ĭ·nŭs), adj. [L. tergeminus, fr. ter thrice + geminus twin-born. Cf. TRIGEMINOUS.] = TRIGEMINOUS. ter'in (tĕr'ĭn). Var. of TARIN.

9. pl. Conditions; state; circumstances, esp. circumstances that limit or control. Obs.

10. Arch. A boundary post or stone; esp., a quadrangular pillar, often tapering downward, adorned on the top with the figure of a head or upper part of the body; — called also terminal figure or statue. See TERMINUS, 2.

11. Astrol. One of the unequal divisions of the 30 degrees of a sign allocated to each of the planets as an essential dignity.

12. Educ. In universities, schools, etc., a definite continuous period during which instruction is regularly given to students; as, a school year of three terms.

13. Law. a The time fixed for the payment of rents or interest; esp.: (1) In England and Ireland, a quarter day. (2) In Scotland, either of the four days corresponding to the English quarter days, these being Whitsunday, May 15, and Martinmas, Nov. 11, called legal terms; and Candlemas, Feb. 2, and Lammas Day, Aug. 1, specifically called conventional terms. However, any terms adopted by agreement other than the legal terms are called conventional terms, the rent being called backhand rent when the term is postponed, and forehand rent when it is accelerated, or fixed at an earlier date. b The semiannual day in Great Britain on which a farm or domestic servant is paid or on which a working period begins. c (1) The whole period for which an estate is granted, as for the term of a life or lives, or for a term of years. (2) The estate or interest held by one for a term. Cf. TENEMENT, 1. (3) A space of time granted to a debtor for discharging his obligation. d The time for which a court is held, or is open for the trial of causes, during which time alone the powers of the court incidental to actual sittings for the hearing of cases may be validly exercised. In England there were formerly four terms in the year, during which the superior courts were open: Hilary term, beginning on the 11th and ending on the 31st of January; Easter term, beginning on the 15th of April, and ending on the 8th of May; Trinity term, beginning on the 22d day of May, and ending on the 12th of June; Michaelmas term, beginning on the 2d and ending on the 25th day of November. The rest of the year was called vacation. The legal division of the year into terms so far as related to the administration of justice was abolished by the Judicature Acts; but there are still four sittings of the Supreme Court in each year, called the Michaelmas, Hilary, Easter, and Trinity, sittings, coming, in general, in the same parts of the year as the older terms. Terms have been abolished in many States, but statutorily defined terms obtain very generally in the United States.

Roman Term (10). a Gaine.

14. Logic. a A substantive word or phrase used as the subject or predicate of a proposition, or standing as one member of a relation; esp., one of the three substantive elements of a syllogism, each of which appears twice. See MAJOR TERM, MIDDLE TERM, MINOR TERM. Terms are classified as categorematic or syncategorematic, as singular or general, as abstract or concrete, as collective or distributive, as positive or negative (see these terms). b That which a substantive word or phrase denotes, conceived as a specified thing or object of thought.

15. Math. a Alg. A member of a compound quantity; as, a or b in $a+b$; ab or cd in $ab-cd$. b Any of the members composing a proportion or ratio. c Rare. Geom. That which bounds a higher extent; a point, line, or superficies, that limits.

16. pl. Med. a Obs. The menstrual period; also, the menses. b Gestation at the normal period.

17. Naut. A piece of carved work placed under each end of the taffrail.

18. Physics. One of a set of frequencies, or wave numbers, one for each state, assigned to an atomic system, such that the frequencies, or wave numbers, of the light emitted are differences between the members of this set.

Syn. — TERM, WORD are frequently interchangeable. But WORD has the general sense of an expressive vocable; TERM is commonly more specific, and designates a word which has a precisely limited, often technical, use or meaning; as, purity of style depends on the choice of words, and precision of style on a clear understanding of the terms used; "A very large number of technical terms have been translated into English, and thus new meanings have been added to many popular words" (G. L. Kittredge).

— at term. At the end of a term, or definite period of time. — in terms. In set terms. Obs. — on terms. a On friendly or sociable terms. b Slang. On equal footing; even.

term (tûrm), v. t.; TERMED (tûrmd); TERM'ING. [See TERM, n.; cf. TERMINATE.] 1. To apply a term to; to name; call.

Men term what is beyond the limits of the universe "imaginary space." Locke.

2. Obs. a To express in terms. b To state.

ter'ma (tûr'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. terma end, limit. See TERM.] The lamina terminalis.

Ter'ma·gant (tûr'mȧ·gănt), n. [ME. Termagant, Tervagant, Termagant (in sense 1), fr. OF. Tervagan, Tervagant, Trivigan(t), of unknown origin; cf. It. Trivigante.] 1. An imaginary being supposed by Christians to be a Mohammedan deity. He is represented in ancient moralities, farces, and puppet shows, as vociferous and tumultuous.

2. [not cap.] A boisterous, brawling, turbulent person; — now restricted to women; a virago.

ter'ma·gant, adj. Tumultuous; turbulent; boisterous; furious; quarrelsome; scolding. — ter'ma·gan·cy (-gănsĭ), n. — ter'ma·gant·ish (-gănt·ĭsh), adj. — ter'ma·gant·ism (-ĭz'm), n. — ter'ma·gant·ly, adv.

ter'ma·gant. Obs. corrupt. of PTARMIGAN.

term'age (tûr'mĭj), n. Charge for a term.

ter·mat'ic (tûr·măt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. terma, termatos, a limit.] Pertaining to, or near, the terma.

term attendant. See OUTSTANDING TERM.

term day. A day which is a term (as a Scottish quarter day), or is a day in a term, as of the sitting of a court; also, one of a series of special days, designated by scientists for making synoptic magnetic, meteorological, or other physical observations.

ter'men (tûr'mĕn), n. [L., boundary.] Zool. The outer margin of a triangularly shaped wing of an insect.

term'er (tûr'mĕr), n. 1. One who resorted to London during the law term only, esp. one whose object was intrigue, dishonest practices, dissipation, etc. Obs. exc. Hist.

2. A person serving for a term, now a term in prison; — used with an ordinal; as, first termer, third termer.

Ter'mes (tûr'mēz), n. [L. termes, tarmes, -itis, a woodworm; akin to Gr. terēdōn, and L. terere to rub. See THROW; cf. TEREDO, TERMITE.] Zool. The typical genus of the family Termitidae.

term fee. Law. A fee by the term, chargeable to a suitor, or by law fixed and taxable in the costs of a cause, for each or any term it is in court.

term for years. Law. An estate for years.

term hour. See HOUR, n., 11.

ter'min' (tĕr'mĭn'), n. In Algeria, a measure equal to ⅙ pik. See PIK.

ter'mi·na·ble (tûr'mĭ·nȧ·b'l), adj. [See TERMINATE.] That may be terminated or bounded; limitable; discontinuing after a certain term. — ter'mi·na·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), ter'mi·na·ble·ness, n. — ter'mi·na·bly, adv.

ter'mi·nal (tûr'mĭ·nȧl), adj. [L. terminalis. See TERM.] 1. Of or pertaining to a term, as an end, extremity, boundary, or terminus; forming or situated at the terminus or extremity; as, a terminal pillar.

2. Of or pertaining to a term, or fixed period of time; occurring in a term or in every term; as, a terminal dinner, payment, subscription.

3. Constituting, or occurring at the end of, a period or series; final; concluding; as, terminal velocity, syllable; hence, ultimate; as terminal problems.

4. Bot. Growing at the end of a branch or stem.

5. Logic. Pertaining to, or constituted by, a term.

6. Med. Occurring at the end of life; as, terminal pneumonia.

7. Transportation. Forming or pertaining to a terminal; connected with the receipt or delivery of freight; as, terminal charges or facilities. See TERMINAL, n., 6 b.

Terminal Bud.

ter'mi·nal, n. 1. The part which terminates, or forms the end of, something; termination; extremity; end.

2. A letter, syllable, or word, forming a termination.

3. Arch. A terminating and usually ornamental detail, as the carved end of a church pew.

4. Elec. A device attached to the end of a wire or cable or to a piece of electrical apparatus for convenience in making connections. A terminal board is an insulating slab or board upon which terminals are mounted. A calibrating, or testing, terminal is one designed for the convenient testing of meters, instruments, etc.

5. Hort. & Forestry. An apical growth.

6. Transportation. a Either end of a carrier line, as a railroad, trucking, or shipping line or airline, with freight and/or passenger stations, yards, and offices. b Any freight or passenger station central to a considerable area or a junction station of a carrier line. c A rate charged on all freight, independent of the distance, and supposed to cover the expenses of station service, as distinct from mileage rate, generally proportionate to the distance and intended to cover movement expenses; a terminal charge. d A town lying at the end of a railroad; — more properly called a terminus.

terminal arborization. Anat. The treelike branching at the end of a nerve fiber.

terminal board. Elec. See TERMINAL, n., 4.

terminal bond. Finance. A bond issued by a railroad, secured by a lien on a terminal to be built.

terminal figure. = TERM, n., 10.

Ter'mi·na'li·a (tûr'mĭ·nā'lĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [L.] Rom. Relig. A festival held on Feb. 23, the establishment of which was ascribed to Numa, on which neighbors met at their mutual boundaries, made offerings to the termini or boundary stones, and joined in a meal, frolics, etc.

Ter'mi·na'li·a, n. [NL. See TERMINAL, adj.] Bot. A large genus of tropical trees and shrubs, type of the family Terminaliaceae, having entire leaves clustered at the ends of the branches (whence the name) and small apetalous flowers in loose spikes. T. catappa is the Malabar almond. The wood of several species is valuable. See MYROBALAN, 1.

Ter'mi·na'li·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Terminalia + -aceae.] Bot. A family of tropical shrubs and trees (order Myrtales), the myrobalan family, with usually entire, often terminal leaves, mostly perfect flowers in spikes, racemes, or heads, and mostly indehiscent fruit. Of the 15 genera, Bucida, Conocarpus, and Terminalia are the most important, and of 275 species several are commercially important. See MYROBALAN. Syn. Combretaceae.

terminal moraine. Geol. See MORAINE.

terminal pedestal. A gaine.

terminal quantity. Logic. The quantity of a term.

terminal reserve. See RESERVE, n., 13.

terminal shoe. An appliance to permit the transfer of a telpher carrier from a track to the cable without jar or impact.

terminal sinus. Embryol. A circular blood sinus bordering the area vasculosa.

terminal statue. = TERM, n., 10.

terminal threshold. See THRESHOLD, 4.

terminal velocity. The limiting uniform velocity attained by a falling body when the resistance of the air has become equal to the force of gravity.

terminal voltage. Elec. The voltage at the terminals of an electrical device.

ter'mi·nant (tûr'mĭ·nănt), adj. Rare. a Terminating. b Determining.

ter'mi·nate (-nāt), v.; -NAT'ED (-nāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -NAT'ING (-nāt'ĭng). [L. terminatus, past part. of terminare. See TERM.] Transitive: 1. To set or form a term or spatial limit to; to bound; limit; as, to terminate a surface by a line.

2. To put an end to; to make to cease; to end; as, to terminate an effort, or a controversy; to form the conclusion of, as a story.

3. Hence, to put the finishing touch to; to bring to completion; to complete; perfect. Rare.

4. To express in terms; to apply terms to; to describe. R.

I was censuring or rather terminating my own soul. Emerson.

5. Obs. a To state in terms. b To direct or destine. c To restrict; confine; hence, to define.

—, Intransitive: 1. To be limited in space by a point, line, or surface; to stop short; to end in extent; as, the torrid zone terminates at the tropics.

2. To come to a limit in time; to end; close.

Policies of insurance which from any cause cease to be in force are said to "terminate." C. E. Willard.

3. To have its end, final part, or outcome; — usually with in; as words terminating in "-ism"; the bout terminated in his favor.

Syn. — See CLOSE. Ant. — Begin, start, open.

ter'mi·nate (-nĭt), adj. Coming to an end or capable of ending; limitable or limited; now specif.: a Gram. Indicating an action as a whole. b Math. Expressed or expressible in a finite number of figures or terms; as, a terminate number or decimal.

ter'mi·nate (tûr'mĭ·nĭt), n. Gram. An aspect or form of the verb indicating an action as a whole.

ter'mi·nat'ing dec'i·mal (tûr'mĭ·nāt'ĭng). Math. A terminate decimal.

terminating plan. See BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION.

ter'mi·na'tion (tûr'mĭ·nā'shŭn), n. [OF. and L.; OF. terminacion, -tion (F. terminaison), fr. L. terminatio a bounding, fixing, determining. See TERM.] 1. Act of terminating, or of limiting or setting bounds; act of ending or concluding; as, a voluntary termination of hostilities.

2. That which ends, limits, or bounds; as: a Limit in space or extent; bound; end; as, the termination of a line. b End in time or existence; conclusion; close; as, the termination of life.

3. The ending of a word; a final syllable or letter; esp., Gram., the part added to a stem in inflection; ending; suffix.

4. Outcome; completion; result; as, the dispute was brought to a satisfactory termination.

5. Obs. a Last purpose. b Determination; decision. c A word; term. Shak.

Syn. — TERMINATION, ENDING, TERMINUS. Termination and ending apply esp. to temporal relations (except as noted below) and are often interchangeable. But TERMINATION emphasizes the idea of a limit set; ENDING, that of a close or conclusion reached; as, before the termination of hostilities; after the termination of the period agreed on; "The maiden sang as if her song could have no ending" (Wordsworth). As applied to inflectional syllables and similar formative elements in language, termination is the more technical, ending, the more familiar term. TERMINUS suggests spatial rather than temporal relations; as, the terminus of one's journey (i. e., one's goal or destination); the termination of one's journey (i. e., its conclusion in time); a railroad terminus. Cf. CLOSE, v. i.

Ant. — Beginning, start, inception, origin.

ter'mi·na'tion·al (-ăl), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or forming, a termination, esp. the concluding syllable of a word.

2. Gram. Formed by inflectional suffixes; as, terminational comparison (-er, -est). Cf. PERIPHRASTIC.

ter'mi·na'tive (tûr'mĭ·nā'tĭv; -nȧ·tĭv), adj. Tending or serving to terminate; bounding; terminating; concluding; determining; definitive; absolute; specif., Philol., pertaining to or designating a verb or a verbal form which expresses the action as complete, or denotes the end or completion of the action, as Latin conficere, to finish. Cf. PERFECTIVE, 3. — ter'mi·na'tive·ly, adv.

ter'mi·na'tor (-nā'tĕr), n. [LL.] 1. One who or that which terminates.

2. Astron. The dividing line between the illuminated and the unilluminated part of the moon's or a planet's disk.

ter'mi·na·to'ry (-nȧ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Terminal.

ter'mine (tûr'mĭn), v. t. [F. terminer.] Obs. a To bound; limit; terminate. b To determine; to decide upon. c To declare; state. — n. = TERM (in various senses). Obs.

ter'mi·ner (tûr'mĭ·nĕr), n. [F. terminer to end, inf. as n.] Law. A determining. See OYER AND TERMINER.

ter'mi·nine (-nĭn), n. A limit. Rare. Marlowe.

ter'min·ism (-mĭn·ĭz'm), n. The doctrine of the terminists.

ter'min·ist (-ĭst), n. 1. Theol. One who maintains that God has fixed a certain term for the probation of individual persons, during which period, and no longer, they have the offer of grace.

2. Philos. An Occamist. See OCCAMISM.

— ter'min·ist, adj. — ter'min·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

ter'mi·nize (-mĭ·nīz), v. t. & i. [L. terminus term + -ize.] To supply nomenclature (for).

ter'mi·nol'o·gy (tûr'mĭ·nŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [L. terminus term + -logy; cf. G. terminologie.] The technical or special terms or words used in any business, art, science, or the like; also, nomenclature as a field of study. Cf. NOMENCLATURE, n., 3. — ter'mi·no·log'i·cal (-nō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. — ter'mi·no·log'i·cal·ly, adv. — ter'mi·nol'o·gist (-nŏl'ō·jĭst), n.

term insurance. Insurance for a specified term providing for no payment to the insured except upon losses during the term, and becoming void upon its expiration. See LIFE INSURANCE.

ter'mi·nus (tûr'mĭ·nŭs), n.; pl. -NI (-nĭ), -NUSES (-nŭs·ĕz; -ĭz; 119). [L. See TERM.] 1. A boundary; border; limit.

2. [cap.] Rom. Relig. & Antiq. God of boundaries, probably originally a form of Jupiter as god of law and guardian of rights; also [not cap.], a boundary stone, or term, often representing Terminus. Cf. HERMA, and see TERM, n., 10.

3. Any post or stone marking a boundary.

4. Termination; end; final goal; also, starting point.

5. Either end of a transportation line; also, the station, or the town or city, at that place.

Syn. — See TERMINATION.

‖ter'mi·nus ad quem (ăd kwĕm). [L.] End [or limit] to which, as the end of a way, place of destination of goods, the last of a series, etc.

‖ter'mi·nus a quo (ā kwō). [L.] End [or limit] from which; starting point, as of a line of causation or of a journey, of a series, etc.

ter'mi·tar'i·um (tûr'mĭ·târ'ĭ·ŭm; 79), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [NL. See TERMES.] Zool. A termites' nest.

ter'mi·tar'y (tûr'mĭ·tĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), n. A termitarium.

ter'mite (tûr'mīt), n. [See TERMES.] Any of numerous pale-colored, soft-bodied, social insects of the order Isoptera; a white ant. See WHITE ANT. — ter'mi·tal (-mĭ·tăl), adj. — ter·mit'ic (tûr·mĭt'ĭk), adj.

Ter·mit'i·dae (tûr·mĭt'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A family of termites, or white ants, including the most highly specialized forms, characterized by having 4-jointed tarsi and a simple radial vein in the wings. In former classifications, it was coextensive with the order Isoptera. — ter'mi·tid (tûr'mĭ·tĭd), n. & adj.

termito-. A combining form for termite, as in ter'mi·toph'a·gous, ter'mi·toph'i·lous. See -PHAGOUS, -PHILOUS.

ter·mit'o·phile (tûr·mĭt'ō·fīl), n. [See TERMITO-; -PHILE.] Zool. A guest insect which lives in termites' nests. See PHYSOGASTRY.

term'less (tûrm'lĕs; 119), adj. 1. Having no term or end; boundless; unending; as, termless time, grief.

2. Inexpressible; indescribable; nameless. Shak.

3. Unconditioned; unconditional; as, termless peace.

term'ly (-lĭ), adj. Occurring every term. — adv. Term by term; every term; also, periodically; as, ordered termly.

term of art. A word or phrase having a specific signification in a particular art, craft, or department of knowledge.

term of thought. The result of a process of thought; the conclusion or upshot of an entire train of considerations.

term'on (tûrm'ŭn), n. [MIr. termonn, termann, boundary, sanctuary, fr. L. terminus.] Ir. Eccles. Hist. Land belonging to a religious house; church land, exempt from secular imposition; glebe.

term'or (tûr'mĕr), n. Law. One who has an estate for a term of years or for life.

term paper. Educ. A paper required in a course as a principal written exercise in a term.

Term Question. A debate since about 1840 among Protestant missionaries in China as to the proper rendering of the word "God" in Chinese.

term rate. Insurance. See 3d RATE, 11.

term settlement. Stock Exchange. A reckoning between buyers and sellers which occurs periodically instead of daily, as the fortnightly settlement in London.

terms of a proportion (or ratio). Math. The four (or two) members of which it is composed.

term'time' (tûrm'tīm'), n. a The time during a university, college, school, or legal, term. b Scot. & N. of Eng. = TERM 13 b.

tern (tûrn), n. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Dan. terne, Sw. tärne, ON. therna; akin to AS. stearn, stern, and to E. STARLING. Cf. STERNA.] Any of numerous gull-like birds of Sterna and allied genera, constituting in some classifications a subfamily, Sterninae (see STERNA.) Terns are mostly smaller than the true gulls and have a more slender bill and weaker feet, a tail often deeply forked, and a flight more graceful and dashing; — hence the name sea swallow. Terns usually carry the bill pointed downward in flight and secure their prey of small fish by plunging into the water. Most are of the genus Sterna, typified by the common tern (S. hirundo) of both coasts of the Atlantic. It is pure white with a black cap and a pearl-gray mantle. Entirely white terns of the genus Gygis are found on Pacific islands, dark-brownish ones (see NODDY, n., 2 a) of Anous and Megalopterus (syn. Micranous) on various tropical coasts; small dark-bodied species of Chlidonias (syn. Hydrochelidon), called black terns (which see), are widespread. Most terns nest in colonies, and some have been hunted for their feathers. The terns of the genus Thalasseus have elongated nape feathers and are known as crested terns. T. bergii, the large crested tern, and the smaller T. bengalensis, the lesser crested tern, are large Oriental species. It has a black cap produced into a prominent crest.

Common Tern (Sterna hirundo).

tern (tûrn), adj. [L. pl. terni three each, three; akin to L. tres three; cf. TRINE.] Threefold; ternate.

tern, n. [F. terne. See TERN, adj.] 1. That which consists of, or pertains to, three things or numbers together; specif., a prize in a lottery resulting from the favorable combination of three numbers in the drawing; also, the three numbers themselves. Mrs. Browning.
2. Naut. A three-masted schooner. Called also tern schooner. Local, U. S.

ter'na (tûr'nä), n. [L., three (names).] R.C.Ch. A list of three nominees for institution into a benefice or bishopric presented to the Pope or other authority.

ter'nal (tûr'nĕl), adj. [From TERN, adj.] Threefold.

ternal proposition. A trinary proposition.

ter'nar, ter'ner (tûr'nĕr), n. [See TERNARY]. A student of the third social rank at St. Andrews University. Hist.

ter·nar'i·ant (tĕr·nâr'ĭ·ănt), n. Math. A concomitant of a ternary quantic.

ter·nar'i·ous (tĕr·nâr'ĭ·ŭs), adj. [L. ternarius.] Ternary.

ter'na·ry (tûr'nȧ·rĭ), adj. [L. ternarius, fr. terni. See TERN, adj.] 1. Threefold; triple.
2. Proceeding by threes; consisting of three; as, the ternary number was once held in great veneration.
3. Third in series, order, or rank.
4. Bot. Arranged in threes, as petals, leaves, etc.
5. Chem. Containing, consisting of, or pertaining to, three different parts, as elements, atoms, groups, or components; thus, sulphuric acid, H_2SO_4, is a ternary compound (containing atoms of three kinds); gunpowder is a ternary mixture.
6. Cryst. Designating, or belonging to, a crystal system in which three-sided forms occur. See SYMMETRY, 3.
7. Math. a Using three as the radix, or base; — said of a system of numeration. b Involving three variables; as, a ternary form.
8. Metal. Consisting of an alloy of three elements.

ter'na·ry, n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). A set, group, or multiple, of three; as: Obs. a A ternion. b The trinity.

ternary critical point Physical Chem. The point at which two partially miscible liquids (as ether and water) dissolve to form a single phase when a mutual solvent (as alcohol) is gradually added.

ternary form. a Math. See FORM, n., 27 a. b Music. (1) A form in which the principal subject appears three or more times, as in the rondo. (2) Any three-part form in which the third part is a more or less exact repetition of the first, with a contrasting section in the middle; — called also ABA form. See SONG FORM.

ternary lipide. See LIPIDE.

ternary measure. Music. Triple time.

ternary steel. A steel of iron and carbon alloyed with one other metal.

ternary system. a Astron. A system composed of three stars whose orbits are the result of their mutual attractions. b Physical Chem. A system having three components.

ter'nate (tûr'nāt), adj. [NL. ternatus, fr. L. terni three each. See TERN, adj.] Consisting of threes; arranged in threes; trifoliolate; — said esp. of leaves. — ter'nate·ly, adv.

-ter'nate. A combining form of ternate, as in biternate.

ternati-. A combining form for ternate denoting ternately, as in ter·na'ti·pin'nate, ter·na'ti·sect.

ter·na'to·pin'nate (tĕr·nā'tō·pĭn'āt), adj. [See TERNATE; PINNATE.] Bot. Ternately compound with the divisions pinnate, as some leaves.

‖terne (tĕrn), adj. [F.] Dull in color.

terne (tûrn), n. Short for TERNEPLATE. — terne, adj.

terne (tûrn), v. t.; TERNED (tûrnd); TERN'ING. [From TERNEPLATE.] To coat with an alloy of tin and lead.

terne'plate' (-plāt'), n. [F. terne dull. See TARNISH.] Sheet iron or steel coated with an alloy of approximately 4 parts lead to 1 part tin.

tern'er·y (tûr'nĕr·ĭ), n. A place where terns breed gregariously.

ter'ni·on (tûr'nĭ·ŭn), n. [L. ternio, fr. terni three each. See TERN, adj.] 1. The number or a set of three; a ternary.
2. Bibliog. A section of three folio sheets.

tern'let (tûrn'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [See -LET.] Any small tern.

Tern·stroe'mi·a (tûrn·strē'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Christopher Ternström, Sw. naturalist.] Bot. A large genus of chiefly tropical American trees and shrubs of the tea family (Theaceae), having bracted flowers with free sepals, and petals slightly coherent at the base. T. obovalis is the scarletseed.

terp (tûrp), n., pl. TERPEN (tûr'pĕn). [Fris., village mound, village; akin to E. THORP.] Archaeol. A mound, especially in Friesland, covering the site of a prehistoric settlement.

ter'pa·di'ene (tûr'pȧ·dī'ēn), n. [terpane + -diene.] Chem. = MENTHADIENE.

ter'pane (tûr'pān), n. Chem. Menthane.

ter'pene (tûr'pēn), n. [terpentin (old form of turpentine) + -ene.] Chem. Any one of a series of isomeric hydrocarbons, $C_{10}H_{16}$, prominent constituents of many volatile oils obtained by the distillation of plants, esp. the conifers. Synthetic terpenes have also been prepared. The true terpenes have a ring structure, and may be divided into two general groups: (1) The monocyclic, menthane, or terpane, group, the members of which (the menthadienes) are characterized by ability to unite with four atoms of some univalent element, as bromine. To this group belong limonene, sylvestrene, etc. (2) The bicyclic group, whose members can take up but two atoms of bromine. Examples are camphene, pinene. There are also acyclic, aliphatic, or olefinic, terpenes, having the formula $C_{10}H_{16}$, but an open-chain structure, as myrcene; hemiterpenes, C_5H_8, as isoprene; sesquiterpenes, $C_{15}H_{24}$, as cedrene; diterpenes, as colophene; and polyterpenes, $(C_5H_8)_x$.

-ter'pene. A combining form of terpene, as in hydroterpene.

terpene alcohol. Chem. An alcohol related to a terpene, esp. one of the formula $C_{10}H_{17}OH$ (sometimes called a terpene hydrate).

ter'pe·nyl'ic ac'id (tûr'pē·nĭl'ĭk). [terpene + -yl + -ic.] Chem. A white crystalline lactonic acid, $C_8H_{12}O_4$, obtained by the oxidation of oil of turpentine and in other ways.

ter·phen'yl (tûr·fĕn'ĭl; -fē'nĭl), n. [ter- + phenyl.] Chem. A crystalline hydrocarbon, $C_6H_5.C_6H_4.C_6H_5$, containing three benzene rings.

ter'pi·lene (tûr'pĭ·lēn), n. Chem. a Dipentene, or a mixture of terpenes consisting principally of dipentene. b Terpinene.

ter'pin·ene (-pĭ·nēn), n. Chem. A liquid terpene, $C_{10}H_{16}$, formed by the action of sulphuric acid on certain terpenes. γ-terpinene is identical with crithmene.

ter·pin'e·ol (tûr·pĭn'ē·ōl; -ŏl), n. [terpin + 2d -ol.] Chem. Any of certain isomeric terpene alcohols or menthenols, $C_{10}H_{17}OH$, occurring in natural essential oils and also made artificially. α-, β- and γ- terpineol are crystalline solids. The liquid terpineol of commerce is a mixture containing chiefly the α-variety and is made by the action of dilute acids on terpinol hydrate. It has a hyacinth or lilac odor and is used in perfumery.

terpin hydrate. Pharm. Terpinol hydrate. See TERPINOL a. It is used as an expectorant.

ter'pin·ol (tûr'pĭ·nōl; -nŏl), n. [See TERPINEOL.] Chem. a A white crystalline compound, $C_{10}H_{18}(OH)_2$; 1,8-p-menthane-diol; — called also terpin. It exists in two isomeric forms, the cis- form being obtained as a hydrate (terpinol hydrate) in the form of colorless crystals or a white powder by treating oil of turpentine with dilute acids and in other ways, and the trans- form which does not form a hydrate and which is produced indirectly from the cis- form. b Terpineol, esp. the commercial article.

ter·pin'o·lene (tûr·pĭn'ō·lēn), n. [terpinol + -ene.] Chem. A liquid terpene, $C_{10}H_{16}$, found in the oil of Manila elemi and also prepared artificially; $\Delta^{1,4(8)}$-p-menthadiene.

ter·po'di·on (tûr·pō'dĭ·ŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. terpein to gladden, cheer + ōidē song.] Music. A keyboard instrument something like the clavicylinder, invented in Germany in 1816.

Terp·sich'o·re (tûrp·sĭk'ō·rē), n. [L., fr. Gr. Terpsichorē, fr. terpsis enjoyment (fr. terpein to gladden) + choros dance, dancing.] Gr. & Rom. Myth. The muse of dancing and choral song; hence [not cap.], a dancer; dancing.

terp'si·cho·re'al (tûrp'sĭ·kō·rē'ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to dancing; terpsichorean. — terp'si·cho·re'al·ly, adv.

Terp'si·cho·re'an (tûrp'sĭ·kō·rē'ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Terpsichore; hence [not cap.], of or pertaining to dancing.

terp'si·cho·re'an, n. A dancer. Colloq.

‖terp'si'cho'rienne' (tĕrp'sē'kō'ryĕn'), n. [F.] A female dancer. Jocose.

‖ter'ra (tĕr'rä; tĕr'ȧ), n. [It. & L. See TERRACE.] The earth; earth; [cap.], Rom. Relig., earth as a goddess.

ter'ra al'ba (tĕr'ȧ ăl'bȧ). [L., white earth.] Com. Any of several white mineral substances; as: a Gypsum, ground for a pigment. b Kaolin, used esp. as an adulterant of paints, etc. c Burnt alum. d Magnesia. e Permanent white (barium sulphate).

‖ter'ra a ter'ra (tĕr'rä ä tĕr'rä). [It.] Terre à terre.

ter'ra car'i·o'sa (tĕr'ȧ kăr'ĭ·ō'sȧ). [L.] Rottenstone.

terra catechu. [NL.] Catechu. ter'race (tĕr'ĭs; -ās; 277), n. [OF. (F. terrasse), fr. (assumed) VL. terracea, fr. L. terra the earth, land, country, region, orig., dry land; akin to OIr. tīr country, region, tūrim dry, L. torrere to parch. See THIRST; cf. FUMITORY, INTER, v., PARTERRE, SUBTERRANEAN, TERRAIN, TERRESTRIAL, TERRIER, TERRITORY, TRASS, TUREEN.] 1. a A raised level space, step, or platform, of earth, supported on one or more faces by a wall, a bank of turf, or the like, whether designed for use or pleasure, often one of a series arranged one above the other on a slope; also, such bank of turf, etc., and the raised level collectively, or a natural formation resembling such a raised level and such side or sides. Cf. STEP TERRACE. b Any similar formation.

Down the long, quiet terraces of the sky. Amy Lowell.

2. a An open gallery; a balcony, portico, or colonnade. b A flat roof of a house, esp. a Spanish or Oriental house. c A besieger's earthwork.
3. a A row of houses along the side or top of rising ground; — often used arbitrarily in naming any street with a similar row of houses. b Local, U. S. A strip of park in the middle of a street, usually planted with trees and shrubs; also, a street having such a terrace.
4. A flaw in marble, commonly cored out and filled up.
5. Geol. A level and ordinarily rather narrow plain, usually with a steep front, bordering a river, a lake, or the sea; a topographic bench. Many rivers are bordered by a series of terraces at different levels, indicating former flood plains formed at different stages of erosion or deposition.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

terrace-banked	terrace maker	terrace-steepled terrace-fashion	terrace-mantling, adj.	terracework ter'race (tĕr'ĭs; -ās), v. t.; TER'RACED (-ĭst; -ȧst); TER'RACING (-ĭs·ĭng). To form into a terrace or terraces; to furnish with a terrace or terraces; as, to terrace a garden, or a building. — v. i. To mount in terraces; also, to promenade on a terrace.

ter'race, adj. Of, pertaining to, or forming, a terrace or terraces; terraced.

ter'race. Var. of TRASS.

Terrace epoch. Geol. The time just after the last ice advance of the early Quaternary glaciation, when streams developed terraces from valley plains aggraded by river deposits during glaciation.

ter·ra'ceous (tĕ·rā'shŭs), adj. [See TERRACE.] Earthen.

ter'rac·er (tĕr'ĭs·ĕr), n. 1. One stationed on a terrace.
2. Agric. Mach. A horse-drawn implement having a large steel scraper blade set at an angle with the direction of forward motion so that the soil is cut and thrown to the side. It is used in the building of terraces.

ter'rac·ette' (tĕr'ĭs·ĕt'), n. A little terrace.

ter·rac'i·form (tĕ·răs'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [terrace + -form.] In the form of terraces.

ter'rac·ing (tĕr'ĭs·ĭng), n. A series or structure of terraces.

ter'ra cot'ta (tĕr'ȧ kŏt'ȧ). [It., fr. terra earth + cotta, fem. of cotto cooked, fr. L. coctus, past part. of coquere to cook. See COOK.] 1. Clayware of structural character extensively used in the facing of large buildings and for relief ornament or for statuettes, vases, etc. The surface is coated with fine slip or glaze, and colors are freely used.
2. An art product, esp. a figurine or vase, made of this ware; also, lightly fired reddish ware such as Greek pottery.
3. The variable color of hard-baked clay, averaging reddish red-yellow in hue, of high saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
— ter'ra–cot'ta, adj.

ter'ra–cot'ta lum'ber. Earthenware so prepared as to hold nails driven into it. The clay is left porous, with openings and gaps, so as to be light and easy to pierce or cut.

ter'ra dam·na'ta (tĕr'ȧ dăm·nā'tȧ). [L., condemned earth.] Alchem. = CAPUT MORTUUM, 2 a.

‖ter'ra di Si·en'na (dē sĭ·ĕn'ȧ) or, better, Sie'na (It. syē'nä). [It.] Sienna.

ter'rae·fil'ial (tĕr'ē·fĭl'yăl; -ĭ·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to terraefilii. Rare. — ter'rae·fil'ian, adj.

‖ter'rae fi'li·us (tĕr'ē fĭl'ĭ·ŭs); pl. ter'rae fi'li·i (-ī). [L., son of the earth.] a A person of lowly birth. b Formerly, a student at Oxford University appointed to make at the Encaenia a satirical speech, freely satirizing the university authorities. Cf. PREVARICATOR, 2.

ter'ra fir'ma (tĕr'ȧ fûr'mȧ). [L.] Firm or solid earth, as opposed to water; also, Obs.: a Mainland. b The Venetian mainland territories. c A landed estate.

ter'ra fo'li·a'ta (fō'lĭ·ā'tȧ). [L., leafy earth.] Old Chem. Potassium or sodium acetate.

ter'rage (tĕr'ĭj), n. [F.] Feudal Law. A kind of tax or payment on land (perhaps, the same as pickage, or else a toll at a fair paid as rent for a piece of land on which to erect a booth).

ter·rain' (tĕ·rān'; tĕr'ān), n. [F. See TERRANE.] 1. The ground on which one stands. Obs.
2. A tract or region of ground immediately under observation; hence, field of activity; environment; milieu.
3. Geol. Var. of TERRANE.
4. Mil. An area of ground considered as to its extent and topography in relation to its use for a specific purpose, as for a battle or the erection of fortifications.

ter·rain', adj. Terrene; terrestrial.

ter'ra in·cog'ni·ta (tĕr'ȧ ĭn·kŏg'nĭ·tȧ); pl. ter'rae in·cog'ni·tae (tĕr'ē ĭn·kŏg'nĭ·tē). [L.] a An unknown land; an unexplored country or field of knowledge or activity.

terrain cure. Med. A treatment of disease by systematic exercise in climbing hills or mountains, with regulation of diet.

‖ter'ra ir're·den'ta (tĕr'rä ĭr'rā·dĕn'tä). [It.] Unredeemed land; specif., = IRREDENTA, n.

ter'ra ja·pon'i·ca (tĕr'ȧ jȧ·pŏn'ĭ·kȧ). [NL.] a Gambier. b Any catechu.

ter·ral' (tĕ·răl'), n. [Sp.] A land breeze.

ter'ra Lem'ni·a (tĕr'ȧ lĕm'nĭ·ȧ). [L.] Lemnian bole or earth.

ter'ra·ma'ra (tĕr'ȧ·mä'rȧ), n.; It. pl. TERRAMARE (-rā). [It. dial, fr. terra earth + dial. mara (It. marna) marl.]
1. An earthy deposit used as a fertilizer, esp. that found in mounds on the sites of neolithic dwellings in the valley of the Po.
2. One of these neolithic pile dwellings or settlements; also, one of their ancient inhabitants.

terramara culture. The mode of life of the neolithic builders of terramare, esp. in the early Bronze Age.

ter'ra·mare' (tĕr'ȧ·mär'; -mär'), n. A mound of terramara.

‖Ter'ra Ma'ter (tĕr'ȧ mā'tĕr). [L., lit., mother earth.] a Tellus. b Nerthus.

ter'ra mi·ra'cu·lo'sa (mĭ·răk'ū·lō'sȧ). [ML., lit., wonderful earth.] Bole. See 2d BOLE, 1.

ter'ra mu'ri·a'ti·ca (mū'rĭ·ăt'ĭ·kȧ). [L. See MURIATIC.] Old Chem. Magnesia.

ter·rane' (tĕ·rān'; tĕr'ān), n. [F. terrain, fr. (assumed) VL. terranum, for L. terrenum, fr. terrenus of earth, fr. terra earth. See TERRACE.] Geol. A formation, or a group of formations; the area or surface over which a particular rock or group of rocks is prevalent.

ter·ra'ne·an (tĕ·rā'nē·ăn), adj. [See SUBTERRANEAN.] Of, on, pertaining to, or from, the earth.

ter·ra'ne·ous (-ŭs), adj. 1. Terrestrial; terranean.
2. Bot. Growing on land.

ter'ra no'bi·lis (tĕr'ȧ nō'bĭ·lĭs). [L., noble earth.] The diamond. Obs.

‖ter'ra nul'li·us (nŭl'ĭ·ŭs). [L.] The land of no one; territory not annexed to any nation.

ter'ra o'rel·la'na (ō'rĕ·lä'nȧ). The color salmon.

Ter'ra·pe'ne (tĕr'ȧ·pē'nē), n. [NL. See TERRAPIN.] Zool. The genus comprising the box tortoises.

ter'ra·pin (tĕr'ȧ·pĭn), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Abnaki toarebe, Lenape turupe little turtle.] 1. a Any of various edible North American turtles of the family Testudinidae living in fresh or brackish water, esp. any of those constituting the genus Malaclemys, called diamond-back terrapins, which live in salt marshes along the Atlantic and term'trot'ter, n. A termer. Obs. ter·na'do. † TORNADO. ter'nate-pin'nate, adj. = TERNATOPINNATE. ter'nize. Aphetic form of ETERNIZE.

---

‖ter'no (tĕr'nō), n. [It.] See LOTTERY, 1. tern schooner. = 3d TERN, 2.
Tern·stroe'mi·a'ce·ae (tûrn·strē'mĭ·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of THEACEAE (in part).
ter·ox'ide (tûr·ŏk'sīd: -sĭd), n. Also -id. See TER-. terpane group. Chem. See TERPENE. ter'pene·less, adj. See -LESS. ter'pin (tûr'pĭn), n. [See TERPENE.] Also ter'pine (-pīn, -pēn), = TERPINOL 3. [TALAMANCA.] Ter'ra·ba' (tĕr'ȧ·bä'), n. See ter'race·wards, adv. See -WARDS. ter'race·wise', adv. See -WISE. ter'ra·cul'ture, n. = AGRICULTURE. Rare.

Gulf coasts. Of these there are five distinct forms: M. centrata, occurring from the peninsula of Florida northward to the coast of North Carolina, where it merges into the northern variety (M. centrata concentrica), which extends as far north as Buzzards Bay; M. pileata, of the coast of Alabama and Louisiana; M. pileata macrospilota, of the west coast of Florida; and M. pileata littoralis, of the coast of Texas. They are all highly valued as food. Less highly prized are the red-bellied terrapin (Pseudemys rubriventris) of the tributaries of Chesapeake Bay, having more or less red on the plastron and carapace and reaching a length of about eighteen inches, and the yellow-bellied terrapin (Pseudemys scripta and allied species) of the southern United States. b The flesh of these turtles as food. 2. Any of various other, esp. fresh-water, turtles. See 2d TURTLE, 1.

Diamondback Terrapin (Malaclemys centrata). (⅙)

3. A brown, red-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Called also grapenuts. Cf. COLOR.

ter'ra pin'guis (tĕr'ȧ pĭng'gwĭs). [L., fatty earth.] Old Chem. A combustible principle supposed by Becher to exist in all combustible substances. Becher's theory led to the doctrine of phlogiston.

terrapin paws. Tongs for capturing terrapins. Local, U. S.

terrapin scale. A very destructive, small, brownish, convex scale insect (Lecanium nigrofasciatum) infesting a variety of trees, esp. peach, plum, and apple.

Terrapin War. U. S. Hist. The war of 1812; — so called by the Federalists because, as they said, the nation, by its Embargo and Nonintercourse acts, caused its trade to stop, shutting itself up in its shell like a terrapin.

ter'ra pon'de·ro'sa (tĕr'ȧ pŏn'dē·rō'sȧ). [L., ponderous earth.] Old Chem. Baryta.

ter'ra por'cel·la'ne·a (pôr'sĕ·lā'nē·ȧ). [NL.] Kaolin.

ter'ra poz·zuo'li (tĕr'ȧ pŏt·swō'lē). [It.] The color bole.

ter'ra pu·tu'ra (tĕr'ȧ pū·tū'rȧ). See PUTURE.

ter·ra'que·an (tĕr·ā'kwē·ăn), adj. Terraqueous. Rare.

ter·ra'que·ous (tĕr·ā'kwē·ŭs), adj. [L. terra the earth + E. aqueous.] Consisting of land and water; living in or extending over land and water.

ter·ra'que·ous·ness, n. State or condition of being terraqueous; specif., Astron., the condition of a planet in its evolutionary development when, like the earth at present, it has considerable bodies of water on its surface. Cf. TERRESTRIALITY.

ter'rar (tĕr'ẽr), n. [ML. terrarius liber. See 3d TERRIER.] A bursar of a religious house; one who kept the terrier (see 3d TERRIER). Obs. exc. Hist.

ter·rar'i·um (tĕ·rär'ĭ·ŭm; 79), n.; pl. E. -IUMS (-ŭmz), L. -IA (-ȧ). [L. terra earth + -arium as in aquarium.] 1. A vivarium without water.

2. A small indoor glass-enclosed garden.

ter'ra ro'sa (tĕr'ȧ rō'zȧ). [NL.] a Red ocher. b The color bole.

ter'ra ros'sa (tĕr'rä rōs'sä). [It.] The red-colored residue from the weathering and partial solution of certain rocks, esp. limestone.

ter'ra sal'i·tro'sa (tĕr'ȧ săl'ĭ·trō'sȧ). [NL.] Saltpeter.

ter'ra si·en'na (sĭ·ĕn'ȧ). [It. terra di Siena.] a Obs. Sienna. b Raw sienna. See SIENNA.

ter'ra sig'il·la'ta (sĭj'ĭ·lā'tȧ). [ML., lit., stamped earth.] a Lemnian bole. Cf. SPHRAGIDE. b The color bole. c Rom. Antiq. Pottery adorned with figures; esp., the glazed red pottery with ornament in relief manufactured in various parts of the Roman Empire, but with special skill at Arretium.

ter'ra si·li'ce·a pu'ri·fi·ca'ta (sĭ·lĭsh'ē·ȧ pū'rĭ·fĭ·kā'tȧ). [NL. Cf. SILICEOUS; PURIFY.] Pharm. Kieselguhr purified by boiling with hydrochloric acid and washing with water. It is used as a distributing and filtering medium.

‖ter'ra ter'ra (tĕr'rä tĕr'rä). [It.] Along shore. Obs.

ter'ra um'bra (tĕr'ȧ ŭm'brȧ). [L. or NL., Umbrian earth. See UMBER pigment.] Umber (the pigment).

‖ter'ra ver'de (tĕr'rä vär'dä). [It., green earth.] Terreverte.

ter·raz'zo (tĕr·rät'sō), n., or ‖ter·raz'zo Ve'ne·zia'no (vē'nā·tsyä'nō). [It. See TRASS, TERRACE.] A kind of flooring made of small chips of marble set irregularly in cement and polished.

terre (tĕr), v. t. [Cf. F. atterrer.] To cast on the ground. Obs.

‖terre' à terre' (târ' ȧ târ'). [F.] a Manège. A gait formerly taught, distinguished by short leaps, in which the feet are raised less high than in the curvet. b A mode of dancing without leaping. — adj. Without elevation; pedestrian; — of style. — terre'-à-terre'ish·ly (târ'ȧ-târ'ĭsh·lĭ), adv.

ter·rel'la (tĕ·rĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. terra the earth.] 1. A small earth or planet. Obs.

2. Physics. A spherical loadstone or magnet; an earthkin. Obs.

Ter'rell grass (tĕr'ĕl). A coarse American lyme grass (Elymus virginicus), useful in some districts for pasturage.

ter're·mo'tive (tĕr'ē·mō'tĭv), adj. [L. terrae motus earthquake.] Seismic. Rare.

ter·rene' (tĕ·rēn'), adj. [L. terrenus. See TERRANE.] 1. Of or pertaining to the earth; worldly; earthly; terrestrial; mundane; as, terrene malice.

2. Of the nature of earth; earthy.

— ter·rene'ly, adv. — ter·rene'ness, n.

ter·rene', n. [L. terrenum land, ground; cf. F. terrain.] 1. The earth; a land or realm; a terrain.

2. Surv. The surface of the ground.

‖ter·re'no (tĕr·rā'nō), n. [It. See TERRANE.] A ground floor.

ter're·ous (tĕr'ē·ŭs), adj. [L. terreus, fr. terra the earth.] Consisting of or pertaining to earth; earthy. Obs.

terre'plein' (târ'plān'), n. [F., fr. L. terra earth + plenus full; cf. It. terrapieno.] 1. Fort. a Orig., the rear talus of a rampart; now, the top or platform of a rampart, for the cannon, behind the parapet. b The surface directly behind a parapet, at whatever level.

2. Civil Engin. An embankment of earth with a broad level top, which is sometimes excavated to form a continuation of an elevated canal across a valley.

ter·res'tri·al (tĕ·rĕs'trĭ·ăl; tĕ-), adj. [L. terrestris, fr. terra the earth. See TERRACE.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or existing on, the earth; earthly; worldly; mundane; — opposed to celestial; as, terrestrial seasons.

2. Representing, or constituting, the earth; as, a terrestrial globe. "The dark terrestrial ball." Addison.

3. Consisting of, or pertaining to, land, in distinction from water; as, the terrestrial parts of the globe.

4. Belonging to, or inhabiting, the land, or ground, in distinction from trees, water, etc.; as, terrestrial serpents.

5. Pertaining to or of the nature of soil. Obs.

6. Astron. Belonging to the same class with the earth; as, Mercury, Venus, and Mars are terrestrial planets.

7. Bot. Growing in the ground; — distinguished from aquatic, epiphytic, etc.

Syn. — See EARTHLY. Ant. — See CELESTIAL.

ter·res'tri·al (tĕ·rĕs'trĭ·ăl; tĕ-), n. An inhabitant or creature of the earth; a mortal; a layman; also, Rare, the earth.

terrestrial body. See BODY, n., 16 b.

terrestrial deposit. Geol. a Sedimentary deposits of eolian, fluvial, or lacustrine origin, formed on land; fresh-water deposits; — opposed to marine deposits. b Rare. Deposits formed by springs, or by underground water in cavities of rocks.

terrestrial eyepiece. An eyepiece used in telescopes for viewing terrestrial objects, consisting of three, or usually four, lenses so arranged as to present the image of the object in an erect position.

terrestrial glory. See CELESTIAL GLORY.

ter·res'tri·al·ism (tĕ·rĕs'trĭ·ăl·Ĭz'm; tĕ-), n. Worldliness.

ter·res'tri·al'i·ty (tĕ·rĕs'trĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ; tĕ-), n. Quality or state of being terrestrial; specif., Astron., the condition, as of the moon or Mars, of being without bodies of permanent water. Cf. TERRAQUEOUSNESS.

terrestrial latitude. See LATITUDE, 6.

terrestrial longitude. See LONGITUDE, 2.

terrestrial magnetism. a The magnetic force exerted by the earth as a whole, recognized by its effect on magnetized needles and bars. b The branch of science which treats of the laws of magnetic attraction and repulsion, and of the application of these laws in surveying and navigation.

terrestrial meridian. = MERIDIAN, 9 a & b.

terrestrial planet. See PLANET, n., 1; TERRESTRIAL, adj., 6.

terrestrial refraction. Refraction causing change in the apparent altitude of a distant point, due to the passage of light obliquely through air strata of varying density.

terrestrial telescope. A telescope with a terrestrial eyepiece.

terrestrial vanishing point. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2.

ter'res·tric'i·ty (tĕr'ĕs·trĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Terrestrialness. Rare.

ter·res'tri·fy (tĕ·rĕs'trĭ·fī; tĕ-), v. t. [L. terrestris terrestrial + E. -fy.] To make earthy or mundane. Obs.

ter'ret (tĕr'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [From TORRET.] A ring for attaching a string, leash, or chain to an object; esp., one of the rings on the top of a harness pad, through which the reins pass. See HARNESS, n., 2, 1st Illust. — ter'ret·ed, adj.

terre'-ten'ant, ter'ten'ant (târ'tĕn'ănt), n. [AF. terre-tenaunt, fr. F. terre earth, land + tenant, pres. part. of tenir to hold.] Law. One who has the actual possession of land; the occupant of land; often, one seized and in possession of land.

A terre-tenant in a general sense is one who is seized or actually possessed of lands as the owner thereof. 114 Pa. 146.

terre'-verte' (târ'vûrt'), n. [F., fr. terre earth + vert, verte, green.] 1. Glauconite, or the similar mineral celadonite, used as a green pigment by artists. The best preparations are very permanent, but of slight intensity, losing character if mixed with other pigments.

2. The color of terre-verte, bluish-green in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

ter'ri·ble (tĕr'ĭ·b'l; 277), adj. [F., fr. L. terribilis, fr. terrere to frighten. See TERROR.] 1. Adapted, or likely, to excite terror, awe, or dread; dreadful; appalling; fearful.

Prudent in peace, and terrible in war. Prior.

2. Afflicting severely; hard to endure; painful.

The terrible work of keeping clean a vast mansion. Arnold Bennett.

3. Excessive; extreme; tremendous. Colloq.

Syn. — Frightful, horrible, terrifying. See FEARFUL.

— ter'ri·ble·ness, n. — ter'ri·bly, adv.

ter'ri·ble (tĕr'ĭ·b'l), adv. Terribly. Now Dial.

ter'ri·ble (tĕr'ĭ·b'l), n. One who or that which is terrible.

ter·ric'o·list (tĕ·rĭk'ō·lĭst), n. One who inhabits the earth. Obs.

ter·ric'o·lous (tĕ·rĭk'ō·lŭs), adj. [L. terricola earth-dweller, fr. terra earth + colere to inhabit.] Zool. & Bot. Living on or in the ground.

ter'rie (tûr'ĭ), n. A terrier. Obs. exc. Scot.

ter'ri·er (tĕr'ĭ·ẽr), n. [F. terrier, chien terrier, fr. terre the earth, fr. L. terra; cf. F. terrier a burrow, fr. ML. terrarium a hillock (hence, a mound thrown up in making a burrow, a burrow). See TERRACE; cf. 3d TERRIER.] A dog, usually small, of any of several breeds, now kept chiefly as pets but originally used by hunters to dig for small furred game and engage the quarry underground or drive it out of its hole. The chief breeds are Airedale, Bedlington, Border, Cairn, Dandie Dinmont, Irish, Kerry blue, Manchester, Scottish, Sealyham, Skye, Welsh, and West Highland white terriers, and bull terrier, fox terrier, and schnauzer.

Cairn Terrier. (½2)

ter'ri·er, n. [From territorial, after terrier dog.] A territorial; — a nickname.

ter'ri·er, n. [OF., fr. ML. terrarius liber, a book pert. to land or landed estates. See 1st TERRIER; cf. TERRAR.] Law. a Formerly, a collection or roll of acknowledgments of the vassals or tenants of a lordship, setting out the rents and services they owed to the lord, etc. b Hence, a book or roll in which the interests of private persons or corporations in lands are described by site, boundaries, number of acres, etc. c An inventory of property in general.

ter·rif'ic (tĕ·rĭf'Ĭk; 277), adj. [L. terrificus, fr. terrere to frighten + facere to make. See TERROR; -FIC.] 1. Exciting, or adapted to excite, great fear or dread; terrible; appalling; as, a terrific spectacle; a terrific explosion.

2. Tremendous; extreme; excessive. Colloq.

— ter·rif'ic·ly, adv. — ter·rif'ic·ness, n.

ter'ri·fy (tĕr'ĭ·fī), v.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'Ĭng). [L. terrificare; cf. F. terrifier. See TERRIFIC; -FY.] Transitive: 1. To alarm or shock with terror or fear; to frighten.

When ye shall hear of wars . . . be not terrified. Luke xxi. 9.

2. To drive, impel, deter, etc., by such frightening; — with into, to, out of, or from; as, terrified to death; to terrify the wits out of one.

3. Now Dial. a To annoy; tease; importune; torment. b To injure; destroy. c To bother.

4. To make terrible. Obs.

—, Intransitive: To become terrified.

— ter'ri·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. — ter'ri·fi'er (tĕr'ĭ·fī'ẽr), n.

ter'ri·fy'ing, adj. That terrifies. — ter'ri·fy'ing·ly, adv.

ter·rig'e·nous (tĕ·rĭj'ē·nŭs), adj. [L. terrigena, terrigenus, fr. terra the earth + genere, gignere, to bring forth.] 1. Earthborn; produced by the earth; autochthonous.

2. Chem. Of or pert. to an earth. See 2d EARTH, 9. Obs.

3. Oceanography. Designating, or pertaining to, the muds and other oceanic sediments derived directly from the waste of the land, as distinguished from deep-sea oozes.

ter·rine' (tĕ·rēn'), n. [F. See TUREEN.] 1. A dish, orig. of earthenware, such as those in which various articles of food are cooked and served; esp., an earthenware jar containing some table delicacy and sold with its contents.

2. A soup tureen.

3. Cookery. A kind of ragout formerly cooked and served in the same dish; also, a dish consisting of several meats braised together and served in a terrine.

Ter'ri·te'lae (tĕr'ĭ·tē'lē), Ter'ri·te·la'ri·a (-tē·lā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. terra earth + tela web.] Zool. An artificial division of spiders including the trap-door spider and others which dig holes and line them with web. — ter'ri·te·lar'i·an (-tē·lär'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n.

ter'ri·to'ri·al (tĕr'ĭ·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. [L. territorialis; cf. F. territorial.] 1. Of or pertaining to territory or the territory of a state; as, territorial property, jurisdiction.

2. Limited to or extending over a certain district; as, territorial rights.

3. Pertaining to or possessed of landed property.

4. [cap.] Of or pertaining to all or any one of the Territories of the United States, or a district similarly organized elsewhere; as, Territorial governments or governors.

5. Mil. Pertaining to or designating forces organized primarily for territorial defense; — used esp. in phrases, as territorial army, territorial force, territorial reserve. See ARMY ORGANIZATION.

ter'ri·to'ri·al, n. A member of a territorial force.

territorial church. Ch. of Scotland. Formerly, a church set up to serve the needs of a special district without regard to existing parish boundaries.

territorial department. U. S. Army. An organization for purposes of administration, training, and tactical control of the possessions of the United States lying without the continental limits. The territorial departments are the Hawaiian Department, the Philippine Department, and the Panama Canal Department. See CORPS AREA.

territorial gold. See PRIVATE GOLD COINS.

ter'ri·to'ri·al·ism (tĕr'ĭ·tō'rĭ·ăl·Ĭz'm), n. [territorial + -ism.] 1. A system under which the landowning class predominates in a state; landlordism.

2. Eccl. A system of church polity, established in the lands of the Holy Roman Empire by the Peace of Augsburg in 1555, according to which all the inhabitants of a particular territory must adhere to the religion of the civil ruler, or emigrate; — called also territorial system. Cf. COLLEGIALISM.

3. [cap.] Among the Jews, a doctrine, theory, or movement which seeks to bring about the settlement of the Jews in some region where they will be autonomous, or at least will have full political privileges and constitute a majority of the population. Cf. ZIONISM.

4. Organization on a territorial basis or on territorial lines.

ter'ri·to'ri·al·ist (-Ĭst), n. A representative or advocate of territorialism.

ter'ri·to'ri·al'i·ty (-ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being territorial; status as territorial.

ter'ri·to'ri·al·ize (-tō'rĭ·ăl·Īz; 181), v. t.; -IZED (-Īzd); -IZ'ING (-Īz'Ĭng). To make territorial; as: a To enlarge by extension of territory. b To reduce to, or establish as, a territory. c To distribute, as a levy of troops among territories or districts; to cause to be applied to a territory or territories. — ter'ri·to'ri·al·i·za'tion (-ăl·Ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-shŭn), n.

territorial jurisdiction. Internat. Law. The sovereign jurisdiction which a state has over the land within its limits and over its territorial waters and over all persons or property within them. This jurisdiction in general is over all the land within its domain and over rivers and other waters within headlands of its territory, and in addition over the belt of the sea included in its territorial waters. See TERRITORIAL WATERS; cf. EXTERRITORIALITY.

territorial law. See PERSONAL LAW.

territorial minister. The minister of a territorial church.

territorial sea. See TERRITORIAL WATERS.

territorial system. = TERRITORIALISM, 2.

territorial waters. Internat. Law. The waters under the territorial jurisdiction of a state, including (1) its marginal sea (called also marine belt or territorial sea), that part within three miles of its shore as measured from mean low water mark or from the seaward limit of a bay or mouth of a river, and (2) its inland waters, those inside its marginal sea and those within its land territory.

ter'ri·to'ri·an (tĕr'ĭ·tō'rĭ·ăn), n. An inhabitant of a territory.

ter'ri·to'ried (tĕr'ĭ·tō'rĭd or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭd), adj. Possessed of territory. Rare.

ter'ri·to'ry (tĕr'ĭ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [L. territorium, fr. terra the earth; cf. F. territoire. See TERRACE.] 1. The environs under jurisdiction of a town or city. Obs.

---

ter'ra·pine. ✝ TERRAPIN. ter'ra·plene', n. [Sp. terraplén.] = TERREPLEIN. Obs. ter'rar. ✝ TERRIER. [of TRASS.] ter·ras', ter·rass' (tĕ·răs'). Vars. ter·ras', ter·rasse' (tĕ·răs'). Vars. of TERRACE. terrasse green. [F. terrasse terrace.] = GRASS GREEN. ter'rast. Terraced. Ref. Sp.
terre. ✝ TAR, TARE, TEAR.
ter·rein'. Var of TERRAIN. ter·rein'. ✝ TERRENE.
ter·re'i·ty (tĕ·rē'ĭ·tĭ), n. Earthiness. Obs. terre'mote', n. [OF., fr. L. terrae motus.] An earthquake. Obs. ter·ren'al (tĕ·rēn'ăl), adj. Terrene. Obs.
ter·rene'. ✝ TUREEN. ter·ren'i·ty (tĕ·rĕn'ĭ·tĭ), n. Earthiness; earthy matter. Obs. ter·res'tre, adj. [F.] Terrestrial. Obs. ter·res·tre'i·ty (tĕr'ĕs·trē'ĭ·tĭ), n. [ML. terrestrietas.] Earthiness; also, earthy matter. Obs.
ter·res'tri·al·ize (tĕ·rĕs'trĭ·ăl·Īz), v. t. See -IZE. [TRIAL.]
ter·res'tri·al·ly, adv. of TERRESter·res'tri·al·ness, n. See -NESS. ter·res'tri·ous (-ŭs), adj. [See TERRESTRIAL.] = TERRESTRIAL. ter'ri·bil'i·ty (tĕr'ĭ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. = TERRIBLENESS. Rare. ter'ri·bl. Terrible. Ref. Sp. ter'rick. Var. of TARRACK. ter'ri·cole (tĕr'ĭ·kōl), adj. Also ter·ric'o·line (tĕ·rĭk'ō·lĭn; -lĭn). = TERRICOLOUS. ter·ric'u·la·ment, n. [L. terriculamentum.] A means of causing terror; a bugbear. Obs. ter'ri·er·like', adj. See -LIKE.
ter·rif'i·cal (tĕ·rĭf'ĭ·k·ăl), adj. = TERRIFIC. — ter·rif'i·cal·ly, adv.
ter'ri·fied'ly, adv. of terrified, past part.
ter·rif'o·quous (tĕ·rĭf'ō·kwŭs), adj. [L. terriloquus.] Speaking terrible things. Obs. — ter·rif'o·quy (-kwĭ), n. Obs. ter'ris. ✝ TERRACE.
ter·ris'o·nant (tĕ·rĭs'ō·nănt), adj. Also ter·ris'o·nous (-nŭs). [L. terrisonus.] Sounding terribly. Both Obs. ter'rit. Var. of TERRET. ter'ri·to'ri·al·ly, adv. of TERRITORIAL.

2. An extent of land and waters belonging to, or under the jurisdiction or sovereignty of, a prince, state, or government of any form, or any given portion of it; as, the territory of a state; the territories of the East India Company.
3. Any definite or particular portion of the area of a state considered by itself, as an area or tract of a state not invested with full rights of sovereignty, but governed or ruled as a dependency or subject area, or having a legal system more or less peculiar to itself; as, Tanganyika Territory.
4. A large extent or tract of land; a region; district.

He looked, and saw wide territory spread Before him — towns, and rural works between. Milton.

5. The scope of an immaterial entity, as a word or art; field; province.
6. [cap.] a In the United States, a portion of the country not included within any State, and not yet admitted as a State into the Union, but organized with a separate legislature, under a Territorial governor and other officers appointed by the President and Senate. b In Canada and Australia, a similarly organized portion of the country that has not yet been formed into a Province or State; as, Yukon Territory.
7. Also territory wool. In general, wool grown in the far-western or "range" States, esp. in Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Colorado, and Washington; — so called because that part of the United States was formerly made up of Territories, as distinguished from the States of the central and eastern sections.
8. An assigned or pre-empted area; as: a A district assigned to a commercial traveler. b The restricted area which a nesting pair of birds pre-empts. c Sports. Either half of a field as appropriated to a team.
9. Scots Law. The district subject to the jurisdiction of a court or judge; — equivalent to JURISDICTION, n., 3.

ter'ror (tĕr'ẽr), n. [OF. terreur, fr. L. terror; akin to L. terrere to frighten, Gr. trein to flee, fear, Skr. trasati he trembles. Cf. DETER.] 1. State or instance of extreme fear; fear that agitates body and mind; violent dread; fright.
2. Terribleness; also, a person or thing that causes dread or extreme fear.

There is no terror, Cassius, in your threats. Shak.
Her name shall be the terror of the earth. Shelley

3. One difficult to manage, unreasoning and irascible, a great nuisance, or the like. Colloq.
4. [cap.] a A state of intense fear caused by the systematic use of violent means by a party or faction, as bloodshed, imprisonment, and confiscation, to maintain itself in power, as in the Reign of Terror in France in 1793–94 (which see), or as in Russia, Finland, Hungary, etc., in and after 1917, either where the temporary government in control is revolutionary (Red Terror), or monarchistic or reactionary (White Terror). b The party or movement which inspires this state of fear.

Syn. — See FEAR.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are.

terror-bearing	terror-haunted	terror-stirring terror-breathing	terror-inspiring	terror-stricken terror-breeding	terror-mingled	terror-striking terror-bringing	terror-lessening	terror-struck terror-crazed	terror-preaching	terror-threatened terror-driven	terror-ridden	terror-troubled terror-fleet	terror-riven	terror-wakened terror-fraught	terror-shaken	terror-warned terror-giving	terror-smitten	terror-weakened

— the Terror. Fr. Hist. The Reign of Terror.

ter'ror, v. t. To terrify. ter'ror·ful, adj. Full of terror; terrifying.
ter'ror·if'ic (tĕr'ẽr·ĭf'ĭk), adj. Causing terror.
ter'ror·ism (tĕr'ẽr·ĭz'm), n. [F. terrorisme.] Act of terrorizing, or state of being terrorized; specif.: a The system of the Reign of Terror. b A mode of governing, or of opposing government, by intimidation. c Any policy of intimidation.
ter'ror·ist (-ĭst), n. [F. terroriste.] 1. One who favors or practices terrorism; one who administers or coerces a government or community by intimidation; specif. [often cap.]: a An agent or partisan of the revolutionary tribunal during the Reign of Terror in France. b A member of a Russian political party aiming to demoralize the government by violence and terror.
2. One who views public affairs with alarm; a scaremonger. — ter'ror·ist, adj. — ter'ror·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj. — ter'ror·is'ti·cal (-tĭ·kăl), adj.
ter'ror·ize (-īz), v.; TER'ROR·IZED (-īzd); TER'ROR·IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). [Cf. F. terroriser.] Transitive: 1. To impress with terror; to reduce to a state of terror, as by violence, cruelty, or threats; to coerce by intimidation.

Humiliated by the tyranny of foreign despotism, and terrorized by ecclesiastical authority. J. A. Symonds.

2. To abash; embarrass. Colloq.
—, Intransitive: To rule by terrorism; to use intimidation.
— ter'ror·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shŭn), n. — ter'ror·iz'er (tĕr'ẽr·īz'ẽr), n.
ter'ror·some (-sŭm), adj. Terrorful.
Ter'ry (tĕr'ĭ), n. Dim. of THERESA. ter'ry (tĕr'ĭ), n.; pl. TERRIES (-īz). [Perh. fr. F. tiré drawn. Cf. TIRE to pull.] a The loop formed for the pile in weaving velvet, plush, etc. b Any fabric of this type, in which these loops are left uncut. c Specif., such a fabric in cotton; — called also terry cloth.
ter'ry, adj. Of, pertaining to, or like, terry. ter'ry, n. [From territorial, n. Cf. 2d TERRIER.] A territorial. Colloq.
Terry clock. A short shelf clock with light pillars and a scrolled top; — so named from its maker, Eli Terry of Plymouth, Conn. (1772–1852). ter·sa'cred (tûr·sā'krĕd; -krĭd; 119), adj. [L. ter sacer.] Thrice sacred. terse (tûrs), adj.; TERS'ER (tûr'sẽr); TERS'EST. [L. tersus, past part. of tergere to rub or wipe off, of obscure origin. Cf. ABSTERGE.] 1. Obs. a Appearing as if rubbed or wiped off; rubbed; smooth; polished. b Refined; accomplished; — said of persons.
2. Elegantly concise; free of superfluous words; polished to smoothness; neat; succinct; pithy; as, terse style.

Terse, luminous, and dignified eloquence. Macaulay.

Syn. — Pointed, compact. See CONCISE.
Ant. — Prolix, verbose.
— terse'ly, adv. — terse'ness, n. terse, n. [Perh. from Thiers, France.] A kind of claret. Obs. ter'sion (tûr'shŭn), n. [L. tergere, tersum, to rub off. See TERSE, adj.] The action or process of wiping or rubbing for the purpose of cleaning. Now Rare.
ter·sul'phate (tûr·sŭl'fāt), n. Chem. A trisulphate.
ter·sul'phide (tûr·sŭl'fĭd; -fĭd), n. Also -fid, -fide, -phid. Chem. A trisulphide. ter·sul'phu·ret (-fŭ·rĕt), n. Chem. A trisulphide. Rare.
ter'sy·ver'sy (tûr'zĭ·vûr'zĭ), adv. Topsy-turvy. Scot. & N. of Eng. ter'ti·a (tûr'shĭ·ă), n. An infantry formation in three divisions. Obs. exc. Hist.
‖ter'ti·a, n. [L.] Music. = THIRD, n., 10 a. ter'tial (tûr'shăl), adj. [L. tertius third, the tertial feathers being feathers of the third row. See TIERCE.] Zool. Designating the flight feathers borne on the basal joint or humerus of a bird's wing. Cf. PRIMARY, n., 9 a; SECONDARY, n., 7 a. The term is sometimes incorrectly applied to some of the innermost secondaries when different from the others, or even to the scapular feathers. — n. A tertial feather.
ter'tian (-shăn), adj. [L. tertianus, fr. tertius the third; cf. OF. tierçain, terçain. See TIERCE.] 1. Med. Occurring every third day, reckoning inclusively; as, tertian malaria, in which the paroxysms occur every other day. In a double tertian fever, consisting of independent tertian fevers falling on alternate days, the characteristic symptoms occur daily. See MALARIA PARASITE.
2. Music. Mesotonic, or meantone.
3. R.C.Ch. Undergoing or pertaining to tertianship. ter'tian, n. [L. tertiana (sc. febris); cf. OF. tierçaine.] 1. Med. A tertian disease, esp. an intermittent fever.
2. A wine measure. See MEASURE, Table.
3. At Aberdeen University, a third-year student in arts.
4. Music. A compound organ stop composed of two ranks of open metal pipes tuned a major third apart.
5. R.C.Ch. A Jesuit during tertianship; — called also Tertian Father. ter'ti·a'na (tûr'shĭ·ā'nă), n. [L. See TERTIAN.] A tertian fever. ter'tian·ship (tûr'shăn·shĭp), n. R.C.Ch. A third period of novitiate or training undertaken by Jesuits after ordination. ter'ti·ar'y (tûr'shĭ·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -shă·rĭ), adj. [L. tertiarius containing a third part, fr. tertius third. See TIERCE.] 1. Of the third formation, order, or rank; as, a tertiary use of a word.
2. Chem. Characterized by replacement in the third degree; resulting from the substitution of three atoms or groups; as, a tertiary salt or amine. Cf. PRIMARY, adj., 5; SECONDARY, adj., 9. Specif., designating or characterized by a carbon atom which is united by three valences to chain or ring members; as, tertiary butyl, $(CH_3)_3C$-.
3. Eccl. Of or pertaining to tertiaries.
4. [cap.] Geol. Designating, or pertaining to, the time interval immediately following the Mesozoic (formerly called Secondary) era, and the formations made during this time. See GEOLOGY, Chart. The Tertiary period was originally subdivided into Eocene (with very few or no modern species), Miocene (less than half modern), and Pliocene (more than half modern). Later the Oligocene (with a few modern species) was differentiated, being made to include the later part of the Eocene, and the earlier part of the Miocene as classified earlier. During the Tertiary period geographic changes were widespread. The Alps, Caucasus, Himalayas, and other high mountains were formed, and the Cordilleran system, from Alaska to Cape Horn, was developing. The huge reptiles of the Cretaceous period had perished, and the dominant land life was mammalian. The period is also called the Age of Mammals. The humbler types of life were distinctly modern.
5. Med. Of, pertaining to, or designating, a third stage, esp. of syphilis; as, tertiary lesions. See SYPHILIS.
6. Zool. Tertial. ter'ti·ar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). 1. Eccl. A member of the third order in any monastic system; as, Franciscan or Dominican tertiaries. See THIRD ORDER.
2. A tertiary color.
3. [cap.] Geol. The Tertiary period or system.
4. Med. A lesion of tertiary syphilis. See SYPHILIS.
5. Zool. A tertial feather.
tertiary alcohol. Chem. An alcohol characterized by the group >COH, which forms part of a chain or ring. On oxidation the tertiary alcohols break down into simpler compounds. tertiary amine. Chem. See AMINE. tertiary amyl. See 1st AMYL. tertiary color. A color produced by the mixture of two secondary colors. Such a mixture must include all the elements necessary to produce white (in practice, gray), and a tertiary color is hence merely some primary or secondary color dulled with gray, as russet or olive.
tertiary phosphate. See PHOSPHORIC ACID, 1. tertiary quality. Philos. The quality of a thing as an object of evaluation; — so called by analogy to primary quality and secondary quality. See QUALITY, n., 13 b. tertiary radiation. Physics. Radiation consisting of X rays produced by the impact on metal of photoelectrons which have been emitted from the same metal under the action of X rays.
tertiary rocks. See PRIMARY ROCKS. tertiary syphilis. Med. See SYPHILIS. ter'ti·ate (tûr'shĭ·āt), v. t. [L. tertiatus, past part. of tertiare to do for the third time.] Obs. a To do or perform for the third time. b Ordn. To examine (a piece of ordnance), usually with calipers, to determine the thickness of the metal in three places.
‖ter'ti·um quid (tûr'shĭ·ŭm kwĭd). [L.] a A third somewhat; something which escapes a dichotomy supposed to be exhaustive. b Colloq. & Jocose. A third someone or thing of anomalous quality or of ambiguous status. tertium sal. [L.] Chem. A neutral salt. Obs.
‖ter'ti·us de·na'ri·us (tûr'shĭ·ŭs dē·nā'rĭ·ŭs). [L.] A.-S. Law. Third penny.
‖ter'ti·us gau'dens (gô'dĕnz). [L.] A third person who rejoices, or, esp., who profits by a quarrel between others.
ter'ton (tĕr'tŏn), n. [Tibetan ter-tön discoverer of treasures, written as gter-ston, fr. gter treasure + stonpa show.] A human incarnation of Padmasambhava, the founder of Lamaism.
‖ter·tu'lia (tĕr·tōōl'yă), n. [Sp.] A meeting for social intercourse; an informal evening party; a club.
Ter·tul'li·an·ist (tĕr·tŭl'ĭ·ăn·ĭst), n. Eccl. Hist. A follower of Tertullian of Carthage, pioneer Latin theologian of great influence, violent opponent of paganism and heresy, who himself became (about 203) a leader of the Montanist sect. Although happily married, he advocated celibacy, and bitterly opposed second marriages. — Ter·tul'li·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n.
ter·un'ci·us (tûr·ŭn'shĭ·ŭs), n. [L.] The quadrans. See 1st QUADRANS, 1. ter'u·ter'o (tĕr'ōō·tĕr'ō), ter'u·ter'u (-ōō), n. [Sp. terutero, terotero, fr. Guarani terutéro, teúteú, — so named from its cry.] A South American lapwing (Belonopterus chilensis cayennensis) similar to the common lapwing, but having a short hind toe and a spur on the bend of the wing.
ter·va'lent (tûr·vā'lĕnt), adj. [ter- + valent.] Chem. Trivalent. — ter·va'lence (-lĕns), -va'len·cy (-lĕn·sĭ), n.
ter·var'i·ant (-vâr'ĭ·ănt), adj. [ter- + variant.] Physical Chem. Trivariant. ter'vee (tûr'vĭ), v. i. [Cf. TOPSY-TURVY.] To struggle; writhe. Dial. Eng.
‖ter'za ri'ma (tĕr'tsä rē'mä). [It., a third or triple rhyme.] Pros. A scheme of continuous verse (usually iambic pentameter in English poetry) arranged in tercets in which line 2 of each rhymes with 1 and 3 of the next, thus: aba, bcb, cdc, etc., as in Dante's Divina Commedia.
ter'zet (tĕr'tsĕt; tĕr·tsĕt'). Var. of TERCET; hence, Music, a terzetto. ter·zet'to (tĕr·tsĕt'tō), n.; pl. -TOS (-tōz). [It. See TERCET.] Music. A composition in three voice parts; a trio; esp., a vocal trio.
ter·zi'na (tĕr·tsē'nä), n. [It.] Pros. A triplet or tercet. ter'zo (tĕr'tsō), ter'zi·o (-tsē·ō), n. [It. terzo, lit., a third, formerly written tertio; or Sp. tercio.] A legion, or brigade. Hist.
te·sack' (tĕ·săk'), n. [Czech tesák.] A dusack. tesch'en·ite (tĕsh'ĕn·ĭt), n. [From Teschen, Moravia.] Petrog. Diabaselike rocks containing analcite, the latter supposed to be from original nephelite, hence altered theralite. tesch'er·mach'er·ite (tĕsh'ẽr·măk'ẽr·ĭt), n. [After E. F. Teschermacher, Am. mineralogist.] Mineral. An acid ammonium carbonate, occurring in yellowish to white crystals in beds of guano. H., 1.5. Sp. gr., 1.4.
Te'shu La'ma (tā'shōō lä'mä). Lamaism. The lama second in rank to the Dalai Lama; — so called from the Teshu Lunpo monastery, where the Teshu Lamas have been abbots since the 17th century. Called also the Panchhan Rinbochhi or Panshen Erdeni.
Te'shup (tā'shŏōp), n. Also Te'shub. Anatolian Relig. The storm-god of the Hurri and the Mitanni, worshiped also by the Hittites.
Tes'la coil, Tes'la trans·form'er (tĕs'lä). [After N. Tesla, Am. electrician.] Elec. An air-core transformer for high-frequency alternating or oscillating currents; an oscillation transformer.
Tesla current. Elec. A high-frequency oscillating current of medium voltage, used in therapeutic treatment.
tes'sa·ra (tĕs'ä·rä), n. pl. [Gr., neut. of tessares four.] Math. Quadrilaterals, esp. spherical or curvilinear. tessara-. [See TESSARA.] A combining form, Greek tessara-, meaning four, as in tessaraglot. tes'sa·ra'ce (tĕs'ä·rā'sē), n. [Gr. tessares four + akē point.] A tetrahedral summit. tes'sa·ra·con'ter (tĕs'ä·rä·kŏn'tẽr), n. [Gr. tessarakontēres, adj.] Gr. Antiq. A ship with forty banks of oars. See GALLEY, n., 2. tes'sa·ra·dec'ad (-dĕk'ăd), n. [Gr. tessares four + dekas, -ados, decade.] A group or aggregate of fourteen individuals. tes'sa·ra·glot' (tĕs'ä·rä·glŏt'), adj. [tessara- + -glot.] a Containing, written in, or relating to, four languages. b Speaking, or versed in, four languages.
tes'sa·raph'thong (tĕs'ä·răf'thŏng; 185), n. [tessara- + diphthong.] A group formed by four vowels. tes'sa·res'cae·dec'a·he'dron (-rĕs'ĕ·dĕk'ä·hē'drŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tessareskaidekaedros fourteen + hedra seat. See DECAHEDRON.] Geom. A solid with 14 faces. Rare.
tes'sel (tĕs'ĕl), n. [F. tessellé tessellated. See TESSELLAR.] Freemasonry. Checkerwork. tes·sel'la (tĕ·sĕl'ä), n.; L. pl. -LAE (-ē). [L., dim. of tessera. See TESSERA.] A small tessera. tes'sel·lar (tĕs'ĕ·lẽr), adj. [L. tessella little cube, dim. fr. tessera. See TESSERA.] Formed of tesserae, as a mosaic. tes'sel·late (-lāt), v. t.; TES'SEL·LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); TES'SEL·LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). [L. tessellatus tessellated. See TESSELLAR, TESSERA.] To form into or adorn with mosaic; to lay with checkered work; as, tessellated floors.
tes'sel·late (tĕs'ĕ·lăt), adj. [L. tessellatus.] Tessellated. — n. A tessellated creature or thing. tes'sel·lat'ed (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Formed of little squares, oblongs, or pieces approximating squares, as mosaic work.
2. Bot. & Zool. Marked like a checkerboard. tessellated epithelium. See EPITHELIUM. tessellated scale. A soft, flattened, dark-brown scale insect (Eucalymnatus tessellatus) marked with pale lines. It infests a variety of tropical plants and occurs commonly in greenhouses.
tes'sel·la'tion (tĕs'ĕ·lā'shŭn), n. Act of tessellating; state of being tessellated; also, the mosaic work so formed.
tes'ser·a (tĕs'ẽr·ä), n.; pl. -SERAE (-ē). [L., a square piece, a die, abbr. of Gr. tessaragōnos four-cornered, square. Cf. TETRAGON.] 1. A token or password; — from guest and host sharing a broken die.
2. A small piece of marble, glass, or the like, having a square, or nearly square, face, used in mosaic work, as for making pavements, ornamenting walls, etc.
3. Rom. Antiq. a A small cube of ivory, bone, wood, etc., used as a die in gambling or in the composition of mosaic (cf. TESSELLA). b A similar piece, though often modified in shape, used as a ticket, token, certificate, etc.; as, ‖tes'se·ra fru'men·ta'ri·a (tĕs'ĕ·rä frōō'mĕn·tā'rĭ·ä; 79), a voucher for a dole of provisions; ‖tes'se·ra hos'pi·ta'lis (hŏs'pĭ·tā'lĭs), a pledge of hospitality and friendship, a token half of which was kept by each of two friends; ‖tes'se·ra mi'li·ta'ris (mĭl'ĭ·tā'rĭs; 79), a small billet or tablet of wood bearing a watchword, commander's order, or the like, and distributed through the division of an army; ‖tes'se·ra num·ma'ri·a (nŭ·mä'rĭ·ä; 79), a voucher for a dole of money; ‖tes'se·ra the'a·tra'lis (thē'ä·trā'lĭs), a ticket for admission to the theater.
4. Zool. A small rectangular plate of bone, as found in the carapace of the armadillo.
5. A curvilinear rectangle.

ter'ror·less, adj. See -LESS. ter'ror·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. ter'rour. † TERRIER, TERROR. ter'ru·lent (tĕr'ŭ·lĕnt), adj. [LL. terrulentus earthly.] Earthy. — -len·cy, -lent·ness, n. All Obs. ter'ry. † TODDY.
‖Ter·sanc'tus (tĕr·sängk'tŭs), n. [L. ter thrice + sanctus holy.] Eccl. = SANCTUS, 1. terse. † TARSE, TIERCE. ter'sel, ter'sil. † TERCEL. ter'set. † TERCET. ter'ten'ant. Var. of TERRE-TENANT. ter·ter'ri·fy, v. i. [L. ter thrice, used intensively + E. terrify.] To terrify extremely. Obs. ter'ti·ar'i·an (tûr'shĭ·ăr'ĭ·ăn), n. Eccl. = TERTIARY. tertia tone. = THIRD TONE. ter'ti·o (tûr'shĭ·ō), adv. [L.] Thirdly. Obs. ter'ti·o. † TERCIO. ter'ti·us (tûr'shĭ·ŭs), adj. See PRIMUS, adj.
Ter'ti·us (-shĭ·ŭs). Bib. ter·tri'nal, adj. See TER-.
Ter·tul'lus (tĕr·tŭl'ŭs). Bib. terve (tûrv), v. t. & i. [Cf. OHG. zerben to turn over, and E. TOPSY-TURVY.] To turn; overturn. Obs.
tes·ca'ri·a. † TESKERIA.
tes·ke'ro. = TEZKIRAH.
tes·ke'ri·a, n. See TEZKIRAH. tes'ment (tĕs'mĕnt). Scot. var. of TESTAMENT.
Tess (tĕs), n. Dim. of THERESA. tes'seled, adj. = TESSELLATED. Obs. tes'ser (tĕs'ẽr). Var. of TUSSAH.

tes'ser·al (tĕs'ĕr·ăl), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or like, a tessera; tessellar.
2. Cryst. Isometric.
3. Math. Of or pertaining to the tesserae into which a surface is divided by certain parametric lines of a system of orthogonal curvilinear co-ordinates; specif., pertaining to the tesserae into which a sphere is divided by certain meridians and parallels of latitude.

tes'ser·ar'i·an (tĕs'ĕr·ăr'ĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to dice or gambling. Rare. Gibbon.

tes'ser·at'o·my (-ăt'ō·mĭ), n. [tessera- + dichotomy.] Division into four parts.—tes'ser·a·tom'ic (-ă·tŏm'ĭk), adj.

‖tes'si·tu'ra (tĕs'sē·tōō'rä), n. [It., texture.] Music. The general range or "lie" of a melody or voice part; that part of the compass in which most of the tones of a melody or voice part lie.

Tess of the D'Ur'ber·villes (dûr'bĕr·vĭlz). Title and heroine of a novel (1891) by Thomas Hardy. "Tess" is a beautiful, passionate, sensitive village girl, who falls an innocent victim to man's vices and to his conventional prejudices.

tes'su·lar (tĕs'ū·lĕr), adj. Tesseral.

test (tĕst), n. [L. testis. See TESTAMENT, TESTIFY.] 1. A witness; also, testimony. Obs.
2. A will; a testament. Scot.

test, n. [L. testa shell, pot. See TEST cupel.] 1. Zool. The external shell or other hard or firm covering of many invertebrates, as Foraminifera, mollusks, many echinoderms, crustaceans, etc.; esp., in tunicates, the thick outer covering of the body, which is secreted by the mantle, but contains cells which have emigrated into it. It varies in consistency in different forms from leathery or cartilaginous to soft and gelatinous, and in compound ascidians usually forms a solid mass in which the zooids are embedded. In appendicularians it is probably represented by the so-called house. Cf. TUNICIN.
2. Bot. The testa.

test, v. i. [OF. tester, fr. L. testari. See TESTAMENT.] To make a testament, or will. Obs. exc. Scots Law.

test, v. t. Law. To authenticate a written instrument by attestation. See ATTESTATION, 2. Chiefly Scots Law.

test, n. [OF., test, or cupel, potsherd (F. têt), fr. L. testum an earthen vessel; akin to testa a piece of burned clay, an earthen pot, potsherd, and prob. to Av. tashta cup, L. texere, textum, to weave, construct. See TECHNICAL; cf. TEST a shell TESTACEOUS, TESTER a covering, TESTUDO, TESTY, TÊTE-À-TÊTE.] 1. A cupel or cupeling hearth for refining precious metals. See CUPEL. Chaucer.
In England the refining is performed in a reverberatory furnace, the bottom of which, called the test or cupel, is movable, and into which the lead is fed at intervals from a melting pot in which the rich lead is melted, and poured by a ladle into an iron gutter, serving to convey it to the test. Thorpe.
2. Examination or trial by the cupel; hence, any critical examination or decisive trial; as, to put a man to a test.
3. Hence: a Means of trial; discriminative characteristic or fact; specif., subjection to conditions that show the real character of a person or thing in a certain particular; as, absence is a test of love; a test for color blindness; the tuberculin test for tuberculosis. b That with which anything is compared for proof of genuineness; touchstone; standard. c Specif., the test in the Test Act, or [cap.] the act itself.
Our Test excludes your tribe from benefit. Dryden.
4. Obs. a Evidence. b A witness.
5. Chem. A procedure or reaction employed to recognize or distinguish any particular substance or constituent; as, the iodine test for starch; also, the reagent used or a positive result obtained.
6. Cricket. A test match.
7. Educ. Any series of questions or exercises or other means of measuring the skill, knowledge, intelligence, capacities, or aptitudes of an individual or group.
8. Oil Drilling. Any well drilled to test the possibilities of an undeveloped area.
9. Psychol. A means of measuring an individual's ability in any direction, by use of some standard task or series of tasks to be performed. The individual's speed, or accuracy, or level of performance may be the variable measured.
Syn. — Criterion; proof, experiment. See TRIAL.
☞ PHRASES are:

test bar	test cutter	test man test boy	test furnace	test marker test clerk	test house	test room test, v.; TEST'ED; TEST'ING. Transitive: 1. To refine, as gold or silver, in a test, or cupel; to subject to cupellation.

2. To put to the test or proof; to try the truth, genuineness, or quality of by experiment, or by some principle or standard; as, to test the soundness of a principle, the validity of an argument, the strength of a material.
Experience is the surest standard by which to test the real tendency of the existing constitution. Washington.
3. Chem. To examine or try, as by the use of some reagent; as, to test a solution by litmus paper; esp., to examine for the presence of some substance; as, to test a salt for calcium.
4. Educ. To subject to an examination or test.
5. Eng. Hist. To force submission to the provisions of the Test Act as a qualification for holding office. Obs.
——, Intransitive: To be subjected to a test; also, to have its, or one's, quality, strength, ability, or the like, shown or determined by means of a test; as, a compound that tests ten per cent.

test out. To try out.

test (tĕst), adj. Of or pertaining to a test or testing; as, a test match, act; — often in combination; as, high-test gasoline.

test, n. [OF. teste.] A potsherd. Obs.

test. Var. of TASTE. Obs. exc. Scot.

tes'ta (tĕs'tä), n.; pl. -TAE (-tē). [L. testa a piece of burned clay, broken piece of earthenware, shell. See TEST cupel.] 1. Bot. The hard external coating or integument of a seed; the episperm.
2. Zool. The test.

test'a·ble (tĕs'tä·b'l), adj. 1. Capable of being tested.
2. Law. a Capable of being disposed of by will. b Capable of being witnessed or of witnessing. c Qualified to make a will.

Tes·ta'ce·a (tĕs·tā'shē·ä), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. testaceum a shelled animal. See TESTACEOUS.] Zool. An order of rhizopods containing forms with shells or tests, as Arcella and Difflugia. — tes·ta'cean (-shăn), adj. & n.

tes·ta'ce·og'ra·phy (tĕs·tā'sē·ŏg'rä·fĭ), n. [Testacea + -graphy.] The description of testaceans. Rare.

tes·ta'ce·ol'o·gy (tĕs·tā'sē·ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. Conchology. Rare.

tes·ta'ceous (tĕs·tā'shŭs), adj. [L. testaceus, fr. testa a shell. See TEST shell.] 1. Of or pert. to a shell or shells; of the nature of, or having, a hard shell; — in old usage often designating mollusks and brachiopods and disting. from crustaceous.
2. Of, pertaining to, or made of, earthenware. Obs.
3. Of any of several colors, averaging the color pheasant.
4. Zool. & Bot. Dull brick red or brownish yellow.
— tes·ta'ceous·ness, n.

test act. An act imposing a test, esp. a religious one, upon persons as a condition of their holding or enjoying public office or privilege; specif. [caps.], Eng. Hist., a statute passed in 1673 (25 Chas. II, c. 2), requiring persons holding office, civil or military, or positions of trust under the crown, to take the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, renounce under oath the right to take arms against the king, receive Communion according to the usage of the Church of England, and abjure belief in transubstantiation. This act was repealed in 1828.

tes'ta·cy (tĕs'tä·sĭ), n. [See TESTATE.] Law. State or circumstance of being testate, or of leaving a valid will.

tes'ta·ment (-mĕnt), n. [L. testamentum (fr. testari to be a witness, to make one's last will, fr. testis a witness); in reference to the Bible, translating Gr. diathēkē a last will, a covenention or covenant; cf. F. testament. See TESTIFY; cf. INTESTATE.] 1. A solemn covenant, or, loosely, almost any legal instrument, as a landbook in early English law. Obs., except: Bib. a [caps. with Old and New.] Either of the two distinct covenants of God respectively called the First or Old Testament and New Testament; a covenant. b [caps. with Old and New.] One of the two corresponding general divisions of the Scriptures; as, the Old Testament and the New Testament. Heb. ix. 15. c [cap.] Colloquially, the New Testament.
2. Law. An act by which a person determines the disposition of his property after his death; now, usually, an instrument in writing by which a person declares his will as to the disposal of his estate and effects after his death; a will; — commonly used in the expression last will and testament, the word will being otherwise in more common use. In early English law the word testament was loosely used (as in sense 1, above) for almost any instrument, the English term for will being quethe (cf. BEQUEATH, v. t., 2), whether disposing of real or personal estate. But in strict common-law parlance testament is used of a testamentary disposition of chattels and will of one of realty or as the general term. See 1st WILL, 6.
3. Testimony; — an erroneous use.

tes'ta·ment (-mĕnt), v. t. To bequeath. Scot. — v. i. To make a will, or testament.

tes'ta·men'tal (-mĕn'tăl), adj. [LL. testamentalis.] Of or pertaining to a testament; testamentary. — tes'ta·men'tal·ly, adv. — tes'ta·men'tal·ness, n.

tes'ta·men'ta·ry (-tä·rĭ), adj. [L. testamentarius.] 1. Of or pertaining to a will, or testament, or the administration of a will; as, letters testamentary.
2. Bequeathed by will; given by or expressed in a testament.
3. Done or appointed by, or founded on, a testament, or will; as, a testamentary guardian, one appointed by will.
4. Of, pertaining to, or based on, the Old or New Testament.

tes'ta·men'tate (-mĕn'tāt), v. i. To testate. — tes'ta·men·ta'tion (-mĕn·tā'shŭn), n. Both Rare.

tes'ta·men'tum (-mĕn'tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tä). [L.] Rom. Law. A testament.

Tes'ta·men'tum Dom'i·ni (dŏm'ĭ·nī). [L., Testament of the Lord.] A Syriac version of a work, the Greek original of which was probably composed in the 4th century A.D., claiming to give words spoken by Christ to his apostles after the resurrection. It is apocalyptic and highly ascetic in tone, and contains an exposition of church order.

‖tes'ta·men'tum per·fec'tum (pĕr·fĕk'tŭm). [L.] A technically correct, complete will duly executed.

tes·ta'mur (tĕs·tā'mĕr), n. [L., we testify, fr. testari to testify; — so called from its use in the document.] Eng. Univ. A certificate of proficiency.

tes'tar (tĕs'tĕr), n. [OF. testarde, testart (F. têtard), fr. teste (F. tête) head. See TESTER a covering.] A West Indian clingfish (Gobiesox cephalus).

tes'tate (tĕs'tāt), adj. [L. testatus, past part. of testari. See TESTAMENT.] Law. a Having made and left a will; as, a person dying testate; — opposed to intestate. b Disposed of in a will.

tes'tate, n. 1. Law. A testate person. Rare.
2. A witness; also, a test; testimony. Obs.

tes'tate (-tāt), v. i.; -TAT·ED (-tāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119)); -TAT·ING (-tāt·ĭng). 1. To make a testament, or will. Rare.
2. To testify; give evidence. Rare.

tes·ta'tion (tĕs·tā'shŭn), n. [L. testatio.] 1. Law. Act or power of disposing of property by testament, or will.
2. A witnessing; testimony. Obs.

tes·ta'tor (-tĕr), n. [F. and L.; F. testateur, fr. L. testator.] 1. Law. A man who leaves a will, or testament in force at his death.
2. A witness. Obs.

tes'ta·to'ry (tĕs'tä·tō'rĭ), adj. Of the nature of evidence.

tes·ta'trix (tĕs·tā'trĭks), n.; pl. -TRICES (-trĭ·sēz). [LL.] Law. A female testator.

tes·ta'tum (-tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tä). [L., neut. of testatus, past part. of testari.] Law. a That portion of the ordinary purchase deed (beginning with the words "Now this indenture witnesseth") which contains the statement of the consideration, the words incorporating covenants for title, and the operative words. Eng. b Short for TESTATUM CAPIAS.

‖tes·ta'tum ca'pi·as, or, in full, tes·ta'tum ca'pi·as ad sa'tis·fa'ci·en'dum (kā'pĭ·ăs or kăp'ĭ·ăs săt'ĭs·fā'shĭ·ĕn'dŭm). [ML., thou mayest take the writ (for satisfying).] Law. A supplementary writ, now little used, issued by a court of one county to the sheriff of another when an ordinary capias has been returned "not found."

test bow. In China, a bow formerly used for testing the strength of military candidates, a set varying in weight from about 65 to 156 pounds.

test case. Law. 1. A case the decision in which is likely to influence or control the decisions of future or pending cases which involve similar points of law.
2. U. S. Constitutional Law. A proceeding (usually in the form of a suit for injunction) brought by agreement or on an understanding of the parties to obtain a decision as to the constitutionality of a statute.

tes'te (tĕs'tē), n. [From L. teste, abl. of testis a witness.] Law. a The witnessing or concluding clause (in which teste was the first word) of a writ or other precept. b Witness; — often used to indicate that what immediately follows is named as authority for what precedes.

test'ed (tĕs'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. 1. Tried by some standard to determine degree of purity, measure of strength, or the like.
2. Law. Having the teste, or witnessing clause, duly attached; — said of a writ, deed, etc.

tes·tee' (tĕs·tē'), n. [See -EE.] The individual tested.

test'er (tĕs'tĕr), n. One who or that which tests, as an assayer, a chauffeur who tests automobiles for a manufacturer, a device for testing the lubricating power of an oil, a test tube in a centrifugal testing machine for milk, etc.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

bench tester	cement tester	milk tester
bobbin tester	cloth tester	silk tester tes'ter (tĕs'tĕr), n. [ME. testere a headpiece, helmet, fr. OF. testiere (F. têtière a head covering), fr. teste the head (F. tête), fr. L. testa an earthen pot, the skull. See TEST cupel; cf. TESTON, TESTIERE.] 1. A headpiece; helmet. Obs.

2. a The frame on which the canopy of a bed rests. b The canopy of a bed including the frame and its hangings.
3. A flat canopy, as over a pulpit or tomb.

tes'ter (tĕs'tĕr), n. = TESTON. Archaic.

‖tes'te Re'ge (tĕs'tē rē'jē). [L.] Witness, the King; — the attestation of a writ or charter issued originally (in theory) by the King himself. Abbr. T. R. Formerly, however, the formula of attestation was tes'te me·ip'so (mē·ĭp'sō), witness myself (the King). England.

tes'tes (tĕs'tēz), n., pl. of TESTIS.

test frame. Ophthal. Trial frame.

test game. A test match (which see).

test glass. Chem. A small glass, often with a foot, for holding a liquid to be tested.

test height. In a leaf spring, the camber under a load serving to test its strength, elasticity, etc.

tes'ti·bra'chi·um (tĕs'tĭ·brā'kĭ·ŭm; -brăk'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. testis + brachium.] Anat. The superior cerebellar peduncle. — tes'ti·bra'chi·al (-ăl), adj.

tes'ti·cle (tĕs'tĭ·k'l), n. [L. testiculus, dim. of testis a testicle. See TESTIS.] Anat. & Zool. A male genital gland; a testis.

tes'ti·cond (tĕs'tĭ·kŏnd), adj. [L. testis testis + condere to hide.] Zool. Having the testicles naturally concealed within the body, as cetaceans.

tes·tic'u·lar (tĕs·tĭk'ū·lĕr), adj. a Anat. Of or pertaining to the testicles. b Bot. Testiculate.

tes·tic'u·late (-lāt), adj. [NL. testiculatus.] Bot. a Shaped like a testicle, ovate and solid. b Having two tubers shaped like testicles, as some orchids.

tes·tic'u·lat'ed (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Bot. Testiculate.

tes·tif'i·cate (tĕs·tĭf'ĭ·kāt), n. [L. testificatus, past part. of testificari.] a Scots Law. In old procedure, a solemn written assertion not on oath. b Obs. exc. Scot. Certificate; testimonial.

tes'ti·fi·ca'tion (tĕs'tĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [MF. testificacion, fr. L. testificatio. See TESTIFY.] 1. Act of testifying, or giving evidence; testimony; as, testification of our homage.
2. A testimonial; certificate; testimony. Now Rare.

tes'ti·fi·ca'tor (tĕs'tĭ·fĭ·kā'tĕr), n. [NL.] A testifier.

tes'ti·fi·ca'to·ry (tĕs'tĭ·fĭ·kā'tō·rĭ; tĕs·tĭf'ĭ·kā·tō'rĭ), adj. Serving to testify; of the nature of evidence.

tes'ti·fi'er (tĕs'tĭ·fī'ĕr), n. One who testifies; a witness.

tes'ti·fy (-fī), v.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [L. testificari, fr. testis a witness + -ficare (in comp.) to make. See TESTIS; -FY. Cf. ATTEST, CONTEST, DETEST, PROTEST, TESTAMENT.] Intransitive: 1. To make a solemn declaration, verbal or written, to establish some fact; to give testimony for the purpose of communicating something to others.
Jesus . . . needed not that any should testify of man, for he knew what was in man. John ii. 25.
2. To declare a charge; to protest; to give information; to bear witness; — with against.
O Israel, . . . I will testify against thee. Ps. l. 7.
3. To serve as indication or evidence; as, flowers testify of spring; his smile testified to his genial spirit.
4. Law. To make a solemn declaration under oath or affirmation, for the purpose of establishing, or making proof of, some fact to a court; to give testimony according to the law of legal procedure. Cf. EVIDENCE, n., 4; OATH, n., 1.
——, Transitive: 1. To bear witness to; to support the truth of by testimony; to affirm or declare solemnly.
We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen; and ye receive not our witness. John iii. 11.
2. To be indication or evidence of; as, acts testify intent.
3. To declare or make known freely or publicly.
4. Law. To affirm or declare under oath or affirmation before a tribunal, in order to prove some fact.

tes'ti·fy, n. Testimony. Obs. Scot.

tes'ti·mo'ni·al (-mō'nĭ·ăl), n. [Cf. LL. testimoniales (sc. litterae). See TESTIMONIAL, adj.] 1. In Obs. senses: a A will, or testament. b A warrant or certificate. c Testimony; evidence; also, a sign or token.
2. A writing or certificate in favor of one's character, good conduct, ability, etc., or of the value of a thing.
3. A token of regard, respect, or admiration, of obligation for services rendered, or the like, presented to a person, often formally and publicly, or established in his memory.

tes'ti·mo'ni·al, adj. [F., fr. LL. testimonialis.] a Rare. Relating to, or containing, testimony. b Of, comprising, or pertaining to, a testimonial (sense 3).

tes'ti·mo'ni·al·ist (-Ĭst), n. One who presents testimonials. Rare.

tes'ti·mo'ni·al·ize (-īz), v. t. To present with a testimonial. Rare.—tes'ti·mo'ni·al·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n. — tes'ti·mo'ni·al·iz'er (-mō'nĭ·ăl·īz'ĕr), n.

tes'ti·mo'ni·um (-ŭm), n.; pl. -NIA (-ä). [L.] 1. Law. The final or authenticating clause of an instrument, typically beginning "In witness whereof," and reciting when it was signed, before what witnesses, etc.
2. a A document serving as evidence. b A letter of recommendation.

tes'ti·mo'ny (tĕs'tĭ·mō'nĭ or, esp. Brit., -mŭn·ĭ), n.; pl. -NIES (-nĭz). [L. testimonium, fr. testis a witness; cf. OF. testemoine, ONF. testimonie. See TESTIFY.] 1. A solemn declaration or affirmation made to establish or prove some fact; specif., Law, such a declaration made by a witness under oath or affirmation; evidence consisting in declara-tes'ser·act (tĕs'ĕr·ăkt), n. [Gr. tesseres four + aktis ray, beam.] Math. = OCTAHEDROID.

---

tes'ser·a·dec'ade (-ă·dĕk'ăd), n. = TESSARADECAD.

tes'se·ra'ic (tĕs'ē·rā'ĭk), adj. = TESSELLATED. Rare.

tesseral harmonic. Math. See SPHERICAL HARMONIC.

Tes'ser·ants (tĕs'ĕr·ănts), n. pl. [Cf. F. tisserand weaver.] See CATHARI.

tes'ser·ate (tĕs'ĕr·āt), adj. Also tes'ser·at'ed (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd). [tessera + 2d -ate.] = TESSELLATED.

tes'ta·men'ta·ri·ly (tĕs'tä·mĕn'tä·rĭ·lĭ), adv. of TESTAMENTARY. See -LY.

testamentary guardian. See GUARDIAN, n., 2 b. testamentary succession. See SUCCESSION, 5 b. testamentary tutor. = TUTOR TESTAMENTARY. See TUTOR, n.

testament dative. See DATIVE, adj., 3 c. tes'ta·ment·ize (tĕs'tä·mĕn·tīz), v. i. To make a will. Obs.

Testament of Moses. See PSEUDEPIGRAPHA. [CHURCH ORDERS.]

Testament of our Lord. See

Testament of the Twelve Patriarchs. See PSEUDEPIGRAPHA.

‖tes·tão' (tĕs·toun'), n. [Pg.] = TOSTÃO.

tes·ta'ta (tĕs·tā'tä), n., pl. of TESTATUM.

tes·ta'tor·ship, n. See -SHIP.

tes'tern (tĕs'tĕrn), n. t. To present with a tester. Obs.

Tes'ti·car'di·nes (tĕs'tĭ·kär'dĭ·nēz), n. pl. [NL. See TEST a shell; CARDO.] Syn. of APTHEROPOMATA. — tes'ti·car'di·nate (-nāt), adj. — tes'ti·car'dine (-dĭn; -dīn), adj.

tes'ti·ere' (tĕs'tĭ·ĕr'), n. [OF. See TESTER a headpiece.] = 2d TESTER, 1.

testif. + TESTIVE, TESTY.

tes'ti·ly (tĕs'tĭ·lĭ), adv. of TESTY.

tes'ti·mo'nage, n. [OF. tesmoignage (F. témoignage).] Testimony. Obs.

testimonial of the Great Seal. [= QUARTER SEAL.]

---

tions made according to law by a person as witness, ordinarily given orally and reduced to writing. Testimony is a species of evidence. See EVIDENCE, n., 4.
2. Affirmation; declaration; an aggregate of approximately consistent statements or their tenor; as, the testimony of the church fathers; the testimony of historians.
3. Evidence, esp. validating evidence; attestation; as, the testimony of fossil-bearing rocks; also, that which serves as evidence; as, a silent testimony to his powers; sometimes, a token.
4. A testimonial; a written recommendation. Obs.
5. Act of testifying; open attestation; profession.
[Thou] for the testimony of truth that hast borne Universal reproach. Milton.
6. Evidence or declaration of approval or disapproval; endorsement of something or protest against it. Archaic.
When ye depart thence, shake off the dust under your feet for a testimony against them. Mark vi. 11.
7. Jewish Antiq. a The tables of the law. Ex. xxv. 16. b Hence, the divine revelation in general; the Scriptures.
The testimony of the Lord is sure. Ps. xix. 7.
Syn. — Attestation, witness. See EVIDENCE.

tes'ti·mo'ny (tĕs'tĭ·mō'nĭ; -mŭn·ĭ), v. t. & i. To attest. Obs.

test indicator. A sensitive gauge, as a dial gauge, combined with an adjustable mount, for testing the accuracy of machined work.

test'ing (tĕs'tĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TEST. Hence: adj. That tests; used in making a test or tests. — test'ingly, adv.

testing clause. Law. The testimonium of an instrument, as a deed or writ.

testing engineering. See ENGINEERING, n., 1. — testing engineer.

testing terminal. Elec. See TERMINAL, n., 4.

tes'tis (tĕs'tĭs), n.; pl. TESTES (-tēz). [L., identical with testis witness, lit., a third standing by; akin to E. THREE; STAND. Cf. TESTICLE, TESTIFY.] Anat. & Zool. 1. A male genital or reproductive gland, corresponding to the ovary in the female and producing the spermatozoa; a testicle. In craniate vertebrates there is a pair, developing, like the ovaries, from the genital ridges of the embryo, usually in the body cavity near the kidneys, but in most mammals descending into the scrotum before birth. They consist largely of convoluted tubules, from the epithelial lining of which the spermatozoa develop.
2. Either one of the two inferior corpora quadrigemina.

‖tes'tis (tĕs'tĭs), n.; pl. TESTES (-tēz). [L.] A witness.

test kitchen. A laboratory in which newly offered household commodities, such as appliances, foods, and cleaning agents, are tested.

test lead (lĕd). Metal. Lead free from silver and often finely granulated, used in cupeling, etc.

test match. A match intended to demonstrate the superiority of one contestant or group of contestants over another; orig. and esp. [often caps.], one of a series of cricket matches (now usually five) played as a test of superiority between teams representing Australia and England; — now extended to the matches of any similar international series, as between England and South Africa or between Australia and the West Indies. Cf. ASHES, 1 c.

test meal. Physiol. A meal, usually small, of definite composition and quantity, given to excite gastric secretion and so furnish material to withdraw for examination.

test nail. Physics. A piece of soft iron used to examine the attractive power of a magnet at different points by the force necessary to detach it from the magnet.

‖tes'to (tĕs'tō), n. [It.] Music. Literally, text: a A text or libretto. b A theme or subject.

test object. Optics. An object which tests the power or quality of a microscope or telescope by requiring a certain degree of excellence in the instrument to determine its existence or its peculiar texture or markings.

test of Abel. = ABEL TEST.

tes'ton (tĕs'tŏn; tĕs·tōōn'), n. [F. teston, fr. It. testone, aug. of testa the head, fr. L. testa. See TESTER a covering; cf. TESTONE.] Obs. exc. Hist. Any of several European coins, originally so called because the obverse type was a head. Specif.: a = TESTONE a. b A French silver coin of the 16th century, worth between 10 and 14½ sous. c A shilling of Henry VIII of England, which fell in value to ninepence, then to sixpence (in Shakespeare's time). Hence, a sixpence. d A tostão.

tes·to'ne (tĕs·tō'nā), n. [It. See TESTON.] Obs. exc. Hist. a An Italian silver coin of the 15th and 16th centuries. b A tostão.

tes·toon' (tĕs·tōōn'), n. [See TESTON.] A teston or other similar coin, as the testone.

tes'tor (tĕs'tŏr), n. A witness. Rare.

test paper. 1. a Educ., U. S. A paper containing a test (sense 7). b Brit. Educ. A paper set as a preliminary test of a student's readiness for examination.
2. Chem. Paper prepared to test certain substances by being saturated with a reagent which changes color when acted upon by those substances; thus, litmus paper is turned red by acids, and blue by alkalies.
3. Law. A writing admitted as a standard for comparison of handwriting.

test pit. Mining. A shallow shaft or pit sunk in ore or overburden to determine the existence, grade, or extent of a mineral deposit.

tes'trĭl (tĕs'trĭl), n. Sixpence. Rare. Shak.

test solution. Chem. A solution used in testing.

test tube. Chem. A tube for simple tests, usually a plain tube of thin glass closed at one end, but sometimes having a foot, bulb, graduated scale, or other modification. — test tubing.

test type. Ophthal. A set of letters arranged in rows of decreasing or increasing size of type, placed at a standard distance from a patient and used to test his acuteness of vision.

tes·tu'di·nal (tĕs·tū'dĭ·năl), tes·tu'di·nar'i·ous (-nâr'ĭ·ŭs), adj. Zool. Pertaining to or resembling a tortoise or tortoise shell.

Tes·tu'di·na'ri·a (tĕs·tū'dĭ·nā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), n. [NL., fr. L. testudo, -inis, tortoise + -aria.] Bot. A small genus of South African desert vines (family Dioscoreaceae) with huge edible rootstocks, growing partly above ground. The seeds are winged only at the apex. T. elephantipes is the elephant's-foot.

tes·tu'di·nate (tĕs·tū'dĭ·nāt), adj. [L. testudinatus, fr. testudo, -inis, a tortoise, an arch or vault.] a Like a tortoise shell; arched; vaulted. b Zool. Chelonian. — n. A turtle.

tes'tu·din'e·al (tĕs'tū·dĭn'ē·ăl), adj. Testudinal.

tes'tu·din'e·ous (-ŭs), adj. [L. testudineus.] 1. Of the nature of, or pertaining to, a testudo.
2. Slow of movement, like a tortoise.

Tes'tu·din'i·dae (-ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See TESTUDO.] Zool. A family of turtles comprising the carnivorous fresh-water and the herbivorous, strictly terrestrial species, usually having a strong, thick, convex carapace, broad plastron, and club-shaped feet in which the toes are firmly bound together so that the claws alone are evident. The painted turtle and Greek tortoise are examples of the principal types.

tes·tu'di·nous (tĕs·tū'dĭ·nŭs), adj. Testudineous.

tes·tu'do (tĕs·tū'dō), n.; pl. -DINES (-dĭ·nēz). [L.; akin to L. testu an earthen vessel, testa the shell of shellfish, or of testaceous animals. See TEST a cupel; cf. TORTOISE.] 1. Rom. Antiq. a Any of various kinds of sheds, fixed or movable, to protect soldiers engaged in siege operations or the like. b A cover or screen which a body of troops in close formation formed by overlapping their shields over their heads.
2. A kind of flat tumor under the scalp; a talpa.
3. Music. A kind of lyre; — so called in allusion to Mercury's lyre, fabled to have been made of a tortoise shell.
4. Rom. Arch. An arched ceiling or vault, esp. when surbased.
5. [cap.] Zool. A genus of turtles, type of the family Testudinidae, comprising the typical land tortoises. In old classifications it included all turtles. Cf. GIANT TORTOISE.

tes'ty (tĕs'tĭ), adj.; TES'TI·ER (-tĭ·ĕr); TES'TI·EST. [AF testif, fr. teste head; cf. OF. testu obstinate, headstrong (F. têtu), fr. teste head (F. tête). See TESTER headpiece.] Fretful; peevish; petulant; easily irritated; irascible; snappish.
I was displeased with myself; I was testy. Lamer.
Syn. and Ant. — See IRASCIBLE.

tetani-. Med. A combining form for tetanus, as in te·tan'i·form, tet'a·nig'e·nous. See -FORM, -GENOUS.

‖te·ta'ni·a (tē·tā'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. Tetany.

‖te·ta'ni·a pa'ra·thy're·o·pri'va (păr'ȧ·thī'rē·ō·prī'vȧ), [NL. Cf. PARATHYROID; PRIVATE.] Med. Tetany caused by removal or disease of the parathyroid glands.

te·tan'ic (tē·tăn'ĭk), adj. Also te·tan'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl). [L. tetanicus, fr. Gr. tetanikos.] Physiol. & Med. a Of or pertaining to tetanus; having the character of tetanus.
This condition of muscle, this fusion of a number of simple spasms into an apparently smooth, continuous effort, is known as tetanus, or tetanic contraction. Foster.
b Producing, or tending to produce, tetanus.
— te·tan'i·cal·ly, adv.

te·tan'ic, n. Physiol. & Med. A substance (notably nux vomica, strychnine, and brucine) which acts primarily on the spinal cord, and which, when taken in large quantity, produces tetanic spasms. See NEUROTIC, n., a.

tetanic contraction. Med. Tonic contraction.

tet'a·nil'la (tĕt'ȧ·nĭl'ȧ), n. [NL., dim. See TETANUS.] A mild form of tetany.

tet'a·nine (tĕt'ȧ·nēn; -nĭn), n. a Chem. Strychnine. Now Rare. b Biochem. See TETANUS TOXIN.

tet'a·nism (-nĭz'm), n. [tetanus + -ism.] Med. A persistent muscular hypertonicity resembling tetanus, but not caused by infection with Clostridium (syn. Bacillus) tetani. It is seen esp. in infants.

tet'a·ni·za'tion (-nĭ·zā'shŭn; -nĭ·zā'shŭn), n. Physiol. Tetanizing; the production or condition of tetanus.

tet'a·nize (tĕt'ȧ·nīz), v. t.; -NIZED (-nĭzd); -NIZ'ING (-nĭz'ĭng). Physiol. To throw, as a muscle, into a state of permanent contraction; to cause tetanus in. See TETANUS, n., 2.

tet'a·no- (tĕt'ȧ·nō-). Med. A combining form from Greek tetanos, tetanus, as in *tetano*toxin.

tet'a·noid (-noid), adj. [tetanus + -oid.] Like tetanus.

tet'a·no·ly'sin (-nō·lī'sĭn; -nŏl'ĭ·sĭn), n. [tetano- + lysin.] A hematolytic toxin produced by the tetanus bacillus.

tet'a·no·mo'tor (-nō·mō'tĕr), n. Physiol. An instrument for tetanizing a muscle by mechanically shocking its nerve.

tet'a·nus (tĕt'ȧ·nŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. tetanos, fr. tetanos stretched, fr. teinein to stretch. See THIN.] 1. a Med. A painful and often fatal infectious disease characterized by tonic spasms of several or all the striated muscles, caused by the specific toxin of the microorganism Clostridium (syn. Bacillus) tetani, often introduced through wounds. When confined to the muscles of the lower jaw, usually the first part affected, it is called lockjaw or trismus. See ANTITOXIN. b Loosely, the microorganism causing this disease.
2. Physiol. State of a muscle when undergoing continued contraction, as when stimulated by a series of induction shocks.

tetanus toxin. Biochem. A toxin produced by the tetanus bacillus and held to be the cause of the tetanic convulsions of tetanus; — called also tetanospasmin. Two such compounds have been described, tetanine, an alkaline yellow sirup, $C_{12}H_{28}N_2O_4$, and tetanotoxin, $C_8H_{11}N$. Cf. TETANOLYSIN.

tet'a·ny (tĕt'ȧ·nĭ), n. [See TETANUS.] Med. A morbid state resembling tetanus, characterized by intermittent tonic muscular spasms, chiefly in the extremities. It occurs as a complication of several diseases and esp. as a result of disease or removal of the parathyroid glands.

te·tard' (tē·tärd'), n. [F. têtard. See TESTAR.] a A gobioid river fish (Eleotris pisonis) common in southern Florida, the West Indies, etc. b The testar.

te·tar'te·mo'ri·on (tē·tär'tē·mō'rĭ·ŏn), tar'te·mo'ri·on (tär'tē·mō'rĭ·ŏn), n. [Gr.] The quarter obol, a minor coin denomination struck in Athens and several small city-states of the Greeks. Hist.

te·tar'to- (tē·tär'tō-), tetart-. A combining form, Greek tetarto-, from tetartos, meaning one fourth, as in *tetart*ohedral, te·tar'to·sym'me·try.

te·tar'to·cone (-kōn), n. [tetarto- + -cone b.] Anat. The posterior medial cusp of an upper molar tooth.

te·tar'to·co'nid (-kō'nĭd), n. [tetarto- + conid.] Anat. The posterior medial cusp of a lower molar tooth.

te·tar'to·he'dral (-hē'drăl), adj. [tetarto- + -hedral.] Cryst. Having one fourth the number of planes requisite to symmetry. Cf. HEMIHEDRAL. — te·tar'to·he'dral·ly, adv. — te·tar'to·he'drism (-drĭz'm), n.

te·tar'to·he'dron (-drŭn), n. Cryst. A tetartohedral form.

te·tar'toid (tē·tär'toid), n. [tetart- + -oid.] Cryst. A twelve-faced solid belonging to the tetartohedral group of the isometric system. Its faces correspond to one fourth of those of the hexoctahedron.

tetch (tĕch), n. [See TETCHY, TECHY.] A fit of irritation or temper; a pet. Now Dial.

tetch (tĕch). Var. of TACHE. Obs. exc. Dial.

tetch'y (tĕch'ĭ), adj. [See TECHY.] Irritable; highly sensitive; touchy; sometimes, Dial., of land, hard to cultivate.

tete (tăt), n. [F. tête the head. See TESTER a covering.] A woman's high, ornamented style of wearing the hair. Obs. exc. Hist.

tête à tête'. Face to face; privately; familiarly; — said of two persons.

tête'-à-tête' (tăt'ȧ·tăt'; tĕ'tȧ·tât'; 277), adj. Being face to face with only two present; hence, sometimes, confidential or familiar with only two persons concerned.

tête'-à-tête', n. [F., head to head. See TESTER a covering.] 1. Private conversation, or a familiar interview, between two persons.
2. A short sofa or other piece of furniture intended to seat two persons, esp. so that they face each other.

‖tête'-bêche' (tăt'bȧsh'), adj. [F.] Philately. Of a pair of stamps, inverted in relation to one another. Tête-bêche stamps may be the result of an error in printing or they may be intentionally so printed.

Tête' de Boule' (tăt' dĕ bōōl'); pl. TÊTES DE BOULE. [F., lit., ball head.] An Indian of an Algonquian tribe roving in a large territory on the upper Ottawa and St. Maurice rivers, Province of Quebec.

‖tête'-de-mou'ton' (tăt'dĕ·mōō'tŏN'), n. [F., lit., sheep's head.] A 17th-century coiffure of close, short, thick curls.

‖tête'-de-pont' (-pôn'), n.; pl. TÊTES-DE-PONT (tăt'-). [F.] Mil. A bridgehead.

‖tête' de veau' (tăt' dĕ vō'). [F.] = CALF'S HEAD.

te'tel (tā'tĕl) n. [Tigré ṭotel.] The torah.

‖tête' mon'tée' (tăt' mŏN'tā'). [F.] Excited; angry.

teth (tăth; tĕth), n. [Heb. ṭēth.] The ninth letter (ט) of the Hebrew alphabet, like English t, but with firmer articulation and organic compression, thus differing from tav. Numerical value, 9.

teth'e·lin (tĕth'ē·lĭn), n. [Gr. tethēlōs luxuriant, adj. sense of perf. part. of thallein to abound + -in.] Biochem. A lipide, extracted from the anterior lobe of the pituitary gland, which has an accelerating effect on growth.

teth'er (tĕth'ĕr), n. [ME. tether, tethir, tedir; akin to (perh. fr. ON.) ON. tjóthr, Dan. tøir, Sw. tjuder, OFris. tiader, OHG. zeotar pole of a wagon, D. tui mooring rope.] 1. A rope, chain, or the like, by which an animal is fastened so that it can range or feed only within certain limits.
2. By extension, a rope or cable used in a way suggesting a tether (sense 1, above); specif., Obs., a hangman's noose.
3. The limiting range of one's strength or resources; scope; — esp. in the phrase at the end of one's tether, at the limit of one's power or resources.

teth'er, v. t.; TETH'ERED (-ĕrd); TETH'ER·ING. 1. To confine, as an animal, with a rope or chain, as for grazing.
2. By extension, to limit the effectiveness or activity of; to bind.

teth'er·ball' (tĕth'ĕr·bôl'), n. A game played with rackets and a ball suspended by a string from an upright pole, the object of each side being to wrap the string around the pole by striking the ball in a direction opposite to the other.

teth'er·dev'il (-dĕv'ĭl), n. a The bittersweet Solanum dulcamara. b The matrimony vine (Lycium halimifolium).

teth'er·y (-ĭ), adj. Tending to become tangled; — said esp. of wool fibers.

te·thy'dan (tē·thī'dăn), n. [See TETHYS.] An ascidian.

Te'thys (tē'thĭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tēthys.] 1. Gr. Myth. A Titaness, daughter of Uranus, sister of Cronus (Saturn), and wife of Oceanus.
2. Astron. See SATURN, 2.
3. Geol. A paleographic sea (ancestral to the present Mediterranean), which, coming into existence in early Permian time, connected with the Pacific and Arctic oceans and separated the Permian continents Angara on the north from Gondwana on the south.
4. Zool. a A genus of large, often conspicuously colored, sluglike marine mollusks (Tectibranchia), the sea hares, having a pair of lateral swimming lobes (parapodia) on the foot, and four tentacles. They occur chiefly in the warmer seas. Some emit a purple liquid when disturbed. b A genus of nudibranch mollusks, some of them a foot long and brilliantly colored, having a broad fringed disk-shaped head and large branched dorsal gills; — not a valid name, but the current one.

Tethys (T. depilans) 4 a. (⅛)

Tethys (T. fimbriata) 4 b. (⅛) tet'ra- (tĕt'rȧ-), tetr-. [See FOUR.] 1. A combining form, Greek tetra-, from tessares or tettares, meaning four, having four or four parts, as in *tetra*chord, *tetra*rch.

☞ The meanings of the following can be understood from the definitions of their elements.

tetracapellary	tetrapartite tetraceratous	tetraphalangeate tetracerous	tetraphyllous tetrachromic	tetrasepalous tetracoccous	tetraspermal tetrafolious	tetraspermatous tetragamy	tetraspermous
tetramastigote	tetrathecal

2. Chem. Denoting the presence of four atoms, equivalents, radicals, or the like, as in *tetra*chloride, *tetra*boric, *tetra*cid. — tet'ra (tĕt'rȧ), adj.

tet'ra·am'yl·ose (-ăm'ĭ·lōs), n. [tetra- + amylose.] Chem. An amylose of the formula $(C_6H_{10}O_5)_4$, as one of the dextrins.

tet'ra·bas'ic (-bās'ĭk), adj. [tetra- + basic.] Chem. a Having four hydrogen atoms capable of replacement by basic atoms or radicals; — said of acids, as normal silicic acid (H_4SiO_4). b Containing four atoms of a univalent metal, or their equivalent; — said of salts. c Having four basic hydroxyl groups; able to react with four molecules of a monoacid; — said of bases. — tet'ra·ba·sic'i·ty (-bȧ·sĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n.
☞ Some authorities disapprove the use in sense a.

tet'ra·bib'los (tĕt'rȧ·bĭb'lŏs), n. [Gr. See TETRA-; BIBLE.] A literary work consisting of four allied parts or separate volumes. Cf. QUADRIPARTITE.

testimony meeting. = EXPERIENCE MEETING. tes'ti·ness (tĕs'tĭ·nĕs; -nĭs), n. See -NESS. tes'tive (tĕs'tĭv), adj. Testy. Obs. — tes'tive·ness, n. Obs.
test'-tube'ful, n. See -FUL.
Tes·tu'di·na'ta (tĕs·tū'dĭ·nā'tȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TESTUDO.] Zool. Syn. of CHELONIA, 1. tes·tu'di·nat'ed (-tū'dĭ·nāt'ĕd; -ĭd), adj. = TESTUDINATE a. tes'tule (tĕs'tūl), n. [L. testula, dim. of testa shell.] Bot. A frustule. Obs.
Te·su'que (tā·sōō'kā), n. See TEWA.
‖tes·vi'no (tĕs·vē'nō). Var. of TEXGUINO. [Dial.] tet (tĕt), n. = TEAT, n., 1. Obs. exc. Dial.
Te'ta (tē'tȧ). Bib.
tet'a·no·spas'min (tĕt'ȧ·nō·spăz'mĭn), n. [tetano- + spasm + -in.] See TETANUS TOXIN. tet'a·no·thrum (-nō'thrŭm), n. [L., fr. Gr. tetanōthron, fr. tetanoun to stretch. See TETANUS.] A salve for wrinkles. Obs. tet'a·no·tox'in (-nō·tŏk'sĭn), n. Biochem. See TETANUS TOXIN. tetar. † TETTER. [TETARTOCONE.] tet'ar·cone (tĕt'ĕr·kōn), n. = tet'ar·co'nid (-kō'nĭd), n. = TETARTOCONID. tet'bro·thal'ein so'di·um (tĕt'brō·thăl'ĭn; -thăl'ē·ĭn). = TETRABROMOPHENOLPHTHALEIN SODIUM. See TETRABROMOPHENOLPHTHALEIN. teter. † TETTER.
te·ter'ri·ma, or tae·ter'ri·ma, bel'li cau'sa. [L.] Most shameful cause [woman] of war.
Horace (Satires, I. iii. 107).
Hence: te·ter'ri·mous (tē·tĕr'ĭ·mŭs), adj.
tet·ra'i·o·thal'ein so'di·um (tĕt·rā'ĭ·ō·thăl'ĭn; -thăl'ē·ĭn). = TETRAIODOPHENOLPHTHALEIN SODIUM. See TETRAIODOPHENOLPHTHALEIN.
Te'ton (tē'tŏn), n. See SIOUX. te·to'tum (tē·tō'tŭm). Var. of 1st TEETOTUM. tet'ra·ac'id (tĕt'rȧ·ăs'ĭd). Var. of TETRACID.
Tet'ra·bel'o·don (-bĕl'ō·dŏn), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + Gr. belos arrow + -odon.] Syn. of THILOPHODON. — tet'ra·bel'o·dont (-dŏnt), n. & adj.

tet'ra·bo'rate (tĕt'rȧ·bō'rāt), n. A salt or ester of tetraboric acid.

tet'ra·bo'ric (-bō'rĭk; 181), adj. Designating a diacid, $H_2B_4O_7$, containing four atoms of boron in the molecule, formed by heating ordinary boric acid. It yields borax.

tet'ra·brach (tĕt'rȧ·brăk), n. [Gr. tetrabrachys. See TETRA-; TRIBRACH.] Gr. & Lat. Pros. A word or foot of four short syllables.

Tet'ra·bran'chi·a (-brăng'kĭ·ȧ), Tet'ra·bran'chi·a'ta (-ā'tȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TETRA-; -BRANCHIA.] Zool. & Paleontol. A subclass (or order) of cephalopods including among existing forms only the genus Nautilus, which differs from the remaining existing cephalopods (Dibranchiata) in having four gills and four auricles to the heart, a large, chambered external shell, etc. See NAUTILUS, 1. The group includes many extinct allied forms constituting the order Nautiloidea. The Ammonoidea are supposed to belong in it, though little is known of their anatomy. — tet'ra·bran'chi·ate (-brăng'kĭ·ăt), adj. & n. — tet'ra·branch (tĕt'rȧ·brăngk), n. & adj.

One of the Tetrabranchiata (Nautilus pompilius) with shell partly removed to show the Animal. a Part of Shell; b Hood; c Swimming Funnel and Tentacles; d Mantle; e Eye; f Nidamental Gland; g Two of the Gills; h Crop; j Gizzard; m Retractor Muscle; s Siphuncle; i, l Chambers of Shell separated by Septa.

tet'ra·bro'mide (-brō'mīd; -mĭd), n. Also -mid. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with four atoms of bromine.

tet'ra·bro'mo- (-brō'mō-), tetrabrom-. Chem. A combining form, tetra- + bromo-, denoting the presence of four bromine atoms, esp. replacing hydrogen. — tet'ra·bro'mo (-mō), adj.

tet'ra·bro'mo·eth'ane (-brō'mō·ĕth'ān), -brom·eth'ane (-brŏm·ĕth'ān), n. [tetrabromo- + ethane.] Chem. Either of two liquids, $C_2H_2Br_4$; specif., the symmetrical variety, $CHBr_2CHBr_2$ (called also acetylene tetrabromide and Muthmann's liquid), a heavy yellowish liquid used for separating minerals, as a solvent, etc.

tet'ra·bro'mo·phe'nol·phthal'ein (-brō'mō·fē'nōl·thăl'ĭn; -fthăl'ē·ĭn; -fē'nōl-), n. [tetrabromo- + phenolphthalein.] Pharm. A dibasic dye, the sodium salt of which (tetrabromophenolphthalein sodium) is used in X-ray examination of the gall bladder.

tet'ra·car·box'yl·ate (-kär·bŏk'sĭ·lāt), n. [tetracarboxylic + 1st -ate, 3.] A salt or ester of a tetracarboxylic acid.

tet'ra·car'box·yl'ic (-kär'bŏks·ĭl'ĭk), adj. Chem. Designating any of various acids containing four carboxyl groups.

Te·trac'er·us (tē·trăs'ēr·ŭs), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + -cerus.] Zool. The genus consisting of the four-horned antelope of India.

tet'ra·chlo'ride (tĕt'rȧ·klō'rīd; -rĭd), n. Also -rid. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with four atoms of chlorine.

tet'ra·chlo'ro- (-klō'rō-), tetrachlor-. Chem. A combining form, tetra- + chloro-, signifying the presence of four chlorine atoms, esp. replacing hydrogen, as in tet'ra·chlo'roph·thal'ic ac'id. — tet'ra·chlo'ro (-rō), adj.

tet'ra·chlo'ro·eth'ane (-klō'rō·ĕth'ān), tet'ra·chlor·eth'ane (-klōr·ĕth'ān), n. Chem. Either of two tetrachloro derivatives of ethane, $CHCl_2CHCl_2$ and CH_3ClCCl_3. The former, or symmetrical form, is called also acetylene tetrachloride. It is a colorless liquid formed by the union of acetylene and chlorine and is used as a solvent. Its vapor is poisonous.

tet'ra·chlo'ro·eth'yl·ene (-klō'rō·ĕth'ĭ·lēn), tet'ra·chlor·eth'yl·ene (-klōr·ĕth'ĭ·lēn), n. [tetrachloro- + ethylene.] Chem. A heavy mobile liquid, C_2Cl_4, obtained by passing hexachloroethane vapors through a red-hot tube, and otherwise; — called also perchloroethylene and carbon dichloride. It is used as a cleaning agent and as an anthelmintic.

tet'ra·chlo'ro·meth'ane (-klō'rō·mĕth'ān), tet'ra·chlor·meth'ane (-klōr·mĕth'ān), n. Carbon tetrachloride.

tet'ra·chord (tĕt'rȧ·kôrd), n. [Gr. tetrachordon, fr. tetrachordos four-stringed, fr. tetra- + chordē a chord. See TETRA-; CHORD, CORD.] Music. a An instrument with four strings. b A diatonic series of four tones, with an interval of a perfect fourth between the first and last. In Greek music three standard tetrachords were distinguished by the position of the half step in the series:

Dorian (half step lowest) Phrygian (" middle) Lydian (" highest)

Two successive tetrachords are conjunct when the lowest tone of one is the highest of the other; they are disjunct when those tones are one step apart. See 1st MODE, 7 (1). The chromatic tetrachord and the enharmonic tetrachord, also recognized by the Greeks, had their intervals as follows: the chromatic: semitone, semitone, minor third; the enharmonic: quarter tone, quarter tone, major third. The tetrachord was the unit of analysis in ancient

The Greek Tetrachords with Names of the Notes (or of the Lyre Strings), and with their relations shown on a Modern Staff.

Greek music, as the hexachord was in medieval and the octave is in modern. c The interval of a perfect fourth.

tet'ra·chor'dal (-kôr'dăl; -d'l), adj. Of or pertaining to a tetrachord; consisting of tetrachords; as, the tetrachordal system, an early form of the tonic sol-fa system.

tet'ra·chor'don (tĕt'rȧ·kôr'dŏn), n. [Gr. See TETRACHORD.] Music. A keyboard instrument in which the digitals press strings against a revolving cylinder of rosined India rubber to produce tones.

tet'ra·cho'ric (-kō'rĭk), adj. [tetra- + chori- + -ic.] Statistics. Of, pertaining to, or designating a method of correlation between variables which do not admit of exact measurement. When each variable admits only two categories, as tall and short, a fourfold table is involved.

tet'ra·chot'o·mous (-kŏt'ō·mŭs), adj. [Gr. tetracha in four parts + temnein to cut.] Bot. & Zool. Having a division by fours; separated into fours.

tet'ra·chro·mat'ic (-krō·măt'ĭk), adj. [tetra- + chromatic.] a Having four colors. b Dependent upon or sensitive to four primary colors. See COLOR, n., 2.

te·trac'id (tē·trăs'ĭd), adj. [tetr- + acid.] Chem. a Able to react with four molecules of a monoacid, or two of a diacid, to form a salt or ester; — said of bases and alcohols. b Having four hydrogen atoms replaceable by basic atoms or radicals; — said of acids.

☞ Some authorities disapprove the use of tetracid in sense a.

te·trac'id, n. Chem. An acid having four acid hydrogen atoms; a tetracid acid.

tet'ra·coc'cus (tĕt'rȧ·kŏk'ŭs), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + -coccus.] Bacteriol. Any micrococcus occurring in square groups of four.

tet'ra·co'lon (-kō'lŏn), n. [L., fr. Gr. tetrakōlon, neut., with four members.] Gr. & Lat. Pros. A period of four cola. — tet'ra·col'ic (-kŏl'ĭk), adj.

tet'ra·cor'al (tĕt'rȧ·kôr'ăl), n. One of the Tetracoralla.

Tet'ra·co·ral'la (tĕt'rȧ·kō·răl'ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TETRA-; CORALLUM.] Paleontol. In many classifications, a subclass or other group of Paleozoic corals in which the septa, when present, are usually in multiples of four; — called also Rugosa. Many of them were of solitary habit. Some reached a large size. — tet'ra·cor'al·line (-kôr'ȧ·lĭn; -līn), adj.

tet'ra·co·sane' (tĕt'rȧ·kō·sān'), n. [tetra- + Gr. eikosi twenty.] Chem. A solid hydrocarbon, $C_{24}H_{50}$, of the paraffin series; specif., the normal variety (melting at 54° C.).

tet'ract (tĕt'răkt), n. [tetr- + Gr. aktis, aktinos, ray.] Zool. A four-rayed sponge spicule. — adj. Four-rayed; tetractinal.

te·trac'ti·nal (tē·trăk'tĭ·năl; tĕt'răk·tĭ'năl), te·trac'tine (tē·trăk'tĭn; -tīn), adj. Zool. Designating spicules with four rays.

Te·trac'ti·nel'li·da (tē·trăk'tĭ·nĕl'ĭ·dȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. tetr- + Gr. aktis, -inos, ray, spoke.] Zool. A division (usually an order) of siliceous sponges typically having the skeleton formed in part of four-rayed (tetraxon or triaene) spicules. With related forms it constitutes a division, Tet'rax·on'i·da (tĕt'răks·ŏn'ĭ·dȧ), of the Demospongiae. — te·trac'ti·nel'lid (tē·trăk'tĭ·nĕl'ĭd), adj. & n. — te·trac'ti·nel'li·dan (-ĭ·dăn), adj., — te·trac'ti·nel'line (-ĭn; -īn), adj.

te·trac'ti·nose (tē·trăk'tĭ·nōs), adj. [See TETRACT.] Tetractinal.

te·trac'tys (-tĭs), n. [Gr. tetraktys.] A group of four; specif., ten as the sum of one, two, three, and four. Obs.

tet'ra·cy'clic (tĕt'rȧ·sī'klĭk; -sĭk'lĭk), adj. a Bot. Having four cycles or whorls. b Chem. Pertaining to, or containing, four atomic rings.

tet'ra·cy'clo- (-sī'klō-; -sĭk'lō-). A combining form meaning tetracyclic.

tet'rad (tĕt'răd), n. [Gr. tetras, -ados.] 1. The number four; a collection of four; a quaternion; specif., Obs., a tetractys.

2. Bot. A group of four cells, commonly arranged in the form of a tetrahedron, and produced by the successive divisions of a mother cell in two planes. The spores of bryophytes and pteridophytes, and the microspores (pollen grains) of spermatophytes, are commonly formed in this way. Among bacteria, certain of the Coccaceae characteristically form tetrads. Cf. SPORE MOTHER CELL.

3. Biol. A grouping of chromosomes of certain organisms by fours in the first meiotic prophase due to precocious longitudinal splitting of paired homologous chromosomes.

4. Chem. A quadrivalent atom, radical, or element.

5. Music. A chord of four tones, as a seventh chord.

tet'rad, adj. Chem. Quadrivalent.

tet'ra·dac'tyl, -tyle (tĕt'rȧ·dăk'tĭl), adj. Zool. Tetradactylous. — n. A tetradactylous animal. — tet'ra·dac·tyl'i·ty (-dăk·tĭl'ĭ·tĭ), tet'ra·dac'ty·ly (-dăk'tĭ·lĭ), n.

tet'ra·dac'ty·lous (-dăk'tĭ·lŭs), adj. [Gr. tetradaktylos, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + daktylos finger, toe.] Zool. Having four digits.

tet'ra·darch'y (tĕt'rȧ·där'kĭ), n. [Gr. tetradarchia.] A tetrarchy.

tetrad difference. Math. & Psychol. The difference between the products of correlation coefficients of four variables, taken in pairs. If a, b, c, and d are the variables, $r_{ab}r_{cd} - r_{ac}r_{bd}$ is a tetrad difference. A value approximating zero for all the tetrad differences for a group of test scores is held to indicate that each is a resultant of two factors: a special factor, which may be different for each test, and a general factor which is the same in all tests of the same individual.

tet'ra·dec'ane (tĕt'rȧ·dĕk'ān), n. [tetra- + decane.] Chem. Any hydrocarbon of the formula $C_{14}H_{30}$, of the paraffin series; specif., the normal variety, a liquid found in petroleum.

tet'ra·dec'yl (-dĕs'ĭl; -dē'sĭl), n. [tetra- + decyl.] Chem. The univalent radical $C_{14}H_{29}$, of which tetradecane is the hydride; specif., the normal variety, $CH_3(CH_2)_{12}CH_2-$.

tetradecyl alcohol. Chem. A higher alcohol, $C_{14}H_{29}OH$, of the methane series; esp., the normal variety, a waxy solid prepared by reduction of myristic aldehyde.

Tet'ra·des'mus (tĕt'rȧ·dĕs'mŭs), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + Gr. desmos band.] Bot. A genus of green algae (family Coelastraceae) segregated from Scenedesmus and comprising forms with coenobia of four cells arranged in one plane.

tet'ra·di'a·pa'son (-dī'ȧ·pā'zŭn; -z'n; -sŭn; -s'n), n. [tetra- + diapason.] Music. The interval of four octaves; a twenty-ninth.

te·trad'ic (tē·trăd'ĭk), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to a tetrad.

2. Chem. Quadrivalent.

Tet'rad·ite (tĕt'rȧ·dīt), n. [See TETRAD.] One accused of holding that there are four persons in God; — an epithet applied to Nestorians, Origenists, and others. See DAMIANIST.

tet'ra·drach'ma (tĕt'rȧ·drăk'mȧ), tet'ra·drachm (tĕt'rȧ·drăm), n. [NL. tetradrachma, fr. Gr. tetradrachmon, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + drachmē drachm, drachma.] 1. Gr. Antiq. A silver coin of the value of four drachmæ.

2. pl. -MAE. See WEIGHT, Table.

— tet'ra·drach'mal (-drăk'măl), adj.

tet'ra·drach'mon (tĕt'rȧ·drăk'mŏn), n. [Gr.] A tetradrachma.

te·trad'y·mite (tē·trăd'ĭ·mīt), n. [Gr. tetradymos fourfold; — from its occurrence in compound twin crystals, or fourlings.] Mineral. A mineral which is essentially a telluride of bismuth, Bi_2Te_3, but sometimes contains sulphur and selenium. It is pale steel-gray, of metallic luster, and usually in foliated masses. H., 1.5–2. Sp. gr., 7.2–7.6. Called also telluric bismuth.

Tet'ra·dy·na'mi·a (tĕt'rȧ·dĭ·nā'mĭ·ȧ; -dī-), n. pl. [NL., fr. tetra- + -dynamia.] Bot. A formerly recognized Linnaean class of tetradynamous plants. — See TETRADYNAMOUS b. tet'ra·dy·na'mi·an (-ăn), adj. — tet'ra·dy·na'mi·ous (-ŭs), adj.

tet'ra·dy'na·mous (-dī'nȧ·mŭs; -dĭn'ȧ·mŭs), adj. Bot. a Obs. Belonging to the Tetradynamia. b Having six stamens, four of which are longer than the others, as in the Brassicaceae.

tet'ra·eth'yl- (tĕt'rȧ·ĕth'ĭl-). Chem. A combining form, tetra- + ethyl, indicating the presence of four ethyl groups in a compound. — tet'ra·eth'yl (-ĭl), adj.

tet'ra·eth'yl lead (-ĕth'ĭl). Chem. A heavy, colorless poisonous liquid, $Pb(C_2H_5)_4$, used as an antiknock agent.

tet'ra·flu'o·ride (tĕt'rȧ·flōō'rō·rīd; -rĭd), n. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with four atoms of fluorine.

te·trag'a·my (tē·trăg'ȧ·mĭ), n. A fourth marriage. Rare.

te·trag'e·nous (-trăj'ē·nŭs), adj. [tetra- + -genous.] Designating bacteria growing in square groups of four.

tet'ra·glot (tĕt'rȧ·glŏt), tet'ra·glot'tic (-glŏt'ĭk), tet'ra·glot'ti·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. [See TETRA-; -GLOT.] Written or printed in four languages; as, a tetraglot dictionary.

tet'ra·gon (tĕt'rȧ·gŏn), n. [LL. tetragonum, fr. Gr. tetragōnon, fr. tetra- four + gōnia corner, angle. See TETRA-; DIAGONAL.] 1. Geom. A (plane) figure having four angles; a quadrangle, as a square, a rhombus, etc.

2. Hence, an edifice, courtyard, park, or the like quadrangular in shape.

3. Astrol. = QUARTILE, n., 2.

— tet'ra·gon, adj.

te·trag'o·nal (tē·trăg'ō·năl), adj. 1. Geom. Of or pertaining to a tetragon; having four angles or sides; as, the parallelogram, square, rhombus, etc., are tetragonal figures.

2. Bot. Having four prominent longitudinal angles.

3. Cryst. Designating, or belonging to, a system (tetragonal system) having all three axes at right angles and the two lateral axes equal. See CRYSTALLIZATION.

— te·trag'o·nal·ly, adv. — te·trag'o·nal·ness, n.

Tet'ra·go'ni·a (tĕt'rȧ·gō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tetragōn a spindle tree, fr. tetragōnos square.] Bot. A genus of fleshy herbs or undershrubs (family Aizoaceae) of wide distribution having yellow or reddish apetalous flowers, and a winged or quadrangular nut or drupe. T. expansa is the New Zealand spinach.

tet'ra·go·nid'i·um (-gō·nĭd'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Bot. A tetraspore.

te·trag'o·nous (tē·trăg'ō·nŭs), adj. Tetragonal.

tet'ra·gram (tĕt'rȧ·grăm), n. [Gr. tetragrammon. See TETRA-; -GRAM.] 1. A word of four letters; specif. [often cap.], the tetragrammaton.

2. Geom. A quadrilateral; esp., a complete quadrilateral.

— tet'ra·gram·mat'ic (-grȧ·măt'ĭk), adj.

Tet'ra·gram'ma·ton (-grăm'ȧ·tŏn), n. [sometimes not cap.] [NL., fr. Gr. tetragrammaton, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + gramma a letter.] The four consonants forming the Hebrew "incommunicable name" of the Supreme Being, which in later Jewish tradition is not pronounced save with the vowels of Adonai or Elohim, so that the true pronunciation is lost. The four consonants are variously written IHVH, JHVH, JHWH, YHVH, YHWH. Numerous attempts have been made to represent the supposed original form, as Jahaveh, Jahvah, Jahve, Jahveh, Yahve, Yahveh, Yahwe, Yahweh, etc. See ADONAI, JEHOVAH, YAHWEH. — tet'ra·gram'ma·ton'ic (-tŏn'ĭk), adj.

Tet'ra·gyn'i·a (-jĭn'ĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. tetra- + -gynia.] Bot. A disused Linnaean order of plants including those with four styles or pistils. — tet'ra·gyn (tĕt'rȧ·jĭn), n. — tet'ra·gyn'i·an (-jĭn'ĭ·ăn), adj.

te·trag'y·nous (tē·trăj'ĭ·nŭs), adj. Bot. a Obs. Of the order Tetragynia. b Having a gynoecium with four carpels.

tet'ra·he'dral (tĕt'rȧ·hē'drăl), adj. [See TETRAHEDRON.] 1. Pert. to a tetrahedron; having, or made up of, four sides.

2. Cryst. a Having the form of the regular tetrahedron. b Pertaining or related to a tetrahedron, or to the system of hemihedral forms to which the tetrahedron belongs.

tetrahedral angle. Math. A solid angle bounded or enclosed by four planes meeting at the vertex of the angle.

tetrahedral complex. Math. The quadratic complex of all lines that cut the four faces of a tetrahedron in a constant cross ratio. Its equation is of the form $ap_{12}p_{34} + bp_{31}p_{24} + cp_{13}p_{34} = 0$ where p_{23}, etc., are the Plücker coordinates of any line and a, b, c are constants.

tetrahedral co-ordinates. See 3d CO-ORDINATE, 2.

tetrahedral group. a Math. The group of the 12 even permutations of 4 things. They represent the 12 rotations, including the zero rotation, that send a regular tetrahedron into itself. b Cryst. See SYMMETRY, 3.

tetrahedral hypothesis. Geol. The hypothesis which postulates that the assumed original spherical form (giving a minimum surface for a given volume) of the earth tended to develop into a tetrahedron (giving a maximum surface for a given volume) as the earth shrank, with the continents as the edges and the ocean basins as the sides.

tetrahedral kite. A box kite of one or more tetrahedral cells open on two sides, invented by Alexander Graham Bell.

tetrahedral numbers. Math. = PENTAGONAL NUMBERS.

tet'ra·he'dric (tĕt'rȧ·hē'drĭk), adj. Also tet'ra·he'dri·cal (-drĭ·kăl). Tetrahedral.

tet'ra·he'drite (-drīt), n. [From TETRAHEDRON.] Mineral. A fine-grained gray mineral of metallic luster, composed essentially of copper, antimony, and sulphur, Cu_3SbS_3, but often containing also arsenic and iron, zinc, lead, mercury, or silver. It occurs in characteristic tetrahedral crystals and also in massive form. It is often a valuable ore of silver and is also worked for copper. H., 3–4. Sp. gr., 4.4–5.1.

tet'ra·he'droid (-droid), n. [tetrahedron + -oid.] Geom. A quartic surface, the envelope of all quadrics that touch 8 fixed lines. The 16 double points lie in fours on the faces of a tetrahedron forming on each face a complete quadrilateral of which the three vertices of the tetrahedron which te·trach'ro·nous (tē·trăk'rō·nŭs), adj. [Gr. tetrachronos, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + chronos time.] Pros. = TETRASEMIC.

---

tet'ra·cord. Tetrachord. Ref. Sp.

tet'ra·dec'a·no'ic (tĕt'rȧ·dĕk'ȧ·nō'ĭk), adj. [tetradecane + -oic.] = MYRISTIC.

Tet'ra·de·cap'o·da (-dē·kăp'ō·dȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TETRA-; DECAPODA.] Syn. of ARTHROSTRACA. — tet'ra·dec'a·pod (-dĕk'ȧ·pŏd), adj. & n. — -de·cap'o·dan (-dē·kăp'ō·dăn), adj. & n. — -de·cap'o·dous (-dŭs), adj.

tet'ra·e'dron, tet'ra·e'drum, n. = TETRAHEDRON.

tet'ra·eth'yl·sil'ane (tĕt'rȧ·ĕth'ĭl·sĭl'ān), n. [tetraethyl- + silane.] Chem. = SILICON TETRAETHYL.

tetragonal scalenohedron, trisoctahedron, tristetrahedron. Cryst. See SCALENOHEDRON, TRISOCTAHEDRON, TRISTETRAHEDRON.

Tet'ra·go'ni·a'ce·ae (tĕt'rȧ·gō'nĭ·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of AIZOACEAE. [PLATYSMA.]

tet'ra·go'nus (-gō'nŭs), n.

tet'ra·he'dra, n., pl. of TETRAHEDRON.

tet'ra·he'dral·ly, adv. of TETRAHEDRAL.

tetrahedrite type. See SYMMETRY, 3.

N O P Q R S T

lie in that face are the diagonal points. The singular surface of a harmonic complex is also called a tetrahedroid. — adj. Resembling a tetrahedron.

tet'ra·he'dron (tĕt'rȧ·hē'drŭn), n.; pl. -HEDRONS (-drŭnz), -HEDRA (-drȧ). [NL., fr. LGr. tetraedros with four sides, fr. tetra- four + hedra seat, base, side. See TETRA-; SIT.] Geom. A polyhedron of four faces. In crystallography, it is taken as the hemihedral form of the regular octahedron. In an orthogonal tetrahedron, each pair of opposite edges consists of two lines at right angles to one another. In a polar tetrahedron (of a given quadric surface), each of the faces is the polar plane of the opposite vertex with respect to the quadric. In a polar tetrahedron (of a space polarity), each face corresponds to the opposite vertex in the given polarity. The volume of a tetrahedron may be found by multiplying one third the area of its base by its altitude.

Tetrahedron.

tet'ra·hex'a·he'dron (tĕt'rȧ·hĕk'sȧ·hē'drŭn), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + hexahedron.] Cryst. A form of the isometric system, bounded by twenty-four equal triangular faces, four to each face of the cube. — tet'ra·hex'a·he'dral (-drăl), adj.

Tetrahexahedron.

tet'ra·hy'drate (-hī'drāt), n. [tetra- + hydrate.] Chem. A compound with four molecules of water. — tet'ra·hy'drat·ed (-drāt·ĕd; -ĭd), adj.

tet'ra·hy'dric (-drĭk), adj. [tetra- + hydric.] Chem. Containing four hydroxyl groups.

tet'ra·hy'dride (-drīd; -drĭd; 157), n. Also -drid. [tetra- + hydride.] Chem. A compound of an element or radical with four atoms of hydrogen.

tet'ra·hy'dro- (tĕt'rȧ·hī'drō-). Chem. A combining form, tetra- + hydro-, denoting combination with four hydrogen atoms. — tet'ra·hy'dro (-drō), adj.

tet'ra·hy·drox'y- (-hī·drŏk'sĭ-). Chem. A combining form, tetra- + hydroxy-, denoting the presence of four hydroxyl groups, esp. replacing hydrogen. — tet'ra·hy·drox'y (-sĭ), adj.

tet'ra·i·o'do- (-ī·ō'dō-; -ī·ŏd'ō-). Chem. A combining form, tetra- + iodo-, denoting the presence of four iodine atoms, esp. replacing hydrogen. — tet'ra·i·o'do (-dō; -ō), adj.

tet'ra·i·o'do·phe'nol·phthal'ein (-fē'nōl·thăl'ĭn; -fthăl'ē·ĭn; -fē'nōl-), n. [tetraiodo- + phenolphthalein.] Pharm. A dibasic dye, the sodium salt of which (tetraiodophenolphthalein sodium) is used in X-ray examination of the gall bladder.

tet'ra·kai·dec'a·he'dron (tĕt'rȧ·kī·dĕk'ȧ·hē'drŏn), n, [NL., fr. Gr. tetrakaideka fourteen + hedra base, side-seat.] Math. A fourteen-sided figure having six quadrilateral and eight hexagonal faces.

tet'ra·ke'tone (-kē'tōn), n. [tetra- + ketone.] Chem. A compound containing four ketone groups.

tet'ra·kis- (tĕt'rȧ·kĭs-). Chem. A combining form, Greek tetrakis-, from tetrakis, meaning four times; — used esp. in complex expressions, as, a tet'ra·kis·az'o compound (one containing four azo groups). — tet'ra·kis (-kĭs), adj.

tet'ra·kis·hex'a·he'dron (-hĕk'sȧ·hē'drŭn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tetrakis four times + hexahedron.] Cryst. A tetrahexahedron.

tet'ra·lem'ma (-lĕm'ȧ), n. [tetra- + dilemma.] Logic. An argument analogous to a dilemma but presenting four alternatives in the premises.

Tet'ra·lin (tĕt'rȧ·lĭn), n. Also -line (-lĭn; -lēn). [tetra- + -yl + -in (-ine).] Chem. a A trade-mark for oils and greases, applied to: A colorless oil, $C_{10}H_{18}$, obtained by the addition of hydrogen to naphthalene in presence of a catalyst; 1,2,3,4-tetrahydro-naphthalene. It is used as a solvent, fuel, lubricant, etc.; also [sometimes not cap.], the oil bearing this trade-mark. b Less commonly, a tetrachloroethane.

tet'ra·logue (tĕt'rȧ·lŏg; 185), n. [tetra- + dialogue.] Rare. a A dialogue of four persons. b = TETRALOGY.

te·tral'o·gy (tē·trăl'ō·jĭ), n.; pl. -GIES (-jĭz). [Gr. tetralogia. See TETRA-; -LOGIA.] 1. Gr. Drama. A group or series of four dramatic pieces, three tragedies and one satyric, or comic, piece, or sometimes of four tragedies, represented consecutively on the Attic stage at the Dionysiac festival.

2. Hence, any series of four connected works, as dramas, operas, etc., as Wagner's Ring of the Nibelung. — tet'ra·log'ic (tĕt'rȧ·lŏj'ĭk), adj.

tet'ra·lo'pho·dont (tĕt'rȧ·lō'fō·dŏnt; -lŏf'ō-), adj. [tetra- + loph- + -odont.] Designating, or having, molar teeth with four crests or ridges.

tet'ra·mas'ti·a (-măs'tĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + -mastia.] Anat. A condition characterized by the presence of four mammary glands or nipples.

te·tram'er·al (tē·trăm'ĕr·ăl), adj. Also te·tram'er·a'li·an (-ā'lĭ·ăn), tet'ra·mer'ic (tĕt'rȧ·mĕr'ĭk). Tetramerous.

te·tram'er·ism (tē·trăm'ĕr·ĭz'm), n. State or quality of being tetramerous.

te·tram'er·ous (-ŭs), adj. [tetra- + -merous.] 1. Having, or characterized by the presence of, four parts; specif.: Bot. Having the parts arranged in sets of four or multiples of four: — often written 4-merous.

2. Zool. Having four (or apparently only four) joints in each of the tarsi; pertaining to the Tetramera.

Tetramerous Flower.

te·tram'e·ter (-ē·tĕr), adj. [LL. tetrametrus, fr. Gr. tetrametron, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + metron a measure.] Pros. Consisting of four measures, either four dipodies (eight feet), as in ancient iambic, trochaic, and anapaestic verse, or four feet, as in modern verse. — n. A verse or line of four feet or dipodies.

tet'ra·meth'yl- (tĕt'rȧ·mĕth'ĭl-). Chem. Comb. form, tetra- + methyl-, denoting the presence of four methyl groups, esp. replacing hydrogen. — tet'ra·meth'yl (-ĭl), adj.

tet'ra·meth'yl·am·mo'ni·um (-ă·mō'nĭ·ŭm), n. [tetramethyl- + ammonium.] Chem. A univalent radical, $(CH_3)_4N$, regarded as ammonium in which all four hydrogen atoms have been replaced by methyl groups. The hydroxide, which has been found as a toxin in the sea anemone Actinia equina, is a strong base forming crystalline hydrates; it is called tetramine.

tetramethyl base. Anal. Chem. A crystalline compound, $C_{17}H_{22}N_2$, prepared artificially; tetramethyl-diamino-diphenyl-methane. It is used as a test for ozone, with which it gives a pale-violet color.

tet'ra·meth'yl·ene (tĕt'rȧ·mĕth'ĭ·lēn), n. [tetra- + methylene.] Chem. a A bivalent radical, $-CH_2CH_2CH_2CH_2-$. b Cyclobutane.

tet'ra·mine' (tĕt'rȧ·mēn'; tĕ·trăm'ĭn; 157), n. Also -in. [tetr- + amine.] Chem. a A compound containing four amino groups. b See TETRAMETHYLAMMONIUM.

tet'ra·morph (tĕt'rȧ·môrf), n. [Gr. tetramorphon, fr. tetramorphos four-shaped. See TETRA-; -MORPH.] Christian Art. The union of the four attributes of the Evangelists in a winged figure (evidently suggested by the vision of Ezekiel (ch. i.) standing on winged fiery wheels, the wings covered with eyes. — tet'ra·mor'phic (-môr'fĭk), adj.

tet'ra·mor'phism (-môr'fĭz'm), n. [tetra- + -morphism.] Cryst. The property of crystallizing in four distinct forms.

tet'ra·mor'phous (-fŭs), adj. [tetra- + -morphous.] Pertaining to, or characterized by, tetramorphism.

Te·tran'dri·a (tē·trăn'drĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. tetr- + -andria.] Bot. A disused Linnaean class of plants including those with four stamens. — te·tran'der (-dĕr), n. — te·tran'dri·an (-drĭ·ăn), adj.

te·tran'drous (-drŭs), adj. Bot. a Obs. Belonging to the Tetrandria. b Having four stamens.

tet'rane (tĕt'rān), n. [tetra- + 1st -ane, 1 a.] Chem. Butane, the fourth member of the methane series. Rare.

tet'ra·ni'trate (tĕt'rȧ·nī'trāt), n. A compound having four nitrate groups (NO_3) in the molecule.

tet'ra·ni'tro- (-nī'trō-). Chem. A combining form, tetra- + nitro-, denoting the presence of four nitro groups. — tet'ra·ni'tro (-trō), adj.

tet'ra·ni'tro·an'i·line (-ăn'ĭ·lĭn; -lĭn; -lēn) n. [tetranitro- + aniline.] Chem. A powerful explosive, $C_6H(NO_2)_4NH_2$, obtained as a yellow crystalline solid by nitrating aniline. Abbr. T.N.A.

Te·tran'y·chus (tē·trăn'ĭ·kŭs), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + -onychus.] Zool. A genus of mites allied to Trombidium. See RED SPIDER.

Tet'ra·o·don'ti·dae (tĕt'rȧ·ō·dŏn'tĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. tetra- + -odont + -idae.] Zool. A family of globefishes, or puffers, in which each jaw is divided by a median suture.

Te·tra'o·don (tē·trā'ō·dŏn), Lagocephalus, and Sphoeroides are important genera. — te·tra'o·dont (-dŏnt), adj. & n.

Tet'ra·on'i·dae (tĕt'rȧ·ŏn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. tetrao a heath cock, grouse (fr. Gr. tetraōn) + -idae.] Zool. A variously limited family of birds (order Galliformes) often restricted to the various kinds of grouse (equiv. to Tetraoninae), most of which have the tarsus and nostrils feathered, or including also partridges and quails. Tet'ra·o (tĕt'rȧ·ō), now restricted to the capercaillie and close allies, is the type genus. — te·tra'o·nid (tē·trā'ō·nĭd), adj. & n.

Tet'ra·o·ni'nae (tĕt'rȧ·ō·nī'nē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A subfamily consisting of the grouse, ptarmigans, and their allies. See TETRAONIDAE. — te·tra'o·nine (tē·trā'ō·nīn; -nĭn), adj.

Te·trap'a·nax (tē·trăp'ȧ·năks), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + Gr. panax a certain plant. See OPOPANAX.] Bot. A genus of Asiatic shrubs or trees (family Araliaceae) having as the only known species T. papyriferum, the rice-paper tree.

tet'ra·pet'al·ous (tĕt'rȧ·pĕt'ăl·ŭs), adj. [tetra- + -petalous.] Bot. Having four petals.

tet'ra·phar'ma·con (-fär'mȧ·kŏn), n. [NL. tetrapharmacon, LL. tetrapharmacum, fr. Gr. tetrapharmakon, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + pharmakon a drug.] Med. A medicine made from four ingredients; esp., an ointment made by compounding wax, resin, lard, and pitch. — tet'ra·phar'ma·cal (-kăl), adj.

tet'ra·phe'nol (-fē'nōl; -nŏl), n. [tetra- + phenol.] Chem. Furan. Now Rare.

te·traph'o·ny (tē·trăf'ō·nĭ), n. [tetra- + -phony.] Medieval Music. Four-part diaphony.

tet'ra·phos'phate (tĕt'rȧ·fŏs'fāt), n. [tetra- + phosphate.] 1. Chem. A salt of tet'ra·phos·phor'ic ac'id (-fŏs·fôr'ĭk), $H_6P_4O_{13}$.

2. A fertilizer made by heating ground phosphate rock with calcium, magnesium, and sodium carbonates.

tet'ra·pla (tĕt'rȧ·plȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tetraploos, tetraplous, fourfold.] Any polyglot book with four texts in parallel columns; specif. [cap.], a portion of the Old Testament consisting of four different Greek versions arranged in four columns by Origen.

tet'ra·ple'gi·a (-plē'jĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + -plegia.] Med. Paralysis both of the arms and the legs.

tet'ra·pleu'ron (-plōōr'ŏn), n. [Gr.] A square pillar. Rare.

tet'ra·ploid (tĕt'rȧ·ploid), adj. [tetra- + -ploid.] Biol. Fourfold in appearance or arrangement; specif., Biol., having four times the basic chromosome number, that is, twice the diploid number, as certain cells. Cf. DIPLOID, TRIPLOID. — tet'ra·ploi'dic (-ploi'dĭk), adj. — tet'ra·ploi'dy (tĕt'rȧ·ploi'dĭ), n.

tet'ra·ploid, n. Biol. A tetraploid cell; hence, an individual, generation, etc., characterized by the tetraploid chromosome number.

tet'ra·plous (tĕt'rȧ·plŭs), adj. [Gr.] Fourfold. Rare.

Tet'ra·pneu'mo·nes (tĕt'răp·nū'mō·nēz), n. pl. [NL. See TETRA-; PNEUMO-.] Zool. A division of Arachnida including those spiders with four lungs; — practically equivalent to the Aviculariomorphae. Syn. Tet'ra·pneu'mo·na (-nȧ). — te·trap'neu·mo'ni·an (tē·trăp'nū·mō'nĭ·ăn), n. — tet'ra·pneu'mo·nous (tĕt'răp·nū'mō·nŭs), adj.

tet'ra·pod (tĕt'rȧ·pŏd), te·trap'o·dous (tē·trăp'ō·dŭs), adj. [Gr. four-footed, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + pous, podos, foot tetrapous.] Having four feet; specif., pertaining to the Tetrapoda. — tet'ra·pod, n.

Te·trap'o·da (tē·trăp'ō·dȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TETRA-; -PODA.] Zool. a A division of vertebrates including all forms above fishes. b A division of butterflies including those with only two pairs of perfect legs.

te·trap'o·dy (-dĭ), n. [Gr. tetrapodia.] Pros. A verse or group of four feet. — tet'ra·pod'ic (tĕt'rȧ·pŏd'ĭk), adj.

tet'ra·po'lar (tĕt'rȧ·pō'lĕr), adj. [tetra- + polar.] Biol. Having four poles, as in certain abnormal mitotic figures.

tet·rap'o·lis (tē·trăp'ō·lĭs), n. [Gr., prop., adj., having four cities, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + polis city.] A group or federation of four cities or towns; also, a district with such a group.

tet'ra·pol'i·tan (tĕt'rȧ·pŏl'ĭ·tăn), adj. Of or pertaining to a tetrapolis or group of four cities.

Tetrapolitan Confession. Eccl. Hist. A confession of faith prepared by Martin Bucer and W. F. Capito and submitted to the Diet of Augsburg (1530) in the name of the towns of Strassburg (Strasbourg), Constance, Lindau, and Memmingen, denying any physical or corporeal presence of Christ in the Eucharist, while admitting a spiritual one.

tet'ra·pous (tĕt'rȧ·pŭs), adj. [Gr. See TETRAPOD.] Having four feet.

tet'ra·pro'style (tĕt'rȧ·prō'stīl), adj. [tetra- + prostyle] Having a portico of four columns in front only.

te·trap'ter·an (tē·trăp'tĕr·ăn), adj. [See TETRAPTEROUS.] Zool. Having four wings; — said of insects.

te·trap'ter·on (-ŏn), n. [Gr. tetrapteros four-winged. See TETRA-; -PTEROUS.] Zool. A four-winged insect.

te·trap'ter·ous (-ŭs), adj. [Gr. tetrapteros, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + pteron wing.] Biol. Having four wings.

tet'rap·tote (tĕt'răp·tōt), n. [LL. tetraptota, pl., fr. Gr. tetraptōta, tetraptōtos. See TETRA-; DIPTOTE. Cf. PENTAPTOTE.] Gram. A noun that has four cases only.

Tet'rap·tu'rus (-tū'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + Gr. pteron wing, fin + oura tail.] Zool. The genus to which the spearfishes belong.

te·trap'tych (tē·trăp'tĭk), n. [tetra- + Gr. ptychē a fold.] An arrangement of pictures in four parts, as for an altar-piece.

tet'ra·py'lon (tĕt'rȧ·pī'lŏn), n. [Gr.] An edifice having four gates or portals.

tet'ra·pyr'a·mid (tĕt'rȧ·pĭr'ȧ·mĭd), n. Cryst. A pyramid in the triclinic system having two parallel faces, i.e., one fourth as many as belong to a pyramid (double pyramid) in the orthorhombic system.

tet'ra·py·re'nous (-pī·rē'nŭs), adj. [tetra- + 2d pyrene.] Bot. Having four stones, as certain fruits.

tet'ra·que'trous (-kwē'trŭs), adj. [tetra- + -quetrous as in triquetrous.] Bot. Having four sharp angles, as some stems.

te·trarch (tē'trärk; tĕt'rärk; 277), n. [LL. tetrarcha, L. tetrarches, fr. Gr. tetrarchēs, tetrarchos, fr. tetra- + archos ruler. See TETRA-; -ARCH.] a Class. Antiq. A governor of the fourth part of a province, as in the Roman Empire; also, a subordinate prince or petty king. b Any one of four officials or directors jointly in control.

te·trarch (tē'trärk; tĕt'rärk), adj. [Also 2d TETRARCHY.] Having four xylems, strands, or groups, as certain roots.

te·trarch·ate (tē'trär·kāt; tĕt'rär-), n. A tetrarchy.

te·trar'chic (tē·trär'kĭk), te·trar'chi·cal (-kĭ·kăl), adj. Of or pertaining to a tetrarchy or a tetrarch.

te·trarch·y (tē'trär·kĭ; tĕt'rär-; 277), n.; pl. -TRARCHIES (-kĭz). [L. tetrarchia, fr. Gr. tetrarchia.] 1. The district, office, or jurisdiction of a tetrarch.

2. Rule by four persons jointly; also, the four rulers taken together.

te·trarch·y, n. [tetr- + Gr. archē beginning.] State or condition of having four xylems, strands, or groups, as certain roots.

tet'ra·sac'cha·ride (tĕt'rȧ·săk'ȧ·rīd; -rĭd; 157), n. Also -rid. [tetra- + saccharide.] Chem. Any carbohydrate, as stachyose, yielding on complete hydrolysis four monosaccharide molecules. See SUGAR, n., 2.

tet'ra·se·le'no·dont (-sē·lē'nō·dŏnt), adj. [tetra- + selenodont.] Having, or designating, molar teeth with four crescentric crests or ridges.

tet'ra·seme (tĕt'rȧ·sēm), n. A tetrasemic foot, as a tetrabrach or a spondee.

tet'ra·se'mic (-sē'mĭk), tet'ra·seme, adj. [LL. tetrasemus, fr. Gr. tetrasēmos, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + sēma sign.] Gr. & Lat. Pros. Consisting of, or of the length of, four morae, as the dactyl, anapaest, and spondee.

tet'ra·skel'i·on (-skĕl'ĭ·ŏn), tet'ra·skele (tĕt'rȧ·skēl), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tetraskelēs four-legged, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + skelos leg.] A figure resembling a triskelion, but having four arms or rays, as the swastika. Cf. TRISKELION. See SWASTIKA, Illust.

tet'ra·spher'ic (-sfĕr'ĭk), tet'ra·spher'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Math. Pertaining to four spheres.

tet'ra·spo·range' (-spō·rănj'), n. Bot. A tetrasporangium.

tet'ra·spo·ran'gi·um (-spō·răn'jĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Bot. A sporangium producing tetraspores. — -gi·ate (-āt), adj.

tet'ra·spore (tĕt'rȧ·spōr; 181), n. [tetra- + -spore.] Bot. In the red algae (Rhodophyceae), one of the asexual nonmotile spores or gonidia commonly produced in groups of four by the tetrasporangia. — tet'ra·spor'ic (-spŏr'ĭk), adj. — te·tras'po·rous (tē·trăs'pō·rŭs; tĕt'rȧ·spō'rŭs), adj.

tet'ra·spo·rif'er·ous (-spō·rĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [See -IFEROUS.] Bot. Bearing tetraspores.

te·tras'ter (tē·trăs'tĕr), n. [NL., fr. tetr- + 1st -aster.] Biol. A mitotic figure characterized by four astral poles instead of the more usual two. In embryology this condition usually results from abnormal polyspermy.

tet'ra·stich (tĕt'rȧ·stĭk; tĕt'răs'tĭk), n. [L. tetrastichon, fr. Gr. tetrastichon, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + stichos a row, verse.] A stanza, epigram, or poem, consisting of four verses or lines. — te·tras'ti·chal (tē·trăs'tĭ·kăl), tet'ra·stich'ic (tĕt'rȧ·stĭk'ĭk), adj.

te·tras'ti·chous (tē·trăs'tĭ·kŭs), adj. [Gr. tetrastichos. See TETRASTICH.] Bot. Four-ranked; — said esp. of flowers arranged in a spike in four vertical rows.

Te·tras'ti·chus (-kŭs), n. [NL., fr. tetra- + Gr. stichos a line.] Zool. A genus of minute chalcid flies, sometimes made the type of a family, Tet'ra·stich'i·dae (tĕt'rȧ·stĭk'ĭ·dē). It contains numerous hyperparasitic species.

te·tras'to·on (tē·trăs'tō·ŏn), n. [Gr. See TETRA-; STOA.] Class. Arch. A courtyard enclosed by four porticoes.

tet'ra·style (tĕt'rȧ·stīl), adj. & n. [L. tetrastylon, fr. Gr. tetrastylos with four pillars in front, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + stylos a column.] Arch. See COLUMNIATION, b & d.

tet'ra·sty'lic (-stī'lĭk), adj. [tetra- + style + -ic.] Having four styles.

tet'ra·sty'los (-stī'lŏs), n. [NL.] A tetrastyle building. See COLUMNIATION d.

tet'ra·sty'lous (-lŭs), adj. Tetrastylic.

tet'ra·sub'sti·tu'tion (-sŭb'stĭ·tū'shŭn), n. [tetra- + substitution.] Chem. Fourfold substitution; substitution of four atoms or groups. — tet'ra·sub'sti·tut'ed (-sŭb'stĭ·tūt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj.

tet'ra·sul'phide (-sŭl'fīd; -fĭd), n. [tetra- + sulphide.] Also -fide, -phid, -fid. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with four atoms of sulphur.

tet'ra·syl·lab'ic (-sĭ·lăb'ĭk), tet'ra·syl·lab'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Having four syllables.

tet'ra·syl'la·ble (-sĭl'ȧ·b'l), n. A word having four syllables.

tet'ra·sym'me·try (-sĭm'ĕ·trĭ), n. Fourfold symmetry.

tet'ra·the·ism (tĕt'rȧ·thē·ĭz'm), n. [tetra- + Gr. theos god.] Theol. The doctrine that there are three "persons" in the Godhead and a "divine essence," the common origin of the three, interpreted as meaning belief in four Gods. — tet'ra·the·ite (-īt), n.

tet'ra·thi·on'ic (-thī·ŏn'ĭk), adj. [tetra- + thionic.] Chem. Designating, or pertaining to, an unstable acid, $H_2S_4O_6$, known in solution, and in its salts, the tet'ra·thi'o·nates (-thī'ō·nāts), formed when thiosulphates are treated with iodine. See THIONIC ACID a.

---

tet'ra·i'o·dide (tĕt'rȧ·ī'ō·dīd; -dĭd; 157), n. Also -did. Chem. = TETRAIODIDE.

tet'ra·ko·sane'. Var. of TETRACOSANE.

Te·tram'er·a (tē·trăm'ĕr·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TETRAMEROUS.] Syn. of PSEUDOTETRAMERA.

tet'ra·me·thyl'i·um, n. = TETRAMETHYLAMMONIUM.

te·tram'mine (tē·trăm'ēn; tĕt'rȧ·mēn'). n. Chem. See TETRA-; AMMINE.

tet'ram·mi'no- (tĕt'rȧ·mē'nō-; tē·trăm'ĭ·nō-). A combining form of tetrammine.

tet'ra·nu'cle·ar (tĕt'rȧ·nū'klē·ĕr), adj. [See TETRA-; NUCLEAR.] Chem. = TETRACYCLIC. tet'ra·ox'y-. Chem. Short for TETRAHYDROXY-.

tet'rarc. Tetrarch. Ref. Sp.

tet'ra·sal'i·cyl'ide, n. Chem. See SALICYLIDE a. [TETRASKELE.

tet'ra·scele (tĕt'rȧ·sēl). Var. of tet'ra·tom'ic (tĕt'rȧ·tŏm'ĭk), adj. [tetr- + atomic.] Chem. a Consisting of four atoms; having four atoms in the molecule, as phosphorus and arsenic; — the preferable sense. b Quadrivalent. c Having four replaceable atoms or groups.

tet'ra·tone (tĕt'rȧ·tōn), n. Music. An augmented fifth.

tet'ra·va'lent (-vā'lĕnt; tē·trăv'ȧ-), adj. [tetra- + L. valens, -entis, pres. part.] Chem. Quadrivalent. — tet'ra·va'lence (-lĕns), -va'len·cy (-lĕn·sĭ), n.

te·trax'i·al (tē·trăk'sĭ·ăl), te·trax'ile (-sĭl; -sīl), adj. [tetr- + axile.] Zool. Having four axes.

te·trax'on (-trăk'sŏn), n. [tetr- + Gr. axōn axis.] A tetraxial sponge spicule. — te·trax'on, adj.

tet'ra·zane (tĕt'rȧ·zān), n. [tetr- + az- + -ane.] Chem. A hypothetical compound of nitrogen and hydrogen, $NH_2·NHNHNH_2$, organic derivatives of which are known; — called also buzane, bihydrazine, tetrazone.

tet'ra·zene (-zēn), n. [tetr- + az- + -ene.] Chem. A hypothetical compound of nitrogen and hydrogen, H_2N_2, known in the form of organic derivatives. There are two varieties: 1- or unsymmetrical, NH:N.NHNH$_2$ (called also buzylene), and 2- or symmetrical, $NH_2N:N.NH_2$.

tet'ra·zine (tĕt'rȧ·zēn; -zĭn), n. Also -zin. [tetraz- + -ine.] Chem. Any of three isomeric parent compounds, $C_2H_2N_4$, which may be regarded as benzene with four CH groups replaced by nitrogen atoms; also, any of various derivatives of them. Symmetrical or 1,2,4,5-tetrazine forms very volatile, unstable, purple-red crystals.

te·traz'o- (tĕ·trăz'ō-), tetraz-. Chem. A combining form, tetr- + azo-, denoting: a The presence of four nitrogen atoms, as in disazo compounds. b The presence of four azo groups (-N=N-); — in this case better called tetrakisazo. — te·traz'o (-ō), adj.

tet'ra·zole (tĕt'rȧ·zōl), n. [tetraz- + -ole.] Chem. A crystalline acid compound, CH_2N_4, which may be regarded as pyrrole in which nitrogen atoms replace three CH groups; also, any of various derivatives of the same. Cf. AZOLE.

tet'ra·zo'li·um (tĕt'rȧ·zō'lĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Chem. A basic radical, CH_3N_4, bearing the same relation to tetrazole that ammonium does to ammonia.

te·traz'o·lyl (tĕ·trăz'ō·lĭl), n. [tetrazole + -yl.] Chem. The univalent radical CHN_4, of which tetrazole is the hydride.

tet'ra·zone (tĕt'rȧ·zōn), n. [tetraz- + -one.] Chem. a Tetrazene; specif., 2-tetrazene. b Tetrazane. c Any dihydro keto derivative, $C_2H_2N_4O$, of tetrazine.

te·traz'o·tize (tĕ·trăz'ō·tīz), v. t. [tetr- + azotize.] Chem. To diazotize doubly; to convert into a compound containing two diazo groups. — te·traz'o·ti·za'tion (-tĭ·zā'shŭn; -tī·zā'-), n.

tet're·mim'er·al (tĕt'rē·mĭm'ĕr·ăl), adj. [tetr- + Gr. hemimerēs half.] Pros. Occurring at the close of four half feet; — said esp. of a caesura.

tet're·van·gel'i·um (tĕt'rē·văn·jĕl'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. ML. tetrevangelia, pl. See TETRA-; EVANGEL.] The four Gospels regarded as a single work.

tet'ric (tĕt'rĭk), tet'ri·cal (-rĭ·kăl), adj. [L. tetricus, taetricus, fr. teter, taeter, offensive, foul.] Austere; harsh; gloomy. Now Rare. — tet'ri·cal·ness, n. Obs. — tet·ric'i·ty (tĕt·rĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Rare. — tet'ri·cous (tĕt'rĭ·kŭs), adj. Rare.

Te·trig'i·dae (tē·trĭj'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A family of saltatorial Orthoptera comprising the grouse locusts. They have the pronotum greatly lengthened. — te·trig'id (-trĭj'ĭd), n. & adj.

te·tri'o·dide (tē·trī'ō·dīd; -dĭd; 157), n. [tetr- + iodide.] Also -did. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with four atoms of iodine.

Tet'rix (tĕt'rĭks), n. [NL. Cf. TETTIX.] Zool. A genus (family Tetrigidae) of small, very active, usually dark-colored grouse locusts.

te·tro'bol (tē·trō'bŏl; -trŏb'ŏl), n. Also te·trob'o·lon (-trŏb'ō·lŏn); pl. -LA (-lȧ). [Gr. tetrōbolon. See TETRA-; OBOL.] A silver coin of ancient Greece worth four obols.

tet'rode (tĕt'rōd), n. [tetr- + 2d -ode.] Elec. A form of vacuum tube, as the screen-grid tube, similar to an electron tube except that there are four electrodes instead of three; namely, a heated cathode, an anode, and two additional electrodes.

tet'role (tĕt'rōl), tet'rol (tĕt'rōl; -rŏl), n. [tetra- + benzol.] Chem. A hypothetical hydrocarbon, C_6H_4, analogous to benzene.

te·trol'ic (tē·trŏl'ĭk; -trō'lĭk), adj. Chem. Designating, or pertaining to, a white crystalline acid, $CH_3C{:}C.CO_2H$, of the acetylene series, obtained artificially; methyl-propiolic.

te·tron'ic (tē·trŏn'ĭk), adj. [See TETRA-.] Designating, or pertaining to, an acid, $CO.CH_2CO.CH_2O$, the parent of tetrinic acid (which is its methyl derivative) and other compounds.

te·tron'y·mal (tē·trŏn'ĭ·măl), adj. [tetra- + Gr. onyma name.] Having four names. Rare.

tet'rose (tĕt'rōs), n. [tetr- + -ose.] Chem. a Any of a group of simple sugars, as erythrose, containing four oxygen atoms in the molecule. See MONOSACCHARIDE. b A tetrasaccharide.

te·trox'a·late (tē·trŏk'sȧ·lāt), n. [tetr- + oxalate.] An oxalate having four equivalents of acid to one of the base.

te·trox'ide (tē·trŏk'sīd; -sĭd; 157), n. Also -id. [tetr- + oxide.] A compound of an element or radical with four atoms of oxygen.

tet'ryl (tĕt'rĭl), n. [tetr- + -yl.] 1. Chem. = BUTYL. 2. A pale-yellow crystalline explosive made by nitrating dimethylaniline or methylaniline and used esp. as a detonator. Chemically it is N,2,4,6-tetranitro-methylaniline, $C_6H_2(NO_2)_3N(CH_3)NO_2$.

tet'ter (tĕt'ĕr), n. [AS. teter; akin to OHG. zittaroh, Skr. dadru, dadruka, Lith. dedervinė.] 1. Any of various vesicular skin diseases, as ringworm, eczema, and herpes. 2. A pimple, pustule, or ulcer; a blister. Obs. or Dial.

tet'ter, v. t.; TET'TERED (-ĕrd); TET'TER·ING. To affect with or as with tetter. — v. i. To break out with the tetter; also, to be querulous; to complain.

tetter berry; pl. TETTER BERRIES. The white bryony; also, its berry. Eng.

tet'ter·ous (tĕt'ĕr·ŭs), adj. Like, or pertaining to, tetter.

tet'ter·wort' (-wŭrt'), n. A plant used to cure tetter; specif., in England, the celandine; in America, the bloodroot.

tet'ter·y (tĕt'ĕr·ĭ), adj. Resembling or suggesting tetter; tetterish.

Tet·tig'i·dae (tĕ·tĭj'ĭ·dē), n. pl. Syn. of TETRIGIDAE.

tet'tix (tĕt'ĭks), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tettix a kind of grasshopper.] 1. The cicada. Obs. or Rare. 2. [cap.] Zool. Syn. of TETRIX.

Te'tum (tē'tŏŏn), n. Also Tet'tum. An Indonesian language of Timor island.

Teu'cer (tū'sĕr), n. [L., fr. Gr. Teukros.] Gr. & Rom. Lit. a A son of Scamander and first king of Troy. b A son of Telamon. Telamon refused to receive him on his return from Troy because, although the best archer of the Greeks, he had failed to avenge the death of Ajax, his stepbrother. He became king of Cyprus and founded Salamis.

Teu'cri·an (-krĭ·ăn), adj. Of, or pert. to Teucer, first king of Troy, or to the Trojans, sometimes called Teu'cri (-krī).

teu'crin (tū'krĭn), n. [See TEUCRIUM.] A crystalline glucoside from species of germander (Teucrium).

Teu'cri·um (tū'krĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. teukrion germander.] Bot. A large widely distributed genus of herbs (family Lamiaceae), the germanders, having flowers with four exserted stamens, a short corolla tube, and a prominent lower lip. Several species are ornamental. T. canadense, the American germander, is common in eastern North America. See POLY.

Teu'fels·dröckh, Herr (hĕr toi'fĕlz·drĕk). [G., Mr. Devil's dirt (G. dreck dirt).] An eccentric German philosopher whose imaginary "life and opinions" are given in Carlyle's Sartor Resartus. He is "professor of things in general" in the university in Weissnichtwo [G., I know not where] and expounder of "the philosophy of clothes."

teuk (tūk), n. The redshank. Local, Eng.

teuk (tūk; tük). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of took, past tense of TAKE.

Teu·ta'tes (tū·tā'tēz; Celt. tū'tȧ·tĕs), n. [L., of Celt. origin; cf. OIr. tūath people, tribe. See DUTCH.] A Gaulish divinity, identified by the Romans with Mars or Mercury. See ESUS.

-teu'this (-tū'thĭs). [NL.] Zool. & Paleontol. A combining form from Greek teuthis, a cuttlefish, used in generic names, as in Geo*teuthis.*

Teu'to- (tū'tō-). A combining form from Teuton, denoting: a The Germans; directed toward that which is German, as in the following list.

Teutolatry	Teutophil	Teutophobe
Teutomania	Teutophile	Teutophobia
Teutomaniac	Teutophilism	Teutophobism

b Teutonic and; — in adjectives, as in Teu'to–Brit'ish, Teu'to–Celt', Teu'to–Celt'ic.

Teu'ton (tū'tŏn; -t'n), n. [L. Teutones, Teutoni, of Teut. origin. See DUTCH.] 1. One of the ancient German tribe Teu'to·nes (tū'tō·nēz), who first appear in history as the allies of the Cimbri. It is uncertain whether they were of Teutonic or Celtic origin.

2. A member of the Teutonic race (which see); esp., a person of German nationality.

— Teu'ton, adj.

Teu'ton·esque' (tū'tŏn·ĕsk'), adj. [See -ESQUE.] Resembling or suggesting a Teuton in appearance, character, habits, etc.

Teu·to'ni·a (tū·tō'nĭ·ȧ), n. The country of the Teutons; — a fanciful name.

Teu·ton'ic (tū·tŏn'ĭk), adj. [L. Teutonicus, fr. Teutoni, or Teutones. See TEUTON.] 1. Of or pertaining to the Teutons; designating, or pertaining to, the tall blond race characteristic of northern Europe. See TEUTONIC RACE.

2. Pertaining to, belonging to, or designating, the subfamily of Indo-European languages which includes the Scandinavian, Gothic, and the High and Low German tongues. See INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES; cf. GRIMM'S LAW.

3. Of, pertaining to, or designating an order of Knights. See TEUTONIC KNIGHTS.

Teu·ton'ic, n. The Teutonic languages.

Teu·ton'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv. In the manner or fashion characteristic of a Teuton.

Teu·ton'i·cism (-ĭ·sĭz'm), n. A mode of speech peculiar to the Teutons; a Teutonic idiom, phrase, or expression; also, a Teutonic mode or custom; a Germanism.

Teutonic Knights. Also Teutonic Order. A military and religious order founded at Acre in 1190 as a brotherhood of German crusaders. It became a political rival of the Templars and Hospitalers, exceeding either in its territorial possessions, and winning great power and prestige in its conquest of the heathen Prussians. A branch still exists in Austria as a semireligious knighthood, esp. devoted to the ambulance service.

Teutonic race. One of the most important of the European races, the type being characterized by tall stature, long head and oval face, blue eyes, blond hair and skin, and narrow prominent nose. It is considered by Ripley as probably a variety of the neolithic dolichocephalic race of western Europe (from which also the Mediterranean race in Europe is derived), its distinctive blondness and high stature having been acquired during a long period of isolation in Scandinavia cut off from the Mediterranean branch by the intruding Alpine race. At its appearance in history its habitat comprised most of Germany, the Netherlands, and Scandinavia. In the later years of the Roman Empire and at its breaking up, many Teutonic peoples forced their way into central and southern Europe and even into Africa. Among them were the Burgundians, Goths, Franks, Vandals, Lombards, Angles, Saxons, and Jutes, and later Danes and Norwegians (including the Normans). Hence, central and western Europe received a strong infusion of Teutonic blood, while in English and German colonies the race has spread into most temperate regions. Most of the divisions of the race speak languages of the same family (the Teutonic). Ripley, however, classes as wholly or partly Teuton the Finns and other east Baltic peoples of entirely distinct linguistic affinities.

Teutonic shift. = LAUTVERSCHIEBUNG.

Teu'ton·ism (tū'tŏn·ĭz'm), n. [See -ISM.] 1. Belief in the superiority of the Teutons, esp. of the German race. Cf. NORDICISM.

2. Teutonic civilization or culture.

— Teu'ton·ist (-ĭst), n.

Teu·ton'i·ty (tū·tŏn'ĭ·tĭ), n. Teuton character, or a Teuton characteristic; Teutonic quality.

Teu'ton·ize (tū'tŏn·īz), v. t. & i. To make or become Teutonic. — Teu'ton·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n.

Teu'ton·o- (tū'tŏn·ō-). = TEUTO- (which see), as in Teu'ton·o·ma'ni·a, Teu'ton·o–Per'sic, Teu'ton·o·phobe', Teu'ton·o·pho'bi·a.

tev'el (tĕv'l), v. i. [Origin uncert.] To be violent; to rage. Scot.

tev'iss (tĕv'ĭs), n. A shilling. Cant, Eng.

tew (dial. tē'ŏŏ, tū), v. t.; TEWED (tē'ŏŏd; tūd); TEW'ING. [ME. tewen, var. of tawen. See TAW, v.] Obs. exc. Dial. a To prepare by beating or working, as leather or hemp; taw; knead. b To beat; also, to tease; vex. c To fatigue. — v. i. Scot. & Dial. a To work hard; to strive. b To fuss. — n. Laborious struggle; also, state of worry. Chiefly Dial.

tew (tū; Scot. also tü), n. [Cf. TEWEL, TUYÈRE.] A tuyère for a forge fire; also, the long pincers for drawing hot iron from the forge; — written also teu, tu, tue, too. Called also tew iron, tuarn, etc. Local, Eng., & Scot.

tew (dial. tē'ŏŏ, tū), n. [Cf. D. tuig tackle.] Obs. exc. Dial. a Fishing tackle. b Tools; working material.

tew, v. t. [Cf. 2d TOW.] To tow; pull. Obs.

Te'wa (tē'wä), n. An Indian of a group of Tanoan tribes, commonly known by the names of their pueblos, of which the following are still in existence: Nambe, San Ildefonso, San Juan, Santa Clara, and Tesuque, all in New Mexico, and Hano in northeastern Arizona. Cf. PUEBLO.

tew'el (tū'ĕl), n. [ME. tuel, fr. OF. tuiel, tuel (F. tuyau), of Teut. origin; cf. LG. tute (whence G. tüte, düte), Dan. tud, Goth. thuthaurn trumpet. Cf. TUYÈRE.] 1. A hole; a bore; a vent; esp., a pipe, funnel, or chimney, as for smoke. Obs. Chaucer.

2. The tuyère of a furnace.

tewel (tūl). Scot. & N. of Eng., of TOOL.

tew'er (tū'ĕr), n. A narrow lane or alley. Dial. Eng.

tew'it (tū'ĭt; -ĕt), n. [Imitative.] The lapwing. Local, Brit.

tew'ly (tū'lĭ), adj. Sickly; qualmish; delicate. Now Dial.

tew'some (-sŭm), adj. Troublesome; also, restless. Dial.

Tex'an (tĕk'săn), adj. Of or pertaining to Texas. — n. A native or inhabitant of Texas.

Texan buckeye. = SPANISH BUCKEYE.

Texan guan. See CHACHALACA; GUAN.

Texan millet. Texas millet.

Texan pride. The plant Phlox drummondii. See PHLOX.

Tex'as (tĕk'sȧs), n. sing. & pl. [Sp., fr. Caddo techas allies; with ref. to a confederacy of tribes of eastern Texas habitually allied against the Apache.] 1. An Indian of a large group of Texan tribes, of which the Caddo were the most important, commonly allied against the Apache.

2. = CADDO.

3. A State of the United States.

4. [not caps.] [On Mississippi steamboats the staterooms were named after the states, and the officers' were the largest.] A structure on the hurricane deck of a steamer, containing officers' cabins, etc., with the pilothouse in front or on top. Western U. S.

Texas adelia. The swamp privet.

Texas ash. = MOUNTAIN ASH a.

Texas bedbug. The conenose.

Texas blue bonnet. A perennial herb (Lupinus texensis) with showy blue flowers and grayish foliage, common in the southwestern United States.

Texas bluegrass. A vigorous forage grass (Poa arachnifera) of the southern United States, resembling Kentucky bluegrass.

Texas brown–eyed Susan. A bristly, annual herb (Rudbeckia bicolor) of the southern United States, with ray flowers darker toward the center of the head.

Texas buckeye. = SPANISH BUCKEYE.

Texas buckthorn. A low, spiny shrub (Condalia obtusifolia) of Mexico and southern Texas, with rather poor but edible fruit, the root of which yields a substitute for soap; — called also lotebush.

Texas cat's–claw. A prickly shrub or small tree (Acacia wrightii) of Texas and Mexico. The flowers yield honey.

Texas cattle fever. = TEXAS FEVER.

Texas fever. Veter. An infectious disease of cattle transmitted by the cattle tick (which see) and caused by a protozoan (Babesia, syn. Piroplasma, bigemina) that multiplies in the blood and destroys the red blood cells; — called also blackwater and splenetic fever. Cf. RED WATER, 3 a.

Texas flax. A glutinous herb (Gutierrezia texana), family Carduaceae, of Texas, having somewhat the habit of flax.

Texas fly. The horn fly.

Texas Independence, or Flag, Day. March 2, the anniversary of the declaration of independence of Texas from Mexico (1836) and also the birthday of Sam Houston, American general and first president of Texas.

Texas itch. Veter. A form of mange, or scabies, of cattle, usually occurring in winter, caused by a scab mite (Psoroptes communis bovis), producing atrophy of the hair follicles, loss of the hair, and desquamation of the epithelium.

Texas leaguer. [From the Texas (baseball) League.] Baseball. A fly that falls too far out to be handled by an infielder and too close in to be caught by an outfielder. Cant.

Texas longhorn. = LONGHORN, 1 b.

Texas millet. An annual, weedy grass (Panicum texanum) somewhat used for hay.

Texas nettle. = SANDBUR a.

Texas oak. The Texas red oak.

Texas palmetto. A tall palm (Inodes texana) of southern Texas and Mexico, the leaves of which are used for thatching and for chair seats.

Texas pea. A perennial, bushy herb (Astragalus nuttallianus) of the southwestern United States, yielding forage for stock.

Texas plume. The tree cypress.

Texas Rangers. The Texas State force of mounted police, organized in 1901.

Texas red oak. A timber tree (Quercus texana) of Texas; also, its wood; — called also Texas oak.

Texas root rot. Plant Pathol. A destructive disease of cotton and other plants in Texas and the vicinity, caused by the fungus Phymatotrichum (syn. Ozonium) omnivorum.

Texas saddle. See SADDLE, 1.

Texas sage. A perennial herb (Salviastrum texanum), family Lamiaceae, with tufted hairy stems, and blue flowers in close panicles.

Texas sarsaparilla. The Canada moonseed.

Tet'rax·o'ni·a (tĕt'răks·ō'nĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. = DEMOSPONGIAE. — tet'rax·o'ni·an (-ăn), te·trax'o·nid (tē·trăk'sō·nĭd), adj.

tet'ra·zyl (tĕt'rȧ·zĭl; -zīl), n. = TETRAZOLYL. [TETRAETHYL-.]

te·treth'yl- (tē·trĕth'ĭl-). Var. of tet'ri·fol, tetrifolie, n. A kind of herb. Cf. TREFOIL. Obs.

te·trin'ic ac'id (tē·trĭn'ĭk). Also tet'ric ac'id (tĕt'rĭk). [See TETRA-.] See TETRONIC.

Tet'ro·don'ti·dae (tĕt'rō·dŏn'tĭ·dē), Tet'ro·don (tĕt'rō·dŏn). [NL.] Zool. Syns. of TETRAODONTIDAE, TETRAODON. — tet'ro·dont (-dŏnt), adj. & n.

te·trous, adj. Foul; loathsome. Obs. [RAHYDROXY-.]

te·trox'y-. Chem. Short for TET-tet'ryl·ene (tĕt'rĭ·lēn), n. [tetra- + ethylene.] = BUTYLENE a.

tett (tĕt). Scot. var. of TATE.

tet'ter·ish, adj. See -ISH.

tet'ter·tot'ter. Var. of TITTER-TOTTER.

tet'ti·go·ni'i·dae (tĕt'ĭ·gō·nī'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of LOCUSTIDAE a. — tet'ti·go'ni·id (-gō'nĭ·ĭd), n. & adj.

tet'tish (tĕt'ĭsh), adj. [Cf. dial. teaty, teady, teety, teedy.] Captious; testy. Obs.

tet'ty (-ĭ), adj. [Cf. TETTISH.] Testy; peevish; irritable. Obs.

te'tur (tē'tŭr). Var. of TITAR.

Tetz·cat'li·po'ca. Var. of TEZCATLIPOCA.

teu. Var. of TEW.

teuch (tūx). Var. of TOUGH. Obs. exc. Scot.

teu'chat, teu'chit (tū'xĭt; -xĭt). Scot. vars. of TEWIT.

‖Teu'fel·hund' (toi'fĕl·hŏŏnt'), n.; pl. TEUFELHUNDE (-hŏŏn'dē). [G.] = DEVIL DOG.

teu'fit (tū'fĭt), n. = TEWIT. Local, Eng.

teugh (tūx), teugh'ly, teugh'ness. Vars. of TOUGH, etc. Scot.

teum (tūm; tüm). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TOOM.

Teu'to·bur'ger Wald (toi'tō·bŏŏr'gĕr vält). See BATTLE, Table.

Teu'ton·dom, n. See -DOM.

tew'art (tū'ĕrt). Var. of TUART.

tew'el. ✝ TOWEL.

tew'et, tew'hit. Vars. of TEWIT.

tew iron. See 2d TEW.

tewke. Var. of TUKE.

tew'ly. ✝ TULY.

tewne. ✝ TUNE.

tew'taw (tū'tô), tew'ter (-tĕr), v. t. [See TEW to beat.] To beat; to break, as flax or hemp. Obs.

tex, n. = TEXT. Obs.

Texas snakeroot. A species of birthwort (Aristolochia reticulata) of the southwestern United States, resembling in its properties the Virginia snakeroot.

Texas sparrow. A finch (Arremonops rufivirgatus) of southern Texas and Mexico. It is olive-green above with inconspicuous rufous stripes on the head and yellow on the wing.

Texas star. a A perennial, Texan herb (Lindheimera texana), family Carduaceae, sometimes cultivated for its rather showy, radiate, yellow flowers. b The prairie sabbatia.

Texas steer. U. S. a A steer raised in Texas. b A small, side-branded steer hide, whether from Texas or elsewhere.

Texas thistle. The basket flower.

Texas Tommy. An obsolete ragtime dance similar to the bunny hug.

Texas umbrella tree. A variety (Melia azedarach umbraculiformis) of the China tree, with a crowded often flattened crown. It is of horticultural origin.

text (tĕkst), n. [ME., fr. OF. texte, fr. L. textus texture, structure, context, fr. texere, textum, to weave, construct compose. See TECHNICAL; cf. CONTEXT, PRETEXT, SUBTLE TEST cupel, TEXTILE, TISSUE, TOIL a snare.] 1. a The actual matter of an author's work in distinction from a paraphrase, annotation, or commentary. b A composition on which a note or commentary is written.

In plain text, withouten need of gloss. Chaucer.

2. Any one of two or more written or printed versions of the matter of an author's work or works, often differing in certain passages or expressions; as, issued in a revised text; the folio and quarto texts of Shakespeare; a text showing scribal emendations; a critical edition of the matter contained in such a version or a critical edition based on a collation of two or more such versions; as, Skeat's text of Chaucer.

3. a The main body of matter on a printed or written page, as distinguished from notes, etc. b The letterpress, as distinguished from illustrations and the margins.

4. Short for TEXTBOOK (sense 2).

5. A verse or passage of Scripture, esp. one chosen as the subject of a sermon, or in support of a doctrine.

6. Hence, anything chosen as the subject of an argument, literary composition, or the like; topic; theme.

7. An account; story; tale; also, a saying; maxim; adage. Obs.

8. The four Gospels, esp. in manuscript; a textus. Obs.

9. Bib. Crit. Any one of the various forms that have been assumed to represent the authentic reading of the Scriptures or a part of them. The chief text of the Old Testament, on which all existing manuscripts and versions are based, is the Masoretic text, or the text of the Masora. See MASORA. For the New Testament the prevailing text from the 16th century to the 19th, and the basis of the Authorized Version of the English Bible, was the Textus Receptus, or received text, so called from the publisher's advertisement in the Elzevir edition of 1633, which read: textum ergo habes nunc ab omnibus receptum (here then you have the text received by all). It was based on the Stephanus (Robert Estienne; see Bioq). edition of 1551, which combined the Erasmian and the Complutensian. These in turn rested on manuscripts of the Syrian family, so called because their readings are found in the works of the Syrian Fathers, such as Chrysostom of Antioch in Syria, and hence called the Antiochian, or Syrian, text. This family is now universally regarded as the least reliable because its peculiar readings cannot be traced back beyond the 4th century. There are three other families of early manuscripts (often called as a body Ante-Nicene text). The neutral, used by Clement of Alexandria and Origen (represented by B, see CODEX) is commonly regarded as the best. The Alexandrian is believed by many to be a stylistic revision of the former. The Western (represented by D, D_2, E_2, and G_3) is so called because first discovered in the Old Latin, but is now known to have circulated also in Egypt and Syria. Its readings, though widely employed in the 2d century, were nevertheless regarded by Westcott and Hort as uncritical emendations, except in the case of omissions, which were called "Western noninterpolations." The present tendency is to give the Western text more serious consideration.

10. Paleog. Large writing; text hand; — so called because the text of a document was written in a larger hand than the commentaries which accompanied it.

text (tĕkst), v. t. & i. a Now Rare. To write (on) in large characters, as in text hand. b Obs. To cite texts (at).

text·ar′i·an (tĕks·târ′ĭ·ăn), adj. Of, pertaining to, or based on, a text or texts. Rare.

text blindness. = WORD BLINDNESS.

text′book′ (tĕkst′bŏŏk′), n. 1. A book of texts; as: a A book with wide spaces between the lines for notes. b Obs. A reference collection of Scripture texts. c A libretto.

2. Orig., a book on which a teacher lectures or comments; hence, any manual of instruction; a book containing a presentation of the principles of a subject, intended to be studied by the pupil and used as a basis of instruction by the teacher.

text hand. A large hand in writing; — so called because it was the practice to write the text of a book in a large hand and the notes in a smaller hand.

text·if′er·ous (tĕks·tĭf′ĕr·ŭs), adj. [text + -iferous.] Full of texts, as of Scripture. Contemptuous. Rare.

text′ile (tĕks′tĭl; -tīl; 155), adj. [L. textilis, fr. texere to weave. See TEXT.] 1. Pertaining to weaving or to woven fabrics; as, textile arts; textile machinery.

2. Woven or capable of being woven; formed by weaving; as, cotton and wool are textile fibers; textile fabrics.

text′ile, n. That which is, or may be, woven; a woven fabric or a material for weaving. Bacon.

textile engineering. See ENGINEERING, n., 1. — textile engineer.

textile screw pine. A screw pine (Pandanus tectorius) found throughout Polynesia. The leaves yield a useful fiber, and a perfume is distilled from the flowers.

textile soap. Any of various soaps used in cleaning textiles.

text′il·ist (tĕks′tĭl·ĭst; -tīl-), n. A specialist in the knowledge of textiles; esp., a manufacturer of, or dealer in textiles.

text′let (tĕkst′lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A little, short, or condensed text.

text letter. 1. A large or capital letter. Obs.

2. The type used for the body of a book.

text′man (tĕkst′măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a Rare. A writer of a textbook. b A textualist.

tex·to′ri·al (tĕks·tō′rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. [L. textorius, fr. textor a weaver, fr. texere, textum, to weave.] Of or pertaining to weaving. Rare.

text pen. A lettering pen; specif., a metallic pen for engrossing or for text hand.

tex′trine (tĕks′trĭn), adj. [L. textrinus, for textorinus, fr. textor a weaver.] Textorial. Rare.

tex′tu·al (tĕks′tŭ·ăl), adj. [ME. textuel; cf. F. textuel.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or contained in, the text, specif. the text of the Scriptures; based on, following, or adhering to the text; hence, sometimes, verbal or literal; as, textual criticism; a textual reading.

2. Serving for, or depending on texts. Obs.

3. Familiar with a text or texts so as to cite accurately or criticize competently. Obs. "I am not textual." Chaucer. — tex′tu·al·ly, adv.

tex′tu·al, n. A textualist. Rare.

textual criticism. Criticism of the text of a writing, esp. with a view to establishing its original form; — applied esp. to such criticism of the Bible.

tex′tu·al·ism (tĕks′tŭ·ăl·ĭz′m), n. Rigid adherence to the letter of the text, specif. of the Scriptures; literalism.

tex′tu·al·ist, n. 1. One well acquainted with a text, esp. that of Scripture.

2. One who rigidly adheres to the letter of a text or texts. specif. the text of the Bible.

tex′tu·ar′ist (-ĕr′ĭst; -ĕr·ĭst), n. A textuary. Rare.

tex′tu·ar′y (-ĕr′ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to the text; textual.

2. Serving as a text; authoritative. Rare.

tex′tu·ar′y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). 1. One who is well versed in the text, esp. of the Scriptures; a textualist.

2. One who adheres strictly or rigidly to the text.

3. A book containing a text without critical commentary, notes, parallel readings, etc. Obs.

tex′tur·al (tĕks′tŭr·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to texture; as, textural change. — tex′tur·al·ly, adv.

tex′ture (-tŭr), n. [L. textura, fr. texere, textum, to weave. See TEXT.] 1. Act or art of weaving; hence, figuratively, fabrication; intricate composition, as of a plan or plot. Obs.

2. That which is woven; a woven fabric; a web; a textile.

3. The characteristic disposition or connection of threads, filaments, or other slender bodies, interwoven; as, a fabric of close texture; the texture of a spider's web.

4. The disposition or manner of union of the particles or smaller constituent parts of a body or substance; fine structure; as, the texture of earthy substances or minerals; the texture of a plant or bone.

5. In general, manner of structure; interrelation of parts; structural quality; specif., in artistic composition, the characteristic structure or structural quality resulting from the artist's blending or integration of elements, such as the parts in music, the pigment and brushwork in painting, or words, rhythms, etc., in poetry.

6. Biol. A tissue. Rare.

7. Petrog. Generally, the smaller features of a rock, which depend upon the size, shape, arrangement, and distribution of the component minerals. The larger features, such as foliation, cracking, faulting, jointing, etc., are known as structures. Among the common textures are granular, ophitic, porphyritic, hypidiomorphic-granular, xenomorphic-granular, trachytic, and fluidal.

tex′ture (tĕks′tŭr), v. t. a To make by or as if by weaving. b Rare. To form a texture of or with.

‖tex′tus (tĕks′tŭs), n. sing. & pl. [L. See TEXT.] 1. The text of any writing, book, or literary work, esp. of the Bible.

2. Anat. = TISSUE.

tex′tus re·cep′tus (rē·sĕp′tŭs). [L. receptus, past part., received.] The commonly received text of a writing or other literary composition, esp. an ancient or learned one; specif. [caps.], a text of the Greek Testament. See TEXT, n., 9.

text writer. 1. Before the use of printing, a copyist of manuscript; an engrosser. Obs. exc. Hist.

2. A writer of textbooks.

tez (tĕz), adj. [Per.] Pungent; violent.

Tez·cat′li·po′ca (tĕs·kät′lē·pō′kä), n. [Nahuatl, prop. Tezcatlipopoca, lit., smoking mirror.] One of the principal gods of the Aztec pantheon, the creator, the god of night, music, and the dance. Originally the chief god of the Nahuas, he was identified with many gods of conquered tribes and hence was endowed with manifold forms and functions. Prisoners of war were sacrificed to him, and at his principal festival a youth who had impersonated him for a year was sacrificed on his altar at Tenochtitlan.

Tez·cat′zon·ca′tl (-sōn·kä′t'l; -tĕ), n. [Nahuatl, lit., dweller in Tezcatzonco, a quarter in Tenochtitlan, lit., place of the mirror on high. Cf. TEZCATLIPOCA, TZONTLE.] One of the fertility gods of the Aztecs. He was believed to preside over the manufacture and use of pulque.

Tez·cu′can (-kōō′kăn), n. An Indian of a Nahuatlan tribe which was, for a time, dominant in the valley of Mexico. Later they were confederated with the Aztecs, to whom they became subordinate, although they were considered the most advanced of the Nahua peoples in the arts and sciences. Their last ruler joined Cortes in the siege of Tenochtitlan. Cf. NAHUA, TENOCHTITLAN.

‖tez·kī′rah (tĕz·kē′rä), tes·ke′ri·a (tĕs·kē′rĭ·ä), n. [Ar. tadhkirah, colloq. tazkirah.] A certificate or license, as a passport.

th. A consonantal digraph. See T; Pron., § 233–236.

th. A contraction of the. In Middle English, the article the, when the following word began with a vowel, was often written with elision as if a part of the word. Thus in Chaucer, tharray, thegle, etc., are found for the array, the eagle, etc. In Modern English, esp. in poetry, th′ is sometimes written for the before a vowel.

-th. [AS.] A suffix forming nouns of action from verbs and of state or quality from adjectives, as in birth, growth, health, truth.

-th, or (after a vowel) -eth (119). [AS. -(o) tha.] A suffix forming ordinal numbers, as in tenth, twentieth, 9th.

-th. An ending of the 3d pers. sing. pres. indicative; as in doth, hath, etc. See -ETH.

thack (thăk), n. & v. [AS. thaccian to pat, clap. See TANGENT; cf. THWACK.] Thwack; thump. Obs. exc. Dial.

thack (thăk; thâk), n. & v. [AS. thæc, n., thaccian, v. See THATCH.] Thatch; roof. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

thack, adj. Thatched. Scot.

thack (thăk), pron. [Cf. THILK.] That. Dial. Eng.

thack and rape. The thatch and rope used to cover a stack. Scot. — in or under thack and rape. In good order; in shelter or comfort.

thack′er (thăk′ĕr; thâk′-), n. A thatcher. Obs. exc. Dial.

Thack′er·ay·an (thăk′ĕr·ĭ·ăn), adj. Pertaining to or characteristic of W. M. Thackeray or his writings. See Biog.

Thack′er·ay·an, n. Also Thack′er·ay·ite (-īt). An admirer of Thackeray and of his writings.

thack′less, (thăk′lĕs; thâk′-; 119) adj. Without thatch; hence, hatless. Scot.

Thad·dae′us (thă·dē′ŭs), n. [LL.] Bib. One of the twelve apostles, named in Mark iii, 18, elsewhere called Lebbaeus and Judas.

Thad′de·us (thăd′ē·ŭs), n. [LL. Thaddaeus, fr. Gr. Thaddaios.] a Masculine proper name. L. Thaddaeus (thăd·dē′ŭs); It. Taddeo (tät·dā′ō); Sp. Tadeo (tä·thā′ō; 112); Pg. Thaddeo (tä·dā′ōō); G. Thaddäus (tä·dā′ōōs). Dim. Thad, Thad′dy, Tha′dy. b = THADDAEUS.

Thad′de·us of War′saw. The title and hero of a novel (1803) by Jane Porter. He was a brave young Polish nobleman and exile.

thae (thā), adj. & pron. Those; these. Chiefly Scot.

Thai (tī). Preferred spelling of TAI, adj. & n.

Tha′is (thā′ĭs), n. [Gr.] 1. An Athenian courtesan who accompanied Alexander the Great on his eastern conquests and after his death married Ptolemy Lagos of Egypt. Hence, generically, a courtesan of intelligence and culture.

2. (tä·ēs′; F. tà′ēs′). The title and heroine of an opera (1894) by Massenet, based upon a novel of the same title (1890) by Anatole France. She is an Alexandrian hetaera of the 4th century A.D., converted by a monk.

3. Zool. A widely distributed genus of marine snails usually having a rough thick shell, sometimes ornamented with tubercles. Many species yield a purple dye. See DOG WHELK b; PURPURA, 2.

Thais (T. lapillus).

Tha·is′a (thā·ĭs′ä; -ĭz′ä; thā′ĭ·sä; -zä), n. Daughter of Simonides in Shakespeare's Pericles.

tha′kur (tä′kŏŏr; 236), thack′oor (thăk′ŏŏr), n. [Hind. thākur, Skr. thakkura an idol, a person entitled to respect.] A man of high rank; esp., a Rajput nobleman, or one of a certain Brahman family in Bengal. India. — tha′kur·ate (-āt), n.

Thal′a·ba (thăl′ä·bä), n. The hero of Southey's poem Thalaba the Destroyer, founded on Arabian mythology. His life is spent in warfare on the evil spirits of Domdaniel.

thal′a·men·ceph′a·lon (thăl′ä·mĕn·sĕf′ä·lŏn), n. [NL., fr. thalam- + encephalon.] Anat. The diencephalon; the betweenbrain. See BRAIN, 1; DIENCEPHALON. — thal′a·men′ce·phal′ic (-mĕn′sē·făl′ĭk), adj.

tha·lam′ic (thä·lăm′ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to the thalamus, esp., Anat., the optic thalamus.

thalamic radiation. Anat. Any of several large bundles of nerve fibers connecting the thalamus with the cerebral cortex by way of the internal capsule.

thal′a·mi·flo′ral (thăl′ä·mĭ·flō′răl; 181), thal′a·mi·flo′rous (-rŭs), adj. [See THALAMUS; FLORAL.] Bot. Bearing the stamens directly on the receptacle, as in the group Thal′a·mi·flo′rae (-rē) of De Candolle and of Bentham and Hooker.

thal′a·mite (thăl′ä·mīt), n. [Gr. thalamitēs.] See GALLEY, 2.

tha·la′mi·um (thä·lā′mĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -MIA (-ä). [NL., dim. fr. L. thalamus an inner chamber. See THALAMUS.] Obs. Bot. a The sporangium in some algae b The apothecium of some lichens. c A form of hymenium.

thal′a·mo- (thăl′ä·mō-), thalam-. A combining form, Greek thalamo-, thalam-, from thalamos, meaning a chamber, used for thalamus, as in thalamocele, thalamencephalon. Thalamo- denotes also in adjectives thalamic and, as in thal′a·mo·cor′ti·cal, pertaining to the thalamus and cortex, thal′a·mo·cru′ral, thal′a·mo·lentic′u·lar, thal′a·mo·mam′mil·lar′y, thal′a·mo·pe·dun′cu·lar, thal′a·mo·teg·men′tal. See CRURAL, etc.

thal′a·mo·cele′, thal′a·mo·coele′ (thăl′ä·mō·sēl′), n. [thalamo- + -cele.] Anat. The third ventricle of the brain.

thal′a·mo-ol′i·var′y, adj. Anat. Pertaining to or connecting the thalamus and the inferior olivary body; as, the thalamo-olivary tract.

thal′a·mus (thăl′ä·mŭs), n.; pl. -MI (-mī). [L., fr. Gr. thalamos; akin to Gr. tholos rotunda. See DALE.] 1. In ancient Greek houses, an inner chamber, esp. the apartment for women; sometimes, a storeroom.

2. Anat. The largest subdivision of the diencephalon on either side, consisting chiefly of an ovoid nuclear mass in the lateral wall of the third ventricle. The medial and anterior nuclei are phylogenetically the older part (paleothalamus) and are concerned with primitive correlations in connection with the corpus striatum but not the cerebral cortex. Clinical evidence indicates that this part of the thalamus is a center for the crude perception of pain and the affective qualities of other sensations. The lateral part (neothalamus) serves as the great relay station of somatic sensory and optic paths to the cerebral cortex, with which it is connected by the thalamic radiations.

3. Bot. a Obs. A thallus. b A torus, or receptacle.

Thal·arc′tos (thăl·ärk′tŏs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thalassa the sea + arktos bear.] Zool. A genus consisting of the polar bear.

‖tha·las′sa (thä·läs′ä), ‖tha·lat′ta (-lät′ä), n. [Gr.] The sea! — the exclamation of the Greek soldiers upon reaching the Black Sea, as told by Xenophon in the ANABASIS.

tha·las′sal (thä·läs′ăl), adj. Thalassic.

tha·las′si- (thä·läs′ĭ-). A combining form, Greek thalassi-, from thalassios, meaning marine, as in thalassiarch.

tha·las′si·an (thä·läs′ĭ·ăn), n. [Gr. thalassa the sea.] Any sea turtle.

tha·las′si·arch (-ärk), n. [Gr. thalassios of the sea + -arch.] An admiral. Obs. — tha·las′si·arch′y (-är′kĭ), n. Obs.

Tex·cat′li·po′ca (tĕs·kät′lē·pō′kä). Var. of TEZCATLIPOCA.

Tex·co′can (tĕs·kō′kăn), n. = TEZCUCAN.

tex·gui′no (tĕs·wē′nō), n. [Sp. texguino, tejuino, fr. Nahuatl teyhuinii intoxicating. Cf. TESVINO, TISWIN.] = TISWIN. Mex.

text′book′less, adj. See -LESS.

tex′til. Textile. Ref. Sp.

text title. = HALF TITLE.

tex′tu·al′i·ty, n. = TEXTUALISM.

tex′tu·ist, n. A textualist. Obs.

tex′ture·less, adj. See -LESS.

tex′tur·y (tĕks′tŭr·ĭ), n. = TEXTURE, 1. Obs.

tey. ✝ TEA.

te·year′. Var. of TO-YEAR.

teyl. Var. of TELL.

teyne, n. [ON. teinn rod.] A thin metal rod. Obs.

tez·ke′re, n. [Turk. tedhkereh, colloq. teskereh, fr. Ar. tadhkirah.] = TEZKIRAH.

t′gal′lant. Var. of TOPGALLANT.

tha (thä). Dial. Eng. of THEE, THOU, THY.

Tha′be·el (thä′bē·ĕl). D. Bib.

Thac′a·sin (thăk′ä·sĭn). D. Bib.

thach. ✝ THATCH.

Thack′er·ay·a′na (thăk′ĕr·ĭ·ä′nä; -ä′nä; -ăn′ä), n. See -ANA.

Thack′er·ay·esque′ (-ĕsk′), adj. See -ESQUE.

thack′oor (thăk′ŏŏr). Var. of THAKUR.

thack tile. A roofing tile. Obs.

thag (tŭg; 236). Var. of THUG, n.

thah (thä). Dial. var. of THOU.

Tha′hash (thä′hăsh). Bib.

thai. ✝ THAN.

thai, thais. Obs. pl. forms of THE.

thail. ✝ TAEL.

thaim (thām). Var. of THEM. Obs. exc. Dial.

thairm (thärm). Var. of THARM.

thak. Dial. var. of THACK.

thake. Var. of THEEK.

thalam-. = THALAMO-.

thal′a·mi (thăl′ä·mĭ), n., pl. of THALAMUS.

Thal′a·moph′o·ra (-mŏf′ō·rä), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thalamos chamber + phorein to bear.] Zool. Syn. of FORAMINIFERA.

thalass-. = THALASSO-.

Thal′as·sarc′tos (thăl′ä·särk′tŏs), n. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of THALARCTOS.

---

tha·las'sic (thȧ·lăs'ĭk), adj. [Gr. thalassa the sea.] Pertaining to the sea or ocean; — sometimes distinguishing from oceanic, as applying to seas, gulfs, etc., rather than to oceans.

tha·las'si·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Of the color of the sea. Obs.

Tha·las'si·nid'e·a (thȧ·lăs'ĭ·nĭd'ē·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thalassa the sea.] Zool. A small but widely distributed group of decapod crustaceans having a thin, flexible carapace, a long, soft abdomen and unsymmetrical chelae. They live in burrows which they dig in the sand or mud along the seashore. Callianassa and Upogebia are characteristic American genera. — tha·las'si·nid (-lăs'ĭ·nĭd), n. & adj. — tha·las'si·nid'i·an (-nĭd'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n. — tha·las'si·noid (-lăs'ĭ·noid), adj.

tha·las'si·o·phyte' (thȧ·lăs'ĭ·ō·fīt'), n. [Gr. thalassios of the sea + -phyte.] Rare. A marine alga. — tha·las'si·oph'y·tous (-ŏf'ĭ·tŭs), adj.

tha·las'so (thȧ·lăs'ō-), thalass-. A combining form, Greek thalasso-, thalass-, from thalassa, meaning the sea, as in thalassotherapy.

thal'as·soc'ra·cy (thăl'ȧ·sŏk'rȧ·sĭ), n. Also thal'las·soc'ra·cy. [Gr. thalassokratia, fr. thalassa sea + kratein to rule.] Maritime supremacy. — tha·las'so·crat (thȧ·lăs'ō·krăt), n.

thal'as·sog'ra·phy (-sŏg'rȧ·fĭ), n. [thalasso- + -graphy.] Oceanography. — thal'as·sog'ra·pher (-fĕr), n. — tha·las'so·graph'ic (thȧ·lăs'ō·grăf'ĭk). — -graph'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj.

thal'as·som'e·ter (thăl'ȧ·sŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [thalasso- + -meter.] A tide gauge.

thal'as·soph'i·lous (-sŏf'ĭ·lŭs), adj. [thalasso- + -philous.] Inhabiting the sea or its shore; fond of the sea.

tha·las'so·pho'bi·a (thȧ·lăs'ō·fō'bĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. thalasso- + -phobia.] Med. Morbid dread of the sea.

tha·las'so·ther'a·py (-thĕr'ȧ·pĭ), n. [thalasso- + -therapy.] Med. Treatment of disease by sea air, sea baths, etc.

thalatto-. A combining form, Greek thalatto-, Attic for thalasso-, from thalassa, sea, as in thal'at·tol'o·gy. See -LOGY.

thale'—cress' (thăl'krĕs'), n. [After Johann Thal (1542–83), Ger. physician.] The mouse-ear cress (Arabidopsis thaliana).

tha'len·ite (thȧ'lĕn·īt), n. [After T. R. Thalén (1827–1905), Sw. physicist.] Mineral. An yttrium silicate, $2Y_2O_3.4SiO_2.H_2O$, occurring in flesh-red monoclinic crystals. H., 6.5. Sp. gr., 4.2. tha'ler (tä'lĕr), n. A large silver coin of Germany. See TALER.

Tha·le'sian (thȧ·lē'zhăn), adj. Pertaining to the Grecian sage Thales (fl. 7th & 6th c. B.C.) or to his doctrine that water, or "the moist," is the prime element of the physical universe.

Tha·les'tris (thȧ·lĕs'trĭs), n. [Gr. Thalēstris.] An Amazon who figures in mythical stories, chiefly medieval, of Alexander the Great.

Tha·lī'a (thȧ·lī'ȧ), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thaleia, orig., blooming, luxuriant; akin to thallein to be luxuriant.] 1. Gr. Myth. a The Muse of comedy and bucolic poetry. b One of the three Graces. c A Nereid.
2. The 23d asteroid, discovered by Hind at London, 1852.
3. (pron. thăl'yȧ; thä'lĭ·ȧ) Used as feminine proper name.
4. Bot. A small genus of American, mostly aquatic herbs of the arrowroot family (Marantaceae), with broad long-stalked basal leaves, terminal panicles of bracted purple flowers, and globose capsules. T. dealbata, a cannalike plant of the southeastern United States, is sometimes cultivated for ornament.
5. Zool. Syn. of SALPA.

Tha'li·a'ce·a (thȧ'lĭ·ā'shē·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See THALIA.] Zool. A small order of tunicates consisting of certain aberrant free-swimming pelagic forms, as Salpa and Doliolum (see these terms). — thal'i·a'cean (-shăn), adj. & n.

Tha·lī'an (thȧ·lī'ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Thalia; hence [not cap.], of or pertaining to comedy; comic; as, his thalian talents.

Thal'iard (thăl'yĕrd), n. A lord of Antioch in Shakespeare's Pericles.

Tha·lic'trum (thȧ·lĭk'trŭm), n. [L., meadow rue, fr. Gr. thaliktron.] Bot. a A large widely distributed genus of herbs (family Ranunculaceae), the meadow rues, having ternately decompound leaves, small polygamodioecious, apetalous flowers, and fruit consisting of several achenes. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

thal'ic (thăl'ĭk), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or containing, thallium; specif., designating those compounds in which thallium has a valence of three.

thal·lif'er·ous (thȧ·lĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [thallium + -ferous.] Containing or yielding thallium.

thal'li·form (thăl'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [thallus + -form.] Bot. Having the form of a thallus.

thal'line (-ĭn; -īn), adj. Bot. Consisting of a thallus; of the nature of a thallus.

thal'line (-ēn; -īn; 157), n. Also thal'lin (-ĭn). [Gr. thallos a young shoot or branch. Cf. THALLIUM, THALLUS.] Chem. 1. A white crystalline base, $C_9H_{19}(OCH_3)N$, of the quinoline series, obtained artificially; — so called from the green color it forms with oxidizing agents. Its salts are antipyretics.
2. A compound (chemically tetrahydroxy-para-methoxyquinoline) used as an antiseptic and antipyretic in typhoid and malaria. Trade Name.

thal'li·um (-ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thallos a young shoot; — from the characteristic bright green line in its spectrum.] Chem. A sparsely but widely distributed metallic element of the aluminum family, resembling lead in physical properties. Symbol, Tl; at. no., 81; at. wt., 204.39. Sp. gr., 11.8. It is found (combined) in crookesite and lorandite and in smaller quantities in various other minerals, and in plants. It was discovered spectroscopically by Crookes in 1861. Thallium is univalent and trivalent. Salts of it are used in making certain kinds of highly refractive glass.

thal'lo- (thăl'ō-), thall-. A combining form, Greek thallo-, thall-, from thallos, meaning a young shoot, as in thallophyte, thallium.

thal'lo·chlore (thăl'ō·klōr; 181), n. [thallo- + chlorophyll.] Bot. The form of chlorophyll occurring in lichens.

thal·lo'dal (thȧ·lō'dăl), thal·lod'ic (thȧ·lŏd'ĭk), adj. [thall- + Gr. eidos form.] Bot. Thalline; thalloid.

thal'lo·gen (thăl'ō·jĕn), n. [thallo- + -gen.] Bot. A thallophyte. — thal·log'e·nous (thȧ·lŏj'ē·nŭs), thal'lo·gen'ic (thăl'ō·jĕn'ĭk), adj.

thal'loid (thăl'oid), adj. [thall- + -oid.] Bot. Pertaining to, resembling, or consisting of, a thallus.

thalloid shoot. Bot. A shoot which develops only thallus-like branches and no leaf structures, as in certain hepatics.

thal'lome (thăl'ōm), n. [thall- + -ome as in phyllome, plerome.] Bot. A thallus; also, a thalluslike growth. Rare.

Thal·loph'y·ta (thȧ·lŏf'ĭ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL. See THALLOPHYTE.] Bot. A phylum of plants of very diverse habit and structure, including the algae, bacteria, fungi, and lichens, and in some classifications also the slime molds. The simpler forms, as many blue-green algae, yeasts, bacteria, etc., are unicellular and reproduce vegetatively or by means of asexual spores. In the higher forms the plant body is a thallus, which may be filamentous or may consist of plates of cells; it is commonly undifferentiated into stem, leaves, and roots, and shows no distinct tissue systems; the fronds of many algae, however, are modified to serve many of the functions of the above-named organs. Both asexual and sexual reproduction, often of a complex type, occur in these forms. Many of the Thallophyta exist only as gametophytes, the sporophyte being absent or rudimentary. See ALGAE; FUNGI, 2; cf. MYXOPHYTA, BRYOPHYTA, etc.

thal'lo·phyte (thăl'ō·fīt), n. [thallo- + -phyte.] Bot. A plant belonging to the Thallophyta. — thal'lo·phyt'ic (-fĭt'ĭk), adj.

thal'lose (thăl'ōs; thȧ·lōs'; see -OSE), adj. [thall- + -ose.] Bot. Thalloid.

thal'lous (thăl'ŭs), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or containing, thallium; specif., designating compounds in which the element has a valence of one.

thal'lus (-ŭs), n.; pl. -LI (-ī); -LUSES (-ŭs·ĕz; -ŭz; 119). [NL., fr. Gr. thallos young shoot or branch, frond.] Bot. The plant body characteristic of the Thallophyta, showing no differentiation into distinct members, as stem, leaves, and roots, or composed of members resembling, but not homologous with, those of the higher plants. It may be simple or branched, and varies widely in form and size from microscopic one-celled plants to leafike bushy forms, as in some of the larger marine algae. Cf. MYCELIUM.

thal·po'sis (thăl·pō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thalpos warmth + -osis.] Psychol. The warmth sense; warmth sensation. See TEMPERATURE SENSATION. — thal·pot'ic (-pŏt'ĭk), adj.

thal'than, thol'than (tŏl'thăn), n. [Manx tholtan.] A dilapidated cottage. Isle of Man.

‖thal'weg' (täl'vāk'), n. [G. t(h)alweg, fr. t(h)al valley + weg way. See DALE; WAY.] 1. Physiog. a A line following the lowest part of a valley, whether under water or not. b The line of continuous maximum descent from any point on a land surface, or that cutting all contours at right angles.
2. Internat. Law. The middle or the chief navigable channel of a waterway which constitutes a boundary line between states. Louisiana v. Mississippi, 202 U. S., 1.

tha'meng (thä'mĕng), tha'min (-mĭn), n. [Burmese ɵamin (written as ɵamaṅ).] A deer (Cervus eldi) of Burma, Siam, and the Malay Peninsula, the antlers of which have long curved brow tines.

Thames barge (tĕmz). [From the Thames River, Eng.] Naut. A kind of round-bowed, transom-sterned, broad-beamed freight boat, usually with a sprit mainsail and small gaff mizzen, plying on the coast and rivers of southern England. The masts and rigging can usually be lowered to pass under bridges.

Thames Embankment, The. See EMBANKMENT, 3.

Tham'e·sis (tăm'ē·sĭs), n. [L.] The river Thames; — a personification.

Tham·nid'i·um (thăm·nĭd'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thamnos a bush.] Bot. A genus of bread molds (family Mucoraceae) characterized by branched sporangiophores and two kinds of sporangia. Certain species produce the so-called "whiskers" on meat in cold storage.

tham'ni·um (thăm'nĭ·ŭm), n. [NL. Cf. THAMNIDIUM.] Bot. The branched or fruticose thallus of certain lichens, as of the genus Cladonia.

tham'no- (thăm'nō-), thamn-. A combining form, Greek thamno-, thamn-, from thamnos meaning a bush or shrub.

tham'no·phile (thăm'nō·fīl; -fĭl), n. [thamno- + -phile.] An ant shrike.

Tham·noph'i·lus (thăm·nŏf'ĭ·lŭs), n. [NL. See THAMNOPHILE.] Zool. The genus of Neotropical hook-billed ant birds consisting of the ant shrikes, sometimes regarded as forming a subfamily. Tham'no·phi·li'nae (thăm'nō·fĭ·lī'nē). — tham·noph'i·line (thăm·nŏf'ĭ·lĭn; -līn; 156), adj.

Tha·mu'dic (thȧ·mōō'dĭk), adj. Of or pert. to certain old Semitic inscriptions in characters resembling the Sabaean.

tha·mu'ri·a (-mū'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thamus often + -uria.] Med. Abnormal frequency of urination.

Tham'y·ris (thăm'ĭ·rĭs), n. [Gr.] Gr. Myth. A Thracian singer who boasted that he excelled the Muses. He was punished by losing both his sight and his musical power.

than (thăn; 71), conj. [ME. than, thon, then, thanne, thonne, thenne, than, then, fr. AS. thanne, thonne, thænne, then (the older sense), than, orig. prob. from there; akin to OS. than then, D. dan, OHG. danne, G. dann then, denn than, for, Goth. than then, and to E. the, there, that. See THAT; cf. THEN.] 1. Indicating the second member of a comparison expressive of inequality; used after: a Adjectives and adverbs of comparative degree, also, formerly, adjectives preceded by too; as, softer than velvet; easier said than done; more often than usual; he had rather die than admit defeat; I regard him more highly than to suspect him; knew better than to satisfy; "Too wise than to be religious" (I. Taylor). b Adjectives and adverbs expressing diversity, as other, else, otherwise, etc., and, formerly, differently, opposite; as, none other than Pepys. A noun word forming the second member of the comparison after than is usually in the nominative or objective case according as the first member is in the nominative or objective. Frequently in common speech and occasionally in the works of standard authors, however, than is followed by the objective, although parallel grammatically to the subject of an elliptical clause, and is then construed as a preposition; — a use now generally regarded as incorrect except in the phrase than whom.
2. Short for: a Obs. Rather than. b Archaic. Other, or otherwise, than.
3. Dial. When; — used after scarcely, hardly.

than (thăn; 71), prep. In comparison with; by way of superiority or inferiority to; — used through failure to construe the statement of comparison as an ellipsis, sometimes perhaps through disinclination to use the nominative case in a final position. See THAN, conj.

than (dial. thȧn). Var. of THEN, adv. Obs. exc. Dial.

tha'na (tä'nä; t'hä'-; 236), n. Also ta'na, tan'na, tha'nah. [Hind. thānā, thāna.] A police station; a police division, as a unit of local administration; also, formerly, a military post. India.

tha'na·dar' (-där'), n. Also ta'na·dar', tan'na·dar', than'na·dar'. [Hind. thānādār, fr. thānā, police station + Per. dār holder, holding.] The chief officer of a thana. India.

than'age (thān'ĭj), n. The district of a thane; thanedom; by extension, the position or jurisdiction of a thane; also, the service due from a thane to his lord.

-tha·na'si·a (-thȧ·nā'zhĭ·ȧ; -zhȧ; -zĭ·ȧ). A combining form from euthanasia, denoting manner of death, as in cacothanasia, electrothanasia.

than'a·tism (thăn'ȧ·tĭz'ĭm), n. [See THANATO-.] Belief in annihilation at death. Rare. — than'a·tist (-tĭst), n.

than'a·to- (thăn'ȧ·tō-), thanat-. [See THANATOS.] A combining form, Greek thanato-, thanat-, from thanatos, meaning death, as in thanatometer, thanatopsis.

thanatobiologic	thanatophobe	thanatophobiac
thanatomantic	thanatophobia	thanatophoby than'a·to·gno·mon'ic (-nō·mŏn'ĭk), adj. [thanato- + gnomonic.] Indicative of death.

than'a·tog'ra·phy (-tŏg'rȧ·fĭ), n. [thanato- + -graphy.] An account of the death of someone. Cf. BIOGRAPHY. — than'a·tog'ra·pher (-fĕr), n. Both Rare.

than'a·toid (thăn'ȧ·toid), adj. [thanat- + -oid.] a Deathlike; resembling death. b Deadly, as a poisonous snake.

than'a·tol'o·gy (-tŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [thanato- + -logy.] The description, theory, or doctrine of death. — than'a·to·log'ical (-tō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. — than'a·tol'o·gist (-jĭst), n.

than'a·tom'e·ter (-tŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [thanato- + -meter.] Med. A thermometer for insertion into a body cavity to determine whether death has occurred.

than'a·to·phid'i·a (-tō·fĭd'ĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See THANATO-; OPHIDIA.] Poisonous snakes. — -phid'i·an (-ăn), adj.

than'a·top'sis (-tŏp'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thanat- + -opsis.] A view of death; a meditation on death. Specif. [cap.], a poem (1813) by William Cullen Bryant.

Than'a·tos (thăn'ȧ·tŏs), n. [Gr., fr. thanatos death; akin to Skr. adhvanīt it vanished, dhvānta darkness.] Gr. Myth. Death as a personification, brother of Hypnos (Sleep) and son of Nyx (Night) and a dweller in the lower world. He corresponds to the Roman Mors.

than'a·to'sis (thăn'ȧ·tō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thanatos death + -osis.] a = CATAPLEXY. b Med. Necrosis. c Zool. A state of hypnosis or apparent inanition assumed by some insects esp. certain beetles when disturbed. — than'a·tot'ic (-tŏt'ĭk), adj.

-than'a·tous (-thăn'ȧ·tŭs). A suffix from Greek thanatos, death, signifying producing death.

than'a·tou'si·a (thăn'ȧ·tōō'sĭ·ȧ; -tou'sĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [Gr.] Gr. Relig. Rites in honor of the dead.

thane (thān), n. Also, esp. Hist., thegn. [Prop. a Scot. form fr. ME. thein, thegn, fr. AS. thegen, thegn, a thane, man, warrior, follower, servant; akin to OS. thegan a follower, warrior, boy, OHG. thegan, degan, MHG. degen a hero, G. degen hero, soldier, ON. thegn a thane, a freeman, Gr. teknon a child, tiktein to bear, beget.] 1. O. Eng. Hist. Among the Anglo-Saxons and Danes, one of a class of free servants or attendants on a lord, acting orig. as household servants and companions and following the lord to war as his bodyguard. There were two classes, the king's thanes, who were nearest to him, answering closely to, and in a sense succeeded by, the greater barons of later days, and the middle or lesser thanes, succeeded by the minor barons. Later, the military duties became paramount and the term designated any of a hereditary military class or caste, who, being qualified by ownership of five hides of land, had assumed a certain relationship, and duties of attendance and military service as mounted, heavy-armed warriors, upon a lord or superior, or any of their descendants. The wergild of all seems to have been 1,200 shillings, but the classes differed in amount of heriots, reliefs, etc.
2. Scot. Hist. One holding land of the king; the chief of a clan, who became one of the king's barons.
3. By extension, a Scots peer.
4. Poet. A noted warrior.

thane'land' (-lănd'; -lənd), n. Hist. Land granted to a thane by charter from his liege lord.

than'ess (thăn'ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. The wife of a thane. Scot.

thank (thăngk), n. [AS. thanc, thonc, thanks, favor, thought; akin to OS. thank favor, pleasure, thanks, D. & G. dank thanks, ON. thökk, Dan. tak, Sw. tack, Goth. thagks thanks; — originally, a thought, a thinking, and akin to E. THINK.] 1. Thought; inquiry. Obs. The Pearl.
2. Kindly or grateful thought; gratitude; also, grace; favor; as, give thanks to God. Archaic in the sing.
If ye do good to them which do good to you, what thank have ye? for sinners also do even the same. Luke vi. 33.
3. An expression of gratitude; an acknowledgment, as by words, for a favor or kindness received; — now used only in the pl., which formerly was sometimes construed as a singular. "This ceremonial thanks." Massinger.
Macbeth. Good repose the while!
Banquo. Thanks, sir: the like to you. Shak.
— my, his, or her thanks, etc. Of my, his, or her own accord; with his or her good will; voluntarily. Obs. Chaucer.

thank (thăngk), v. t.; THANKED (thăngkt); THANK'ING. [AS. thancian; akin to OS. thankōn, ON. thakka. See THANK, n.] To express gratitude, or make acknowledgments, to (one) for a favor or kindness; sometimes, ironically, to hold responsible; to consider (one) to blame.
I thank thee for thine honest care. Shak.
— v. i. To be thankful; to give thanks. Obs.
— I thank you, or thank you. A polite expression used in acknowledgment of a favor or the like, whether accepted or declined. — I will thank you. A polite expression of request; as, I will thank you to open the window; — now often implying strained courtesy. — to thank oneself, or to have oneself to thank. To blame oneself; to be alone responsible. — to thank one's (lucky) stars. To acknowledge, esp. to congratulate oneself on, one's own good fortune.

thank'ee (thăngk'ē). Corruption of thank ye (you).

Thal'as·soch'e·lys (thăl'ȧ·sŏk'ē·lĭs), n. [NL., fr. thalasso- + Gr. chelys a tortoise.] Syn. of CARETTA.

‖tha·lat'ta (thȧ·lăt'ȧ), n. See THALASSA.

Tha·le'si·a (thȧ·lē'zhĭ·ȧ; -zĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Thales, the Greek philosopher.] Bot. Syn. of ANOPLANTHUS.

Tha·les'sa (thȧ·lĕs'ȧ), n. [NL.] Syn. of MEGAREYSSA.

thall. = THALLO-.

thal'li (thăl'ī), n., pl. of THALLUS.

thal'li·ous (-ĭ·ŭs), adj. Chem. = THALLOUS.

thal·lof'i·ta. Thallophyta. Ref. Sp.

Thal'mud. ✝ TALMUD.

Thal'mud·ist. ✝ TALMUDIST.

tham. ✝ THAT, THE, THEM.

Tha'mah (thā'mȧ). Bib.

Tha'mar (-mär). Bib.

Tha·ma'ra, n. Var. of TAMARA.

thame (thām). Var. of THEM, TEAM. Obs. exc. Dial.

Tham'muz. Var. of TAMMUZ. See JEWISH CALENDAR.

thamn-. = THAMNO-. [Bib.]

Tham'na·ta (thăm'nȧ·tȧ). D.

Tham'na·tha (-thȧ). Bib.

Tham'nath·ite (-nȧth·īt). D. Bib.

Tham'nath·sa'rę (-sär'ē). D.

Tham'no·phis (thăm'nō·fĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thamnos a bush + ophis a serpent.] Zool. See GARTER SNAKE 8.

Tha·mu'dene (thȧ·mōō'dēn), adj. Also Tha·mu'de·an (-dē·ăn). = THAMUDIC.

Tha'mus (thā'mŭs), n. See THAM.

Tham'y·ras (thăm'ĭ·rȧs), n. [L.] = THAMYRIS.

tha·nan'. Var. of TANAN. See MEASURE, Table.

thanat-. = THANATO-.

thane'dom, thegn'dom (thān'dĭm), n. See -DOM.

thane'hood, thegn'hood (-hōōd), n. See -HOOD.

Than'e·bu'meth (thăn'ē·bū'mĕth). D. Bib.

thane'ship, thegn'ship, n. [Cf. AS. thegenscipe.] See -SHIP.

thank'er (thăngk'ĕr), n. One who thanks.

thank'ful (thăngk'fŏŏl; -fl), adj. [AS. thancfull.] 1. Impressed with a sense of kindness received, and ready to acknowledge it; grateful; as, a thankful heart.

Be thankful unto him, and bless his name. Ps. c. 4.

2. Given, made, done, or the like, in token of thanks; expressive of thanks or gratitude; as, thankful service.

3. Obs. a Deserving thanks; thankworthy; meritorious; as, a thankful act. b Agreeable; pleasant.

Syn. and Ant. — See GRATEFUL.

— thank'ful·ly, adv. — thank'ful·ness, n.

thank'less, adj. 1. Not acknowledging favors; not expressing or feeling thankfulness; ungrateful.

How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is To have a thankless child! Shak.

2. Not obtaining or deserving thanks; unacceptable or unappreciated; as, a thankless task.

— thank'less·ly, adv. — thank'less·ness, n.

thank offering. An offering made as an expression of thanks. Specif.: Jew. Antiq. See OFFERING, 3.

thanks (thăngks), n., pl. of THANK; — now the form in general use. See THANK, n., 2 & 3.

thanks'giv'er (thăngks'gĭv'ĕr), n. One who gives thanks.

thanks·giv'ing (thăngks·gĭv'ĭng; thăngks'gĭv'ĭng; 66), n. 1. Act of rendering thanks, or expressing gratitude for favors or mercies; an acknowledgment of favors or benefits.

And taught by thee the Church prolongs
Her hymns of high thanksgiving still. Keble.

2. A formula expressing gratitude, esp. for divine mercies.

In the thanksgiving before meat. Shak.

3. a A public acknowledgment or celebration of divine goodness and mercies. b A day set apart for making this; specif. [cap.], U. S. Thanksgiving Day.

Thanks·giv'ing Day (thăngks·gĭv'ĭng). In the United States, a day (now the fourth Thursday of November) now generally appointed or recommended annually by the Federal and State executives as a legal holiday to be set apart for thanksgiving and praise to God for the mercies of the year past. It originated with the New England colonists and has been regularly observed since President Lincoln's proclamation in 1863.

thank'wor'thy (thăngk'wŭr'thĭ), adj. Worthy of thanks or gratitude; meritorious. 1 Pet. ii 19. — thank'worth'i·ly (-thĭ·lĭ), adv. — thank'worth'i·ness, n.

thank'—you' (thăngk'yōō'), n. A polite expression of one's gratitude, as by saying "(I) thank you." (see under THANK, v.) thank'—you—ma'am', n. Also -mam', -marm'. A small ridge or hollow made, usually diagonally, across a road, esp. on a hillside to deflect water. It may cause a person driving over it to bob as if bowing. Colloq., U. S.

thapes (thāps), n. pl. [Var. of fapes, dial. form of FEABERRY.] Gooseberries. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

Thap'si·a (thăp'sĭ·ȧ), n. [L., a kind of poisonous plant, fr. Gr. thapsia a plant from the island of Thapsos.] Bot. a A small genus of herbs (family Ammiaceae) of the Mediterranean region, having the flowers in compound umbels without involucres, and the fruit broadly winged. T. garganica is the deadly carrot. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus. T. garganica contains an irritating resin and has been used by malingerers to produce inflammation of the skin to simulate erysipelas.

thar (thär), v. i.; past tense THURST, THURT. [ME. thar, tharf, AS. thearf, infin. thurfan to need; akin to OHG. durfan, G. dürfen to be allowed, ON. thurfa to need, Goth. thaurban.] To behoove; need. Obs. exc. Scot.

thar (thär; thā). Var. of THEIR, THERE. Obs. exc. Dial.

thar (thär). Variant of TAHR.

tharf (thärf), adj. Heavy; stiff; unbending. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

tharf'cake' (thärf'kāk'; thä'-), n. [AS. theorf unleavened.] A thin cake of unfermented dough or meal. Now Dial. Eng.

Thar·ge'li·a (thär·gē'lĭ·ȧ; -jē'lĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [Gr. thargēlia; cf. Gr. thargēlos artos bread made from the first fruits.] Gr. Relig. An Athenian festival from which the month Thargelion took its name. The principal day fell on the seventh of the month, the birthday of Apollo, and in his honor were held choral contests. Adopted children were officially registered as members of a tribe and a phratry on this day. It was originally a first-fruits celebration, and, as the Pyanepsia, was marked by the eiresione (which see). The event for which it was most famous was the driving forth of two human scapegoats (see PHARMAKOS), indicating that a chief function was the ceremonial purification of the city. Cf. KALLYNTERIA, PLYNTERIA.

Thar·ge'li·on (thär·gē'lĭ·ŏn; -jē'lĭ·ŏn), n. [Gr. Thargēliōn.] The eleventh Attic month (April–May). See GREEK CALENDAR a.

thar·gin'yah (thär·gĭn'yä), n. The arrimby. Australia.

tharm (thärm), n. [AS. thearm a gut; akin to D. & G. darm, ON. tharmr, Sw. & Dan. tarm.] Obs. exc. Dial. a An intestine; the belly. b Twisted gut; catgut.

Tha'si·an (thā'shĭ·ăn; -shăn), adj. [L. Thasius, fr. Gr. Thasios.] Of or pertaining to the most northerly island of the Aegean Sea, anciently known as Thasos and famous for gold and wine. — n. One of the people of Thasos.

Thas'pi·um (thăs'pĭ·ŭm), n. [NL. So called by Nuttall after "the isle of Thaspia, which gave name to the Thapsia of the ancients, in allusion to its affinity with that genus."] Bot. A small genus of herbs (family Ammiaceae), the meadow parsnips, found in eastern North America. They have yellow flowers, and fruit with all the ribs prominently winged.

that (thăt; 71), pronoun. [AS. thæt, neut. nom. & acc. sing. of the demonstrative pron. and adj., also used as a relative pron. The nom. masc. sē and the nom fem. sēo are from a different stem, as also in Gr., Skr., etc., AS. thæt is akin to D. dat, G. das, OHG. daz, ON. that (masc. sā, fem. sū), Goth. thata (masc. sa, fem. sō), Gr. to (masc. ho, fem. hē), Skr. tat (for tad, masc. sa, fem. sā) OSlav. to (masc. tŭ, fem. ta), Lith. tai (masc. tas, fem. ta), L. istud (masc. iste, fem. ista), Tocharian B te (masc. se, fem. sā-u); cf. Hittite tā, neut. pl. (masc. sing. tas, sas). Cf. SINCE, THAN, THE, THEIR, THEM, THENCE, THERE, THEY, THIS, THITHER.] 1. As a demonstrative pronoun (pl. THOSE): The person, thing, or idea mentioned, indicated, or understood from the situation or context.

The early fame of Gratian was equal to that of the most celebrated princes. Gibbon.

Hence, in special bearings and constructions: a Referring to a phrase, sentence, or entire discourse.

I will know your business, Harry, that I will. Shak.

And when Moses heard that [all of Aaron's explanation], he was content. Lev. x. 20.

b Preceding the noun, or noun phrase or clause, referred to; as, those in the basket are good apples; — often to mark the place and bearing of an idea made definite later.

That be far from thee, to do after this manner, to slay the righteous with the wicked. Gen. xviii. 25.

c In opposition or contradistinction to this. In such cases this, like Latin hic and French ceci, usually refers to the nearer, and that like Latin ille and French cela, to the more remote. When they refer to foregoing words or phrases, that usually refers to the former.

Two principles in human nature reign;
Self-love, to urge, and Reason, to restrain; Nor this a good, nor that a bad we call. Pope.

d For that which, what; — used where the reference is emphatically to what precedes. e The one of the kind (specified); as, the best ore is that from Sweden.

2. As a relative pronoun, equivalent to who or which, either sing. or pl. "He that reproveth a scorner." Prov. ix. 7. "A judgment that is equal and impartial." Bp. Wilkins. Hence in special uses: a In early English, often with the demonstratives he, his, him, etc., the two together having the force of a relative pronoun; thus, that he = who; that his = whose; that him = whom. b Archaic. As a correlative of so or such.

Who is here so rude that would not be a Roman? Shak.

c Archaic. For that which, what; — used where the reference is emphatically to what follows.

We . . . testify that we have seen. John iii. 11.

d Adverbially, for on, in, or at, which; — after words denoting time; as, each year that the lectures were given.

In the day that thou eatest thereof. Gen. ii. 17.

e As object of a preposition, the preposition being always transposed to the end of the clause.

The ship that somebody was sailing in. Scott.

f [often cap.] As a proper name which is not mentioned or specified; as, Mr. This and That listened to the arraignment.

☞ The relative that followed the early indeclinable relative the, and in the 14th century was the common relative. In the 16th century it was often replaced by which, and in the 17th by who; in the 18th, however, Steele complained that it was supplanting both which and who. Present usage generally favors who or which when the relative clause conveys a qualification or statement simply additional or parenthetic, and that when it is definitely restrictive. Thus, "the members, who were present," is distinguished from "the members that were present," the latter restricting the application to certain members present as opposed to others that were absent. The awkwardness of that that (the demonstrative and relative together) is, however, now usually avoided by means of that which, and the rule is further disregarded where the relative is to follow a preposition or to be in the possessive case, that being impossible in either construction; as, to choose the plans by which we work; pleasing to men whose opinions concur. The simply descriptive or parenthetic clause is, in any case, distinguished by a comma before the relative.

That that dieth let it die; and that that is to be cut off, let it be cut off. Zech. xi. 9.

Syn. — See WHO.

— at that. Colloq. a In that state or form; as it is or is performed, said, understood, etc.; as, let it go at that. b Though such is the case; also, taking everything into consideration; as, at that, we might be worse off. — for a' that. See for a' that, under FOR, prep. — that is, that is to say. The foregoing expression is equivalent to what follows; — introducing an explanation or correction. — that's that. That is settled or disposed of; so much for that. Colloq.

that (thăt), adj. Of or pertaining to a person, thing, or idea indicated or understood from the situation or context.

The woman was made whole from that hour. Matt. ix. 22.

Hence in special uses: a Referring esp. to qualities with the force of such, and followed by a defining expression, sometimes by a correlative word.

That gentleness . . . as I was wont to have. Shak.

b Formerly, sometimes, with the force of the article the, esp. in the phrases that one, that other, subsequently corrupted into th' tone, the tother.

Upon a day out riden knightes two . . .
That one of them came home, that other not. Chaucer.

c Implying that something is familiar or well known, often with a sense of disparagement; as, that bland air of his.

that (thăt; 71), conj. A connective derived by loss of stress from the demonstrative that, regarded as in apposition with a clause. Thus, "he knew (that) I had come." In older English it is thus used when the clause is object of a preposition, as in "Before that thou shalt thrice deny," where now it is omitted, and the preposition is taken as a conjunction. That sometimes occurred analogously after a conjunction; as in "If that our own be ours," or a relative; as in "When that the poor have cried, Caesar hath wept." Shak. It is used: 1. To introduce a clause employed as object, subject, or predicate nominative of a verb.

She tells them 't is a causeless fantasy, And childish error, that they are afraid. Shak.

I have shewed before, that a mere possibility to the contrary, can by no means hinder a thing from being highly credible. Bp. Wilkins.

2. To introduce a reason or cause; — equivalent to for that, in that, for the reason that, because; also, seeing that.

He does hear me; And that he does, I weep. Shak.

3. To introduce a purpose; — usually followed by may, or might, and often preceded by so, in order, to the end, etc.

These things I say, that ye might be saved. John v. 34.

To the end that he may prolong his days. Deut. xvii. 20.

4. To introduce a consequence, result, or effect; — usually preceded by so or such, sometimes by that.

He gazed so long
That both his eyes were dazzled. Tennyson.

5. To introduce a clause denoting time; — equivalent to in which time, at which time, when. Archaic.

Until just that we came. Cromwell.

6. In an elliptical sentence to introduce a sentence or clause expressing a wish, cause of surprise, indignation, etc.

O God, that right should thus overcome might! Shak.

7. To take the place of another conjunction, instead of repeating the latter before a clause with which it belongs. Cf. the similar use of the French que. Archaic.

When he had carried Rome, and that we looked For no less spoil than glory. Shak.

☞ For phrases like ere that, for that, in that, so that, see under ERE, FOR, etc.

that, adv. To such a degree; so; — used: a Colloq. With words of degree or extent; as, she did n't go that far; I remember you when you were that high. b Dial. With words denoting quality or action; as, he was that frightened he could say nothing.

that (thăt), n. The word "that"; also, an object as being something which might be referred to by the word "that"; as, the birds place objects, and do not react to them merely as so many that's.

that'—a—way' (thăt'ȧ·wā'), adv. That way. Dial.

thatch (thăch), n. [ME. thacche, thak, fr. AS. thæc a roof; akin to D. dak a roof, dekken to cover, G. dach a roof, decken to cover, ON. thak a roof, Sw. tak, Dan. tag, Lith. stogas, OIr. tech a house, Gael. teach, tigh, W. ty, L. tegere to cover, tegula a tile, toga a toga, Gr. tegos, stegos a roof, stegein to cover, Skr. sthagati he covers. The final tch is due to influence of the verb. Cf. THATCH, v., DECK, INTEGUMENT, TEGMEN, THUG, TILE, TOGA.] 1. The covering for a roof, grain stack, etc., made of straw, rushes, reeds, or the like, or, in tropical countries, of certain leaves.

2. See THATCH PALM.

3. = CREEK SEDGE.

4. Something resembling or suggesting the thatched covering of a dwelling; esp., thick hair.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

thatch-browed	thatch peg	thatch rod thatch cloak	thatch pin	thatch-roofed thatch-headed	thatch rake	thatchwork thatch, v. t.; THATCHED (thăcht); THATCH'ING. [From ME. thecchen, fr. AS. thecc(e)an to cover; akin to ON. thekja, G. decken, and AS. thæc a roof. The vowel a for earlier e is due to the influence of 2d THACK. See THATCH, n.] To cover with, or with a roof of, straw, reeds, or the like; to cover with or as with thatch; to roof over. — v. i. To cover something with thatch, as a roof.

thatch'er (thăch'ĕr), n. One who thatches.

thatch grass. a In South Africa, a rope grass (Restio chondropetalus). b = SLOUGH GRASS b.

thatch'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of THATCH. Hence: n. 1. Act or art of covering with thatch.

2. The material for making a thatch.

thatch palm or tree. Any of several palms the leaves of which are used for thatching. In tropical America the name is applied to several palms of the genera Thrinax, Sabal, Inodes, etc. See SILVER THATCH b, PRICKLY THATCH.

thatch'wood' (thăch'wŏŏd'), n. Brushwood, etc., arranged to resemble a thatch, as to face an embankment.

thatch'y (thăch'ĭ), adj. Composed of, or resembling, thatch.

that'n (thăt'n; thăt'-), pron. That one. Dial.

that'n, adv. In that way. Dial.

that'ness (thăt'nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. The quality of anything which makes it "that"; quality of forming a self-existent entity.

that there. That; as, that there fellow. Dial. & Illit.

thaught (thôt), n. [Cf. THWART, n.] Naut. A thwart.

Thau·man'ti·an (thô·măn'shĭ·ăn; -shăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Iris, called Thau·man'ti·as (-shĭ·ȧs) after Thau'mas (thô'măs), her father.

thau'ma·site (thô'mȧ·sīt), n. [Gr. thaumazein to wonder; — from its remarkable composition.] A white mineral consisting of the silicate, carbonate, and sulphate of calcium, with water. H., 3.5. Sp. gr., 1.88.

Thau'maste' (tô'măst'), n. An imaginary great English scholar in Rabelais's Pantagruel. He went to France to argue by signs with Pantagruel, and was overcome by Panurge.

thau'ma·to- (thô'mȧ·tō-), thaumat-. A combining form, Greek thaumato-, thaumat-, from thauma, thaumatos, meaning a thing exciting wonder, used for miracle, miraculous, magic, as in thaumatology, thaumaturgy.

thau'ma·tog'e·ny (thô'mȧ·tŏj'ē·nĭ), n. [thaumato- + -geny.] The doctrine of the miraculous origin of life; — opp. to nomogeny. Rare.

thau'ma·tog'ra·phy (-tŏg'rȧ·fĭ), n. [thaumato- + -graphy.] Description of natural wonders. Rare.

thau'ma·tol'a·try (-tŏl'ȧ·trĭ), n. [thaumato- + -latry.] Worship or undue admiration of wonderful things. Rare.

thau'ma·tol'o·gy (-ō·jĭ), n. [thaumato- + -logy.] Science or lore concerning the working of miracles or wonders.

thau'ma·trope (thô'mȧ·trōp), n. [Gr. thauma a wonder + -trope.] An optical instrument or toy for showing the persistence of an impression upon the eye. It consists of a card having on its opposite faces different designs, as figures of a bird and a cage, which, when the card is whirled rapidly round a diameter by the strings that hold it, appear to the eye combined in a single picture, as of a bird in its cage. — thau'ma·trop'i·cal (-trŏp'ĭ·kăl), adj.

thau'ma·turge (-tûrj), n. [See THAUMATURGUS.] A worker of miracles or wonders; — used of saints and, now more often, of magicians.

thau'ma·tur'gi·a (-jĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thaumatourgia.] Thaumaturgy.

thau'ma·tur'gic (thô'mȧ·tûr'jĭk), adj. Also thau'ma·tur'gi·cal (-jĭ·kăl). Of or pertaining to thaumaturgy; magical; wonderful. — thau'ma·tur'gic (-jĭk), n.

thau'ma·tur'gics (-jĭks), n. Miraculous or magical performances; also, the art of the magician. See -ICS.

thau'ma·tur'gism (-jĭz'm), n. Thaumaturgy.

thau'ma·tur'gist (thô'mȧ·tûr'jĭst), n. A thaumaturge; esp. a magician or sorcerer.

‖ thau'ma·tur'gus (thô'mȧ·tûr'gŭs), n.; pl. -GI (-jī). [ML., fr. Gr. thaumatourgos wonder-working, fr. thauma a wonder + -ergos worker, working. See THEATER, WORK.] A miracle worker; — a title given to some saints, particularly to Gregory, bishop of Neocaesarea, on account of the numerous miracles ascribed to him.

Thaumaturgus of the West. St. Bernard (1091–1153); — so called by his disciples. His ascetic life, solitary studies, and eloquence, made him the admiration of Christendom.

thau'ma·tur'gy (thô'mȧ·tûr'jĭ), n. [Gr. thaumatourgia.] The performance of miracles or wonders; specif., magic.

thau'mo·scop'ic (-mō·skŏp'ĭk), adj. [Gr. thauma a wonder + -scopic.] Of wonderful appearance. Rare.

thaw (thô), v.; THAWED (thôd); THAW'ING. [AS. thawian; akin to D. dooijen, G. tauen (also verdauen to digest, OHG. douwen, firdouwen), ON. theyja, Sw. töa, Dan. tøe, and to Gr. tēkein to melt, L. tabere to melt, waste away, tabes a wasting away. Cf. TABES.] Intransitive: 1. To melt, dissolve, or become fluid or semifluid; — said of a frozen liquid; as, the ice thaws; also, to have its frozen liquid contents melted or dissolved; as, the pipe thawed.

2. To become so warm as to melt ice and snow; — said in reference to the weather, and used impersonally.

3. To be freed from coldness or reserve; to grow gentle or genial; to unbend.

---

thanks'wor'thy, adj. Thankworthy. Obs.

thankt. Thanked. Ref. Sp.

thank'worth, adj. [AS. thancweorðe.] Thankworthy. Obs.

thank'y (thăngk'ĭ), thank'ye (-yē), Vars. of THANKEE. [THANA.] than'na, than'nah. Vars. of than'na·dar'. Var. of THANADAR.

thanne. ✝ THAN, THEN.

thanne, thannes. ✝ THENCE.

Thaph'u·a (thăf'ū·ȧ). D. Bib.

tha'ra (thā'rȧ; thär'ȧ; 79). Bib.

Thar'a·a (thär'ȧ·ȧ). D. Bib.

Thar'a·ca (-ȧ·kȧ). D. Bib.

Thar'a·na (thär'ȧ·nȧ). D. Bib.

thar'bor'ough. Obs. corrupt. of THIRDBOROUGH.

thare. ✝ THERE, THEIR.

Thar'e·la (thär'ē·lȧ). D. Bib.

tharf. ✝ THAR, v.

Thar'gum. ✝ TARGUM.

Thar'ra (thär'ȧ). Bib.

Thar·se'as (thär·sē'ăs). D. Bib.

Thar'shish (thär'shĭsh). Bib. Var. of TARSHISH (see Gen.).

Thar'sis (-sĭs). D. Bib.

Thas'si (thăs'ĭ). Bib.

thatch'less, adj. See -LESS.

thatcht. Thatched. Ref. Sp.

Tha·than'a·i (thd·thăn'ȧ·ī). D. Bib.

that's (thăts). Contr. for that is.

thau'ma·tur'gi (thô'mȧ·tûr'jĭ), n., pl. of THAUMATURGUS.

thave (thāv). Var. of THEAVE.

‖ Foreign Word. ✝ Obsolete Variant of. + combined with. = equals. Abbreviations, Signs, etc., are explained on pages immediately preceding the Vocabulary.

—, Transitive: 1. To cause (something frozen) to thaw. 2. To free from coldness or reserve; to cause to grow gentle or genial; — sometimes with out.
Syn. — See MELT. Ant. — Freeze, congeal. thaw (thô), n. 1. Act, fact, or process of thawing. 2. A warmth of weather sufficient to thaw ice. 3. State of growing less cold or reserved, or more genial.
thaw'-drop', n. A drop of water formed by melting ice or snow.
thaw'er (thô'ẽr), n. One who or that which thaws. thaw'y (-ĭ), adj.; THAW'I-ER (-ĭ-ẽr); THAW'I-EST. Thawing, or tending to thaw. Colloq.
the (thē, unaccented before a consonant, as in "the man"; thē or thĭ unaccented before a vowel, as in "the egg"; thē, emphatic or alone; 71), adj., or (as usually called) definite article. [AS. thē, a later form for earlier nom. sing. masc. sē, formed under the influence of thæt and the oblique cases. See THAT, pron.; cf. BOTH.] A demonstrative adjective used chiefly before a noun to individualize, specialize, or generalize its meaning, having a force thus distinguished from the indefinite distributive force of a, an, and from the abstract force of the unqualified noun. Thus, the man points to a particular man, as distinguished from a man and from the generic man. Special uses are: 1. Indicating identity with someone or something previously mentioned; — the most usual sense; as, he knew the child; they vetoed the measure.
☞ Sometimes used before a relative pronoun. Archaic & Dial.

Your mistress, from the whom I see There's no disjunction. Shak.

2. Limiting to a concrete application with suggestion of proximity; as, the spring is at hand; specif.: a Limiting to that which is present or immediate; — with nouns denoting time; as, news of the hour; prepare for the morrow.
☞ In Scot. & dial. Eng., equivalent to to- (in today); as,

It's my last words to you the night. Barrie.

b Limiting to a manifestation or occurrence contemplated as near; — with names of natural phenomena; as, the night is cold; the heat is intense;

The rain descended and the floods came. Matt. vii. 25.

☞ Formerly used with abstract nouns. "When she would give him the hearing." Jane Austen.
c Limiting to an immediate instance; — with gerundial verbal nouns; as, not worth the looking up; the being obliged to work. d Limiting to the part or sphere (in a subject) which is familiar in practice; — with names of arts, sciences, trades, crafts, sports, and other activities; as, at the chess; learning the dressmaking. Now Chiefly Dial., except in such phrases as the law, the ministry, the chase. e Chiefly Dial. Limiting to the individual thing, part, or supply thought of as at hand; — with names of commodities or appurtenances of daily life; as, the sugar is cheap; tired from lying in the bed; too fond of the booze.
3. Indicating uniqueness or pre-eminence; specif.: a Designating an individual or thing that has no fellow; as, the moon; the ground; the Lord; — including geographical names; as, the Hudson; the Andes; the East.
☞ Widely used in titles of literary works, publications, and artistic compositions, as in The Aeneid, The New York Times, The Last Judgment.
b Designating a period of time or, esp. formerly, a date; as, New York in the nineties. "A year they call the Forty-five." Scott. c Indicating one of a class as the best, most typical, or most worth singling out; as, the novelist of the day; this is the life.
☞ With titles and personal or class names: (1) Designating the individual of closest familiarity or association; as, the President (i. e., of the United States); the Mayor; the Continent (meaning Europe); the Renaissance. (2) Limiting a title to the individual designated by a prepositional phrase or a word in apposition; as, the Earl of Pembroke; the Lord Chief Justice. (3) Limiting a surname of an Irish or Scottish clan to its chieftain; as, the Mackintosh. (4) Taking the place of French de meaning "of"; as, the Bergundy, meaning "the Duke of Burgundy." (5) Indicating widespread reputation; — before names of literary and artistic compositions; as, the "Te Deum"; the "Paradise Lost"; the "Mona Lisa"; the "Moonlight Sonata." Also before names of actresses, singers, etc., in imitation of this use of the article in Italian and French; as, the Siddons; the Duse.
4. Indicating appurtenance to one previously mentioned or implied; — esp. with parts of the body and (Colloq.) names of relatives; as, he led her by the hand.
☞ Formerly so used before own and self; as, unlawful in the self; growing of the own accord.
5. Each; every; per; — before names of weights, measures, periods of time, etc.; as, ten cents the copy; he works by the day. Cf. A, adj.
6. Limiting a general term to the individual or class indicated by a succeeding element in the sentence; as: a By a clause, usually relative; as, the flowers that bloom in the spring; the book lying on my table. b By a prepositional phrase; as, the pure in heart; the days of our youth; the man in the iron mask; the London of Elizabeth. c By an infinitive phrase; as, the power to save; the will to believe. d By a word, esp. a proper name, in apposition; as, the satirist Dean Swift; the astronomer Galileo; — sometimes with the proper name preceding; as, Richard the Lionhearted.
7. Limiting a noun to the application specified by an accompanying adjective or adjectival phrase; as the church militant; the inevitable day; — esp. in conventional epithets; as, the Venerable Bede; Peter the Great; the White House. When a superlative or an ordinal number is used, the regularly precedes; as, with the utmost dispatch; for the hundredth time.
☞ Sometimes the noun so limited is omitted, esp. when it is the name of a language, ship, or well-known building; as, translated from the Latin; the Mauretania; the Covent Garden; the Unabridged. Also when the adjective is used absolutely; as, at the worst; for the best; Tuesday the fifth.
8. Indicating that a concrete term is to be understood generically and not individually; — by contrast with a, an; as, the pen is mightier than the sword; specif.: a Before names of living creatures (except man and woman), and precious stones; as, striped like the zebra; the rose is red, the violet blue; hard as the diamond.
☞ Used with man or woman in contrast with child, etc.; as, the child is father of the man.

The grasshopper shall be a burden. Eccl. xii. 5.

b Before names of parts of the body, its functions, attributes, ailments, etc.; as, pleasing to the eye, the appetite, the mind; food for the soul; sick with the mumps, the measles. c With names of days of the week; as, on the Sunday he goes to church (meaning, regularly on Sundays). d With words of individual meaning to indicate that they are to be understood typically; as, courtesy distinguishes the gentleman; the amateur versus the professional; to act the man, the knave.
9. Indicating that a plural noun, usually designating a nation or group, is to be understood collectively; as, laws of the Medes and Persians; keeping away from the lawyers and the doctors; wealthy as the Rothschilds.
10. Before an adjective used substantively to indicate either a class, or an abstract idea; as, a word to the wise; Burke's essay on the sublime and the beautiful. "The wicked watcheth the righteous, and seeketh to slay him."

Ps. xxxvii. 32.

— the like, the likes of. See under 5th LIKE.
the (thē), pron. [AS., fr. stem of THAT.] Who; which; that; — used as a relative. Obs.
the (thē; thĕ), adv. [AS. thē, thȳ instrumental case of sē, sēo, thæt, masc. and neut.] By that; by how much; by so much; on that account; — used before comparatives; as, the more, the merrier; so much the worse.
— the more, the more . . . the more. See under MORE, adv.
the. Var. of THEE, pron.; THY. Obs. exc. Dial.
the-. Var. of THEO.
‖thé (tā), n. [F.] Tea.
The'a (thē'ȧ), n. Feminine proper name.
The'a (thē'ȧ), n. [NL., taken by Linnaeus fr. Gr. thea goddess, as being a divine herb, but orig. fr. the source of E. TEA.] Bot. A genus of tropical Asiatic evergreen trees or shrubs typifying the family Theaceae, characterized by large, usually solitary, white or red flowers with numerous stamens connate at the base. T. sinensis is the tea plant. The garden camellias, by some included in the genus Thea, are here considered as of the genus Camellia (see CAMELLIA b).
The-a'ce-ae (thē-ā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL. See THEA.] Bot. A family of trees and shrubs (order Hypericales); the tea family. They have alternate undivided leaves, large regular pentamerous flowers, and a fleshy or capsular fruit. There are 16 genera and about 175 species, mainly tropical, but widely distributed. Thea, Stewartia, and Gordonia are ornamental in cultivation. — the-a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.
T head. See T, adj.
T'-head'ed, adj. Shaped like a T, as a T-headed bolt. See 3d BOLT, 5 Illust.
The-ag'e-nes and Char'i-cle'ia (thē-ăj'ē-nēz, kăr'ĭ-klē'yȧ; -klē'ȧ). [Gr. Theagenēs, and Charikleia.] A pair of lovers in the Ethiopica, a Greek romance by Heliodorus (74th century). Theagenes, a Thessalian, and Charicleia, an Ethiopian princess ignorant of her early history and rank, meet in the temple of Apollo at Delphi, and after wonderful adventures finally marry and rule Ethiopia.
the-an'dric (thē-ăn'drĭk), adj. Also, Obs., the-an'dri-cal (-drĭ-kăl). [Gr. theandrikos, fr. theos god + anēr, andros, a man.] Relating to, or existing by, the union of the divine and the human, whether in operation simply, or in nature, esp., Theol., as attributed to Christ.
the'an-throp'ic (thē'ăn-thrŏp'ĭk), adj. [See THEANTHROPOS.] 1. Designating, or pertaining to a human being believed to incarnate a god, or to be a god. b Theol. As applied to Christ, divine-human; both divine and human. 2. Anthropol. Partaking of the natures of a god and of man; — applied to sacrificial victims which were held to represent both the sacrificer and the god.
the'an-throp'i-cal (-ĭ-kăl), adj. Theanthropic.
the-an'thro-pism (thē-ăn'thrō-pĭz'm), n. [See THEANTHROPOS.] 1. A state of being God and man; esp., Theol., the union of the divine and human natures in Christ. 2. The ascription of human attributes to the Deity, or to a polytheistic deity; anthropomorphism; also, belief in the incarnation of deity in human form, or in the divinity of a mortal or mortals.
the-an'thro-pist (-pĭst), n. One who advocates, or believes in, some form of theanthropism.
the-an'thro-pol'o-gy (thē-ăn'thrō-pŏl'ō-jĭ), n. [See -LOGY.] Theanthropism. the-an'thro-poph'a-gy (-pŏf'ȧ-jĭ), n. [See THEANTHROPOS; -PHAGOUS.] The practice of eating a theanthropos. the'an-thro'pos (thē'ăn-thrō'pŏs), n. [Gr. theanthrōpos, fr. theos god + anthrōpos man.] A god man; a man incarnating, or believed to incarnate, God, or a god.
the-an'thro-pos'o-phy (thē-ăn'thrō-pŏs'ō-fĭ), n. A system of belief concerning theanthropism.
the-an'thro-py (thē-ăn'thrō-pĭ), n. Theanthropism.
the-ar'chic (thē-är'kĭk), adj. [Gr. thearchikos. See THEARCHY.] Divinely sovereign or supreme; also, exemplifying, or associated with, thearchy. Rare.
the'ar-chy (thē'är-kĭ), n.; pl. -CHIES (-kĭz). [Gr. theos god + -archy; cf. Gr. thearchia the supreme deity.] a Government by God; divine sovereignty; theocracy. b A body or system of divine rulers. thea'sum (thē'z'ŭm), n. These. Dial. Eng.
theat (thēt), n. [Cf. ON. thāttr a single strand of a rope, pl. thættir.] Scot. a A harness trace; — chiefly pl. b Training; running order; condition; control; as, out of theat. c Inclination; liking. theat (thēt). Variant of THIGHT. the'a-ter, the'a-tre (thē'ȧ-tẽr; thē'-; 116: obs. or dial. thē-ā'tẽr), n. [OF. theatre (F. théâtre), fr. L. theatrum, fr. Gr. theatron; akin to Gr. theasthai to see, view, thea a sight, thauma a wonder, theōros a spectator, theōrein to look at, theōria spectacle, speculation. Cf. THAUMATURGE, THEOREM, THEORY.] 1. An edifice for dramatic performances or spectacles. The typical Greek theater, as that at Athens, was an auditorium of greater than semicircular plan, constructed or hewn in the hollow of a hillside, in rising concentric tiers of seats accommodating over 10,000 spectators. At first it probably had no stage, the actors and chorus performing together in the circular orchestra, in the center of which stood the altar of Dionysus. But later an actors' booth (skēnē) was added beyond the orchestra, with a long screen wall, pierced with openings and serving as a scenic background, and, in time, as the basis of a platform. In the Roman theater — adapted from the Greek — the auditorium was often built up from the level, at first in wood, later in stone. The orchestra was a half circle, and was used for seats of honor, as for senators. At the chord of the half circle was a stage, with a curtain and a rear wall pierced by three or five doors. The medieval mysteries, miracle plays, etc., were generally given without any fixed place. The first permanent theater in London was built in 1576 by James Burbage, whose sons in 1599 built the Globe Theater, in which the principal plays of Shakespeare were produced. The latter was a wooden octagonal structure, partly open at the top, with a pit for the common folk to stand in, galleries running round three sides for the gentry, and special seats on the stage for the gallants. Modern theaters have two main parts: (1) the auditorium, balconies, tiers of boxes flanking the proscenium arch, with the entrance corridors, lobbies, foyer, etc.; (2) the stage, with its side wings and flies, and with dressing rooms, etc., for the actors.

Plan of Greek Theater at Epidaurus. 1 Orchestra; 2 Parodus; 3 Proscenium; 4 Skene; 5 Diazoma.

2. That which resembles a theater (sense 1) in form, use, or the like; as: a A place rising by steps or gradations.

Shade above shade, a woody theater Of stateliest view. Milton.

b Any room adapted to any exhibition or performance before an assembly, as a lecture, scholastic exercise, surgical clinic, etc. c Rare. An amphitheater.
3. A place or region where events, esp. of importance, are enacted; a sphere of operation; as, the theater of war.
4. The drama, esp. that of some specified country or period; dramatic literature or representation; as, the British theater; the modern theater.
5. Dramatic works collectively; as, the theater of Dryden.
6. Material or method suitable for a theatrical production; as, a play is or is not good theater.
the'a-ter-go'er, the'a-tre-go'er (thē'ȧ-tẽr-gō'ẽr; thē'-), n. One who frequents the theater. — the'a-ter-go'ing, the'a-tre-go'ing, n.
theater of operations. Mil. That part of the theater of war in which active operations are conducted. It is composed of a combat zone and a communications zone.
theater of war. Mil. The whole of the area (land or sea) which is or may become involved directly in the operations of war. It is divided into the theater of operations and the zone of the interior.
The'a-tine, The'a-tin (thē'ȧ-tĭn), n. [F. Théatin, It. Teatino.] R.C.Ch. a One of an order of Clerks Regular, established in 1524 in Italy. Their aims were to preach the Gospel, to combat Lutheranism, and to elevate clerical and lay morality. Their rule forbade begging and property holding. They trusted solely to the unsolicited generosity of the faithful. Their headquarters are in Rome, but the order is found principally in Colorado. b One of a corresponding order of nuns founded by Ursula Benincasa (d. 1618). the'a-tral (thē'ȧ-trăl), adj. [L. theatralis; cf. F. théâtral.] Of or pertaining to a theater. the'a-tre. Var. of THEATER. Chiefly Brit.
the-at'ric (thē-ăt'rĭk), adj. Theatrical; — now rarely used literally, i. e., with direct reference to the theater or drama.

Woods over woods in gay, theatric pride. Goldsmith.

the-at'ri-ca-ble (-rĭ-kȧ-b'l), adj. Producible theatrically.
the-at'ri-cal (-rĭ-kăl), adj. [LL. theatricus, fr. Gr. theatrikos.] Of or pert. to a theater or scenic or dramatic representations; as, theatrical performances; the theatrical profession; also, resembling the manner of dramatic performers; histrionic; hence, in a bad sense, showy; artificial; affected; as, theatrical gestures, costumes, declamation.

No meretricious aid whatever has been called in — no trick, no illusion of the eye, nothing theatrical. R. Jefferies.

Syn. — Stagy. See DRAMATIC.
Ant. — Simple, restrained, genuine.
the-at'ri-cal, n. 1. An action, appearance, or performance of a theatrical nature; acting. 2. pl. See THEATRICALS. theatrical gauze. A loose linen fabric, more transparent than scrim; — so called from its use for stage scenery.
the-at'ri-cal-ism (thē-ăt'rĭ-kăl-ĭz'm), n. A trait or manner-ism suited to or characteristic of the stage.
the-at'ri-cal'i-ty (thē-ăt'rĭ-kăl'ĭ-tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). 1. Character or state of being theatrical. Rare. 2. A matter connected with or pertaining to drama or the theater; sometimes, a stage performance.
3. Theatrical action or performance.
the-at'ri-cal-ize (thē-ăt'rĭ-kăl-īz), v. t. To make theatrical; to dramatize. — v. i. a To be an actor; to act. b To attend the theater, esp. habitually. — the-at'ri-cal-i-za'tion (-ĭ-zā'shŭn; -ĭ-zā'-), n.
the-at'ri-cals (-rĭ-kălz), n. pl. Dramatic performance, esp. by amateurs.
the'a-tri'cian (thē'ȧ-trĭsh'ăn), n. A specialist in the production of plays.
the-at'ri-cism (thē-ăt'rĭ-sĭz'm), n. Theatricalism.
the-at'ri-cize (-sīz), v. i. To render theatrical. — v. i. To act; to play on the stage.
the-at'rics (-rĭks), n., pl. in form but construed as sing. The art of producing effects suitable to theatrical presentation. See -ICS.
the'a-trize (thē'ȧ-trīz), v. t. To theatricize. — v. i. To act on or as on the stage.
the-at'ro- (thē-ăt'rō-). A combining form, Greek theatro-, from theatron, meaning theater, as in:

theatromania	theatrophile	theatropolis theatromaniac	theatrophobia	theatroscope the'a-troc'ra-cy (thē'ȧ-trŏk'rȧ-sĭ), n. [Gr. theatrokratia.] Government by the people assembled in their theater, as during the period of the Athenian democracy. Jowett.

the'a-tron (thē'ȧ-trŏn), n. Gr. Antiq. A theater; also, the stage of a theater. Obs. exc. Hist.
the-at'ro-phone (thē-ăt'rō-fōn), n. [theatro- + -phone.] A telephonic apparatus for enabling persons at a distance to hear the sounds from the stage of a theater. — the-at'ro-phon'ic (-fŏn'ĭk), adj.
theave (thēv; thāv), n. A young ewe, esp. one that has not yeaned. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
theb (thĕb), n. sing. & pl. [Egypt. ṭebâ, tchebā, finger.] See MEASURE, Table.

thaw'less, adj. See -LESS.
thawn (thôn). Archaic or dial. Eng. past part. of THAW. thay. † THAE, THEY.
thayn. † THANE.
the. † TEA; THEE, p.; THEY; THIGH; THO; THOUGH. thead (thĕd), n. A wicker strainer used by brewers. Obs.
T'-head' cyl'in-der. See CYLINDER, n., 8.
T-head toggle. See TOGGLE, n., 3. the'ah (thā'ȧ). Dial. var. of THEEF. theak. Var. of THEEK. theal, n. [AS. -thela, thel(l). See THILL.] A plank; a board. Obs. theam. † TEAM, right to hold court; THEME.
the'a-ter-craft', the'a-tre-craft', n. See -CRAFT. the'a-te'ri-an, n. An actor. Obs. the'a-ter-less, the'a-tre-less, adj. See -LESS. [adj. See -LIKE.]
the'a-ter-like', the'a-tre-like', the'a-ter-ward, the'a-ter-wards, the'a-tre-ward, the'a-tre-wards, adv. See -WARD.
the'a-ter-wise', the'a-tre-wise', adv. See -WISE.
Thé'â'tre Fran'çais' (tā'ȧ'tr' frăn'sā'). See COMÉDIE FRANÇAISE. the-at'ri-cal-ly, adv. of THEATRICAL.
the-at'ri-cal-ness, n. See -NESS.
the-at'ro-graph (thē-ăt'rō-grăf), n. [theatro- + -graph.] See MOTION PICTURE. the'a-try, n. = THEATER. Obs.
the-ba'ia (thē-bā'yȧ), n. [NL.] Chem. Thebaine. Obs.

The·ba'ic (thē·bā'ĭk), adj. [L. Thebaicus, fr. Gr. Thēbaikos.] Of or pertaining to Thebes in Egypt; Sahidic. — n. Sahidic.

The'ba·id (thē'bā·ĭd; thē·bā'-), -is (-ĭs), n. [L. Thebais, -idis.] 1. The district about Thebes (Egypt or Boeotia). 2. A Latin epic poem in twelve books by Statius on the subject of the Seven against Thebes.

The'ba·id, adj. Thebaic.

the'ba·ine (thē'bȧ·ēn; thē·bā'ēn; -ĭn), n. Also -in (-ĭn). [From a kind of Egyptian opium produced at Thebes, fr. L. Thebae, fr. Gr. Thēbai, Thēbē, Thebes.] Chem. A white, crystalline, poisonous alkaloid, $C_{19}H_{21}NO_3$, found in opium in small quantities, and related chemically to morphine and codeine. It has a sharp astringent taste and a tetanic action like strychnine.

the'ba·ism (thē'bȧ·ĭz'm; thē·bā'-), n. Med. a The morbid condition produced by thebaine. b Opiumism.

The'ban (thē'bȧn), adj. [L. Thebanus.] Of or pertaining to Thebes, esp. the city of Upper Egypt, the capital of ancient Egypt during its period of greatest empire and highest art, or the chief city of ancient Boeotia, the most powerful state in Greece from about 370 to 360 B.C., under Epaminondas. — n. One of the people of Thebes.

Theban Eagle, Theban Bard. Pindar; — so called from the sublimity and sustained power of his odes.

Theban year. The Egyptian year of 365 days, 6 hours.

The·be'sian (thē·bē'zhȧn), adj. Named after Adam Christian Thebesius (1686–1732), German anatomist.

Thebesian foramina. Anat. Openings for the Thebesian veins, on the inner surface of the right auricle.

Thebesian valve. Anat. The valve guarding the orifice of the coronary sinus.

Thebesian veins. Anat. Small veins which return the blood from the muscle of the heart directly into the right auricle.

the'ca (thē'kȧ), n.; pl. THECAE (-sē). [L., fr. Gr. thēkē a case to put anything in. See TICK a cover.] 1. Bot. A sac, capsule, or spore case; specif.: a The capsule of a moss. b The pollen sac of an anther; also, Obs., an anther. c An ascus. d The sporangium of a fern.

2. Zool. & Anat. A sheath or case; as: the cuticle enclosing an insect pupa; the tubular part of the proboscis of a dipterous fly; the dura mater (‖ the'ca ver'te·bra'lis [vûr'tē·brā'lĭs]) of the spinal cord; the dense layer of stroma (‖ the'ca fol·li'cu·li [fŏ·lĭk'ū·lī]) surrounding a mature Graafian follicle; esp.: a In hydroids of the group Leptomedusae and in the graptolites, the hydrotheca. b In corals, the calcareous wall of a calicle. c In infusorians, rotifers, etc., a protective tube secreted by the surface of the body. d In crinoids, the dorsal cup of the calyx.

-the'ca [NL.] A combining form, Latin -theca, from Greek -thēkē, receptacle for, from thēkē, a case, as in pinacotheca; — used to denote a (specified) type of theca, as in Anomatheca, endotheca, myxotheca.

‖the'ca fol·li'cu·li (fŏ·lĭk'ū·lī). [NL.] Anat. The outer covering of the Graafian follicle, differentiated from the stroma of the ovary. It consists of two layers, the ‖ tu'ni·ca, or ‖ the'ca, ex·ter'na (tū'nĭ·kȧ ĕks·tûr'nȧ), made up of fibrous and muscular tissue, and the ‖ tu'ni·ca, or ‖ the'ca, in·ter'na (ĭn·tûr'nȧ), which is highly vascular and takes part in the formation of the corpus luteum.

the'cal (thē'kȧl), adj. Of or pertaining to a theca; as, a thecal cyst, a circumscribed swelling of a tendon sheath.

the'ca·phore (thē'kȧ·fōr; 181), n. [theca + -phore.] Bot. a A surface or organ bearing a theca. b A gynophore.

the'ca·spore (-spōr; 181), n. [theca + -spore.] Bot. An ascospore. — the·cas'po·ral (thē·kăs'pō·rȧl; thē'kȧ·spō'rȧl), the'ca·spored (thē'kȧ·spōrd), the·cas'po·rous (thē·kăs'pō·rŭs; thē'kȧ·spō'rŭs), adj.

The·ca'ta (thē·kā'tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thēkē a case.] Zool. Syn. of LEPTOMEDUSAE.

the'cate (thē'kāt), adj. Having a theca.

theci-. A combining form for theca, as in: theciferous, theciform, thecigerous.

the·ci'tis (thē·sī'tĭs), n. [NL. See THECA; -ITIS.] Med. Inflammation of a sheath, specif. that of a tendon.

the'ci·um (thē'shĭ·ŭm; -sĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -CIA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. thēkē a case.] a In lichens, the fertile part of the apothecium. b In fungi, the hymenium.

-the'ci·um. [NL.] Bot. & Zool. A combining form from Greek thēkion, a small receptacle, dim. of thēkē a case, denoting a small containing structure, as in amphithecium, apothecium, endothecium, perithecium, zoothecium.

Thec'la, Thek'la (thĕk'lȧ), n. [L., Gr.] Fem. proper name.

Thec'la (thĕk'lȧ), n. [NL., prob. fr. the personal name Thecla, Thekla.] Zool. a The chief genus of hairstreak butterflies. b [not cap.] A hairstreak butterfly. — thec'lan (-lȧn), adj.

Thecla (T. melinus) which feeds on the Hopvine. Nat. size.

Thec'la, Saint. A saint of the early church, who, according to Apocryphal sources, accompanied St. Paul on some of his missionary journeys. She is called the protomartyr among women.

the'co- (thē'kō-), thec-. A combining form from Greek thēkē, a case, used for theca, as in Thecosomata, thecitis.

the'co·dont (thē'kō·dŏnt), adj. [thec- + -odont.] Zool. & Paleontol. Having the teeth inserted in sockets in the alveoli. — n. A thecodont reptile.

the'co·glos'sate (thē'kō·glŏs'āt), adj. [theco- + glossate.] Zool. Having the tongue smooth and retractile into a sheath; — said of certain lizards.

The·coph'o·ra (thē·kŏf'ō·rȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. theco- + -phora.] Zool. a Syn. of LEPTOMEDUSAE. b Formerly, a division of turtles comprising all recent turtles except the leatherback.

The'co·so'ma·ta (thē'kō·sō'mȧ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL. See THECA; SOMA body.] Zool. A formerly recognized primary division of Pteropoda, comprising those with a shell. — the'co·som'a·tous (-sōm'ȧ·tŭs; -sō'mȧ·tŭs), adj.

‖thé' dan'sant' (tā' dăn'săn'); pl. THÉS DANSANTS (tā' dăn'-săn'). [F.] A tea dance.

thee (thē), pron. [AS. thē, acc. & dat. of thū thou. See THOU.] The objective case of thou. Thee is used: 1. As dative of indirect object: a In connection with a direct object.

Solomon the king . . . will not say thee nay. 1 Kings ii. 17.

b Designating the person addressed as concerned.

I'll devise thee brave punishments for him. Shak.

c Used with an impersonal verb. "Do what seemeth thee good." 1 Sam. i. 23. d Thyself; — used reflexively.

Get thee a sword. Shak.

2. As direct object of a verb or preposition.

If thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out. Matt. v. 29.

Sometimes, reflexively, thyself. "Thou bearest thee like a king." Shak. Of thee is sometimes an emphatic possessive for thy. "To break the pate of thee." Shak.

3. a Ungrammatically for thou in dialect or among Friends, esp. after than, but, and in similar disjunctive constructions, or as predicate substitute; as, I would not be thee. b Dial. & Illit. For thy.

thee (thē), v. i. To use thee in discourse instead of you, or, after the manner of the Friends, instead of thou. — v. t. To address as thee. Cf. THOU, v.

thee, n. The word thee as used in discourse or conversation.

thee (thē), v. i. [AS. thēon; akin to OS. thīhan, D. gedijen, G. gedeihen, OHG. gidīhan, Goth. theihan. See TIGHT.] To thrive; prosper; grow; increase. Obs.

thee (thē). Var. of THIGH. Obs. exc. Dial.

theek (thēk), v. t.; THEEKED (thēkt); THEEK'ING. [Cf. ON. thekja. See THATCH, v.] To thatch; to cover. — theek'er (-ẽr), n. Both Scot. & Dial. Eng.

theek, n. [See THEEK, v.] Thatching. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

thee'lin (thē'lĭn), n. [Gr. thēlys female + -in.] Biochem. A colorless, crystalline water-soluble hormone that stimulates changes characteristic of oestrus and induces growth of the female genital organs; — called also oestrin. It is found esp. in the follicular fluid, but also in the placenta, and blood and urine of pregnant females. It is not specific for any species.

thee'lol (-lōl; -lŏl), n. [See THEELIN.] Biochem. An oestrus-promoting hormone obtained from the urine of pregnant females and esp. active in immature animals. It is a trihydroxy alcohol. Cf. THEELIN.

theet'see (thēt'sē), n. [Burmese ôitse. See THITSIOL.] The black-varnish tree; also, the varnish from it.

thee'zan tea (thē'zȧn). [From NL. Thea. See THEA.] A Chinese shrub (Sageretia theezans) with edible fruit. Its leaves are often used by the poor in place of tea.

theft (thĕft), n. [ME. thefte, thiefthe, theofthe, fr. AS. thēoft, thīefth, thȳfth, thēofth. See THIEF.] 1. Act of stealing; specif., the felonious taking and removing of personal property, with intent to deprive the rightful owner of it; larceny. In various penal codes in the United States theft is defined so as to include embezzlement and in some cases "any unlawful acquisition of property." Constructive theft is the misappropriation or wrongful use of personal property originally lawfully taken or received. The various forms of stealing, or wrongful taking of the personal property of another, are differentiated both at common law and under various statutes. Stealing and theft, esp. in popular use, are broader terms than larceny, and may include swindling as well as embezzlement. Burglary involves the unlawful breaking and entering a building with intent to commit any felony and although stealing is the commonest felony intended it is not necessary to the crime of burglary. Embezzlement, swindling and the taking of property by fraud are statutory crimes, the definitions varying in different jurisdictions. Larceny is the felonious taking of property without the owner's consent, but without violence or intimidation; it usually implies a surreptitious, concealed taking, as in pocket picking. Robbery is larceny with violence or intimidation, as in highway robbery or a holdup. See the italicized terms.

2. That which is stolen. Obs.

If the theft be certainly found in his hand alive, . . . he shall restore double. Ex. xxii. 4.

theft'bote' (thĕft'bōt'), n. [theft + bote compensation.] O. Eng. & Scots Law. The receiving of a stolen thing or a compensation from a thief, whether by the owner by way of composition or by a judge or other person as an inducement for conniving at the escape of the thief.

theft'dom (-dŭm), n. [See -DOM.] Thievery. Scot.

theft insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1.

thef'tu·ous (thĕf'tū·ŭs), adj. Thievish. — thef'tu·ous·ly, adv.

the·gith'er, -geth'er (thē·gĭth'ẽr; -gĕth'-), the·gid'der (-gĭd'ẽr), adv. Together. Chiefly Scot.

thegn (thān), n. A variant of THANE, esp. as used by some recent historians to distinguish the Anglo-Saxon (AS. thegen; see THANE, 1) from the Scottish use (see THANE, 2).

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

thegn-born	thegnhood	thegnlike	thegnship
thegndom	thegnland	thegn-right	thegnworthy thegn'ly (-lĭ), adj. [Cf. AS. thegenlīc manly, manful.] Of or pertaining to a thane; of the character or status of a thane.

The'ia (thē'yȧ; thī'ȧ), n. [Gr.] Gr. Myth. A Titaness, sister and wife of Hyperion.

the'i·form (thē'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [See THEA; -FORM.] Having the form of tea or of the tea plant.

Thei·le'ri·a (thī·lē'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Sir Arnold Theiler (b. 1867), Swiss-Eng. veterinary bacteriologist.] Zool. A genus of microparasitic protozoans (class Sporozoa) which produce serious disease in livestock. It was formerly included in Babesia (which see).

the'ine (thē'ēn; -ĭn), n. Also the'in (-ĭn). [F. théine, fr. NL. thea. See THEA.] Chem. Caffeine; — so called from its occurrence in tea.

their (thâr; 71; 134), pron. [ME. thair, fr. ON. theirra, theira, of them, but prop. gen. pl. of the demonstrative pron. and article; akin to AS. thāra, thǣra, gen. pl. of the article; some forms perh. fr. AS. thǣra. See THEY, THAT.] 1. The possessive case of they: a Of them; of themselves; — used in partitive and other constructions having in Old English a genitive case. Obs., except in such phrases as in their midst. b Of them; — used as an objective genitive; as, in their defense. Their in all attributive uses is now generally regarded as a possessive adjective. c Archaic & Dial. Used with nouns simply as a sign of the possessive in the same way as his. Cf. HIS, pron.

2. = THEIRS. Obs.

their, adj. [Possessive case of they. See THEIR, pron.] 1. Of or belonging to them or themselves as possessors; due to them; inherent in them; associated or connected with them; as, their property; their political power; their neighbors.

2. Of or relating to them as authors, doers, givers, agents, etc.; effected by them; experienced by them as subjects; that they are capable of; as, their verses; war prevented their continuing the experiment; to do their utmost.

3. Of or relating to them as objects of an action; experienced by them as objects; as, their subjugation; their supporters.

4. That they have to do with or are supposed to possess or to have knowledge or a share of or some interest in; as, they certainly knew their Bible.

5. In relation to a singular antecedent, esp. to avoid specification of gender; as, everybody must show their ticket; — grammatically incorrect, but in common use.

theirn (thârn), pron. Theirs. Now Only Dial.

theirs (thârz), pron. 1. The possessive form of their used absolutely, that is, without a following noun; — often after of. See POSSESSIVE, n.

That gloomy friend of theirs. J. T. Fields.

Theirs not to make reply. Tennyson.

2. Their; — used as the first of two possessives before a noun; as, theirs or our country. Obs.

their·selves' (thâr·sĕlvz'; thẽr-; -sĕlz'), their·sens' (-sĕnz'), pron. Themselves. Dial.

the'ism (thē'ĭz'm), n. [NL. thea tea + -ism.] Med. The morbid condition resulting from the excessive use of tea.

the'ism (thē'ĭz'm), n. [Gr. theos god; akin to Lith. dvasė spirit, soul, ghost, (old & dial.) breath, AS. dwæscan to extinguish, MHG. getwas ghost, L. feralis relating to the dead, OSlav. duchŭ breath, spirit, Gaulish dusios unclean spirit, demon, incubus, and to L. bestia beast, fumus smoke. Cf. APOTHEOSIS, BEAST, DEER, DUSIO, ENTHUSIASM, FERALIA, FUME, PANTHEON, REINDEER, THEOLOGY.] Belief in the existence of a god or gods; as: a Belief in superhuman powers or spiritual agencies in one or many gods. b Esp., belief that there is but one God; monotheism. c More exactly, belief in the existence of one God, transcending the universe in his personality yet immanent in it in his knowledge and action; as, Christian theism. In all senses, theism is opposed to atheism. In sense b it is opposed also to henotheism and polytheism; in sense c, to pantheism and deism, although it combines the positive elements of both. Unlike historic deism, it does not deny revelation.

-the'ism (-thē'ĭz'm). A combining form of theism, as in:

allotheism	egotheism	nomotheism
animotheism	hecastotheism	pantheism anthropotheism	henotheism	physitheism
autotheism	herotheism	psychotheism
chrematheism	hylotheism	sciotheism
cosmotheism	monotheism	theriotheism ditheism	multitheism	sootheism
dyotheism	myriotheism the'ist (thē'ĭst), n. [Cf. F. théiste.] A believer in theism. — the'ist, adj.

the·is'tic (thē·ĭs'tĭk), adj. Also the·is'ti·cal (-tĭ·kȧl). Of or pertaining to theism or a theist; believing in theism. — the·is'ti·cal·ly, adv.

thel-. = THELO- (which see), as in the·lal'gi·a, the·lon'cus.

Thé'lème', Abbey of (tā'lĕm'). [Gr. thelēma will, desire.] An imaginary abbey in Rabelais's Gargantua, given to Friar John for helping to subject the people of Lerne. The religious order that is to occupy it is to have as motto: "Fais ce que vouldras" (Do what thou wilt).

The·lem'ite (tā·lĕm'ĭt), n. A dweller in Thélème; hence [not cap.], one who does as he pleases; esp., a libertine.

Thel'e·pho·ra'ce·ae (thĕl'ē·fō·rā'sē·ē), n. pl. Bot. A family of fungi (order Agaricales) with mostly leathery or membranous sporophores bearing smooth basidial surfaces. It is typified by the genus The·leph'o·ra (thē·lĕf'ō·rȧ).

The·lig'o·num (thē·lĭg'ō·nŭm), n. Also The·lygʼo·num, a later spelling. [NL., fr. Gr. thēlygonon, a certain plant, lit., producing females.] Syn. of CYNOCRAMBE.

the·li'tis (thē·lī'tĭs), n. [NL.; thel- + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the nipple.

the'li·um (thē'lĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thēlē nipple.] Anat. a A papilla. b A nipple.

Thel'lus·son Act (tĕl'ŭ·s'n; tĕ'lŭ'sŏn'). [After Peter Thellusson (1737–97), London merchant, whose will, leaving a large fortune to accumulate for several generations, was the occasion of the act.] Eng. An act (39 & 40 Geo. III, c. 98, 1800) regulating accumulations. See ACCUMULATION, 2 c.

the'lo- (thē'lō-), thel-. [See FEMININE.] A combining form, Greek thēlo-, thēl-, from thēlē, meaning nipple, as in the'lor·rha'gi·a.

Thel'o·dus (thĕl'ō·dŭs; thē'lō-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thēlys feminine, tender, delicate + -odus.] Paleontol. A genus of Silurian and Devonian ostracoderms (order Heterostraci), having small dermal tubercles consisting of dentine and enamel. It typifies a family, Thel'o·don'ti dae (-dŏn'tĭ·dē).

Thel·phu'si·dae (thĕl·fū'sĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A family of fresh-water crabs which live in or on banks of rivers in warm countries. The typical genus is Thel·phu'sa (-sȧ).—thel·phu'si·an (-sĭ·ăn; -shăn) adj. & n.

One of the Thelphusidae (Thelphusa fluviatilis).

thely-. Comb. form, Greek thēlys-, from thēlys, meaning female, as in the·lyt'o·ky (= THELYOTOKY), thel'y·plas'ty, thel'y·ton'ic.

thel'y·blast (thĕl'ĭ·blăst), n. [thely- + -blast.] Biol. A female genoblast. — thel'y·blas'tic (-blăs'tĭk), adj. Both Rare.

thel'y·ot'o·ky (-ŏt'ō·kĭ), n. [thely- + -toky.] Parthenogenetic production of females. Cf. AMPHEROTOKY. — thel'y·ot'o·kous (-kŭs), adj.

The·lyph'o·nus (thē·lĭf'ō·nŭs), n. [NL., fr. thely- + Gr. phonos a killing.] Zool. A genus of whip scorpions, the type of a family, Thel'y·phon'i·dae (thĕl'ĭ·fŏn'ĭ·dē).

them (thĕm; 71), pron. [AS. thēm, dat. pl. of the demonstrative pron. and article, but influenced by the ON. use of the corresp. form theim as a personal pronoun. See THAT, THEY.] The objective case of they, used: a As dative of indirect object; as, give them drink. b As direct object of a verb or preposition. "Go ye rather to them that sell." Matt. xxv. 9. c Archaic. As reflexive for themselves, either direct or indirect object.

Little stars may hide them when they list. Shak.

d Ungrammatically for they in colloquial and dial. speech; as, it was not them we saw; them are the ones I mean. e In reference to a singular antecedent to avoid specifying gender; as, nobody has more to vex them.

☞ The constructions of them are analogous to those of thee, which is more fully treated. See THEE.

them, adj. Those; — often followed by there. Now Dial.

The'bes (thē'bēz). Bib.

theco-. = THECO-.

the'ca·glos'sate, adj. Var. of THECOGLOSSATE.

The'ca·moe'bae (thē'kȧ·mē'bē), n. pl. [NL., fr. thec- + amoeba.] Zool. Syn. of TESTACEA.

theck. Scot. var. of THEEK.

The·co'e (thē·kō'ē). Bib.

The·coi'de·a (thē·koi'dē·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thēkē a case + -oid.] Paleontol. Syn. of EDRIOASTEROIDEA. — the'coid (thē'koid), adj. & n.

The·cu'a (thē·kū'ȧ). D. Bib.

The·cu'ath (-kĭth). D. Bib.

The·cu'e (-ē). D. Bib.

The·cu'ites (-ĭts), n. pl. D. Bib.

thede. † THEAD.

thee'dom, n. [thee to prosper + -dom.] Success; prosperity; thrift. Obs.

Thee·mim' (thē·mĭm'), n. [Ar. tawāim twins.] See STAR, Table.

theer. Dial. Eng. var. of THEIR.

theet. Var. of THIGHT.

theft'less, adj. See -LESS.

theft'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

The'gath·pha·la'sar (thē'gĭth·phȧ·lā'sẽr). D. Bib.

thei. † THEY, THIGH, THOUGH.

thein. Var. of THANE.

the·i'na (thē·ī'nȧ), n. Chem. Theine. Obs.

the'i·nism (thē'ĭ·nĭz'm), n. = THEIN.

their. † THERE.

theke. † THEEK.

Thek'la. Var. of 1st THECLA.

The·la'sar (thē·lā'sẽr). Bib.

The·ler'sas (thē·lûr'sȧs). Bib.

Thel'gath·phal·na'sar (thĕl'gĭth·făl·nā'sẽr). D. Bib.

The·lig'o·na'ce·ae (thē·lĭg'ō·nā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of CYNOCRAMBACEAE. — the·lig'o·na'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

thel'y·to'ci·a (thĕl'ĭ·tō'shĭ·ȧ). [NL.] = THELYOTOKY.

the'ma (thē'mȧ), n.; pl. THEMATA (-mȧ-tȧ). [L.; cf. G. thema, It. tema. See THEME.] 1. A theme, topic, or subject of discourse or of a written dissertation; a thesis; a theme (sense 1).
2. = THEME, n., 6.
3. Logic. A meaning as comprised in a unit of discourse, such as a term or proposition, or in a single argument.
4. Music. = THEME, n., 10.

the·mat'ic (thē-mȧt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. thematikos.] 1. Gram. Of or pert. to the theme, or stem, of a word; of a vowel, attached invariably to a theme or tense stem before an inflectional ending (Gr. luge-; AS. ber-i-th). See THEME, n., 11.
2. Music. Of, pert. to, or containing, a theme or themes.
3. Of or pert. to a theme; relating to a topic or discourse.

the·mat'i·cal (-ĭ-kȧl), adj. Thematic. — the·mat'i·cal·ly, adv.

thematic catalogue or index. Music. A catalogue or index of musical works which, besides the title, opus number, etc., gives in notes the opening theme, or first few measures, of a work or of each of its movements.

thematic verb. Philol. A verb whose present-tense stem ends in the thematic vowel e:o, as Latin sequ-e: sequ-o. See THEME, n., 11.

thematic vowel. Philol. A vowel ending the stem or theme (see THEME, n., 11) of a noun or verb, but not belonging to the root; esp., the varying e:o (see GRADE, n., 11 a), as in Latin serv-o-s (nom.), serv-e (voc.), slave.

the'ma·tist (thē'mȧ-tĭst), n. One who composes themes.

theme (thēm), n. [ME. teme, fr. OF. teme (F. thème), fr. L. thema, fr. Gr. thema, fr. root of tithenai to set, place. See DO; cf. THESIS.] 1. A subject or topic on which a person writes or speaks; a proposition for discussion or argument.

My theme is alway one and ever was. Chaucer.

2. Discourse on a certain subject. Obs.
3. A brief dissertation or essay required of a student as an exercise; a composition.
4. In the Elizabethan theater, an improvisation in verse on a topic offered from the audience.
5. Means or instrument for effecting something. Obs.
6. An administrative division of the Byzantine Empire.
7. Astrol. = HOROSCOPE, 1 c.
8. Gram. A noun or verb not modified by inflections.
9. Logic. = THEMA, 3.
10. Music. A melodic subject of a composition or a movement; a short melody constituting the basis of variation, development, or other repetition with modification. See SUBJECT, n., 13.
11. Philol. The stem of a noun (substantive or adjective) or verb, to which endings for case, number, and person are added, as servo- in Latin servo-s (servus), nom., slave, ama- in Latin ama-s, thou lovest. It consists of the root in any ablaut grade (see GRADE, n., 11 a), unextended, or extended by one or more affixes, an infix, or the thematic vowel (see THEMATIC VOWEL), as in Latin con-serv-o-s, fellow slave, ama-ba-t, he was loving.
Syn. — Subject, topic, matter.

theme (thēm), v. t.; THEMED (thēmd); THEM'ING (thēm'-ĭng). To give a topic, subject, text, or the like, to; to furnish with a subject.

theme and variations. Music. One of the standard forms of musical composition. It consists of a simple melody (the theme), usually harmonized, presented first in its original unadorned form, then repeated several or many times, the repetitions (the variations) being so varied in treatment that the listener's interest is maintained, but so based on the theme that at least some semblance of its general melodic or harmonic form is evident.

them'er (them'ĕr), n. One who prescribes a theme. Rare.

theme song. In a musical dramatic performance, a melody recurring so often that it characterizes the production or one of its principal characters; hence, Colloq., an assertion, complaint, or the like, repeated so often as to be regarded as characteristic of its user.

The'mis (thē'mĭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Themis, the same word as themis that which is laid down or established by usage, law. See DOOM.] 1. Gr. Relig. A form of the earth goddess viewed, in a moral aspect, as the law and harmony of physical phenomena. In mythology she is a Titaness, daughter of Uranus, and a wife of Zeus. She is also mother of Prometheus. See DELPHIN ORACLE; cf. GAEA; PHOEBE, 1.
2. [sometimes not cap.] Divinely or traditionally sanctioned law; — an abstract use.
3. Astron. a The 24th asteroid, discovered by de Gasparis at Naples, 1853. b See SATURN, 2.

The·mis'ti·an (thē-mĭs'tĭ-ȧn; -chȧn), n. [ML. Themistianus.] An Agnoete. See AGNOETAE b.

them·selves' (thĕm-sĕlvz'; 71), pron. An emphasized form of the personal pronoun for the 3d person pl.; the plural of himself, herself, and itself. It is used: a For emphasis; — usually in apposition with a pronoun or noun; as, they themselves are to blame. b Specif., for "their true or normal selves." Cf. HIMSELF, 2. c Reflexively; as, they betrayed themselves.

then (thĕn), adv. [Orig. the same word as than. See THAN.] 1. At that time (referring to a time specified); as, science as it was then taught.

Then shall I know even as also I am known. 1 Cor. xiii. 12.

2. Soon or immediately after this; for a time thereafter; next after that in order of time; as, then came a pause; we then retraced our steps; — often implying relation to the preceding act or fact as the means, sign, or cause.

First be reconciled to thy brother, and then come. Matt. v. 24.
Then I began to half surmise the truth. Browning.

3. Following next after this in order of position, narration, enumeration, etc.; in addition to this or these just mentioned; besides.

And then she had a charm of strange device. Shelley.

4. In that case; specif.: a If such be the fact; under such circumstances; as, keep it, then (that is, if you insist); after an adversative, to offset or qualify that; as, he won fame, but then fame is ephemeral.

If ye wolde have rowthe, . . . than wolde I telle yow. Gower.

b According to that; as is evident or inferable from what another has said or done; as, you did go there, then; in summary or recapitulation; as, the chief conjunctions, then, are: and, but, for, or; in consideration of such obligation or argument; as, try hard, then, to succeed. c As a logical or necessary consequence; as, if the angles are equal, then their complements are equal.
5. At another time; again; — chiefly as a correlative of now.
Syn. — See THEREFORE.

— and then some. With much more in addition. Slang, U. S. — by then. By the time that; — formerly with that. Now Dial. — so then. See under SO, adv. — then and there. At that very instant and place; on the spot.

then (thĕn), adj. Existing, acting at, or belonging to, the time mentioned; as, the then current of opinion; the then Secretary of State. Cf. ONCE, adj.

then (thĕn; thān), conj. 1. = THAN. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. At the time at which; when. Obs.

then (thĕn), n. That time; as, by or till then; also, a specified past or hypothetical time; as, my happy then.

then'a·bouts' (thĕn'ȧ-bouts'), adv. Near that time.

then'a·days' (-dāz'), adv. At that time; then. Cf. NOWADAYS.

the'nar (thē'när), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thenar.] Anat. a The palm of the hand. b The prominence of the palm at the base of the thumb; the ball of the thumb; — sometimes extended to the corresponding part of the foot.

the'nar (thē'när), the'nal (-nȧl), adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to the thenar; corresponding to the thenar; palmar.

the·nard'ite (thē-när'dīt; tȧ-), n. [After L. J. Thénard (1777–1857), French chemist.] Mineral. Native anhydrous sodium sulphate, Na_2SO_4, occurring in white or brownish crystals, masses, or crusts, often in connection with salt lakes.

thence (thĕns), adv. [ME. thenne, thanne, and (with the adverbial -s; see -WARDS) thennes, thannes (hence thens, now written thence), fr. AS. thanon, thanan, thonan; akin to OHG. dannana, dannān, danān, and G. von dannen, E. that, there. See THAT.] 1. From that place; — sometimes pleonastically preceded by from. "Bid him thence go." Chaucer.

Then I will send, and fetch thee from thence. Gen. xxvii. 45.

2. a Formerly, not there; elsewhere. "Wert thou thence." Shak. b Off or away from there, in distance; as, two miles thence.
3. From that time; thenceforth; thereafter; after that. "A fortnight thence." Scott.
4. From that circumstance or fact, by inference; therefore; — sometimes used conjunctively; as, hopeless and thence helpless.

thence'aft'er (thĕns'äf'tĕr), adv. Afterward. Rare.

thence'forth' (thĕns'fôrth'; thĕns'fôrth'; 181), adv. From that time, or rarely place, forward; thereafter; — sometimes pleonastically preceded by from.

thence'for'ward (thĕns'fôr'wĕrd), adv. Onward from that place or, esp., time; thenceforth.

thence'for'wards (-wĕrdz), adv. Thenceforward.

thence'from' (-frŏm'), adv. From that place. Archaic.

thence'ward (thĕns'wĕrd), adv. Thence.

then'-clause', n. Gram. The conclusional clause of a conditional sentence. Cf. IF-CLAUSE.

then'ness (thĕn'nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. The state or quality of existence in a specified past time.

the noo (thē nōō). Scot. a Just now. b At present. c Immediately.

the'o- (thē'ō-), the-. [See THEISM.] A combining form, Greek theo-, the-, from theos, meaning god, as in theology; denoting also theological and.

theoanthropomorphic	theognostic	theophilist
theoanthropomorphism	theohuman	theophysical
theoastrological	theolepsy	theopolitician
theocollectivism	theoleptic	theopolitics theocollectivist	theomammomist	theopolity theodemocracy	theomisanthropist	theopsychism theodicæa	theomythologer	theoteleological
theogeological	theophilanthrope	theoteleology

The'o·bald (thē'ō-bôld, formerly tĭb'ȧld; 3), n. [Prob. fr. a Latinization Theobaldus of the OG. or AS. name; cf. AS. Thēodbeald, OG. Theodbald, Theodebald, Theudebald; fr. a word meaning people + one meaning bold; cf. F. Thibaut. See DUTCH; BOLD. Cf. TYBALT.] Literally, bold for the people; — masculine proper name. F. Thibaut (tē'bō'); It. Teobaldo (tā'ō-bäl'dō); Sp. Theudebaldo (tā'oō-dā-bäl'-dō); Pg. Theobaldo (tā'oō-bäl'doō); G. Dietbold (dēt'bôlt).

The'o·bro'ma (thē'ō-brō'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. theo- + Gr. brōma food.] Bot. A genus of tropical American trees of the chocolate family (Sterculiaceae), having large, simple leaves, small flowers with inflexed petals, borne on the old wood, and large fleshy fruits. See CACAO.

theobroma oil. Cacao butter. See CACAO, 2.

the'o·bro'mine (thē'ō-brō'mēn; -mĭn), n. Also -min. Chem. A bitter white crystalline compound, $C_7H_8N_4O_2$, the principal alkaloid of cacao beans and chocolate (from Theobroma cacao), found in small amounts in the kola nut, tea, etc., and also prepared artificially; 3,7-dimethyl-xanthine. It is closely related to caffeine. Theobromine salts and derivatives are used as diuretics.

the'o·cen'tric (-sĕn'trĭk), adj. [theo- + -centric.] Assuming God as the center; making the divine sovereignty and glory the central truth; — applied to theories of the universe or of any part of it. As applied to theology, making God the center of interest. Cf. ANTHROPOCENTRIC; CHRISTOCENTRIC. — the'o·cen'tri·cism (-trĭ-sĭz'm), n. — the'o·cen'trism (-trĭz'm), n.

the'o·chris'tic (-krĭs'tĭk), adj. [Gr. theochristos, fr. theos God + christos anointed.] Anointed by God. Rare.

the'o·ra·cy (thē-ŏk'rȧ-sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [Gr. theokratia, fr. theos God + kratein, to rule, kratos authority; cf. F. théocratie. See THEISM; HARD. Cf. DEMOCRACY.]
1. Government of a state by the immediate direction or administration of God; hence, government or political rule by priests or clergy as representatives of God.
2. A state so governed, as the Hebrew commonwealth before it became a kingdom.

the·oc'ra·sy (-sĭ), n. [G. theokrasia, fr. theos God + krasis a mixing. See CRASIS.] 1. Also the'o·kra'si·a (thē'ō-krā'-zhĭ-ȧ; -zĭ-ȧ). A fusion of the divinities of different religions in the thought of worshipers; a mixture of the worship of different gods, as of Jehovah and idols.
2. Gr. Relig. A confusion or identification of deities, common in the later phases of ancient religion, as in the invocation of Zeus-Helios as one god in spite of the fact that in earlier religion Zeus and Helios were quite distinct.
3. Philos. An intimate union of the soul with God in contemplation. Cf. NEOPLATONISM.

— the'o·cras'i·cal (thē'ō-krăs'ĭ-kȧl), adj.

the'o·crat (thē'ō-krăt), n. a One who rules in or lives under a theocratic form of government. b One who favors a theocratic form of government.

the'o·crat'ic (-krăt'ĭk), adj. Also the'o·crat'i·cal (-ĭ-kȧl). Of or pertaining to, or being, a theocracy; as, a theocratic state. — the'o·crat'i·cal·ly, adv.

the·oc'ra·tist (thē-ŏk'rȧ-tĭst), n. One who holds the principle of theocracy. — the·oc'ra·tist, adj.

The·oc'ri·tan (-rĭ-tȧn), adj. Theocritean.

The·oc'ri·te'an (-tē'ȧn), adj. Of, pert. to, or in the manner of, the Greek poet Theocritus; idyllic; pastoral; bucolic; as, a Theocritean idyl; Theocritean simplicity.

the·od'i·ce'an (thē-ŏd'ĭ-sē'ȧn), adj. Of or pertaining to theodicy; having the character of a theodicy.

the·od'i·cy (thē-ŏd'ĭ-sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [F. théodicée, fr. Gr. theos God + dikē right, justice.] 1. A vindication of the justice of God, esp. in ordaining or permitting natural and moral evil; — a term originated by Leibnitz, who endeavored to prove that the world as it is is the best possible world, and the existence of evil is a necessary condition of the existence of the greatest moral good.
2. That department of philosophy which treats of the nature and government of God and the destiny of the soul.

the'o·di·dact' (thē'ō-dĭ-dăkt'; -dĭ-dăkt'), adj. & n. [Gr. theodidaktos taught of God, fr. theos God + didaskein to teach.] (One) taught by God. Rare.

the·od'o·lite (thē-ŏd'ō-līt), n. [Origin obscure.] Surv. An instrument for measuring horizontal, and usually also vertical, angles. It consists of a telescope mounted so as to swivel vertically in Y's secured to a revolvable table carrying a vernier for reading horizontal angles. There is usually a graduated arc or circle for altitudes. A horizontal compass is commonly included. Cf. TRANSIT, n., 5. — the·od'o·lit'ic (-lĭt'ĭk), adj.

The'o·do'ra (thē'ō-dō'rȧ; 181), n. [Gr. Theodōra. See THEODORE.] Fem. of THEODORE; — feminine proper name. It. Teodora (tā'ō-dō'rä); G. Theodora (tā'ō-dō'rä). — Dim. Dora.

The'o·dore (thē'ō-dōr; 181), n. [L. Theodorus, Gr. Theodōros, fr. theos God + dōron gift; cf. F. Théodore. Cf. DOROTHEA.] Literally, the gift of God; — masc. name. L. Theodorus (-dō'rŭs); F. Théodore (tā'ō'dōr'); It. Teodoro (tā'ō-dō'rō); Sp. Teodoro (tā'ō-thō'rō; 112); G. Theodor (tā'ō-dōr); Russ. & Pol. Feodor (fā.ō'dōr). — Dim. Tad, Dode, Teddy.

The'o·do'ric (thē-ŏd'ō-rĭk), n. [LL. Theodoricus, Theodericus, of Goth. origin; akin to G. Dietrich, D. Diederik, Dierryk. See DUTCH; RICH. Cf. DERRICK.] Lit., ruler of the people; — masc. prop. name.

The'o·do'si·a (thē'ō-dō'shĭ·ȧ; -shȧ), n. [Gr. Theodosia, fr. theos God + dosis a giving, gift.] Literally, gift of God; — feminine proper name. It. Teodosia (tā'ō-dō'-zyä); G. Theodosia (tā'ō-dō'zĭ·ä).

The'o·do'sian (thē'ō-dō'shȧn), n. Eccl. Hist. 1. A follower of Theodosius of Alexandria, a leader of the Monophysites in the 6th century.
2. A follower of the Russian monk Theodosius, who preached in Lithuania in 1525 against idolatry, and who founded a sect practicing prayer for purification of articles acquired from unbelievers.

The'o·do'sian, adj. Of or pert. to Theodosius, particularly either Theodosius I (379–395) or Theodosius II (408–450).

Theodosian Code or Codes. Rom. Law. A code made by 16 commissioners appointed by Theodosius II of all the imperial legislation subsequent to the beginning of the reign of Constantine the Great. It was promulgated in 438 on the same day by Theodosius in the East and Valentinian III in the West, and was in force till superseded by the Justinian Code in the East and the barbarian codes in the West.

The'o·do'tian (thē'ō-dō'shȧn), n. Eccl. Hist. A follower of Theodotus of Constantinople, a 3d century teacher of dynamic monarchianism.

the'o·dy (thē'ō-dĭ), n. [It. teodia. See THEO-; MELODY.] A hymn praising God.

the·og'a·my (thē-ŏg'ȧ-mĭ), n. [theo- + -gamy.] Marriage of gods.

the·og'o·nal (-ō-nȧl), adj. Theogonic.

the'o·gon'ic (thē'ō-gŏn'ĭk), adj. Also the'o·gon'i·cal (-ĭ-kȧl). Of or pertaining to theogony.

the·og'o·nism (thē-ŏg'ō-nĭz'm), n. Belief in a theogony.

the·og'o·nist (-nĭst), n. An authority on theogony.

the·og'o·ny (-nĭ), n.; pl. -NIES (-nĭz). [Gr. theogonia, fr. theos a god + the root of gignesthai to be born. See THEISM; GENUS.] 1. The generation or genealogy of the gods; that branch of theology or mythology which deals with the origin and descent of the deities.
2. [cap.] A poem attributed to Hesiod giving an account of creation and of the genealogy of the gods. It is the oldest literary monument of Greek mythology.

the·ok'to·ny (thē-ŏk'tō-nĭ), n. [Gr. theoktonia killing of God or gods.] Death of the gods. — the'ok·ton'ic (thē'-ŏk-tŏn'ĭk), adj.

the·ol'a·try (thē-ŏl'ȧ-trĭ), n. [Gr. theolatreia, fr. theos a god + latreia, service, worship.] Worship of a god. Rare. — the·ol'a·trous (-trŭs), adj. Rare.

the·ol'o·gas'ter (-ō-găs'tĕr; thē-ŏl'ō-găs'tĕr), n. [ML. Cf. POETASTER.] A quack in theology. Rare. — the·ol'o·gas'tric (-găs'trĭk), adj.

the·ol'o·gate (thē-ŏl'ō-găt), n. [See THEOLOGUE; -ATE.] Among the Jesuits, one of their houses of theological studies.

the'o·lo·gei'on (thē'ō-lō-gī'ŏn). Var. of THEOLOGIUM.

the·ol'o·ger (thē-ŏl'ō-jĕr), n. A theologian. Now Rare.

the'o·lo'gi·an (thē'ō-lō'jĭ·ȧn), adj. Theological. Rare.

the'o·lo'gi·an, n. [F. théologien. See THEOLOGY.] A person well versed in theology, esp. Christian theology; a professor of, or writer on, theology or divinity; a divine.

the'o·log'ic (-lŏj'ĭk), adj. [F. théologique.] Theological.

the'o·log'i·cal (-ĭ-kȧl), adj. [ML. theologicalis, fr. LL. theologicus, fr. Gr. theologikos.] 1. Of or pertaining to theology.
2. Based upon the Bible, viewed as Word of God; — used in the phrase the theological virtues (faith, hope, and charity [love]). See VIRTUE, n., 2.

— the'o·log'i·cal·ly, adv.

the'o·log'i·cal, n. 1. pl. Questions relating to theology.
2. A theological student.

theological determinism. A deterministic view in which all causation is referred to God.

theological predication. Predication of attributes to God; positive determination of the divine nature.

theological seminary. An institution specifically for the vocational education of students preparing either for the Christian ministry in some form or to teach theological subjects.

theological virtues. See VIRTUE, n., 2.

the'o·lo·gi'cian (thē'ō-lō-jĭsh'ȧn), n. A theologian. Rare.

The'man (thē'mȧn). Bib.	theme. † TEAM, THEM.	then. † THAN, THEE, THENNE.	the'o·bro'mic (thē'ō-brō'mĭk), adj. Chem. = ARACHIDIC.	the'o·di·cæ'a, the'o·di·ce'a (-dĭ-sē'ȧ), n. = THEODICY.
Them'a·ni (thĕm'ȧ-nī). D. Bib.	theme'less, adj. See -LESS.	thench, thenche, thenk. † THINK.	The·oc'a·nus (thē-ŏk'ȧ-nŭs). Bib.	the·od'i·cee. Var. of THEODICY. R.
Them'a·nite (-nīt). D. Bib.	theme'let, n. See -LET.	thenne, adv. [See THENCE.] Thence; whence. Obs.	the'o·cra'si·a (thē'ō-krā'zhĭ·ȧ; -zĭ-ȧ), n. [Gr. theokrasia.] = THEOCRASY.	The'o·do'ti·us (thē'ō-dō'shĭ·ŭs). D. Bib.
the'ma·tism (thē'mȧ-tĭz'm), n. [Gr. thematismos a laying down. See THEME.] Arch. Composition. Obs.	them·selv', n. Themselves. Ref. Sp.	thenne. † THAN, THEN, THIN.	The'o·das (thē'ō-dăs). D. Bib.	the·od'o·tus (thē-ŏd'ō-tŭs). Bib.
		thense. Thence. Ref. Sp.		the·of'a·ny. Theophany. Ref. Sp.

theogonic myth. See MYTH, 1. the'o·kra'si·a (thē'ō-krā'zhĭ·ȧ; -zĭ-ȧ), n. = THEOCRASY, 1. the'o·log. Var. of THEOLOGUE. the·ol'o·gal (thē-ŏl'ō-gȧl), n. [F. théologal.] = THEOLOGUS, 2.
the·ol'o·gal, adj.

the'o·log'i·co- (thē'ō·lŏj'ĭ·kō-). A combining form for theologic, denoting theological and, as in:

theologicoastronomical	theologicomilitary theologicoethical	theologicomoral theologicohistorical	theologiconatural theologicometaphysical	theologicopolitical the'o·log'ics (-ĭks), n. Theology. See -ICS. Rare.

the·ol'o·gism (thē·ŏl'ō·jĭz'm), n. Theological system; also, the manner of thought of a theologian or of theologians; — often derogatory.

the·ol'o·gist (-jĭst), n. A theologian. Now Rare.

the'o·lo·gi'um (thē'ō·lō·jĭ'ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. theologeion.] Gr. Antiq. A platform above the level on which actors usually appeared, for actors of the parts of gods.

the·ol'o·gize (thē·ŏl'ō·jīz), v. t.; -GIZED (-jīzd); -GIZ'ING (-jĭz'ĭng). [ML. theologizare.] To render theological; to give divine character to. — v. i. To frame a system of theology; to theorize or speculate upon theological subjects. — the·ol'o·gi·za'tion (-jĭ·zā'shŭn; -jĭ·zā'-), n.

the·ol'o·giz'er (-jīz'ẽr), n. One who theologizes.

the'o·lo·gou'me·non (thē'ō·lō·gōō'mē·nŏn; -gū'mē·nŏn), n.; pl. -MENA (-nȧ). [Gr. theologoumenon, neut. pres. pass. part. of theologein to speak of God.] a A way of speaking about God, as "Face of Jehovah." b Individual opinion about God, as distinguished from authoritative or normative theological doctrine.

the'o·logue (thē'ō·lŏg; 185), n. Also the'o·log. [L. theologus, fr. Gr. theologos; cf. F. théologue.] 1. A theologian. Now Rare.
2. A student in a theological seminary. Colloq.

the·ol'o·gus (thē·ŏl'ō·gŭs), n.; pl. -GI (-jī). [L.] 1. A theologian.
2. R.C.Ch. A lecturer on theology and Scripture in a cathedral or collegiate church.

the·ol'o·gy (-jĭ), n.; pl. -GIES (-ĭz). [OF. theologie, fr. L. theologia, fr. Gr. theologia, fr. theologos a theologian. See THEISM; -LOGY.] 1. The ideational element in religion; religious knowledge or belief, esp. about God, and more esp. when methodically formulated. Esp. in its Christian form it is sometimes regarded as a deductive science in which the premises are supplied mainly by authoritative revelation (in the Bible or the teachings of the church); sometimes more empirically, as a more or less scientific systematization of truths learned from religious experience; sometimes as a scientific statement, whether descriptive or normative, not of what God is, but of what the faith of a given church or religious fellowship either is or, in the light of its experience of religious values, ought to be; sometimes as practically identical with speculative philosophy in its more comprehensive developments; and finally, often a combination of two or more of these variant methods or forms.
2. More loosely, theological science; the scientifically critical, historical, and psychological study of religion and religious ideas, specif. of the Bible and historical and contemporary Christianity.

Many speak of theology as a science of religion [instead of "science of God"] because they disbelieve that there is any knowledge of God to be attained. Prof. R. Flint (Enc. Brit.).

3. A system of religious theory or observance; as, certain pagan theologies; Calvinistic theology.
4. [cap.] In Roman Catholic seminaries, a course of study, embracing Scripture, Church History, Homiletics, Canon Law, Moral and Dogmatic Theology.

-the·ol'o·gy (-thē·ŏl'ō·jĭ). A combining form of theology, as in as·tro·the·ol'o·gy, met'a·the·ol'o·gy, pan'the·ol'o·gy, phys'i·co·the·ol'o·gy.

the·om'a·chist (thē·ŏm'ȧ·kĭst), n. [Cf. Gr. theomachos.] One who resists God or the gods, or the divine will.

the·om'a·chy (-kĭ), n; pl. -CHIES (-kĭz). [Gr. theomachia a battle of the gods, fr. theos a god + machē a battle.] 1. A fighting against the gods. Cf. TITAN.
2. A battle or strife among the gods.
3. Opposition to God or the divine will. Bacon.

the·om'a·gy (-jĭ), n. [theo- + Gr. magikos magic, magos one of the magi.] Divine wisdom; esp., miracle working claimed to be by divine help. Obs. — the'o·mag'ic (thē'ō·măj'ĭk), the'o·mag'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Obs. — the'o·mag'ics (-ĭks), n. Obs.

the'o·man'cy (thē'ō·măn'sĭ), n. [theo- + -mancy; cf. Gr. theomanteia a spirit of prophecy.] Divination by the responses of oracles supposed to be divinely inspired. — the'o·man'tic (-măn'tĭk), adj.

the'o·ma'ni·a (-mā'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. theomania a madness caused by a god.] Med. Religious madness in which the patient believes that he is the Deity, or is inspired. — the'o·ma'ni·ac (-ăk), n.

the'o·mas'tix (-măs'tĭks), n. [NL., fr. theo- + -mastix.] A divinely constituted or designated scourge of mortals.

the·om'i·crist (thē·ŏm'ĭ·krĭst), n. [theo- + Gr. mikros little.] One who makes light of God or of divinity.

the'o·mor'phic (thē'ō·môr'fĭk), adj. [Gr. theomorphos, fr. theos god + morphē form.] Having the divine form or aspect.

the'o·mor'phism (thē'ō·môr'fĭz'm), n. The condition of being in the form or image of God.

the'o·mor'phize (-fīz), v. t. & i. To shape or create in the divine image.

the'o·my·thol'o·gy (thē'ō·mĭ·thŏl'ō·jĭ), n. A mixture of theology and mythology. Rare.

the·on'o·my (thē·ŏn'ō·mĭ), n. [theo- + -nomy.] Government by God; also, the state of being subject to God's government.

the'o·pan'tism (thē'ō·păn'tĭz'm), n. [Gr. theos God + pas, pantos, all.] The mystical doctrine that God is the sole reality. See PANTHEISM.

The'o·pas'chite (-păs'kīt), n. [Gr. theopaschitēs, fr. theos God + paschein to suffer.] Eccl. Hist. One who held that in Christ's passion God suffered; — a name given about 518 to the Monophysites. Cf. PATRIPASSIAN. — The'o·pas'chist (-kĭst), n. — The'o·pas·chit'al·ly (-păs·kĭt'ăl·ĭ), adv. — The'o·pas·chit'ic (-kĭt'ĭk), adj. — The'o·pas'chit·ism (-păs'kĭt·ĭz'm), n.

the·op'a·thy (thē·ŏp'ȧ·thĭ), n.; pl. -THIES (-thĭz). [Gr. theos God + -pathy.] Experience, or capacity for experience, of the divine illumination (see MYSTICISM, 2); hence, intense absorption in religious devotion. — the'o·pa·thet'ic (thē'ō·pȧ·thĕt'ĭk), the'o·path'ic (-păth'ĭk), adj.

the·oph'a·gy (thē·ŏf'ȧ·jĭ), n. [theo- + -phagy.] In primitive religious practice, the sacramental eating of a god, often in the form of a man, animal, or image representing the god. — the'o·phag'ic (thē'ō·făj'ĭk), adj. — the·oph'a·gite (thē·ŏf'ȧ·jīt), n. — the·oph'a·gous (-gŭs), adj.

The'o·pha'ni·a (thē'ō·fā'nĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [Gr.] An ancient Greek spring festival at Delphi to celebrate the birthday of Apollo and the epiphany of the god at Delphi.

the·oph'a·ni'a (thē·ŏf'ȧ·nī'ȧ), n. [NL.] = THEOPHANY.

the·oph'a·ny (thē·ŏf'ȧ·nĭ), n.; pl. -NIES (-nĭz). [LL. theophania, fr. Gr. theophaneia, fr. theos God + phainesthai to appear. Cf. TIFFANY.] a A physical manifestation of the presence of God or a god to man, esp. by incarnation in a human body or appearance in human form. b Obs. exc Eastern Ch. Epiphany. — the'o·phan'ic (thē'ō·făn'ĭk), adj. — the·oph'a·nism (thē·ŏf'ȧ·nĭzm), n. — the·oph'a·nous (-nŭs), adj.

the'o·phil'an·throp'ic (thē'ō·fĭl'ăn·thrŏp'ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to theophilanthropism or the theophilanthropists; loving, or characterized by love of, both God and man.

the'o·phi·lan'thro·pism (-fĭ·lăn'thrō·pĭz'm), n. Love of both God and man; theophilanthropy; specif., Hist., the doctrines or tenets of the theophilanthropists.

the'o·phi·lan'thro·pist (-pĭst), n. [F. théophilanthrope.] One who loves both God and man; a practicer of theophilanthropism; specif., Hist., a member of a deistical society established in Paris during the period of the Directory, which aimed to institute in place of Christianity, which had been officially abolished, a new religion, affirming belief in the existence of God, in the immortality of the soul, and in virtue.

the'o·phi·lan'thro·py (-pĭ), n. [F. théophilanthropie.] Theophilanthropism.

the'o·phile (thē'ō·fĭl; -fīl), n. [Gr. theophilos, theophilēs, dear to the gods; cf. F. théophile loving God.] One loving God or one loved by God.

the'o·phil'o·soph'ic (-fĭl'ō·sŏf'ĭk), adj. [theo- + philosophic.] Combining theism and philosophy, or pertaining to the combination of theism and philosophy.

The·oph'i·lus (thē·ŏf'ĭ·lŭs), n. [L. Theophilus, fr. Gr. Theophilos, fr. theos a god + philos dear.] 1. Literally, dear to the gods or to God; — masculine proper name. F. Théophile (tā'ō'fēl'); It. Teofilo (tā.ō'fē·lō); Sp. Teófilo (-ō'fē·lō); Pg. Theophilo (tā·ō'fē·lōō); G. Theophilus (-fĭ·lōōs). — Fem. The·oph'i·la (thē·ŏf'ĭ·lȧ).
2. See DOROTHEA, 2 a.

the'o·pho'bi·a (thē'ō·fō'bĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. theo- + -phobia.] A phobia of which God is the object.

the'o·phor'ic (-fôr'ĭk), adj. [Gr. theophoros. See THEO-; -PHORIC.] Theophorous.

the·oph'o·rous (thē·ŏf'ō·rŭs), adj. [Gr. theophoros, fr. theos god + pherein to bear.] Derived from or bearing the name of a god, as Serapion from Serapis.

The'o·phras·ta'ce·ae (thē'ō·frăs·tā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of trees and shrubs (order Primulales) distinguished from Myrsinaceae mainly by staminodia in the flowers. There are about 5 genera and 45 species, mainly tropical. Jacquinia and Theophrasta are the chief genera. — the'o·phras·ta'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

The'o·phras'tan (-frăs'tăn), adj. Also The'o·phras'te·an (-tē·ăn). Of, pertaining to, or derived from Theophrastus (see Biog.) or his writings on natural philosophy.

the'o·phyl'line (thē'ō·fĭl'ēn; -ĭn; 157), n. Also -lin. [NL. thea tea, the tea plant + Gr. phyllon leaf.] Chem. A white crystalline alkaloid, $C_7H_8N_4O_2$, extracted from tea leaves and also prepared artificially; 1,3-dimethyl-xanthine. It is closely related to theobromine and caffeine. It is used as a diuretic.

the'op·neust (thē'ŏp·nūst), the'op·neus'ted (-nūs'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Theopneustic. Rare.

the'op·neus'tic (-nūs'tĭk), adj. [Gr. theopneustos inspired of God, fr. theos God + pnein to blow, to breathe.] Given by inspiration of the Spirit of God; divinely inspired.

the'op·neus'ty (thē'ŏp·nūs'tĭ), n. Also the'op·neus'ti·a (-nūs'tĭ·ȧ). [Gr. theopneustia.] Divine inspiration; influence of the Divine Spirit in qualifying men to receive and communicate revealed truth.

the·or'bist (thē·ôr'bĭst), n. Music. A player on a theorbo.

the·or'bo (thē·ôr'bō), n. [F. théorbe, téorbe, formerly tuorbe, tiorbe, fr. It. tiorba.] Music. An obsolete 17th-century instrument like a large lute, but having two necks, with two sets of pegs, the upper carrying long bass strings used for open tones. See ARCHLUTE.

Theorbo.

the'o·rem (thē'ō·rĕm), n. [F. or L.; F. théorème, fr. L. theorema, fr. Gr. theōrēma a sight, speculation, theory, theorem, fr. theōrein to look at. See THEATER.] 1. That which is considered and established as a principle or law; hence, sometimes, a rule.

Not theories, but theorems (theōrēmata), the intelligible products of contemplation, intellectual objects in the mind, and of and for the mind exclusively. Coleridge.

2. Math. a A general statement that has been proved or whose truth has been conjectured. Cf. PROBLEM, 2; PROPOSITION, 6. b In analysis, a rule or statement of relations as expressed in a formula or by symbols; as, the binomial theorem; Taylor's theorem.
3. A size of paper. See PAPER, Table.

the'o·rem, v. t. To formulate into a theorem. Rare.

the'o·re·mat'ic (thē'ō·rē·măt'ĭk), adj. Also the'o·re·mat'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl). [Gr. theōrēmatikos.] Of, pertaining to, comprised in, or consisting of, a theorem or theorems. — the'o·re·mat'i·cal·ly, adv.

the'o·rem'a·tist (-rĕm'ȧ·tĭst), n. One who constructs theorems.

the'o·rem'ic (-ĭk), adj. Theorematic.

theorem of Le Châtelier (lĕ shä't'·lyā'). Physics. Le Châtelier's law.

theorem of Pappus (păp'ŭs). See CENTROBARIC METHOD.

theorem of three moments. Mech. A theorem for finding the bending moments at the supports of a continuous girder. For any three consecutive supports (A, B, C) of a continuous beam of constant cross section it is $A l_1 + 2B\,(l_1 + l_2) + Cl_2 + \frac{1}{4}(w_1 l_1^3 + w_2 l_2^3) = 0$, where A = bending moment at A, B at B, C at C; l_1 = length of span AB, l_2 of BC; w_1 = load per foot run on AB, w_2 on BC. By writing the equations for each three consecutive supports and putting the bending moments at the free ends equal to zero, the problem of finding the bending moments at the supports is reduced to the solving of a series of simultaneous equations.

the'o·ret'ic (thē'ō·rĕt'ĭk), n. 1. Theory; also, theoretics.
2. One given to theory or speculative thought.

the'o·ret'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Also the'o·ret'ic (-ĭk). [LL. theoreticus, fr. Gr. theōrētikos.] 1. Pertaining to theory; depending on, or confined to, theory or speculation; speculative; terminating in theory or speculation; not practical; as, theoretical learning; theoretic sciences.
2. Addicted to speculative thought; given to theorizing; also, having the ability to theorize.
3. Kantianism. Pertaining to knowledge or science, as contrasted with moral intuitions or religious beliefs; — contrasted with practical. Cf. PRACTICAL REASON.

Syn. — THEORETICAL, HYPOTHETICAL. THEORETICAL is opposed to practical, and applies to that which is concerned only with the speculative or scientific aspects of a subject; that is HYPOTHETICAL which is assumed for the purpose of argument or inference; as, "My theoretical and his practical knowledge together could not have failed. He should have worked upon my plans" (Jane Austen); to state a hypothetical case; a hypothetical question. Cf. THEORY.

theoretical astronomy. That branch of astronomy which treats of the orbits of the celestial bodies and of their motions.

theoretical chemistry. See CHEMISTRY, n., 1.

theoretical diagram. Bot. A floral diagram representing besides the visible members organs rudimentary or wanting, but theoretically a part of the floral structure.

the·o·ret'i·cal·ism (thē'ō·rĕt'ĭ·kăl·ĭz'm), n. Theoretical thinking; also, a conclusion, system, etc., existing only in theory.

the'o·ret'i·cal·ly, adv. of THEORETICAL.

theoretical mechanics. See MECHANICS, 1.

theoretical reason. See 1st REASON, 3.

the'o·re·ti'cian (thē'ō·rĕ·tĭsh'ăn), n. A theorist; — sometimes derogatory.

the'o·ret'i·co- (thē'ō·rĕt'ĭ·kō-). A combining form for theoretic, denoting theoretical and, as in the'o·ret'i·co·prac'ti·cal.

the'o·ret'ics (-ĭks), n. [See -ICS.] The speculative part of a science. See -ICS.

theoretic virtues. Aristotelianism. The intellectual virtues, understanding, science, and wisdom. See VIRTUE, 2.

‖the·o'ri·a (thē·ō'rĭ·ȧ; 181), n. [LL. See THEORY.] 1. Contemplation, esp., of logical relations or significance; thoughtful consideration. Cf. THEORY, 1. Rare.
2. Spiritually appreciative contemplation, as of ideal beauty. Ruskin.

the·o'ri·a (thē·ō'rĭ·ȧ), n.; pl. -RIAI (-ĭ). [Gr. theōria.] Gr. Relig. An official deputation from a Greek state to take part in a religious ceremony or to consult an oracle.

the'o·ric (thē'ō·rĭk), adj. Also the·or'i·cal (thē·ôr'ĭ·kăl). [See THEORIC, n.] = THEORETICAL. — the·or'i·cal·ly, adv. Obs.

the'o·ric (thē'ō·rĭk), n. [OF. theorique. See THEORY.] 1. Speculation; theory. Archaic.
2. Obs. a A survey or conspectus. b Astron. A device for calculating positions of bodies. c A contemplative.

the·or'ic (thē·ôr'ĭk), adj. [Gr. theōrikos. See THEORICON.] Gr. Antiq. Of or pertaining to a public spectacle.

theoric fund. = THEORICON.

the'o·ri'cian (thē'ō·rĭsh'ăn), n. One holding, or given to formulating, a theory; a theorist.

the·or'i·con (thē·ôr'ĭ·kŏn), n.; pl. -CA (-kȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. theōrikon, prop. neut. of theōrikos belonging to theōria a public spectacle. See THEORY.] Gr. Antiq. Orig., public money given at Athens to poor citizens to pay for seats for them at the theater; later, public money expended on festivals, sacrifices, public entertainments (esp. theatrical), and gifts to the people; — often in pl.

the'o·ries (thē'ō·rĭks), n. Theory; theoretical conclusions. See -ICS.

the'o·rism (-rĭz'm), n. Act or process of theorizing; speculative thought; the formulation of a theory or theories.

the'o·rist (-rĭst), n. One who theorizes; a person given to speculative thought; one who formulates theories, as to account for perceived phenomena; — sometimes derogatory, considered as contrasted to the practical man.

the'o·ri·za'tion (-rĭ·zā'shŭn; -rĭ·zā'shŭn), n. Act or product of theorizing; formation of a theory; speculation.

the'o·rize (thē'ō·rīz), v. i.; -RIZED (-rīzd); -RIZ'ING (-rīz'ĭng). To form a theory or theories; to form opinions solely by theory; to speculate. — v. t. To formulate a theory about; also, to postulate (something stated) as a step in the formulation of a theory. — the'o·riz'er (-rīz'ẽr), n.

the'o·rum (-rŭm), n. A general statement proposed for testing as to its validity; — a term used in Marxian socialism. See SOCIALISM, 1.

the'o·ry (thē'ō·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [F. or L.; F. théorie, fr. LL. theoria, fr. Gr. theōria a beholding, spectacle, contemplation, speculation. See THEATER.] 1. Contemplation; speculation.
2. The result of contemplation; hence, an analysis or explanation; esp., an analysis of a set of facts in their ideal relations to one another; as, essays in theory.
3. The general or abstract principles of any body of facts real or assumed; pure, as distinguished from applied, science or art; as, the theory of music or of medicine.
4. A general principle, formula, or ideal construction, offered to explain phenomena and rendered more or less plausible by evidence in the facts or by the exactness and relevancy of the reasoning; as, Lavoisier's theory of combustion; Adam Smith's theory of moral sentiments.

In its most proper acceptation, theory means the completed result of philosophical induction from experience. J. S. Mill.

5. A plan or scheme theoretically constructed.
6. A hypothesis offered as a basis of thought on a given subject; loosely, any idea, guess, etc., put forward to be accepted or rejected in seeking the explanation of some condition, occurrence, or the like.
7. Math. A body of theorems presenting a clear, rounded, and systematic view of a subject; as, the theory of equations, of forms, etc. (see in Phrases); the theory of probability.

☞ For some phrases beginning with theory, see the principal word in the phrase.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

theory-blind	theory-building	theorymonger theory-blinded	theory-making	theory-spinning

Syn. — THEORY, HYPOTHESIS. In scientific usage, a HYPOTHESIS is a provisional conjecture regarding the causes or relations of certain phenomena; a THEORY is a hypothesis which has undergone verification, and which is applicable to a large number of related phenomena. In ordinary usage, hypothesis may denote any assumption without proof; theory is opposed to practice, sometimes to fact. Cf. THEORETICAL; ASSUMPTION; CONJECTURE, v. i.

the'o·ry·less, adj. See -LESS.

theory of equations. Math. The doctrine of the functions of roots of an equation such as may be expressed as rational functions of the coefficients and certain adjoined irrationalities of the equation.

theory of evolution. Biol. See EVOLUTION.

theory of exchanges. Physics. The theory that when radiation occurs from one body to another, it also takes place in the opposite direction, and therefore that the question as to whether or not the temperature of either body will change depends upon whether it gains more energy than it loses or loses more than it gains.

theory of forms. Math. That branch of the theory of numbers which inquires when a given function of integers may be made to assume a specified integral value by choice of integral values for certain unknowns.

theory of functions. Math. The theory dealing with general properties of functions of the complex variable, as distinguished from the theory of functions of real variables.

theory of groups. Math. The mathematical doctrine dealing with the properties of groups, finite or continuous; — called also group theory.

theory of incasement. = INCASEMENT THEORY.

theory of internal relations. See INTERNAL RELATION.

theory of knowledge. = EPISTEMOLOGY.

theory of numbers. Math. The theory dealing with properties of integers.

theory of preformation. See PREFORMATION, 2.

theory, or law, of recapitulation. Biol. = RECAPITULATION THEORY, 1.

theory of types. See 1st TYPE, 19.

the′o·soph (thē″ō-sŏf), the·os′o·pher (thē-ŏs′ō-fĕr), n. A theosophist.

the·os′o·pheme (thē-ŏs′ō-fēm), n. [theo- + philo*sopheme.*] A theosophical theory or system.

the′o·soph′ic (thē″ō-sŏf′ĭk), adj. Also the′o·soph′i·cal (-ĭ-kăl). Of or pertaining to theosophy. — the′o·soph′i·cal·ly, adv.

the·os′o·phism (thē-ŏs′ō-fĭz′m), n. Belief in theosophy.

the·os′o·phist (-fĭst), n. An adherent of theosophy. — the·os′o·phist, adj.

the·os′o·phy (-fĭ), n. [ML. theosophia, fr. LGr. theosophia knowledge of things divine, fr. theosophos wise in the things of God, fr. theos God + sophos wise. See THEO-; -SOPHY.] 1. Alleged knowledge of God and of the world as related to God arrived at neither by external historic revelation nor by scientific induction, but by direct mystical insight or by philosophical speculation or by a combination of both. See NEOPLATONISM, GNOSTICISM, BOEHMENISM, SWEDENBORGIAN.

2. [often cap.] The doctrines and beliefs of a modern school or sect following, in the main, Buddhistic and Brahmanistic theories, esp. in teaching a pantheistic evolution and the doctrine of reincarnation. The "Theosophical Society" was founded in New York in 1875 by Mme. H. P. Blavatsky and Col. H. S. Olcott, its declared aims being: (1) To form a nucleus of a universal brotherhood of humanity without distinction of race, creed, or color. (2) To promote the study of Aryan and other Eastern literatures, religions, and sciences, and demonstrate the importance of that study. (3) To investigate unexplained laws of nature and the psychical powers latent in man. Mme. Blavatsky claimed to receive messages in occult ways from the Mahatmas, or Great White Brotherhood, living in the mountains of Tibet. After the death of Madame Blavatsky (1891) a schism occurred, resulting in the establishment of a second theosophical organization in the United States.

the′o·tech′ny (thē″ō-tĕk′nĭ), n. [theo- + Gr. technē art.] An imaginative world, esp. as represented in poetry, in which gods take part in human affairs; also, such gods collectively; as, the Homeric theotechny. — the′o·tech′nic (-tĕk′nĭk), adj. — the′o·tech′nist (thē″ō-tĕk′nĭst), n.

the′o·ther′a·py (-thĕr′ə-pĭ), n. [theo- + -therapy.] Divine healing through faith, prayer, etc.

The·ot′o·kos, The·ot′o·cos (thē-ŏt′ō-kŏs), n. [Gr. theotokos, fr. theos god + root of tiktein to bear. See THEO-; THANE.] Theol. Mother of God; — an epithet of the Virgin Mary. Cf. DEIPARA, NESTORIAN, n.

the′ow (thā′ō), n. [AS. thēow, thēow, thēo; akin to Goth. thius, ON. thjr.] O. Eng. Hist. A slave.

In the earliest English laws such slaves are found; the theow or slave simple; . . . the wite theow who is reduced to slavery because he cannot pay his debts. William Stubbs.

— adj. Servile; bond. Obs. exc. Hist.

the′ow·dom (-ō-dŭm), n. Servitude. Obs. exc. Hist.

the′ow·man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). [AS. thēow, adj., not free.] A theow.

The·rae′an (thē-rē′ăn), adj. [L. Theraeus.] Of or pertaining to the island of Thera, north of Crete.

the′ra·lite (thĕr′ə-līt), n. [Gr. thēran to hunt for; — so named because its discovery was anticipated.] Petrog. Any of a group of melanocratic granitoid rocks, essentially of plagioclase, nephelite, and augite. The rocks of this group are of comparatively rare occurrence, being found especially in central Europe, northern Russia, Portugal, and Scotland.

ther′a·peu′sis (thĕr′ə-pū′sĭs), n. [NL.] Therapeutics.

Ther′a·peu′tae (-tē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. therapeutēs (pl. therapeutai) an attendant, servant, physician. See THERAPEUTICS.] Eccl. Hist. A name given to certain ascetics said to have dwelt anciently in the neighborhood of Alexandria, described in a work attributed to Philo.

ther′a·peu′tic (-tĭk), adj. [NL. therapeuticus, fr. Gr. therapeutikos, fr. therapeutēs attendant, servant, therapeuein to serve, take care of, treat medically, therapa attendant, servant.] Med. Of or pertaining to the healing art; concerned with remedies for diseases; curative. Cf. PROPHYLACTIC.

ther′a·peu′tic, n. A healing or curative medicine.

Ther′a·peu′tic, n. One of the Therapeutae. — adj. Pertaining to Therapeutae.

ther′a·peu′ti·cal (-tĭ-kăl), adj. Therapeutic.

ther′a·peu′ti·cal·ly, adv. of THERAPEUTIC, THERAPEUTICAL.

therapeutic light. Med. An electric light, esp. one furnishing ultraviolet rays, for treating disease.

therapeutic nihilist. Med. One who believes that drugs and other therapeutic measures are of no value in the treatment of disease, and that recovery, if it occurs, is due to the unaided efforts of nature.

ther′a·peu′tics (thĕr′ə-pū′tĭks), n. [See -ICS.] That part of medical science which treats of the application of remedies for diseases; therapy. See -ICS.

-ther′a·peu′tics. A combining form of therapeutics, as in balneo*therapeutics,* psycho*therapeutics.*

therapeutic test. Med. A test to determine the nature of an undiagnosed disease, performed by giving the specific remedy for the disease most suspected. If improvement follows, the presumption is that the disease is the one suspected.

ther′a·peu′tist (thĕr′ə-pū′tĭst), n. One skilled in therapeutics.

‖the′ra·pi′a (thĕr′ə-pī′ə; thē-rā′pĭ-ə), n. [NL.] Med. Therapy.

‖the′ra·pi′a ste·rĭ′li·sans mag′na (stē-rĭl′ĭ-zănz măg′nə). [NL. Cf. STERILE; MAGNATE.] Med. Treatment of infectious disease by massive administration of a specific remedy with destruction of all the infecting germs present.

The·rap′si·da (thē-răp′sĭ-də), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. therapa an attendant.] Paleontol. An order of Permian and Triassic reptiles (subclass Synapsida) with upright-walking rather than crawling habits. It includes the ancestors of the mammals. — the·rap′sid (-sĭd), n. & adj.

ther′a·py (thĕr′ə-pĭ), n. [NL. therapia, fr. Gr. therapeia.] a Med. Treatment of disease; therapeutics; — now used chiefly in compounds, as hydro*therapy,* arseno*therapy.* b Therapeutic quality; as, a therapy impaired by light.

-ther′a·py. A combining form of therapy, as in:

actinotherapy	frigotherapy	pharmacotherapy bacteriotherapy	galactotherapy	physiotherapy balneotherapy	galvanotherapy	psychotherapy chemotherapy	heliotherapy	pyotherapy climatotherapy	hemotherapy	radiotherapy curietherapy	hydrotherapy	roentgenotherapy dermatotherapy	iodotherapy	serotherapy electrotherapy	magnetotherapy	thermotherapy endocrinotherapy	organotherapy ther′blig (thûr′blĭg), n. [Anagram of the last name of F. B. Gilbreth (1868–1924), Am. engineer.] In industrial engineering, one of the component parts of a cycle of the motions that compose the operations of all kinds of work.

there (thâr; 71), adv. [ME. ther, thar, fr. AS. thǣr, thǣr, thēr; akin to D. daar, G. da, dar, OHG. dār, Sw. & Dan. der, ON. & Goth. thar, Skr. tarhi then, and E. that. See THAT, pron.] 1. In or at that place; in or at a place other than that of the speaker; at that point; — opposed to here.

Darkness there might well Seem twilight here. Milton.

2. Into or to that place; thither; — after verbs of motion or direction. "The rarest that e'er came there." Shak.

3. At that point, stage, etc., regarded as a distinct place; as, he did not stop there, but continued his speech.

4. In that matter, relation, etc.; in that respect.

The law that threaten'd death becomes thy friend
And turns it to exile; there art thou happy. Shak.

5. Where; wherever; — a relative use. Obs.

Spend their good there it is reasonable. Chaucer.

☞ There is sometimes used in exclamation, calling the attention to something, esp. to something distant; as, there, there! there, see that! There is used like that in phrases of encouragement or approval; as, there's a good boy. There is often used pronominally as a grammatical (esp. anticipatory) subject, and in this use, when introducing a sentence or clause, the verb precedes its subject; as, there are many facts to consider; there have been thousands who have died in defending this theory.

A knight there was, and that a worthy man. Chaucer.
There is a path which no fowl knoweth. Job xxviii. 7.
Wherever there is a sense or perception, there some idea is actually produced. Locke.

Syn. — See THITHER. Ant. — See HITHER.

— all there. See in the Vocabulary. — over there. Across the Atlantic, esp. in or into a war area during the World War. Colloq., U. S. — there and then. At that point and moment; then and there. — to have been there. To know at first hand. Slang, U. S.

there, n. An abstraction of mere position in apposition (to a "here"); that place. See HERE, n.

there, adj. 1. Yonder; being or located a distance away; not right at hand; as, those men there can tell you; (Dial. & Illit.) that there dog. Cf. HERE, adj.

2. Slang. a Able; dependable; reliable; also, ready; equipped; as, when he's needed he's there with the goods. b At ease, or at home (with).

-there (-thĕr). Zool. A combining form from Greek thēr, beast, denoting an individual animal of the genus or class denoted by the corresponding noun ending in -therium or -theria, as in megathere, protothere.

there′a·bouts′ (thâr′ə-bouts′), adv. Also there′a·bout′ (-bout′). [AS. thǣr abūtan. See THERE; ABOUT.] 1. Concerning that; about that; in connection with a certain matter or business; as, he busied himself thereabouts. Now Rare.

2. Near that place; in the neighborhood.

3. Near that number, degree, or quantity; nearly; as, a thousand people, or thereabouts, heard the speech.

there′a·bove′ (-bŭv′), adv. a Over and above; in addition. b In a position over; up above.

there′a·cross′ (-krŏs′; 185), adv. Across there; across it.

there·aft′er (thâr-ăf′tĕr), adv. [AS. thǣr æfter after that. See THERE; AFTER.] 1. After, or in pursuit or search of, that or them. Obs. Chaucer.

2. After that; afterward; subsequently.

3. According to that; accordingly.

To have a vigilant eye how books demean themselves as well as men; and thereafter to continue, imprison, and do sharpest justice on them as malefactors. Milton.

4. Obs. a Of that sort. "My audience is not thereafter." Latimer. b In like manner; according.

there·aft′er·ward (-wĕrd), adv. Thereafter; subsequently. Rare.

there′a·gainst′ (thâr′ə-gĕnst′; cf. AGAINST), adv. Against that; against it; esp., in opposition; on the contrary.

there′a·mong′ (-mŭng′), adv. Also there′a·mongst′ (-mŭngst′). Among them or it. Rare.

there′a·nent′ (-nĕnt′), adv. Also there′a·nents′ (-nĕnts′). With reference to a certain matter, subject, business, etc.

there′a·round′ (-round′), adv. In the neighborhood; near by.

there·as′ (thâr-ăz′; 66), conj. Obs. a There. b Whereas.

there·at′ (thâr-ăt′; 66), adv. [AS. thǣr æt.] 1. At that place or point; there. Matt. vii. 13.

2. At that occurrence or event; upon that; on that account.

For which cause it blusheth thereat. Hooker.

there′a·way′ (thâr′ə-wā′), there′a·ways′ (-wāz′), adv. = THEREABOUTS, 2 & 3.

there′be·fore′ (-bē-fōr′; 181), adv. Also there′bi·forn′. Before that time. Obs.

there·ben′ (thâr-bĕn′), adv. Within; in an inner room. Scot.

there′be·side′ (thâr′bē-sīd′), adv. Also there′be·sides′ (-sīdz′). By the side of that. Rare.

there′be·tween′ (-twēn′), adv. In the space between.

there·by′ (thâr-bĭ′; 66), adv. [AS. thǣrbīg.] 1. By that; by that means; in consequence of that. Job xxii. 21.

2. Connected with, or with reference to, that. "Thereby hangs a tale." Shak.

3. Thereabouts; beside that; near by; about that; beside; — said of place, number, etc.

4. By it; in possession of it; — used esp. in the phrase come thereby, to come into possession of. Archaic. "He might not come thereby." Chaucer.

5. Also; in addition; besides.

there·for′ (thâr-fôr′), adv. [there + for. See THEREFORE.] For that; in return for that; because of that; for it; as, the reasons therefor; receiving therefor a book credit.

there′fore (thâr′fôr; 181; formerly, as in senses 1 & 2, there-fore′), adv. [ME. therfore. See THERE; FORE, prep., FOR. Cf. THEREFOR.] 1. Therefor. Obs.

2. On that point; in that respect. Rare. Chaucer.

3. For that reason, referring to something previously stated; because of that; on that ground; to that end; consequently; hence; as, they lost the wager; therefore they must pay.

He blushes; therefore he is guilty. Spectator.

Syn. — THEREFORE, WHEREFORE, CONSEQUENTLY, ACCORDINGLY, SO, THEN agree in denoting sequence, usually causal; they differ in the closeness of connection or degree of formality implied. THEREFORE and WHEREFORE are the most formal, and are employed esp. in strict reasoning; CONSEQUENTLY denotes close causal or logical sequence; ACCORDINGLY is freer and less formal; SO and THEN are lighter, and do not necessarily imply a close inference. Cf. BECAUSE.

there′fore, n. A proved proposition; an argumentative conclusion; an implication.

there·from′ (thâr-frŏm′; 66), adv. From that or it.

Turn not aside therefrom. Josh. xxiii. 6.

there·in′ (-ĭn′; 66), adv. Also. [AS. thǣrin.] 1. In or into that place, time, or thing. Wycliffe.

2. In that particular or respect; in such matter.

Therein our letters do not well agree. Shak.

3. Inside; within doors. Scot.

there′in·aft′er (thâr′ĭn-ăf′tĕr), adv. In the following part of that (writing, document, speech, and the like).

there·in′be·fore′ (thâr-ĭn′bē-fōr′; 181), adv. In the preceding part of that (writing, document, book, etc.).

there·in′to (-ĭn′tōō; -tōō; -ĭn-tōō′), adv. Into that or it.

there′ness (thâr′nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. The condition of being there in position; presence in a place distinguishably there, not here.

there·of′ (thâr-ŏv′; 66; -ŏf′; 277), adv. [AS. thǣrof.] 1. Of that or it.

In the day that thou eatest thereof, thou shalt . . . die. Gen. ii. 17.

2. From that cause or particular; therefrom.

3. Obs. a With respect to that. b Thereby.

the′re·oid (thē′rē-oid), adj. [Gr. thērion beast + -oid.] Like a beast; savage.

the′re·ol′o·gist (thē″rē-ŏl′ō-jĭst), n. Therapeutist.

the′re·ol′o·gy (-jĭ), n. Therapeutics.

there·on′ (thâr-ŏn′; 66), adv. Also, Rare, there·on′to. [AS. thǣron. See THERE; ON.] 1. On that.

Then the king said, Hang him thereon. Esther vii. 9.

2. Thereupon; after, or as a result of, some specified thing.

3. About that; in that connection; thereof. Now Rare.

there·out′ (-out′), adv. [AS. thǣrūt, thǣrūte.] 1. Out of that; therefrom. Archaic. Lev. ii. 2.

2. On the outside; out of doors. Now Scot. & Dial. Eng.

3. Therefore. Obs.

there·o′ver (-ō′vĕr), adv. 1. Over that; above; esp., in a superior position over; also, more than or higher than.

2. With relation to; thereof.

there·right′ (-rīt′), adv. Forthwith. Obs. exc. Dial.

there′s (thârz). Contraction of there is; — sometimes incorrectly used of two or more (there's no two ways about it).

The·re′sa (tĕ-rē′sə; -zə), n. [F. Thérèse or Sp. or It. Teresa, fr. L. Therasia.] Fem. proper name. F. Thérèse (tā′rĕz′); It. Teresa (tā-rē′zä); Sp. Teresa (tā-rā′sä); Pg. Theresa (tĕ-rā′zə); G. Therese (tĕ-rā′zĕ). — Dim. Ter′ry.

the·rese′ (tĕ-rēs′), n. [Prob. so called from Maria Theresa.] A large loose headdress made of gauze over wire or whalebone, worn in the late 18th century. Hist.

there·through′ (thâr-thrōō′; 66), adv. a Through that; in or through a specified opening. b Obs. Because; on account of; thereby.

there·til′, there·till′ (Scot. thâr-tĭl′), adv. Thither; to it; to that; also, in addition. Obs. exc. Scot.

there·to′ (thâr-tōō′; 66), adv. [AS. thǣrtō.] 1. To that; as, with all the appurtenances fitting thereto.

2. Besides; moreover; also. Now Rare. Spenser.

there′to·fore′ (thâr′tōō-fōr′; 181), adv. Up to that time; until then; before then; — correlative with heretofore.

there·to′ward (thâr-tō′ẽrd), adv. Towards it. Rare.

there·un′der (thâr-ŭn′dĕr), adv. [AS. thǣrunder.] a Under that. b Less than; fewer, as in number. c In subordination; in a lower position, rank, etc.

there′un·til′ (thâr′ŭn-tĭl′), adv. Up to that time; theretofore.

there′un·to′ (thâr′ŭn-tōō′; -ŭn′tōō), adv. Unto that; thereto; besides; in addition to that. Shak.

there·up′ (thâr-ŭp′), adv. a Now Rare. Up there; above. b Obs. Thereupon; also, in addition to that.

there′up·on′ (thâr′ŭ-pŏn′; 66), adv. [Cf. AS. thǣr uppan.]

1. Upon that; on that matter; thereon.

2. On account, or in consequence, of that; therefore.

[He] hopes to find you forward, . . .
And thereupon he sends you this good news. Shak.

3. Immediately after that; at once; without delay.

The·rev′i·dae (thē-rĕv′ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thēreuein to hunt.] Zool. The family constituted by the stiletto flies. The type genus is Ther′e·va (thĕr′ē-vä). — ther′e·vid (-vĭd), n. & adj.

there·while′ (thâr-hwīl′), adv. Also there·whiles′ (-hwīlz′), there·whilst′ (-hwĭlst′). In the meantime; whilst. Now Rare.

there·with′ (thâr-wĭth′; -wĭth′; cf. HEREWITH; 234), adv. [AS. thǣrwith.] 1. With that.

I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content. Phil. iv. 11.

2. At the same time, or in the same connection. Obs.

To speak of strength and therewith hardiness. Chaucer.

3. Forthwith; thereupon; thereat.

4. Moreover; besides; withal; for all that. Obs. Chaucer.

there·with·al′ (thâr′wĭth-ôl′; 66), adv. 1. Over and above; besides; moreover.

And therewithal it was full poor and bad. Chaucer.

---

the·os′o·fy. Theosophy. Ref. Sp.

the·os′o·phis′tic (thē-ŏs′ō-fĭs′tĭk), the·os′o·phis′ti·cal (-tĭ-kăl), adj. = THEOSOPHICAL. [See -ITE.]

the·os′o·phize (thē-ŏs′ō-fīz), v. i.

ther. Var. of THEIR, THERE. Obs. exc. Dial.

ther-. = THERO-.

Ther′a·ca (thĕr′ə-kə). D. Bib.

ther′a·peu′tism (thĕr′ə-pū′tĭz′m), n. = ESSENISM.

ther′a·phim. † TERAPHIM.

Ther′a·pho′sa (thĕr′ə-fō′sə), n. [NL.] Syn. of AVICULARIA.

Ther′a·phos′i·dae (-fŏs′ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. therapōn, dim. of thērion wild beast.] Syn. of Aviculoridae. — ther′a·phos′id (-fŏs′ĭd), n. — ther′a·phos′oid (-oid), adj.

ther′a·pist (thĕr′ə-pĭst). = THERAPEUTIST. Rare.

The′ras (thē′răs). Bib.

there. † THARE, THE, THEIR.

there′a·gain′, there′a·gains′, adv. Thereagainst. Obs.

ther′e·binthe. † TEREBINTH.

the·reck′ly (thĕr-rĕk′lĭ). Scot. & dial. corrupt. form of DIRECTLY.

there·down′, adv. Downwards; below. Obs.

there·fro′, adv. Thence. Obs.

there·hence′, adv. = THENCE. Obs. exc. Dial.

ther′ence (thâr′ĕns). Dial. var. of THEREENCE.

there·next′, adv. Next to it; soon after. Obs.

there·nigh′, adv. Near to that place. Obs.

there·thence′, adv. Thence. Obs.

N O P Q R S T

2. With that; therewith; at the same time.

Thy slanders I forgive; and therewithal Remit thy other forefeits. Shak.

3. At the same time; therewith; thereupon.
4. Moreover; also; withal; for all that. Obs.

there'with.in' (thâr'wĭth-ĭn'), adv. Within that. Rare.

the'ri.ac (thē'rĭ-ăk), n. [L. theriaca.] Theriaca. — the'ri.ac, adj.

the.ri'a.ca (thē-rī'ə-kə), n. [L., an antidote to snake bites. See TREACLE.] 1. Old Med. An antidote to poison; esp., a mixture of about seventy drugs pulverized and reduced with honey to an electuary; — called also ‖ the.ri'a.ca An.dro'ma.chi (ăn.drŏm'ə-kī), and Venice treacle. 2. Treacle; molasses. British Pharm.

the.ri'a.cal (thē-rī'ə-kăl), adj. [theriac + -al.] Of or pertaining to theriaca; medicinal.

the'ri.al (thē'rĭ-əl), adj. Theriacal.

the'ri.an.throp'ic (thē'rĭ-ăn-thrŏp'ĭk), adj. [theri- + Gr. anthrōpos man.] Combining human and animal form, as the centaur; also, pertaining to religions in which the deities worshiped are conceived as partly human, partly animal in form.

the'ri.an'thro.pism (-ăn'thrŏ-pĭz'm), n. a Therianthropic beliefs. b The belief that men may sometimes assume animal form, as the werewolf. See LYCANTHROPY, 2.

the'ri.at'rics (-ăt'rĭks), n. [ther- + -iatrics.] The science of veterinary medicine.

The'ri.di'i.dae (thē'rĭ-dĭ'ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thēridion a small animal + -idae.] Zool. A family of spiders, net weavers, usually with a small globose body and slender legs. The.rid'i.on (thē-rĭd'ĭ-ŏn) is the type genus. — the.rid'i.id (-ĭ-ĭd), n. & adj.

the'ri.o- (thē'rĭ-ō-), theri-. [See TREACLE.] A combining form, Greek thērio-, thēri-, from thērion, meaning beast, as in *therio*morphic, *theri*anthropic, and in:

theriomaniac	theriomorphosis	theriotrophical
theriomimicry	theriotheism	theriozoic the'ri.od'ic (-ŏd'ĭk), adj. [Gr. thēriōdēs.] Malignant.

The'ri.o.don'ti.a (-shĭ-ə), The'ri.o.don'ta (thē'rĭ-ō-dŏn'tə), n. pl. [NL., fr. theri- + Gr. odōn, odontos, a tooth.] Paleontol. A group of reptiles (usually made a suborder of Therapsida) with teeth differentiated into incisors, prominent canines, and multicuspid or tuberculated molars. They are mostly known from skulls found in the Permian and Triassic formations of South Africa. Formerly nearly or quite equivalent to Theromorpha. — the'ri.o.dont' (thē'rĭ-ō-dŏnt'), adj. & n.

the'ri.o.man'cy (thē'rĭ-ō-măn'sĭ), n. [therio- + -mancy.] Divination by observation of wild animals.

the'ri.o.morph' (-môrf'), n. [therio- + -morph.] Archaeol. Any object, as a vase, shaped in animal form.

the'ri.o.mor'phic (-môr'fĭk), adj. [Gr. thēriomorphos, fr. thērion wild beast + morphē form.] Having an animal form; as, theriomorphic gods.

the'ri.o.mor'phism (-fĭz'm), n. [therio- + -morph + -ism.] Representation of deity in animal form.

the'ri.o.mor'phous (-fŭs), adj. Theriomorphic.

-the'ri.um. [NL.] A combining form, from Greek thērion, beast, denoting a genus of (mammalian) beasts, as in Mega*therium,* Titano*therium.* Corresponding nouns in -the'ri.a, -the.ri'i.dae, -the'ri.i'nae, denote respectively subclasses, families, and subfamilies, as in Proto*theria,* Mega*therididae,* etc.

therm (thûrm), n. Also theme. [F. thermes, pl., fr. L. thermae hot springs, warm baths, fr. Gr. thermai, pl. of thermē heat. See WARM.] 1. A hot bath; hence, any bath, pool of water, bathing place, etc. Obs.
2. [Gr. thermē heat.] Physics. The great calorie, equal to 4.2×10^7 ergs; — a name proposed by a committee of the British Association of Science, in 1896. Sometimes also: a The small calorie. b A practical unit equal to 1,000 great calories. See CALORIE a & b.

-therm (-thûrm). A combining form from Greek thermē, heat, denoting: a Bot. A plant accustomed to a (specified) type of heat, as in mega*therm,* xero*therm.* b Meteorol. A thermic line, as in geiso*therm.* c Med. Apparatus for applying heat, as in colpo*therm.*

therm-. = THERMO-.

therm. Var. of THARM.

ther'ma.co.gen'e.sis (thûr'mə-kō-jĕn'ē-sĭs), n. [NL., fr. therm- + pharmaco- + -genesis.] Med. The production of an increase of temperature in the body by a drug.

ther'mae (thûr'mē), n. pl. [L. See THERM.] Warm springs or baths; specif., Rom. Antiq., the baths of a public establishment for bathing; also, the establishment.

ther'mal (thûr'məl), adj. [Gr. thermē heat; cf. F. thermal. See THERM.] 1. Of or pertaining to thermae.
2. Of or pertaining to heat; warm; hot; as, thermal water; also, Rare, erotic; passionate.
3. Physics. Pertaining to a state of matter which depends upon its temperature alone; as, the thermal agitation of the molecules of a body.

thermal ammeter. Elec. An ammeter operated by the heating of a wire or metal strip. Cf. EXPANSION AMMETER, THERMOAMMETER.

thermal belt. Meteorol. A well-defined zone on the sides of many valleys where frost damage is at a minimum; — called also verdant zone and green belt. It is due to the adiabatic compression (and consequent heating) of the cold air flowing down the hill or mountain sides into the valley.

thermal conductivity. Physics. Capability of conducting heat; also, the quantity of heat that passes in unit time through a unit area of plate whose thickness is unity, when its opposite faces differ in temperature by one degree.

thermal cutout. Elec. A protective device for automatically opening an overloaded circuit.

thermal efficiency. Thermodyn. The ratio of the heat utilized by a heat engine to the total heat units in the fuel consumed. In indicated thermal efficiency, the heat utilized is that transformed into work at the piston. In delivered, or brake, thermal efficiency, the heat utilized is that transformed into work at the shaft or flywheel; — sometimes called shaft, or flywheel, efficiency. In combined thermal efficiency, the heat utilized is that transformed into work by the machine driven by the engine. Plant thermal efficiency is the ratio of the heat delivered by a heating plant in a given time to the heat supplied by the fuel consumed in the same period.

thermal equator. Meteorol. The region of the earth enclosed within the annual isotherms of 80°, including the northern part of South America and the greater part of Africa and India; also, the middle line of this belt.

ther'mal.ge'si.a (thûr'măl-jē'zĭ-ə; -sĭ-ə), n. [NL., fr. therm- + algesia.] Med. A condition in which pain is caused by the application of moderate heat.

ther.mal'i.ty (thĕr-măl'ĭ-tĭ), n. State of a body considered with reference to its heat.

ther'mal.ly (thûr'məl-ĭ), adv. of THERMAL.

thermal metamorphism. Thermometamorphism.

thermal paradox. Physics. A well-known experiment in heat in which a flask of boiling water, having been removed from the flame, corked, and inverted, is made to boil again by the application of cold. The effect of the cold is to reduce the pressure of the vapor and thus lower the boiling point of the water.

thermal parameters (on a surface). Math. The parameters u and v (through which x, y, z are expressed) when $ds^2 = E\,(du^2 + dv^2)$, $G = E$, $F = 0$, ds being the curve element and E, F, G the fundamental magnitudes of first order; — so called because of importance in the theory of the conduction of heat. Called also isometric parameters, isothermal parameters.

thermal pressure. Physics. The pressure, inside a body, which is associated with its temperature. It is opposite in direction to the internal pressure and is balanced by the combination of the internal pressure and the pressure on the surface of the body.

thermal spectrum. See SPECTRUM, 2.

thermal spring. Geol. A spring whose water issues at a temperature higher than the mean temperature of the locality where the spring is situated. If its water temperature is above 98° F., it is termed a hot spring. Cf. GEYSER. Among noted hot springs are those of Bath, England (117°–120° F.), Karlsbad, Germany (107.7° F.–164° F.), Plombières-les-Bains, France (66°–166° F.), and Hot Springs, Ark. (147° F.).

thermal unit. Physics. A unit chosen for the comparison or calculation of quantities of heat, as the calorie or the British thermal unit.

ther.man'tic (thĕr-măn'tĭk), adj. & n. [Gr. thermantikos capable of heating; cf. F. thermantique.] Calefacient. Now Rare.

therm.an'ti.dote (thĕr-măn'tĭ-dōt), n. [therm- + antidote.] A device for circulating and cooling the air, consisting essentially of a kind of rotating wheel fitted in a window and encased in wet tatties. India.

ther'ma.tol'o.gy (thûr'mə-tŏl'ə-jĭ), n. [Gr. thermē heat + -logy.] Science of heat, esp. of using hot springs, baths, etc., in treating disease. — ther'ma.to.log'ic (-tō-lŏj'ĭk), adj. — ther'ma.tol'o.gist (-tŏl'ə-jĭst), n.

therm'es.the'si.a, therm'aes.the'si.a (thûrm'ĕs-thē'zhĭ-ə; -zhə; -zĭ-ə), n. [NL.] Physiol. Sensitiveness to heat; temperature sense. therm'es.the'si.om'e.ter, therm'aes.the'si.om'e.ter (-zĭ-ŏm'ē-tĕr; -sĭ-), n. [See THERMESTHESIA; -METER.] Physiol. An instrument for testing thermesthesia.

ther'mic (thûr'mĭk), adj. Also ther'mi.cal (-mĭ-kəl). [Gr. thermē heat.] Of or pertaining to heat; due to heat; thermal; as, thermic lines. — ther'mi.cal.ly, adv.

thermic anomaly. Meteorol. The difference of the mean temperature of a place from the normal temperature of its latitude.

thermic balance. See BALANCE, n., 2.

thermic fever. Med. Fever caused by heatstroke.

thermic weight. = ENTROPY, 1.

Ther'mi.do'ri.an (thûr'mĭ-dō'rĭ-ăn; 181), adj. [F. thermidorien. See THERMIDOR.] Lit., of or pertaining to Thermidor; hence, designating, or pertaining to, the Thermidorians. — n. F. Hist. One who shared in, or sympathized with, the overthrow of Robespierre, on the 9th Thermidor (July 27), 1794.

therm'i'on (thûrm'ĭ'ŏn), n. [therm- + ion.] Physics. An electrically charged particle emitted by an incandescent substance. Thermions are either negatively charged (electrons) or positively charged (ions).

therm'i.on'ic (thûrm'ĭ-ŏn'ĭk), adj. Physics. Of or pertaining to, or of the nature of, a thermion or thermions. — therm'i.on'i.cal.ly, adv.

thermionic current. An electric current due to the directed movements of thermions, as in the electric discharge through a vacuum tube with the cathode incandescent.

thermionic emission. Physics. The emission of electrons from a hot cathode, as in a vacuum tube; — called also Richardson effect.

thermionic instrument. Electrometry. An instrument in which a thermionic (vacuum) tube and a direct current meter are combined to measure current.

thermionic rectifier. Elec. A rectifier employing the principle of the diode. It consists of a vacuum tube whose cathode is a heated filament, the thermionic discharge from the cathode permitting the passage of current in one direction only; — called also vacuum-tube rectifier or bulb rectifier.

therm'i.on'ics (thûrm'ĭ-ŏn'ĭks), n. The branch of physics dealing with phenomena due to thermions. See -ICS.

thermionic tube. Elec. a A vacuum tube (sense b) in which electron emission is produced by the heating of an electrode. b Also thermionic valve. = ELECTRON TUBE.

Ther'mit (thûr'mĭt), n. [Gr. thermē heat + -ite.] A trade-mark for a mixture of aluminum in fine grains with an oxide of a chemically weaker metal, usually iron; hence [sometimes not cap., commonly ther'mite (-mĭt)], the mixture bearing this trade-mark. On being heated by a priming, the aluminum combines violently with the oxygen of the oxide, generating great heat and setting the other metal free in the molten state. It is used in welding and in incendiary bombs, fire grenades, etc. Cast-iron Thermit is a mixture of aluminum, iron oxide, ferrosilicon, and mild-steel forgings.

ther'mo- (thûr'mō-), therm-. Comb. form, Greek thermo-, therm-, from thermē, denoting heat, as in thermo-chemistry; specif., abbr. of thermoelectric, as in thermo-battery.

ther'mo.am'me'ter (thûr'mō-ăm'mē'tĕr; -ăm'ē-tĕr), n. [thermo- + ammeter.] Elec. A thermal ammeter in which the heat effect is indicated by a thermocouple.

ther'mo.an'es.the'si.a, ther'mo.an'aes.the'si.a (-ăn'ĕs-thē'zhĭ-ə; -zhə; -zĭ-ə), n. [NL.] Med. Loss of power to distinguish heat or cold by touch.

ther'mo.bar'o.graph (-băr'ō-grăf), n. Physics. An instrument for recording simultaneously the pressure and temperature of a gas; a combined thermograph and barograph.

ther'mo.ba.rom'e.ter (-bə-rŏm'ē-tĕr), n. Physics. a A hypsometer. b A siphon barometer adapted to be used also as a thermometer.

ther'mo.bat'ter.y (thûr'mō-băt'ĕr-ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). A thermopile.

ther'mo.cau'ter.y (-kô'tĕr-ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). Surg. a Cautery by the application of heat. b A firing iron.

ther'mo.chem'i.cal (-kĕm'ĭ-kăl), adj. Also ther'mochem'ic (-ĭk). Of, pertaining to, or obtained by, thermochemistry. — ther'mo.chem'i.cal.ly, adv.

ther'mo.chem'ist (-ĭst), n. One who makes a specialty of or one who is versed in, thermochemistry.

ther'mo.chem'is.try (-ĭs-trĭ), n. That branch of chemical science which treats of the relations existing between chemical action and heat. See ENDOTHERMIC, EXOTHERMIC.

ther'mo.chro'ic (-krō'ĭk), adj. [thermo- + -chroic.] Pertaining to or designating heat rays that have undergone selective absorption and are therefore analogous to colored light rays.

ther'mo.chro'sy (thûr'mō-krō'sĭ; thĕr-mŏk'rō-sĭ), n. [thermo- + Gr. chrōsis coloring.] Physics. The property of being or becoming thermochroic.

ther'mo.cline (thûr'mō-klīn), n. [thermo- + -cline.] A temperature gradient, esp. one marking sharp change; also, any of the layers (discontinuity layers) of water exhibiting this.

ther'mo.cou'ple (thûr'mō-kŭp'l), n. Elec. A thermoelectric couple used to measure temperature differences.

thermocouple instrument. Elec. An instrument consisting of a thermocouple (or thermocouples) combined with a direct-current meter, used for measuring small values of alternating current and high-frequency currents. The current heats the thermocouple and the resulting electromotive force is measured.

thermocouple meter. Elec. An instrument, as an ammeter or voltmeter suitable for a high-frequency circuit, where one or more thermocouples are heated by the current to be measured, and where the electromotive force of the thermocouple actuates a suitable deflecting instrument.

ther'mo.cur'rent (thûr'mō-kûr'ĕnt), n. Physics. A current developed or set in motion by heat; specif., an electric current, in a heterogeneous circuit, due to differences of temperature between the junctions of the substances of which the circuit is composed. See THERMOELECTRICITY.

thermo development. Photog. Adjustment of the development time in accordance with the developer solution temperature, commonly used for negatives; — called also time and temperature method.

ther'mo.dif.fu'sion (-dĭ-fū'zhŭn), n. Thermal diffusion.

ther'mo.dy.nam'ic (-dī-năm'ĭk; -dĭ-), adj. Also ther'mo.dy.nam'i.cal (-ĭ-kăl). Physics. Relating to thermodynamics; caused or operated by force due to the application of heat. — ther'mo.dy.nam'i.cal.ly, adv.

thermodynamic efficiency. The efficiency of a heat engine operating on a Carnot cycle. It is equal to $\frac{T_1 - T_2}{T_1}$, in which T_1 and T_2 are the absolute temperatures of the source of heat and of the refrigerator respectively. Called also Carnot efficiency.

thermodynamic potential. A quantity of energy which along with other defining quantities determines the condition of a thermodynamic medium.

ther'mo.dy.nam'ics (thûr'mō-dĭ-năm'ĭks; -dĭ-), n. The science which treats of the mechanical action or relations of heat. See LAWS OF THERMODYNAMICS; -ICS.

ther'mo.e.lec'tric (thûr'mō-ē-lĕk'trĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to thermoelectricity. — ther'mo.e.lec'tri.cal (-trĭ-kăl), adj. — ther'mo.e.lec'tri.cal.ly, adv.

thermoelectric couple or pair. Elec. A union of two conductors, as bars or wires of dissimilar metals joined at their extremities, for producing a thermoelectric current. Cf. THERMOCOUPLE.

thermoelectric inversion. Reversal in direction of a current produced by a thermocouple when the difference of temperature is increased beyond a certain neutral point.

ther'mo.e.lec'tric'i.ty (thûr'mō-ē-lĕk'trĭs'ĭ-tĭ; -ē-lĕk'-), n. Electricity produced by the direct action of heat, as by the unequal heating of a circuit composed of two dissimilar metals; also, the branch of electricity that deals with such phenomena. Wherever two dissimilar conductors come in contact there is a difference of electric potential, and if their other ends are joined and the two junctions maintained at different temperatures an electric current will be produced in the circuit thus formed. Conversely, when a current passes through such a junction a heating or cooling occurs, according to the direction of the current (Peltier effect). The thermoelectric properties of most metals vary with the temperature, hence electromotive force is also observed at the junction of two differently heated portions of a metal.

thermoelectric multiplier. Elec. A thermopile.

thermoelectric pair. Elec. = THERMOELECTRIC COUPLE.

thermoelectric pile. A thermopile.

thermoelectric power of a metal. Physics. Electromotive force of a pair composed of the metal in question and of a standard metal (lead) when the difference in temperature of the two junctions is one degree centigrade.

thermoelectric series. A series of conductors arranged in the order of their thermoelectric powers.

thermoelectric thermometer. See THERMOMETER.

ther'mo.e.lec'trom'e.ter (thûr'mō-ē-lĕk'trŏm'ē-tĕr; -ē-lĕk'-), n. An instrument to measure the strength of an electric current by the heat which it produces, or to determine the heat developed by it.

ther'mo.e.lec'tro.mo'tive (-ē-lĕk'trō-mō'tĭv), adj. Pert. to or designating the force causing thermoelectric currents.

ther'mo.el'e.ment (-ĕl'ē-mĕnt), n. Elec. A device for measuring small currents, consisting of a wire heating element and a thermocouple in electrical contact with it.

ther'mo.ex.ci'to.ry (-ĕk-sī'tō-rĭ), adj. Physiol. Exciting the production of heat in the body.

ther'mo.gal'va.nom'e.ter (-găl'və-nŏm'ē-tĕr), n. Elec. A thermoammeter for small currents, usually consisting of a thermoelement and a direct-current galvanometer.

ther'mo.gen (thûr'mō-jĕn), n. [thermo- + -gen.] Old Chem. Caloric; heat, regarded as a material but imponderable substance.

ther'mo.gen'er.a'tor (-jĕn'ĕr-ā'tĕr), n. A generator of heat.

ther'mo.gen'e.sis (-jĕn'ē-sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thermo- + -genesis.] 1. Production of heat as in the body by oxidation, etc.
2. Spontaneous combustion.
— ther'mo.ge.net'ic (-jē-nĕt'ĭk), adj.

---

therf. Var. of THARF.

theri-. = THERIO-.

-the'ri.a. See -THERIUM.

the.ri'a.cle, n. = TREACLE. Obs.

-the.ri'i.dae. See -THERIUM.

the'ri.ol'a.try (thē'rĭ-ŏl'ə-trĭ), n. [therio- + -latry.] = ANIMAL WORSHIP.

therm'aes.the'si.a. Var. of THERMESTHESIA.

therm'aes.the'si.om'e.ter. Var. of THERMESTHESIOMETER.

therm.an'aes.the'si.a. Var. of THERMANESTHESIA.

therm.an'al.ge'si.a, n. [NL.] = THERMOANESTHESIA.

therm.an'es.the'si.a, n. [NL.] Med. = THERMOANESTHESIA.

therme (thûrm), n. Var. of THERM. [Bib.]

Ther'me.leth (thûr'mē-lĕth), ‖ ther.met'o.graph (thĕr-mĕt'ō-grăf), ther.met'ro.graph (-rō-grăf), n. = THERMOMETROGRAPH.

-ther'mi.a (-thûr'mĭ-ə). = -THERMY.

‖ Ther'mi'dor' (tĕr'mē'dôr'; E, thûr'mĭ-dôr'), n. [F., fr. Gr. thermē heat + dōron gift.] See REVOLUTIONARY CALENDAR.

ther'mo.aes.the'si.a, n. = THERMESTHESIA.

ther'mo.an'aes.the'si.a. Var. of THERMOANESTHESIA.

ther'mo.an'al.ge'si.a (-ăn'ăl-jē'zĭ-ə; -sĭ-ə), n. = THERMOANESTHESIA.

ther'mo.di.nam'ic. Thermodynamic. Ref. Sp. [-IAN.]

ther'mo.dy'na.mi'cian, n. See ther'mo.dy.nam'i.cist (thûr'mō-dĭ-năm'ĭ-sĭst; -dĭ-), ther'mo.dy'na.mist (-dĭ'nə-mĭst; -dĭn'ə-), n. See -IST.

ther'mo.es.the'si.a (-ĕs-thē'zhĭ-ə; -zhə; -zĭ-ə), n. [NL., fr. thermo- + esthesia.] = THERMESTHESIA.

ther'mo·gen'ic (thûr'mō·jĕn'ĭk), adj. Relating to the production of heat; producing heat; thermogenous.

ther·mog'e·nous (thĕr·mŏj'ĕ·nŭs), adj. Thermogenic.

ther'mo·ge·og'ra·phy (thûr'mō·jē·ŏg'rə·fĭ), n. Geography dealing with the distribution and variation of temperature. — ther'mo·ge'o·graph'i·cal (-jē'ō·grăf'ĭ·kăl), adj.

ther'mo·gram (thûr'mō·grăm), n. Physics. The trace or record made by means of a thermograph.

ther'mo·graph (-grăf), n. A self-registering thermometer.

ther·mog'ra·phy (thĕr·mŏg'rə·fĭ), n. Any process of writing or printing involving the use of heat.

ther'mo·hy'per·es·the'si·a, ther'mo·hy'per·aes·the'si·a (thûr'mō·hī'pĕr·ĕs·thē'zhĭ·ə; -zhə; -zĭ·ə), n. [NL., fr. thermo- + hyperesthesia.] Med. Excessive sensitiveness to heat or cold.

ther'mo·in·hib'i·to'ry (-ĭn·hĭb'ĭ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Inhibiting heat production; specif., Physiol., pertaining to or designating nerves whose function is to inhibit the production of heat in the body.

ther'mo·junc'tion (-jŭngk'shŭn), n. Elec. A junction of two dissimilar conductors used to produce a thermoelectric current, as in one form of pyrometer; a thermocouple.

ther'mo·kin'e·mat'ics (-kĭn'ē·măt'ĭks; -kī'nē-), n. The study of the motion or motive power of heat. See -ICS.

ther'mo·la'bile (-lā'bĭl; -b'l; 155), adj. [thermo- + labile.] Unstable when heated; — said esp., Biochem., of substances, as enzymes and immune bodies, which lose their characteristic properties on being heated to or above 55° C. — ther'mo·la·bil'i·ty (-lə·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

ther·mol'o·gy (thĕr·mŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [thermo- + -logy.] The science of, or a treatise on, heat. — ther'mo·log'i·cal (thûr'mō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj.

ther'mo·lu'mi·nes'cence (thûr'mō·lū'mĭ·nĕs'ĕns; -'ns; 242), n. Physics & Chem. The emission of light by a substance when gently heated. See LUMINESCENCE. — ther'mo·lu'mi·nes'cent (-ĕnt; -'nt), adj.

ther·mol'y·sis (thĕr·mŏl'ĭ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thermo- + -lysis.] 1. Chem. Dissociation by heat. 2. Physiol. The loss of heat from the body.

ther'mo·lyt'ic (thûr'mō·lĭt'ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to thermolysis.

ther'mo·lyze (thûr'mō·līz), v. t.; -LYZED (-līzd); -LYZ'ING (-līz'ĭng). Chem. To subject to thermolysis.

ther'mo·mag·net'ic (-măg·nĕt'ĭk), adj. Pyromagnetic. — ther'mo·mag'net·ism (-măg'nĕ·tĭz'm; -nĭ·tĭz'm), n.

ther'mo·met'a·mor'phism (-mĕt'ə·môr'fĭz'm), n. Geol. Metamorphism due to heat which is not the result of dynamic action or volcanic emanations. — ther'mo·met'a·mor'phic (-fĭk), adj.

ther·mom'e·ter (thĕr·mŏm'ĕ·tĕr), n. [thermo- + -meter; cf. F. thermomètre.] An instrument used for determining the temperature of a body or space. It consists essentially of some confined substance, as mercury, whose measurable physical properties, or one of them, as volume, change with a change in temperature. A thermometer gives a number to temperature by measuring this change in physical properties. The ordinary household thermometer, or mercury-in-glass thermometer, consists of a glass tube of capillary bore with a bulb blown on one end and sealed at the other. It contains mercury, all air having been exhausted, and gives a number to the temperature by measuring the expansion differences between the mercury and the glass container. A numbered scale etched on the tube or attached to it is so placed and so subdivided that the number corresponding to the top of the mercury column indicates the temperature. Thermometric tubes may be made of other substances, as quartz; liquids other than mercury are also used, depending upon the region in which the temperature is to be measured. A gas thermometer is one in which the thermometric substance is gas. In the constant-pressure gas thermometer, the pressure is kept unchanged, and changes in temperature are indicated by changes in volume of the enclosed gas. In the constant-volume gas thermometer, the volume is kept unchanged and changes in temperature are indicated by the changes in pressure required to maintain the volume constant. Galileo invented a simple open-air thermometer about 1593, by which he measured temperature changes. Physicists have adopted as a standard the constant-volume, hydrogen, centigrade thermometer. The metallic thermometer indicates changes of temperature by the expansion or contraction of rods or strips of metal. Electric thermometers are of two kinds: (1) Resistance thermometers, based on the increase in the electric resistance of metals with increase in the temperature. Usually the resistance of a platinum wire is measured, when the instrument is called also a platinum thermometer. (2) Thermoelectric thermometers, essentially thermoelectric couples. Temperatures may also be measured by means of a set of cones fusing at different points, by the calorimeter, etc. Cf. TEMPERATURE, HEAT, CENTIGRADE, FAHRENHEIT, REAUMUR, ABSOLUTE TEMPERATURE, ZERO, BLACK-BULB THERMOMETER, WET-BULB THERMOMETER, DRY-BULB THERMOMETER, ELECTRIC THERMOMETER, DIFFERENTIAL THERMOMETER, GALVANOTHERMOMETER, PYROMETER.

Combination Thermometer showing Centigrade, Fahrenheit, and Reaumur Scales, and their relative gradation.

☞ To reduce degrees Fahrenheit to degrees centigrade, subtract 32° and multiply by 5/9; to reduce degrees centigrade to degrees Fahrenheit, multiply by 9/5 and add 32°. To reduce degrees Reaumur to degrees centigrade, multiply by 5/4. To reduce degrees Fahrenheit to degrees Fahrenheit above absolute zero, add 459.6°. To reduce degrees centigrade to degrees centigrade above absolute zero, add 273.1°.

ther·mom'e·ter (-thĕr·mŏm'ĕ·tĕr). A combining form of thermometer, as in:

chronothermometer	geothermometer	opthalmothermometer diathermometer	heliothermometer	mometer electrothermometer	hypothermometer	telethermometer galvanothermometer	lactothermometer	eter ther·mom'e·ter·ize (thĕr·mŏm'ĕ·tĕr·īz), v. t. To measure by a thermometer. Rare.

ther'mo·met'ric (thûr'mō·mĕt'rĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to a thermometer or thermometry; made or ascertained by means of a thermometer.

ther'mo·met'ri·cal (-rĭ·kăl), adj. Thermometric.

ther'mo·met'ri·cal·ly, adv. of THERMOMETRIC, THERMOMETRICAL.

thermometric conductivity. Physics. The thermal conductivity when the unit of heat used is the heat required to raise a unit volume one degree.

ther'mo·met'ro·graph (thûr'mō·mĕt'rō·grăf), n. [thermo- + metro- + -graph.] A self-registering thermometer.

ther·mom'e·try (thĕr·mŏm'ĕ·trĭ), n. The measurement of temperature.

ther'mo·mo'tive (thûr'mō·mō'tĭv), adj. Of or pertaining to the production of motion by heat; — used specif. with reference to hot-air engines.

ther'mo·mo'tor (-tĕr), n. A heat engine; a hot-air engine.

ther'mo·mul'ti·pli'er (-mŭl'tĭ·plī'ĕr), n. A thermopile.

ther'mo·nas'ty (thûr'mō·năs'tĭ), n. [thermo- + -nasty.] Plant Physiol. In plant organs, the assumption of, or tendency to assume, certain positions because of one-sided pressure or growth due to temperature. — ther'mo·nas'tic (-năs'tĭk), adj.

ther'mo·na'trite (-nā'trĭt), n. [thermo- + natron + -ite.] Native hydrous sodium carbonate, $Na_2CO_3.H_2O$, found in some lakes and alkali soils.

ther'mo·neu·ro'sis (-nū·rō'sĭs), n. [NL.] Med. a A neurosis caused by exposure to heat. b A neurosis causing fever, esp. through vasomotor abnormality.

ther'mo·neu·tral'i·ty (-nū·trăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Chem. Neutrality as regards heat effects. See LAW OF THERMONEUTRALITY.

ther'mo·nous (thûr'mō·nŭs), adj. [Gr., fr. thermos hot + nous mind.] Stimulated mentally or emotionally by heat.

ther'mo·pair' (thûr'mō·pâr'), n. Elec. A thermoelectric couple.

ther'mo·pal·pa'tion (-păl·pā'shŭn), n. Med. Palpation to note temperature differences in different parts of the body.

ther'mo·pen'e·tra'tion (-pĕn'ē·trā'shŭn), n. Med. Heat penetration; specif., a therapeutic method in which, by means of special electrical apparatus, heat is induced in deep parts of the body; diathermy.

ther'mo·phile (thûr'mō·fīl; -fĭl), -phil (-fĭl), n. [thermo- + -phile.] Biol. An organism growing at a high temperature, as certain bacteria which thrive at 122–131° F. Cf. PSYCHROPHILE. — ther'mo·phile, -phil, adj. — ther'mo·phil'ic (-fĭl'ĭk), adj. — ther·moph'i·lous (thĕr·mŏf'ĭ·lŭs), adj.

ther'mo·phone (thûr'mō·fōn), n. [thermo- + -phone.] 1. A portable form of teletherm ometer, using a telephone in connection with a differential thermometer. 2. A telephone involving heat effects, as changes in temperature (hence in length) due to pulsations of the line current in a fine wire connected with the receiver diaphragm.

ther'mo·phore (-fōr; 181), n. [thermo- + -phore.] An apparatus for conveying heat, as a case containing material which retains its heat for a considerable period.

ther'mo·phos'phor (-fŏs'fôr), n. [thermo- + phosphor.] Physics & Chem. A substance that exhibits thermoluminescence.

ther'mo·pile (thûr'mō·pīl), n. [thermo- + pile a heap.] Physics. An apparatus consisting of a number of thermoelectric couples, as of antimony and bismuth or of copper sulphide and German silver, combined so as to multiply the effect. It is used to generate electric currents for certain purposes and also, in a very sensitive form, for determining slight differences in temperature, in automatic thermostatic systems for fire alarms, etc.

ther'mo·plas'tic (-plăs'tĭk), adj. [thermo- + -plastic.] Capable of being made plastic by the application of heat.

ther'mo·plei'on (-plī'ŏn), n. [NL., fr. thermo- + pleion.] Meteorol. An area on a map showing positive temperature departures.

ther'mo·pol'y·mer·i·za'tion (-pŏl'ĭ·mĕr·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -pō·lĭm'ĕr·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n. [thermo- + polymerization.] Chem. Polymerization effected with heat.

ther'mo·pol'yp·ne'a (-pŏl'ĭp·nē'ə), n. [thermo- + poly- + Gr. pnoiē breath.] Physiol. Rapid breathing caused by exposure to heat. — ther'mo·pol'yp·ne'ic (-ĭk), adj.

Ther·mop'sis (thĕr·mŏp'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thermos lupine + -opsis.] Bot. A genus of American and Asiatic showy herbs (family Fabaceae) having trifoliolate stipulate leaves and yellow or purple racemose flowers.

ther'mo·ra'di·o·ther'a·py (thûr'mō·rā'dĭ·ō·thĕr'ə·pĭ), n. [thermo- + radiotherapy.] Med. X-ray treatment combined with thermopenetration.

ther'mo·re·duc'tion (-rē·dŭk'shŭn), n. Chem. & Metal. Reduction at high temperatures.

ther'mo·reg'u·la'tion (-rĕg'ū·lā'shŭn), n. The maintenance or regulation of temperature; specif., Physiol., the maintenance of a particular temperature of the body.

ther'mo·reg'u·la'tor (-rĕg'ū·lā'tĕr), n. Physics. A thermostatic device for the regulation of temperature.

Ther'mos bot'tle or flask (thûr'mŏs). [Gr. thermos hot. See THERMAL.] A trade-mark applied to a kind of vacuum bottle or Dewar vessel (which see); hence [sometimes not cap.] the bottle bearing this trade-mark. See VACUUM BOTTLE.

ther'mo·scope (thûr'mō·skōp), n. [thermo- + -scope.] Physics. An instrument for indicating changes of temperature without accurate measurement in degrees, esp. one contrived by Count Rumford which, as modified by Professor Leslie, was later called the differential thermometer.

ther'mo·scop'ic (-skŏp'ĭk), adj. [thermo- + -scopic.] Distinguishing temperature differences. — ther'mo·scop'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. — ther'mo·scop'i·cal·ly, adv.

ther'mo·si'phon (-sī'fŏn; -fŭn), n. An arrangement of siphon tubes for assisting circulation in a liquid.

ther'mo·sta'ble (-stā'b'l), adj. Stable when heated; specif., Biochem., capable of being heated to moderate temperatures without loss of special properties; — said of immune substances, enzymes, vitamins, etc. — ther'mo·sta·bil'i·ty (-stə·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

ther'mo·stat (thûr'mō·stăt), n. [thermo- + -stat.] 1. An automatic device for regulating temperature by opening or closing the damper of a heating furnace, regulating supply of gas, or the like; also, one for actuating fire or low-temperature alarms, for controlling automatic sprinklers or fire doors, etc. Thermostats utilize either the differential expansion of solids, liquids, or gases subjected to heat or else the principle of the thermopile. A fixed-temperature thermostat operates at predetermined fixed temperatures. A rate-of-rise thermostat operates when the rate of increase of temperature exceeds a predetermined rate. 2. Loosely, any piece of apparatus regulated by a device of the above type, as a constant-temperature chamber.

ther'mo·stat'ic (thûr'mō·stăt'ĭk), adj. Physics. Of or pertaining to, or made or effected by, the thermostat. — ther'mo·stat'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

ther'mo·stat'ics (-ĭks), n. [thermo- + statics.] Physics. That part of the science of heat treating of thermal equilibrium. See -ICS.

ther'mo·stim'u·la'tion (-stĭm'ū·lā'shŭn), n. Physiol. Stimulation, as of a nerve, by means of heat.

ther'mo·syn'the·sis (-sĭn'thē·sĭs), n. Chem. Synthesis effected with heat.

ther'mo·sys·tal'tic (-sĭs·tăl'tĭk), adj. Physiol. Influenced in its contraction by heat or cold; — said of a muscle.

ther'mo·sys'tal·tism (-sĭs'tăl·tĭz'm), n. [See THERMO-; SYSTALTIC.] Physiol. Muscular contraction caused by temperature change.

ther'mo·tac'tic (-tăk'tĭk), adj. Biol. & Physiol. Characterized by or exhibiting thermotaxis; of or relating to thermotaxis.

ther'mo·tank' (thûr'mō·tăngk'), n. [thermo- + tank.] A tank containing pipes through which circulates steam, water, air, or the like, for heating or cooling.

ther'mo·tax'is (-tăk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thermo- + -taxis.] Biol. & Physiol. a A taxis in which a temperature gradient constitutes the directive factor. Thermotaxis is usually considered positive when the movement is toward a region of higher temperature, and negative when away from it. b The regulation of body temperature. — ther'mo·tax'ic (-sĭk), adj.

ther'mo·ten'sile (-tĕn'sĭl; -sīl; 155), adj. Pertaining to the variation of tensile strength with the temperature.

ther'mo·ten'sion (-shŭn), n. A process of increasing the strength of wrought iron by heating it to a determinate temperature, and giving to it a mechanical strain or tension in the direction in which the strength is to be exerted.

ther'mo·ther'a·peu'tics (-thĕr'ə·pū'tĭks), n. [thermo- + therapeutics.] The science and art of thermotherapy.

ther'mo·ther'a·py (-thĕr'ə·pĭ), n [thermo- + -therapy.] Med. Treatment of disease by heat, as by hot air, hot baths, diathermy, etc.

ther·mot'ic (thĕr·mŏt'ĭk), ther·mot'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. [Gr. thermotēs heat, fr. thermos hot.] Of, pertaining to, or caused by, heat. — ther·mot'i·cal·ly, adv.

ther·mot'ics (-ĭks), n. The science of heat. See -ICS.

ther'mo·trop'ic (thûr'mō·trŏp'ĭk), adj. Biol. Characterized by thermotropism.

ther·mot'ro·pism (thĕr·mŏt'rō·pĭz'm), n. [thermo- + -tropism.] Biol. A tropism in which a difference of temperature determines the orientation. It is usually considered positive when the orientation is toward the higher temperature and negative when away from it.

ther·mot'ro·py (-pĭ), n. [thermo- + -tropy.] Physical Chem. The reversible changing of color with change in temperature.

ther'mo·type (thûr'mō·tīp), n. [thermo- + -type.] A picture (as of a slice of wood) obtained by first wetting the object slightly with hydrochloric or dilute sulphuric acid, then taking an impression with a press, and next strongly heating this impression. — ther'mo·typ'ic (-tĭp'ĭk), adj.

ther'mo·typ'y (thûr'mō·tīp'ĭ; thĕr·mŏt'ĭ·pĭ), n. The art or process of obtaining thermotypes.

ther'mo·un·sta'ble (thûr'mō·ŭn·stā'b'l), adj. = THERMOLABILE.

ther'mo·vol·ta'ic (thûr'mō·vŏl·tā'ĭk), adj. [thermo- + voltaic.] Physics. Of or relating to heat and electricity; esp., relating to thermal effects due to voltaic action.

-ther'my (-thûr'mĭ). A combining form from Greek thermē heat, denoting state or production of heat, as in diathermy, hypertermy.

ther'o- (thĕr'ō-), ther-. A combining form, Greek thēro-, thēr-, from thēr, meaning wild beast, as in Theromorpha, therodont, and the·rol'a·try, the'ro·mor'pho·log'i·cal, the'ro·mor·phol'o·gy.

the'ro·dont (thĕr'ō·dŏnt), n. [ther- + -odont.] Paleontol. Theriodont.

the'roid (thĕr'oid), adj. [ther- + -oid.] Resembling a beast in nature or habit.

the·rol'o·gy (thē·rŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [thero- + -logy.] Mammalogy. — the'ro·log'ic (thĕr'ō·lŏj'ĭk), adj. — the'ro·log'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. — the·rol'o·gist (thē·rŏl'ō·jĭst), n. All Rare.

The'ro·mor'pha (thĕr'ō·môr'fə), n. pl. [NL., fr. thero- + -morpha.] Paleontol. An order of reptiles (subclass Synapsida), of Pennsylvanian and Permian age, having biconcave vertebrae, five-toed ambulatory limbs, well-developed pectoral and pelvic arches in which the elements are fused or suturally united, and a skull with fixed quadrate bone and the bones of the temporal region forming a single broad arcade; — formerly used more broadly to include groups (Pareiasauria, Anomodontia, Placodontia, etc.) now classed in other orders. — the'ro·morph (thĕr'ō·môrf), adj. & n.

the'ro·mor'phi·a (thĕr'ō·môr'fĭ·ə), the'ro·mor'phism (-fĭz'm), n. [NL. theromorphia, fr. thero- + Gr. morphē form.] Apparent reversion in a human being to a lower animal type in one or more characters.

ther·mog'e·ny (thĕr·mŏj'ĕ·nĭ), n. = THERMOGENESIS.

ther'mo·gram. Thermograph. R.S.

thermometer pointer. See POINTER, 2 b.

ther·moph'o·bous, adj. See -PHOBOUS.

ther'mo·phos'pho·res'cence (thûr'mō·fŏs'fō·rĕs'ĕns; -'ns), n. [thermo- + phosphorescence.] Physics & Chem. = THERMOLUMINESCENCE.

ther'mo·ple'gi·a (-plē'jĭ·ə), n. [NL., fr. thermo- + -plegia.] = HEATSTROKE.

ther'mo·pol'yp·noe'a, ther'mo·pol'yp·noe'ic. Vars. of THERMOPOLYPNEA, etc.

Ther·mop'y·lae (thĕr·mŏp'ĭ·lē), n. See BATTLE, Table.

ther'mo·re·sist'ance (thûr'mō·rē·zĭs'tăns), n. See THERMO-. — ther'mo·re·sist'ant (-tănt), adj.

ther'mo·sy'phon. Var. of THERMOSIPHON.

ther'mo·tel'e·phone, n. = THERMOPHONE, 2.

The'ro·mo'ra (thĕr'ō·mō'rə) The'ro·mo'res (-rēz), n. pl [NL.] Syns. of THEROMORPHA.

the'ro·mor'phic (thē'rō·môr'fĭk), the'ro·mor'phous (-fŭs), adj. a Pertaining to the Theromorpha. b Pertaining to or showing, theromorphism.

The'ron (thē'rŏn), n. [Gr. Thēron.] Literally, a hunter; — masculine proper name.

The·rop'o·da (thē·rŏp'ō·dȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. thero- + -poda.] Paleontol. A suborder of carnivorous digitigrade dinosaurs (order Saurischia) with premaxillary teeth, small forelimbs, and simple slender pubic bones meeting in a symphysis. They walked on their hind legs. Megalosaurus, Ceratosaurus, and Compsognathus are genera. — the'ro·pod (thē'rō·pŏd), adj. & n. — the·rop'o·dous (thē·rŏp'ō·dŭs), adj.

Ther·si'tes (thĕr·sī'tēz), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thersitēs.] The ugliest and most scurrilous of the Greeks before Troy. He reviled all, but chiefly Achilles and Ulysses. He was slain by Achilles for deriding his grief for Penthesilea. Shakespeare introduces him in Troilus and Cressida.

ther·sit'i·cal (-sĭt'ĭ·kȧl), adj. Also ther'si·te'an (thûr'·sĭ·tē'ăn). Pertaining to, or characteristic of, Thersites; loudmouthed; scurrilous.

the·sau'rus (thē·sô'rŭs), n.; pl. -SAURI (-rī). [L. See TREASURE.] A treasury or storehouse; hence, a repository, esp. of words, as a dictionary.

thesaurus meritorum. = TREASURY OF THE CHURCH.

these (thēz), pron. & adj. [ME. thes, thæs, thise, these, var. of thas, pl. of thes this. See THIS; cf. THOSE.] Plural of this.

☞ For the use of these with kind of or sort of, see KIND OF, Note.

The·se'um (thē·sē'ŭm), n. [L. These(ī)um, fr. Gr. Thēsion, fr. Thēseus Theseus.] Gr. Antiq. 1. A shrine of Theseus, the Athenian hero, near and probably to the east of the Athenian agora, and said to have been built when Cimon brought the reputed bones of the hero to Athens about 469 B.C. It was decorated with paintings by Micon. 2. A Doric temple on a hill west of the agora of Athens, formerly falsely identified as the shrine of Theseus (def. 1 above). It was built in the 5th century B.C., and is one of the best preserved of ancient temples. Some of its sculptures represent exploits of Theseus, which gave color to the theory identifying it with the shrine of Theseus. But it is now generally believed to be a temple of Hephaestus.

The'seus (thē'sūs; thē'sē·ŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thēseus.] Gr. Myth. The chief Attic hero, son of Aegeus, king of Athens. He rid Attica and the Isthmian region of Procrustes and other evildoers; slew the Minotaur, and carried off Minos's daughter Ariadne (see ARIADNE); conquered the Amazons, and married their queen, variously given as Antiope and Hippolyte; and after her death espoused Phaedra. He was one of the Argonauts, and took part in the Calydonian boar hunt. (See HIPPOLYTUS, PIRITHOUS.) He figures in Chaucer's Knight's Tale and Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream.— The·se'an (thē·sē'ăn), adj.

the'si·al (thē'sĭ·ȧl), adj. Of or pertaining to a thesis. Rare.

the'si·cle (thē'sĭ·k'l; thĕs'ĭ-), n. [Dim. of thesis.] A little or subordinate thesis. Rare.

the'sis (thē'sĭs or, esp. in sense 5, thĕs'ĭs), n.; pl. THESES (-sēz). [L., fr. Gr. thesis, fr. root of tithenai to place, set. See DO; cf. ANATHEMA, APOTHECARY, EPITHET, HYPOTHESIS, PARENTHESIS, SYNTHESIS, THEME, TICK a cover.] 1. A thing laid down; a statement; a proposition; specif., a position or proposition which a person advances and offers to maintain, as by a candidate for scholastic honors, or one which is actually maintained, by argument.

2. A dissertation embodying results of original research, and, strictly, substantiating a specific view; esp., one (or its equivalent) presented by a candidate for a degree or to meet the requirements of a course.

3. Logic. An affirmation or proposition to be proved, or one advanced without proof; esp., a positive proposition contrasting with some negation. Specif.: a The proposition or point of view defended by an argument. b An assumption; a postulate. c The consequent of a hypothetical proposition. d With Kant, the affirmative member of one of the antinomies or paradoxes of reason. e With Hegel, the proposition or conception representing the first and least adequate stage of developing thought, contrasting with the second stage, or antithesis, which negates this thesis, and with the third stage, or synthesis, in which the partial truths of thesis and antithesis are brought together.

4. Music. The accented part of the measure, expressed by the downward beat; — the opposite of arsis.

5. Pros. a The heavier or stressed part of a foot, esp. in quantitative verse; — the original Greek sense. b The unaccented syllable or syllables of a foot; — a modern sense resulting from misunderstanding of the Greek terms. See ARSIS, n., 1.

-the·sis (-thē·sĭs). A combining form from Greek thesis, position, as in cacothesis.

thesis novel, thesis play. A novel or play which advances, illustrates, or defends a thesis. — thesis dramatist. — thesis novelist. — thesis playwright.

The·si'um (thē·sĭ'ŭm), n. [L. thesium a kind of plant, fr. Gr. thēseion.] Bot. A large genus of Old World herbs (family Santalaceae). They are root parasites with small linear or scalelike leaves and diclinous flowers. Several species are called bastard toadflax.

Thes'mo·pho'ri·a (thĕs'mō·fō'rĭ·ȧ; 181), n. pl. [L., fr. Gr. Thesmophoria, fr. Thesmophoros, an epithet of Demeter; cf. Gr. thesmos law, institution, and pherein to bear.] Gr. Relig. A festival of Demeter (as Thesmophoros), or of Demeter and Kore, celebrated, by women only, on the 11th to the 13th of Pyanepsion. The essential ceremony was the casting of pigs into chasms of the earth and the bringing up of their decaying flesh to be mixed with seed to insure fertility. — Thes'mo·pho'ri·an (-ăn), Thes'mo·phor'ic (-fŏr'ĭk), adj.

Thes·moph'o·ros (thĕs·mŏf'ō·rŏs), n. [Gr.] Gr. Relig. Demeter; — an epithet usually interpreted as meaning the "giver of laws" but probably originally meaning "the giver of riches," that is, of the fruits of the earth. Cf. THESMOPHORIA.

The goddess Thesmophoros founded and presided over social order, family life, the functions of women, and the birth of children.
W. M. Ramsay.

thes'mo·thete (thĕs'mō·thēt), n. Also thes·moth'e·tes (thĕs·mŏth'ē·tēz); pl. -TAE (thĕs·mŏth'ē·tē). [Gr. thesmothetēs, fr. thesmos that which is established, a law (fr. root of tithenai to set) + thetēs a giver (also fr. root of tithenai).] A lawgiver; a legislator; — orig. Gr. Antiq. and applied esp. to any of the six junior archons at Athens. See ARCHON.

the'so·cyte (thē'sō·sīt; thĕs'ō-), n. [Gr. thesis a deposit + -cyte.] Zool. A sponge cell modified for storing reserve material.

Thes·pe'si·a (thĕs·pē'zhĭ·ȧ; -sĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thespesios divine, wonderful.] Bot. A small genus of tropical trees of the mallow family (Malvaceae), having undivided leaves and large bracted flowers with a nearly simple style and 5-celled ovary. T. populnea is the bendy tree.

Thes·pe'si·us (-shĭ·ŭs), n. [NL. Cf. THESPESIA.] Paleontol. A genus of dinosaurs perhaps identical with Claosaurus. The name antedates Claosaurus.

Thes'pi·an (thĕs'pĭ·ăn), adj. [From L. Thespis, fr. Gr. Thespis, the reputed founder of the Greek drama.] Of or pertaining to Thespis (fl. 535 B.C.); hence, relating to the drama; tragic; dramatic; as, the Thespian art. — n. An actor. Jocose.

Thes·sa'li·an (thĕ·sā'lĭ·ăn), adj. [L. Thessalius.] Of or pert. to Thessaly in Greece. — n. A native or inhabitant of Thessaly; also, the dialect of Aeolic Greek spoken there.

Thes'sa·lo'ni·an (thĕs'ȧ·lō'nĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pert. to Thessalonica, a city of Macedonia (now Salonika, Greece).

Thes'sa·lo'ni·an, n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Thessalonica.

2. pl. Either of the two Epistles to the Thessalonians, called First and Second Thessalonians. See NEW TESTAMENT.

thes·treen' (thĕs·trēn'), adv. [the (article) + dial. streen for yestreen.] Last night. Scot.

Thes'ty·lis (thĕs'tĭ·lĭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thestylis.] A female slave mentioned in the second Idyl of Theocritus and in Vergil's second Eclogue; hence, a rustic maiden.

the'ta (thē'tȧ; thā'tȧ), n. [Gr. thēta, of Sem. origin.] 1. The eighth letter (Θ, θ, ϑ) of the Greek alphabet, corresponding to th in English, but pronounced in classic Greek about like th in hothouse. Theta is sometimes called the unlucky letter, from being used in ancient Greece by the judges on their ballots in passing condemnation on a prisoner, it being the first letter of the Greek thanatos, death. Cf. THORN, δ.

2. a An instance of the letter Θ, θ, ϑ, written, printed, etc. b As a numeral, 9. Cf. GREEK NUMERAL.

3. Used for classifying, as, Astron., to designate some star, usually the eighth brightest, of a constellation; as, Theta (θ) Eridani.

theta function. Math. One of the four functions of a complex variable z and a parameter q, whose modulus is less than unity:

$$\vartheta_1(z, q) = 2q^{\frac{1}{4}} \sin z - 2q^{\frac{9}{4}} \sin 3z + 2q^{\frac{25}{4}} \sin 5z - \dots$$
$$\vartheta_2(z, q) = 2q^{\frac{1}{4}} \cos z + 2q^{\frac{9}{4}} \cos 3z + 2q^{\frac{25}{4}} \cos 5z + \dots$$
$$\vartheta_3(z, q) = 1 + 2q \cos 2z + 2q^4 \cos 4z + 2q^9 \cos 3z + \dots$$
$$\vartheta_4(z, q) = 1 - 2q \cos 2z + 2q^4 \cos 4z - 2q^9 \cos 3z + \dots$$

These were introduced and discussed in detail by Jacobi, who used their ratios to express elliptic functions. The term is also extended to similar functions of several variables.

thetch (thĕch), n. [Dial. var.] Vetch. Dial. Eng.

thetch (thĕch). Var. of THATCH. Obs. exc. Dial.

the'tic (thĕt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. thetikos fit for placing, fr. thetos placed, fr. root of tithenai to set, lay down. See THESIS.] 1. Laid down; prescribed; positive; arbitrary.

A thetic and dogmatic method. T. Gale.

2. Gr. & Lat. Pros. Constituting the thesis, as a syllable; also, beginning with the thesis, as a verse or measure.

thet'i·cal (-ĭ·kȧl), adj. Arbitrary; thetic.

thet'i·cal·ly, adv. of THETIC, THETICAL.

thet'ics (thĕt'ĭks), n. Science or art of proposing principles. See -ICS.

thetic theology. = DOGMATIC THEOLOGY a.

the'tin (thē'tĭn), n. Also -tine (-tĭn; -tēn). [A blend of thio and betaine.] Chem. Any one of a series of sulphur compounds supposed to contain a four-membered ring analogous to that of betaine; as, dimethyl-thetin, $(CH_3)_2{=}SCH_2COO$.

The'tis (thē'tĭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thetis.] 1. Gr. Myth. A Nereid, wife of Peleus and mother of Achilles. Zeus and Poseidon wooed her, but when it was prophesied that her son would be stronger than his father they desisted.

2. Astron. See ASTEROID, Table.

the·ur'gic (thē·ûr'jĭk), adj. [LL. theurgicus, fr. Gr. theourgikos; cf. F. théurgique.] Of or pertaining to theurgy; magical. — n. Magician; wonder-worker, esp. one assumed to be divinely inspired.

the·ur'gi·cal (-jĭ·kȧl), adj. Theurgic.

the·ur'gi·cal·ly, adv. of THEURGIC, THEURGICAL.

theurgic hymns. Songs of incantation. Cf. THEURGY, 2.

the'ur·gist (thē'ûr·jĭst), n. [Cf. F. théurgiste.] A wonder-worker; a magician.

the'ur·gy (-jĭ), n.; pl. -GIES (-jĭz). [LL. theurgia, fr. Gr. theourgia, fr. theourgos doing the works of God, fr. theos God + ergon work; cf. F. théurgie. See THEISM; WORK.] 1. a A divine work; a miracle. b The art or science of compelling or persuading a god or supernatural power to do, or refrain from doing, something.

2. A kind of occult art distinguished by certain Neoplatonists, in which the operator by means of self purification and discipline, sacred rites, and knowledge of divine marks, or signatures, in nature, is held to be capable of evoking or utilizing the aid of divine and beneficent spirits. The medieval church, following St. Augustine's condemnations, refused to discriminate between it and magic. With other Neoplatonic doctrines, it had a revival during the Renaissance, and has since been accepted only by sporadic cults.

3. Loosely, any human act, process, power, or state regarded, esp. by its agent or subject, as of supernatural efficacy or origin; also, such acts, etc. collectively.

The·ve'ti·a (thē·vē'shĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after André Thevet (1502–90), French traveler and author.] Bot. A genus of tropical American plants of the family Apocynaceae. T. nereifolia is the yellow oleander.

thev'e·tin (thĕv'ē·tĭn), n. Chem. A poisonous glucoside obtained from the seeds of the yellow oleander (Thevetia nereifolia).

thew (thū), n. Chiefly used in the pl. THEWS (thūz). [ME. thew, theau, manner, habit, strength, fr. AS. thēaw manner, habit; akin to OS. thau custom, habit, OHG. dau.] 1. A manner; custom; habit; form or mode of behavior; mental or moral quality; sometimes, a good quality or trait; a virtue; — usually in the pl. Obs.

Evil speeches destroy good thews. Wyclife (1 Cor. xv. 33).

2. A muscle; sinew; — usually in the pl.; hence, pl., muscular power or development; strength; resolution. Tennyson.

thew (thū), n. A pillory for women; a cucking stool. Obs.

thew, v. t. To furnish with thews; to discipline. Obs.

thew, v. t. [AS. thēwan.] To press; oppress. Obs.

thew. Var. of THEOW, n. & adj.

thew (thū), past tense of THAW. Obs. exc. Dial.

thewed (thūd), adj. 1. Mannered; behaved. Obs.

Yet would not seem so rude and thewed ill. Spenser

2. Furnished with thews or muscles; as, well-thewed.

thew'less (thū'lĕs; -lĭs), adj. Feeble; lazy; spiritless Scot. & N. of Eng.

thew'y (thū'ĭ), adj.; THEW'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); THEW'I·EST. Having strong or large thews or muscles; muscular; sinewy.

they (thā), pron. pl.; poss. THEIRS (thârz); obj. THEM (thĕm; 71). [ME. thei, thai, fr. ON. their they, prop. nom. pl. masc. of sā, sū, that, demonstrative pron. See THAT; cf. THEIR, THEM.] The plural of he, she, or it. They is used: 1. As nominative pl. of the 3d personal pronoun, sometimes without an antecedent and sometimes with a singular antecedent, as nobody, everybody.

Jolif and glad they went unto hers [their] rest. Chaucer.

Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness. Matt. v. 6

2. As a demonstrative pronoun; those. Archaic.

3. Indefinitely, like Ger. and ME. man, and the French on: people; men; as, they say (Ger. man sagt, French on dit), that is, it is said by persons not specified.

4. Redundantly with subject nominative. Archaic.

Poor birds they are not set for. Shak.

5. As direct or indirect object; them. Obs., except as emphatic objective in Dial. Eng.

they, adj. Those; as, they men. Now Dial.

they. Obs. pl. of THE.

they. Var. of THAE.

they'll (thāl). Colloq. contraction for they will.

thi-, = THIO-.

thi'a- (thī'ȧ-). [See THIO-.] Chem. A combining form denoting the presence of sulphur replacing carbon, especially in a ring, as in thiadiazole. — thi'a (-ȧ), adj.

thi'a·di'a·zole (-dī'ȧ·zōl), n. [thia- + diazole.] Chem. Any of four isomeric heterocyclic parent compounds, $C_2H_2N_2S$; also, a derivative of any of these. 1,2,3- thiadiazole, or thia[ab]diazole, is a colorless, feebly basic liquid.

-thi'al (-thī'ăl). Chem. A compound suffix, thi- + 2d -al, attached to the name of a hydrocarbon to designate a thio aldehyde of the same number of carbon atoms, as in ethane*thial,* CH_3CHS.

thi·al'dine (thī·ăl'dēn; -dĭn; 157), n. Also -din. [thi- + aldehyde + -ine.] Chem. A white crystalline cyclic compound, $CH_3CH{:}(SCHCH_3)_2{:}NH$, formed by action of ammonia and hydrogen sulphide on ordinary aldehyde; also, by extension, any compound similarly derived from another aldehyde.

thi·am'ide (-ăm'ĭd; -īd), n. Also -id. [thi- + -amide.] Chem. Any of a class of compounds of the general formula $RCSNH_2$, analogous to the acid amides (see AMIDE b) but containing sulphur in place of oxygen; — called also thioamide. They are formed by the action of phosphorus pentasulphide on acid amides, by the addition of hydrogen sulphide to nitriles, etc.

Thian' Shan' sheep (tyän' shän'). [From the Tien Shan mountains, Central Asia.] A wild sheep (Ovis poli) of central Asia, allied to the argali and the bighorn, but having longer horns.

Thian Shan stag. A very large deer (Cervus eustephanus of the Tien Shan mountains of western China, allied to the maral and the American wapiti.

thi·an'threne (thī·ăn'thrēn), n. [thi- + anthracene.] Chem. A colorless, crystalline, heterocyclic parent compound, $C_{18}H_{10}S_2$, regarded as anthracene in which the two middle CH groups are replaced by sulphur atoms. It is made by the action of sulphur chloride on benzene in presence of aluminum chloride, and in other ways.

thi'a·site (thī'ȧ·sīt), thi'a·sote (-sōt), n. [Gr. thiasitēs, thiasōtēs.] Gr. Relig. One who belongs to a thiasos.

thi'a·sos (thī'ȧ·sŏs), thi'a·sus (-sŭs), n.; pl. -SOI (-soi), -SI (-sī). [Gr. thiasos, L. thiasus, Bacchic dance.] Gr. Antiq. A society or company formed for the worship or service of some divinity, esp. Dionysus; a religious brotherhood; also, a procession or festival of such a company.

thi'a·zine (thī'ȧ·zēn; -zĭn; 157), n. Also -zin. [thi- + az- + -ine.] Chem. Any of a class of compounds, characterized by a ring composed of four carbon atoms, one sulphur atom, and one nitrogen atom. There are three possible subclasses, ortho, meta, and para, according to the relative position in the ring of the sulphur and nitrogen, but representatives of the last two only are known.

thiazine dye or color. Any of a class of dyes containing a thiazine ring.

thi'a·zole (thī'ȧ·zōl), n. [thi- + azole.] Also -zol (-zōl; -zŏl). Chem. A colorless basic liquid, C_3H_3NS, of pyridine odor; also, any of its various derivatives. Thiazole consists of a five-membered ring, and may be regarded as derived from thiophene by the replacement of a CH group by nitrogen.

thi·az'o·line (thī·ăz'ō·lēn; -lĭn; 157), n. Also -lin. Chem. Any of three bases, C_3H_5NS, dihydrides of thiazole; also, any of various derivatives of them.

thick (thĭk), adj.; THICK'ER (-ĕr); THICK'EST. [ME. thicke, fr. AS. thicce; akin to D. dik, OS. thikki, OHG, dicchi thick, dense, G. dick thick, ON. thykkr, thjokkr, OIr. tiug, W. tew, Gael. & Ir. tiugh.] 1. Having, or being of, relatively great depth or extent from one surface to its opposite; not thin or slender; as, a thick plank, neck, or layer of cake.

2. Measuring in the third dimension (length and breadth being the other two), or in general dimension other than length, or from one surface to its opposite; — said of a solid body; as, a timber seven inches thick.

3. Crowded; filled closely or compactly; composed of numerous units densely arranged, disposed, or packed; as, a thick forest or head of hair; air thick with snow; of the individual units, numerous and closely set or placed; packed or crowded together. "Libel suits were thick in the air."
Dorothy Canfield Fisher

4. Having, or being of, relatively great density or consistency, as because of holding much solid matter in suspension or solution; dense; not thin; inspissated; — said of fluids; as, thick sirup; thick vapors.

Make the gruel thick and slab. Shak.

5. Hence: a Not clear or transparent because filled with extraneous matter; not pure or rare; as, air thick with

---

Ther'pha·lites (thûr'fȧ·lĭts), n. pl. D. Bib.

therto. † THERETO.

the·saur', n. [L. thesaurus.] A treasure. Obs.

the·saur'a·ry, n. Also the·saur'y. Treasury; also, treasurership. — the'saur·al·al, adj. All Obs.

the'saur·er, n. A treasurer. Obs.

the'saur·ize, v. t. [LL. thesaurizare.] To treasure up. Obs.

thes'ter, adj. [AS. ðēstre, ðīestre, adj.; ðēstra, ðīestru, n.] Dark; gloomy. — thes'ter·ness, n. Both Obs.

thetche. † THATCH.

thete. Var. of THEAT, n.

theth'er. † THITHER.

Theu'das (thū'dȧs). Bib.

thewd. Thewed. Ref. Sp.

thew'like', adj. Also theow'like'. Servile. Obs.

thew'ness, n. See -NESS.

they. † THIGH, THOUGH.

theyn. † THANE.

they're. Contraction for they are.

thi. † THIGH. [exc. Dial.] thi (thī). Var. of THE, THY. Obs.

thi'a·ce'tic (thī'ȧ·sē'tĭk; -sĕt'ĭk), adj. Chem. = THIOACETIC.

thi'a·zine (thī'ȧ·zēn; -zĭn), n. [Gr. theion sulphur.] Biochem. = ERGOTHIONEINE.

thi·bet', Var. of TIBET.

Thi·bet'an (tĭ·bĕt'ăn). Var. of TIBETAN. [= TIBET CLOTH.]

Thi·bet' cloth (tĭ·bĕt'; tĭb'ĕt).

thi'ble. Var. of THIVEL.

thic, thick (thĭk). Dial. Eng. vars. of THILK, this or that one.

fumes; a river thick with mud. b Of fog, mist, etc., so dense as to impair or destroy visibility. c Of weather or of a period in relation to its weather, characterized by dense fogs or mist.

This morning it was thick as mud and twice as black. D. Macmillan.

d Of darkness, profound; impenetrable; also, of night, black.

6. Now Chiefly Dial. a Thickset; plump; heavily built. b Mentally slow; dull; stupid; obtuse. c Of bearing or vision, not acute; slow to perceive.

7. Characterized by huskiness, hoarseness, a rough burr, or the like; guttural; indistinct; inarticulate; muffled; as, a thick utterance or voice.

8. Following in quick succession; marked by continuity, frequency, and rapidity; also, filled or crowded with events, or the like. "The startled bells and thick puffing of high-stacked river steamers." Sinclair Lewis. "For one thick, flashing moment." Owen Wister.

9. Colloq. a Intimate; very friendly; familiar.

We have been thick ever since. T. Hughes.

b Beyond what can be endured with equanimity; going too far, as in vulgarity, indifference to other's rights, or the like; — often in phrases a bit thick, a little too thick. Colloq.

10. Phonet. Formerly, of vowels, back (ä, ō, ōō).

Syn. — Close, solid; gross, coarse. See DENSE, BROAD.

Ant. — Thin, slender; sparse, scattered; light; quick, keen.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thick-ankled	thick-footed	thick-shadowed thick-barked	thick-girthed	thick-shafted thick-barred	thick-haired	thick-shelled thick-bedded	thick-hided	thick-sided thick-billed	thick-hidedness	thick-sightsd thick-blooded	thick-jawed	thick-soled thick-bodied	thick-kneed	thick-spaced thick-bossed	thick-knobbed	thick-stalked thick-bottomed	thick-leaved	thick-stemmed thickbrained	thick-legged	thick-tailed thick-breathed	thick-lipped	thick-thronged thick-cheeked	thick-looking	thick-toed thick-coated	thick-maned	thick-tongued thick-decked	thick-necked	thick-toothed thick-eared	thick-pated	thick-topped thick-fingered	thick-piled	thick-voiced thick-flanked	thick-ribbed	thick-walled thick-fleeced	thick-rinded	thick-wooded thick-foliaged	thick-rooted	thick-wristed thick (thĭk), n. 1. The thickest, densest, most crowded, or intensest part, or the time when anything is thickest; as in the thick of a crowd, of a fight, or (rarely) of a limb.

2. Now Rare. a A thicket. "In bloomy thicks." Leigh Hunt. b Slang. A thickheaded or stupid person.

thick, adv. [AS. thicce.] Thickly.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thick-beating	thick-growing	thick-spread thick-blown	thick-grown	thick-spreading thick-clouded	thick-jeweled	thick-sprung thick-coming	thick-laid	thick-starred thick-cut	thick-lined	thick-streaming thick-descending	thick-packed	thick-swarming thick-drawn	thick-peopled	thick-warbled thick-flaming	thick-pleached	thick-woven thick-flashing	thick-plied	thick-wrought thick-flowing	thick-rustling thick, v. t. & i. [AS. thiccian.] To thicken; to make, be, or become thick.

thick. Scot. var. of THECK, THEEK.

thick and thin. 1. Every conceivable or possible situation or, esp., difficulty or obstacle, whether great or small; — chiefly in through thick and thin, that is, unflinchingly; unwaveringly; to the bitter end.

2. Unswerving or blind loyalty, as to a political party.

thick′-and-thin′, adj. 1. Ready to go through thick and thin; thoroughgoing; also, blindly devoted; as, a thick-and-thin friend or Republican.

2. Designating a block having one sheave thicker than the other, thus taking two sizes of ropes, as a fiddle block.

thick and threefold. In rapid succession; thickly and continuously; also, frequent.

thick′-billed′ gull′le·mot or murre. See MURRE a.

thick-billed parrot. A parrot (Rhynchopsitta pachyrhyncha) of northern Mexico and southwestern United States. It is green marked with red.

thick′en (thĭk′ĕn), v. t.; THICK′ENED (-ĕnd); THICK′EN·ING. To make thick or thicker; specif.: a To render dense; to inspissate; also, to make turbid or cloudy; as, to thicken paint; fumes thickened the air. b To make close or compact; to fill up interstices in; as, to thicken, or full, cloth; to thicken ranks of trees or men. c To strengthen; to confirm. Rare.

And this may help to thicken other proofs. Shak.

d To make more frequent; as, to thicken blows. — v. i. To become thick or thicker; specif.: a To become dense as in consistency, texture, massing of units or elements, etc. b To grow dull, obscure, dark or foggy. "Thy luster thickens when he shines by." Shak. c To become turbid, clouded, or the like. d To become more profound, intense, intricate, or the like; to grow complicated; as, the plot thickens; the combat thickens. e To grow more numerous or frequent; hence, to crowd; to flock.

The press of people thickens to the court. Dryden.

f To become indistinct or inarticulate, as the voice.

Syn. — Stiffen, harden; deepen, intensify.

Ant. — Thin; lighten, clear.

thick′en·er (-ĕr), n. One who or that which thickens; specif., Chem. Engin. & Ore Dressing, an apparatus for the sedimentation and collection of suspended solids in industrial liquids. See DORR THICKENER.

thick′en·ing, n. 1. Act of making or becoming thick.

2. Something used to thicken, as flour in a gravy, or fuller's earth in fulling cloth.

3. That which has thickened; a thickened part or place.

thick′et (thĭk′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [AS. thiccet. See THICK.] 1. A dense growth of shrubbery; a thick grove or coppice; a closely set plantation of low trees, shrubs, etc.

2. Forestry. A stand of saplings.

thick′et·ed (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Provided with a thicket or thickets; abounding in thickets.

thick′et·y (-ĭ), adj. Full of thickets.

thick′head′ (thĭk′hĕd′), n. 1. A thickheaded or stupid person; a blockhead. Colloq.

2. a Any of many Australian and Polynesian birds, mostly of the genus Pachycephala, allied to the shrikes. Most have a stout bill and large head, and the males of some are bright-colored. b A barbet of the subfamily Capitoninae. c A South African thick-knee (Burhina capensis).

3. Veter. = BLUETONGUE a.

thick′head′ed (thĭk′hĕd′ĕd; -ĭd; 66; 119), adj. Having a thick head; usually, dull of intellect; stupid; doltish. — thick′head′ed·ly, adv. — thick′head′ed·ness, n.

thickheaded fly. Any dipterous fly of the family Conopidae having a more or less elongate, sometimes pedicellate, abdomen and a large head broader than the thorax. The larvae are parasites of other insects, esp. wasps.

thick′-knee′ (-nē′), n. Any of certain large, long-legged, three-toed plovers of Burhinus (syn. Oedicnemus) and allied genera, of the Eastern Hemisphere and South America, somewhat allied to the bustards; a stone curlew. They have a rather large head and large eyes, and are most active at night, frequenting open heaths as well as stony shores. B. oedicnemus is the European species. Burhinus magnirostris and Orthorhamphus magnirostris occur in Australia.

thick l. In English, = DARK L (see CLEAR L); in Swedish and E. Norwegian, an l uttered during a quick movement of the tongue tip from the front palate down across the upper gums.

thick lead. Print. See 1st LEAD, 6.

thick′leaf′ (thĭk′lēf′), n. Any plant of the genus Crassula, with thick, succulent leaves.

thick′lips′ (thĭk′lĭps′), n. One with thick lips, as a negro.

thick′ness, n. 1. State or quality of being thick; the extent or degree to which something is thick or thickened; as, to give a wall thickness; reduced to the thickness of a dime; boiled to the thickness of honey.

2. Measurement in the third dimension (length and breadth being the other two), or in general, dimension other than length, or from one surface to its opposite; the third dimension of a solid body of three dimensions; as, five feet in thickness.

3. That which is thick, or dense, heavy, etc.; a place or part thicker than the rest, or the thickest place or part; the thick of something; as, to drive through the misty thickness.

4. A layer, sheet, or the like; as, two thicknesses of silk.

thick′ness, v. t. a To make uniform in thickness, as flooring planks. b To cover or coat in thickness (which see).

thickness gauge. Mach. = FEELER, 4 a.

thick′ness·ing, n. A method of making a mold for a plaster cast or a metal casting, in which a temporary thickness of wax or other material is put on the pattern or part of the unfinished mold, and run out by heat or otherwise removed after it has been used to complete the mold; also, the thickness thus applied.

thickness piece. A plate of loam or the like used as a thicknessing.

thick′set′ (thĭk′sĕt′; 66), adj. 1. Closely placed or planted; as, a thickset wood.

2. Set or studded thickly or abundantly; as, thickset trees.

3. Having a thick body; esp., stout and short; stocky.

thick′set′, n. Something thickset. Specif.: a A thicket. b A kind of cotton cloth resembling velveteen, used chiefly for men's working clothes.

thick shellbark. The big shellbark.

thick′skin′ (thĭk′skĭn′), n. A thick-skinned person.

thick′skin′, adj. Thick-skinned.

thick′-skinned′ (-skĭnd′; 66), adj. Having a thick skin; pachydermatous; hence, not sensitive; callous, as to criticism, ridicule, or the like.

thick′skull′ (thĭk′skŭl′), n. A blockhead.

thick′skulled′ (-skŭld′; 66), adj. Having a thick skull; hence, dull; heavy; stupid; impervious to ideas; slow to learn.

thick′-sown′ (-sōn′; 66), adj. Sown closely together; hence, thickly set, studded, spotted, etc.; as, speech thick-sown with French phrases.

thick stuff. Naut. Formerly, all plank more than four inches thick and less than twelve.

thick′wind′ (thĭk′wĭnd′), n. Veter. A chronic defect of respiration in the horse, due to obstruction to breathing, as by nasal polypi, deformed bones, etc. — thick′-wind′ed (66), adj.

thick′wit′ (-wĭt′), n. A thick-witted person.

thick′-wit′ted (66), adj. Mentally slow or stupid; lacking in acuteness or in readiness of wit. — thick′-wit′ted·ly, adv. — thick′-wit′ted·ness, n.

thief (thēf), n.; pl. THIEVES (thēvz). [ME. thef, theef, fr. AS. thīof, thēof; akin to OFris. thiaf, OS. theof, thiof, D. dief, G. dieb, OHG. diob, ON. thjōfr, Sw. tjuf, Dan. tyv, Goth. thiufs, thief, thiubjo secretly, and perh. to Lith. tupėti to squat, crouch down. Cf. THEFT.] 1. One who steals, esp. stealthily or secretly; one who commits theft, or larceny; also, Archaic, a freebooter; a robber. See THEFT, 1.

There came a privy thief, men clepeth death. Chaucer.

2. Something which takes possession by stealth; — chiefly in proverbial expressions; as, procrastination is the thief of time.

3. Now Dial. a A scoundrel; rascal; scamp. b An imperfection in a candlewick causing it to gutter and waste; waster.

4. Also thief tube. A device for taking a sample of a liquid from a receptacle at any specified depth below the surface.

5. Hort. a Dial. Eng. The common bramble of Europe. b A sucker.

Syn. — THIEF, ROBBER. A THIEF does his work stealthily or secretly; a ROBBER effects his ends by force or intimidation; as, "a night-watching and door-waylaying thief" (Shelley); "if a servant . . . transporting a sum of money be assailed by robbers" (Shak.). In earlier usage the words were often employed without distinction. Cf. STEAL.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

thiefcraft	thiefmaker	thiefproof
thiefland	thiefmaking	thief-resisting, adj.

thief ant. Any of several minute ants, esp. Solenopsis molesta, which nest near the galleries of other ants from which they steal food.

thief′dom (thēf′dŭm), n. Thieves collectively or their world; also, Rare, thievery.

thief glass. A glass thief. See THIEF, n., 4.

thief′tak′er (thēf′tāk′ĕr), n. A detective whose duty it is to apprehend thieves. Brit.

thief tube. = THIEF, n., 4.

Thie·la′vi·a (tē·lā′vĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after F. von Thielaw, Ger. botanist.] Bot. A genus of fungi of the family Aspergillaceae (sometimes placed in the family Perisporiaceae) having spherical brown perithecia and two kinds of conidia. T. basicola, the only species, causes a destructive root rot of tobacco and many other crops.

Thie·la′vi·op′sis (tē·lā′vĭ·ŏp′sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Thielavia + -opsis.] Bot. A form genus of imperfect fungi (family Dematiaceae) producing continuous conidia of two kinds. T. paradoxa causes leaf bite of the coco palm and a rot of banana, sugar cane, and pineapple.

thi′e·none (thī′ē·nōn), n. [thienyl + ketone.] Chem. A white, crystalline ketone, $(C_4H_3S)_2CO$, obtained by the action of phosgene on thiophene in presence of aluminum chloride; 1-thienyl ketone.

thi′e·nyl (-nĭl), n. [thiophene + -yl.] Chem. The univalent radical C_4H_3S, of which thiophene is the hydride.

thieve (thēv), v. i.; THIEVED (thēvd); THIEV′ING (thēv′ĭng). [AS. thēofian.] To practice theft; to steal something. — v. t. To steal; to take by theft.

thieve′less, adj. [Cf. THEW, n.] a Scot. & Ir. Listless; also, aimless; bootless. b Scot. Cold; bleak; hence, frigid; forbidding.

thiev′er·y (thēv′ĕr·ĭ), n. Act, practice, or an instance, of stealing; theft; also, Now Rare, that which is stolen.

thieves′ Latin (thēvz). The cant of thieves.

thieves′ vinegar. Aromatic vinegar; — from a story that four thieves, who plundered during the great plague in London (1665), attributed their immunity to its use.

thiev′ing (thēv′ĭng), n. The act of one who thieves; also, a thing stolen.

thiev′ing, adj. That thieves or is a thief. — thiev′ing·ly, adv.

thiev′ish (-ĭsh), adj. 1. Of, like, or characteristic of, a thief or thieves; stealthy; sly; also, Obs., infested by thieves.

Time's thievish progress to eternity. Shak.

2. Given to stealing; pilfering; as, a thievish boy or magpie. — thiev′ish·ly, adv. — thiev′ish·ness, n.

thig (thĭg), v. t. & i. [ME. thiggen, fr. ON. thiggja to take, receive (Dan. tigge to beg); akin to AS. thicgan, OS. thiggian to beg.] To beg; borrow; to ask, or ask as, alms or a gift. — n. Beggary. Now Chiefly Scot. — thig′ger (-ĕr), n. Scot.

thig′ging, n. [ME. thiggen to receive, solicit, beg. See THIG.] The act or practice of one who thigs; anything collected by thigging. Now Chiefly Scot.

thigh (thī), n. [ME. thi, thih, theh, fr. AS. thīoh, thēoh, thēh; akin to OFris. thiach, D. dij, dije, OHG. dioh, ON. thjō thigh, rump, Lith. taukas fat of animals, tukti to become fat, OIr. tōn rump, and ult. to L. tumere to be swollen. See TOMB.] 1. The proximal segment of the leg or hind limb, between the knee and the trunk. It has a single bone, the femur (thigh′bone). Thigh is also loosely or popularly applied to the next lower segment in birds, where the true thigh is hidden by the skin and feathers of the body, and in certain quadrupeds, as the horse.

2. Something resembling or likened to the thigh of an animal, as the lower, larger part of a grapevine. Obs.

3. Zool. In insects, the femur of the leg.

thigh, v. t. To carve (a pigeon, woodcock, or small bird). Obs.

thigh boot. A boot whose upper part covers the thigh.

thighed (thīd), adj. Having (such) a thigh or thighs.

thight (thīt), adj. [ME. See TIGHT.] 1. Now Dial. a Thickset; in close formation; esp., planted closely together. b Watertight. c Close-fitting.

2. Dense in consistency or texture. Obs.

— thight′ness, n.

thig′mo- (thĭg′mō-). A combining form from Greek thigma, touch, as in thigmotactic, denoting also thigmotropism.

thig′mo·neg′a·tive (-nĕg′ȧ·tĭv), adj. [thigmo- + negative.] Biol. Characterized by negative thigmotropism or thigmotaxis.

thig′mo·pos′i·tive (-pŏz′ĭ·tĭv), adj. [thigmo- + positive.] Biol. Characterized by positive thigmotropism or thigmotaxis.

thig′mo·tax′is (thĭg′mō·tăk′sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thigmo- + -taxis.] Biol. Stereotaxis. — thig′mo·tac′tic (-tăk′tĭk), adj. — thig′mo·tac′ti·cal·ly (-tĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

thig·mot′ro·pism (thĭg·mŏt′rō·pĭz′m), n. [thigmo- + -tropism.] Biol. Stereotropism. — thig′mo·trop′ic (thĭg′mō·trŏp′ĭk), adj. — thig′mo·trop′i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

Thil′a·not·tin′e (thĭl′ȧ·nō·tĭn′ē), n. An Indian of a Tinne tribe, closely related to the Chipewyan proper, living in northwestern Saskatchewan. See CHIPEWYAN.

thilk (ŧhĭlk), pron. [ME. thilke, thulke, such, that, fr. AS. thylc, thyllic, thyslic, thullic, thuslic, such.] That same; this; that. Archaic & Dial.

thill (thĭl), n. [ME. thille, fr. AS. thille a board, plank, beam; akin to AS. thel a plank, MD. dele, D. deel a plank, floor, G. diele, OHG. dili, dilla, ON. thilja a plank, planking, a thwart, thili a wainscot, plank. Cf. FILL thill, DEAL plank.] 1. Either of two long pieces of wood between which a horse is hitched to a vehicle; a shaft. Cf. 1st POLE, 2 e.

2. [Perh. a different word.] Mining, Dial. Eng. a The floor of a coal mine. b A thin stratum of fire clay. — thill′y (-ĭ), adj.

thill′er (thĭl′ĕr), n. The horse which goes between the thills, or shafts, and supports them; also, the last horse in a team; — called also thill horse.

Thi′lo′rier′s′ mix′ture (tē′lō′ryāz′). [After Thilorier, a French chemist who early solidified carbon dioxide.] A freezing mixture of solid carbon dioxide and ether, by using which a temperature of −100–110° C. can be attained.

thim′ble (thĭm′b'l), n. [AS. thȳmel, fr. thūma thumb. See THUMB.] 1. A kind of cap or cover, or sometimes a broad ring, used in sewing to protect the finger when pushing the needle through the material. Usually it is of metal with small pits on its outer surface to prevent the head of the needle from slipping.

2. One of the small cups used in thimblerigging.

3. A thimbleful.

4. a The foxglove Digitalis purpurea. b pl. = HAREBELL a.

5. A small lump of West African crude rubber.

6. A watch. Thieves′ Slang.

7. An outer casing of a rifle ball. Brit.

8. Anal. Chem. A thimble-shaped paper cup or shell for containing material to be extracted by solvents.

9. Ceramics. A small tapering cup with a projecting arm, used as a support for plates during firing.

10. Mach. A more or less thimble-shaped appendage or fixture; as: a A tubular distance piece through which a bolt or pin passes, as a socket in a door-lock escutcheon plate to receive the knob spindle. b A fixed or movable ring, tube, or lining in a hole, as a sleeve. c A tubular cone

---

thicke. ✝ THEEK, THICK, THILK. thick′end. Thickened. Ref. Sp. thick′er, n. A fuller. Obs. thick′et·ful, n. See -FUL. thick′-fleshed′ (66), adj. See -FLESHED. thick′ish, adj. See -ISH. thick′ly, adv. of THICK. thick′neck′, n. = SCALLION c. thick register. See REGISTER, n., 12 a (2). [CURA. thick′-tailed′ ray. See SAR-thick tea. = HIGH TEA. Local, Eng. [Obs. thick′y (thĭk′ĭ), adj. Thickish.
thid′der. ✝ THITHER. thid′er. ✝ THITHER. [lly. Obs.
thief′ly, adv. Thievishly; stealththief′wise′, adv. See -WISE.
Thier′gar′ten (tēr′gär′tĕn), n. Var. of TIERGARTEN. thiev. Thieve. Ref. Sp. thiev′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
thiov′al, n. [Var. of THIVEL.] Var. of THIVEL. Scot. thieved. Thieved. Ref. Sp.
thiev′er, n. = THIEF, 1. thieves (thēvz), n., pl. of THIEF. thigh puff. See SADDLE, Illust. A 7. thikkp. ✝ THICK. thikky. ✝ THICKY. thil. Thill. Ref. Sp. thim (thĭm). Corrupt. of THEM.
thim′ber, adj. Massive. Scot. thim′bl. Thimble. Ref. Sp.

for expanding a flue tube. d A circular wall box. e A metal socket for fixing a lead pipe to stoneware, etc. f A ring of thin metal formed with a grooved outer edge so as to fit within an eye splice, or the like, and protect it from chafing.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

thimble-crowned	thimblemaker	thimble-shaped thimble-eyed	thimblemaking	thimble-sized thim'ble (thĭm'b'l), v. t. & i. To use a thimble (on or upon); as, to sew or to thimblerig.

thim'ble-ber'ry (-bĕr'ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-Iz). Any of several American raspberries or blackberries having thimble-shaped fruit, esp. Rubus occidentalis, R. parviflorus, and R. argutus.

thim'bled (-b'ld), adj. Having or wearing a thimble.

thim'ble-eye' (thĭm'b'l-ī'), n. 1. The chub mackerel.
2. Naut. An eye in a plate, often used as a deadeye.

thim'ble-flow'er (-flou'ĕr), n. a The selfheal Prunella vulgaris. b The foxglove Digitalis purpurea.

thim'ble-ful (-fŏŏl), n.; pl. -FULS (-fŏŏlz). As much as a thimble will hold; a very small quantity.

thimble lily. The Australian plant Blandfordia nobilis, cultivated for its ornamental, racemose flowers.

thim'ble-man (thĭm'b'l-măn), n. A thimblerigger.

thim'ble-pie' (-pī'), n. A hit on the head with a thimbled finger.

thim'ble-rig' (-rĭg'), n. 1. A gambler's sleight-of-hand game played with three small cups, shaped like thimbles, and a small ball or pea which is so quickly shifted from under one cup to under another that the person betting on its whereabouts is often misled. It is generally practiced as a swindling operation at fairs, etc. Cf. SHELL GAME.
2. A thimblerigger.

thim'ble'-rig', v. t.; -RIGGED' (-rĭgd'); -RIG'GING (-rĭg'ĭng). To swindle by thimblerig; hence, to cheat by any trick. — thim'ble-rig'ger (-ĕr), thim'ble-rig'ging, n.

thimble skein. = 3d SKEIN, 2.

thim'ble-weed' (thĭm'b'l-wēd'), n. a Any plant of the genus Rudbeckia; — so named in allusion to their conical receptacles. b The wood anemone of North America. c Prairie clover.

thin (thĭn), adj.; THIN'NER (-ĕr); THIN'NEST. [ME. thinne, thenne, thunne, fr. AS. thynne; akin to D. dun, G. dünn, OHG. dunni, ON. thunnr, Sw. tunn, Dan. tynd, Gael. & Ir. tana, W. teneu, L. tenuis, Gr. tanу- (in comp.) stretched out, tanaos stretched, stretched out, long, Skr. tanu thin, slender, also to AS. thenian to extend, G. dehnen, ON. thenja, Goth. thanjan (in comp.), L. tendere to stretch, tenere to hold, Gr. teinein to stretch, Skr. tanoti stretches, extends, continues. Cf. ATTENUATE, DANCE, TEMPT, TENABLE, TEND to move, TENDER, adj., TENDON, TENUOUS, TETANUS, TONE.] 1. Having, or being of, relatively little depth or extent from one surface to its opposite; not thick; of a solid body of three dimensions, measuring little in the third dimension; of little thickness; as, thin paper.
2. Measuring little in cross section, in the third dimension (other than length and breadth), or between opposite surfaces; of small diameter, as a wire; very low or flat as a biscuit or layer.
3. Not fat, plump, or stout; not filled out; slim; slender; spare; lean; gaunt; as, a thin person, face, or ear of corn.
4. Not having the constituent parts or units in close formation; not dense in arrangement; not compactly set or disposed; as, thin hair; a thin rain; a thin forest.
5. Hence: a Obs. Few in number; scarce; not abundant. b Scantily provided or occupied; sparsely furnished, peopled, planted, etc.; as, a thin table; the thin ranks of veterans. c Having less than the usual, expected, or desired number of persons; poorly attended; as, a thin congregation. d Marked by poor attendance or lessened receipts for attendance; as, a thin month for the theater.
6. Of little consistency, density, spissitude, etc.; not thick or sufficiently thick; rare; rarefied; too fluid; as, thin air, or batter. Cf. THICK, adj., 4.
7. Wanting substance, strength, or richness, as from lacking some constituent; weak; of liquors, small; as, thin broth; a thin diet.
8. Of a person, his mind, etc., intellectually not strong, acute, inventive, etc.

He has seemed to some of us a little thin and vague. Birrell.

9. Wanting in body or volume; not full; faint; weak and somewhat shrill or metallic; as, a thin voice; hence, Music: a Lacking resonance; — said of tones. b Lacking richness of texture; — said of harmony.
10. Of light, wanting in radiance; dim; of colors, lacking in intensity or brilliance; dull.

Naked trees on which the thin sunlight was still shining. Willa Cather.

11. Colloq. a Lacking in solidity, substance, or force; unsubstantial; inadequate; as, a thin book or argument; also, Slang, unbelievable; unconvincing; as, your story is too thin. b Not up to expectations; disappointingly poor or hard; as, to have a thin time of it.
12. Transparent; easily seen through or penetrated; flimsy; slight; as, a thin curtain, disguise, or pretext.
13. Agric. Poor; infertile; as, a thin soil.
14. Phonet. Formerly, of vowels, front (ĭ, ĕ, ă).
15. Photog. Lacking sufficient density or contrast; — said of a photographic negative or print, or of a lantern slide.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thin-ankled	thin-coated	thin-legged thin-armed	thin-eared	thin-lipped thin-barked	thin-faced	thin-necked thin-bedded	thin-featured	thin-rinded thin-bladed	thin-flanked	thin-shelled thin-blooded	thin-fleshed	thin-soled thin-bodied	thin-haired	thin-stemmed thin-bottomed	thin-headed	thin-voiced thin-brained	thin-hipped	thin-walled thin-cheeked	thin-leaved	thin-wristed

Syn. — THIN, LEAN, SPARE, LANK, GAUNT, HAGGARD are here compared esp. with reference to persons. THIN, the most general word, is opposed to stout or fat, and often applies to one who is ill or worn; as, "No meager, muse-rid mope, adust and thin, . . . but . . . as a partridge plump" (Pope); "Her hands were thin" (Shelley). LEAN, more often than thin, suggests a natural state; SPARE implies lack of superfluous flesh, and often suggests abstemiousness or sinewy strength; as, "He was lean and skinny" (De Quincey); "as lean as a greyhound" (Thackeray); "He had the spare form . . . which became a student" (G. Eliot); "My grandfather, albeit spare, was wirily elastic" (Landor). That which is LANK is often long or slender, sometimes shrunken or flabby, as well as thin; as, "Thou art long, and lank, and brown" (Coleridge); "Meager and lank with fasting grown, and nothing left but skin and bone" (Swift); "His hair is lank" (Trollope). GAUNT often adds to thin the implication of boniness or angularity; HAGGARD suggests a wild and hollow-eyed appearance, as of one worn or wasted by pain, anxiety, or fatigue; as, "my own gaunt scarecrow of a person" (De Quincey); "a gaunt figure, hook-nosed, like a wizard" (W. Pater); "Examine the faces of all the noted gamblers; . . . have you ever seen anything more haggard, pinched, and miserable?" (Goldsmith); "those . . . whose haggard eyes flash desperation" (Cowper); "the living face with its roving astonished eyes [betrayed] the haggard soul of a haggard generation" (W. Pater). Cf. SLENDER, GHASTLY.

Ant. — Thick, coarse, heavy, dense; crowded, close, abundant; convincing; strong, rich; deep, resonant, full; plump, fleshy, fat.

— on thin ice. On dangerous ground, where one must move, act, or speak warily to avoid embarrassment or trouble. — *thin edge of the wedge. See under WEDGE, n.

thin (thĭn), n. See THICK AND THIN.

thin (thĭn), adv. Thinly, (See FLAT, adj., 11).

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

thin-blown	thin-grown	thin-shot thin-clad	thin-laid	thin-sown thin-cut	thin-lined	thin-spread thin-descending	thin-offered	thin-spun thin-flowing	thin-peopled	thin-veiled thin-frozen	thin-pervading	thin-woven thin-fruited	thin-set	thin-wrought thin (thĭn), v. t.; THINNED (thĭnd); THIN'NING. [AS. thynnian.] To make thin or thinner; specif.: a To draw or spread out thin; to attenuate; to reduce in thickness or depth. b To make less dense, consistent, or viscid; to rarefy; to make more fluid, tenuous, or the like. c To make less strong, substantial, or rich; to make weak; to cause to lose force, vigor, effectiveness, etc. d To make slender or lean; to cause to lose flesh. e To make less populated, crowded, etc., by reducing numbers; to make space between, or between the constituent parts of, by removing units; as, to thin sculptures in a collection, or a collection of sculptures. f To remove surplus plants or trees from (a bed, nursery, woodland, etc.), to improve the growth of the rest; also, to take out, as superfluous buds, fruits, etc. — *v. i. To grow or become thin or thinner; to become less thick, dense, crowded, or the like; — often with some adverb, as away, down, off, or out, as, geological strata thin out; the crowd thinned off.

thin (thĭn). Dial. var. of THEN.

thin'-bel'lied (66), adj. Having or covering a thin belly; lean; gaunt.

thine (thīn), pron. [ME. thin, also thy, thi, before a consonant, fr. AS. thīn, orig. same as the gen. of thu, thū, thou; akin to G. dein thine, ON. thinn, poss. pron., thīn, gen. of thū thou, Goth. theins, poss. pron., theina, gen. of thu thou. See THOU; cf. THY.] 1. The possessive case of thou: Of thee or thyself; — used in constructions having in Old English a genitive case (as, thine unwitting, without thy knowledge). Obs.
2. Used absolutely as possessive of thou: a In a predicative construction.

Thine are the city and the people of Granada. Bulwer.

b By ellipsis of the noun denoting what is possessed; also, thy kindred or family; as, this is my day; thine is yet to come. c After of. "That tongue of thine." Scott. See POSSESSIVE, n.

☞ Thine and thy are now superseded in common discourse by your, the possessive of you, except in solemn discourse, poetry, and the language of the Friends, or Quakers.

thine, adj. Chiefly Archaic & Poetic. Thy; — now used only before a vowel or h, except when it follows its noun. Specif.: 1. Of or belonging to thee or thyself as possessor; associated with thee.

Give every man thine ear, but few thy voice. Shak.

2. Of or relating to thee as author, agent, etc.; as, thine answer.
3. Of or relating to thee as object of an action; as, thine overthrow.

thing (thĭng), n. [AS., a thing, cause, assembly, judicial assembly; akin to AS. thingan to negotiate, thingian to reconcile, conciliate, D. ding a thing, OS. thing thing, assembly, judicial assembly, G. ding a thing, formerly also, an assembly, court, ON. thing a thing, assembly, court, G. dingen to bargain, hire, MHG. dingen to hold court, speak before a court, negotiate, Goth. theihs time. Cf. HUSTING, STORTING.] 1. Obs. a A legislative or judicial assembly; a council or court; — only in Anglo-Saxon. Cf. 3d THING. b A legal action; a charge or case brought before a court. c A cause; reason.
2. A matter of concern or business; an affair. Hence: a pl. State of affairs in general or within a specified or implied sphere, as a business or industry; prevailing conditions or circumstances; as, to hope things would change; to promise that things would be better. b A particular state of affairs; situation; complication; as, a pretty thing this family quarrel. c A happening; event; circumstance; as, his death was a very tragic thing.
3. Something accomplished or to be accomplished; a deed, act, or transaction; as, to wish to do great things; to regard swearing as an unholy thing.
4. Hence: a That which is produced by labor; — used commonly after make, etc.; as, that boy can make things. b The end or aim of effort or activity; as, the thing was to get all home. c (First, second, last, or the like) moment or time in a period or a round of activity; as, he closed the windows the last thing.
5. Whatever exists, or is conceived to exist, as a separate entity, or as a distinct and individual quality, fact, or idea; any separable or distinguishable object of thought; anything at all; as, there is a name for every thing.

Nature to all things fix'd the limits fit. Pope.

6. More narrowly: a An object; anything which can be apprehended or known as having existence in space or time as distinguished from anything which is purely an object of thought; as, goodness is not a thing, but an attribute of a thing. b An inanimate object as distinguished from a living being; hence, now in pl., possessions; goods; as, to assemble the inhabitants, their cattle, and their things.
7. A quality, characteristic, detail, etc., of someone or something; a particular; an item; point; as, not a thing in the parade escaped the child's attention.
8. A substance or material; specif., a food, drink, medicine, or the like; as, avoid acid things.
9. The real or actual essence, substance, etc., as distinguished from that which stands for it as a name (or word) or a symbol; a reality; as, a philosopher who deals with words and not things.
10. Obs. a Property; wealth. b A private part; a genital.
11. That which is said, told, thought, or the like; — used commonly as object of say, tell, etc.; as, to say the right thing; to think hard things of a person. Specif.: a A written or spoken discourse; a story, tale, argument, poem, etc. "That any thing of mine is fit to live." Shelley. b Hence, any artistic composition, as a piece of music; as, Lohengrin is the most popular thing Wagner produced. c Often pl. The subject matter of a composition; a theme. "Things unattempted yet in prose or rhyme." Milton. d A witty retort or story; a jest; as, the funniest thing I have ever heard. e An idea; a notion; as, do not put things into his head. f A piece of news; as, the most cheering thing you could tell me.
12. Colloq. a A creature, usually a person; an individual; — often used in pity, contempt, or the like; as, the poor thing.

She's still the same beloved, contented thing. Pope.

b Something for which the name is not used because of forgetfulness, indifference, disdain, or the like; as, bring that thing here. c Dress; article of apparel; pl., clothes; as, I have n't a thing for the winter; put on your things. d pl. Equipment; utensils, dishes, implements, etc.; as, bring in the tea things.
13. Law. Whatever may be possessed or owned, or be the object of a right; — distinguished from person.

Now corporeal things are obviously what we have called the "objects" of the right; incorporeal things are the advantages which the person entitled can insist upon; in other words, the acts or forbearances to which he is entitled. T. E. Holland.

— a good thing. A profitable transaction or enterprise. Colloq. — *a thing or two. Something worth knowing, telling, or the like; something which proves one's equality or superiority in knowledge; as, he knows a thing or two; we shall show them a thing or two. Colloq. — *the thing. a The proper, right, desirable, or required thing, act, or the like; esp., the mode of dress, living, etc., which fashion dictates or smart society affects.

What was or was not "the thing" played a part as important . . . as the inscrutable totem terrors . . . thousands of years ago. E. Wharton.

b Oneself, as one is when in good health or spirits.

— My wife's not the thing today. Galsworthy.

c The important point; that which is necessary or important to do, have, discuss, etc.; as, you have the book, that is the thing. See also THING, n., 4 b, above thing (-thĭng). A combining form of thing, as in:

anything	nothing	something everything	plaything	underthing thing (thĭng), v. t. [AS. thingian. See 1st THING.] To conciliate. Obs. — *v. i. To represent concretely. Rare.

‖thing (thĭng), ‖ting (tĭng), n. [ON. thing, Dan., Nor., & Sw. ting. See 1st THING.] [often cap.] In Scandinavian countries, a legislative or judicial assembly, held in a fixed place, the thing'stead, — used, esp. in composition, in titles of such bodies; as, Althing, Storting. For Storting, see LEGISLATURE, Table (Norway).

thing'al (thĭng'ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to things; specif., real. Rare.

T hinge. See T, adj.

thing'-in-it-self', n. [Trans. of G. ding an sich.] Philos. An ultimate reality, unqualified by the subjective modes of human perception and thought; a metaphysical reality; — contrasted with phenomenon. Cf. PHENOMENON, 1 c.

thing'man (thĭng'măn), n. a Scand. Hist. A member of a thing, or parliament. b Scand. & Early Eng. Hist. A housecarl.

thing'um-bob (thĭng'ŭm-bŏb), thing'um-a-bob' (-ă-bŏb'), n. [Cf. THINGUM.] A thing; — used pronominally instead of a specific name which one fails to remember or does not know. Colloq.

thin'gut' (thĭn'gŭt'), n. [thin, adj. + gut.] A thin or lean person. Obs. — thin'-gut'ted, adj. Obs.

thing'-word', n. Gram. A word denoting a thing that has definite shape or limits, and hence qualifiable by a numeral (dog; day; idea); — a proposed term. Cf. MASS-WORD.

thing'y (thĭng'ĭ), adj. Of, belonging to, or of the nature of, a thing or things; real; material; also, practical.

think (thĭngk), v. i.; past & past part. THOUGHT (thôt); pres. part. & verbal n. THINK'ING. [ME. thinken, var. of thinchen, thunchen, fr. AS. thync(e)an (pret. thŭhte); akin to ON. thykkja, Goth. thugkjan, G. dünken, and to E. THINK to reflect. Cf. METHINKS.] To seem or appear; — chiefly impersonal with indirect object. Obs. exc. in methinks, methought.

Him thought, he rode all of the new jet [fashion]. Chaucer.

think dear. To seem right or proper. Obs.
think long. To seem long; now, = think long, under 2d THINK.

think (thĭngk), v.; past & past part. THOUGHT (thôt); pres. part. & verbal n. THINK'ING. [ME. thenken, var. of thenchen, fr. AS. thenc(e)an (pret. thŏhte), confused with the kindred ME. thinken (see THINK to seem). AS. thenc(e)an, prop. causative, to cause to seem, is akin to D. denken to think, OS. thenkian, G. denken, ON. thekkja to perceive, to know, Goth. thagkjan to think, L. tongere to know. Cf. THANK, THOUGHT.] Transitive: 1. To form or formulate in the mind; to have the thought, notion, or image of; to conceive; imagine; as, to think base thoughts.
2. To have in one's mind as an intention or desire; to purpose; to hope; also, Now Rare, to intend doing, making, etc.; as, to think to do them harm; to think harm to them.
3. To have a judgment or opinion of; to entertain a view of; to esteem; believe; now, often, with object clause or pronominal substitute, to believe likely or possible; to suppose; as, what do you think? I think it will rain.

Nor think superfluous others' aid. Milton.

4. To meditate or reflect upon; to let revolve in one's mind; to consider; now usually, to determine by reflection.

Think only what concerns thee and thy being. Milton.

For a long time she sat . . . and tried to think her way through. Sherwood Anderson.

5. To bring before one's mind clearly as by imagining, recalling, conjecturing, etc.; to get an idea, realization, picture, etc. of; as, one cannot think infinity; think what your father has done for you; he could not bear to think what might happen.
6. Now Chiefly Dial. a To feel; — esp. in phrases think scorn, think shame (which see). b To anticipate; to expect; as, to think no harm from them.

---

thim'ble-like', adj. See -LIKE.
thim'ble-rig'ger-y, n. = THIMBLERIGGING. thime. Thyme. Ref. Sp.
Thim'na-tha (thĭm'nə-thä; thĭm-nā'thə). Bib. thi'mus. Thymus. Ref. Sp. thin-. = THINO-.
thin. † THINE. thin'-bel'ly, adj. = THIN-BELLIED. Shak. thind. Thinned. Ref. Sp.
thing'a-ma-bob' (thĭng'ə-mə-bŏb'). Var. of THINGUMBOB. thing'a-ma-jig'. thing'e-ma-jig'. Vars. of THINGUMAJIG. thing'hood, n. See -HOOD. thing'i-ness (thĭng'ĭ-nĕs; 119), -s. See -NESS. Rare.
thing'ish, adj. = THINGY. thing'less, adj. See -LESS.
thing'let, n. Dim. of THING. thing'like', adj. See -LIKE. — thing'like'ness, n.
thing'ly, adj. = THINGY. — thing'li-ness, n.
thing'ness, n. See -NESS.
things'-in-them-selves', n., pl. of THING-IN-ITSELF.
things personal. Law. = PERSONAL PROPERTY. things real Law. = REAL PROPERTY. See REAL ESTATE. thing'stead, n. [See 3d THING; 1st STEAD.] See 3d THING. thing'um (thĭng'ŭm), thing'um-my (-ĭ), n. [From 1st THING.] = THINGUMBOB. Colloq. or Jocose. thing'um-a-jig' (-ə-jĭg'), n. = THINGUMBOB. Colloq. think. † THING.

7. To devise mentally; scheme; concoct; — now usually think out or up.
8. To believe in or assume the existence of. Rare.
9. To affect (in a specified way) or to get rid of by thinking; as, to think oneself into a state of collapse. "Of thinking away whatever it was inconvenient to admit." Edith Wharton.
10. To center one's thoughts on; to have one's mind full of; also, to have or to comprehend the thoughts characteristic of (a race, a class, etc.); as, to talk and think airplanes; to learn to think African.

—, Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To direct one's course, steps, etc. b To be about (to happen, do, etc.). c = 1st think; — in passive only. d To have an anticipation or suspicion.
2. To exercise the powers of judgment, conception, or inference, as distinguished from simple sense perception; esp., to reflect for the purpose of reaching a conclusion; to reason; as, think before acting; to learn how to think clearly; — often with about, or archaically with on, or upon; as, let me think about it for a few days. See THOUGHT, n., 1.
Those that think must govern those that toil. Goldsmith.
3. To have in or call to one's mind a thought; to be or become conscious or mindful; — formerly with on or upon, now with of. See THINK OF, below.
4. To hold a (specified or implied) view or views; as, I don't think so. See think from, think with, below.
5. To make the object of one's thoughts or attention; to be solicitous; — now usually with of; as, he thinks of himself before others.
6. To have or form an opinion, mental impression, picture, or notion; — now with of; as, to think of him as still young.
7. To give consideration to a matter; to reflect upon something; as, think twice before acting.
Syn. — Cogitate, contemplate, muse, imagine, suppose, believe.
— I don't think. a Colloq. I think not; — a use sometimes criticized on grammatical grounds. b Slang. I should say not; — used in reversing a statement just made ironically. Cf. 2d think v. i. 4.
think better of. a To form a more favorable opinion of (anyone). b To reconsider (a thing) and alter for the better one's decision as to it.
think fit, good, proper, etc. To decide on good grounds or for good reasons; also, Obs., to give approval or assent.
If ye think good, give me my price. Zech. xi. 12.
A little narrative I thought proper to put forth in October, 1827. Scott. think for. To suppose; suspect; — a use often disapproved but found in good authors. think from. To dissent from. Obs. think long. To yearn with weariness or impatience. Chiefly Scot. think much. To esteem (something) a great matter or burdensome; to be loath or reluctant. Obs. "[He] thought not much to clothe his enemies." Milton.
think nothing of. a To regard as worthless. b To regard as easy or simple to undertake or carry through.
think of. a To be or become conscious, cognizant, mindful, or aware of; to remember, conceive, bethink oneself of, or the like; as, to think of his keys at the last moment; too conservative ever to have thought of a change in method. b To consider, esp. for a time, as practicable, suitable, desirable, eligible, or the like; to entertain the idea of (choosing, adopting, marrying, etc.); as, Jones was thought of as a candidate; he once thought of marriage or of marrying him. c Specif., to consider marrying; to entertain thoughts of courtship, etc., with; as, don't think of him any more. d With an adverb or an adverbial noun, to hold in regard (to such an extent or in such a manner); to esteem (so); to have affection or admiration for as great or as little as; as, to think little or highly of one. think on or upon. = THINK OF. Archaic & Dial. think out. a To discover, develop, or perfect by thinking; to excogitate; as, the plan is well thought out. b = THINK THROUGH. c = THINK UP. think out loud. To utter one's thoughts without addressing anyone. think over. a To give full attention to; to consider attentively. b To reconsider or consider maturely; as, thinking the matter over.
think scorn. a Archaic. To disdain; scorn. b Obs. With of, to feel scorn for; to despise. think shame. To be ashamed.
think through. To pursue (a problem, etc.) in thought to a conclusion or to an understanding of the situation, factors involved, etc.
think up. To find or invent by thinking; to devise; as, I will think up some possible routes for the trip. U. S. think with. To agree with.

think (thĭngk), n. Act of thinking; a meditation; also, something thought; an idea; an opinion. Chiefly Slang.
think'a-ble (thĭngk'ȧ-b'l), adj. 1. That can be thought, or conceived mentally; capable of being comprehended or reasoned about; as, to hold that a Supreme Being is not thinkable.
2. Conceivably possible; capable of being realized; as, an ocean air line is now thinkable. — think'a-bly, adv. — think'a-ble-ness, n.
think'a-ble, n. Something thinkable. Rare.
think'er (thĭngk'ẽr), n. One who or that which thinks. Specif.: a One who thinks in a specified way; as, a close thinker. b Specif., one who manifests powers of sustained and deep thinking; one given to study and thought rather than action; often, a philosopher. c Slang. Mind; brain.
think'ing, adj. That thinks; having the faculty of thought; rational; as, a thinking being; — often in combination; as, clear-thinking, hard-thinking. — think'ing-ly, adv.
think'ing, n. 1. Act or mode of mental procedure of one who thinks; cogitation; reflection; as, plain living and high thinking were the ideals of Emerson and his friends.
2. pl. That which is thought; thoughts; ideas.
Speak to me as to thy thinkings. Shak.
3. A judgment; an opinion; — usually in phrases in or to my thinking; as, in my thinking, the affair has gone too far. thinking cap. Figuratively, mood of consideration or reflection.
thinking part. Theater. A role without dialogue. thinking shop. An institution for study. Humorous. think'-so' (thĭngk'sō'), n. An opinion. Contemptuous. thin'ly (thĭn'lĭ), adv. In a thin manner; insufficiently; sparsely; as, thinly clad; thinly settled.

thin'ner (thĭn'ẽr), n. One who or that which thins. Specif.: a A device for thinning a growing crop. b A volatile liquid, as turpentine, used to thin paints and the like to the desired consistency. c A machinist who thins lips of heels.
thin'ning, n. The act of one that thins; specif., the process of removing surplus or weak plants, trees, fruit, etc. so as to improve conditions of growth or the quality of those that are left; also, a tree or plant so removed.
thin'o- (thĭn'ō-), thin-. A combining form from Greek this, thinos, beach, as in thinolite.
thin'o-lite (thĭn'ō-līt), n. [thino- + -lite.] Mineral. A calcareous tufa, in part crystalline, occurring as a shore deposit about the Quaternary lake basins of Nevada.
thin'-skinned' (thĭn'skĭnd'; 66), adj. Having a thin skin; hence, sensitive; readily or unduly susceptible to criticism.
thin'-worn', adj. Worn until thin; threadbare. thi'o- (thī'ō-), thi-. Chem. & Pharm. A combining form from Greek theion, brimstone, denoting the presence of sulphur; — used specif. to indicate that the oxygen of a compound is more or less replaced by sulphur, as, in *thi*acetic, *thio*carbamic. Cf. SULPHO- c. — thi'o (-ō), adj.
thi'o-a-ce'tic (-ȧ-sē'tĭk; cf. ACETIC), adj. [thio- + acetic.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating a colorless liquid acid, CH_3COSH, made by heating acetic acid with phosphorus pentasulphide and used as a chemical reagent; — better called thi'ol-a-ce'tic (thī'ŏl-; -ōl-). thi'o ac'id (thī'ō). Chem. An acid in which oxygen is partly or wholly replaced by sulphur. Organic thio acids are called thiolic acids (RCOSH), thionic acids (RCSOH), or dithioic (or dithio) acids (RCSSH), according to the nature of the replacement.
thi'o-al'de-hyde (thī'ō-ăl'dē-hīd), n. Chem. An aldehyde in which oxygen is replaced by sulphur, having the general formula RCHS.
thi'o-am'ide (thī'ō-ăm'īd; -ĭd), n. Also -id. [thio- + -amide.] Chem. An acid amide (see AMIDE b) in which oxygen has been replaced by sulphur, having the general formula $RCSNH_2$.
thi'o-an'ti-mo-nate (-ăn'tĭ-mō-nāt), n. Also thi'o-an'ti-mo'ni-ate (-mō'nĭ-āt), Chem. Any of a series of compounds regarded as salts of the hypothetical thi'o-an'ti-mon'ic ac'id (-mŏn'ĭk), H_3SbS_4, and obtained esp. by action of polysulphides on antimony trisulphide and in other ways.
thi'o-an'ti-mo-nite (-ăn'tĭ-mō-nīt), n. Chem. Any of several compounds regarded as salts of the hypothetical thi'o-an'ti-mo'ni-ous ac'ids (-mō'nĭ-ŭs), H_3SbS_3, $HSbS_2$, $H_4Sb_2S_5$, and $H_5Sb_4S_7$. thi'o-ar'se-nate (-är'sē-nāt), n. Also thi'o-ar-se'ni-ate (-är-sē'nĭ-āt). Chem. Any of a series of compounds regarded as salts of the thi'o-ar-sen'ic ac'ids (-är-sĕn'ĭk), H_3AsS_4, $HAsS_3$, and $H_4As_2S_7$, corresponding to the arsenic acids. They are formed by the union of metallic sulphides with arsenic pentasulphide or of polysulphides with the trisulphide, etc. Those of the heavy metals are insoluble.
thi'o-ar'se-nite (-är'sē-nīt), n. Chem. Any of a series of compounds regarded as salts of hypothetical thi'o-ar-se'ni-ous ac'ids (-är-sē'nĭ-ŭs), H_3AsS_3, $HAsS_2$, $H_4As_2S_5$, and produced by the action of metallic sulphides or hydrosulphides on arsenic trisulphide, and in other ways. Those of the heavy metals are insoluble.
Thi'o-ba-cil'lus (-bȧ-sĭl'ŭs), n. [NL., fr. thio- + bacillus.] Bacteriol. A genus of small, rod-shaped bacteria of the family Nitrobacteriaceae, found in water, sewage, and soils. They derive energy from oxidation of sulphides, thiosulphates, and elemental sulphur, and obtain carbon from carbon dioxide, bicarbonates, and carbonates in solution. T. thio-oxidans occurs in soil near sulphur mines.
Thi'o-bac-te'ri-a (-băk-tē'rĭ-ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. thio- + bacteria.] Bacteriol. a A division of bacteria comprising the sulphur bacteria and certain forms considered related. b [not cap.] The sulphur bacteria.
Thi'o-bac-te'ri-a'les (-bȧk-tē'rĭ-ā'lēz), n. pl. [NL.] Bacteriol. An order of bacteria (Schizomycetes) of various shapes, containing either sulphur granules or bacteriopurpurin or both, and usually thriving best in the presence of hydrogen sulphide. They very rarely form endospores. The order comprises the Achromatiaceae, Beggiatoaceae, and Rhodobacteriaceae, represented in water, esp. of swamps, in decomposing material, soil, curative muds, etc.
thi'o-bis'muth-ite (-bĭz'mŭth-īt; -bĭs'-), n. [thio- + bismuthite.] Chem. A bismuthite in which sulphur replaces oxygen; as, lead thiobismuthite, $Pb(BiS_2)_2$. thi'o-car-bam'ic (-kär-băm'ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating an acid derived from carbamic acid by replacement of oxygen by sulphur.
thi'o-car-ban'i-lide (thī'ō-kär-băn'ĭ-līd; -lĭd), n. Also -lid. [thio- + carbanilide.] Chem. A colorless crystalline compound $(C_6H_5NH)_2CS$, obtained by the action of carbon disulphide on aniline, and used in organic synthesis and as an accelerator in vulcanizing rubber; — called also diphenylthiourea.
thi'o-car'bi-mide (-bĭ-mīd; -mĭd), n. Also -mid. Chem. An isothiocyanate; a mustard oil.
thi'o-car'bo- (thī'ō-kär'bō-). Chem. A combining form, thio- + carbo-, denoting the presence of thiocarbonyl.
thi'o-car'bon-ate (-kär'bŏn-āt), n. Chem. A salt of thiocarbonic acid. The trithiocarbonates, as K_2CS_3, are made by digesting the corresponding sulphides with carbon disulphide.
thi'o-car-bon'ic (-kär-bŏn'ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating any acid derived from carbonic acid by replacement of oxygen by sulphur; specif., trithiocarbonic acid, H_2CS_3, precipitated as a red-brown, ill-smelling oil from its salts by hydrochloric acid.
thi'o-car'bon-yl (-kär'bŏn-ĭl; -ēl), n. [thio- + carbonyl.] Chem. The bivalent radical CS; carbonyl in which oxygen is replaced by sulphur.
thi'o-cre'sol (-krē'sōl; -sŏl), n. [thio- + cresol.] Chem. Any of three compounds, $CH_3C_6H_4SH$, analogous to the three cresols but containing sulphur instead of oxygen. The ortho variety is a crystalline solid (melting at 15° C.), the meta a liquid, and the para a crystalline solid.
thi'o-cy'a-nate (-sī'ȧ-nāt), n. Chem. A salt or ester of thiocyanic acid; — called also sulphocyanate, sulphocyanide.
thi'o-cy'a-nate, v. t. To introduce thiocyanogen into, esp. with replacement of hydrogen. — thi'o-cy'a-na'tion (-nā'-shŭn), n.
thi'o-cy-an'ic (thī'ō-sĭ-ăn'ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating a colorless, unstable, liquid acid, HCNS, of strong odor, obtained by distilling potassium thiocyanate with dilute sulphuric acid, and otherwise; — called also sulphocyanic.

thi'o-cy'a-nide (thī'ō-sī'ȧ-nīd; -nĭd), n. Chem. A thiocyanate. thi'o-cy'a-no- (thī'ō-sī'ȧ-nō-), thiocyan-. Chem. A combining form, thio- + cyano-, denoting the presence of the radical thiocyanogen, esp. replacing hydrogen. — thi'o-cy'a-no (-nō), adj.
thi'o-cy-an'o-gen (-sĭ-ăn'ō-jĕn), n. [thio- + cyanogen.] Chem. a The univalent radical CNS, of which thiocyanic acid is the hydride. b An unstable liquid, probably $(CNS)_2$, obtained by the action of halogens on thiocyanates.
thio ether. Chem. A sulphide of hydrocarbon radicals, analogous to the ordinary ethers, but with sulphur in the place of oxygen, as ethyl sulphide; a sulphur ether. thi'o-gly-col'ic ac'id (thī'ō-glĭ-kŏl'ĭk). Also -col'lic. A liquid diacid, $CH_2(SH)CO_2H$, analogous to glycolic acid.
thi'o-hy'drate (-hī'drāt), n. [thio- + hydrate.] Chem. A compound with hydrogen sulphide, analogous to a hydrate. thi'o-hy-drol'y-sis (-hī-drŏl'ĭ-sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thio- + hydro- + -lysis.] Chem. Decomposition with addition of the elements of hydrogen sulphide. Cf. HYDROLYSIS. — thi'o-hy'dro-lyze (-hī'drō-līz), v. t. & i.
thi'o-hy-drox'y- (-hī-drŏk'sĭ-). Chem. A combining form, thio- + hydroxy-, denoting the presence of the group SH, usually replacing hydrogen; mercapto-. thi'o-ke'tone (-kē'tōn), n. Chem. A compound regarded as a ketone in which oxygen is replaced by sulphur. The thioketones polymerize readily.
thi'ol (thī'ŏl; -ōl), n. [thio- + 1st -ol.] Chem. a = MERCAPTAN. b The univalent radical HS-. thiol-. Chem. a A combining form, thi- + 1st -ol, denoting the replacement of the oxygen of hydroxyl by sulphur, as in *thiol*acetic acid, CH_3COSH. Cf. THIONO-. b = THIOHYDROXY-. thi'o-lac'tic ac'id (thī'ō-lăk'tĭk). Chem. A thio derivative of lactic acid; specif., α-mercapto-propionic acid, $CH_3CH(SH)CO_2H$, an oily liquid formed by decomposition of keratins and certain other proteins and called also α-thiolactic acid.
thion-. A combining form from Greek theion, brimstone, denoting the presence of sulphur.
thion-. = THIONO-.
thi'o-nam'ic ac'id (thī'ō-năm'ĭk). [1st thion- + -amic.] Chem. Any of a series of acids having the general formula $RNHSO_3H$, obtained by the action of sulphur dioxide on primary amines.
thi'o-naph'thene (thī'ō-năf'thēn), n. [*thio*phene + naphthalene.] Chem. A colorless, crystalline, heterocyclic compound, C_8H_8S, of naphthalenelike odor, found in coal tar; — called also benzothiophene.
thi'o-nate (thī'ō-nāt), n. Chem. A salt or ester of a thionic acid.
thi'o-nate (thī'ō-nāt), v. t. Chem. To combine with sulphur, as in making sulphur dyes. — thi'o-na'tion (-nā'-shŭn), n.
thi-o'ne-ine (thī-ō'nē-ēn; ĭn), n. = ERGOTHIONEINE. thi-on'ic (thī-ŏn'ĭk), adj. [1st thion- + -ic.] Chem. Pertaining to or containing sulphur. See THIO ACID.
-thi-on'ic. A combining form of thionic, as in poly*thionic.*
thionic acid. a Any of a series of unstable acids of the general formula $H_2S_xO_6$, known respectively as dithionic acid ($H_2S_2O_6$), trithionic acid ($H_2S_3O_6$), tetrathionic acid ($H_2S_4O_6$), etc. b See THIO ACID.
thi'o-nine (thī'ō-nēn; -nĭn; 157), n. Also -nin. [1st thion- + -ine.] Chem. A dark crystalline thiazine base, $C_{12}H_9N_3S$, artificially prepared. thi'o-ni'trite (-nī'trīt), n. [thio- + nitrite.] Chem. Any of a class of colored compounds formed by the action of organic nitrites on mercaptans and having the general formula RSNO. thi'o-no- (thī'ō-nō-; thī-ō'nō-), thion-. Chem. A combining form, thi- + -one b + -o-, denoting the replacement of the oxygen of carbonyl by sulphur, as in thi'o-no-ben-zo'ic ac'id, C_6H_5CSOH. Cf. THIOL-. thi'o-nyl (-nĭl), n. [1st thion- + -yl.] Chem. A bivalent radical, SO, of sulphur and oxygen. Called also sulphinyl.
thi'o-nyl-a-mine' (-ȧ-mēn'; -ăm'ĭn), n. Chem. A compound formed from a primary amine by substituting thionyl for two hydrogen atoms and having the general formula RN:SO.
thionyl chloride. Chem. A colorless, volatile, fuming liquid, $SOCl_2$, obtained by the action of phosphorus pentachloride on sulphur dioxide, and in other ways.
thi'o-phene (thī'ō-fēn), thi'o-phen (-fĕn), n. [thio- + phenyl + -ene.] a A colorless liquid, C_4H_4S, occurring in coal tar and prepared in other ways, having a structure analogous to furan and pyrrole. Thiophene resembles benzene, and their corresponding derivatives exhibit the same likeness. Thiophene may be regarded as derived from benzene by replacement of the group CH:CH by sulphur.
thi'o-phe'nic (-fē'nĭk), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or derived from, thiophene; specif., designating an acid, $C_4H_3S.CO_2H$, analogous to benzoic acid.
thi'o-phe'nol (-nōl; -nŏl), n. [thio- + phenol.] Chem. a A colorless mobile liquid, C_6H_5SH, smelling like garlic and analogous to phenol; — called also phenyl mercaptan. It is formed by the action of phosphorus pentasulphide on phenol, and in other ways. b See MERCAPTAN.
thi'o-phos'gene (-fŏs'jēn), n. [thio- + phosgene.] Chem. A red fuming liquid, $CSCl_2$, made by the action of chlorine or phosphorus pentachloride on carbon disulphide. It is used in making dyes.
thi'o-phos'phate (thī'ō-fŏs'fāt), n. Chem. A salt of a thiophosphoric acid. thi'o-phos'phite (-fŏs'fīt), n. Chem. A salt of a thiophosphorous acid. thi'o-phos-phor'ic (-fŏs-fŏr'ĭk), adj. [thio- + phosphoric.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating any of a series of acids derived from the phosphoric acids by replacement of one or more atoms of oxygen with sulphur. The thi'o-phos'pho-rous ac'ids (-fŏs'fō-rŭs; -fŏs-fō'rŭs) are similarly derived from the phosphorous acids.
thi'o-phos'pho-ryl (-fŏs'fō-rĭl), n. [thio- + phosphoryl.] Chem. The radical PS, usually trivalent. thi-oph'thene (thĭ-ŏf'thēn), n. [Abbr. of *thio*naphthene.] Chem. A doubly cyclic compound, $C_4H_4S_2$, related to thiophene as naphthalene to benzene, and obtained as an oil by heating citric acid with phosphorus trisulphide.

think'ful, adj. See -FUL. think'ing, n. See -LING. thin l. = CLEAR L. [LEAD, 6.] thin lead (lĕd). Print. See LEAD 1. thin'-lip'ped-ly, adv. See -LY. thin'-lip'ped-ness, n. See -NESS. thin'ness, n. See -NESS. thin'nish, adj. See -ISH.
Thi-noo'o-rus (thĭ-nōō'ō-rŭs), n., Thi'no-cor'i-dae (thī'nō-kôr'ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. thino- + Gr. korys lark.] Zool. See SEED SNIPE. [12 a (2).] thin register. See REGISTER, n., 1. thin'-skinned'ness (thĭn'-skĭnd'nĕs; 119), n. See -NESS.
thi'o-ac'e-tal (thī'ō-ăs'ē-tăl), n. = MERCAPTAL.

thi'o-al'co-hol, n. See MERCAPTAN. thi'o-car-bam'ide (-kär-băm'īd; -ĭd), n. Also -id. = THIOUREA. thi'o-car'ba-myl (-kär'bȧ-mĭl), n. [thio- + carbamyl.] = THIURAM. thiocarbonyl chloride. = THIOPHOSGENE. thi'o-chlo'ride (thī'ō-klō'rīd; -rĭd), n. Also -rid. = SULPHOCHLORIDE S. thiocyan-. = THIOCYANO-. thi'o-di'a-zole, n. = THIADIAZOLE. thi'o-di-phen'yl-a-mine' (-dī-fĕn'ĭl-ȧ-mēn'; -ăm'ĭn; -fē'nĭl-), n. Also -in. = PHENOTHIAZINE.
thi'o-fu'ran (-fū'răn; -fū-răn'), n. [thio- + furan.] Also -fu'rane (-rān), -fur'fu-ran, -fur'fu-rane. = THIOPHENE. thi'o-in'di-go red B. See DYE, Table.
thi'ol-a-ce'tic (thī'ŏl-ȧ-sē'tĭk; -sēt'ĭk), adj. [thiol- + acetic.] Chem. See THIOACETIC. thi-ol'ic (thī-ŏl'ĭk), adj. Chem. See THIO ACID. thi-o'ni-um (thī-ō'nĭ-ŭm), n. [NL. Cf. 1st THION-.] See SULPHONIUM. thi'on-thi-ol'ic (thī'ŏn-thī-ŏl'ĭk), adj. [thionic + thiolic.] = DITHIOIC. See THIO ACID. thi'o-nu'rate (thī'ō-nū'rāt), n. See 1st -ATE, 3.

thi'o·py'ran (thī'ō·pī'răn; -pĭ·răn'), n. Chem. A hypothetical parent compound, C_5H_5S, containing a sulphur atom in place of the oxygen of pyran. Penthiophene is the 1,4 variety.

thi'o·res·or'cin·ol (-rĕz·ôr'sĭ·nōl; -nŏl), n. Also -or'cin. Chem. A crystalline compound, $C_6H_4(SH)_2$, analogous to resorcinol, used as an antiseptic; m-benzene-dithiol.

thi'o·sin·am'ine (-sĭn·ăm'ĭn; sī'ō·mēn'; 157), n. Also -in. Chem. A colorless crystalline compound, $C_6H_5.NHCSNH_2$, of leeklike odor, obtained by action of ammonia on allyl mustard oil and used in medicine as a resolvent for scar tissue and in photography, esp. in increasing the sensitivity of emulsions; — called also allylthiourea.

Thi'o·spi'ra (thī'ō·spī'rȧ), n. [NL., fr. thio- + -spira.] Bacteriol. A genus of large spiral, motile bacteria of the family Achromatiaceae. T. winogradskii is found in curative mud, and T. bipunctata, in salt water.

thi'o·stan'nic (thī'ō·stăn'ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating certain thio acids of tin, as H_2SnS_3 and H_4SnS_4, known in the form of their salts, the thi'o·stan'nates (-āts).

thi'o·stan'nite (-stăn'ĭt), n. Chem. A salt of the hypothetical thio'stan'nous ac'id (-ŭs), H_2SnS_2.

thi'o·sul'phate (thī'ō·sŭl'fāt), n. Chem. A salt of thiosulphuric acid; — formerly called hyposulphite. The sodium salt is still called, in photography, dyeing, etc., sodium hyposulphite. Those of calcium, strontium, and the alkali metals are soluble in water.

thi'o·sul·phon'ic (-sŭl·fŏn'ĭk), adj. Org. Chem. Pertaining to or designating any of a series of unstable acids of the general formula RSO_2SH, regarded as derived from sulphonic acids by substitution of sulphur for oxygen. Their esters (the so-called disulphoxides) are liquids of onionlike odor.

thi'o·sul·phu'ric (-fū'rĭk), adj. Chem. Pert. to or designating an unstable acid, $H_2S_2O_3$, analogous to sulphuric acid, and formerly called hyposulphurous acid. It is known only in solution or in the form of its salts, the thiosulphates.

Thi'o·thrix (thī'ō·thrĭks), n. [NL., fr. thio- + -thrix.] Bacteriol. A genus of bacteria of the family Beggiatoaceae, consisting of nonmotile attached filaments differentiated into a base and a tip.

thi'o·to'lene (-tō'lēn), n. Chem. Either of two isomeric colorless oily liquids, $C_4H_3S.CH_3$, analogous to and resembling toluene, occurring in coal tar; methyl-thiophene.

thi'o·tung'stic (-tŭng'stĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating a thio acid of tungsten, H_2WS_4, known in the form of its salts, the thi'o·tung'states (-stāts).

thi'o·u·re'a (-ū·rē'ȧ; -ū'rē·ȧ), n. [NL., fr thio- + urea.] Chem. A colorless crystalline bitter compound, $CS(NH_2)_2$, analogous to and resembling urea It is obtained by heating ammonium thiocyanate (cf. UREA) and in other ways.

thi'o·u're·than' (-ū'rē·thăn'; -ū·rēth'ăn), n Also -thane' (-thān'; -ān). Chem. An ester of thiocarbamic acid; specif., ethyl thiol-carbamate, $NH_2COSC_2H_5$, a crystalline compound.

thi·ox'ene (thī·ŏk'sēn), n. [*thio*phene + xylene.] Chem. Any of four isomeric liquid compounds, C_6H_8S, dimethyl derivatives of thiophene, like the xylenes from benzene.

thi·o'zo·nide (-ō'zō·nīd; -nĭd; 157), n. [thi- + ozone + -ide.] Also -nid. Chem. Any of a class of compounds formed by addition of three sulphur atoms to the molecule of unsaturated organic compounds and analogous to the ozonides. The dark-colored reactive form of sulphur used is thought to have the formula S:S:S and has been called thi·o'zone (-ō'zōn).

thir (ŧhĭr; ŧhûr), pron. These. Scot., N of Eng., & Ir.

third (thûrd), adj. [ME. thridde, fr. AS. thridda; akin to D. derde third, G. dritte, ON. thrithi, Goth. thridja, L. tertius, Gr. tritos, Skr. tṛtīya. See THREE; cf. RIDING a jurisdiction, TIERCE.] 1. Next in order after the second; coming after two others; — the ordinal of three; as, the third hour in the day. "The third night." Chaucer.
2. Constituting one of three equal parts into which anything is or may be divided; as, the third part of a day.
3. Being the last in each group of three in a series; — often preceded by every; as, take out every third card.
4. Ranking next below the second, as in official status; as, third officer; third vice-president; in schools, designating the class, etc., higher (occasionally, lower) than the second.
5. Other than the two (sometimes, those) known, mentioned, or participating; as, there cannot be a third person in a secret or a family quarrel.
6. Being the third of this name in the line or succession; — as an affix to names of kings, popes, etc. See the third under THIRD, n.
7. Gram. Designating a type of declension or conjugation as coming third in a standard arrangement of the types.
☞ For some third phrases, see the second word of the phase.

third, n. 1. The quotient of a unit divided by three; one of three equal parts into which anything may be divided.
☞ The fractions one third and two thirds are written as two words except when used as an adjective; as, one third of the book; the two-thirds rule.
2. Specif.: a Obs. One part of the booty, fines, etc., of which the king had two thirds, the captors, etc., one third. b pl. Formerly, the price paid by an entering student at an English university for the furniture in his rooms; — so called because commonly two thirds of that paid by the preceding tenant.
3. The unit or object coming next after the second in any series.
4. Third place, rank, station, etc. "A family in which she had hitherto held so humble a third." Jane Austen.
5. The sixtieth part of a second of time or arc.
6. Automobiles. The third speed of an automotive vehicle: a Properly, the speed next higher than second; hence, in a three-speed transmission, high. b Loosely, low.
7. Baseball. Short for third base.
8. Com. An article of merchandise of a third grade or quality, or inferior to seconds; — usually in the pl.; specif.: pl. a Dial. Coarse flour or grain with more bran than seconds. b Dark-brown sugar obtained from the mass left after extracting seconds.
9. pl. Law. The third part of the personal estate of a deceased husband which, by the common-law statute of distribution and by some local statutes, goes (various conditions being fulfilled) absolutely to the widow upon the husband's dying intestate and leaving a child or descendant; sometimes, loosely, a widow's dower.
10. Music. a An interval embracing three diatonic degrees. See INTERVAL, 8. b A tone at this interval. c The harmonic combination of two tones a third apart. d The third tone of the scale; the mediant.
11. Paper Mfg. pl. A size of paper or of cards. See PAPER, Table.
12. pl. Scots Law. The third part of the revenues of the ecclesiastical benefices taken (in 1562 and 1567) by the king into his hands and appropriated to the support of the acting clergy. In subsequent restorations or changes similar thirds were reserved for the clergy.
— the third, or third. An affix to a name, indicating the next after the second in a succession, as of monarchs or popes, bearing this name; as, George the Third; — often used with Roman numerals; as, Innocent III.

third (thûrd), v. t. 1. To divide into three parts.
2. To follow a seconder in supporting (a motion, etc.).
3. To treat, esp. to hoe, a third time. Obs.

third, adv. Thirdly; in the third place, rank, etc.; as, to come third in a series.

third base. See BASEBALL. — third baseman.

third best. In a rating, that one which falls below the second in quality or excellence.

third'bor'ough (thûrd'bŭr'ō), n. O. Eng. Law. In a tithing or township, a petty constable. Cf. HEADBOROUGH.

third brass. Numis. The reduced as of imperial Rome; — called also small bronze. See AS, n., 2.

third class. The third group in a classification; specif., Brit., the third group of persons classed by an examination; a place in or a member of such a group.

third'-class' (66), adj. Of or pertaining to a class, rank, or grade next below the second; specif., of or pertaining to a grade of accommodation for travel inferior to second-class.

third'-class', adv. By a third-class conveyance; with third-class accommodations, etc.; as, to travel third-class.

third'-class', n. Third-class traveling accommodations; also, third-class passengers. Colloq.

third cousin. See COUSIN, 2.

third day. Tuesday; — so called by Quakers.

third degree. 1. The degree in a series between the second and the fourth; as, an equation of the third degree.
2. Severe examination or treatment of a prisoner commonly by continuous questioning over excessively long periods but at times by starving or physical torture by the police to extort an admission or confession. Colloq., U. S.
3. Freemasonry. The degree of master mason.

third'de·gree', v. t. To give (one) the third degree. Slang.

third'en·deal' (thûr'd'n·dēl'), n. [ME. thirden, prop. an inflected form of third + deal.] A third part; rarely, a tertian of wine. Obs.

third estate. [often cap. when used specif.] The third of the political classes or orders in a kingdom, usually the commons, or common people. See ESTATE, n., 4.

third eyelid. = NICTITATING MEMBRANE.

third floor. In the United States, the floor or story second above the ground floor; in England and on the Continent, that which is the third above the ground floor.

Third Founder of Rome. Caius Marius; — so called after his defeat of the Teutones and Cimbri.

third'-hand' (66), adj. 1. Having had previously as something purchased or offered for sale, two owners or users; as, a third-hand store; hence, dealing in or selling third-hand merchandise.
2. Derived, as information, from the second after the original or primary source; hence, stale; also, of questionable reliability; as, third-hand jests and gossip.

third hand. The third person to own or sell a used article; also, a third-hand source, as of information.
— at third hand. From a third-hand source; in third-hand condition; hence, indirectly; through intermediaries. "They depend on books to give them . . . at third hand what lies before them." Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

third house. [cap. when used specif.] A legislative lobby, as if it were an additional branch of the legislature. Political Slang, U. S.

third'ings (thûr'dĭngz), n. pl. [See THIRD.] Eng. Law. The third part of the corn or grain growing on the ground at the tenant's death, due to the lord for a heriot.

third inversion. Music. A seventh chord with the seventh in the bass. See SEVENTH CHORD.

third'ling (thûrd'lĭng) n. The third in order. Browning.

third'ly (-lĭ), adv. In the third place; as the third point to be expounded or argued.

third man. 1. Cricket. See 2d CRICKET, Illust.
2. Philos. A form of logical paradox, in which the attempt to pass from one thing to another, or to relate one conception to another, reveals the necessity of a third and intervening thing or conception, and hence, leads to an infinite regress; — applied orig. to an argument against the Platonic conception of ideas in their relation to the individual.

third nerve. Anat. = OCULOMOTOR NERVE.

third'ness, n. The character of being third, a third part, or in the third place.

third of exchange. See EXCHANGE, n., 7 a.

third order. R.C.Ch. An order forming one of a particular system of religious orders and comprising men and women devoted to a rule of pious living, called the third rule, by a simple vow if they remain seculars, and by more solemn vows if they become regulars. See FRANCISCAN, n.; TERTIARY, n., 1.

third'-or'der re·ac'tion. Chem. See REACTION, 6.

third'-par'ty, adj. Of, involving, or referring to, a third person, or party, or a third political party; as, third-party insurance; the third-party vote.

third party. Politics. In a nation where a two-party system prevails, a party organized to fight for a measure or measures not accepted by the established political parties.

third penny. A.-S. Law. The third part of the proceeds arising from fines, forfeitures, etc., in every county, and in every hundred court which had not passed into private hands, belonging to the alderman or earl of the county, except in certain royal pleas.

third person. Gram. See PERSON, n., 7.

third position. See SHIFT, 17 a.

third rail. Electric Railways. A metal rail through which the electric current is led to the motors of an electric locomotive; — called also conductor rail. — third'-rail', adj.

third'-rate' (66), adj. Belonging or pertaining to a third class, grade, quality, or the like; third-class; hence, very poor or inferior. — n. A vessel of the third rating.

third'-rat'er (thûrd'rāt'ĕr), n. A third-rate person or thing. Slang.

third reading. The last reading of a bill before an assembly, after it has been engrossed and previous to its final disposition. Cf. ENGROSS, v. t., 1; READING OF A BILL.

Third Republic. The French republic founded in 1871.

third rhyme. = TERZA RIMA.

third sex. A class of unsexed persons; — applied to eunuchs, militant feminists, etc. Contemptuous.

thirds'man (thûrdz'măn), n. A third person; mediator.

third term. A term of the same office held by the same person for the third time; esp., such a term of a president of the United States.

third termer. See TERMER, 2.

third tone. Music. The interval comprising one third of a whole step.

third tongue. A calumniator; — used by early translators of Ecclesiasticus (see OLD TESTAMENT).

third ventricle. Anat. The median or unpaired ventricle of the brain bounded by parts of the telencephalon and diencephalon. See BRAIN.

third water. See DIAMOND, 1 a.

thirl (thûrl), v.; THIRLED (thûrld); THIRL'ING. [ME. thirlen, thurlen, fr. AS. thyrlian, thyrelian, fr. thyrel perforated, as n., a hole, fr. thurh through. See THROUGH; cf. NOSTRIL, THRILL.] Obs. exc. Dial. Transitive: 1. a To pierce; perforate; drill. b To penetrate; traverse.
2. To pierce with emotion; to thrill; wound.
3. To cause to vibrate or tingle.
4. To hurl; whirl; hurtle. Obs.
——, Intransitive: 1. To make a hole; pierce.
2. To vibrate or tingle; to thrill.
3. To hurl; whirl; hurtle. Obs.

thirl (thûrl), n. Now Dial. 1. A hole; perforation; opening; specif.: a A window. b A nostril. Cf. NOSETHIRL. c A cross hole or short passage between breasts or headings in a coal mine, usually for ventilation.
2. A thrill; as, a thirl of gladness.

thirl (thûrl), v. t. [See THRALL.] Chiefly Scot. 1. To enslave; enthrall. Obs.
2. Scots. & O. Eng. Law. To subject to thirlage.
3. To restrict; to make bound or tied down.

thirl, n. Thirlage; also, sucken. — adj. Bound in thirlage. Both Scot.

thirl (thûrl), adj. Gaunt; thin; shriveled; hungry. Dial. Eng.

thirl'age (thûr'lĭj), n. [See THRALL.] 1. Obs. Scot. a Thralldom. b A mortgage.
2. Early Scots & Eng. Law. A feudal servitude, right, or service by which the tenants of a certain district, or sucken, are bound to carry the grain produced there to a particular mill for grinding, and to pay the agreed or customary dues; also, the dues so exacted; multure.

thirl'ing (-lĭng), n. Mining. = 2d THIRL, 1 c.

thirl'ing, n. The action of one who thirls, or subjugates; subjection; bondage.

thirst (thûrst), n. [ME. thirst, thurst, fr. AS. thurst; akin to D. dorst, OS. thurst, G. durst, ON. thorsti, Sw. & Dan. törst, Goth. thaurstei thirst, thaursus dry, withered, L. torrere to parch, torridus dried up, Gr. terseesthai to become dry, tersainein to dry up, Skr tṛṣyati he thirsts. Cf. TERRACE, TOAST, TORRID.] 1. A sensation of dryness in the mouth and throat associated with a craving for liquids; the bodily condition producing this sensation; also, a strong desire for liquids or drink
2. Hence, an ardent desire; a craving or longing; as, the thirst for gold or knowledge.
3. A waterless tract, as a desert.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thirst-abating	thirst-inducing	thirst-raising thirst-allaying	thirst-maddened	thirst-scorched thirst-creating	thirst-quenching	thirst-tormented thirst, v.; THIRST'ED; THIRST'ING. [AS. thyrstan. See THIRST, n.] Intransitive: 1. To feel thirsty; to suffer thirst.

2. To have a vehement desire; to long; — followed by after, for, or the infinitive.

My soul thirsteth for . . . the living God. Ps. xlii. 2.

——, Transitive: 1. To have a thirst for; to long for; crave. Now Rare.
2. To make suffer from thirst, in order to control, expel, etc.; — usually with an adverb; as, to thirst out a horse thief.

thirst'er (thûrs'tĕr), n. One who thirsts.

thirst'ing, adj. That thirsts; thirsty; dry. — thirst'ingly, adv.

thirst'ing, n. The sensation of thirst; also, a craving; a longing.

thirs'tle (thûrs'l), n. The throstle. Local, Eng.

thirst'y (thûrs'tĭ), adj.; THIRST'I·ER (-tĭ·ĕr); THIRST'I·EST. [AS. thurstig, thyrstig. See THIRST, n.] 1. Feeling thirst; having a painful or distressing sensation from want of drink; hence, having an eager desire; longing; avid.
2. Deficient in moisture; dry; parched; arid.

A dry and thirsty land, where no water is. Ps. lxiii. 1.

3. Producing thirst; as, thirsty food. Now Colloq.

thir'teen' (thûr'tēn'; 66), adj. [ME. threttene, fr. AS. thrēotēne, thrēotȳne. See THREE; TEN. Cf. THIRTY.] 1. Ten and three; one more than twelve; — often with ellipsis of the noun.
2. Thirteenth. Obs.

thir'teen', n. 1. The number greater by a unit than twelve; the sum of ten and three; thirteen units or objects.
2. A symbol representing thirteen units, as 13, XIII, or xiii, also, something marked with such a symbol, as a billiard ball, a ticket, etc. Specif.: a A size, as of a collar. b A number of a room, house, etc. c As an affix to names of monarchs, etc., the thirteenth of that name in the succession. d The year numbered thirteen in a specified or understood century; — usually written '13.
3. An English shilling, which from 1689 to 1825 was worth thirteen pence Irish. Obs.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thirteen-day	thirteen-ringed	thirteen-stone thirteen-inch	thirteen-square	thirteen-story thir'teen'er (thûr'tēn'ĕr), n. 1. = THIRTEEN, n., 3.

2. The thirteenth in a series; esp., the card of a suit left after twelve are played. Colloq.

thir'teen'-lined' go'pher or squir'rel. The striped spermophile. See SPERMOPHILE.

thir'teen'-pence' half'pen·ny. Obs. a Formerly, the amount paid to a hangman for an official hanging; hence, figuratively, a hanging, or the cost of a hanging. b = 1st MARK, 2 a.

thir'teenth' (thûr'tēnth'; 66), adj. [From THIRTEEN; cf. AS. thrēotēotha.] 1. Next in order after the twelfth.
2. Constituting one of thirteen equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.

thir'teenth', n. 1. The quotient of a unit divided by thirteen; one of thirteen equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.
2. The unit or object coming next after the twelfth in any series.
3. In medieval England, a tax comprising the thirteenth part of the value of movables or of an annual rent.
4. Music. The interval comprising an octave and a sixth; also, a tone at this interval.

---

third'-class' mail. See 6th MAIL, 3.

third'-rail' lo'co·mo'tive. See ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE.

Thir'l·a (thĭr'lĭ·ȧ). D. Bib.

thirl'dom, n. = THRALLDOM. Obs.

thirle'poole, n. A whale. Obs.

thirl'roid. Thyroid. Ref. Sp.

thirs. † THURSE.

thirst country. Also thirst'land, n. = THIRST, n., 3. Chiefly S. Africa.

thirst'ful, adj. See -FUL.

thirst'i·ly (thûrs'tĭ·lĭ), adv. of THIRSTY.

thirst'i·ness, n. See -NESS.

thirst'less, adj. See -LESS. — thirst'less·ness, n.

thirst'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

thir'sus. Thyrsus. Ref. Sp.

thirt (thûrt; thûrt). Var. of THWART. Obs. exc. dial.

thir'teen·fold', adj. See -FOLD.

—the thirteenth, or thirteenth. a An affix to a name, indicating the next after the twelfth in a succession, as of monarchs or popes, bearing this name; as, Louis the Thirteenth; — often used with Roman numerals; as, Louis XIII. b Short for the thirteenth day (of a month); as, Friday the thirteenth is doubly unlucky.

Thirteenth Amendment. U. S. Const. The amendment declaring the freedom of the slaves, in force Dec. 18, 1865. Cf. EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION.

thir'teenth'ly, adv. In the thirteenth place or order, as of topics.

thir'ti·eth (thûr'tĭ·ĕth; -ĭth; 119), adj. [From THIRTY; cf. AS. thrītiġōtha.] 1. Next in order after the twenty-ninth. 2. Constituting one of thirty equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.

thir'ti·eth, n. 1. The quotient of a unit divided by thirty; one of thirty equal parts into which anything is or may be divided. 2. The unit or object coming next after the twenty-ninth in any series.

thir'ty (thûr'tĭ), adj. [ME. thritty, fr. AS. thrītig, thrittig; akin to D. dertig, G. dreissig, ON. thrjátíu, thrjátigi, thrir teger, Goth. threis tigjus, i.e., three tens. See THREE; TEN. Cf. THIRTEEN.] 1. Being three times ten; consisting of one more than twenty-nine; twenty and ten; — often with ellipsis of the noun; as, promptly at six thirty. 2. Thirtieth. Obs.

3. That has the number thirty; as, room thirty (or 30).

thir'ty (thûr'tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). 1. The sum of three tens, or twenty and ten; thirty units or objects. 2. A symbol representing thirty units, as 30, XXX, or xxx. 3. The end; — said of, or written on, the final sheet or line of copy for an edition of a newspaper. Printers' Slang. 4. Lawn Tennis. One of the scores in the game of tennis. See LAWN TENNIS.

☞ COMBINATIONS ARE:

thirty-acre, adj.	thirty-hour, adj.	thirty-seventh thirty-day, adj.	thirty-inch, adj.	thirty-six thirty-eight	thirty-knot, adj.	thirty-sixth thirty-eighth	thirty-mile, adj.	thirty-third thirty-fifth	thirty-nine	thirty-three thirty-first	thirty-ninth	thirty-ton, adj.
thirty-five	thirty-one	thirty-two thirty-foot, adj.	thirty-pound, adj.	thirty-word, adj.
thirty-four	thirty-second	thirty-yard, adj.
thirty-fourth	thirty-seven	thirty-year, adj.

—the thir'ties (thûr'tĭz). The numbers thirty to thirty-nine inclusive; specif., the years numbered thirty to thirty-nine in a person's life or in a specified or understood century.

thirty all. One of the scores in the game of tennis. See LAWN TENNIS.

Thirty American Offices' experience table. See MORTALITY TABLE.

thir'ty-gun'ner. Nav. A ship of war carrying thirty guns. Obs. exc. Hist.

thir'ty-sec'ond note. Music. A note with a stem and three pennants, having the time value of one thirty-second of a whole note; a demisemiquaver. See NOTE, n., 14 a.

Thirty-second Notes.

thirty-second rest. Music. See 3d REST, 12 b, Illust.

thir'ty-two'mo' (thûr'tĭ·tōō'mō'), adj. [See -MO.] Having 32 leaves to a sheet; as, a thirty-twomo, or 32mo, book. — n. A size of a book, or of its pages, made of such sheets, measuring about 3½ × 5½ inches, as a maximum; also, a book of such size.

Thirty Tyrants. a A committee of thirty aristocrats who, at the close of the Peloponnesian War (404 B.C.), undertook, under Spartan protection, the government of Athens, Critias and Theramenes being the leaders. After a reign of terror they were overthrown by a body of exiled citizens under Thrasybulus and a democratic government was resumed. b A body of nineteen or twenty adventurers, who, after the defeat of Valerian, and during the reign of his weak successor, Gallienus (A.D. 260–268), aspired to the throne, and by their contests threatened the empire; — so called from a supposed resemblance to the "Thirty Tyrants" of Athens.

thirty up. Lawn Tennis. = THIRTY ALL. Colloq.

Thirty Years' War. See WAR, Table.

this (thĭs), pron.; pl. THESE (thēz). [ME. this, thes, fr. AS. thēs, thes, masc., thēos, thīos, fem., this, neut.; akin to OS. these, D. deze, G. dieser, OHG. diser, deser, ON. thessi; from the stem of the demonstrative pron. represented by E. that, the + a particle se, si; cf. Goth. sai behold. See THE, THAT; cf. THESE, THOSE.] A demonstrative word, referring particularly to what is present or near in place, time, or thought, or to something just mentioned or to be mentioned. It is applied to a person, thing, or idea. Cf. THAT.

When he heard this, he was very sorrowful. Luke xviii. 23.

This above all: to thine own self be true. Shak.

Special senses and constructions of this are: a Elliptically, for this person, place, time, etc.

That our stars should divide our equalness to this [point or extremity]. Shak.

b As opposed or correlative to that; sometimes as opposed to other or to a second this; the latter. See THAT, pron., 1 c.

c [often cap.] As a proper name which is not mentioned or specified; as, Miss This and That were present.

this, adj. 1. That is present, near, or just referred to, in time or place; as, this morning; this last Sunday.

To do battle for her in this her cause. Scott.

2. These; — like a, every, that, etc., applied to a number, as of years, persons, etc., taken collectively or as a whole.

This twenty years have I been with thee. Gen. xxxi. 38.

3. The nearer; — as opposed to that.

This way and that the wavering sails they bend. Pope.

4. That is recent and in vogue; as, speaking of this five-day week.

this, adv. 1. In this way or fashion; thus. Obs.

2. a Colloq. So (much, far, long, etc.). b To this extent or degree.

this and that. One thing and another; a number of heterogeneous or pertinent things; as, we chatted of this and that. — this'-and-that', n.

this'-a-way' (thĭs'ȧ·wā'), adv. In this way; thus. Dial.

this here. This. Now Dial.

this'how' (thĭs'hou'), adv. In this particular or given way. Cf. SOMEHOW. Browning.

this'like' (thĭs'lĭk'), adj. Such as this; of this kind. Rare.

this'ness (-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. The quality in a thing of being here and now or such as it is; the concrete objective reality of a thing; haecceity.

this'sen (thĭs'n), adv. In this way; so; — sometimes with a. Dial. Eng.

this'tle (thĭs'l), n. [ME. thistil, fr. AS. thistel; akin to D. & G. distel, OHG. distila, distil, ON. thistill, Sw. tistel, Dan. tidsel.] 1. Any of various prickly plants of the Carduaceae, esp. of the genera Cnicus, Carduus, Cirsium, and Onopordon. Also (with qualifying adjective or attributive), any of numerous prickly plants of other families. The thistle flower is the heraldic and national emblem of Scotland.

Canada Thistle (Cirsium arvense).

2. [cap.] The Order of the Thistle (see ORDER, n., 1); also, the order as an honor conferred or received.

3. The color cobalt violet.

this'tle, v. t. & i. To free from thistles; to root up thistles.

thistle ball. The flower head of the thistle.

thistle beard. = THISTLEDOWN.

this'tle·bird' (thĭs''l·bûrd'), n. A goldfinch.

thistle butterfly. A handsome butterfly (Vanessa, syn. Pyrameis, cardui) whose larva eats thistles.

thistle cock. The corn bunting (Emberiza calandra). Orkney I.

thistle crown. 1. A gold coin of four shillings, issued by James I of England; — from the Scotch thistle on the obverse.

2. = THISTLE BALL.

this'tled (thĭs''ld), adj. Overgrown with thistles; also, adorned with the thistle, as emblem.

thistle dollar, merk, noble, etc. Any of several Scottish coins having a thistle as a distinctive part of the device. Hist.

this'tle·down' (thĭs''l·doun'), n. The down, or pappus, from the ripe flower head of a thistle.

thistle family. The Carduaceae.

thistle finch. The European goldfinch.

thistle funnel. A funnel having a bulging body and flaring mouth.

thistle poppy. The prickly poppy Argemone mexicana; also, the related plant A. hispida.

thistle saffron. = SAFFLOWER, 1.

thistle sage. An annual herb (Salvia carduacea) of the western United States, yielding considerable honey.

thistle tube. A tube, usually of glass, with a top like a thistle funnel. See FUNNEL TUBE.

Thistle Funnel.

this'tly (thĭs''lĭ), adj. 1. Consisting of, or abounding in, thistles; as, thistly ground.

2. Resembling a thistle or thistles; prickly; thorny.

this'-way'-ward (thĭs'wā'wĕrd) adv. Hither. Rare.

this'wise' (-wīz'), adv. [this + 1st -wise.] Thus. Now Rare.

this world. The world known to living men; the world of here and now; — opposed to other world. — this'-world', adj. Mundane. — this'-world'i·an (thĭs'wûrl'dĭ·ăn), n. — this'-world'ness, n.

this'-world'ly (66), adj. Characterized by or manifesting interest in, or devotion to, things of this world. — this'-world'li·ness, n.

thith'er (thĭth'ĕr; thĭth'ĕr), adv. [ME. thider, fr. AS. thider, thæder, fr. stem of E. that; akin to ON. thathra there, Goth. thathro thence, Skr. tatra there, thither. See THAT, THE.] 1. To that place; there; — after verbs of motion and opposed to hither. Archaic.

Where I am, thither ye cannot come. John vii. 34.

2. To that point, end, or result. Rare.

Syn. — THITHER, THERE. THITHER was formerly in common use with verbs of motion, THERE, with verbs of rest; but in modern usage there has displaced thither, except in poetical or elevated style. Cf. HITHER WHITHER.

thith'er, adj. Being on the other and farther side; farther; more remote; — a correlative of hither; as, the thither bank of a stream; on the thither side of forty.

thith'er, v. i. To go or move thither. Rare.

thith'er·to' (-tōō'; thĭth'ĕr·tōō'; thĭth'ĕr-), adv. 1. Until that time; up to a past time specified or implied; as, a condition worse than had thitherto prevailed; arguments different from those thitherto advanced.

2. To that point or place. Obs.

thith'er·ward (thĭth'ĕr·wĕrd; thĭth'-), thith'er·wards (-wĕrdz), adv. Toward that place; in that direction.

thit'sĭ·ol (thĭt'sĭ·ōl; -ŏl), n. [Burmese θitse, written as θacce, gum, varnish tree (fr. θit, written θac, wood + se, written ce, be sticky) + -ol. Cf. THEETSEE.] Chem. A compound, $C_{33}H_{36}O_5$, obtained as a dark-colored, alcohol-soluble oil from Burmese lacquer.

thi·u'ram (thī·ū'răm; thī'ū·răm'), n. [From THIOUREA.] Chem. The univalent radical NH_2CS-; — called also thiocarbamyl. Thiuram disulphide, $(NH_2CSS)_2$, and its derivatives are crystalline compounds used as accelerators in vulcanizing rubber.

thix'el (thĭk'v'l; thĕ'v'l; thĭv''l), n. [Cf. ON. thefja to beat, stamp, thicken.] A stick or spatula for stirring porridge, etc.; a pudding stick. Dial. Eng.

thix'le (thĭk'z'l), n. [ME. thixel, thixil; akin to OHG. dehsala a kind of ax, G. deichsel, dächsel.] An ax or hatchet; a cooper's adz. Obs. exc. Dial.

thix'o·la'bile (thĭk'sō·lā'bĭl; -b'l), adj. [See LABILE.] Physical Chem. Exhibiting or characterized by thixotropy.

thix·ot'ro·py (thĭk·sŏt'rō·pĭ), n. [Gr. thixis a touch + -tropy.] Physical Chem. The property or phenomenon, exhibited by some gels, of becoming fluid when shaken. The change is reversible. — thix'o·trop'ic (thĭk'sō·trŏp'ĭk), adj.

Thlas'pi (thlăs'pĭ), n. [L., a kind of cress, fr. Gr. thlaspi.] Bot. A large genus of herbs (family Brassicaceae), the pennycresses, distinguished by the sessile, often orbicular pod with two or more seeds in each cell. The species are natives of temperate regions. The Eurasian T. arvense is common as a weed in North America.

thlip'sis (thlĭp'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thlipsis pressure.] Med. Compression, as external constriction of vessels.

Tho (thō), n.; pl. THOS (thōz). One of a people of northern Tonkin, probably of Tai stock, agriculturists living in pile-built houses.

tho (thō), adv. [AS. thā.] Then; when. Obs. exc Dial.

tho (thō), pron. pl. [AS. thā. See THE, THAT.] Those; they. Obs.

thob (thŏb), v. i. [think + opinion + believe.] To think according to one's wishes; to rationalize one's opinions or beliefs. Slang.

thoft (thŏft), n. [AS. thofte. See TAFT.] A rower's bench. Obs. exc. Dial.

thoft (thŏft). Scot. var. of TOFT.

thoft'fel'low (-fĕl'ō), n. A fellow oarsman. Rare.

thoke (thōk), v. i. [Cf. AS. thāce soft.] To lie abed; idle. Dial. Eng.

thok'ish (thŏk'ĭsh), adj. Slothful. Obs. exc. Dial.

thole (thōl), n. [AS. thol, tholl; akin to D. dol, ON. thollr a fir tree, a young fir, a tree, a thole.] 1. A wooden or metal pin, set in the gunwale of a boat, to serve as a fulcrum for the oar; — commonly called tholepin.

2. A peg or pin; specif., the pin, or handle, of a scythe snath.

thole, v. t. & i.; THOLED (thōld); THOL'ING (thōl'ĭng). [ME. tholen, tholien, fr. AS. tholian; akin to OS. tholōn, OHG. dolēn, G. geduld patience, dulden to endure, ON. thola, Sw. tåla, Dan. taale, Goth. thulan, L. tolerare, tulisse, to endure, bear, tollere to lift, bear, Gr. tlēnai to bear, Skr. tulayati he lifts up, weighs. Cf. TOLERATE.] To endure; suffer; bear; allow. Archaic & Dial.

thole (thōl), n. = THOLOS.

tho'lei·ite (tō'lĭ·ĭt), n. [From Tholei, now Tholey, Saar District, Germany.] Petrog. A diabase whose interstitial material is glass, giving an intersertal texture.

Thol'lon' prism (tŏ'lôn'). [After Louis Thollon (1829–87), French astronomer.] A form of compound prism for the dispersion of light consisting of a carbon disulphide prism (a in Illust.) of large angle (113°), between two prisms of crown glass (c, c) having each an angle of 31°.

Thollon Prism.

tho'los (thō'lŏs), n.; pl. THOLOI (-loi). Also tho'lus (-lŭs); pl. THOLI (-lī). [Gr. tholos, L. tholus.] Gr. Antiq. 1. Archaeol. A circular tomb of beehive shape, approached by a horizontal passage in the side of a hill; — called also dome tomb. The structure of the tomb is that of a corbeled vault. The most famous examples are the so-called Treasury of Atreus and other tombs at Mycenae, and the so-called Treasury of Minyas at Orchomenos. All belong to the Late Helladic period.

2. Arch. A round building of classical Greek date and style; as, the Tholos at Epidaurus.

Tho·mae'an, Tho·me'an (tō·mē'ăn; thō-), n. One of the Christians of St. Thomas (which see).

Thom'as (tŏm'ăs), n. [LL., fr. Gr. Thōmas, fr. Aram. Tē'ōma.] 1. Literally, a twin; — masc. prop. name. F. Thomas (tō'mä'); It. Tomaso (tō·mä'zō); Sp. Tomás (tō·mäs'); Pg. Thomas, Thomaz (tō·mȧsh'); G. Thomas (tō'mäs). — Dim. Tom, Tom'my (Tom'kin, obs.). — Fem. Thomasa, Thomasine.

2. Bib. One of the twelve apostles, who, according to John xx. 24–29, doubted until he had proof of Christ's resurrection.

3. Usually doubting Thomas. One who will not believe until he sees.

4. Nickname for: a A waiter. b A tomcat.

Thom'a·sa (tŏm'ȧ·sȧ), n. Fem. of THOMAS; — fem. prop. name. Sp. Tomasa (tō·mä'sä); G. Thomasia (tō·mä'zĭ·ä). — Dim. Tanzine (tăn'zĕn).

Thom'as–Gil'christ proc'ess, Thomas process (tŏm'ăs-gĭl'krĭst). Steel Mfg. The basic open-hearth process.

Thom'as Grad'grind'. See GRADGRIND, THOMAS.

thom'as·ing (tŏm'ăs·ĭng), n. Begging from house to house on St. Thomas's Day (Dec. 21). Dial. Eng.

Thom'as meal (tŏm'ăs). [After S. G. Thomas (1850–85), Brit. metallurgist.] Basic slag ground for use as a fertilizer.

Thom'as Row'ley. See ROWLEY, THOMAS.

Thom'as Rym'er or the Rhym'er (rīm'ĕr). The title and hero of an ancient ballad, preserved in several forms, of the visit of Thomas of Erceldoune (see Biog.) to the Queen of Elfland. It is a version of the earlier story of Ogier the Dane and Morgain le Fay.

Thom'as splint (tŏm'ăs). [After H. O. Thomas (1834–91), Eng. surgeon.] A metal splint shaped to the limb and held by bandages, used for dislocations and fractures.

Thom'as Trad'dles. See TRADDLES, THOMAS.

Tho·mis'i·dae (thō·mĭs'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thōmix, thōminx, a cord, string; — from their drawing single threads.] Zool. The family constituted by the crab spiders. — tho'mi·sid (thō'mĭ·sĭd), n. & adj.

Tho'mism (tō'mĭz'm; thō'-), n. 1. The philosophicotheological system of Thomas Aquinas. (See SCHOLASTICISM.) As an eclectic, Aquinas drew freely from all the great philosophers, esp. Aristotle, Augustine, and Averroës; as the great synthesizer of his age he developed an organic body of doctrine which, though original in many ways, is a comprehensive summary of 13th century thought. Some of his characteristic teachings are: (1) Philosophy and theology have separate spheres, one seeking truth through the agency of reason, the other through that of revelation. Their independently reached conclusions do not conflict with, but rather support, each other. (2) All knowledge begins with sense perception. From the data of sense, the intellect abstracts the universals, and, on the basis of these, it proceeds through deduction and induction to science or knowledge of things in their causes, and thence to philosophy, or knowledge of ultimate causality. The philosopher through his discovery of law, order, and causality, in nature comes to the conclusion that the universe is the creation of an infinite, uncreated Being. (3) Everything in nature is composed of matter and form, the potentiality of the former being brought to actuality by the latter. As nothing material comes into existence in its perfection, so nothing such remains fixed in that state. Man alone transcends this law of change except in so far as he has a material body. His substantial form through which only can that which is potential in him be actualized and his specific and individual character be realized, is an immaterial intellectual soul, spiritual and immortal. (4) Everything that is natural is good in thir'ti·fold'. Thirtyfold. Ref. Sp.

---

thirt'o'ver, adj. Dial. var. of THWARTOVER.

Thir'ty-five' Ar'ti·cles of Re·lig'ion. See ARTICLES OF RELIGION.

thir'ty-fold' (thûr'tĭ·fōld'), adj. See -FOLD.

thir'ty-ish, adj. See -ISH.

Thir'ty-nine' Ar'ti·cles. See ARTICLES OF RELIGION.

thir'ty-one', n. = ONE-AND-THIRTY.

this. ‡ THESE, THUS.

This'be (thĭz'bē), n. See PYRAMUS AND THISBE.

This'be (thĭz'bē). Bib.

thisn. Short for this one. Dial.

this'tle·like', adj. See -LIKE.

this'tle·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

this'tler·y, n. See -ERY 6.

this'tle·warp', n. The thistle finch. Obs.

this'tlish, adj. See -ISH.

thit'see, thit'si. Vars. of THEETSEE.

Thja'zi (thyä'zĕ), n. [ON.] See ITHUNN. [= DOGRIB.]

Thling'cha·din'ne, n., sing. & pl. [See -ERY 2.]

Thlin'get. Var. of TLINGIT.

Thlin'ket. Var. of TLINGIT.

tho. Var. of THOU. Now Dial.

tho. Var. of THOUGH. [exc. Dial.] thoa. Var. of THO, then. Obs.

Tho'as (thō'ăs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thoas.] See HYPSIPYLE.

Tho·bad'a·ni'as (thō·băd'ȧ·nī'ăs). D. Bib.

thocht (Scot. thŏxt). Var. of THOUGHT. Obs. exc. Scot.

thocht. Scot. past & past participle of THINK.

thode, n. [AS. thoden.] A gust of wind. Obs. [exc. Dial.] thof (thŏf). Var. of THOUGH. Obs.

thole. ‡ TOLL.

thole'mod, adj. [AS. tholemōd. See THOLE, v.; MOOD.] Patient. Obs.

thole'pin', n. = 1st THOLE, 1.

tholl. ‡ TOLL. [Bib.]

Thol'mai (thŏl'mĭ; -mȧ·ī). D. Bib.

Thol'o·mai (-ō·mī). D. Bib.

tho·man' (tō·măn'). Var. of TOMAN, a coin. [THOMASA.]

Thom'a·sine (tŏm'ȧ·sēn), n. = Thom'a·site (tŏm'ȧ·sīt), n. [After John Thomas (1805–71), Am. physician, the founder.] See CHRISTADELPHIAN.

---

itself and a cause of evil only when used for ends other than those for which it was created, or beyond the limits prescribed by sound reason or divine law. Moral evil and good are therefore directly related to the intellect and will of man. It is the province of the intellect to apprehend that which is good and true, and of the will to seek that which is so apprehended. (5) Because of his rational nature, man is compelled by necessity to seek the highest good. Through obedience to the dictates of reason he can attain a high degree of moral rectitude, but obedience to divine law and acceptance of divinely given means of salvation are also essential to the highest perfection, which is spiritual, and to the attainment of the supreme good, union with God.

2. Theol. A theory deriving from Thomas Aquinas which explains the relation between efficacious grace and free will as a free determination of the will accomplished by virtue of a divine physical predetermination. Cf. 1st MOLINISM.

Tho'mist (tō'mĭst; thō'-), n. An adherent of Thomas Aquinas or Thomism.

Tho'mist, adj. Of or pertaining to Thomism or Thomists.

Tho·mis'tic (tō·mĭs'tĭk; thō-), adj. Of, pertaining to, or resembling the doctrines of, the Thomists.

Tho·mis'ti·cal (-tĭ·kăl), adj. Thomistic.

Tho'mo·mys (thō'mō·mĭs) n. [NL., fr. Gr. thōmos heap + mys mouse; — from the heaps of earth thrown out along the burrows.] A genus of pocket gophers of the western United States and Mexico, dist. from the genus Geomys by the smooth, ungrooved, upper incisors.

thom'sen·o·lite (tŏm'sĕn·ō·lĭt), n. [After Julius Thomsen, of Copenhagen. See -LITE.] Mineral. A fluoride of aluminum, calcium, and sodium, $NaCaAlF_6.H_2O$, occurring in small, white, prismatic, monoclinic crystals on cryolite.

Thom'sen's dis·ease' (tŏm's'sĕnz). [After A. J. Thomsen (1815–96), Dan. physician, who suffered from it and first described it.] Med. An affection, apparently congenital, consisting in tonic contraction and stiffness of the striated muscles after a period of muscular inaction.

Thom'son ef·fect' (tŏm's'n; 206). [After Sir William Thomson, Eng. physicist, who described it in 1856.] A thermo-electric phenomenon consisting in the production or absorption of heat at the junction of unequally heated portions of a homogeneous conductor traversed by an electric current. Cf. PELTIER EFFECT.

Thom·so'ni·an (tŏm·sō'nĭ·ăn), adj. 1. Pertaining to or resembling James Thomson, the author of The Seasons.

2. Med. Of or pertaining to Thomsonianism.

Thom·so'ni·an, n. An adherent of Thomsonianism.

Thom·so'ni·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n. [After the founder, Dr. Samuel Thomson (1769–1843), of Mass.] Med. A system which assumed that vegetables only are beneficial to the human body and that therefore vegetable medicines alone should be used.

thom'son·ite (tŏm's'n·īt), n. [After Thomas Thomson, Scot. chemist.] Mineral. A zeolitic mineral, a hydrous silicate of aluminum, calcium, and sodium, generally in masses of a radiated structure, rarely in distinct orthorhombic crystals. When pure it is snow-white. H., 5–5.5.

Thomson process. [After Elihu Thomson, Am. inventor.] A process of electric welding in which heat is developed by a large current passing through the metal.

Thom'son's ga·zelle' (tŏm's'nz). [After Joseph Thomson (1858–95), Scot. explorer.] An East African gazelle (Gazella thomsoni), the smallest of the gazelles.

Thomson's hypothesis. [After G. P. Thomson (b. 1892), Brit. physicist.] See ATOMIC THEORY.

thon (ŧhŏn), pron. sing. & pl.; nom. THON; poss. THON'S (ŧhŏnz); obj. THON. [Contr. of that one.] A proposed genderless pronoun of the third person.

thon (ŧhŏn), pron. & adj. That yonder. Scot., N. of Eng., & Ir.

thon (ŧhŏn). Var. of THEN. Obs. exc. Dial.

thon'der (ŧhŏn'dĕr), adv. & adj. Yonder. Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng.

Thon·drak'i (thŏn·răk'ĭ), n. pl. Also Thon·drak'i·ans (-ĭ·ăn̄z), Thon·dra'cians (-drā'shăn̄z). A group of Armenian Paulicians founded by Smbat of Thondrak, in the 9th century.

thone (thōn), adj. [AS. thān.] Damp. Now Dial. Eng.

thong (thŏng; 185), n. [ME. thong, thwong, thwang, fr. AS. thwang, thwong; akin to ON. thvengr thong, latchet. See also TWINGE.] A strap or strip of leather, as one used as a whip lash, a rein, etc.; esp., a leather or hide strap or strip used for fastening something, as a snowshoe or sandal.

thong, v. Transitive: 1. To furnish or fasten with a thong or thongs.

2. To lash with a thong.

——, Intransitive: 1. To give a lashing.

2. To become stringy or ropy, as dough. Dial. Eng

Thon'ga (tŏng'gȧ), n. A Bantu of a group of non-Kaffir tribes chiefly in southern Portuguese East Africa; also, their several Bantu languages, including esp. Ronga. Cf. TONGA.

thonged (thŏngd), adj. Provided with a thong, as a shoe.

thong'man (thŏng'măn), n. A lasher; hence, Rare, a critic.

thong seal. The bearded seal.

thong'y (thŏng'ĭ), adj. Stringy; viscous. Dial. Eng.

tho'oid (thō'oid), adj. [Gr. thōs, thōos, the jackal + -oid.] Zool. Wolflike; — applied to the wolves, dogs, and jackals, as distinguished from the foxes or alopecoid members of the genus Canis. — tho'oid, n.

Tho'pas, Sir (tō'pȧs). The hero of the burlesque Rime of Sir Thopas in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, a vainglorious knight-errant in search of the Queen of Faerie. Also, a similar character in Lyly's courtly comedy Endimion.

Thor (thôr), n. Also, Rare, Thorr. [ON. Thōrr. See THURSDAY.] Norse Myth. The god of thunder, the same as the Germanic Donar; — called also Hlorrithi. In Norway and Iceland Thor was the most widely worshiped of the gods, being conceived, in his character of a god of strength, as a helper in war, as a defender, as the one who gives force to contracts and marriages, wards off demonic influences, heals from disease, etc. He was conceived as in the vigor of youth, with hair and beard red (the color of lightning), riding in a goat-drawn chariot (whose rolling causes the thunder), and armed with a magic hammer, Mjollnir, that always returns to him after being cast (the thunderbolt). At Ragnarok he slays and is slain by the Midgard Serpent. See AESIR.

thorac-. = THORACO- (which see), as in tho'ra·cal'gi·a, tho'ra·ca·or'ta, tho'ra·co·dyn'i·a.

tho'ra·cec'to·my (thō'rȧ·sĕk'tō·mĭ), n. [thorac- + -ectomy.] Surgical removal of part of the thoracic wall as in thoracoplasty.

tho'ra·cen·te'sis (thō'rȧ·sĕn·tē'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thōrax thorax + kentēsis pricking, fr. kentein to prick, stab.] Surg. The operation of puncturing the chest wall so as to let out liquids contained in the cavity of the chest.

tho·rac'i- (thō·răs'ĭ-). [L. thorax, thoracis thorax.] = THORACO-, as in tho·rac'i·form. See -FORM.

tho·rac'ic (thō·răs'ĭk), adj. Anat. & Zool. Of, pertaining to, located within, or in the region of, the thorax. As applied to the pelvic fins of fishes, it means that they are placed under the pectorals and connected with the shoulder girdle, as in the perch.

Tho·rac'i·ca (-ĭ·kȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A division of cirripeds including those which have six thoracic segments, usually bearing six pairs of cirri. The common barnacles are examples.

tho·rac'i·cal (-kăl), adj. Thoracic. Rare.

thoracic aorta. Anat. That part of the aorta beyond the arch, which is contained in the thorax.

thoracic artery. Anat. Any of several branches of the axillary artery supplying the pectoral muscles, walls of the thorax, axilla, etc. They are designated (in the order in which they usually branch off) the superior, acromial, alar, and long (or lateral).

thoracic choke. A choked condition seen chiefly in the horse and ox, resulting from obstruction of the thoracic part of the esophagus.

thoracic duct. Anat. The main trunk of the system of lymphatic vessels. It lies along the front of the spinal column, beginning on a dilatation (cisterna chyli) behind the aorta and opposite the second lumbar vertebra, and extending up through the thorax, where it turns to the left and opens into the left subclavian vein. It receives chyle from the intestine and lymph from the abdomen, the lower limbs, and the entire left side of the body. Cf. RIGHT LYMPHATIC DUCT.

thoracic limbs. Zool. The forelimbs of a vertebrate or the appendages of the thorax of arthropods.

thoracic nerve. Anat. a Any of several nerves arising from the brachial plexus and supplying chiefly certain muscles of the walls of the thorax. The medial and lateral anterior thoracic nerves supply the pectoral muscles, the long or posterior, the serratus anterior. b Any spinal nerve emerging just below a thoracic vertebra.

tho·rac'i·co- (thō·răs'ĭ·kō-). A combining form for thoracic, denoting thoracic and, as in tho·rac'i·co·ab·dom'i·nal, tho·rac'i·co·hu'mer·al.

tho·rac'i·co·a·cro'mi·al (-ȧ·krō'mĭ·ăl), adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to the thorax and the acromial process of the scapula.

thoracicoacromial artery. Anat. A short branch of the axillary artery, supplying the deltoid, pectoral, and serratus, anterior muscles.

tho·rac'i·co·lum'bar (thō·răs'ĭ·kō·lŭm'bĕr), adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to the thoracic and lumbar regions; specif., designating the sympathetic ganglia of these regions.

thoracic vertebra. One of the vertebrae (twelve in man) dorsal to the thoracic region and characterized by articulation with the ribs; — called also dorsal vertebra.

tho·rac'i·spi'nal (thō·răs'ĭ·spī'năl; -n'l), adj. Of or pertaining to the thoracic part of the spinal column or cord.

tho'ra·co- (thō'rȧ·kō-; thō·rā'kō-), thorac-. A combining form, Greek thōrako-, thōrak-, from thōrax, thōrakos, chest, used to denote: a The thorax or chest; — in nouns, as in *thoraco*plasty, *Thora*costaca. b Thoracic and; — in adjectives, as in *thoraco*lumbar. Cf. THORACI-. For words below, see the word or element with which thoraco- is combined:

thoracoabdominal	thoracodidymus	thoracometry
thoracoacromial	thoracohumeral	thoracomyodynia thoracobronchotomy	thoracolumbar	thoracostenosis thoracocentesis	thoracomelus	thoracostomy thoracocyrtosis	thoracometer	thoracotomy thoracodelphus

tho'ra·co·ce·los'chi·sis (-sē·lŏs'kĭ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thoraco- + coelom + -schisis.] Med. Congenital fissure of the thorax and abdominal wall.

tho'ra·co·cyl·io'sis (-sĭ·lō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thoraco- + Gr. kyllōsis crippling.] Med. Deformity of the chest.

tho'ra·co·dor'sal (-dôr'săl; -s'l), adj. [thoraco- + dorsal.] Anat. Designating the dorsal aspect of the thorax; as, the thoracodorsal nerve, extending from the posterior cord of the brachial plexus to the latissimus dorsi muscle.

tho'ra·co·gas·tros'chi·sis (-găs·trŏs'kĭ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thoraco- + gastro- + -schisis.] Thoracoceloschis.

tho·ra'co·graph (thō·rā'kō·grăf; -răk'ō-), n. [thoraco- + -graph.] Med. An apparatus for recording graphically the movements and changes in size of the thorax.

tho'ra·col'y·sis (thō'rȧ·kŏl'ĭ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thoraco- + -lysis.] Surg. The freeing of a lung by cutting abnormal adhesions between it and the chest wall.

tho'ra·cop'a·gus (-kŏp'ȧ·gŭs), n. [NL., fr. thoraco- + Gr. pagos that which is fixed.] Terat. A twin monster united at the thorax. — tho'ra·cop'a·gous (-gŭs), adj.

tho'ra·co·plas'ty (thō'rȧ·kō·plăs'tĭ; thō·rā'kō-), n. [thoraco- + -plasty.] Surg. A remodeling or reshaping of the thorax; esp., the operation of removing or resecting one or more ribs, so as to obliterate the pleural cavity in cases of empyema.

tho'ra·cos'chi·sis (thō'rȧ·kŏs'kĭ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thoraco- + -schisis.] Med. Congenital fissure of the thorax.

tho·ra'co·scope (thō·rā'kō·skōp; thō·răk'ō-), n. [thoraco- + -scope.] Med. a A stethoscope. b An instrument for viewing the thoracic cavity. It is equipped with an electric light and inserted through an intercostal space. — tho'ra·cos'co·py (thō'rȧ·kŏs'kō·pĭ), n.

Skeleton of Thorax of Man. a First Thoracic Vertebra; b Twelfth Thoracic Vertebra; c Clavicle; d Scapula; e Sternum, or Breastbone; f Costal Cartilages; g Sternal Ribs; h, i False Ribs; i Floating Ribs.

Tho'ra·cos'te·i (thō'rȧ·kŏs'tē·ĭ), n. pl. [NL., fr. thorac- + -osteus.] Zool. An order of fishes having the body more or less completely covered by bony plates and the pharyngeal bones and other structures about the head more or less undeveloped. It includes the sticklebacks, pipefishes, and sea horses. There are two suborders Hemibranchii and Lophobranchii.

tho'ral (thō'răl; 181), adj. [NL. thorus couch, bed, for L. torus.] Of or pertaining to a bed; hence, nuptial. R. tho'rax (-răks), n.; pl. THORAXES (-răk·sĕz; -sĭz), THORACES (thō'rȧ·sēz; thō·rā'-). [L., fr. Gr. thōrax.] 1. Anat. & Zool. The part of the body of man and other mammals situated between the neck and the abdomen, and supported by the ribs, costal cartilages, and sternum; also, the cavity contained in it, in which the heart, lungs, esophagus, etc., are situated. It is only in mammals that its cavity is shut off from that of the abdomen by a diaphragm; in the lower vertebrates a distinct thorax is not recognizable.

2. a In insects, the middle of the three chief divisions of the body, consisting of three somites (prothorax, mesothorax, and metathorax), each commonly bearing a pair of legs, and usually the last two each bearing a pair of wings in the adult. In most crustaceans and arachnids a thorax bearing ambulatory legs is recognizable, but usually fused with the head somites into a cephalothorax. b In zooids of compound ascidians, the anterior division of the body comprising the branchial sac and surrounding atrium. c In many tubicolous Polychaeta, an anterior differentiated part of the body behind the head.

3. Antiq. A breastplate, cuirass, or corselet; esp., the breastplate worn by the ancient Greeks.

thore (thôr; 181), n. [See THORAL.] Nuptial couch. Rare.

tho'ri·a (thō'rĭ·ȧ; 181), n. [NL. See THORITE.] Chem. Thorium dioxide, ThO_2, a white earthy substance; — formerly called also thorina. See THORIUM.

tho'ri·a·nite (thō'rĭ·ȧ·nīt; 181), n. [From THORIUM.] A mineral, in black cubic crystals of sp. gr. 9.32, consisting largely of thorium oxide with the oxides of the cerium metals, uranium, etc. It is found in certain of the gem washings of Ceylon and is remarkable for its radioactivity.

tho'ri·ate (-āt), v. t. Elec. To impregnate (an electron-tube cathode) with thoria.

thor'ic (thôr'ĭk; thō'rĭk), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or containing, thorium.

tho·rif'er·ous (thō·rĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [thorium + -ferous.] Containing or yielding thorium.

tho'rite (thō'rīt), n. [Thor + -ite.] 1. Mineral. A rare mineral of a brown to black color (or, as in the variety orangite, orange-yellow), consisting essentially of thorium silicate, $ThSiO_4$. In form it resembles zircon. Sp. gr., 4.5–5.4.

2. A high explosive used as a bursting charge for shell.

tho'ri·um (thō'rĭ·ŭm), n. [NL. See THORITE.] Chem. A comparatively rare radioactive element occurring in combination in thorite, monazite, and certain other minerals, and isolated as a heavy, gray, difficultly fusible metal. Symbol, Th; at. no., 90; at. wt., 232.12. It was discovered by Berzelius in 1828 in thorite. It has a valence of four; its compounds are analogous to those of zirconium. The oxide, ThO_2, is prepared from monazite on a large scale and used in gas mantles. See WELSBACH BURNER. The radioactive disintegration of thorium proceeds, with the emission of alpha, beta, and gamma rays, as follows (the atomic number of each product being given in parentheses): Thorium (90) → mesothorium 1 (88) → mesothorium 2 (89) → radiothorium (90) → thorium X (88) → thoron (86) → thorium A (84) → thorium B (82) → thorium C (83) → thorium C′ (84) → thorium Ω (82). All these products except thoron are solids. Thorium Ω is an isotope of lead.

thorium dioxide. Chem. = THORIA.

thorium emanation. Chem. = THORON.

thorium nitrate. Chem. A salt, $Th(NO_3)_4$, obtained as a white crystalline mass by extraction of monazite sand. It is used in gas mantles.

thorium oxide. Chem. Any oxide of thorium, esp. the dioxide (the only undisputed one). See THORIA.

thorn (thôrn), n. [AS.; akin to OS. & OFris. thorn, D. doorn, G. dorn, Dan. torn, Sw. törne, ON. thorn, Goth. thaurnus, Skr. tṛṇa grass, blade of grass, OSlav. trŭnŭ thorn. Cf. TURBOT.] 1. A sharp process or excrescence, as on a plant or an animal; specif., Bot., a short indurated, sharp-pointed, and leafless branch, as of the hawthorn, honey locust, etc. Thorns develop from buds as true branches do. Cf. SPINE, 1; PRICKLE, 1.

2. Fig.: That which pricks, stings, or hurts, as a thorn; a cause of irritation, trouble, affliction or the like; a source of distress.

> There was given to me a thorn in the flesh. 2 Cor. xii. 7.

3. Any thorn-bearing shrub or small tree or its wood; a thornbush; specif., any plant of the genus Crataegus, esp. the hawthorn or blackthorn, or the wood of either.

4. pl. Obstacles to growth or progress, esp. spiritual progress; — in allusion to the seed which fell among thorns, that is, thornbushes (Matt. xiii. 7).

5. Also thorn letter. The Anglo-Saxon letter þ (cap. Þ), used for either of the sounds of English th, as in thin, then; — so called because it was the initial letter of thorn, a spine. Also, the corresponding Icelandic character, formerly used for either sound of th, but in modern use only for th as in thin. See ANGLO-SAXON ALPHABET, EDH. Thorn continued in English use until about 1500, its form gradually becoming identical with that of y. Cf. Y.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thorn-bearing	thorn-headed	thorn-set thorn-bound	thorn-marked	thorn-strewn thorn-covered	thorn-pricked	thorn-wounded
thorn-encompassed	thorn-resisting	thorn-wreathed

— on thorns. In distressing anxiety; in great uneasiness.

-thorn (-thôrn). A combining form of thorn, as in:

allthorn	buckthorn	Maythorn	waythorn blackthorn	hackthorn	quickthorn	whitethorn boxthorn	hawthorn

thorn (thôrn), v. t.; THORNED (thôrnd); THORN'ING. 1. To furnish with thorns, esp. thorny bushes or branches; to surround or bind with thorns.

2. To prick with or as with a thorn; to hurt or annoy.

thorn, v. i. To eat heartily. Obs. Scot.

thorn (thôrn), adj. Supplied with food. Obs. Scot.

thorn apple. a A haw; the fruit of the hawthorn; also, rarely, the shrub itself. b Any plant of the genus Datura, esp. D. stramonium.

thorn'back' (thôrn'băk'), n. 1. a A European ray (Raja clavata) having spines on its back. b The three-spined stickleback. See STICKLEBACK.

2. A large European spider crab (Maia squinado).

3. A term of opprobrium; specif., an old maid. Now Rare.

Thornback (Raja clavata). (1/40) thorn'bill' (thôrn'bĭl'), n. Any of several small brilliant South American humming birds of the genera Rhamphomicron and Chalcostigma. They have a long, slender, sharp bill, and feed on honey, insects, and juice of the sugar cane.

Tho'mite (tŏ'mĭt; thō'-), n. = THOMAEAN.

Thom'o·l (thŏm'ō·ĭl). Bib.

thon. Obs. dative form of THE.

thone. Obs. contract. of the one.

thonk, thonky. ✝ THANK.

thoo. ✝ THO.

thoo. Dial. Eng. Var. of THOU.

thoom (thōom). Dial. var. of THUMB.

‖Tho'ra, tho'rah (tō'rȧ), n. Jewish Lit. = TORAH.

thoracicolumbar autonomic system. = SYMPATHETIC NERVOUS SYSTEM a.

Tho'ra·cos'tra·ca (thō'rȧ·kŏs'trȧ·kȧ), n. pl. [NL. See THORAX; OSTRACODA.] Zool. Syn. of PODOPHTHALMIA. — tho'ra·cos'tra·can (-kăn), adj. & n. — tho'ra·cos'tra·cous (-kŭs), adj.

tho'ra·scope, n. = THORACOSCOPE.

thorg, thorgh, thorght. ✝ THROUGH.

tho·ri'na (thō·rī'nȧ; thō'rĭ·nȧ), n. See THORIA.

tho·ri'num (-nŭm), n. [NL. See THORITE.] Chem. Thorium. Obs.

thorle. ✝ THIRL.

thorn broom. a The furze. b The needle furze.

thorn'bush' (thôrn'bŏŏsh'), n. 1. Any spiny or thorny shrub or small tree; specif.: a Any plant of the genus Crataegus. b The Californian shrub Ceanothus incanus. c In South Africa any of various species of Acacia. 2. A low growth of thorny shrubs, usually found in dry tropical regions, esp. in South Africa and parts of Brazil. See THORN FOREST.

thorn crown. = CROWN OF THORNS a.—thorn'-crowned', adj.

thorn, or thorny, devil. = MOLOCH, 3.

thorned (thôrnd), adj. Having or abounding in thorns or thornbushes; thorny.

thorn'en (thûrn'ĭn), adj. Made of thorns. Obs. exc. Dial.

thorn forest. A tropical, xerophytic woodland of the savanna type, commonly dominated by thorny trees.

thorn'-head'ed worm. Any worm of the order Acanthocephala.

thorn hedge. A hedge of thornbushes; esp., a hawthorn hedge. — thorn'-hedged' (thôrn'hĕjd'), adj.

Thorn'hill', Squire (thôrn'hĭl'). In Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield, the would-be seducer of Olivia, the older daughter of the Vicar, whom he lures into a marriage which he supposes fraudulent but which proves legal. He is the nephew of Sir William Thornhill, who, under the name of Mr. Burchell, befriends the Primrose family, finally marrying the younger daughter, Sophia.

thorn'let (thôrn'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A minute thorn.

thorn letter. See THORN, n., 5.

thorn locust. The honey locust.

thorn oyster. = THORNY OYSTER.

thorn palm. Any of various palms with spiny trunks, as of the genera Bactris Acrocomia, Astrocaryum, etc.; also, any of the hook climbers, as of the genera Desmoncus and Calamus.

thorn plum. = THORN APPLE a.

thorn poppy. The prickly poppy.

thorn'stone' (thôrn'stōn'), n. A scale of calcium carbonate and sulphate formed on thorns used in evaporating brine by graduation.

thorn'tail' (-tāl'), n. Any of several Neotropical hummingbirds of the genus Popelairia; esp., P. popelairii, in which the tail is deeply forked with the outer feathers slender and pointed.

½ Thorntail (Popelairia conversi).

thorn tree. a The hawthorn. b The honey locust. c In South Africa, any spiny species of Acacia.

thorn'y (thôr'nĭ), adj.; THORN'I·ER (-nĭ·ĕr); THORN'I·EST. [AS. thornig.] 1. Full of thorns or spines or thornbushes; rough or thick with thorns; spiny or brambly; as, a thorny bush or tree; thorny ground. 2. Figuratively: a Beset with trials, vexations, obstacles, etc. "The steep and thorny way to heaven." Shak. b Sharp as a thorn or thorns; keenly distressing; stabbing; as, thorny cares. c As difficult to handle as a thorny branch or a thornbush; bristling with perplexities, points of controversy, etc.; as the thorny question of States' rights.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thorny-edged	thorny-pointed	thorny-thin thorny-handed	thorny-pricking	thorny-twining thorny acacia. a In Tennessee, the honey locust. b In South Africa, any of many spiny species of Acacia.

thorny broom. = THORN BROOM.

thorny devil. = MOLOCH, 3.

thorny locust. The honey locust.

thorny oyster. Any spiny marine bivalve shell of the genus Spondylus.

thorny trefoil. A prickly plant (Fagonia cretica), family Zygophyllaceae, of southern Europe.

thor'o (thûr'ō). Var. of THOROUGH. Obs. exc. Dial.

thor'o' (thûr'ō). Contr. of THOROUGH.

tho'ro- (thō'rō-). A combining form for thorium.

tho'ro·gum'mite (-gŭm'ĭt), n. Mineral. A hydrous silicate of thorium and uranium. It is a decomposition mineral in which some of the water in gummite has been replaced by thorium.

tho'ron (thō'rŏn), n. [NL., fr. thorium + 1st -on.] Chem. A gaseous radioactive element formed from thorium and isotopic with radon and actinon; — called also thorium emanation. Symbol, Tn or Th-Em; at. no., 86; at. wt. 220. See THORIUM.

thor'ough (thûr'ō; 245), prep. [ME. thoru thuruh, thoruh. See THROUGH.] Through. Archaic.

thor'ough, adv. 1. Through; throughout. Archaic. 2. Thoroughly. Now Chiefly Dial.

thor'ough-. A combining form of thorough, denoting all the way through, throughout, thoroughly, in verbs and adjectives, as in:

thorough-bore	thorough-felt	thorough-made thorough-cleanse	thorough-fought	thorough-ripe thorough-dress	thorough-humble	thorough-shot thorough-dry	thorough-line	thorough-stain thor'ough (thûr'ō; 245), adj. [See THOROUGH, prep.] 1. Passing through; through; as, thorough openings in a wall. Now Rare. 2. Carried through to completion or attainment; consummately executed or achieved; so complete as to leave nothing unaffected or wanting; thoroughgoing; as, a thorough reformation, investigation, or comprehension. 3. Of a person, his mind, character, work, etc.: a Characterized by or evidencing mastery of a profession, art, subject, etc.; consummate; perfect; as, a thorough poet or presentation of a theme. b That is completely (such); through and through; being in every particular or essential; as, a thorough gentleman or rogue. "They were both thorough children of the Renaissance." Gamaliel Bradford. c Painstakingly exact or careful about details; not slipshod or inattentive; as, a slow but thorough servant. Syn. — Exhaustive, full. Ant. — Partial, incomplete; shiftless.

thor'ough, n. 1. A passage or way through; specif., a trench; also, a furrow. Obs. exc. Dial. 2. [cap.] Eng. Hist. In the reign of Charles I, the tyrannical policy of Wentworth (Strafford) and Laud; — so called from their expressed determination to carry their schemes "thorough" (i. e., through) every obstacle. 3. [often cap.] Hence, thoroughgoing policy, treatment, action, or the like.

thorough band or bond. A perpend a through bond.

thorough bass (bās). 1. Music. a The representation of chords by figures placed under the bass; a continuous bass voice part with numerals showing stenographically the harmony; figured bass; basso continuo. b The system of numerals and other marks so used. Thorough bass was regularly used by the old masters, esp. for noting organ accompaniments in choral and other large scores, but the present practice of writing scores out in detail has relegated the system to textbooks and exercises in harmony. The numerals indicate the intervals between each given bass note and such constituent tones of the chord as are necessary to identify it, showing nothing as to the actual leading of the upper voice parts, which is left to the rules for chord succession. The soprano of the opening chord, however, is often indicated. In two successive chords, any tones of the second that are retained from the first are marked simply by dashes. A chromatic change from the original key is marked by a ♯, ♭, or ♮ alone, if it occurs in the third above the bass; if in any other tone, the accidental is affixed to the numeral for it, except that sharping is marked by a stroke through the numeral itself. The figuring of some important chords is shown in the following list, that for each chord having its numerals in their vertically descending order, as in Illust.:

3 6 6 7 6+ – 7 7
5 4 ♭5 4 5
3 3 4

Thorough Bass.

Triad: a Fundamental position (usually not figured), 8, 5, 3; b 1st inversion, "Chord of the Sixth," 8, 6, 3, abbr. 6; c 2d inversion, "Six-four chord," 8, 6, 4, abbr. 6, 4. Seventh chord: a Fundamental position, 7, 5, 3, abbr. 7; b 1st inversion, "Six-five chord," 6, 5, 3, abbr. 6, 5; c 2d inversion, "Six-four-three chord," 6, 4, 3, abbr. 4, 3; d 3d inversion, "Chord of the Second," 6, 4, 2, abbr. 2. Ninth chord, fundamental position, 9, 7, 5, 3, abbr. 9. Italian Sixth, 8, 6, 3, abbr. 6+. French Sixth, 6, 4, 3. German Sixth, 6, 5, 3, abbr. 6+, 5. Neapolitan Sixth, 8, 96, 3, abbr. N6. Triad, fundamental position with suspended third, 8, 5, 4, abbr. 5, 4.

c In loose uses: (1) Harmony or harmonic composition generally. (2) The accompaniment.

2. A heavy resounding bass; — an erroneous use.

thor'ough-bind', v. t. To bind by a thorough band, or perpend.

thorough brace. A leather strap supporting the body of a carriage, and attached to springs, or serving as a spring. Thorough braces were the forerunners of springs in vehicle construction. See CHAISE a, Illust.

thor'ough·bred' (thûr'ō·brĕd'), adj. 1. Thoroughly trained or skilled; accomplished; as, a thoroughbred soldier. Now Rare. 2. a [sometimes cap.] Narrowly, being of the breed of horses called Thoroughbreds. See THOROUGHBRED, n., 1. b Bred from the best blood through a long line; pure-blooded; purebred; — said of horses, dogs, etc. c Of a person, having the characteristics of a Thoroughbred, as grace, elegance, high-spiritedness; also, marked by distinction, cultivation, and other signs of good birth and breeding.

thor'ough·bred', n. 1. A thoroughbred animal, esp. a horse. Specif. [cap.], one of a breed of horses kept chiefly for racing (running). They originated in England, probably from crosses between the native mares and Arab, Barb, and Turk, stallions which were imported at about the close of the 17th century. 2. A thoroughbred person.

thor'ough·fare' (thûr'ō·fâr'), n. 1. A place or way through which there is passing or travel; specif.: a Now Rare. A place, as a town, through which there is much passing of goods or travelers. b A passage through, as from one street or opening to another; an unobstructed way open to the public; a public road or street open at both ends; esp., a street or way through which there is much passing.

This world nis [is not] but a thurghfare full of woe. Chaucer.

c U. S. A waterway, as between two bays or lakes. 2. A passing or going through; passage; transit.

thor'ough·fare', v. i. To travel along or through thoroughfares; also, to cross. Rare. — thor'ough·far'er (-fâr'ĕr), n. Rare.

thor'ough·fare'some (-fâr'sŭm), adj. Penetrable; suggestive of a thoroughfare. Rare.

thor'ough·foot' (-fōōt'), n. Naut. The tangled state of a tackle with one or both blocks turned over in the fall.

thor'ough·foot', v. t.; -FOOT'ED; -FOOT'ING. To straighten (rope) twisted through coiling.

thor'ough·go'ing (-gō'ĭng; 66), adj. Characterized by great thoroughness or intense zeal; going the full length or to extremes; leaving nothing untouched, undone, or the like; as, a thoroughgoing investigator, measure, or partisan. — thor'ough·go'ing·ly, adv. — thor'ough·go'ing·ness, n.

thor'ough·growth' (-grōth'), n. The boneset Eupatorium perfoliatum.

thorough light. Light passing through a room, in and out of opposite windows; pl., windows opposite in a room. — thor'ough–light'ed, adj. Both Now Rare.

thor'ough·paced' (thûr'ō·pāst'), adj. Thoroughly trained in all paces, as a horse; hence, highly accomplished; thoroughgoing; out-and-out; as, a thoroughpaced Tory or Whig.

If she be a thoroughpaced impostor. Scott.

thor'ough·pin' (-pĭn'), n. Veter. A synovial dilatation just above the hock of the horse on both sides of the leg and slightly anterior to the hamstring tendon. It may cause lameness. There is usually an oval swelling on each side of the leg, suggestive of a pin thrust through.

thor'ough·sped' (-spĕd'), adj. Fully accomplished; also, penetrating through. Rare.

thor'ough·stem' (-stĕm'), n. The boneset Eupatorium perfoliatum.

thor'ough·stitch' (thûr'ō·stĭch'), adv. Thoroughly; completely. Now Dial.

thor'ough·stitch' (thûr'ō·stĭch'), adj. Also thor'ough-stitched' (-stĭcht'). Thoroughgoing. Now Rare.

thor'ough·wax' (-wăks'), n. [See THOROUGH, THROUGH; WAX to grow.] a The hare's-ear Bupleurum rotundifolium. b The boneset Eupatorium perfoliatum.

thor'ough·wort' (-wûrt'), n. Any of several species of Eupatorium, esp. the boneset E. perfoliatum. See WILD HOARHOUND.

thorp, thorpe (thôrp), n. [AS. thorp, throp; akin to OS. & ON. thorp, Dan. & Sw. torp, OFris. thorp, therp, Fris. terp, D. dorp, G. dorf, Goth. thaurp field, land, estate, farm, L. trabs, trabes, a beam, timber, roof, taberna hut, OBret. treb a dwelling. Cf. TAVERN, TRABEA, TROOP.] A group of houses in the country; a small agricultural community; hamlet; — now chiefly in names of places and persons; as, Al*thorp,* Mable*thorpe.*

Thorr. Var. of THOR.

thort'er (thôr'tĕr), prep. [Var. of thwarter, THWARTOVER.] Athwart. — adj. Lying athwart. Both Scot. — v. t. a To thwart. b Chiefly Scot. To plough crosswise.

thort'veit·ite (tôrt'vĭt·ĭt), n. [After O. Thortveit, of Iceland.] Mineral. A scandium yttrium silicate, $(Sc.Y)_2O_3 \cdot 2SiO_2$, occurring in slender grayish-green orthorhombic crystals. H., 6–7. Sp. gr., 3.6.

Thos (thŏs), n. [L., a kind of wolf, jackal, fr. Gr. thōs.] A subgenus or genus of the Canidae, containing the Asiatic and African jackals.

those (thōz), pron. & adj. [ME. thos, thas, fr. AS. thās, nom. and acc. pl. of thēs this. See THIS; cf. THESE.] Pl. of that (which see). For the use of those with kind of or sort of, see KIND OF, Note.

Thoth (thōth; tōt), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thōth, Thōyth, fr. Egypt. Tehuti.] 1. Egypt. Relig. The scribe of the gods, measurer of time, and inventor of numbers; hence, the god of wisdom and magic; — called also Dhouti. In the judgment hall of Osiris he records the result of the weighing of the heart. Orig. he was a moon god. He was represented with the head of an ibis or as a cynocephalus. He was identified with the Greek Hermes (Mercury).

Thoth (from a Bronze in British Museum).

The god who, above all, created by means of words, was Thoth; who appears sometimes, as at Hermopolis, the principal seat of his worship in Upper Egypt, as exercising this function on his own initiative, at other times as acting as the instrument of the creator. A. Wiedemann.

2. See EGYPTIAN CALENDAR.

thou (thou), pron.; singular: nom. THOU; poss. THY (thī) or THINE (thīn); obj. THEE (thē); plural: nom. YOU (yōō), YE (yē); poss. YOUR (yōōr) or YOURS (yōōrz); obj. YOU (yōō), YE (yē). [ME. thou, thu, fr. AS. thū, thu; akin to OS. & OFris, thu, G., Dan., & Sw. du, ON. thū, Goth. thu, OSlav. ty, Ir. & Gael. tu, W. ti, L. tu, Gr. sy, Dor. ty, Lith. tu, Skr. tvam. Cf. THEE, THINE, TE DEUM.] The personal pronoun of the 2d person singular, in the nominative case; the subject pronoun denoting the person addressed. Thou was formerly often used with special implication of familiarity, as between intimates, or as used by master to servant; hence, also, with implication of contempt, the polite pl. ye, you, replacing it in ordinary speech. At present thou is used only (1) in solemn or poetical style; (2) in dial. Eng., often as familiar or contemptuous, sometimes as an emphatic objective; and (3) by the Friends, or Quakers, who, however, instead of thou, usually say thee with a verb in the 3d person singular; as, "Thee tells no lies here." Thou is sometimes used disjunctively, by way of address; or for emphasis, esp. after terms of reproach; as, "Thou thing of no bowels, thou!" Shak.

thou, v. t. To address as thou, as formerly in familiarity; — now the usage of the Friends, or Quakers, only.

If thou thouest him some thrice, it shall not be amiss. Shak.

— v. i. To use thou, thy, etc., in address.

thou (thou), n.; pl. THOUS (thouz). A thousand dollars, pounds, etc. Slang.

Tho'u·e'ris (thō'ū·ē'rĭs), n. Ta-urt.

though (thō), adv. [See THOUGH, conj.] Despite that; however; all the same; — used in the middle or at the end of a sentence. Now Colloq.

A good cause would do well, though. Dryden.

though (thō), conj. See ALTHOUGH, Note. [ME. thogh, thoh, thouh, fr. Scand.; cf. ON. thó yet, still, though, Dan. dog, Sw. dock; akin to AS. thēah, thēh thēh, whence ME. thei(gh), thau(h), and to OS. thôh, OFris. thach, D. & G. doch but, yet, OHG. doh but, yet, though, Goth. thauh, thau, than, or, yet. Cf. THOF.] 1. Granting, admitting, or supposing, that; notwithstanding that; even if; although; albeit; — formerly often followed by that; as, he came, though ill.

Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him. Job xiii. 15.

2. In case that; if; that. Obs., except in the phrase as though. See under AS, conj.

No marvel, my lord, though it affrighted you. Shak.

3. Even if, as a matter to be conceded; with the limiting condition or alleviating consideration that; — introducing a concessive clause following and qualifying a main clause; as, we may escape, though I think not.

thought (thôt), n. [ME. thoght, thouht, fr. AS. thōht, gethōht; akin to D. gedachte thought, MHG. dāht, gedāht, ON. thōttr, thōtti, and to E. THINK.] 1. Act or process of thinking; mental concentration on ideas as distinguished from sense perceptions or emotions; reflection; cogitation; as, engaged in thought; your remarks stimulate thought. 2. The function or power of thinking, esp. of judging and reasoning; as, man is endowed with thought. 3. Hence, the power to conceive or realize; conception; imagination; as, a beauty beyond thought. 4. That which is thought; specif.: a That which is in one's mind whether involving the reasoning powers or not; — often in pl.; as, he always speaks his thought; to read one's thoughts. "The key to every man is his thought." Emerson. b A product of thinking, reflecting, imagining, etc.; an expressed or unexpressed idea, judgment, opinion, notion, fancy, or the like; as, second thoughts are best; a child's thoughts of God; I have a bright thought. c Collectively, the views, principles, or systems, of a specified age, race, or school of thinkers; the philosophy, science, etc., characteristic of a period or group; as, in modern thought; a leader of religious thought. 5. Something which stimulates thinking; esp., a remark, an affirmation, etc., that gives food for thought, or reflection; as, he left this thought with us; such a thought should awaken hope rather than despair. 6. State or fact of being aware, concerned, or regardful; a being solicitous, heedful, careful, etc.; attention; serious consideration; heed; as, mistakes arising from want of thought; give it no thought; take no thought for the morrow. 7. a Obs. Mental distress or strain; anxiety; melancholy. b Now Dial. A cause of anxiety; a source of distress. 8. State, condition, or fact, of being mentally preoccupied; absorption or engrossment of mind; as, to sit lost in thought. 9. Often pl. A more or less clearly defined intention; something in the way of a plan; as, I had a thought of asking him to dinner; he had thoughts of entering the ministry. 10. Now Rare. a Recollection; mind. b Hope; expectation.

---

thornd. Thorned. Ref. Sp.

thorn'head' (thôrn'hĕd'), n. = THORN-HEADED WORM.

thorn'i·ly, adv. of THORNY.

thorn'i·ness, n. See -NESS.

thorn'less, adj. See -LESS. — thorn'less·ness, n.

thorn'like', adj. See -LIKE.

thorn'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

thorn'y-backed' col. = SPINY EEL.

thor'o, thor'o·fare', etc. Reformed spellings of THOROUGH, THOROUGHFARE, etc.

thor'ough·bred·ness, n. See -NESS.

thor'ough-gate', n. A thoroughfare. [Obs.] thor'ough·ly, adv. of THOROUGH.

thor'ough·ness, n. See -NESS.

thor'ough-pierce', v. t. To pierce through. Obs.

thor'ough-see', v. t. To see through. Obs. [villager. Obs.] thorpe'man, n.; pl. -MEN. A Thors'day. ✝ THURSDAY.

thort (thûrt). Dial. var. of THWART.

Tho'sa·ite (thō'sä·ĭt). D. Bib.

Tho'u (thō'ū). D. Bib.

11. A little; a trifle; as, be a thought more courteous.

Syn. — Cerebration, ratiocination; consideration, care; reflection, deliberation; opinion, view.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thought-abhorring	thought-humbled	thought-provoking thought-bewildered	thought-imaged	thought-reviving thought-burdened	thought-inspiring	thought-ridden thought-challenging	thought-instructed	thought-saving thought-involving	thought-set thought-concealing	thought-jaded	thought-shaming thought-conjuring	thought-kindled	thought-sounding thought-depressed	thought-laden	thought-stirring thought-exceeding	thought-lighted	thought-straining thought-executing	thought-mad	thought-swift thought-fed	thought-mastered	thought-tight thought-fixed	thought-meriting	thought-tinted thought-free	thought-moving	thought-tracing thought-giving	thought-numb	thought-unsounded thought-hating	thought-outraging	thought-winged thought-haunted	thought-pained	thought-working thought-heavy	thought-peopled	thought-worn thought-heeding	thought-poisoned	thought-worthy thought-hounded	thought-pressed

-thought (-thôt). A combining form of thought, as in afterthought, forethought, merrythought.

thought (thôt), past tense & past part. of THINK.

thought, n. [From THOFT.] = THWART, n., 2. Now Dial.

thought'ed (thôt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Having thoughts; — chiefly in compounds; as, deep thoughted; high-thoughted.

thought'ful (-fo͝ol), adj. 1. Of a person, his mind, qualities, actions, etc., characterized by or manifesting depth or richness of thought; marked by mental concentration or contemplation; full of thought; as, a thoughtful mind, book, or expression.

2. Now Rare. a Circumspect; prudent. b Oppressed with thought or anxiety; melancholy; moody. c Having thoughts (of); mindful; heedful.

3. Mindful of others; attentive to what may be needed for another's comfort; considerate; kind; as, you are always thoughtful.

Syn. — Pensive, reflective, meditative. — THOUGHTFUL, CONSIDERATE, SOLICITOUS. THOUGHTFUL, as here compared (see PENSIVE), implies in general regard for others' interests or welfare; CONSIDERATE connotes esp. thought for others' feelings; SOLICITOUS implies concern or anxiety; as, courteous and thoughtful attention; "I had two warnings, . . . both most kind and considerate" (Stevenson); "She anticipated his wants, and was solicitous about his feelings" (G. Eliot). Cf. CONSIDER, CARE.

Ant. — Blank, empty, vacuous; unthinking, heedless; inconsiderate, selfish.

— thought'ful·ly, adv. — thought'ful·ness, n.

thought'less (-lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. 1. Not taking or giving thought; not mindful, heedful, or careful; now usually, heedless· rash; reckless; as, thoughtless youth or acts.

2. Devoid of or deficient in thoughts or power of thought; sometimes, dull; stupid; also thought-free; as, thoughtless brains or hours.

Thoughtless as monarch oaks that shade the plain. Dryden.

3. Not thoughtful; inconsiderate; inattentive; as, a thoughtless friend.

— thought'less·ly, adv. — thought'less·ness, n.

thought'ness (-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. The quality or fact of being thought or formulated as a thought. Rare.

thought'–out' (66), adj. That is the result of thinking out, or careful consideration. See think out, under 2d THINK.

thought reading. The reading of another person's unspoken thoughts through a study of facial expression or, allegedly, by occult means. Hence, thought'–read', v. t. & i. — thought reader.

thought'sick' (thôt'sĭk'), adj. Oppressed with thought or a thought.

thought transference. The transference of thought from one mind to another; specif., telepathy.

thought writing. Any form of writing that conveys ideas directly and without the medium of words or sounds; ideography.

thought'y (Scot. thŏx'tĭ), adj. Obs. exc. Scot. Thoughtful; specif.: a Pensive. b Obs. Anxious. c Given to reflection. d Alert; attentive.

Thou'let', or Thou'let's', so·lu'tion (tōō'lĕ', -lĕz'). [After J. Thoulet, French chemist.] A heavy liquid consisting of a solution of potassium and mercuric iodides, used for determining specific gravities and separating minerals of different densities. Its maximum sp. gr. is nearly 3.2.

thou'sand (thou'zănd; -z'nd), n. [ME. thousend, thusend, fr. AS. thūsend; akin to OS. thūsundig, thūsind, OFris. thusend, D. duizend, G. tausend, OHG. tūsunt, dūsunt, ON. thūsund, thūshund, Sw. tusen, Dan. tusind, Goth. thūsundi, Lith. tukstantis, Russ. tysyacha; for the first part cf. Skr. tavas strong, tuvi much, strong (see TOMB), and for the second cf. E. HUNDRED.] 1. The number of ten hundred; ten times one hundred units or objects. See HUNDRED, n., 1, Note. A thousand of nails is 1,200, of slates 1,200, or sometimes 1,260.

2. Hence, indefinitely, a great number.

3. A symbol for one thousand units, as 1000, M, or ↀ.

4. Usually pl. The numbers occupying the next place to the left of the hundreds, in the Arabic notation, beginning with 1,000, as 1,000, 2,000, 3,000, etc., to 9,000 inclusive.

thou'sand, adj. 1. Ten hundred; ten times one hundred.

2. Hence, indefinitely, very great in number.

3. Thousandth. Obs.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thousand-acre	thousand-handed	thousand-round thousand-dollar	thousand-headed	thousand-sided thousand-eyed	thousand-hued	thousand-sou'ed thousand-footed	thousand-mile	thousand-voiced thousand-guinea	thousand-pound	thousand-year thousand and one. An uncounted number of: a very great many; numberless; — always hyperbolic; as, a thousand and one things to do.

Thousand and One Nights, The. See ARABIAN NIGHTS.

thou'sand·fold' (thou'zănd·fōld'), adj. Multiplied by a thousand; increased or repeated a thousand times; as, a thousandfold return.

thou'sand·fold' (66), adv. Usually a thousandfold. To the extent of a thousand times; a thousand times as much; as, a thousandfold more effective; to repay one a thousandfold.

thou'sand·fold'ly (thou'zănd·fōld'lĭ), adv. In a thousand ways; a thousandfold. Rare.

thou'sand–head'ed cab'bage. Brussels sprouts.

thousand–headed kale. A tall, many-branched, leafy type of kale, used as green feed for cattle and poultry.

Thousand Island dressing. Russian dressing with various additions, usually chopped pickle, olive, green pepper, etc.

thou'sand–jack'et, n. The ribbonwood of New Zealand, the inner bark of which consists of a great number of layers.

thou'sand–leaf' n. Yarrow.

thou'sand–leg'ged ta'ble (thou'zănd·lĕg'ĕd; -ĭd; -lĕgd'). A gate-leg table with eight to twelve legs. Humorous.

thou'sand–legs', n. A millepede or galleyworm; — called also thou'sand–leg'ged worm.

thou'sandth (thou'zăndth), adj. 1. Next in order after the nine hundred and ninety-ninth.

2. Constituting one of a thousand equal parts into which anything is or may be divided; the tenth of a hundredth; hence, hyperbolically, very small; minute.

3. Occurring as one, or as the last one, of very many; — used hyperbolically; as, to call for the thousandth time.

thou'sandth, n. 1. The quotient of a unit divided by a thousand; one of a thousand equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.

2. The unit or object coming next after the nine hundred and ninety-ninth in a series.

thou'sand·weight' (thou'zănd·wāt'), n. A thousand pounds in weight, a half ton. Now Rare.

Thra'cian (thrā'shăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Thrace. See Gaz.

Thra'cian, n. A native or inhabitant of Thrace; also, the language of the ancient Thracians, an Indo-European language related to the Illyrian, supposed to be the parent of Albanian. See THRACO-ILLYRIAN, THRACO-PHRYGIAN.

thrack (thrăk), v. t. [Origin uncert.] To burden; to pack full. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

Thra'co–Il·lyr'i·an (thrā'kō·ĭ·lĭr'ĭ·ăn), adj. Designating, or pert. to, a subfamily of Indo-European languages comprising Thracian, Illyrian, and Albanian. Little is known of the ancient tongues. See THRACIAN, INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES. — Thra'co–Il·lyr'i·an, n.

Thra'co–Phryg'i·an (-frĭj'ĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to both Thrace and Phrygia; designating or pertaining to a subfamily of Indo-European languages including Phrygian and Armenian. See THRACIAN, INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES. — Thra'co–Phryg'i·an, n.

thrail (thrāl), n. Flail. Dial. Eng.

thrain (thrān), n. Refrain. Scot.

thrall (thrôl), n. [ME. thral, fr. AS. thræl, fr. ON. thræll (Sw. träl, Dan. træl); prob. akin to AS. thrægan to run, Goth. thragjan; cf. OHG. drejil, drigil, a servant.]

1. A slave; bondman; theow (which see). Hist. "Gurth, the born thrall of Cedric." Scott.

2. Extended senses: a A captive; one held for ransom. b One in moral or mental slavery or bondage; one bound as by habit; a slave. Both Archaic.

3. Slavery; bondage; thralldom; also, oppression; suffering. Archaic.

Syn. — See SERF.

thrall, v. t. To enslave; enthrall. Archaic.

thrall, adj. Enslaved; subjugated; subject. Archaic.

thrall, n. A stand for barrels, milk pans, etc. Dial. Eng.

thrall'born' (thrôl'bôrn'), adj. Born in slavery.

thrall'dom, thral'dom (thrôl'dŭm), n. [Cf. ON. thrældömr. See THRALL; -DOM.] The condition of a thrall; slavery; bondage; state of servitude.

thram (thrăm), v. i. To thrive. Scot.

thram'mle (thrăm''l), n. Rope to fasten a yoke to a stall. Scot.

thrang'i·ty (thrăng'gĭ·tĭ), n. [See THRONG.] Business; bustle. Scot.

thra'nite (thrā'nīt), n. [Gr. thranitēs, fr. thranos a bench.] See GALLEY, 2. — thra·nit'ic (thrā·nĭt'ĭk), adj.

thrash (thrăsh), v.; THRASHED (thrăsht); THRASH'ING. Cf. THRESH. [Dial. var. of THRESH.] Transitive: 1. To separate the grain of (wheat, etc.) from the husks and straw by beating; to thresh.

2. Hence: a = THRESH, v. t., 2. b To swing, beat, or strike in the manner of a rapidly moving flail; as, to thrash one's arms together; to thrash the water in swimming.

3. To beat soundly, as with a stick or whip; to strike; pound; flog; drub; as, he thrashed him well.

4. To defeat decisively or with severe losses; to vanquish; as, to thrash the visiting team. Colloq.

5. Naut. To sail (a ship) to windward in a lively sea.

——, Intransitive: 1. To thresh grain.

2. To deal blows or strokes in the manner of one using a flail or whip; as, to thrash at a hedge with one's cane.

3. To move or stir about violently; to toss about; as, to thrash in bed with a high fever.

4. Naut. To sail to windward in a fresh breeze and lively sea.

thrash, n. Act of thrashing; specif.: a Naut. Act of sailing to windward in a fresh breeze and a lively sea. b Swimming. A method of moving the legs employed in the crawl and the backstroke. See CRAWL, n., 2.

thrash (thrăsh), thresh (thrĕsh), n. A rush (plant). Scot.

thrash'er (thrăsh'ĕr), n. 1. One who thrashes.

2. A thresher; one who or that which threshes grain. Now Rare.

3. = THRESHER, 2.

thrash'er, n. [E. dial. thresher, fr. thresh (cf. AS. thræsce); akin to THRUSH bird.] Any of numerous long-tailed thrushlike birds of the American family Mimidae, esp. those of the genus Toxostoma. Thrashers are singers and mimics, being closely allied to the mockingbird. The familiar eastern species is the brown thrasher; well-known western forms are the sage, crissal, and California thrashers (see these terms). The curve-billed thrasher (T. curvirostre) is a common brush bird of western Texas.

Curve-billed Thrasher.

Thra'ko-Il·lyr'i·an, Thra'ko-Phryg'i·an. Vars. of THRACO-ILLYRIAN, THRACO-PHRYGIAN.

thrald. Thralled. Ref. Sp.

thral'dom. Var. of THRALLDOM.

thrall'–less, adj. See -LESS.

thrall'–like', adj. See -LIKE.

thra·neen', thraw·neen' (thrā·nēn'). Vars. of TRANEEN.

thrang (dial. thrăng). Var. of THRONG. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

thrap (thrăp), v. t. Naut. = FRAP, 2. Rare.

thrape. Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of THREAP.

thrap'ple (thrăp'l). Var. of THROPPLE. Scot., N. of Eng., & Ir.

thrapt. Thrapped. Ref. Sp.

Thra·se'as (thrā·sē'ăs). Bib.

thrash'el (thrăsh'l; thrĕsh'l). Dial. var. of 2d THRESHEL.

thrash'er·man, n. = THRESHERMAN.

thrash'ing, n. Act of one that thrashes; a whipping; a beating.

Thra'so (thrā'sō), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thrasōn, fr. thrasys bold, overbold.] A braggart soldier in Terence's Eunuch.

thra·son'ic (thrā·sŏn'ĭk), adj. Thrasonical. Now Rare.

thra·son'i·cal (thrā·sŏn'ĭ·kăl), adj. [See THRASO. Cf. L. Thrasonianus.] Of, pert. to, like, or characteristic of, Thraso; bragging; boastful. — thra·son'i·cal·ly, adv.

Caesar's thrasonical brag of "I came, saw, and overcame." Shak.

thrast (thrăst), v. t. & i. [AS. thrǣstan.] To press; constrain. Obs.

thrave (thrāv), n. [ME. thrave, threve, of Scand. origin; cf ON. threfi, Dan. trave.] Dial. a A measure generally containing twenty-four sheaves, as of grain. b (1) A bundle; a number; a quantity. (2) Crowd; throng. c Obs. A small bundle shaped like a sheaf.

thrave, v. t. To bind into sheaves or shocks. — thrav'er (thrāv'ĕr), n. Both Dial.

thrave (thrāv). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of throve, past tense of THRIVE.

thraw (thrô; thrä), n. [See THROE.] Chiefly Scot. a Throe; agony. b A twist, wrench, or sprain. c Ill fortune. d Ill-humor; anger.

thraw, v. i. To be in pain. Scot.

thraw, adj. = THRAWART. Chiefly Scot.

thra'wart (thrä'wĕrt; thrô'ĕrt), adj. [From froward, early form of FROWARD.] Scot. a Crooked; twisted. b Stubborn; perverse; peevish. c Reluctant; backward. d Unpropitious; adverse. — thra'wart·like', adj. Scot. — thra'wart·ness, n. Obs. Scot.

thrawn (thrôn; thrän), adj. [Dial. form of thrown.] a Scot. & N. of Eng. Past part. of THROW. b Chiefly Scot. Crooked; misshapen; perverse; unpleasant, as weather. — thrawn'ly, adv. — thrawn'ness, n. Both Scot.

Thrax (thrăks), n.; pl. THRACES (thrā'sēz). [L.] Rom. Antiq. A Thracian; hence, a gladiator armed like a Thracian.

thread (thrĕd), n. [ME. threed, thred, fr. AS. thrǣd; akin to D. draad, G. draht wire, thread, OHG. drāt, ON. thrāthr a thread, Sw. tråd, Dan. traad, and AS. thrāwan to twist. See THROW.] 1. A very thin continuous filament, esp. one made by spinning the fibers of cotton, flax, silk, etc., and by combining the strands so produced; a tenuous cord made of cotton, linen, or silk, yarns hard twisted and finished, and used chiefly in sewing; also, the yarn or a length of yarn used in weaving. See YARN, 1.

2. By metonymy, something woven from thread; a garment or the smallest conceivable part of a garment; — chiefly in special collocations; as, I haven't a thread fit to wear; not a dry thread after the storm; a dress worn to the last thread.

3. Any threadlike filament, as of metal or living tissue; a fiber, hair, etc.; as, a thread of gold or of a spider's web; also, a fine thin stream, ray, etc.; as, admitting only a thread of light.

4. Something suggestive of a thread, as in being spun out indefinitely or as being one element in a texture or pattern; as, the thread of life or of history; a speech having threads of humor, pathos, and satire.

5. Hence, in a discourse, a line of reasoning, a sequence of ideas or events, or a train of thought, which continues from beginning to end, and which serves to connect all parts and details; as, to lose the thread of one's story; to take up the thread of the argument.

6. In senses based on legends: a Rare. = THREAD OF LIFE. b Something so tenuous or weak as to offer no security; as, his life hangs on a thread. See DAMOCLES. c = CLEW, 2.

7. A fine slender line or marking, as a thin line of color in decoration, or a thin seam or vein, as of coal.

8. Composition; quality; fineness. Obs.

9. See MEASURE, Table.

10. Cookery. The stream of sirup when it threads.

11. Mach. = SCREW THREAD.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

thread cabinet	thread lubricator	thread protector thread counter	threadmaker	thread-shaped thread cutter	threadmaking	thread spinner thread-cutting, adj.	thread-marked	thread splicer thread drawer	thread-measuring, adj.	thread spooler thread dresser	thread-mercerizing, adj.	thread winder thread-leaved	thread-milling, adj.	thread-winding, adj.
thread-lettered

thread (thrĕd), v.; THREAD'ED; THREAD'ING. Transitive: 1. To pass a thread through the eye of; as, to thread a needle.

2. To pass or cause to pass through in the manner of a thread; to pierce or penetrate; also, to make (one's way), esp. carefully, through or between obstacles; as, ore that threads the rock; to thread a football through a mass of players; to thread one's way through narrow streets.

3. To connect by or as by passing a thread through; to string together; also, to form by such threading; as, to thread beads or a daisy chain.

4. To wind a thread on, as in ornamental glasswork.

5. To interweave or mix with threads of; to intersperse; as, hair threaded with white.

6. To cover with threads, or a network of threads; to screen; as, to thread plants from destructive birds. Brit.

7. Elec. To cause lines of force, magnetic flux, to form around (an electric conductor).

8. Mach. To form a thread or threads on or in; specif., to form an external thread on, as distinguished from tap.

9. Motion Pictures. To feed (a camera) with film; to feed film into (a camera).

——, Intransitive: 1. To thread or wind one's (or its) way.

2. Cookery. To spin a fine hair or thread when dropped from a fork; — of boiling sirup when tested at a certain point.

3. Elec. To form a closed loop enclosing a conductor which carries an electric current.

thread (thrĕd), adj. Pertaining to, made of, or resembling, thread or threads; as, thread stockings; thread coconut.

thread angle. Mach. The angle between the sides of a screw thread measured in an axial plane.

thread bar. A threaded bar, or rod.

thread'bare' (thrĕd'bâr'), adj. 1. Worn so that the thread is bare or visible; having the nap wholly or partly worn off; as, threadbare clothes; also, Now Rare, clad in threadbare clothing; shabby.

thought'en (dial. thôt'n). Past part. of THINK. Obs. exc. Dial.

thought'kin, n. Dim. of THOUGHT. See -KIN.

thought'let, n. See -LET. [Obs.] thought'some, adj. Thoughtful.

thoule. ✝ THOLE.

thou'se (thŏōs). Scot. & dial. Eng. contract. of thou shalt. [exc. Dial.] thow (thō). Var. of THAW. Obs.

thow. ✝ THO, THOLE, THOSE, THOU, THOUGH, TWO.

thow'el, thowl (thō'ĭl; thōl). Var. of THOLE.

thowle. ✝ THOLE.

thow'less (thou'lĕs). = THEWLESS. Scot. & N. of Eng.

thowt (dial. thôt). Var. of THOUGHT. Obs. exc. Dial.

Thra'ces, n. pl. of THRAX.

thrael (thrăl), n. [See THRALL.] ✝ THRALL.

thraep (Scot. thrāp). Obs. exc. Var. of THREAP. Obs. exc. Scot.

thrasher shark. = THRESHER SHARK. [WHALE.]

thrasher whale. = THRESHER thrasht. Thrashed. Ref. Sp.

Thrask'ite. ✝ TRASKITE.

thra'son·ism, n. Boastfulness. Obs.

thrast (thrăst). Past tense of THRUST. Obs. exc. Dial.

thratch, n. & v. i. Gasp, as in the death agony. Obs. Scot.

Thrau'pi·das (thrô'pĭ·dĕ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thraupis a kind of finch + -idae.] See TANAGER. thraw (thrô; thrä). Var. of THRALL. Obs. exc. Scot.

thraw (thrô; thrä). Var. of THROW. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

thraw'–crook', thraw'–cruk' (thrô'krŏŏk'; thrä'-). Vars. of THROW-CROOK.

thrawe. ✝ THROW, THROE.

thread'bare'ness, n. See -NESS.

2. As shabby, mean, or thin, as a threadbare garment; scanty; barren; as, a threadbare history. Now Rare.
3. Having lost its freshness or bloom; trite; hackneyed; without novelty or interest; as, a threadbare subject.

thread blight. A disease of cocoa, tea, citrus, and other woody plants in semitropical and tropical countries, caused by the fungus Corticium stevensii, which forms threadlike strands of mycelium over the surface of leaves and twigs.

thread board. Cotton Spinning. In a ring spinner, one of two or more hinged boards holding the wire eyes through which the yarn is drawn after twisting.

thread cell. Zool. A nematocyst.

thread count. Textiles. The count (sense 8) of threads or yarns.

thread drawing. The process of making drawn work. See DRAWN WORK a.

thread'ed (thrĕd'ĕd; -Id; 119), adj. Furnished with a thread or threads.

-thread'ed. A combining form of threaded, as in: double-threaded, single-threaded, small-threaded.

thread eel. A snipe eel.

thread'en (thrĕd''n), adj. Made of thread. Archaic & Dial.

thread'er (thrĕd'ĕr) n. A worker or machine that threads textiles, films, etc., or cuts screw threads; as, a pipe threader.

thread'er-up', n. One who strings or ties up articles.

thread'fin' (thrĕd'fĭn'), n. Any fish of the family Polynemidae.

thread'fish' (-fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. a The cutlass fish. b The cobblerfish. c = THREADFIN.

thread'flow'er (thrĕd'flou'ĕr), n. a Any plant of the genus Nematanthus (family Gesneriaceae); — from the long slender peduncles of the crimson flowers. b Any plant of the genus Poinciana; — from the exserted stamens.

thread'foot' (-fo̅o̅t'), n. Riverweed.

thread fungus. Any fungus causing dermatomycosis.

thread gauge. Mach. A gauge for measuring screw threads or for checking or determining the pitch, thread angle, diameter, and other parts of the thread. One type, the indicating thread gauge, has movable contact points to indicate variations in dimensions of a screw thread by means of a motion-magnifying system.

thread generator. Mach. A machine in which screw threads, as those of a worm, are produced by a cutter in the form of a helical pinion.

thread herring. a The gizzard shad. b A species of herring (Opisthonema oglinum) of the West Indies and east coast of the United States, having the last ray of the dorsal fin long and slender.

thread'ing lathe (thrĕd'ĭng). Mach. See 2d LATHE, 1. threading machine. A threader.

threading tool. Mach. A tool for cutting screw threads. Cf. 2d CHASER, 2; automatic tapping chuck, under 6th CHUCK, 5; 3d TAP, 10; 3d DIE, 6 c.

thread lace. Lace made of linen thread; also, handmade lace.

threa'dle (thrĕd''l), v. t. To thread. Chiefly Dial. Eng.

thread'-leg'ged bug (thrĕd'lĕg'ĕd; -Id; -lĕgd'; 119). A spider bug.

thread mark. In paper currency, a thin thread incorporated in the paper as a protection against counterfeiting.

thread miller. Mach. A form of milling machine on which screw threads are milled with a formed cutter or a hob.

thread moss. Any moss of the genus Bryum or one resembling mosses of this genus.

thread'-nee'dle, n. A kind of children's game in which the participants, forming a line with joined hands, thread their way through the line; also, a similar country dance figure; — called also thread'-the-nee'dle.

thread'-nee'dle, v. i. To play or move as if playing threadneedle; also, to execute the thread-needle figure.

Thread'nee'dle Street (thrĕd'nē'd'l). A commercial street in the City of London bordering upon the Bank of England.

thread of a stream. = FILUM AQUAE.

thread of life. The course of individual existence, esp. as fabled in ancient times to be spun and cut by the Fates.

thread paper. A strip of folded paper serving to hold skeins of thread in its divisions; hence, something as long and narrow as a thread paper.

thread roller. Mach. A roller designed to make a thread or threads, as on a screw.

thread tangle. The sea lace.

thread'-waist'ed wasp. Any of numerous wasps (family Sphecidae); — so called on account of the very slender abdominal petiole.

thread wastes. See WOOL WASTE.

thread'way' (thrĕd'wā'), n. A way, as in a nut, for a thread.

thread'weed' (-wēd'), n. A red alga of the genus Nemalion.

thread'worm' (-wûrm'), n. Any long, slender nematode, esp. the pinworm, or a species of Filaria or an allied genus.

thread'-worn', adj. Threadbare; worn in the thread, as a screw.

thread'y (thrĕd'ĭ), adj. Like a thread; slender; filamentous; very thin or slight, as in tone; as, thready worms or leaves; a thready cry; also, containing, consisting of, or covered with, thread; as, thready roots or mucus.

thready pulse. Med. A scarcely perceptible rapid pulse, feeling like a small string, occurring in shock, comatose states, and shortly before death.

threap, threep (thrēp), v.; THREAPED, THREEPED (thrēpt); THREAP'ING, THREEP'ING. [AS. thrēapian to rebuke.] Now Scot. & Dial. Eng. Transitive: 1. To scold; chide; also, to beat; thrash.
2. To assert to be; to affirm or maintain persistently.
3. To urge the acceptance of; to press.
—, Intrans.: 1. To dispute; quarrel; wrangle; haggle.
2. To complain; to chide or scold; also, to insist.

threap down. To reduce to silence by threaping.

threap, threep, n. Now Dial. 1. Act of one who threaps; an accusation.
2. A tradition; legend; report.

threap'er (thrēp'ĕr), n. One who threaps. Now Dial.

threat (thrĕt), n. [ME. threat, fr. AS. thrēat crowd, oppression; akin to AS. thrēotan to vex, G. verdriessen, OHG. irdrioean, ON. thrjōta to fail, want, lack, Goth. usthriutan to vex, to trouble, OSlav. truditi, L. trudere to push. Cf. ABSTRUSE, EXTRUDE, OBTRUDE, THREATEN, THRUST.] 1. Crowd; press; throng; troop. Obs.
2. Compulsion through oppression or torture; peril; misery. Obs.
3. The expression of an intention to inflict evil or injury on another; the declaration or indication of an evil, loss, or pain, to come; menace; threatening; denunciation; sometimes, Law, specif., an expression of an intention to inflict loss or harm on another by illegal means, esp. when effecting coercion or duress of the person threatened.

There is no terror, Cassius, in your threats. Shak.

threat (thrĕt), v. [AS. thrēatian. See THREAT, n.] Transitive: 1. To press; urge; also, to oppress; esp., to compel; maltreat; vex; trouble; reprove; chide. Obs.
2. To threaten; to menace. Archaic & Dial.
—, Intransitive: To threaten. Archaic & Dial.

threat'en (thrĕt''n), v. t.; THREAT'ENED (-nd); THREAT'EN-ING (-n-ĭng). [AS. thrēatnian. See THREAT, n.] 1. To utter threats against; to promise punishment, reprisal, or the like, to; as, to threaten trespassers with arrest.
2. To charge under pain of punishment; to warn. Archaic.

Let us straitly threaten them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name. Acts iv. 17.

3. To promise as a threat; to hold out by way of menace or warning; as, to threaten punishment to all trespassers.
4. To give signs of the approach of (something evil or unpleasant); to indicate as impending; to portend; as, the sky threatens a storm; also, to hang over as a threat; to menace; as, famine threatens the city.
5. Loosely, to announce as intended or possible; as, to threaten to buy a car.
—, Intransitive: 1. To utter or use threat or menaces.
2. To have a menacing appearance; to portend evil.

Though the seas threaten, they are merciful. Shak.

Syn. — THREATEN, MENACE. THREATEN (the Saxon word) is rather more direct and straightforward in its meaning than MENACE (the Latin), which often suggests a threatening or hostile aspect; as, "The magistrates . . . solicited, commanded, threatened, urged" (Milton); "Is it not experience which renders a dog apprehensive of pain, when you menace him?" (Locke); he did not actually threaten me, but his tone was menacing. Cf. IMMINENT.

threat'en·er (thrĕt''n-ĕr), n. One who threatens.

threat'en·ing, adj. That threatens; menacing. — threat'en·ing·ly, adv.

three (thrē), adj. [ME. thre, threo, thri, fr. AS. thrī, thrīe, masc., thrēo, fem. and neut.; akin to OFris. thre, OS. thria, threa, D. drie, G. drei, OHG. drī, ON. thrīr, Dan. & Sw. tre, Goth. threis, Lith. trys, Ir., Gael. & W. tri, Russ. tri, L. tres, Gr. treis, Skr. tri. Cf. DRILL fabric, TERN, adj., TESTIFY, THIRD, THIRTEEN, THIRTY, TIERCE, TRAMMEL, TREY, TRI-, TRIAD, TRINITY, TRIO, TRIPOD.] 1. One more than two; two and one; — often with ellipsis of the noun; as, a child of three (years).
2. Third. Obs.
3. Indefinitely, a limited number; a very few; — usually in the phrases two or three, three or four; as, two or three spoke up and agreed with me.
4. Bearing, or distinguished by, the number three; as, room three.

☞ Three is combined with a noun, often with the suffix -ed added to the combination, to form compound adjectives, such compounds being written usually with a hyphen, as in:

three-accent	three-floored	three-ranked three-acre	three-flowered	three-reel three-act	three-forked	three-ribbed three-aisled	three-formed	three-ring three-angled	three-fruited	three-roll three-arched	three-grained	three-room three-arm	three-groined	three-roomed three-armed	three-groove	three-row three-awned	three-grooved	three-sail three-ball	three-guines	three-salt three-banded	three-hand	three-scene three-bar	three-headed	three-second three-bearded	three-hinged	three-seeded three-blade	three-horned	three-shanked three-bladed	three-horse	three-shaped three-bodied	three-hour	three-shilling three-bolted	three-inch	three-sided three-bottle	three-index	three-sidedness three-bottom	three-iron	three-soled three-bout	three-jointed	three-space three-branch	three-layered	three-span three-branched	three-leaf	three-speed three-bushel	three-letter	three-spined
three-capsuled	three-lettered	three-spored three-celled	three-life	three-star three-charge	three-light	three-storied three-chimney	three-lined	three-story three-circle	three-lipped	three-strand three-circuit	three-lobed	three-stranded three-class	three-man	three-stringed three-clause	three-minute	three-striped three-cleft	three-month	three-styled three-color	three-monthly	three-syllable three-colored	three-mouthed	three-syllabled three-component	three-move	three-tailed three-coned	three-name	three-thorned
three-corded	three-necked	three-thread three-crank	three-nerved	three-throw three-crowned	three-ounce	three-tie three-cup	three-ovuled	three-tier three-cylinder	three-part	three-tiered three-day	three-parted	three-time three-dayed	three-pass	three-tined three-decked	three-peaked	three-ton three-deep	three-petaled	three-tongued three-dip	three-phased	three-toothed three-dropped	three-pint	three-torque three-eared	three-plait	three-tripod three-edged	three-point	three-valved three-effect	three-pointed	three-volume three-electrode	three-position	three-week three-eyed	three-pound	three-weekly three-faced	three-pounder	three-wheel three-fathom	three-pronged	three-wheeled three-fibered	three-quality	three-winged three-figure	three-quart	three-wormed three-fingered	three-rail	three-year three (thrē), n. 1. The number greater by a unit than two; also, a group of three persons, units, or objects.

2. A symbol representing three units, as 3, III, or iii.
3. A person or object distinguished by the number three, usually the third in a series, as a playing card, die, or domino, with three spots or pips, a contestant bearing the number three in a game or race, etc.
4. pl. A set of three cards of one denomination, as in poker, cribbage, pinochle, piquet, etc.
5. Three o'clock; — often combined with a number for the minutes past the hour; as, three-seven.
6. pl. Finance. Securities bearing three per cent interest per annum; — often called three per cents. Colloq.

three'-aged' (thrē'ājd'), adj. Living in the time of three generations. Rare.

three'-arm', or three'-armed', pro·trac'tor. Surv. & Navig. A station pointer; — so called from its three arms.

three'-bag'ger (-băg'ĕr), n. Baseball. A three-base hit.

three'-ball' match. Golf. A match in which each of three players has a separate match with each of the other two.

three balls. = GOLDEN BALLS.

three'-band'ed ar'ma·dil'lo. An armadillo, esp. Tolypeutes tricinctus, with a shell having three bands. See ARMADILLO, Illust.

three'-bar' curve. Math. A sextic curve having as triple points the circular points at infinity and traced by a point, P, which either forms part of or is rigidly attached to the middle bar of a system of three rigid bars or rods, the far ends of the end bars of which are fixed. If the point P is on the middle bar, the curve traced is called a Watt's curve.

three'-base' hit. Baseball. A hit enabling the batter to reach third base without the aid of an error.

three'-beard'ed rock'ling. A small red rockling (Gaidropsarus ensis) of the North Atlantic, with three barbels at the tip of the snout.

three'-bid', n. At bridge, an offer to win nine tricks, three over the book.

three birds. a A toadflax (Linaria triornithophora) of Spain, cultivated for ornament. b = NODDING CAP.

three B's. Music. The three great composers Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms.

three'-card', adj. Using, or played with, three cards.

three-card lant. Three-card loo. Local, Eng.

three-card loo. The game of loo played with three cards. See LOO, n., 1.

three-card monte (mŏn'tē). A game of Mexican origin in which three cards, previously shown and named, are dexterously thrown on the table by a gambler, and the victim is induced to bet that he can pick out one previously designated.

three'-cen'tered, or -cen'tred, arch. An arch the intrados curve of which is described from three centers. See ARCH, Illust. (9).

Three Chapters, the. Three things condemned by the Emperor Justinian in an edict (also called by this name) issued in 543, attempting to reconcile the Monophysites to the church. They were: (1) Theodore of Mopsuestia and his writings, (2) the writings of Theodoret of Cyrrhus in defense of Nestorius, and (3) the letter which Ibas of Edessa is said to have written to the Persian Maris.

three'-cir'cuit switch. A three-way switch. See SWITCH, n., 5.

three'-class' sys'tem. A system of franchise by which the electorate was divided into three classes according to the amount of taxes paid, allowing each class to elect one third of the representatives to the legislature. It originated in Prussia (1850) and was extended to city government, but was abolished (1919) by the Constitution of the Republic.

three'-coat', adj. Arch. Having, or consisting of, three coats; — commonly referring to plastering which consists of pricking up, floating, and a finishing, coat (called in the United States, a scratch coat, brown coat, and finishing coat).

three'-cocked' (66), adj. Three-cornered, as a hat. — n. A three-cornered hat.

three'-col'or pho·tog'ra·phy. Any process of color photography wherein three primary colors are used to reproduce the color of the subject photographed. In the additive process, these are blue-violet, green, and red; in the subtractive process, magenta, yellow, blue-green. See COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY.

three-color process. = THREE-COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY.

three-color theory. A theory of color vision which assumes three psychologically primary colors. See Young-Helmholz theory under COLOR, n., 2.

three'-cor'ner (66), adj. Three-cornered.

three'-cor'nered (66), adj. 1. Having three corners, or angles; as, a three-cornered hat (= COCKED HAT, 1).
2. Involving a group or set of three; as, the race ended in a three-cornered tie.
— three'-cor'nered·ness, n.

three-cornered constituency. Eng. Hist. A constituency in which, with three members to be returned at one election, a voter could vote for only two candidates. Several were created in 1867 for purposes of minority representation, but were not found practicable and were abolished in 1885.

three'-course' (66), adj. Having or involving three courses; specif., of land cultivation, three-field. See THREE-FIELD, adj.

three'-cyl'in·der lo'co·mo'tive. See LOCOMOTIVE.

three'-day' fe'ver. Med. Any fever or febrile state lasting three days; specif.: a Sand-fly fever. b Dengue.

three'-deck', adj. Having three decks; three-decked.

three'-deck'er (66), n. 1. Naut. a A vessel of war carrying guns on three decks, as formerly a ship of the line. b A modern cargo steamer having three full decks or two decks and hold beams on which a deck might be laid.
2. Any structure having three floors, stories, or tiers; — often used attributively; as, a three-decker tenement.
3. The clerk's desk, reading desk, and pulpit proper, arranged one above the other on three separate levels, as formerly in some English churches. Colloq.
4. Loosely, any object of considerable size; esp., a three-volume novel; hence, any unusually long novel. Colloq.

three-deck vessel. See DECK, n., 2.

three'-di·men'sion·al, adj. Of, or involving, three dimensions; as, three-dimensional space.

three'-ech'o, n. At bridge, a play of the intermediate card when holding three trumps.

three estates. See ESTATE, 4.

three farthings. An Elizabethan silver coin worth ¾ of an English penny. — three'-far'thing, adj.

three'-field', adj. a Of, pert. to, or involving, three fields. b Eng. Hist. Designating, or pert. to, a system of land cultivation (also called three-course system) formerly common in England and in the Russian mir (see VILLAGE COMMUNITY). Under this the common land is divided into three parts or fields (sometimes called trinity fields), of which one or two in rotation lie fallow in each year, the rest being cultivated. A system by which the common land was divided into two fields and similarly cultivated is called the two-field, or two-course, system.

Nothing . . . could be rasher than the assumption that the three-course system of tillage was common in the England of the 7th centhread'bar'i·ty, n. = THREADBARENESS. Rare. thread'dle. Var. of THREADLE. thread'i·ness (thrĕd'ĭ-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. See -NESS. thread'less, adj. See -LESS. thread'let, n. Dim. of THREAD. thread'like', adj. See -LIKE.

---

thread'-the-nee'dle, n. = THREAD-NEEDLE, n. threap'en, v. t. & i. [See THREAP, v. t.] To threaten; rebuke; to assert positively. Obs. threat'en·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. threat'ful, adj. See -FUL. — threat'ful·ly, adv.
threat'less, adj. See -LESS.
threat'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. threave (thrĕv). Var. of THRAVE. thred. ✝ THRID. thred. Thread. Ref. Sp.
three'-charge' rate. See 3d RATE, 7. threed (thrēd). Var. of THREAD.
Obs. exc. Dial.
three'-di·men'sion·al·ness, n. See -NESS.
three'-e·lec'trode e·lec'tron tube. = ELECTRON TUBE.

N O P Q R S T

tury. We have little evidence that it was practiced in the 11th, perhaps some evidence that it was not unknown in the 9th. But "the two-course system" can be traced as far, and seems to have been as common, if not commoner, in the 13th century. F. W. Maitland.

three'fold' (thrē'fōld'), adj. [AS. thrȳfeald.] Consisting of three parts; thrice repeated; three times as much or as many; triple: as, threefold justice; a threefold cord.

three'fold' (66), adv. Thrice: triply.

three'fold' (-fōld'), n. The buck bean (Menyanthes trifoliata).

three'fold'ed (-fōl'dĕd; -dĭd; 66; 119), adj. Made of three parts. — three'fold'ed·ness, n.

threefold purchase or tackle. A tackle of two treble blocks.

three'-foot' (-fo͝ot'), adj. Also three'-foot'ed (66). 1. Having a length of three feet.
2. Having three feet.

three fourths. Three of the four quarters into which something is or may be divided; also, broadly, the larger part; most (of a designated thing, amount, etc.). — three'-fourths', adj. See FOURTH, n., Note.

three'-fourths' val'ue clause. Insurance. A policy provision limiting the insurer's liability to an amount not greater than three fourths of the cash value of the insured property (but not exceeding the face of the policy), — often required to cause the insured to safeguard the property.

three F's, the. Econ. Fixity of tenure, fair rent, and freedom of sale, as advocated by some writers, tenants, etc., in Great Britain and Ireland. See LAND LEAGUE; TENANT RIGHT.

three'-half'pence' (-hā'pĕns; -häf'pĕns; cf. HALFPENNY), n. a The sum of three halfpence (about 3 cents U. S.); one penny halfpenny. b A small English silver coin of Queen Elizabeth worth 1½ pence (3 cents U. S. money); also, a silver coin struck under William IV and Queen Victoria for the colonies. — three'-half'pen·ny (-hā'pĕn·ĭ; -häp'nĭ), adj. — three'-half'pen·ny·worth', n.

three'-hand'ed (66), adj. 1. Having three hands.
2. Games. Performed or played by three hands or players.

three'-high', adj. Designating, or pertaining to, a train of three rolls in a rolling mill, set one above another.

three'-hooped' (-ho͝opt'; 66), adj. Having three hoops; specif., Obs., designating a drinking vessel bound with three hoops and holding about a quart.

Three Hours' Agony or Service. A religious service for Good Friday, usually held between 12 M. and 3 P. M., commemorating the three hours' suffering of Christ on the cross.

three'-in-hand', adj. Consisting of, or made to be drawn or worn by, three horses driven by one person. — three'-in-hand', n.

Three in One. The Trinity.

Three Kingdoms. [Trans. of Chin. (Pek.) san[1] three + kuo[2] kingdom(s).] Chinese Hist. The three rival states, Shu, Wei, and Wu, into which the empire was split at the fall of the Han dynasty. Their period (221–265 A.D.) is a favorite setting of stories and plays. The San Kuo Chih (Annals of the Three Kingdoms) is a popular Chinese historical novel.

Three Kings of Cologne. In medieval legend, the three magi who came to Bethlehem to present gifts to the infant Jesus, and whose bodies are said to have been brought by the Empress Helena to Constantinople, and thence transferred to Milan, and afterwards to Cologne. Their names were Gaspar, Melchior, and Balthasar.

three'-leaved' adj. Also three'-leafed'. Having three leaves, or, incorrectly, three leaflets; — used attributively; as, three-leaved arum, cinquefoil, grass, hop tree, ivy, etc.

three-leaved arum. Jack-in-the-pulpit.

three-leaved cinquefoil. = BARREN STRAWBERRY c.

three-leaved hop tree. The common hop tree.

three-leaved Indian turnip. Jack-in-the-pulpit.

three-leaved ivy. The poison ivy.

three-leaved liverwort. The common hepatica (Hepatica triloba).

three-leaved maple. The box elder.

three-leaved nightshade. The trillium.

three-leaved rosinweed. The whorled rosinweed.

three-leaved stonecrop. The wild stonecrop.

three'-leg'ged (-lĕg'ĕd; -lĭd; -lĕgd'; 66; 119), adj. Having three legs; specif., designating a race between contestants run in pairs having the proximate legs bound together, the pairs being thus conceived of as running on three legs.

three-legged escapement. See ESCAPEMENT, 3.

three'-line', adj. Composed of three lines; specif., Print., having the depth of three lines of text type; as, a three-line initial; also, designating three-line pica, or 36-point type.

three'-lined' po·ta'to bee'tle. A small yellow leaf beetle (Lema trilineata) with three black lines on each elytron. The larva feeds on the potato plant.

three-line octave. Music. See 4th PITCH, 19, Illust.

three'ling (thrē'lĭng), n. [Cf. TRILLING.] Cryst. A trilling.

three L's, the. Naut. Lead, latitude (or log), and lookout, attention to which is essential to safe navigation.

three'-mast'ed (66), adj. Also three'-mast'. Having three masts, as a schooner.

three'-mast'er (66), n. A vessel having three masts.

three'-mile', adj. Of or pertaining to three miles; as, the three-mile limit, or the limit of the marine belt (the three-mile belt or zone) of three miles included in territorial waters (which see) of a state.

three'-mov'er, n. Chess. A problem requiring three moves for its solution.

Three Musketeers, The, or (French) Les Trois' Mous'que·taires' (lā trwä' mōōs'kĕ·târ'). A historical romance (1844) by Dumas père. The three musketeers are three close friends, Aramis (the Chevalier d'Herblay), educated to take holy orders, the mildest but keenest of the trio; Athos (Comte de la Fère), a typical French aristocrat of the pre-Revolution period; and Porthos (M. du Vallon), the embodiment of physical strength and good-fellowship. See also ARTAGNAN D'.

three'ness (thrē'nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. 1. The condition or quality of being three.
2. [cap.] The Trinity. Obs.

three of a kind. See PAIR ROYAL.

three'-on-a-side', n. At faro, a bet that cards will come three times one way, win or lose.

three'-out', n. A third part of two portions, as of two drinks served to three persons. Colloq., Eng.

three'-part' flask. See 1st FLASK, 4.

three-part form. See SONG FORM.

three-part time. Music. See TIME, n., 22.

three'pence (thrĕp'ĕns; thrŭp'-; thrōōp'-), n. The sum of three pence (about 6 cents U. S.); also, a silver coin of this value. See COIN, Table.

three'pen·ny (thrĕp'ĕn·ĭ; see THREEPENCE), adj. Costing or worth three pence; hence, worth but little; poor; mean.

threepenny bit, threepenny piece. A threepence.

three per cents. Finance. See THREE, n., 6. Colloq.

three'-phase' (thrē'fāz'), adj. Having three phases; specif., Elec., pertaining to a combination of three circuits energized by alternating electromotive forces that differ in phase by one third of a cycle, or by 120 degrees. See PHASE, n., 6. — three'-phas'er (-fāz'ĕr), n.

three'-piece' (66), adj. Having, or made of, three pieces; specif., designating a costume made of three separate parts, as a woman's coat, skirt, and jacket.

three-piece bow (bō). See 3d BOW 2.

three'-pile' (66), adj. Three-piled; — said esp. of velvet. — n. A three-piled velvet.

three'-piled' (66), adj. 1. Having a pile of treble thickness; hence, best; most costly; hence, extravagant. Shak.
2. Accustomed to wearing three-pile; hence, of high rank, or wealth. "Three-piled people." Beau. & Fl.

three'-pli'er (-plī'ĕr), n. A three-ply rivet.

three'-ply' (66), adj. Consisting of three distinct parts, as of three webs interwoven, or of three veneers glued together with opposing grains; threefold; also, passing through three thicknesses; as, a three-ply rivet.

three'-point' land'ing. Aviation. A special mode of landing an airplane in which the two wheels of the landing gear and the tail skid touch the ground simultaneously.

three-point perspective. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2.

three-point problem. Navig. & Surv. The problem of locating the point of observation from the observed angles subtended by three known sides of a triangle, either by mathematical calculation or by plotting with a station pointer. See REVOLVER, n., 2.

three-point switch. Elec. A three-way switch. See SWITCH, n., 5.

three'-pound' piece. An English gold coin, issued by Charles I during the Civil War.

three professions, the. See PROFESSION, 4 a.

three'-quar'ter (66), three'-quar'ters, adj. Denoting three fourths of a whole; specif., Paint., designating a portrait measuring 30 by 25 inches, or one showing the figure down to the hips only.

three'-quar'ter, n. a Short for three-quarter length (portrait), three-quarter face. b Rugby Football. Also three-quarter back. A player whose regular position is between the halfback and the fullback.

three-quarter binding. A bookbinding in which the material (orig. leather) of the back and, sometimes, corners is different from that of the sides, the material of the back extending upon the boards for one third of their width.

three'-quar'ter-bred', adj. Having three-fourths pure blood; — used esp. of race horses and stock.

three'-quar'ter-float'ing ax'le. See AXLE, 1.

three'-quar'ters nel'son. See HALF NELSON.

three-quarter tone. A tone intermediate between the half tones and the darkest tones of an engraving, etc.

three-quarter vamp. See 1st VAMP, 2.

three'-ridge', n. A fresh-water clam (Amblema costata, syn. Quadrula plicata) of the Mississippi drainage system;—so called from the three prominent ridges on the shell.

three'-ringed' (66), adj. Having three rings; as, a three-ringed circus; hence, containing too much to be comprehended quickly and easily.

three'-rowed' (66), adj. Having three rows; as, three-rowed barley.

three R's, the. A jocose expression for reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic, taken as the fundamentals of education.

three'score' (-skōr'; 66; 181), adj. Thrice twenty; sixty.

three'-seed'ed mer'cu·ry. Any weedy herb of the genus Acalypha, esp. A. virginica of eastern North America.

three sheets in the wind. See under 5th SHEET, n.

Three Sisters, the. Myth. The three Fates. See FATE, n., 5.

three'some (thrē'sŭm), adj. [three + 2d -some.] Performed, or engaged in, by three persons; as, a threesome dance or match. — n. Something in which three persons participate; specif., Golf, a match in which three persons participate, one playing his ball against the ball of the other two, the latter playing each stroke alternately.

Three Sorrows of Storytelling. [Ir. Trī Thruaighe na Scēalaigheachta.] The collective title of three old Irish tales frequently grouped together. They are: Fate of the Children of Ler, Fate of the Children of Tuirenn, and Fate of the Children of Usnech, of which the first and second are pure romance and the third is founded on history. Cf. LER; USNECH.

three'-spined' stick'le·back'. See STICKLEBACK.

three'-spot', n. Something having, or distinguished by, three spots, as a playing card, die, domino, etc., with three pips. — three'-spot', adj.

three-spot gourami. A small gourami (Trichogaster trichopterus) of southeastern Asia, introduced into other countries as an aquarium fish.

three'-spread', n., or three'-way' spread (sprĕd). Math. A three-space or three-dimensional extent; ordinary space.

three'-square' (66), adj. 1. Having an equilateral triangular cross section; — said esp. of a kind of file.
2. Cross; irritable. Dial. Eng.
3. Threefold.

three'-square', n. The chairmaker's rush; — so called from its prominently triangular stems.

three-square file. See 4th FILE, 1.

three'-step', n. A dance characterized esp. by three steps in each movement.

three'-strip'er. Nav. See STRIPER.

three'-suit'ed, adj. Probably, having but three suits; hence, poor. Shak.

three'-syl'la·ble law. Gram. A law, as in Latin, limiting the primary accent to one of the last three syllables of a word.

three'-tailed' por'gy. See PORGY.

Three Tai'lors of Too'ley Street (tōō'lĭ). Three tailors who, according to George Canning, began a petition to Parliament with the words: "We, the People of England"; hence, commonly, any small body of men unwarrantedly assuming to represent many.

three thirds or threads. A drink composed of three malt liquors mixed. Cf. ENTIRE, n., 2. Obs.

three'-throw', adj. Having three throws; as: a = THREE-WAY. b Mach. Noting three cranks on the same shaft.

three'-tie' joint. Railroads. A long spliced joint for rails in which the splice extends over three ties. Camp.

three times three. Three cheers thrice repeated.

three'-toed' (66), adj. Having three toes or claws; also Scot., having three prongs.

three-toed sloth. See 1st SLOTH, 4.

three-toed woodpecker. Any of several boreal woodpeckers of the genus Picoides, in which the inner digit is wanting or vestigial. P. arcticus (the arctic three-toed woodpecker) and subspecies of P. tridactylus (the common Eurasian form) occur in North America.

three'-toes', n. Also three-toed plover. The golden plover.

three tongues, the. See TONGUE, n., 6 c.

three'-toothed' cinque'foil. = CRYSTAL TEA a. three trees. The gallows, as being formed by two uprights and a crosspiece. Obs.

three unities, the. In literary composition and criticism, the unities of place, time, and action. See UNITY, 6.

three'-way', adj. Pertaining to or connected with three ways; serving to connect three ways or passages, as channels, pipes, etc.; as, a three-way cock, plug, etc.

three'-wayed', adj. Having three ways or channels.

three-way spread. See THREE-SPREAD.

three-way switch. See SWITCH, n., 5.

three'-wire' gen'er·a'tor. Elec. A direct-current generator having both slip rings and a commutator and used for supplying current to a direct-current three-wire system. The neutral wire of the system is connected to the center point of a high-reactance winding that is connected across the slip rings, while the two main conductors of the system are connected to the commutator brushes. Cf. THREE-WIRE system.

three-wire system. Elec. An electric system using three wires; a constant potential system of distribution in which lamps or other receiving devices are connected between either one of two main conductors and a third wire or "neutral." Motors are usually connected across the main conductors.

three'-woods', adj. Having, or made from, three woods, or kinds of wood.

three-woods bow (bō). See 3d BOW, 2.

three'-year-old', adj. Being three years old; as, a three year-old child, controversy. — n. A three-year-old person, animal, etc.; esp., a three-year-old race horse; as, a race for three-year-olds.

threm'ma·tol'o·gy (thrĕm'ä·tŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. thremma, -atos, nursling + -logy.] Biol. The science of breeding animals and plants under domestication.

threne (thrēn), n. [LD. threnus, fr. Gr. thrēnos. See DRONE to hum.] Lamentation; threnody; dirge. Obs.
The threnes . . . of the prophet Jeremiah. Jer. Taylor.

thre·net'ic (thrē·nĕt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. thrēnētikos. See THRENE.] Pertaining to, or of the nature of, a threne; mournful.

thre·net'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Threnetic. "Threnetical discourses." Carlyle.

thre'node (thrē'nōd; thrĕn'ōd), n. [See THRENODY.] A threnody. — thre·no'di·al (thrē·nō'dĭ·ăl), thre·no'di·an (-ăn), thre·nod'ic (-nŏd'ĭk), thre·nod'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. — thren'o·dist (thrĕn'ō·dĭst), n.

thren'o·dy (thrĕn'ō·dĭ), n.; pl. -DIES (-dĭz). [Gr. thrēnōidia, fr. thrēnos a dirge + ōidē a song. See THRENE; ODE.] A song of lamentation; a dirge or funeral song. — v. t. To lament in a dirge.

thre'nos (thrē'nŏs), n. [Gr. thrēnos.] A song of lamentation; esp., a lyrical lament over a victim or victims of the catastrophe in a tragedy.

thre'ose (thrē'ōs), n. Chem. An artificial sugar, $C_4H_8O_4$, a stereoisomer of erythrose.

threp·sol'o·gy (thrĕp·sŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. threpsis nourishment + -logy.] Med. The science of nutrition.

threp'tic (thrĕp'tĭk), adj. [Gr. threptikos feeding, rearing.] Zool. Of or pertaining to the feeding or rearing of offspring, esp. among social insects, as ants.

thresh (thrĕsh), v.; THRESHED (thrĕsht); THRESH'ING. Cf THRASH. [ME. threschen, fr. AS. threscan, therscan; akin to D. dorschen, G. dreschen, OHG. dreskan, ON. threskja, Sw. tröska, Dan. tærske, Goth. thriskan, and perh. Lith. trašketi to crackle, break, Russ. tresk a crackling, rattling; cf. L. terere to thresh, E. THROW. Cf. THRESHOLD.] Transitive: 1. To beat out grain from (wheat stalks, etc.) by treading, rubbing, striking with a flail, or, by a threshing machine; to beat off, as the kernels of grain.
2. To go over again and again in the manner of one threshing grain; to keep telling, singing, arguing, or the like, as one story, song, or question; — often with over; specif., with out, to discuss or argue until the truth or a settlement is reached; as, we have threshed out the matter.
3. To thrash, or beat; to flog. Now Rare.
—, Intransitive: 1. To thresh grain; to operate a flail or threshing machine.
2. To admit of being threshed; — of grain.
3. To thrash; esp., to toss about.

thresh, n. Act of threshing; esp., act of threshing grain.

thresh (thrĕsh). Var. of THRASH, a rush. Scot.

thresh'el (thrĕsh'l), n. Also thresh'al. Threshold. Dial.

thresh'el, thrash'el (-ĕl), n. [AS. therscel. See THRESH.] A flail. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

thresh'er (thrĕsh'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which threshes; a threshing machine, or a person tending or operating such a machine.
2. Also thresher, or thrasher, shark. A large shark (Alopias vulpinus) of the American and European coasts, remarkable for its great tail, with which it is said to thresh the water to round up the fish on which it feeds; — called also fox shark.

Thresher Shark.

thresh'er·man (thrĕsh'ĕr·măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). Also thrash'er·man (thrăsh'ĕr-). One who makes a business of custom threshing.

thresh'ing floor. A floor or ground space for threshing or treading out grain, as in the Orient.

threshing machine. A machine for separating grain from straw.

thresh'ing·time' (thrĕsh'ĭng·tīm'), n. The time or season for threshing. See -TIME.

thresh'old (thrĕsh'ōld; -hōld), n. [ME. threswold, threshwold, AS. therscwold, therscold; akin to ON. threskjöldr, Sw. tröskel, Dan. tærskel, and AS. threscan to thresh, orig., to tread. See THRESH.] 1. The plank, stone, or piece of timber which lies under a door, esp. of a dwelling house, church temple, or the like; the doorsill; hence, entrance; gate; door.
2. Hence, the place or point of entering or beginning; entrance; outset; as, the threshold of life or of an enterprise.

---

three'fold'ly, (thrē'fōld'lĭ), adv. of THREEFOLD. three'fold'ness, n. See -NESS.

three'-min'ute glass. See HOUR-GLASS. threep. Var. of THREAP.

three'pen·ny·worth', n. See -WORTH. [ALTERNATOR. three'-phase' al'ter·na'tor. See threip (thrēp). Var. of THREAP.

Obs. exc. Scot.
threp (thrĕp), threpe (thrēp).

Dial. vars. of THREAP.
thresh. † THRUSH.
thresher, or thrasher, whale. A killer. See KILLER, 2. thresh'fold. Obs. var. of THRESHOLD.

---

3. Physiol. & Psychol. The point at which a physiological or psychological effect begins to be produced, as that degree of stimulation of a nerve or nerve center which just produces a response, or that concentration of sugar in the blood at which sugar just begins to pass the barrier of the kidneys and enter the urine, etc.; as, below the threshold of consciousness (Herbart); near the threshold of pain.
4. Psychol. & Physiol. A measure of the sensitivity of any organ or function, obtained by finding the limiting value of the appropriate stimulus that will give the response. Three types of threshold are distinguished: the absolute threshold or stimulus threshold, the lower limit of stimulus magnitude that arouses visual sensation from the eye, contraction from a muscle, etc.; the difference threshold, the smallest difference between two stimuli that gives a difference of response; and the terminal threshold (mostly undetermined), the upper limit of the stimulus, beyond which no further increase in the specific response can be obtained.

thresh'old (thrĕsh'ōld; -hōld), adj. Resembling a threshold; also, suggesting a threshold in its nature, use, or function.
threshold exposure. Photog. The least exposure the effect of which is discernible on development. threshold frequency. Physics. The minimum frequency of radiation that will produce a photoelectric effect.

Thres'ki·or·nith'i·dae (thrĕs'kĭ·ôr·nĭth'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Threskiornis, type genus (fr. Gr. thrēskia worship + ornis, ornithos, bird) + -idae.] Zool. A family of birds (order Ciconiformes) consisting of the ibises and spoonbills, or restricted to the former. Syn. Ibididae.

Thres'ki·or'ni·thi'nae (-ôr'nĭ·thī'nē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. The subfamily of Threskiornithidae consisting of the ibises, as distinguished from the spoonbills. Syn. Ibidinae.

Thri'ai (thrī'ī), n. pl. [Gr.] Three nymphs of Parnassus, daughters of Zeus, inspired with the gift of prophecy when they ate honey.

thrib'ble (thrĭb'ĕl), adj. [From treble or triple, influenced by three.] Triple; threefold. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

thrice (thrīs), adv. [ME. thries, fr. thrie thrice (fr. AS. thriga, thriwa) + -s, adv. suff. See THREE; -WARDS.] 1. Three times. "Thrice in vain." Spenser.
Before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice. Matt. xxvi. 34.
2. In a threefold manner or degree; hence, more loosely and with intensive force, repeatedly; fully; highly.
Thrice is he armed that hath his quarrel just. Shak.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

thrice-blessed	thrice-great	thrice-sold thrice-boiled	thrice-happy	thrice-told thrice-crowned	thrice-honorable	thrice-venerable thrice-famed	thrice-noble	thrice-worthy — thrice after other. Thrice in succession. Now Dial.

thrice'-ac'cent·ed oc'tave. Music. See PITCH, Illust.

thrice'cock' (thrīs'kŏk'), n. [For thrush cock.] The missel thrush. Local, Eng.

thri·da'ci·um (thrĭ·dā'shĭ·ŭm; -sĭ·ŭm), n. Also thrid'ace (thrĭd'ās). [NL., fr. LL. thridax wild lettuce, fr. Gr. thridax.] The inspissated expressed juice of lettuce. Now Rare.

thrift (thrĭft), n. [ME., fr. ON. thrift, thrif. See THRIVE.] 1. A thriving condition; prosperity; good fortune. Obs.
"Now good thrift have he." Chaucer.
2. Good husbandry; economical management; frugality.
They had been trained in thrift and economy. Froude.
3. Work; occupation; employment. Now Scot.
4. Savings accumulated through frugality; hoarded wealth. Archaic.
5. Vigorous growth, as of a plant.
6. Any species of Statice; esp., a tufted scapose herb (S. armeria) found on mountains and seacoasts of the North Temperate Zone. It has heads of pink or white flowers.
Syn. — Economy, providence, husbandry.
Ant. — Extravagance, prodigality, lavishness, wastefulness.

Thrift (Statice armeria).

-thrift (-thrĭft). A combining form of thrift, as in ding*thrift*, slip*thrift*, spend*thrift*.

thrift (thrĭft), v. t. To save in a thrifty way.

thrift'box' (thrĭft'bŏks'), n. A box for savings.

thrift society. A voluntary association, usually unincorporated, to promote thrift and for the collective investment of the savings of the members.

thrift stamp. A war-savings stamp of the denomination of 25 cents, issued by the Government from Dec. 3, 1917, to Dec. 31, 1921, and sold to raise war revenue from the loan of small savings and to encourage thrift. See WAR-SAVINGS STAMP, WAR-SAVINGS CERTIFICATE. U. S.

thrift'y (thrĭf'tĭ), adj.; THRIFT'I·ER (-tĭ·ĕr); THRIFT'I·EST. 1. Given to, or evincing, thrift; characterized by economy and good management; provident.
He hath so much youth and vigor left, of which he hath not been thrifty. Swift.
2. Thriving by industry and frugality; increasing in wealth.
3. Evidencing prosperity; hence, estimable; well-considered; worthy. Obs.
4. Serviceable; useful; also, befitting; proper. Obs.
5. Secured by thrift; well-husbanded. Obs.
The thrifty hire I saved under your father. Shak.
6. Growing vigorously; thriving; as, a thrifty plant or colt.
7. Narrow; small. Rare.
Syn. — Sparing, economical, saving, careful. See FRUGAL.

thrill (thrĭl), n. [AS. thyrel an aperture. See THRILL, v.] A nostril. Obs.

thrill, v.; THRILLED (thrĭld); THRILL'ING. [ME. thrillen to pierce the same word as thirlen to pierce. See THIRL.] Transitive: 1. To perforate with a pointed instrument; to bore; transfix; thirl; drill. Obs.
2. To cause to vibrate; to affect so as to produce vibrations or quivering; as, an earthquake thrills the land.
3. To affect emotionally as if by something that pierces; to cause to have a shivering, throbbing, or tingling sensation; to penetrate and pervade with feeling; as, to thrill one with delight or horror.
4. To hurl; throw; cast (a lance, dart, etc.). Obs.
——, Intransitive: 1. To pierce, as something sharp; to penetrate; esp., to pass, move, or act, causing a tingling or shivering sensation; to produce a thrill; as, a discordant sound thrills through the ear.
2. To feel a tingling or shivering sensation, as from pleasure, pain, or the like; as, to thrill with delight or horror.
3. To move or act tremulously; to vibrate; tremble; as, the earth thrills; his voice thrilled with emotion.

thrill (thrĭl), n. 1. A sensation as of being thrilled; a tremulous excitement; a throbbing; as, a thrill of horror or joy.
It is hard to measure the extent or the thrill of the new interest in public affairs. Walter H. Page.
2. A vibration or tremor, as of the land during an earthquake; a throbbing.
3. An abnormal fine tremor or vibration in the respiratory or circulatory systems on palpation; a fremitus.
4. A cause of thrilling; emotional, stirring, or sensational quality, as in a story; also, a thriller, as a novel. Slang.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

thrill-crazed	thrill-pursuing, adj.	thrill seeker thrill-exciting, adj.	thrill-sated	thrill-seeking, adj.

thrill (thrĭl). Var. of TRILL, n. & v.

thrill'er (-ĕr), n. One who or that which produces thrills, as of terror and horror; esp., a work of fiction or of drama which produces thrills.

thrill'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of THRILL. Specif.; adj. Causing tremulous excitement; deeply moving; as, a thrilling romance; also, throbbing; vibrating. — thrill'ing·ly, adv. — thrill'ing·ness, n.

thrill'y (thrĭl'ĭ), adj.; THRILL'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); THRILL'I·EST. Providing thrills; stirring, sensational, or the like; also, emotionally thrilled; as, a thrilly excitement after reading the story. Colloq.

thrim'ble (thrĭm'b'l; -'l), v. t. & i. Scot. & N. of Eng. a To handle (anything), esp. to test quality, or with hesitation or fumbling; to hesitate; fumble. b To squeeze; to press into. c To wrestle.

thrim'ble (thrĭm'b'l; -'l). Dial. var. of TREMBLE.

thrimp (thrĭmp), v. t. & i., & n. Press; squeeze. Scot. & N. of Eng.

Thri'nax (thrī'năks), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thrinax a three-pronged fork; — from the shape of the leaves.] Bot. A genus of North American fan palms, commonly called thatch palms, with orbicular leaves cleft into many indupliate segments, smooth petioles, and monoecious flowers, succeeded by small globose fruits. The leaves are used for thatches, fans, etc.

thring (thrĭng), v. t. & i.; past tense THRONG (thrŏng); past part. THRUNG'EN (thrŭng'gĕn); pres. part. & verbal n. THRING'ING. [AS. thringan. See THRONG.] Obs. exc. Dial. a To press; squeeze; crowd; throng. b To thrust or cast (down); to crush; batter. c To pierce.

thrin'ter (thrĭn'tĕr), n. [See THREE; WINTER.] A three-year-old (sheep). — thrin'ter, adj. Both Scot. & N. of Eng.

thri·ob'o·ly (thrī·ŏb'ō·lĭ), n. [Gr. thriobolos one who throws pebbles into the divining urn.] Divination by means of pebbles.

thrip (thrĭp), v. i. [Imitative.] To snap; as, he thripped his fingers. — v. i. To snap one's fingers, or make a similar noise. Both Obs.

thrip (thrĭp), n. [From threepenny or threepence.] A threepenny piece. Colloq.

thrip (thrĭp). Variant of THRIPS.

thrip'el (thrĭp'ĕl), adj. [See THRIBBLE.] Triple. Dial.

thrip'ple (thrĭp'p'l), n. An extension frame or rail used on a vehicle for hay, etc. Eng.

thrip'ple (thrĭp'p'l), v. i. [Cf. AS. thrŷpel, an instrument of torture.] To labor hard. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

thrips (thrĭps), n. [L., a woodworm, fr. Gr. thrips.] 1. a Any of numerous insects of the order Thysanoptera. They are all of small, often minute, size and have narrow, broadly fringed wings with rudimentary nervures, asymetrical mouth parts used for sucking, and the tarsi ending in a peculiar bladderlike structure. Most species feed on plant juices, and some, as the onion and tobacco thrips and those which attack grasses, are often very injurious. b [cap.] The type genus of a family, Thrip'i·dae (thrĭp'ĭ·dē), of the order Thysanoptera.

Onion Thrips. a Imago; b Larva. Both much enlarged.

2. Popularly, any of various other small injurious insects, esp. the grape leaf hopper or the grapevine flea beetle.

-thrip'sis (-thrĭp'sĭs). [NL.] A combining form from Greek thripsis, meaning a breaking into small pieces, a comminution, as in amygdalo*thripsis*.

thrive (thrīv), v. i.; past tense THROVE (thrōv) or THRIVED (thrīvd); past part. THRIVED or THRIV'EN (thrĭv'ĕn); pres. part. & verbal n. THRIV'ING (thrīv'ĭng). [ME. thriven, fr. ON. thrīfast, orig., to grasp for oneself, refl. of thrīfa to grasp; akin to Dan. trives to thrive, Sw. trifvas. Cf. THRIFT.] 1. To prosper by thrift; to win success by industry, economy, and good management; to increase in goods and estate; as, a farmer thrives by good husbandry.
2. To prosper by any means; to gain one's end; to be successful or flourishing. "They by vices thrive." Sandys.
3. To increase in health, size, weight, etc.; to grow vigorously or luxuriantly, as a plant; to flourish; as, cattle thrive in rich pastures; trees thrive in good soil.
Syn. — Succeed, prosper, batten. Ant. — Fail, decline.

thrive'less (thrīv'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Unsuccessful; without advantage.

thriv'en (thrĭv'ĕn), past part. of THRIVE. Specif.: adj. a Obs. Experienced; prudent; wise. b Obs., except in combinations. Grown; adult. c Chiefly Dial. Thriving; prosperous.

thriv'er (thrīv'ĕr), n. One who or that which thrives, or prospers.

thriv'ing (-ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of THRIVE. Hence: adj. That thrives; prosperous. — thriv'ing·ly, adv. — thriv'ing·ness, n.

-thrix (-thrĭks). [NL.] A combining form from Greek thrix, the hair, denoting: a Bot. & Zool. A genus having a (specified) characteristic of hair or hairlike filaments, as in Cladothrix, Streptothrix. b Med. A condition of the hair, as in lepothrix. Cf. -TRICHIA.

thro (thrō), adj. [ON. thrār.] Stubborn; sturdy; fierce; eager. Obs.

thro, v. i. [ON. thrōast.] To increase; grow. Obs.

thro' (thrōō). Short for THROUGH.

thro (thrō; thrōō). Variant of THROUGH. Obs. exc. Dial.

throat (thrōt), n. [ME. throte, fr. AS. throte, throtu; akin to OHG. drozza, G. drossel; cf. OFris. & D. strot. Cf. THROPPLE, THROTTLE.] 1. The part of the neck in front of the spinal column; hence, the passage through it to the stomach and lungs, containing the pharynx and upper part of the esophagus, the larynx, and the trachea.
2. Figuratively, voice; as, he shouted at the top of his throat; also, maw; jaws; mouth.
In the very throat of sulphurous war. Thomson.
3. Something likened to the throat, as being an entrance, a passageway, a constriction, or a narrowed place; as, the throat of a vase; the throat, or narrowed part, of a stream. Specif.: a The part of a house chimney between the portion of the funnel which contracts in ascending, and the flue; also, a similar part in a metallurgical furnace. "The wings of flame gilding the dark throat of the chimney." Christopher Morley. b The contracted part of a wheel spoke just beyond the larger part near the hub. c The part of a tennis racket between the head and the handle.
4. Arch. & Building. A groove or channel on the underside of a projection, as a stringcourse, coping, etc., to prevent rain water from running back to the walls.
5. Bot. The orifice of a tubular organ; the upper part of the tube of a gamopetalous corolla or calyx.
6. Fort. = 1st GORGE, 9. Rare.
7. Mach. a The gap in the frame behind the tool in a punching, shearing, vertical-boring, or similar machine, the depth of which limits the size of the work taken. b A gullet or clearance space at the bottom of a saw tooth. c A short tube connecting larger tubes, or a contracted section of a tube, the tube expanding at each end of the section.
8. Naut. a The inside of a timber knee. b The upper fore corner of a staysail. c That end of a gaff next the mast. d The curved part of an anchor's arm, where it joins the shank.
9. Railroads. a The narrowest place between the wing rails of a frog. See FROG, n., 14, Illust. b The curved space between the flange and tread of a car wheel.
10. Shoe Mfg. The opening in an upper at the instep when the tops come together at the vamp.
11. Welding. The minimum distance from the root of a fusion weld to its face.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

throat-clearing	throat-cracking	throat-slitting throat-clutching	throat-full	throat-swollen throat (thrōt), v. t.; THROAT'ED; THROAT'ING. 1. To utter in the throat; to mutter; as, to throat threats; also, to sing or chant in a throaty voice.

Those who . . . had throated clear their anthems to the sky. T. Hardy.
2. To make or provide with a throat; as, to throat a wheel spoke or the underside of a stringcourse.

-throat (-thrōt). A combining form of the noun throat, as in:

bluethroat	redthroat	tearthroat
cutthroat	rubythroat	whitethroat lilacthroat	starthroat	yellowthroat throat'al (thrōt'ăl), adj. Throaty.

throat'band' (thrōt'bănd'), n. A band for the throat; esp., a throatlatch.

throat brail. Naut. A brail running through a block at the throat of a gaff.

throat'ed, adj. Having a throat.

-throat'ed. A combining form of throated, denoting having (such) a throat, as in:

black-throated	full-throated	ruby-throated blue-throated	green-throated	triple-throated calm-throated	large-throated	violet-throated clear-throated	narrow-throated	white-throated deep-throated	orange-throated	wide-throated dry-throated	red-throated	yellow-throated throat'ful (thrōt'fŏōl; -fĭl), n. Enough to fill the throat, as in drinking. — throat'ful, adj.

throat halyards. Naut. Halyards to raise the throat of a gaff.

throat'i·ly (thrōt'ĭ·lĭ), adv. Gutturally; with a peculiar tonal quality caused by oral utterance with the throat constricted.

throat'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of THROAT. Hence: n. A throat, as under a stringcourse.

throat'lash' (thrōt'lăsh'), n. = THROATLATCH. — v. t. To rein together (two horses) by a throatlatch. Cant.

throat'latch' (-lăch'), n. A strap of a bridle or halter, passing under a horse's throat; also, that portion (called also throttle) of the horse's throat around which this strap passes. See HARNESS, Illust.

throat'let (-lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A slender boa, tippet, or pelerine.

throat plate. The outside plate or sheet on the front end of the locomotive firebox; — called also throat sheet.

throat'root' (thrōt'rōōt'; 200), n. The bennet Geum virginianum of North America.

throat seizing. See SEIZING, n., 2; 2d KNOT, 1, Table.

throat sheet. = THROAT PLATE.

throat'strap' (thrōt'străp'), n. A throatlatch.

throat sweetbread. See SWEETBREAD.

throat track. One of the tracks connecting passenger-station and ladder tracks with main tracks.

throat'wort' (thrōt'wûrt'), n. a Any of several bellflowers, etc. the European Campanula trachelium, formerly used to cure sore throat. b = FOXGLOVE, 1. c A figwort, esp. Scrophularia nodosa of Europe or S. marylandica of America. d A gay-feather (Liatris spicata).

throat'y (thrōt'ĭ), adj.; THROAT'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); THROAT'I·EST. 1. Uttered with a hard quality caused by the sound coming from the throat rather than from the mouth; guttural; hence, relatively heavy, thick, and deep, as if emitted from low in the throat; as, an entrancing, throaty laugh; a rich throaty voice; she was very croaky and throaty from her cold; a cat's little throaty meow.
2. Having a large loose-hanging throat; — said of certain breeds of cattle, dogs, etc.
3. Having a capacious gullet; voracious, as certain fish.

throb (thrŏb), v. i.; THROBBED (thrŏbd); THROB'BING. [ME. throbben, of imitative origin.] 1. To pulsate; to vibrate; to beat, as the normal human pulse; as, the throbbing chant of birds.
2. To pulsate with abnormal force or rapidity, as from any agitation; to palpitate; — said of the heart, pulse, etc.
Syn. — THROB, BEAT, PALPITATE. BEAT applies esp. to thresht. Threshed. Ref. Sp. threst. ✝ THIRST, THRUST. threste, thresti. ✝ THIRST, THIRSTY. thret. Threat. Ref. Sp. thret'en. Threaten. Ref. Sp. thret'nd. Threatened. Ref. Sp. thret'tie. ✝ THIRTY.

---

threve (thrēv). Var. of THRAVE.

Obs. exc. Dial. [THROW. threw (thrōō; 242), past tense of thri'am·bew'tic (thrī'ăm·bōō'tĭk), adj. [Gr. thriambeuein to triumph.] Triumphal. Obs. thrid. Archaic & dial. Eng. var. of THREAD. thrid (thrĭd), thride, thridde. Vars. of THIRD. Obs. exc. Scot.

thrie. ✝ THREE; THRICE; TRAY, trouble. [THRIFTY. See -LY. thrift'i·ly (thrĭft'ĭ·lĭ), adv. of thrift'i·ness, n. See -NESS. thrift'less, adj. See -LESS. — thrift'less·ly, adv. — thrift'lessness, n. thrift'like', adj. See -LIKE thril. Thrill. Ref. Sp.

thrild. Thilled. Ref. Sp. thrill'ant (thrĭl'ănt), adj. Piercing. Obs. thrill'ful, adj. See -FUL. — thrill'ful·ly, adv.
thrill'-less, adj. See -LESS. thrill'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. thrill'some, adj. See -SOME.

thrimsa. ✝ THRYMSA. thris'sel, thris'sle (thrĭs'l), Scot., N. of Eng., & Ir. var. of THISTLE. thrist (thrĭst). Vars. of THIRST, THRUST. Obs. exc. Dial. thriste. ✝ THIRST, THRUST, TRUST. [var. of THISTLE. thris'tle. Scot. & N. of Eng.

thris'ty (thrĭs'tĭ), adj. Var. of THIRSTY. Obs. exc. Dial. throat'boll', n. [throat + boll Cf. THROPPLE.] Obs. a The Adam's apple in the neck. b The gullet. c The windpipe. throat'i·ness (thrōt'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs); n. See -NESS. throat'less, adj. See -LESS.

the movement of the heart or pulse; it is often used in a fig. sense; to THROB is to beat or pulsate strongly or violently; to PALPITATE is to beat rapidly, often abnormally; as, "All existence seemed to beat with a lower pulse than her own" (G. Eliot); "You wild winds, thus can you sleep so still whilst throbs the tempest of my breast so high?" (Shelley); "Then, delicate and palpitating as a silver reed, she stood up in the soft light of the morning" (M. Hewlett); "The strong tempestuous treble throbbed and palpitated" (Tennyson); cf. palpitation of the heart. Cf. QUIVER, SHIVER.

throb (thrŏb), n. A beat, or pulsation, as of the heart and arteries; esp., a violent beating; an excited palpitation.

throb'ber (thrŏb'ĕr), n. One who or that which throbs; esp., Colloq., one whose emotions are easily moved.

throb'less (thrŏb'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Having no throbs, beats, or pulsations; also, not causing throbs or thrills; hence, unexciting.

throck (thrŏk), n. [AS. throc.] The part of a plow to which the plowshare is attached. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

throd'den (thrŏd'n), v. i. [See THRODDY.] To grow; thrive. N. of Eng.

throd'dy (-ĭ), adj. [From throd, past part. of THRO to grow.] Well-grown; plump; also, active. Dial. Eng.

throe (thrō), n. [ME. throwe, thrawe, fr. AS. thrawu, var. of thrēa threatening, oppression, suffering (perh. influenced by Scand.; cf. ON. thrā a throe); akin to G. drohen to threaten. Cf. THROE, v. t.] 1. Extreme pain; a violent pang; anguish; agony; esp., a pang of travail in childbirth. 2. Hence, agonized struggle or effort; as, he was in the throes of composition, writing furiously day after day.
Syn. — See PANG.

throe, v. i.; THROED (thrōd); THROE'ING. [ME. throwen to suffer, AS. thrōwian; confused with THROE, n.] To struggle in extreme pain; to be in agony. — v. t. To put in agony. Rare. Shak.

throe (thrō), n. = FROE.

Throg'mor'ton Street (thrŏg'môr't'n; thrŏg·môr't'n; 181). The London Stock Exchange or that which pertains to it; — from the street in London on which it is located.

throm'bin (thrŏm'bĭn), n. [See THROMBUS.] Biochem. A substance present in serum, that unites with fibrinogen to form fibrin, and in blood clotting; — called also thrombase and fibrin ferment (although it does not appear to be an enzyme). It is held to be derived from thrombogen.

throm'bo- (thrŏm'bō-), thromb-. [Akin to Gr. trephein to curdle, congeal. See DRAFF.] A combining form, Greek thrombo-, thromb-, from thrombos, meaning lump, curd, clot, used to denote: a A blood clot, as in thrombocyst, thrombin, throm'bo·sta'sis. b Thrombosis, as in thrombophlebitis.

throm'bo·an'gi·i'tis (-ăn'jĭ·ī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. thrombo- + angiitis.] Med. Inflammation of a blood vessel, specif. an artery, with thrombus formation.

‖throm'bo·an'gi·i'tis ob·li'te·rans (ŏb·lĭt'ĕ·rănz). [NL. See OBLITERATE.] Med. Thromboangiitis in which the thrombus formed occludes the lumen of the artery.

throm'bo·ar'te·ri'tis (thrŏm'bō·är'tĕ·rī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. thrombo- + arteritis.] Med. Inflammation of an artery with thrombosis.

throm'bo·cyst (thrŏm'bō·sĭst), n. [thrombo- + -cyst.] Med. A cyst sometimes surrounding a thrombus.

throm'bo·cyte (-sīt), n. [thrombo- + -cyte.] Physiol. One of the blood platelets, so-called because of their role in thrombus formation.

throm'bo·cy'to·pe'ni·a (-sī'tō·pē'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. thrombocyte- + -penia.] Med. A condition in which the number of blood platelets is below normal.

throm'bo·gen (thrŏm'bō·jĕn), n. [See THROMBO-; -GEN.] Biochem. The precursor of thrombin found in blood plasma; — called also prothrombin, serozyme. It is held to be a protein and to react with calcium ions and cephalin to form thrombin. According to some, thrombogen is derived from a substance called prothrombogen.

throm'bo·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk), adj. [thrombo- + -genic.] Med. Tending to produce a thrombus.

throm'boid (thrŏm'boid), adj. [thromb- + -oid.] Med. Resembling a thrombus.

throm'bo·kin'ase (thrŏm'bō·kĭn'ās; -kĭ'nās), n. [thrombo- + kinase.] Biochem. A substance present in the tissues, which accelerates the clotting of blood, presumably by converting thrombogen, in the presence of calcium salts, into thrombin; — called also cytozyme.

throm'bo·lym'phan·gi'tis (-lĭm'făn·jī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. thrombo- + lymphangitis.] Med. Inflammation of a lymph vessel with thrombus formation.

throm'bo·pe'ni·a (-pē'nĭ·ȧ), n. Med. [NL., fr. thrombo- + -penia.] Deficiency in substances necessary for the clotting of blood, esp. the blood platelets; thrombocytopenia; also, the condition of purpura resulting therefrom.

throm'bo·phle·bi'tis (-bō·flē·bī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. thrombo- + phlebitis.] Med. Inflammation of a vein with thrombosis.

throm'bo·plas'tic (-plăs'tĭk), adj. [thrombo- + -plastic.] Biochem. Of, pertaining to or causing acceleration of the clotting of the blood; as, thrombokinase and tissue fibrinogen are thromboplastic substances.

throm'bose (thrŏm'bōz; thrŏm·bōs'), v. t.; THROM'BOSED (-bōzd; -bōst'); THROM·BOS'ING. To affect with thrombosis.

throm·bo'sis (thrŏm·bō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thrombōsis coagulation. See THROMBUS.] 1. Med. The formation of a clot, or thrombus, in any part of the vascular or lymphatic system during life.
2. Plant Pathol. A disease in which the water-conducting vessels are plugged by the growth of the parasite.
— throm·bot'ic (-bŏt'ĭk), adj.

throm'bus (thrŏm'bŭs), n.; pl. -BI (-bī). [NL., fr. Gr. thrombos. See THROMBO-.] Med. A coagulum of blood elements or a growth of cells, as tumor cells, formed in the heart, a blood vessel, or a lymphatic during life.

thron'al (thrōn'ăl; -'l), adj. Of, pertaining or suitable to, or used as a throne.

throne (thrōn), n. [ME. trone, fr. OF. trone, fr. L. thronus, fr. Gr. thronos. See FIRM.] 1. A chair of state; esp., a royal seat on a dais with a canopy; also, the seat of a prince, bishop (see CATHEDRA), or other high dignitary. Cf. 1st CHAIR, 2.
2. Sovereign (sometimes episcopal) power and dignity; sovereignty; supreme rank or position; also, the one invested therewith; an exalted or dignified personage; — commonly with the definite article.
Only in the throne will I be greater than thou. Gen. xli. 40
3. pl. A high order of angels. See CELESTIAL HIERARCHY.
☞ COMBINATIONS AND PHRASES ARE:
throne-born, throne-capable, throne room, throne-shattering, throne-worthy.

throne (thrōn), v. t.; THRONED (thrōnd); THRON'ING (thrōn'-ĭng). [ME. tronen. See THRONE, n.] To enthrone; to exalt to a throne; hence, to give sovereignty or dominion to; to exalt.
A fair vestal throned by the west. Shak.
— v. i. To be in, or to sit on, a throne; to be in power, as if on a throne.
A kind of sanctuary in which she throned among his secret thoughts and longings. Edith Wharton.

throne'let (-lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A little throne; a throne of small importance. Rare.

throng (thrŏng; 185), n. [ME. throng, thrang, fr. AS. thrang, gethrang; akin to AS. thringan to crowd, OS. thringan, D. & G. dringen, OHG. dringan, ON. thryngva thröngva, Goth. threihan, D. & G. drang a throng, press, ON. thröng a throng, and perh. to Lith. trenkti to jolt, tranksmas a tumult, and L. truncus trunk. Cf. THRING, TRUNK.] 1. A multitude of persons congregated or collected into a close assemblage; a crowd.
2. Any great number or multitude; a host.
The watery throng, wave rolling after wave. Milton.
3. The crowding together of many persons; hence, bustle; confusion.
4. Stress or strain; esp., stress of business; close occupation. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
5. Distress; peril; hardship; affliction. Obs.
Syn. — See MULTITUDE.

throng, v.; THRONGED (thrŏngd; 185); THRONG'ING. Intransitive: 1. To crowd together, as a multitude of persons; to move, pass, go, etc., in multitudes; to crowd.
I have seen the dumb men throng to see him. Shak.
2. To push ahead; to press; to make one's way, as among a crowd. Obs.
3. To cause to be busied or hurried. Dial. Eng.
—, Transitive: 1. To crowd or press upon; to crush.
Much people followed him, and thronged him. Mark v. 24.
2. To gather or collect in a crowd; to crowd.
3. To crowd into; to fill closely by crowding or pressing into, as a hall or a street.
— throng'er (-ĕr), n.

throng (thrŏng), adj. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng. a Crowded; thronged. b Busy; hurried. "He said he was rather throng just now." Samuel Butler. c Intimate; familiar.

throng, adv. [ME. throng, thrang. See THRONG, n.] a Obs. Close; constantly. b Scot. Busily.

throng. Obs. past tense of THRING.

thron'ize (thrŏn'īz), v. t. To enthrone. Rare.

throp'ple (thrŏp''l), n. [Prob. fr. AS. throtbolla. See THROATBOLL.] The throat; the windpipe. Chiefly Dial., except of the windpipe of animals, as the horse. Cf. THROAT-LATCH.

throp'ple, v. t. To throttle. Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng.

thros'tle (thrŏs''l), n. [ME. throstel, fr. AS. throstle; akin to MLG. drōsle, MHG. trostel, G. drossel, ON. thröstr, Sw. trast. See STRUTHIO; cf. THRUSH the bird.] 1. A thrush; specif., the European song thrush. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial.
2. A machine for spinning wool, cotton, etc., from the rove, consisting of a set of drawing rollers with bobbins and flyers, and differing from the mule in having the twisting apparatus stationary and the processes continuous; — so called because it makes a singing noise.

throstle cock. a The song thrush. b Local, Eng. The missel bird.

throt'tle (thrŏt''l), n. [Dim. of THROAT.] 1. The throat or windpipe. See THROATLATCH.
Until their brains and bloods were foul Enough to make their throttles howl. Masefield.
2. The neck of a bottle.
3. In an internal-combustion engine, the valve (throttle valve) incorporated in or just outside the carbureter, controlling the volume of vaporized fuel charge delivered to the cylinders. b The pedal or lever (throttle lever) controlling this valve.

throt'tle (thrŏt''l), v.; THROT'TLED (-'ld); THROT'TLING (-lĭng). Transitive: 1. To compress the throat of; to choke; strangle; hence, to check or suppress by or as if by choking; as, to throttle sedition; to throttle free speech.
2. To utter brokenly, as if half suffocated. Rare. Shak.
3. Engin. To obstruct the flow of, as steam to an engine esp. by a throttle valve; hence, to reduce the speed of, as an engine, by such means; — often with down; as, he throttled down the car to twenty miles an hour. See GOVERN, v. t., 5.
—, Intransitive: 1. To have the throat obstructed so as to be in danger of suffocation; to choke; suffocate.
2. To breathe hard, as when nearly suffocated.

throttle lever. See THROTTLE VALVE.

throt'tler (thrŏt'lĕr), n. One who or that which throttles.

throttle valve. Engin. A valve for regulating supply, as of steam, or of gas and air, to an engine. It is operated by a handwheel, by a lever (throttle lever), or automatically by a governor (throttling governor).

throt'tling (thrŏt'lĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of THROTTLE. Hence: adj. That throttles. — throt'tling·ly, adv.

throttling bar. Ordn. In some types of hydraulic recoil brakes, a bar of varying cross section which controls the flow of the liquid past the piston.

throttling governor. See THROTTLE VALVE.

through (thrōō), prep. [ME. thurgh, thurh, thuruh, thoruh, fr. AS. thurh; akin to OS. thurh, OFris. thruch, D. door, OHG. durh, duruh, G. durch, Goth. thairh, and to L. trans. See TRANS-; cf. THOROUGH, THRILL.] Primarily through expresses the general relations of passage from boundary to opposite boundary of anything, penetration to all parts, continuance to the end of a period, and instrumentality. The specific and derived uses are: 1. In at one side and out at the opposite side of; from end to end or surface to surface of, by passing into and across or along the interior; into and beyond in one direction, as toward an object placed opposite; — indicating a space, material substance, or medium (of light or vision) which is penetrated in passage or extension to the farther side; as, to walk through a gate; to bore through a board; a bullet passed through his hat; to look at a star through a telescope; a road through the desert.
2. Hence: a Into, for subjection to some treatment, and then out of; as, put fabric through the dye solution; to pass through many hands. b Across or along the intervals among; among or in the midst of; between or among the separate or separable units of; as, to advance through the trees; the light glimmers through a thicket; through dangers and privations. c By way of; — indicating either a channel or course for passage, or an intervening stage; as, he went out through the warehouse. "Passing through nature to eternity." Shak. d By connection with; as, related through the Wilsons. e With resonance in (nose, throat). f Simultaneously with and despite the louder sound of; as, heard through the din.
3. Onward from point to point within or among; as, to wander through the forest; to float through the air.
4. In all directions over the whole surface or extent of; to or in every part or region of; as, to ride through the country; to search all through the West.
Through the balmy air of night
How they ring out their delight. Poe.
5. During and to the end or conclusion of; from the beginning to the end of; as, through life; all through the year; to study the whole summer through.
6. Hence: a Along a course or during a period marked or attended by; as, through trial and tribulation. b By or past the requirements of, for acceptance or approval; along a course terminating in the formal sanction of; as, to get a bill through the legislature. c Quite to, or at, the conclusion or completion of; to the desired or a satisfactory or successful outcome of; as, to get through his college course, an examination, an ordeal, etc.
7. By means of; by the intermediacy of; in the name or as agent of; by the agency of; as, to speak through an interpreter; procured through a friend. "Material things are presented only through their senses." Cheyne.
8. By reason of; in consequence of; because of; as, he hid, through fear of arrest.
Syn. — See BY.

through (thrōō), adv. 1. From one end or side to the other by passing into the inner part or space; as, to pierce a thing through; hence: a Over the whole distance; all the way to a destination, often specif. without change or without local stop or stopovers; as, shipped through to Chicago. b In diameter; as, a tree measuring twelve inches through.
2. From beginning to end; along the whole of a due course or process; as, to read a letter through; to pass a resolution through.
3. Quite to the end or conclusion; to the ultimate purpose; to full accomplishment; as, to carry a project through; to win through to wealth and fame.
4. Thoroughly; entirely; — except in dialectal use now only following an adjective or participle; as, wet through.
Through satiate with the pleasures of this night. Heywood.

through (thrōō), adj. 1. Admitting free passage; unobstructed; affording right of way along; as, a through way, street, road. Cf. THOROUGHFARE.
2. Extending from one surface to the other; as, a through bond, stone, mortise, etc.
3. Colloq. Used only predicatively: a At a point of issuance from passage through a substance or channel; as, the bit is through. b Arrived at completion or accomplishment; as, nearly through with the book; I am through asking questions; after the third try at the examination he is through; as soon as he gets through, I begin. c Arrived at the end of competitive activity or useful employment or at exhaustion of resources; as, according to the trainer the mare is through. d Having no further concern; as, through with gambling.
4. Transportation. a Extending or going from point of departure to destination, or from one end to the other of a route, without break, change, reshipment, or the like; often, specif., extending, going, or carried over a route that includes two or more lines of transportation without change or reshipment or under a single contract of shipment; as, through transportation; through traffic; through train. b Of or pertaining to such traffic or transportation; as, a through ticket; through business, etc.

through (thrōō), n. 1. The material which falls through something, as through a screen or sieve; specif., pl., Milling, the material which passes through any given sieve during the milling process.
2. A through way or road; a thoroughfare. Dial. Eng.

through, v. t. To go on with; to carry through. — v. i. To succeed. Both Scot.

through, n. [AS. thrūh.] 1. A coffin; a sarcophagus. Obs.
2. (pron. thrōōf; Scot. thrōōk). A flat tombstone. Scot. & N. of Eng.
3. A through stone; a perpend.

through- (thrōō-). Used formerly as a prefix in many combinations with senses of the preposition and adverb, in some of which we now use thorough; as in through'-bred', through-come', through-know'.

through-. A combining form of through, denoting all the way through, throughout; forming verbs or adjectives, as in:

through-blow	through-joint	through-rod through-carve	through-key	through-shoot through-cast	through-lance	through-splint through-drainage	through-mortise	through-swim through-drive	through-nail	through-thrill through-formed	through-passage	through-toll through-galled	through-pierce	through-tube through and through. a Repeatedly thorough; all the way through or from one end to the other. b Thoroughly; with searching thoroughness; in every possible regard; as, he is bad through and through.

through'-and-through' coal. Large and small coal mixed; run-of-mine coal. Eng.

through-bear' (thrōō-bär'), v. t. To support; sustain. Scot.

through bolt. A bolt passing through all the thicknesses or layers which it binds, or in which it is fixed, and made fast by a nut at the end opposite the head.

through bond. Building. A transverse bond formed by a member which extends crosswise through the wall.

through bridge. Civ. Engin. a One in which the roadway or track passes between the supporting elements, as trusses, girders, or arches. See GIRDER BRIDGE; cf. DECK BRIDGE. b = BOTTOM-ROAD BRIDGE.

through check. In lumber, a check extending all the way through from surface to surface.

through cold. A chill. Obs.

through cut. Civil Engineering. A cut with excavated slopes on both sides of the roadway.

through'gang' (thrōō'găng'), n. [through + gang a going.] Scot. a A thoroughfare. b Overhauling. c Labor; energy.

---

throb'bing·ly, adv. of throbbing, pres. part. throbd. Throbbed. Ref. Sp.
throe'like', adj. See -LIKE.
thro'-ith'er. Scot. var. of THROUGH-OTHER. throm (thrŏm). Dial. var. of FROM.
throm. † THRUM. thremb-. = THROMBO-. throm'base (thrŏm'bās), n. [See THROMBUS.] See THROMBIN. throne'dom, n. See -DOM. throne'less, adj. See -LESS. throne'like', adj. See -LIKE. throne'ship, n. Reign. Obs. throne'ward, adv. See -WARD. throngd. Thronged. Ref. Sp. throng'ful, adj. See -FUL. Rare.
throng'ing·ly, adv. of thronging, pres. part. throng'ly, adv. of THRONG. Obs. exc. Dial. throng'ness, n. See -NESS. Obs. throp (thrŏp), thrope. Vars. of THROP. Obs. exc. Dial. thros'tle-like', adj. See -LIKE. throb. Var. of THROAT. Chiefly Scot. throt'l. Throttle. Ref. Sp. throt'ld. Throttled. Ref. Sp. throu (thrō; thrōō), through (thrōōk), throught (thrōōt). Vars. of THROUGH. Obs. exc. Scot. through'fare', n. A thoroughfare. Obs.

through girder bridge. See GIRDER BRIDGE.

through'go'ing (thrōō'gō'ĭng), adj. Passing through; also, energetic. Scot.

through'go'ing, n. Scot. a A thoroughfare. b An examination; overhauling; also, reprimand.

through'grow' (thrōō'grō'), n. The boneset Eupatorium perfoliatum; — so called from its perfoliate leaves.

through'ly, adv. Thoroughly; through and through. Archaic.

through message. Teleg. A message relayed by intervening offices from its starting point to its destination.

through'-oth'er (thrōō'ŭth'ĕr), adv. In confusion; promiscuously. — adj. Confused; disorderly; scatterbrained. Both Chiefly Scot.

through-out' (thrōō-out'), prep. All the way from one end to the other of; in or to every part of; during the whole course or period of; as, throughout the house; throughout the year.

through-out', adv. 1. Completely through by penetration; right through to the end; completely. Obs.
2. In or to every part; from one end to the other; everywhere; from beginning to end; during the whole time or action; also, in all respects; as, of one color throughout; to remain faithful throughout.

through-out', adj. 1. Thorough; perfect. Obs.
2. Enduring from beginning to end. Rare.

through'put' (thrōō'pōōt'), n. The amount of material put through the operations in processing in a given time; as, the daily throughput of an oil-shale retort.

through rate. Transportation. A single rate, made up of two or more separately established rates, for the transportation of a shipment of goods. Cf. JOINT RATE.

through retort. A retort, as used for the distillation of mercury from cinnabar or for producing coal gas for illuminating, having both ends open, being closed by mouthpieces during distillation.

through road. A highway running directly through from one town or city to another; a through way.

through shake. Lumbering. A crack or fissure in timber that extends from side to side, edge to edge, or side to edge.

through stone. a Arch. A bond stone showing through on each side of a wall; a perpend. b A flat gravestone; — called also through stane. Scot. & N. of Eng.

through street. In some American cities, a street in which all vehicles have legal right of way over vehicles coming from intersecting streets.

through switch. See SWITCH, n., 5.

Through the Looking-Glass. See ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND.

through way. A through street.

throw (thrō), n. [AS. thrāh, thrāg.] Time; while; a brief time; trice. Obs. "A little throw." Chaucer.

throw, v.; past tense THREW (thrōō; 242); past part. THROWN (thrōn); pres. part. & verbal n. THROW'ING. [ME. throwen, thrawen, to throw, twist, fr. AS. thrāwan to twist, revolve; akin to D. draaijen, G. drehen, OHG. drāen, L. terebra an auger, gimlet, terere to rub, wear away, thresh, Gr. terein to bore, to turn, tetrainein to pierce, trēma a hole, tribein to rub. Cf. TEREBRA, TERMITE, THRASH, THREAD, TREPAN, TRITE, TURN.] Transitive: 1. To turn or revolve, as a wheel; to twist; whirl; turn; hence, to sprain; to wrench, as in torturing; to rack. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
2. To twist two or more filaments of, as silk, so as to form one thread; to twist together, as singles, in a direction contrary to the twist of the singles themselves; — sometimes applied to the whole class of operations by which silk is prepared for the weaver. Cf. THROWN SINGLES.
3. To turn, or to fashion by turning, on a lathe. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
4. To fashion or frame in a special form, with a suggestion of skill; to change; form; as, he threw his thought into a neatly turned phrase; when they failed to understand his question, he threw it into French.
5. To fling, cast, or hurl, with a certain whirling motion of the arm; as, to throw a ball; hence, to fling or cast in any manner; to propel; hurl; send; as, a gun throws a shell; a fire engine throws a stream of water; he threw an angry glance toward his visitor; to throw a card on the table.

Throw physic to the dogs: I'll none of it. Shak.

Specif., in certain athletic events, to cast under certain conditions in an attempt to exceed other competitors in distance, accuracy, etc.; as, to throw the hammer, the discus, the javelin.
6. To cast (a net, line hook, bait) in fishing.
7. To put, place, present, or the like in a manner suggesting a cast or a throw; as, we threw a diamond hitch; the prompter threw her the cue; a ponton bridge was quickly thrown across the river.

Thou must have seen the bush in the garden in Galilee. It throws a white flower, like the acacia. George Moore.

8. To put in a (designated) position, condition, or situation; as, thousands of men have been thrown idle; he was thrown with bad companions.
9. To send forth; to project; as, to see the faint light thrown by a distant star.

His colors are bright and vague like flashlights thrown on a fog. Amy Lowell.

10. To drive or impel by violence; to dash; force; as, a vessel thrown on a reef; troops thrown into confusion.
11. To cause to fall; to prostrate; to cast down; as, a wrestler throws his antagonist; a horse throws his rider; also, to check; retard; defeat.
12. To divest or strip oneself of; to put off; to shed; as, on the hard road my horse threw a shoe.

There the snake throws her enameled skin. Shak.

13. To put on hastily; to don; to spread carelessly; — often with on; as, he hastily threw on his dressing sack and went to the door.

O'er his fair limbs a flowery vest he threw. Pope.

14. To move quickly; to advance; as, he threw a regiment across the river and against the enemy's works.
15. To bring forth; to produce; bear; — commonly said of animals, but also, locally, of soil; as, the mare threw a good colt; that field will throw a large crop.
16. To allow an opponent to win (a race, game, or contest) by carelessness or by corrupt prearrangement; as, to throw a heat. Cant or Colloq.
17. To cast, as dice; to venture at dice.
18. To obstruct; thwart; hinder; as, careless workmanship throws a mechanic in getting another job. Scot. & Dial.
19. Agric. To throw up (ridges); to plow several furrow slices together into ridges.
20. Card Playing. To play (a card); esp. to discard; to trash.
21. Logging. = WEDGE, v. t., 4.
22. Mach. To move (a lever) so as to connect or disconnect parts of a clutch, machine, switch, or the like; — often with over. Hence, to connect or disconnect by such means, as a clutch, a switch, or the like.
23. Pottery. To form or shape on a potter's wheel, as earthen vessels.
24. Print. To distribute, as type.

——, Intransitive: 1. To twist; writhe; also, to turn; revolve. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. To spring or start; as, to throw from one's horse. Obs.
3. To cast, hurl, or fling; to hurl a dart, lance, or the like.
4. To throw dice; to play at dice.
5. To strike. Obs.

Drew he his bright sword, and gan about him throw. Spenser.

6. To take the opposite side, as in an argument, contest, etc.; also, to quarrel; to be at odds. Chiefly Scot.
7. To fall heavily or violently. Obs.

Syn. — THROW, CAST, FLING, HURL, TOSS are here compared in their more general senses, without special reference to their numerous idiomatic uses. THROW is now the general word; CAST (except in certain phrases; as, to cast a fly, to cast one's eye on something, to cast a shadow, etc.) is archaic or poetical; to FLING is to throw violently, or (sometimes) angrily or contemptuously; to HURL is to throw with driving or impetuous force; to TOSS is to throw lightly or carelessly, often implying movement to and fro or up and down; as, "People who live in glass houses should not throw stones' (Proverb); "He that is without sin among you let him first cast a stone at her" (John viii. 7); "I would sooner take Empedocles's leap, and fling myself into Mount Etna" (Cowper); "You began your operations in finance by flinging away your revenue" (Burke); "Him the Almighty Power hurled headlong flaming from the ethereal sky" (Milton); "Others tossed a ball above the fountain jets and back again with laughter" (Tennyson); "He tossed them human hearts" (Shelley); "They . . . discussed a doubt and tossed it to and fro" (Tennyson).

throw a banquet, dance, party, etc. To give a banquet, dance, party, etc. Slang.
throw about. a Rare. To cast about; to try expedients. b Naut. To tack; put about. throw across or over. To build or construct across or over; as to throw a bridge across a river.
throw a fit. To become greatly excited, disturbed, irritated, or angry. Slang.
throw a gun. To draw and aim a pistol.
throw a scare into. To scare; terrify.
throw away. a To cast aside as worthless; as, to throw away old shoes. b To lose by neglect or folly; to waste; squander; as, to throw away time or money or an opportunity. c Obs. To refuse; reject.
throw a wet blanket on. To quench or dampen with a wet blanket. See WET BLANKET. throw a wrench or monkey wrench. To introduce a disturbing feature or element; to bring in something regarded as destroying harmony or the expected course of procedure. Colloq.
throw back. a To retort; to cast back, as a reply or accusation. b To reject; refuse. c To delay; check. d To date back (to). e To revert to an ancestral type or character; to exhibit atavism. throw by. To lay aside; to discard as useless; as, to throw by a garment.
throw cold water on. Figuratively, to discourage by coldness or indifference. throw down. a To cast or fling down. b Slang. To reject; as, to throw down an offer. c To subvert; overthrow; destroy. d Chem. To precipitate. throw down the glove or the gauntlet. To challenge; defy; — from the old custom of casting a glove on the ground as a challenge to combat.
throw dust in one's eyes. To mislead; deceive Colloq.
throw good money after bad. To lose additional money in trying to recoup a previous loss.
throw in. a To inject, as a fluid. b To put in; to contribute; as, to throw in an occasional comment. c Slang. To join; as, it's a good crowd, so I think I'll throw in. d To add gratis, as something extra to clinch a bargain; as, if you'll take ten copies, I'll throw in another. e To cause to mesh, as gears; to engage, as the clutch of an automobile.
throw in one's hand. To give up; surrender or withdraw from a contest; — from card games where a player signifies his withdrawal from the current hand by throwing his cards in the discard.
throw in one's lot with. To join as an associate; to share the fate of.
throw in one's teeth. To use as a taunt or challenge. throw in the sponge. See under SPONGE, n. throw in the towel. To give up; surrender; yield; — from pugilism, where a fighter's second throws in a towel in acknowledgment of defeat.
throw into shape. To give form to. throw into the shade. To make (another) look dim; to obscure by outshining. throw light on. To clarify; to make clear.
throw off. a To free oneself from; as, to throw off a coat, a disease. b To reject; discard; abandon; as, to throw off all sense of shame; to throw off a dependent. c Colloq. To make or utter offhand; as, to throw off a sketch, a witty saying. d To abate (something from the price); to make a discount of. e To cast or deflect to one side; also, to release or disconnect (a part in a machine, etc.) so as to permit such deflection. f To make a start with hounds in a hunt or horses in a race; hence, to make a beginning of anything. g Backgammon. = bear off, 3, under 1st BEAR throw oneself at. To put oneself in the way of, so as to attract attention, or esp. so as to secure an offer of marriage.
throw oneself away. To waste oneself with a person or persons unworthy of one's own character and powers, or in a position below one's abilities.
throw oneself into. To take earnest part in.
throw oneself on or upon. a To fall or sink upon; as, he threw himself upon his knees. b To resign oneself to for favor, clemency, sustaining power, or the like; to repose upon; appeal to; as, to throw oneself upon the mercy of the court.
throw one's hat in the ring. See have, throw, toss, etc., one's hat in the ring, under HAT, n.
throw open. a To open suddenly and widely; as, the gates were thrown open. b To remove restrictions from; as, to throw open a competition.
throw out. a To cast out; to reject or discard; to expel. "The bill was thrown out." Swift. b To utter; to give utterance to; as, to throw out insinuations. "She throws out thrilling shrieks." Spencer. c To distance; to leave behind, as a horse in a race. Obs. Addison. d To construct in projection; to extend; project; as, to throw out a wing to a house. e To give forth; to emit; as, a lamp throws out light. f To put out; to confuse; as, a sudden question often throws out an orator. g Baseball. To assist, by a throw, in putting out (a player). Cant. h Cricket. To run out (a batsman) by throwing the ball so as to break the wicket. See 2d CRICKET, 1. i In the game of hazard, to make a losing throw. See 4th MAIN, 1 a. throw out of gear. To disconnect the gears of; to put out of mesh; hence, to stop the smooth functioning of.
throw over. See throw across, above. throw over or overboard. To abandon the cause of; to desert; discard; as, to throw over a friend or a suitor; to throw over a theory. Colloq.
throw over or under. Engin. To move so that when the piston is advancing toward the crankshaft the crank is in the upper (or lower) part of its revolution; — said of a horizontal or inclined engine.
throw stones at. To attack viciously, as in speeches, the public press, etc. throw the bull. To lie glibly; also, to talk fluently. See 6th BULL, 6 c. Slang. throw the lead. Card Games. To play with intent to lose the trick to another player so that he shall lead.
throw together. a To gather or collect hastily and somewhat carelessly; as, on demand he threw together a volume of short stories. b To unite; join; as, the two families threw together to lease the cottage for the season.
throw under. Engin. See 2d throw over, above.
throw up. a To cease to participate, use, engage, or the like; to relinquish; to give up; to demit; as, to throw up a commission; to throw up one's hand. b Colloq. To vomit. c To construct hastily; as, to throw up a breastwork. d To raise suddenly; as, he threw up his arms at the sudden command. e To rise; to thrust up. "There has been no vasty and melodramatic throwing up of new peaks." Mencken. f To bring up or mention repeatedly as a taunt; as, to throw up to one an old slander. g To make prominent or distinct; esp. Printing, to cause to stand out, as by contrast of colors, or by bold-faced type. h Hunt. To raise the head, as a hound on losing the scent. throw up another's heels. To trip him. Now Rare.
throw up the sponge See under SPONGE, n. throw up in, or on, the wind. To turn (a vessel) windward.

throw (thrō), n. 1. Act of throwing, hurling, or flinging; a driving or propelling from the hand or an engine; a cast; as, the runner was put out by the pitcher's throw to first base.
2. A cast of dice; hence, a venture; risk; as, to stake one's fortune on a single throw.
3. A light scarf or coverlet, as for draping an easel, etc.; also, Colloq. or Trade Cant, a woman's scarf, boa, or the like.
4. A thrust; stroke; blow. Obs.
5. The distance which a missile is or may be thrown; — chiefly in the phrase a stone's throw.
6. Act of felling timber; also, quantity of trees felled. Chiefly Brit.
7. An instrument for turning, as a potter's wheel, or, Chiefly Dial., a turning lathe.
8. Elec. The instantaneous deflection of a galvanometer needle or suspension when the instrument is used as a ballistic galvanometer
9. Geol. & Mining. The amount of vertical displacement up (upthrow) or down (downthrow) produced by a fault; sometimes, loosely, a dislocation not vertical, the direction being specified.
10. Mach. a The extreme movement given to a reciprocating piece by a cam, crank, eccentric, or the like; travel; stroke; as, the throw of a switch. b The length of the radius of a crank, or the virtual crank radius of an eccentric, cam, or the like; also, a crank web; a crank.
11. Math. Four elements of an elementary figure taken in a definite order, as four points on a line. Rare.
12. Motion Pictures. The distance between the projector lens and the surface upon which the image is focused. Cant. U. S.
13. Usually spelled thraw. Wrestling. A way of throwing one's opponent. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

throw (dial. thrō; thrōō). Var. of THROUGH. Obs. exc. Dial.

throw'a-way' (thrō'ă-wā'), n. Anything that is thrown away or rejected.

throw'back' (thrō'băk'), n. 1. Colloq. a One that tends to throw or set back; a setback. b A going back. c A reversal or backward deviation from one's path or route.
2. a Reversion to an ancestral type or to an earlier phase of civilization; also, an instance or product of such reversion; as, a throwback to Puritanism; Biol., a reversion. b Cant. Post Office. A missorted mail item thrown back to be resorted. c Motion Pictures. A scene or action from the past, interrupting the action of the present.

throw'-crook', n. Any of various devices consisting of or having a crank, as a potter's wheel. Chiefly Scot.

throw'down' (thrō'dour'), n. Rejection or refusal, as of a request; also, defeat. Slang.

throw'er (thrō'ĕr), n. One who or that which throws. Specif.: a One who throws or twists silk; a throwster. b One who shapes vessels on a lathe or a potter's wheel. c = GRAINSMAN. d = 1st TIPPER.

throw'-in', n. Act of throwing in something; as: a Association Football. A throw made from the touchline to put the ball back in play after it has gone into touch. b Baseball The act of throwing the ball to the infield after it has been hit to the outfield. c Polo. A throwing the ball between the opposing ranks of players, each team being on its own side of the line of the throw.

throw'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of THROW. Hence: adj. That throws or is used by one who throws.

throwing engine, mill, table, or wheel. Pottery. A potter's wheel with its supports, used in throwing (see THROW, v. t., 23).

throwing knife or iron. A knifelike weapon, often with several blades set at different angles, used for casting at an enemy or animal. It is common to many central African tribes.

throwing net. A casting net.

throwing power. Electroplating. The ability to deposit a plating of uniform depth on a surface of irregular shape.

---

through'gang'ing, through'gaun'. Scot. vars. of THROUGGOING, n. & adj. [Obs.]

through'girt', adj. Pierced.

through'-han'dling, n. Execution of details. Obs.

through'-ith'er (thrōō'ĭth'ĕr). Scot. var. of THROUGH-OTHER.

through'-light', n. = THROUGH LIGHT. Obs.

through'-lighted, adj. Thoroughlighted. Obs.

through-out'ly, adv. Completely. Obs. [THOROUGHPACED. Obs.] through'paced', adj. = THORthrough-shine', v. i. To shine through. Obs. [stitch. Obs.] through'stitch', adv. Thorough-through'-tube' boil'er. See BOILER, n., 6.

throut. ✝ THEREOUT.

throu'ther (thrōō'th ĕr). Scot. var. of THROUGH-OTHER.

throve (thrōv), past tense of THRIVE.

throw. ✝ THOROUGH, THRO, THROE.

throwe. ✝ THROE.

throwed (thrōd). Dial. past tense & past part. of THROW.

---

throwing stick. Anthropol. An instrument used by various savage races for throwing a spear, as the Australian womera or woomera; — called also throw stick and spear thrower. One end receives the butt of the spear, as on a hook or thong, and the other is grasped with the hand, which also holds the spear, toward the middle, above the stick with the finger and thumb, so that the place of support is nearer the center of the spear, and the arm is practically lengthened. Cf. ATLATL.

throw lathe. A small hand lathe.

throw line. a Angling. A hand line. b Mach. A line indicating the throw of a crank, eccentric, or the like.

thrown (thrōn), past part. of THROW; specif.: adj. Made, cast, shaped, checked, etc., by one who throws; as: a Formed on a potter's wheel. b Turned on a lathe. c Twisted, as filaments of silk, into thread. d Unseated, as from a horse. e Put on one's back, as a wrestler. f Successfully tackled, as a football player.

thrown silk. Silk thread consisting of two or more singles twisted together, in a direction contrary to the twist of the singles themselves. Cf. ORGANZINE, n.

thrown singles. Silk thread or cord made by three processes of twisting, first into singles, two or more of which are twisted together, and then several of these twisted together to make thrown singles.

throw'off' (thrō'ôf'; 185), n. 1. Act of throwing off; specif., the start in a hunt.
2. That which is thrown off, as a reduction or discount from a price. Cf. RAKE-OFF. Cant, U. S.
3. That which throws off; as: Mach. a A device in a printing press for suspending impression without stopping the machine. b A device in an automatic gun for disengaging the feed wheel to remove a partially empty belt. c An automatic device in many machine tools to stop the feed. d On railroads, a derail. Throwing Sticks.

throw'-on', n. Also throw'-o'ver. A light wrap which can readily be thrown on or over one's shoulders.

throw'out' (thrō'out'), n. 1. Act of throwing out, rejecting, or discarding; also, act of disconnecting; specif., a device for throwing a machine out of gear; in automotive vehicles, the mechanism or assemblage of mechanisms by which the driven and driving plates of a clutch are separated.
2. A device for removing hog carcasses from the scalding tub after scalding.
3. A book insert so made that, when unfolded, its printed content is all outside the edges of the book, facilitating reference.
4. A thing or person rejected or discarded; a reject.

throw rug. A scatter rug.

throw'ster (thrō'stĕr), n. [throw + -ster.] 1. One who throws or twists silk; a thrower.
2. One who casts dice; a gambler.

throw stick. Anthropol. a A wooden missile, as a club or boomerang, designed to be thrown with a whirling motion. b = THROWING STICK.

thrum (thrŭm), n. Formerly also thrumb. [ME. thrum, throm; akin to D. dreum, G. trumm lump, end, fragment, OHG. drum end, ON. thrömr edge, brim, and L. terminus a limit, term. See TERM; cf. TRAM beam, bar.]
1. Weaving. a One of the ends of weavers' warp threads. b The fringelike row of such threads on the loom when the web has been cut free. c Any soft, short threads, tufts, or fringes.
2. Hence, any mass of hairs on an animal, or fibers or threadlike leaves on a plant, which suggest thrum (sense 1).
3. Any loose coarse yarn waste; — chiefly in pl.
4. A particle; bit; as, not to care a thrum. Scot.
5. A tangle. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
6. Threepence; a threepenny piece. Slang, Brit.
7. A ragged, beggarly lout. Obs.
8. pl. Naut. Tufts, or short pieces, of rope yarn used in thrumming canvas.

thrum (thrŭm), adj. Made of or woven from thrum.
He sits commerceless in his thrum nightcap. Sterne.

thrum, v. t.; THRUMMED (thrŭmd); THRUM'MING. 1. To furnish with, or make of, thrums; to tuft; fringe.
2. To thatch. Obs.
3. Naut. To insert short pieces of rope yarn or spun yarn in (a piece of canvas), thus making a rough surface or a mat which can be wrapped about rigging to prevent chafing.

thrum, v. [Imitative.] Intransitive: 1. To play rudely, monotonously, or listlessly on or as on a stringed instrument with the fingers or by keys; to strum.
2. To sound with a repeated monotonous hum, as a string or an instrument when strummed.
3. To repeat a thing over and over; to speak monotonously.
4. To purr. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

—, Transitive: 1. To play, as a stringed instrument, in a rude, monotonous, or listless manner.
2. Hence, to drum on; as, to thrum the table.
3. To recite or repeat tiresomely; — with over. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

thrum, n. A monotonous sound, as of thrumming.

thrum'-eyed' (thrŭm'īd'), adj. Bot. Having the anthers exserted, and visible at the throat of the corolla; — opposed to pin-eyed.

thrum'mer (thrŭm'ĕr) n. One who thrums an instrument.

thrum'my (thrŭm'ĭ), adj. Made of, furnished with, or resembling, thrums; shaggy; as, a thrummy cap.

Thrums (thrŭmz), n. [Cf. 1st THRUM, 1 & 3.] The name given by Sir James M. Barrie in his stories to his birthplace, Kirriemuir, in Angus County. It is the scene of much of the action in Auld Licht Idylls, A Window In Thrums, The Little Minister, Sentimental Tommy, and Tommy and Grizel.

thrum'wort' (thrŭm'wûrt'), n. a The love-lies-bleeding Amaranthus caudatus. b The starfruit. c The water plantain of the Old World.

thrush (thrŭsh), n. [D. tröske, Sw. torsk, and Dan. tröske rotten wood.] 1. An affection of the mouth, fauces, etc., occurring esp. in infants and young children, characterized by white patches which coalesce to form a membrane. It is caused by a yeast (Saccharomyces albicans), formerly regarded as an imperfect fungus Oidium albicans.
2. Veter. An inflammatory and suppurative affection of the feet in certain animals. In the horse it is in the frog.

thrush (thrŭsh), n. [ME. thrusche, fr. AS. thryssce, thræsce; akin to OHG. drosca, droscea, droscela. See STRUTHIO; cf. 2d THRASHER, THROSTLE.] 1. Any of numerous small or medium-sized passerine birds of the widely distributed family Turdidae (which see) esp. those of the subfamily Turdinae. Typical thrushes are mostly of a plain color, but many have spotted under parts. They feed largely on worms and insect larvae, berries, fruits, etc. The primaries are ten (the first spurious), the tarsi are booted, and the young have the entire plumage spotted. Among them are some of the best songsters. European species are the song thrush, missel thrush, redwing, fieldfare, and blackbird; American species are the robin (or migratory thrush), the hermit thrush, wood thrush, veery, olive-backed thrush, varied thrush, gray-cheeked thrush, etc.

Wood Thrush (Hylocichla mustelina).

2. With a qualifying term, any of numerous birds of various families having real or fancied resemblance to the true thrushes, as the ant thrush, brown thrush, golden-crowned thrush, shrike thrush, and water thrush.
3. The color thrush brown.

thrush blackbird. The rusty blackbird. Local, U. S.

thrush brown. A color, yellowish red-yellow in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance; — called also thrush, shagbark. Cf. COLOR.

thrush'el (thrŭsh'ĕl; -l), thrush'er (-ĕr), n. The European song thrush. Now Local, Eng.

thrush fungus. A yeast (Saccharomyces, albicans) causing thrush. See 1st THRUSH, 1.

thrush lichen or moss. See PELTIGERA.

thrush nightingale. A large nightingale (Luscinia luscinia) of eastern Europe.

thrush tit. Any of several mostly rich blue, purple, or greenish birds of the genus Cochoa, of southern Asia and Java, usually included in the thrush family, but with some affinity to tits.

thrush'y (thrŭsh'ĭ), adj. Having thrush. See 1st THRUSH, 1 & 2.

thrust (thrŭst), v.; past tense & past part. THRUST; pres. part. & verbal n. THRUST'ING. [ME. thrusten, thrsten, thresten, fr. ON. thrýsta to thrust, press, force, compel; perh. akin to E. THREAT.] Transitive: 1. To push or drive with force; to drive, force, or impel; to shove; — usually followed by an adverb or preposition indicating direction, as, he thrust his hand into his pocket; he thrust the chair forward.
2. To stab; pierce; — usually with through.
3. To crowd; press; throng. Obs. exc. Dial.
4. To interpose; interject; as, the best she could do was to thrust a word in now and then.
5. To push forth; extend; spread; as, a poplar thrusts its rootlets far and wide.

—, Intransitive: 1. To push; shove.
That he would thrust out a little from the land. Luke v. 3.
2. To meet forcibly; to clash; collide. Obs.
3. To make a thrust with or as with a pointed weapon; as, he thrust at her with a knife.
4. To push in; to force an entrance or passage.
And thrust between my father and the god. Dryden.
5. To push forward; to crowd; intrude.
Young, old, thrust there in mighty concourse. Chapman.

Syn. — See PUSH.

thrust on. a To impel; urge. b To put forward in space or time.

thrust out. a To drive out or away; to expel. b To protrude, as a tongue.

thrust to. To rush upon. Obs. Spenser.

thrust together. To compress.

thrust upon. To force or impose upon; as, "Some have greatness thrust upon 'em." Shak.

thrust, n. 1. A violent push or drive, as with a pointed weapon moved in the direction of its length, or with the hand or foot, or with any instrument; a stab; — a term of ancient spear and sword fight, and of modern fencing.
The thrust and parry of debate. Josiah Royce.
2. An attack; assault; onset; as, the enemy made a thrust on our right wing; more weakly, a jibe; as, he skillfully laughed off the thrust in his questioner's words.
3. Strong and continued pressure; stress (cf. sense 6, below); also, a crowding, jostling, or the like; as, the thrust of the throng at the race track.
4. A crowd; throng. Obs.
5. Engin. The force exerted endwise through a propeller shaft, as of a vessel or aircraft, due to reaction of the water or air on the revolving blades or vanes of the propeller and serving to drive the craft ahead.
6. Geol. A compressive tangential stress in the earth's crust or the effect of such stress; a thrust fault. See FAULT, n., 6.
7. Mech. The force or pressure of one part of a construction against another part; esp., Arch., a horizontal or diagonal outward pressure, as of an arch against an abutment, or of a rafter against a supporting wall.
8. Mining. The breaking down of the roof of a gallery under its superincumbent weight.

thrust bearing or block. A bearing or block to resist end thrust, specif., one provided with collars (thrust collars), horseshoe-shaped pieces, or rollers which bear against corresponding collars on the shaft journal. See BALL BEARING a.

thrust deduction. Naut. In speed calculations for ships, a deduction made from the observed thrust exerted by a screw propeller on a stationary ship, or by a stationary propeller, to account for the augmentation of resistance due to the action of the propeller when attached to the ship and moving with it through the water.

thrust'er, n. 1. One who or that which thrusts; specif.: a Colloq. One who intrudes himself; one who pushes himself forward; a pusher. b An expert swordsman.
2. One who rides too close on the hounds. Dial. Eng.

thrust fault. See FAULT, n., 6.

thrust hoe. A scuffle hoe.

thrust'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of THRUST. Hence: n.
1. Act of pushing with force.
2. Geol. Thrust fault.

thrust plane. Geol. The surface, never strictly a plane, along which dislocation has taken place in the case of a reverse, or thrust, fault. See FAULT, n., 6.

thrust shaft. Naut. That length of the propeller shaft provided with collars for resisting the end thrust of the propeller and held by the thrust block.

thrutch (thrōōch), n. & v. [AS. thryccan to press.] Now Dial. a Push; thrust. b Crowd; press; throng.

thrutch'ings (thrōōch'ĭnz), n. pl. Pressed whey. Eng.

Thruth'vang' (thrōōth'väng'), Thruth'vang'r (-väng'ĕr), n. [ON. Thrúthvangr.] See ASGARD.

Thrym (thrüm), n. [ON. Thrymr.] Norse Myth. A giant who steals Thor's hammer. Poetic Edda.

Thrym'heim' (thrüm'hām'), n. [ON. Thrymheimr.] Norse Myth. The home of the giant Thiazi. See ASGARD.

thrym'sa (thrĭm'zä; -sä), n. Also tryms (trĭmz), etc. [AS. thrymsa, trimsa, gen. pl. of thrimes, thrymes, trimes, fr. LL. tremis a coin.] A coin or money of account of Anglo-Saxon England, of uncertain value, probably three or four pence. Obs. exc. Hist.

Thry'o-no-mys (thrī'ō-nō-mĭs), n. [NL., irreg. fr. Gr. thryon a rush + mys mouse.] Zool. A genus of African rodents. Syn. Aulacodus. See GROUND PIG.

Thu·cyd'i·de'an (thū·sĭd'ĭ·dē'ăn), adj. [Cf. L. Thucydidius, fr. Gr. Thoukydidēs Thucydides.] 1. Pertaining to, or characteristic of, the Greek historian Thucydides (about 471 to 400 B.C.), whose history of the Peloponnesian War is regarded as a model of compact and precise expression, historical accuracy, and philosophical breadth of view.
2. Resembling the device, used by Thucydides, of putting appropriate speeches into the mouths of persons who appear in his history.

thud (thŭd), n. [Prob. imitative, but cf. ME. thuden to press, push, fr. AS. thyddan.] 1. A tempest or gust of wind; a windstorm. Scot.
2. A blow, or, collectively, repeated blows.
And they all go to rack ruin beneath the thud of the years. Ezra Pound.
3. A dull sound like that produced by striking with or against some comparatively soft substance; also, the blow producing such sound; a thump; as, the thud of a wave on a vessel; the thud of blows in boxing.

thud (thŭd), v. i. & t.; THUD'DED; THUD'DING. 1. To move like a tempest or gust of wind; to blow against. Scot.
2. To move or strike so as to make a dull sound, or thud.

thud, adv. With the sound of a thud.
Thud goes the warworn's drum. Masefield.

thud'ding, pres. part. & verbal n. of THUD. Hence: adj. That thuds. — thud'ding·ly, adv.

thug (thŭg; Hind. t'hŭg; 236), n. [Hind. ṭhag, fr. Prakrit ṭhaga, Skr. sthaga a rogue, dishonest, fr. sthagati he conceals. See THATCH.] 1. [often cap.] A member of a former confederacy or fraternity of northern India, worshipers of Kali (see DEVI, 2), in whose honor murder, usually by strangling, was made a profession, the members of the fraternity deriving their main support from plunder thus secured. They were suppressed by the British, 1830–40.
2. A ruffian; rough; assassin.

thug, adj. Having the characteristics of a thug; ruffianly.

thug (thŭg), v. t.; THUGGED (thŭgd); THUG'GING. To attack in order to rob, silence, or murder. Rare.

thug'gee (thŭg'ē; Hind. t'hŭg'ē; 236), n. [Hind. ṭhagī. See THUG.] The practice of murder and robbery by the thugs.

thug'ger·y (thŭg'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -GERIES (-ĭz). 1. Thuggee.
2. Ruffianism; murder.

thug'gess (thŭg'ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. A female thug.

thug'gish, adj. Characteristic of a thug, as in appearance, practices, etc.

Thu·id'i·um (thū·ĭd'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. ML. thuia a coniferous tree. See THUJA.] Bot. A widely distributed genus of mosses, called fern mosses, of the family Leskeaceae.

Thu'ja (thū'jä), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thyia. See THYINE.] Bot. 1. a A genus of evergreen shrubs and trees (family Pinaceae) having flat distichous branches, and scalelike, closely imbricated, or compressed leaves. T. occidentalis is the common arborvitae. T. plicata is the red cedar, or canoe cedar, of the western United States. b [not cap.] A tree of this genus, esp. the arborvitae, which yields an oil (oil of thuja) and has some use in medicine, chiefly in a decoction and in an ointment made from the leaves. There are many horticultural forms cultivated for ornament.
2. [not cap.] The wood of the sandarac tree Tetraclinis articulata. See SANDARAC TREE a.

thu'jene (thū'jēn), n. [thujone + -ene.] Chem. A terpene, $C_{10}H_{16}$, obtained indirectly from thujone in two varieties: α-thujene a liquid (also found in the oil of the salai tree), and β-thujene, a solid.

thu'jone (-jōn), n. [Thuja + -one.] Chem. A colorless oily ketone, $C_{10}H_{16}O$, of agreeable odor, occurring in the oils of thuja, tansy, wormwood, etc. There are two isomeric forms, α and β, the former being the chief constituent of thuja oil, the latter (called also tanacetone) of tansy oil.

Thu·jop'sis (thū·jŏp'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Thuja + -opsis.] Bot. A genus of Japanese evergreen trees (family Pinacea) having as the only known species T. dolobrata, the akeki, or Japanese arborvitae. It has irregular or whorled horizontal branches, the leaves glossy green above and marked with a white band beneath, and is often cultivated for ornament.

thu'jyl (thū'jĭl), n. [thujone + -yl.] Chem. A univalent radical $C_{10}H_{17}$, of which the hydroxide (thujyl alcohol) is formed by the reduction of thujone and is found also in certain essential oils; — called also tanacetyl.

Thu'le (thū'lē; -lĕ), n. [L. Thule, Thyle, fr. Gr. Thoulē, Thylē.] The northernmost part of the habitable world; — so called by the ancients. According to some, it was Norway; according to others, Iceland, or more probably Mainland, the largest of the Shetland Islands; — hence the Latin phrase ultima Thule. Hence, any very distant, mysterious, or mythical region; also, a remote goal or end.

Thule culture. Anthropol. A form of Eskimo culture discovered in Greenland, at the Thule station near Cape York, but later found to extend over most of the arctic lands inhabited by Eskimos.

thu'li·a (thū'lĭ·ä), n. [NL.] Chem. Thulium oxide, Tm_2O_3, a greenish-white powder.

throwst, v. t. [From THROWSTER.] To throw (silk). Obs.

throw'ther. Var. of THROUGHOTHER. [n.]

throw'wort', n. = MOTHERWORT thru (thrōō; dial. also thrŭ), Var. of THROUGH.

Thrud'vang' (thrōōth'väng'). Var. of THRUTHVANG. See ASGARD. [Var. of THROUGH.]

thruf (thrŭf; thrōōf). Dial. Eng.

thrum'ble, v. i. Stumble. Obs.

thrum'ble (thrŭm'b'l: -'l; thrōōm'l), v. t. Var. of THRIMBLE.

thrum'mers (thrŭm'ĕrz), n. pl. = THRUM, n., 6. Australia.

thrung'en. Obs. exc. Dial. past part. of THRING.

thru-out'. Throughout. Raf. Sp.

thrup (thrŏp). Dial. Eng. var. of THORP.

thrush'like', adj. See -LIKE.

thrust'ful, adj. See -FUL. — thrust'ful·ness, n.

thrust'ings, n. pl. = THRUTCHINGS. Eng.

thrus'tle (thrŭs'l; thrōōs'l). Var. of THROSTLE. Obs. exc. Dial.

thrusty. Var. of THIRSTY. Dial.

Thruth'heim' (thrōōth'hām'), n. = THRUTHVANG. See ASGARD.

thruv. Ir. & dial. Eng. past tense & past part. of THRIVE.

Thu'ban (thōō'băn), n. See STAR, Table.

thug'dom, n. See -DOM.

thug'gee-ism (thŭg'ē·ĭz'm), thug'gism (-ĭz'm), n. = THUGGEE.

thu'ja oil (thū'jä). See OIL, Table I.

thu'jin (-jĭn), n. Chem. = [QUERCITRIN.]

ā̆le, chā̆otic, câre, ă̆dd, ā̆ccount, ärm, ăsk, sofä; ēve, hē̆re (116), ē̆vent, ĕnd, silĕnt, makēr; īce, ĭll, charĭty; ōld, ōbey, ôrb, ŏdd, sŏft, cŏnnect; fōōd, fo͝ot; thu'lir (thōō'lēr), n. pl.; sing. THULE (thōō'lē). [ON. thulr, pl. thulir; akin to AS. thyle speaker, orator.] In ancient Norway, a class of bards or poets.

‖ Foreign Word. † Obsolete Variant of. + combined with. = equals. Abbreviations, Signs, etc., are explained on pages immediately preceding the Vocabulary.

thu'lite (thū'līt), n. [Thule + -ite.] Mineral. A rose-red variety of zoisite, found in Tellemarken, Norway, and elsewhere, occasionally cut for use in jewelry.

Thu'lite pink. A color, bluish-red in hue, of high saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

thu'li·um (thū'lĭ·ŭm), n. [NL. See THULE.] Chem. A rare-earth metal found (combined) in certain minerals. Symbol, Tm; at.no., 69; at.wt., 169.4. See RARE EARTH.

thu'luth (thōō'lōōth), n. [Ar. In Per. & Turk. th is pron. as s, hence the var. sooloos.] One of the chief forms of Arabic and Persian script; — called also sooloos.

thumb (thŭm; 97), n. [ME. thombe, thoumbe, thume, fr. AS. thūma; akin to OFris. thūma, D. duim, G. daumen, OHG. dūmo, ON. thumall thumb of a glove; orig., the big or strong finger, and akin to L. tumere to swell. See TOMB; cf. THIMBLE.] 1. The short and thick first or most preaxial digit of the human hand, differing from the other fingers in having but two phalanges and in having greater freedom of movement, being apposable to the other fingers; the pollex. The term is extended to the corresponding digit in various animals.

2. Something resembling or suggesting a thumb (sense 1), as in appearance, place, or function; as: a A thumb-shaped projection from a plant or tree. b A thumb-shaped pinnacle of rock.

3. The width of the thumb, considered as equal to one inch. Now Rare.

4. The part of a glove or mitten that covers the thumb.

5. A convex molding; an ovolo. See MOLDING, 3, Illust.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

thumb-and-finger	thumb-kissing	thumb-sucking thumb ball	thumb-made	thumb-worn thumb-fingered	thumb-shaped

— to have fingers all thumbs. To be awkward or clumsy in handling anything. — under one's thumb. Under one's power or influence; in a state of subservience. Colloq.

thumb, adj. Pertaining to or operated by the thumbs; small as a thumb.

thumb (thŭm), v.; THUMBED (thŭmd); THUMB'ING (thŭm'-ĭng). Transitive: 1. To handle awkwardly, as a musical instrument; hence, to perform clumsily.

2. To soil or wear with the thumb or the fingers by frequent handling; to run over the pages of, (a book, periodical, newspaper, pamphlet, or the like), as by turning them rapidly with the thumb; also, to cover with the thumb; as, to thumb the touchhole of a cannon.

3. To turn or empty (one's glass after drinking) over the thumb in order to show that it has been drunk to the last drop. Cf. 1st. SUPERNACULUM. Obs.

4. Angling. To retard (the speed of a reel drum) by pressure of the thumb on the line wound on the reel, or by a mechanical device, esp. in order to prevent a backlash.

——, Intransitive: To play a musical instrument with or as with the thumb or thumbs; to play clumsily; to thrum.

thumb one's nose at. To point at with extended fingers and the thumb at one's nose; to make a derisive gesture at.

Thumb, Tom. See TOM THUMB.

thumb'–and–fin'ger rule. Elec. a A rule that when the fingers of the right hand are bent so that the thumb points in the direction of the decrease in flux, or flux, in a magnetic circuit, the fingers will point in the direction of the induced voltage, or current, in the electric circuit linked with the magnetic circuit. b A rule that when the fingers of the right hand are bent so that they follow the direction of the flow of current through a helical or coil conductor, the thumb will point in the direction of the flux through the helix or coil. Cf. FLEMINGS RULE, LENZ'S LAW, illustration under ELECTROMAGNET.

thumb'bird' (thŭm'bûrd'), n. The European goldcrest. Local, Eng.

thumb bottle. A phial.

thumb box. A small box to contain painting materials, a panel for mixing colors, and a small canvas or board, and having thumb hole or other device by which it can be held upon the thumb, like a palette, in making small sketches, usually in oil.

thumb cleat. Naut. A small cleat with but one horn, used on yards and booms.

thumbed (thŭmd), adj. 1. Having thumbs.

2. Soiled by handling; hence, much used.

thumb'er (thŭm'ĕr), n. One who thumbs.

thumb flint. Archaeol. A flint tool having a place for the thumb in grasping, and used probably as a scraper.

thumb hole. An opening in which to insert the thumb; specif., in making paper boxes or similar containers, a cut in the sides or ends to facilitate lifting the cover. — thumb holing.

thumb index. A ready-reference book index consisting of rounded thumb notches cut symmetrically on the front or fore edge of a book and a tab, denoting the letter (as on a dictionary) or section reference of the book, affixed on the leaf forming the base of each notch.

thumb knot. An overhand knot. See 2d KNOT, 1, Table.

thumb lancet. A lancet with a wide double-edged blade. See LANCET, n., 2, Illust.

thum'ble (thŭm'b'l; thōōm'-'l), v. t. To handle awkwardly. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

thumb'less (thŭm'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Without a thumb; hence, clumsy.

thumb lock. A lock so devised as to be released by pressure with the thumb.

thumb loose. Archery. The release of a bowstring drawn with the thumb.

thumb'mark' (thŭm'märk'), n. a The mark left by the impression of a thumb, as on the leaves of a book. b Specif. Anthropom., an impression from the thumb as a mark of identification. c A depression in the sides of a single comb of a fowl, considered a defect in show birds. d Colloq. A pit or cupule on the exterior of a meteorite.

thumb'mark', v. t. To mark with the thumb; also, to take a thumbmark of, as for purposes of identification.

thumb'–marked' (-märkt'), adj. Marked with the thumb; esp., soiled by much use; hence, commonplace.

I was beginning to console her with what thumbmarked scraps of platitude I could collect. W. J. Locke.

thumb'nail' (thŭm'nāl'; 66), n. The nail of the thumb; hence, something of the size of such a nail.

thumb'nail', adj. Of the size of the thumbnail; hence, small; complete in little; as, a thumbnail sketch.

thumb notch. A notch, of a size to admit the tip of a thumb, cut in the outer edges of the pages of a book for the insertion of index letters or headings. See THUMB INDEX.

thumb nut. Any nut designed to be turned by thumb and finger; as: a A wing nut. b A nut with a knurled edge.

thumb pad. The pad of flesh over the thumb; specif., in certain frogs, a pad over the inner metacarpal bone.

thumb'piece' (thŭm'pēs'), n. 1. An appendage to a handle, as of a vessel, to afford a hold for the thumb.

2. Any part designed to be operated by the thumb, or thumb and fingers; as: a A small inside knob for a night latch. b A small knob, button, or the like, to operate a catch, as of a bracelet.

3. A covering or guard to protect the thumb.

thumb pin. = THUMBTACK, n.

thumb piston. In an organ, a knob which can be pushed in like a piston and pneumatically cause the combination of several stops.

thumb plane. A very small carpenter's plane, used in more or less inaccessible places, as in moldings, rabbets, etc.

thumb pot. Hort. The smallest size of flower pot, used for starting seedlings, etc.

thumb'print' (thŭm'prĭnt'), n. An impression made by the thumb, esp. a print made by the inside of the first joint and showing its characteristic lineation. Cf. FINGERPRINT. — v. t. To make a thumbprint or thumbprints of.

thumb ring. 1. A ring worn on the thumb.

2. A ring fastened to something, as to a sword guard, to receive or protect the thumb in holding it.

3. A broad ring, made of bone, jade, ivory or the like, to protect the drawing thumb of an Oriental archer.

thumb'rope' (thŭm'rōp'; thōōm'-; thōōm'-), n. A rope made by twisting hay or straw round the thumb. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

thumb rule. = RULE OF THUMB.

thumb'screw' (thŭm'skrōō'), n. 1. A screw having a flatsided or knurled head, so that it may be turned by the thumb and forefinger.

2. An old instrument of torture for compressing the thumb by a screw; a thumbkin.

thumb'screw', v. t. To torture by use of the thumbscrew; also, to coerce by or as by such torture.

thumbs down. A gesture of condemnation; — from the practice of spectators at a Roman gladiatorial contest of expressing disapproval by extending the thumb from a clenched fist. See POLLICE VERSO.

thumb'stall' (thŭm'stôl'), n. A protective covering for the thumb; specif.: a A kind of thimble or ferrule of iron, horn, or leather, for protecting the thumb in making sails, and in other work. b Eccl. = POUCER. c Mil. A pad, or cushion, worn on the thumb, and used to close the vent of an old-fashioned cannon while it is sponged or loaded.

thumb'string' (-strĭng'), n. Music. On a banjo or other plectrum instrument, the string played with the thumb; the melody string.

thumbs up. a A mistranslation of pollice verso, equivalent to thumbs down (extended). b Erroneously in English use, as if in contrast to thumbs down as a gesture to signify approval.

thumb'tack' (thŭm'tăk'), n. A short steel point with a broad flat head, for pressing into a board by the thumb, as to secure a sheet of drafting paper.

thumb'tack', v. t. To fasten with a thumbtack.

thumb turn. A part designed to be turned by the thumb and finger.

thumb'y (thŭm'ĭ), adj. Awkward; clumsy.

Thum'mim (thŭm'ĭm), n. pl. [Heb. tummīm, (after a vowel) thummīm, pl. of tōm completeness, perfection.] See URIM.

thump (thŭmp), n. [Imitative. Cf. BUMP.] 1. A blow or knock, as with something blunt or heavy; also, the sound made by such a blow.

The watchman gave so great a thump at my door. Tatler.

2. pl. Veter. A peculiar throbbing movement of the sides of the chest caused by spasmodic contractions of the diaphragm. It is analogous to hiccups in man. Sometimes confused with palpitation of the heart.

thump, v.; THUMPED (thŭmpt); THUMP'ING. Transitive: 1. To strike or beat with or as if with something thick or heavy, or so as to cause a dull sound; loosely, to pound; knock; hammer; also, to cudgel; thrash; whip.

2. To force or drive as if by repeated thumps; as, to thump knowledge into the thickest of heads.

3. To produce by means of repeated thumps; — usually with out; as, to thump out a tune on the piano.

——, Intransitive: 1. To give a thump or thumps; to strike or fall with a heavy blow; to pound; of the heart, to beat heavily.

2. To walk with heavy, pounding steps; to pound along.

thump'–cush'ion, n. A minister who tries to gain emphasis by pounding on the cushion of his pulpit. Colloq.

thump'er, n. a One that thumps; esp., a heavy blow. b Slang. Something extra large or great; a stunner.

thump'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of THUMP. Specif.: adj. Heavy; big. Colloq. — thump'ing·ly, adv. Colloq.

Thun·ber'gi·a (thŭn·bûr'jĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after C. P. Thunberg, Sw. botanist.] Bot. a A large genus of herbs or twining woody vines (family Acanthaceae), natives of the tropics of the Old World. They have opposite leaves and large flowers succeeded by beaked capsules. T. alata, having buff or yellow flowers with a dark-purple center, is cultivated, as are other species. See BLACK-EYED SUSAN, 2 d. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

thun·ber'gi·lene (-lēn), n. Chem. A liquid sesquiterpene, $C_{15}H_{24}$, found in oil of turpentine from the Japanese pine Pinus thunbergii.

thun'der (thŭn'dĕr), n. [ME. thunder, thonder, thoner, fr. AS. thunor; akin to thunian to stretch, to thunder, D. donder thunder, G. donner, OHG. donar, ON. Thōrr Thor, L. tonare to thunder, tonitrus thunder, Skr. stanati stanayati, it thunders, tanyatu a din, a thundering, Gr. stenein to moan. Cf. ASTONISH, BLUNDERBUSS, DETONATE, STUN, THURSDAY, TORNADO.] 1. The sound which follows a flash of lightning, due to the sudden expansion of the air in the path of the discharge. International symbol, T. Since sound travels about 1,100 feet per second and light immensely faster, the interval between the lightning and thunder is about five seconds for each mile of distance between the observer and the discharge. When the distance is considerable the sound becomes rolling, partly because of reflection from the ground, clouds, etc.

2. A discharge of lightning; a thunderbolt; also, a thunderstorm. Now Rare.

3. Any noise likened to thunder; as, the thunder of cannon.

4. An alarming or startling threat or denunciation.

The thunders of the Vatican. Prescott.

5. Figuratively, a look betokening indignation and a possible outburst of anger.

Thunder sat imminent upon the missionary's brow. Owen Wister.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

thunder-armed	thunder-guiding	thunder-smitten thunder-baffled	thunder-hid	thunder-splintered thunder-breathing	thunder-laden	thunder-split thunder-charged	thunder-named	thunder-splitten thunder-darting	thunder-rejoicing	thunder-teeming thunder-delighting	thunder-riven	thunder-throwing thunder-footed	thunder-scarred	thunder-thwarted thunder-forging	thunder-scathed	thunder-tipped thunder-fearless	thunder-ruling	thunder-tongued thunder-fraught	thunder-shod	thunder-voiced thunder-free	thunder-slain	thunder-wielding thunder-girt

— to steal one's thunder. See under STEAL, v.

thun'der (thŭn'dĕr), v.; -DERED (-dĕrd); -DER·ING. [ME. thunderen, thuneren, fr. AS. thunrian. See THUNDER, n.] Intransitive: 1. To produce thunder; to sound, rattle, or roar as the effect of a discharge of atmospheric electricity; also, formerly, to lighten; — often impersonal; as, it thundered loud.

2. To give forth a sound likened to thunder, as a voice.

3. To utter violent denunciation.

4. To move, go, progress with the accompaniment of loud reverberations, suggesting thunder. "When new factory districts were thundering into life." Tarkington.

——, Transitive: 1. To emit with a noise of, or likened to, thunder; specif., to utter vehemently, as censure.

2. To strike with a sound likened to thunder; — used hyperbolically; as, to thunder blows upon an antagonist.

3. To produce, express, convey, or the like by, or with the accompaniment of, a thundering noise; — often with out; as, the crowd thundered its applause; the cannon thundered out a welcome.

thun'der, interj. An exclamation expressing emphatic displeasure. Colloq.

thunder and lightning. a A fabric woven of two contrasting colors, as black and yellow. b A cloth of Oxford gray.

thun'der–and–light'ning, adj. Of contrasting colors, as black and white; also, of a startling color.

thunder ax. A celt. Cornwall.

thun'der·bear'er (thŭn'dĕr·bâr'ĕr), n. He who bears the thunder, — an epithet of Jupiter. — thun'der·bear'ing, adj.

thun'der·bird' (-bûrd'), n. 1. Zool. An Australian thickhead (Pachycephala pectoralis). The male is marked with black and yellow, with a black crescent on the breast.

2. Anthropol. a Among American Indians, a mythical bird causing lightning and thunder, frequently a supernatural eagle conceived as the spirit or god of thunder. Similar beliefs are found among certain African tribes. b A figure of a bird with outstretched wings, common in aboriginal North American art; — a conventional bird design.

thun'der·blast' (-blăst'; 83), n. A peal of thunder. — v. t. To blast with thunder (lightning).

thun'der·bolt' (-bōlt'), n. 1. A single discharge of lightning with the accompanying thunder; — so called from the idea that it was caused by a bolt thrown by a god.

2. An imaginary bolt, or elongated projectilelike mass, conceived of as the missile cast to earth in the lightning flash.

3. Specif.: a A stone or stone implement, such as a hatchet or arrowhead, superstitiously thought to be the material part of lightning. b Rare. = THUNDERSTONE.

4. A person or thing likened to lightning in suddenness, effectiveness, and destructive power; as, Caesar was a thunderbolt of war.

5. Vehement threatening or censure; esp., ecclesiastical denunciation; fulmination. Hakewill.

6. Her. A twisted bar inflamed at the ends, between two wings, and with four jagged darts issuant from its center.

thun'der·bolt', v. t. To assail with thunderbolts. Obs.

Thunderbolt of Italy. The French general Gaston de Foix (1489–1512), Duc de Nemours; — so called on account of his rapid and successful maneuvers in Italy.

thun'der·burst' (thŭn'dĕr·bûrst'), n. A burst of thunder. R.

thun'der·clap' (-klăp'), n. a A clap or crash of thunder. b Something likened to or suggesting a clap of thunder, as in suddenness, sound, and effect; as, the thunderclap of the declaration of war.

thun'der·cloud' (-kloud'), n. a A cloud charged with electricity, and producing lightning and thunder. b Something threatening, suggesting a thundercloud (sense a).

thun'der·crack' (-krăk'), n. A thunderclap.

thun'der–dirt' (-dûrt'), n. A New Zealand edible basidiomycete (Ileodictyon cibarium). Colloq., New Zealand.

thun'der·er (-ĕr), n. One who or that which thunders.

Thun'der·er, the. a Zeus or Jupiter. b The London Times; — popularly so called, orig. from the powerful articles contributed by one of its editors, Edward Sterling (1773–1847).

thun'der·fish' (thŭn'dĕr·fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'-ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. a A European loach (Misgurnus fossilis) which burrows in the mud at the bottom of streams and ponds and is supposed to foretell the occurrence of thunderstorms by swimming about in the water. b The electric catfish.

thun'der·flow'er (-flou'ĕr), n. Dial. Eng. a The stitchwort. b The corn poppy. c The white campion (Lychnis alba).

thun'der–god'. A deity showing itself in thunder or thunder storms; specif., the god, or manito, of thunder, important in the mythologies of the Siouan and Ojibway Indians.

thun'der–gust', n. A thunderstorm with wind.

thun'der·head' (thŭn'dĕr·hĕd'), n. a A rounded mass of cumulus cloud, with shining white edges, often appearing before a thunderstorm. b Something menacing, suggesting a thunderhead (sense a). — thun'der·head'ed (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj.

thun'der·ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of THUNDER. Hence: n. Thunder.

thun'der·ing, adj. 1. Emitting thunder or a sound likened to thunder.

Roll the thundering chariot o'er the ground. J. Trumbull.

2. Big; extraordinary; unusual; as, a thundering lie, fish. — thun'der·ing·ly, adv.

Thundering Legion. The Twelfth Roman legion, said to have been composed of Christians, to whose prayers was attributed a thunderstorm which tended greatly to discomfort the Quadi (A.D. 174). Long before this the Twelfth legion bore on its shields the device of Jupiter brandishing the thunderbolt.

thulir, n., sing. of THULIR.

thum. Thumb. Ref. Sp.

thumb'kin (thŭm'kĭn), n. = THUMBSCREW, n., 2.

thumb'like', adj. See -LIKE.

thumd. Thumbed. Ref. Sp.

thu'mic (thū'mĭk). Var. of THYMIC.

thum'lun·gur, n. sing. & pl. [Icel., thumb on a glove, inch. See THUMB.] See MEASURE, Table.

thumpt. Thumped. Ref. Sp.

Thun'ar (thōōn'ĕr), n. [AS. thunor. See THUNDER, THOR.] Equiv. of DONAR or THOR.

thun'der·a'tion (thŭn'dĕr·ā'shŭn), interj. = THUNDER, interj. Slang, U. S.

thun'der·ball', n. = THUNDERBOLT, 2.

thun'der·beat', v. i. To beat as with a thunderbolt. Obs.

thun'der·bounce', n. A noise like thunder. Obs.

thun'derd. Thundered. Ref. Sp.

thun'der·dart', n. A thunderbolt. Obs.

thun'der·dint', n. A stroke of lightning with thunder. Obs.

thun'der·ful, adj. See -FUL.

thun'der-light (thŭn'dĕr-līt'), n. Lightning. Archaic.

thunder on the left. A propitious omen; — the Roman augur faced south and thus had the east, which was regarded as the lucky quarter (being the source of light), on his left.

thun'der-ous (thŭn'dĕr-ŭs), adj. Producing thunder; also, making or accompanied by a noise like thunder. — thun'der-ous-ly, adv. — thun'der-ous-ness, n.

thun'der-peal' (-pēl'), n. A thunderclap. — v. t. & i. To sound by or as by a thunderclap.

thunder planet. Probably, a comet Dial. Eng.

thunder plant. The houseleek.

thun'der-plump' (thŭn'dĕr-plŭmp'), n. A heavy rain with a thunderstorm. Rare exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

thunder pumper. a Often thun'der-pump'. The American bittern. b The fresh-water drumfish. See DRUMFISH.

thunder rod. A lightning rod. Rare.

thun'der-show'er (thŭn'dĕr-shou'ĕr), n. A shower accompanied with lightning and thunder.

thun'der-smite' (-smīt'), v. t.; -SMOTE' (-smōt'); -SMIT'ING (-smīt'ĭng). To strike with or as with a thunderbolt.

thunder snake. a The milk snake; also, any of certain closely related species. b A reddish, colubrid, ground snake (Carphophis amoena) of the eastern United States.

thunder spirit. Thunder-god.

thun'der-squall' (thŭn'dĕr-skwôl'), n. A squall attended with lightning and thunder.

thun'der-stone' (-stōn'), n. a A thunderbolt; esp., a more or less cylindrical or tapering stone popularly supposed to be a thunderbolt. These stones may be fossil belemnite shells, prehistoric stone implements, natural concretions, meteorites, etc. Cf. THUNDERBOLT, 3 a; ELF ARROW. Now Chiefly Dial.

thun'der-storm' (-stôrm'), n. A storm accompanied with lightning and thunder. International symbol, ⛈.

thun'der-strike' (-strīk'), v. t.; past tense -STRUCK' (-strŭk'); past part. -STRUCK', -STRICK'EN (-strĭk'ĕn); pres. part. & verbal n. -STRIK'ING (-strīk'ĭng). 1. To strike, blast, or injure by or as by lightning. Rare.

2. To astonish, or strike dumb, as with something terrible; — rarely used except in the past participle.

Drove them before him, thunderstruck. Milton.

thun'der-stroke' (-strōk'), n. A stroke by or as by lightning with the attendant thunder.

thun'der-struck' (-strŭk'), adj. Also thun'der-strick'en (-strĭk'ĕn). Literally, struck by a thunderbolt; hence, struck by astonishment, fear, or the like; astounded; confounded.

thunder tube. A fulgurite. Colloq.

thun'der-wood (thŭn'dĕr-wŏŏd'), n. The poison sumac.

thun'der-worm' (-wûrm'), n. A small burrowing worm-like limbless lizard (Rhineura floridana) of the family Leposternidae, native of Florida; — so called because it leaves its burrows after a thundershower.

thun'der-wort' (-wûrt'), n. The houseleek.

thun'der-y (thŭn'dĕr-ĭ), adj. Collog. a Sounding like thunder. b Accompanied with, or indicating, thunder; thunderous. c Cross; angry-looking.

thun'drous (-drŭs), adj. Thunderous. — thun'drous-ly, adv.

thunge (thŭnj; thŏŏnj; 140), n. [Imitative.] A loud, hollow sound; also, a blow causing it. — v. i. To thump; bang. Both Dial. Eng.

Thun'ni-dæ (thŭn'ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL. See TUNNY; -IDAE.] Zool. The family of fishes (order Percomorphi) to which the tunnies and albacores belong. The type genus is Thun'nus (-ŭs).

thuoc (tŭŏk), n. sing. & pl. [Annamese thŭ̀ĕk (written thư'o'c).] See MEASURE, Table.

Thur·be'ri·a (thûr·bē'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after G. Thurber (1821–90), Am. botanist.] Bot. A small genus of shrubby herbs of the mallow family (Malvaceae) differing from the closely related cottons (Gossypium) in having a 3-celled capsule. T. thespesioides of Arizona and Mexico, a kind of wild cotton, is also a host plant of the boll weevil.

Thurberia weevil. A variety of the boll weevil (Anthonomus grandis thurberiae) native to Arizona, where it feeds on a wild cotton (Thurberia thespesioides). It also attacks cultivated cotton in that region. See BOLL WEEVIL.

thu'ri·ble (thū'rĭ·b'l), n. [L. thuribulum, turibulum, fr. t(h)us, t(h)uris, incense, frankincense, fr. Gr. thyos incense, sacrifice. See THYME.] Eccl. A censer.

thu·rib'u·ler (thū·rĭb'ū·lĕr), n. A thurifer. Rare.

thu·rib'u·lum (-lŭm), n. [L.] A thurible. Rare.

thu'ri·fer (thū'rĭ·fĕr), n. [L. thurifer, turifer, fr. t(h)us frankincense + ferre to bear.] Eccl. One who carries a thurible, formerly an acolyte (in orders), but now usually an altar boy.

thu·rif'er·ous (thū·rĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [See THURIFER.] Producing or bearing frankincense.

thu·rif'i·cate (-ĭ·kāt), n. [LL. thurificatus, past part.] One of the thurificati.

thu'ri·fi·ca'ti (thū'rĭ·fĭ·kā'tī), n. pl. [L.] Eccl. Hist. Christians who, to escape death, esp. in the Decian persecution, offered incense to the Roman gods thu'ri·fy (thū'rĭ·fī), v. i. & t. [F. thurifier. See THURIFICATE.] To cense. — thu'ri·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ·kā'shŭn), n.

Thu·rin'gi·an, adj. Of or pertaining to Thuringia or the Thuringians; Geol., designating the upper division of the European Permian. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

thu·rin'gite (-jīt), n. [From Thuringia.] Mineral. A hydrous aluminum iron silicate, occurring as an aggregation of minute scales having an olive-green color and pearly luster.

Thu'ri·o (thū'rĭ·ō), n. A foolish rival to Valentine in Shakespeare's Two Gentlemen of Verona.

thurl (thûrl), n. The hip joint in cattle.

thurl, thurle. Vars. of THIRL. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

thurm (thûrm), v. t. Cabinetmaking. To work (a table leg, molding, etc.) with saw and chisel across the grain, so as to produce, esp. in an upright square member, patterns like those produced by turning.

thur'mus (thûr'ȧ-mŭs), v. i. [Ir. taírmeasc to shun, forbid, hinder.] To sulk. Anglo-Ir.

Thurn and Tax'is (thûrn ȧnd tăk'sĭs; G. tōorn). An Austrian princely house which held the postal monopoly of the later Holy Roman Empire; the monopoly was purchased by Prussia in 1867.

Thur'ni·a (thûr'nĭ·ȧ), n. [After Sir E. F. Im Thurn (b. 1852), Eng. colonial official and geographer.] Bot. A small genus of rushlike herbs constituting a family, Thur'ni·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē-ē), of the order Liliales, with only two species, found in British Guiana. They differ from the closely related Juncus in having heads of flowers on 3-angled stalks, with long bracts, and in the perianth parts being all similar.

thur'rock (thûr'ŭk), n. [AS. thurruc.] 1. The hold of a ship. Obs.

2. A covered drain. Dial. Eng.

Thurs'day (thûrz'dĭ; 89), n. [ME. Thursdaye, thuresdai, thoresday, fr. AS. Thunres dæg day of Thunor, and ON. Thōrsdagr, fr. Thōrr Thor, the god of thunder; cf. D. Donderdag Thursday, G. Donnerstag. See THUNDER; DAY. Cf. THOR.] The fifth day of the week; the day following Wednesday.

thurse (thûrs), n. [AS. thyre demon.] a Obs. A giant. b Obs. exc. in place names. A wicked spirit or apparition.

Thu'ry' thread (tü'rē'). [After Thury, a Swiss designer.] Mach. A form of screw thread used in certain Swiss watches. See SCREW THREAD, Table.

thus (thŭs), n. [L. thus, tus, frankincense. See THURIBLE.] A crude, nearly solid turpentine; — called also gum thus and common frankincense.

thus (thŭs), adv. [AS.; akin to OFris. & OS. thus, D. dus, E. that; cf. OHG. sus. See THAT.] 1. In this or that manner, way, etc.; on this wise.

Thus God the heaven created, thus the earth. Milton.

2. To this degree or extent; so far; so; as, thus wise; thus peaceable; thus bold; thus much. Shak.

3. Because of this or that; consequently; hence.

thus and so. In a manner stated or to be stated; as, he reported that he had done thus and so in the matter.

thus and thus. In this way and in that, explained in detail.

Thu'shi (tōō'shē), n. sing. & pl. A small tribe of the Chechen group of north Caucasian Japhetics northwest of Dagestan, Caucasus.

thus'ly (thŭs'lĭ), adv. In this manner; to this degree; thus. Colloq.

thus'wise' (-wīz'), adv. Thus; so.

thut'ter (thŭt'ĕr), n. [Imitative.] A dull, throbbing, or sputtering sound. — thut'ter, v. i.

thwack (thwăk), v. t.; THWACKED (thwăkt); THWACK'ING. [Cf. THACK to thump, WHACK.] 1. To strike with something flat or heavy; to bang; whack.

2. To thrash; defeat; crush.

3. To fill to overflowing; to pack. Obs.

4. To drive, force, knock, or the like, with thwacks or blows; as, he tried to thwack some sense into his head.

5. Tilemaking. To beat (a half-dried pantile) into shape.

thwack, n. A heavy blow with or as if with something flat or heavy; a whack.

thwack'er (-ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which thwacks; specif., Tilemaking, a wooden implement with which a half-dried pantile is beaten, to take out any warping.

2. Something large or unusual; a whacker; as, that lie was a thwacker. Colloq.

thwack'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of THWACK. Hence: adj. That thwacks, or is used by one who thwacks. — thwack'ing·ly, adv.

thwacking frame. Tilemaking. A frame to hold the tile for thwacking.

thwacking horse. A kind of table to elevate a thwacking frame.

thwacking knife. A knife to trim the wing of the thwacked pantile.

thwacking stool. A stool to hold a thwacking frame.

thwack'stave' (thwăk'stāv'), n. A stave for thwacking; a cudgel.

Thwack'um (thwăk'ŭm), n. A pedagogue in Fielding's History of Tom Jones. See SQUARE, MR.

thwaite (thwāt), n. [ON. thveit a piece of land. See WHITTLE.] Forest land cleared and converted to tillage; an assart; a field or piece of land used as a meadow, etc.; — now chiefly in names of places in England, as in Rosthwaite, Stonethwaite. See Pron., § 3, ¶ 9.

thwart (thwôrt; naut. thôrt), adj. [ME. thwert, adv., fr. ON. thvert, orig. neut. of thverr athwart, transverse; akin to AS. thweorh perverse, transverse, cross, D. dwars, OHG. dwerah, twerh, G. zwerch, quer, Dan. & Sw. tver athwart, transverse, Sw. tvär cross, unfriendly, Goth. thwairhs angry. Cf. QUEER.] 1. Situated or placed across something else; transverse; oblique. "Thwart obliquities." Milton.

2. Obs. a Perverse; stubborn; intractable. b Pert; saucy.

thwart, adv. Thwartly; athwart. See FLAT, adj., 11.

thwart, prep. [See THWART, adj.; cf. ATHWART.] Archaic or Dial. 1. Across; athwart.

2. Across from; opposite to.

thwart, n. 1. Opposition; obstruction. Obs.

2. Naut. A rower's seat reaching athwart a boat.

3. Shipbuilding. One of the short crosspieces supporting the stages and secured to one or two of the uprights erected alongside of a vessel in process of construction.

thwart, v.; THWART'ED; THWART'ING. [See THWART, adj.] Transitive: 1. To move or pass through or across, as, an arrow thwarts the air. Obs.

2. To interpose; as, to thwart a shield before one. Obs.

3. To cross; to place crosswise. Rare.

4. To oppose or baffle, as a purpose; to run counter to; to contravene; hence to frustrate or defeat; obstruct; block.

If crooked fortune had not thwarted me. Shak.

—, Intransitive: Rare. 1. To go or extend in an oblique or crosswise manner.

2. Hence, to be in opposition; clash; quarrel.

Rules that militate and thwart with each other. Blackstone.

Syn. and Ant. — See FRUSTRATE.

thwart circle. The ecliptic. Obs.

thwart'eous (thwôrt'yŭs), adj. Stubborn; obstinate; perverse.

thwart'er (thwôr'tĕr), n. [From THWART, v.] One who or that which thwarts.

thwart'er, n. [From THWARTOVER.] Veter. A disease in sheep, indicated by shaking, trembling, or convulsive motions.

thwart'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of THWART. Hence: adj. Perverse; contradictory; also, Obs., of eyes, crossed. — thwart'ing·ly, adv.

thwart'ing, n. Crookedness; twisting; indirectness; also, perverseness, as of disposition.

thwart'man (thwôrt'măn; naut. thôrt'-), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). Naut. A rower; esp., a rower in a naval cutter or whaleboat.

thwart'-marks', n. pl. Naut. Objects on land which, when in range, mark a safe course, a reef, etc. Rare.

thwart motion. Astron. A star's motion across, or at right angles to, the line of sight.

thwart'o'ver (thwôrt'ō'vĕr), adj. [thwart, adv. + over. Cf. 2d THWARTER.] Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. a Transverse; cross. b Perverse; also, self-willed.

thwart'o'ver, prep. Across. Obs.

thwart'saw' (-sô'), n. A crosscut saw. Now Dial.

thwart'ship (thwôrt'shĭp; naut. thôrt'-), adj. Naut. Lying, or leading, athwartship; as, a thwartship spar or tackle. — thwart'ships (-shĭps), adv.

Thwing's law (twĭngz). [After C. B. Thwing (b. 1860), Am. physicist.] Elec. The empirical law that for many substances the specific inductive capacity is about 2.6 times the density.

thwite (thwīt), v. t. [AS. thwītan. See WHITTLE.] To cut; carve. Obs. exc. Dial. — v. i. To whittle. Dial.

thwit'tle (thwĭt'l), v. t. [See THWITE.] To cut or whittle. — n. = WHITTLE, a knife. Both Obs. exc. Dial.

thy (thī), pron. [ME. thy, thi, shortened fr. thin. See THINE.] Historical possessive case of thou. See THINE.

thy, adj. Chiefly Archaic & Poetic. 1. Of or belonging to thee or thyself as possessor; associated or connected with thee; as, for thy sake; pick up thy staff; thy neighbor.

2. Of or relating to thee as author, agent, etc.; as, thy rising.

3. Of or relating to thee as object of an action; as, thy guide.

Thy·es'te·an (thī·ĕs'tē·ăn; thĭ'ĕs·tē'ăn), adj. Also Thy·es'ti·an (thī·ĕs'tĭ·ăn). [L. Thyesteus, fr. Gr. Thyesteios.] Of or pertaining to Thyestes.

Thyestean banquet. A banquet at which human flesh is eaten.

Thy·es'tes (thī·ĕs'tēz), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thyestēs.] A son of Pelops. See ATREUS.

Thy'iad (thī'ȧd; -ăd), n.; pl. THYIADS (-ȧdz; -ădz) or THYIADES (thī·ī'ȧ·dēz; thī'yȧ-). [L. Thyias, -adis, fr. Gr. Thyias, Thyas, a Bacchante. See FURY.] Gr. Relig. One of a group of women devoted to the orgiastic worship of Dionysus, especially as practiced on Mount Parnassus.

thy'ine (thī'ĭn), adj. [LL. thyinus, fr. Gr. thyinos, fr. thyia, thya, an African tree; akin to Gr. thyon a tree the wood of which was burned as perfume, thyein to sacrifice. See THYME; cf. THUJA.] Of or pertaining to the sandarac tree, or its fragrant wood. Rev. xviii. 12.

thyine wood. The fragrant and beautiful wood of the sandarac tree of Morocco. See SANDARAC TREE a.

The possession of thyine wood was supposed to bring good luck, and its sacredness arose from the fact that from it was produced the incense used by the priests. F. Litchfield.

thy'la·cine (thī'lȧ·sīn; -sĭn; 156), n. [Gr. thylax a sack, pouch.] A carnivorous dasyurine marsupial (Thylacynus cynocephalus) of Tasmania, slightly larger than a fox and of doglike appearance. It is smooth-haired and grayish brown, with conspicuous black bands on the hinder half of the back and the base of the tapering tail. It is destructive to sheep, and has been nearly exterminated. Called also Tasmanian wolf.

(1/25)

Thylacine.

thy'la·ci'tis (thī'lȧ·sī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thylax a pouch + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the oil-secreting glands of the skin.

Thy'la·co'le·o (-kō'lē·ō), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thylakos sack + leōn lion.] Paleontol. A genus of Pleistocene Australian marsupials, having a skull about the size of that of a lion, large tusks, and crushing molars.

Thy·lac'y·nus, or Thy·lac'i·nus (thī·lăs'ĭ·nŭs; thī'lȧ·sĭ'·nŭs), n. [NL.] Zool. The genus consisting of the thylacine.

thym-. = 1st THYMO-, as in thymol.

thym-. = 2d THYMO- (which see), as in thy·mec'to·mize, thy·mec'to·my, thy'mel·co'sis.

thym·ac'e·tin (thĭm·ăs'ē·tĭn), n. [thymol + acet- + -in.] Pharm. A white crystalline substance, acetyl-amidohydroxyethyl-thymol, used as an antineuralgic.

Thy·mal'li·dae (thī·măl'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Thymallus, type genus (fr. Gr. thymallos an unknown fish) + -idae.] Zool. A family of salmonoid fishes constituted by the graylings. The type genus is Thy·mal'lus (-ŭs).

1 Wild Thyme (Thymus serpyllum); 2 Flower.

thyme (tīm), n. [ME. tyme, fr. OF. tym (F. thym), fr. L. thymum, fr. Gr. thymon; akin to Gr. thymiama perfume, incense, thyein to sacrifice, and L. fumus smoke. See FUME; cf. STEW, THURIBLE, THYINE, TYPHOID, TYPHOON.] 1. a Any mint of the genus Thymus. The common garden thyme (T. vulgaris) is a pungent aromatic, used in seasoning and soups. The common wild creeping thyme is T. serpyllum. b With qualifying word, any of various other plants, as basil thyme, horse thyme.

thun'der-leit', n. Lightning. Obs. thun'der-less, adj. See -LESS. thun'der-like', adj. See -LIKE. thun'der-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. thun'der-shot', adj. Struck by lightning. Obs. thunderstorm cirrus. See CUMULO-CIRRO-STRATUS. thun'der-thump', n. A thunderbolt. Obs. — v. t. To stun with noise. Obs. [DONAR.] Thun'er (thōōn'ĕr). Equiv. of thung, n. & v. i. = THUNGE. Hall Caine. thung. Dial. var. of THONG. thunk. Dial. var. of THONG. thun'ner (thŭn'ĕr); thōōn'ĕ(r). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of THUNDER. thun'ny (thŭn'ĭ), n.; pl. -NIES (-ĭz). Rare var. of TUNNY.
Thun'or (thōōn'ôr). [AS.] Equiv. of DONAR or THOR.
thur (thōōr). Dial. Eng. var. of THIR. thurfte. Obs. past tense of THARF. thurgh, thurghe. † THROUGH.
thurghfare. † THOROUGHFARE. thuribule, n. [L. thuribulum.] A thurible. Obs. thurle'pole. Var. of THIRLEPOOL. thur'o. Thorough. Ref. Sp.
Thursday of Holy Week. See HOLIDAY, 3. thurse'hole', n. Also thurse'-house'. [thurse + hole, house.] A vault in a rock or hill. Obs. thurst. Obs. exc. dial. var. of THRUST; past tense of THAR. thurt. Past tense of THAR. thuruh, thuruth. † THOROUGH. thus'gate', adv. Also thus'gates'. In this way; thus. Obs. thus'much' (66), adv. To this degree or quantity. Obs. thus'ness, n. See -NESS. Rare exc. Hum. thus'ty. Dial. var. of THIRSTY. thus'with', adv. In this manner. Obs.
Thu'ya (thū'yȧ). Syn. var. of THUJA. thu'yin (-yĭn). Var. of THUJIN = QUERCITRIN.
Thu·yop'sis (thū·yŏp'sĭs), n. Syn. var. of THUJOPSIS. thwackt. Thwacked. Ref. Sp. thwaite shad (thwāt). See SHAD, 1. thwang (thwăng). Var. of THONG. Obs. exc. Dial. [past part.] thwart'ed·ly, adv. of thwarted, thwart'ly, adv. of THWART. thwart'ness, n. See -NESS. thwart'ways', adv. See -WAYS. thwart'wise' (-wīz'), adj. & adv. See -WISE. Rare. [MOTION.] thwartwise motion. = THWART' thwick'-thwack', n. Interchange of thwacks. Obs. thworl (thwûrl). Var. of WHORL.
thy. † THIGH.
thy·lo'sis. Var. of TYLOSIS. thy'mate (thī'măt), n. = THYMOLATE. thym'ay. Var. of THYMY.

2. The color pitch pine.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

thyme-capped thyme-flavored thyme-leaved thyme-fed thyme-grown thyme-scented thyme (tīm), v. t.; THYMED (tīmd); THYM'ING (tīm'ĭng). To cover with thyme; also, to scent with thyme.

thyme camphor. Chem. = THYMOL.

thyme dodder. Clover dodder.

Thym'e·lae'a (thĭm'ē·lē'ȧ; thī'mē-), n. [L., a kind of plant, fr. Gr. thymelaia, fr. thymos, -mon, thyme + elaia olive tree.] Bot. A genus of European and Asiatic herbs and undershrubs, type of the Thymelaeaceae, having small sessile apetalous flowers, the calyx having a spreading border and usually persistent.

Thym'e·lae·a'ce·ae (thĭm'ē·lē·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of tough-barked trees, shrubs, and herbs typifying the order Thymelaeales; the mezereon family. They have entire leaves and capitate apetalous flowers succeeded by drupaceous or capsular fruit. There are 38 genera and over 500 species, natives of temperate climates mainly in the Old World. Thymelaea, Daphne, Pimelea, and Dirca are the most important genera. — thym'e·lae·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Thym'e·lae·a'les (-lēz), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A small order of dicotyledonous plants, mostly shrubs and trees, having apetalous flowers and a single ovule.

thym'e·le (thĭm'ē·lē), n. [Gr. thymelē.] Gr. Antiq. An altar, esp. the small altar of Dionysus standing in the middle of the orchestra of a theater. — thy·mel'ic (thī·mĕl'ĭk), adj. — thy·mel'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj.

thyme'–leaved' pin'weed' (tīm'lēvd'). A low, weedy perennial herb (Lechea minor) of eastern North America, with narrow thymelike leaves and inconspicuous flowers.

thyme–leaved sandwort. A Eurasian, annual, sprawling weed (Arenaria serpyllifolia) naturalized throughout North America, with opposite entire leaves and paniculate, small, white flowers.

thyme–leaved speedwell. A perennial decumbent herb (Veronica serpyllifolia) found throughout Eurasia and the New World, with small, opposite leaves, and blue flowers in short, narrow racemes.

thy·mel'i·ci (thĭ·mĕl'ĭ·sī), n. pl. [L., sing. thymelicus, fr. Gr. thymelikos of the thymele.] Gr. Antiq. The chorus in the theater, which dances around the thymele.

thy'mene (thī'mēn), n. Com. A liquid obtained from certain essential oils in the preparation of thymol, and used for perfuming soap.

thyme oil. See OIL, Table I.

thy·met'ic (thĭ·mĕt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. thymos soul, spirit, heart.] Of or pertaining to the soul, or innermost essence. Rare.

-thy'mi·a (-thī'mĭ·ȧ). [NL.] Psych. A combining form, Greek -thymia, from thymos, spirit, denoting a (specified) condition of mind and will, as in: cac'o·thy'mi·a, cy'clo·thy'mi·a, ly'po·thy'mi·a.

thym'ic (tĭm'ĭk), adj. Pert. to, or derived from, thyme.

thy'mic (thī'mĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to the thymus.

thymic acid. a = THYMOL. b Chem. An acid obtained by heating the nucleic (adenylic) acid of the thymus gland with water.

thy'mi·co·lym·phat'ic (thī'mĭ·kō·lĭm·făt'ĭk), adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to the thymus and lymph glands.

thy'mine (thī'mēn; -mĭn; 157), n. Also thy'min. Chem. A crystalline compound, $C_5H_6N_2O_2$, obtained on decomposition of the nucleic (adenylic) acid of the thymus gland, and from spermatozoa of fishes; 5-methyl-uracil.

thym'i·o'sis (thĭm'ĭ·ō'sĭs; thī'mĭ-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thymion wart + -osis.] Med. a A warty condition. b Frambesia.

thy·mi'tis (thĭ·mī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. 2d thym- + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the thymus.

thy'mo- (thī'mō-), thym-. Chem. A combining form from Greek thymon, thyme, used for thymol, as in thy'mo·quinone', thymacetin.

thy'mo- (thī'mō-), thym-. A combining form from Greek thymos, the thymus, as in *thymo*pathy, *thymo*ma, *thymo*cyte, *thymo*privic.

thy'mo- (thī'mō-). A combining form, Greek thymo-, from thymos, meaning soul, spirit, emotion, as in *thymo*genic, *thymo*psyche, thy'mo·tac'tic.

thy'mo·cyte (thī'mō·sīt), n. [2d thymo- + -cyte.] Med. A cell, esp. a lymphocyte, formed in the thymus.

thy'mo·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk), adj. [3d thymo- + -genic.] Generated by desire or emotion; as, a thymogenic neurosis.

thy'mo·gen'ic, adj. [2d thymo- + -genic.] Veter. Designating or pertaining to origin from the thymus gland.

thy'mol (thī'mōl; -mŏl), n. [thyme + -ol.] Chem. a A white crystalline phenol, $C_{10}H_{13}OH$, of a pleasant aromatic odor and antiseptic properties, occurring in thyme oil and in other essential oils; 3-hydroxy-p-cymene. It is isomeric with carvacrol. b By extension, any of certain isomers of the above; as, o-thymol (2-hydroxy-m-cymene), p-thymol (4-hydroxy-m-cymene).

thy'mo·late (thī'mō·lăt), n. [thymol + -ate.] Chem. A salt of thymol, in its capacity of a weak acid.

thy'mo·lize (-līz), v. t. To impregnate with thymol, as for preservation against putrefaction.

thy'mol·phthal'ein (thī'mōl·thăl'ĭn; -mŏl·fthăl'ē·ĭn), n. Chem. A crystalline compound, $C_{28}H_{30}O_4$, analogous to phenolphthalein. It is used as an indicator.

thy'mol·sul'phone·phthal'ein (-sŭl'fōn·thăl'ĭn; -fthăl'ē·ĭn), n. [thymol + sulphonephthalein.] Chem. A greenish crystalline compound, $C_{28}H_{30}O_5S$, made by condensing o-sulphobenzoyl chloride with thymol, and used as an indicator under the name thymol blue. Its solutions change from red to yellow at *p*H 1.2–2.8, and from yellow to blue at *p*H 8.0–9.6.

thy·mo'ma (thĭ·mō'mȧ), n.; pl. THYMOMATA (-mȧ·tȧ), -MAS (-mȧz). [NL., fr. 2d thym(o)- + -oma.] Med. A tumor originating in the thymus.

thy·mop'a·thy (thĭ·mŏp'ȧ·thĭ), n. [2d thymo- + -pathy.] Med. a Any mental disorder. b Any disease of the thymus.

thy'mo·priv'ic (thī'mō·prĭv'ĭk), adj. [2d thymo- + privic.] Med. Of or pertaining to any condition resulting from loss or deficiency of the thymus.

thy'mo·psy'che (-sī'kē; -psĭ'-), n. [NL., fr. 3d thymo- + -psyche.] Psychol. Emotion and desire.

thy·mot'ic (thĭ·mŏt'ĭk), adj. Also thy'mo·tin'ic (thī'mō·tĭn'ĭk). Chem. Designating certain compounds derived from thymol; as, thymotic acids ($C_{11}H_{14}O_3$); thymotic alcohol ($C_{11}H_{16}O_2$).

thy·mox'y- (thĭ·mŏk'sĭ-). Chem. A combining form, thym- (thymyl) + oxy-, denoting the presence of the univalent radical $C_8H_{13}O$-.

Thy'mus (thī'mŭs), n. [NL. See THYME.] Bot. A large genus of Old World mints having small entire leaves and clustered, purple, 2-lipped flowers. T. vulgaris is thyme.

thy'mus (thī'mŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thymos.] Anat. A gland of lymphoid character and of very uncertain function, regarded by some as concerned with growth, by others as concerned with blood formation. It is developed from the epithelium of one or more branchial clefts of the embryo, and is present, at least in the young, in nearly all vertebrates. In man it lies in the upper part of the thorax and lower part of the throat. It disappears or becomes rudimentary in the adult. In lambs and calves it is one of the glands called sweetbread.

thy'mus, adj. Pert. to, or designating, the thymus gland.

thymus death. Med. a Death caused by enlargement of the thymus. b Status thymicolymphaticus.

thymus histone. A basic protein soluble in water and in dilute acids, insoluble in ammonia, and yielding a high proportion of diamino acid on hydrolysis. Cf. HISTONE.

thym'y (tīm'ĭ), adj.; THYM'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); THYM'I·EST. Of the nature of or resembling thyme; abounding or fragrant with thyme.

thy'myl (thī'mĭl), n. [1st thym- + -yl.] Chem. The univalent radical $C_{10}H_{13}$, of which thymo is the hydroxide. — thy·myl'ic (thĭ·mĭl'ĭk), adj.

Thyn'ni·dae (thĭn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Thynnus, type genus (fr. L. thynnus tunny; see TUNNY) + -idae.] Zool. A family of aculeate Hymenoptera, confined mainly to Australia, having the females wingless and much smaller than the winged males. — thyn'nid (-ĭd), n. & adj.

thyr-. = THYRO- a, as in Thy'ra·den (thī'rȧ·dĕn), a trademark for a certain medicinal compound for the treatment of skin diseases; also [sometimes not cap.], any of the compounds bearing this trade-mark.

thy'ra·tron (thī'rȧ·trŏn), n. [Gr. thyra door + -tron as in electron.] Elec. A gas-filled three-element hot cathode tube in which the grid controls only the start of a unidirectional current.

thy're·o- (thī'rē·ō-), thyre-. A combining form from Greek thyreoeidēs, thyroid, equivalent to thyro-, as in:

thyreoantitoxin	thyreogenic	thyreoiditis thyreoarytenoid	thyreogenous	thyreoitis thyreoarytenoideus	thyreoglobulin	thyreosis thyreocervical	thyreoglossal	thyreotomy thyreocolloid	thyreohyal	thyreotoxicosis thyreoepiglottic	thyreohyoid

Thy're·o·cor'i·dae (-kŏr'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Thyreocoris, type genus (fr. thyreo- + -coris) + -idae.] Zool. A family of Hemiptera including the negro bugs (which see). Syn. Corimelaenidae.

thy're·oid (thī'rē·oid), adj. & n. Anat. Thyroid.

☞ Thyreoid is preferred by anatomists.

thy're·oid·ec'to·my (-ĕk'tō·mĭ), n. Surg. Thyroidectomy.

thy're·o·pro'te·in (-ō·prō'tē·ĭn; -tēn), n. [thyreo- + protein.] Biochem. The protein constituent of the thyroid gland. Cf. THYROGLOBULIN.

Thy're·us (thī'rē·ŭs), n. A friend to Caesar in Shakespeare's Antony and Cleopatra.

Thy·rid'i·dae (thī·rĭd'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thyris a window + -idae.] Zool. A family of small moths, having the wings marked with translucent spots. Thy'ris (thī'rĭs) is the type genus.

thy·rid'i·um (thī·rĭd'ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. thyris a window.] Zool. a A pale spot in the wing vein of certain insects, esp. of the orders Hymenoptera and Trichoptera. b One of a pair of oval pits on the second abdominal tergite of certain hymenoptera. — thy·rid'i·al (-ăl), adj.

-thy·ris (-thĭ·rĭs). [NL.] Zool. A combining form from Greek thyris, a small door, valve, cell, used chiefly in generic names.

thy'ro- (thī'rō-). A combining form for thyroid, denoting: a The thyroid; — in nouns, as in *thyro*tomy. b Thyroid and; — in adjectives, as in *thyro*arytenoid.

thy'ro·an'ti·tox'in (-ăn'tĭ·tŏk'sĭn), n. A substance obtained from the thyroid gland, and formerly believed by some to be its active principle. Cf. THYROXINE.

thy'ro·ar'y·te'noid (-ăr'ĭ·tē'noid), adj. Anat. Connecting the thyroid and arytenoid cartilages of the larynx. — n. The thyroarytenoideus.

thy'ro·ar'y·te·noi'de·us (-ăr'ĭ·tē·noi'dē·ŭs), n. [NL.] Anat. The thyroarytenoid muscle.

thyroarytenoid folds or ligaments. Anat. Either of two pairs of elastic ligaments of the larynx. They are covered by folds of mucous membrane. The superior pair form the false vocal cords, the inferior the true vocal cords. See VOCAL CORDS, LARYNX.

thyroarytenoid muscle. Anat. A muscle lying parallel to, and on the outer side of, each true vocal cord.

thy'ro·car'di·ac (thī'rō·kär'dĭ·ăk), adj. [thyro- + cardiac.] Physiol. & Med. Pertaining to the thyroid gland and the heart, esp. to heart disease caused by primary thyroid disease. — n. One suffering from heart disorder caused by thyrotoxicosis.

thy'ro·cele (thī'rō·sēl), n. [thyro- + -cele.] Med. A tumor of the thyroid gland; goiter.

thy'ro·cer'vi·cal (-sûr'vĭ·kăl; Brit. also -sûr·vī'kăl), adj. [thyro- + cervical.] Anat. Of or pertaining to the neck and the thyroid gland.

thyrocervical trunk. Anat. A short thick artery arising from the subclavian and dividing almost immediately into the inferior thyroid, the transverse scapular, and the transverse cervical arteries.

thy'ro·col'loid (thī'rō·kŏl'oid), n. [thyro- + colloid.] Anat. The colloid substance within the vesicles of the thyroid gland.

thy'ro·ep'i·glot'tic (-ĕp'ĭ·glŏt'ĭk), adj. Anat. Connecting the thyroid cartilage and epiglottis.

thy'ro·ep'i·glot·tid'e·an (-glŏ·tĭd'ē·ăn), adj. Anat. Thyroepiglottic.

thy'ro·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk), adj. Also thy·rog'e·nous (thī·rŏj'ē·nŭs). [thyro- + -genic.] Physiol. & Med. Originating in the thyroid or caused by its action.

thy'ro·glob'u·lin (thī'rō·glŏb'ū·lĭn), n. [thyro- + globulin.] Biochem. A substance exhibiting the general properties of the globulins, obtained from the aqueous extract of the thyroid gland.

thy'ro·glos'sal (-glŏs'ăl), adj. [thyro-+Gr. glōssa tongue.] Anat. & Zool. Pert. to the thyroid gland and tongue; designating a duct in the embryo which is a reminder of the invagination by which the median thyroid gland is formed.

thy'ro·hy'al (-hī'ăl), n. Anat. & Zool. The greater cornu of the hyoid bone; also, the embryonic skeletal element which becomes the greater cornu; in lower forms it may remain as a separate bone or cartilage. See HYOID, adj., a.

thy'ro·hy'oid (thī'rō·hī'oid), adj. 1. Anat. a Connecting the thyroid cartilage of the larynx and the hyoid bone, as the thyrohyoid muscle and thyrohyoid ligaments. There are two lateral thyrohyoid ligaments and a middle one; the middle is broad and is called the thyrohyoid membrane. See LARYNX, Illust. b Pertaining to the thyrohyoid muscle; as, the thyrohyoid nerve, a branch of the hypoglossal nerve.

2. Embryol. Designating, or pertaining to, the first branchial arch (third postoral visceral arch).

thy'ro·hy'oid, n. A thyrohyoid muscle, nerve, or other part.

thyrohyoid arch. Anat. The third branchial arch, the cartilage of which persists as the thyrohyal.

thy'roid (thī'roid), adj. [Gr. thyreoeidēs shield-shaped, fr. thyreos a large, oblong shield + eidos form.] Literally, shield-shaped; — used only in certain Anat. terms, esp.: 1. Designating, pertaining to, or derived from, a large ductless gland (the thyroid gland or body) below the pharynx or in the neck. In man it lies close to the larynx and contains vesicles lined with epithelium and filled with a colloid substance. The thyroid gland occurs in all classes of craniate vertebrates, and is considered homologous with the endostyle of tunicates. It arises as a median ventral outgrowth of the pharynx. Commonly two lateral outgrowths also appear, forming accessory thyroid glands or uniting with the median one as in man. The thyroid gland elaborates a hormone, thyroxine, a complex iodine compound, which increases biological oxidations (basal metabolism) and in young animals has a profound influence on development and growth. Decreased activity of the thyroid gives rise to cystic goiter, suspended activity to cretinism and myxedema. Increased activity causes exophthalmic goiter. There is apparently an important functional relation between the thyroid, the pituitary, and the suprarenals.

2. Designating, or pert. to, the chief cartilage of the larynx.

thy'roid, n. 1. The thyroid gland, cartilage, or other part.

2. Pharm. The prepared thyroid gland of certain food animals, used in treating goiter, cretinism, obesity, etc.

thyroid arteries. Anat. Arteries supplying not only the thyroid gland, but many muscles and other structures of the front of the neck. The superior thyroid arises from the external carotid below the hyoid bone; the inferior thyroid, from the thyrocervical trunk.

thyroid axis. = THYROCERVICAL TRUNK.

thyroid cartilage. See LARYNX.

thyroid dislocation. Surg. Dislocation of the thigh bone into the obturator (or thyroid) foramen.

thy·roi'de·a (thī·roi'dē·ȧ), n. [NL.] Anat. The thyroid gland. See THYROID, adj., 1.

thy'roid·ec'to·mize (thī'roid·ĕk'tō·mīz), v. t. To subject to thyroidectomy.

thy'roid·ec'to·my (-mĭ), n. [thyroid + -ectomy.] The surgical removal of thyroid gland tissue, as in goiter.

thyroid extract. Med. A preparation from the thyroid gland of animals, used for myxedema, cretinism, etc.

thyroid foramen. Anat. = OBTURATOR FORAMEN.

thyroid ganglion. Anat. The middle of the three cervical ganglia of the sympathetic system of each side.

thyroid gland. See THYROID, adj., 1.

thy'roid·ism (thī'roid·ĭz'm), n. Med. a A morbid condition caused by excessive use of thyroid extract. b Hyperthyroidism. c Deficiency in thyroid function, as from defective development or removal of the gland.

thy'roid·i'tis (-ĭ'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. thyroid + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the thyroid gland.

thy'roid·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ī·zā'-), n. Med. Treatment (of a patient) with thyroid extract until evidence of physiological effect is secured.

thy'roid·less, adj. Having no thyroid. See -LESS.

thyroid membrane. Anat. The obturator membrane.

thy'roid·ot'o·my (thī'roid·ŏt'ō·mĭ), n. [See -TOMY.] Surg. The operation of cutting into the thyroid gland.

thyroid veins. Anat. Veins carrying blood from the thyroid gland and other structures of the front of the neck. The superior and middle pairs open into the internal jugular veins, the inferior pair into the innominate veins.

thy'ro·lin'gual (thī'rō·lĭng'gwăl), adj. [thyro- + lingual.] = THYROGLOSSAL.

thy'ro·nine (thī'rō·nēn; -nĭn; 157), n. Also -nin. Biochem. An amino acid, $C_{15}H_{15}NO_4$, of which thyroxine is the tetraiodo derivative; — called also desiodothyroxine.

thy'ro·par'a·thy'roid·ec'to·my (thī'rō·păr'ȧ·thī'roid·ĕk'tō·mĭ), n. [thyro- + parathyroid + -ectomy.] Surgical removal of thyroid and parathyroid glands. — thy'ro·par'a·thy'roid·ec'to·mize (-mīz), v. t.

thy'ro·priv'i·a (-prĭv'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. thyro- + L. privare to deprive.] Med. The condition of hypothyroidism resulting from removal or destructive disease of the thyroid gland. — thy'ro·pri'val (-prī'văl), -priv'ic (-prĭv'ĭk), -pri'vous (-prī'vŭs), adj.

thy'ro·pro'te·in (-prō'tē·ĭn; -tēn), n. The protein constituent of the thyroid gland.

Thy·ros'tra·ca (thī·rŏs'trȧ·kȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thyra door, valve + ostrakon shell.] Zool. The Cirripedia (barnacles) taken as a subclass of Crustacea. — thy·ros'tra·can (-kăn), adj. & n.

thy'ro·ther'a·py (thī'rō·thĕr'ȧ·pĭ), n. [thyro- + therapy.] Med. Treatment of disease with dried thyroid gland or other thyroid preparation.

thy·rot'o·my (thī·rŏt'ō·mĭ), n. [thyro- + -tomy.] Surg. The operation of cutting into the thyroid cartilage.

thy'ro·tox'ic (thī'rō·tŏk'sĭk), adj. [thyro- + -toxic.] Med. Of, pertaining to, or affected by, thyrotoxicosis.

thy'ro·tox'i·co'sis (-tŏk'sĭ·kō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. thyro- + toxicosis.] Med. A state of intoxication due to excessive or abnormal activity of the thyroid gland, and characterized by rapid action of the heart, tremors, increased basal metabolism, and structural abnormalities.

thy·rox'ine (thī·rŏk'sēn; -sĭn; 157), n. Also -in [thyr- + 1st ox- + -in.] Biochem. The white, crystalline, active principle, $C_{15}H_{11}I_4NO_4$, of the thyroid gland; tetraiodothyronine. It has been synthesized, and is used for goiter, cretinism, obesity, etc. See THYROID, adj., 1.

thyrse (thûrs), n. [F. See THYRSUS.] Bot. A thyrsus.

thyrsi-. Bot. A combining form for thyrsus, as in: thyrsiferous, thyrsiflorous, thyrsiform.

Thyr'sis (thûr'sĭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Thyrsis.] 1. A herdsman in Theocritus; also, a shepherd in Vergil's seventh Eclogue, who has a poetical contest with Corydon; hence, in modern pastorals, any shepherd or rustic.

2. An elegiac poem (1865) by Matthew Arnold, upon the death of Arthur Hugh Clough.

---

thy'me·gol (thī'mē·gōl; -gŏl), n. [thym- + egol.] See EGOL.

thy'mi·a'ma, n. Incense. Obs.

thymol blue. See THYMOLSULPHONEPHTHALEIN.

thy'mo·pri'vous (thī'mō·prĭ'vŭs), adj. = THYMOPRIVIC.

thym'ous (tīm'ŭs), adj. Full of thyme. Obs.

thy'ro·o·ad'e·ni'tis (thī'rō·ō·ăd'ē·nī'tĭs), n. [NL.] Med. = THYROIDITIS.

thy're·oi'dal (thī're·oi'dăl), thy're·oi'de·al (-dē·ăl), thy're·oi'de·an (-ăn). = THYROID, etc.

thy're·oi'de·a (-dē·ȧ). Var. of THYREOIDEA.

thy're·o·lin'gual (-ō·lĭng'gwăl), adj. = THYROGLOSSAL.

thy'ro·ad'e·ni'tis (thī'rō·ăd'ē·nī'tĭs), n. [NL.] = THYROIDITIS.

thy'ro·cri'coid (-krī'koid), adj. = CRICOTHYROID.

thy'ro·hy·oi'de·an (-hī·oi'dē·ăn), adj. = THYROHYOID.

thy·roi'dal (thī·roi'dăl), thy·roi'de·al (-dē·ăl), thy·roi'de·an (-ăn), adj. = THYROID, adj.

thy'ro·i'o·din (thī'rō·ī'ō·dĭn), n. = IODOTHYRIN.

thyr'soid (thûr'soid), adj. [Gr. thyrsoeidēs, fr. thyrsos thyrsus + eidos form, shape.] Bot. Having somewhat the form of a thyrsus; as, a thyrsoid panicle.

thyr·soi'dal (thûr·soi'dăl), adj. Thyrsoid.

thyr'sus (thûr'sŭs), n.; pl. -SI (-sī). [L., fr. Gr. thyrsos. Cf. TORSO.] 1. Gr. Relig. A staff surmounted by a pine cone, or by a bunch of vine or ivy leaves with grapes or berries. It is an attribute of Bacchus, and of the satyrs and others engaging in Bacchic rites.
2. Bot. A form of mixed inflorescence in which the main axis is racemose, and the secondary and later axes are cymose, as in the lilac and horse chestnut. See INFLORESCENCE, Table & Illust.
3. = PENIS.

thy'sa·no- (thĭ'sȧ·nō-; thĭs'ȧ-), thysan-. A combining form, Greek thysano-, thysan-, from thysanos, meaning a tassel, as in *Thysano*ptera, *Thysan*ura.

Thy'sa·no·car'pus (-kär'pŭs), n. [NL., fr. thysano- + -carpus; — from the tassellike pods.] Bot. A small genus of annual herbs (family Brassicaceae) of California and Oregon, having pinnatifid basal leaves, entire stem leaves, small white flowers, and an ovate or orbicular one-seeded winged silicle. See FRINGEPOD.

thy'sa·nop'ter (thĭ'sȧ·nŏp'tĕr; thĭs'ȧ-), n. Zool. A thysanopteron.

Thy'sa·nop'ter·a (-ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. thysano- + -ptera.] Zool. An order of insects constituted by the thrips, formerly sometimes included in the Hemiptera. Syn. Physopoda. — thy'sa·nop'ter·an (-ăn), adj. & n. — thy'sa·nop'ter·ous (-ŭs), adj.

thy'sa·nop'ter·on (-ŏn), n.; pl. -TERA (-ȧ). [NL.] Zool. One of the Thysanoptera.

Thy'sa·nu'ra (thĭ'sȧ·nū'rȧ; thĭs'ȧ-), n. pl. [NL., fr. thysan- + -ura.] Zool. An order of wingless ametabolic insects with setiform caudal appendages projecting as bristles; the bristletails. It comprises the Cinura and Ectognatha, and sometimes, esp. formerly, also the Collembola. — thy'sa·nu'ran (-răn), adj. & n. — thy'sa·nu'ri·form (-rĭ·fôrm), adj. — thy'sa·nu'rous (-rŭs), adj.

thy·self' (thĭ·sĕlf'), pron. An emphasized form of the personal pronoun of the second person singular. Like thou, it occurs now only in archaic, solemn, or poetical style, among the Friends, or Quakers, or in dial. Eng. Its uses are: 1. For emphasis: a As simple objective; thee; as, here is one for thyself. b In apposition with thou or thee; as, thou thyself shalt go. c As a subject nominative. "Thyself shalt see the act." Shak. d As a predicate nominative, often with the force of by thyself, alone; as, thou shalt go thyself.
2. Thy true normal self or condition. Cf. HIMSELF, pron., 2.
3. As a reflexive. "Thou to thyself wast cruel." Milton.
☞ Thyself is often divided, as in "thy own self," being treated as possessive and noun. See SELF, n., 1.

thy·sen' (-sĕn'), pron. Thyself. Dial. Eng.

ti (tē), n. Music. a In modern solmization, the seventh tone of the major scale, formerly called si. b See SOL-FA SYLLABLES.

ti (tē), n. [Maori and Samoan.] a Also ti palm. Any of several species of Asiatic and Polynesian trees and shrubs of the genus Cordyline, esp. C. terminalis, called also palm lily. b = TEA TREE, 2 a.

Tia'hua·na'can (tyä'wä·nä'kăn), n. An Indian of a prehistoric people, probably of Aymaran stock, of the highlands of Bolivia and southern Peru. See AYMARA; cf. NASCAN, EPIGONAL, 3. — Tia'hua·na'can, adj.

ti'al (tī'ăl), n. That with which a thing is tied. Obs. exc. Scot.

Tia'mat (tyä'mȧt), n. [Assyr.-Bab. Tiāmat personification of tiāmtu ocean.] Babylon. Relig. The personification of tiāmtu, the marine waters, and the wife of Apsu. Her emblem was a winged dragon. See CREATION EPIC.

tiang (tyăng), n. [Dinka.] A topi (Damaliscus korrigum) of northeastern Africa; also, its subspecies D. k. tiang.

‖tian'gue (tyăng'gā), n. [Sp., fr. Tag. tiangi.] Weekly market day. Phil. I.

tiao (dyou), n. [Chin. (Pek.) tiao[4].] A Chinese money of account equal to 1,000 cash of account. It is equivalent to about 500 cash coins, but the amount varies.

ti·ar'a (tĭ·ăr'ȧ; tē·ä'rȧ), n. [L., fr. Gr. tiara, tiaras, of unknown origin.] 1. a A form of headdress worn by the ancient Persians. According to Xenophon, the royal tiara was encircled with a diadem, and was high and erect, while those of the people were flexible, and had lappets at the sides of the ears. b Recently, the Jewish high priest's headdress.
2. The Pope's triple crown. It was at first a round, high, pointed cap, richly jeweled, but was afterward encompassed with a crown, later with a second, and finally with a third, and surmounted with globe and cross. Hence, figuratively, the papal dignity.
3. A crownlike head ornament; a frontlet or coronet; as, a tiara of pearls.
4. a Any of several fragrant-flowered shrubs of the genus Gardenia, found in Pacific islands. b A miter shell. See MITRA, 3.

Tiara, 2.

ti·ar'a, v. t. To invest or crown with or as with a tiara.

ti'a·rel'la (tĭ'ȧ·rĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. tiara. See TIARA.] A little tiara; [cap.] Bot., a small genus of chiefly North American herbs (family Saxifragaceae) having mostly basal, palmately lobed or divided leaves with long petioles, and a slender raceme of delicate white flowers with a one-celled ovary and basal placentae. See FALSE MITERWORT.

Tia'ti·na'gua (tyä'tē·nä'gwä), n. An Indian of a Tacanan tribe of Peru and the adjacent borderland of Bolivia. Called also Chuncho. See TACANAN.

tib (tĭb), n. [See TIB-CAT.] Obs. a A lass; a loose woman. b In gleek, the ace of trumps.

tib, v. i. [Origin unknown.] To skip school, home, etc.; to slip (out). Slang, Brit.

Tib'bu (tĭb'ōō), n. sing. & pl. Also Tib'u. 1. One of a Negro-Berber people whose distribution lies around and in the Tibesti mountains northeast of Lake Chad, by some regarded as representing the older inhabitants of the Sahara. They are tall and black, with wavy hair, fine faces, and aquiline noses, in contrast to the Sudanese Negroes. There are two branches, the Tedas in the northern part and the Dazas in the southern.
2. The language of the Tibbu, related to Kanuri.

tib'by (tĭb'ĭ), n. The head. Old Slang.

tib'-cat' (tĭb'kăt'), n. [From Tib, a woman's name, fr. Isabel.] A female cat. Dial.

Ti'ber green (tī'bĕr). A color, yellow-green in hue, of low saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Ti·be'ri·an (tī·bē'rĭ·ăn), adj. 1. [L. Tiberianus.] Of or pert. to the Roman emperor Tiberius; like his policies.
2. Of or pert. to the ancient Tiberias, a city of Palestine.

Ti'ber·ine (tī'bĕr·ĭn; -īn; 156), adj. [L. Tiberinus.] Of or pertaining to the river Tiber.

Ti'ber·i'nus (-ī'nŭs), n. [L.] Rom. Myth. A legendary king of Alba who was drowned in the river Tiber, of which he became the god.

Ti·be'ri·us (tī·bē'rĭ·ŭs), n. A Roman praenomen. Abbr., Ti.

tib'ert (tĭb'ĕrt), n. [OF. Tibert, name of the cat in the Roman de Renard.] A cat. Archaic.

ti·bet', thi·bet' (tĭ·bĕt'; tĭb'ĕt), n. Tibet cloth.

Ti·bet'an (tĭ·bĕt'ăn; tĭb'ĕt-; -ĭt-; 91; 119), adj. Of or pertaining to Tibet or the Tibetans, or their history, language, culture, ethnology, etc. Specif., designating or relating to the type of polyandry (Tibetan polyandry) prevalent among the Tibetans. It is that form in which the husbands are brothers. Cf. PUNALUAN.

Ti·bet'an, n. 1. A member of the native race of Tibet, a distinct Mongolian type, modified in the west and south by intermixture with Indian peoples, and in the east with Chinese. The purest Tibetans are about five feet five inches in height, brachycephalic, with wavy hair, brown or hazel eyes, and skin tawny brown to white; the beard is scant and the nose either flat or prominent. They are strong, energetic, abstinent, and enduring. They are both herders and husbandmen, and are skillful weavers, potters, and metalworkers. Practically all are Lamaists.
2. The language of the Tibetans, which employs three alphabets, all of the Nagari type. See INDO-CHINESE LANGUAGES, Table.

Tibetan mastiff. A very large, powerful, rough-coated dog, with small drooping ears, bushy tail, and black or black-and-tan hair, of a breed reared in central Asia.

Tibetan terrier. A small dog of a breed which has existed in India for hundreds of years. Except for its size and its curled, well-feathered tail, it is practically identical with the old English sheepdog. The weight is from 22 to 25 pounds. In China it is known as the chrysanthemum dog.

Ti·bet' cloth (tĭ·bĕt'; tĭb'ĕt). a A fabric made of goat's hair; a kind of camlet. b A kind of fine woolen cloth, used for dresses, cloaks, etc.

Ti·bet'o- (tĭ·bĕt'ō-; tĭ·bē'tō-). A combining form from Tibet, signifying Tibetan and, as in Ti·bet'o-Bur'man, Ti·bet'o-Chi·nese', Ti·bet'o-Hi·ma'la·yan. See INDO-CHINESE LANGUAGES.

ti·bey' (tē·bā'ē; 98), n. [Sp., of unknown origin.] Any of several plants of the genus Isotoma (family Lobeliaceae), the foliage of which is poisonous to cattle. Puerto Rico.

tib'i·a (tĭb'ĭ·ȧ), n.; pl. TIBIAE (-ē), TIBIAS (-ȧz). [L.] Anat. & Zool. a The preaxial and in the usual position of the limb the inner, and usually the larger, of the two bones of the leg or hind limb between the knee and ankle. In man the tibia has a large head at the end expanded into lateral tuberosities with concave upper surfaces for articulation with the condyles of the femur. The shaft has an anterior sharp border or crest and an oblique ridge on its upper posterior part. The lower end articulates with the talus by its lower surface, and bears on the inner side a strong downwardly directed process, the medial malleolus. In many animals the fibula (and in birds also tarsal elements) are united with the tibia. b The fourth joint of the leg of an insect, counting from the base, lying between the femur and tarsus.
2. A kind of ancient flute, originally fashioned from an animal's leg bone; — now used esp. in names of various labial wood organ stops, as: ‖ti'bi·a clau'sa (tĭb'ĭ·ȧ klô'zȧ), a large-scale, covered stop of 8-foot pitch; ‖ti'bi·a du'ra (dū'rȧ), an open stop of 4-foot pitch; ‖ti'bi·a ma'jor (mā'jŏr), a large-scale, covered, manual stop of 16-foot pitch; ‖ti'bi·a mi'nor (mĭ'nôr), like the tibia major but of 8-foot pitch; ‖ti'bi·a ple'na (plē'nȧ), an open stop of 8-foot pitch and very large scale; ‖ti'bi·a pro·fun'da (prō·fŭn'dȧ), a 16-foot pedal organ stop of very large scale.

tib'i·al (tĭb'ĭ·ăl), adj. [L. tibialis.] Of or pert. to a tibia.

tibial artery. Anat. Either of the arteries of the lower leg formed by the bifurcation of the popliteal artery. The posterior, the larger, divides between the medial malleolus and heel into the two plantar arteries. The anterior, passing forward between the bones, becomes at the ankle the dorsalis pedis. The recurrent tibial arteries are branches of its upper part.

tib'i·a'le (tĭb'ĭ·ā'lē), n.; pl. -ALIA (-lĭ·ȧ). [NL.] Embryol. & Zool. The most preaxial element of the proximal row of bones of the tarsus. In man it probably forms part of the talus.

‖ti'bi·a'lis an·te'ri·or or an·ti'cus (tĭb'ĭ·ā'lĭs ăn·tē'rĭ·ôr, ăn·tī'kŭs). [NL. (sc. musculus), anterior tibial muscle.] Anat. A muscle arising from the outer tuberosity and part of the shaft of the tibia, interosseous membrane, etc., and inserted by a long tendon into the first cuneiform and first metatarsal bones.

‖ti'bi·a'lis pos·te'ri·or or pos·ti'cus (pŏs·tē'rĭ·ôr, pŏs·tĭ'kŭs). [NL. (sc. musculus), posterior tibial muscle.] Anat. A deeply situated muscle of the calf of the leg, arising from the tibia and fibula, interosseous membrane, and intermuscular septa, and inserted (by a tendon passing under the medial malleolus) into the navicular and first cuneiform bones.

tibial nerve. Anat. The large nerve in the back of the leg, a continuation of the sciatic, terminating at the medial malleolus in the lateral and medial plantar nerves; — formerly called the posterior tibial nerve, as distinguished from the peroneal, or anterior tibial, nerve.

tibial spur. Zool. A spine or one of several spines borne on the distal end of the tibia of many insects; a calcar. See COLEOPTERA, Illust.

tibial veins. Anat. The two veins (anterior and posterior) accompanying the corresponding tibial arteries.

‖ti·bi'cen (tĭ·bī'sĕn), n. [L.] A player on the tibia.

tib'i·o- (tĭb'ĭ·ō-). A combining form for tibia, denoting: a The tibia fused with (something specified), as in tibiotarsus. b Tibial and, as in the following (see CALCANEAN, etc.):

tibiocalcanean	tibiometatarsal	tibiopopliteal
tibiofemoral	tibionavicular	tibioscaphoid tib'i·o·fib'u·la (-fĭb'ŭ·lȧ), n. [NL.] Zool. The fused tibia and fibula, as in the tailless amphibia. — tib'i·o·fib'u·lar (-lĕr), adj.

ti'ar (tī'ĕr; tē·är'), n. & v. t. [F. tiare. See TIARA.] = TIARA.

ti·ar'a·like', adj. See -LIKE.

Tib'bie (tĭb'ĭ), n. Dim. of ELIZABETH and ISABEL. tib'bit. Var. of TABET. Scot.

Tib'boo (tĭb'ōō). Var. of TIBBU.

Tiberian punctuation. See PUNCTUATION, n., 2. tiberune. † TIBURON.

tib'i·o·tar'sus (tĭb'ĭ·ō·tär'sŭs), n.; pl. -TARSI (-sī). [NL.] Zool. The tibia of a bird; — so called because some of the tarsal elements are fused into its lower end. — tib'i·o·tar'sal (-săl), adj.

Tib of the buttery (tĭb). A goose. Obs.

Tib'ou·chi'na (tĭb'ōō·kĭ'nȧ), n. [NL., of Arawakan or Cariban origin.] Bot. A large genus of South American shrubs or rarely herbs (family Melastomaceae) having entire 5–7-nerved leaves, and trichotomous panicles of large purple flowers with a hairy calyx, 10 stamens, and a 5-celled ovary. A few are cultivated, under the name spiderflower.

ti'bour'bou' (tē'bōōr'bōō'), n. [F., fr. Galibi tibourbou.] A tropical American tree (Apeiba tibourbou), family Tiliaceae, with yellowish flowers in lateral cymes. Its bark yields jangada fiber and its extraordinarily light wood is used along the coast of Brazil for making jangadas.

Tib's eve (tĭbz). [For St. Tib's eve, there being no such saint. See TIB-CAT.] A time that never comes. Scot. & Dial.

ti'bu·ron' (tē'bōō·rōn'; 98), n. [Sp. tiburón, fr. Taino.] Any of various large voracious sharks of the West Indies and Central America; esp., Carcharias fronto of the Pacific coast of Mexico.

Ti'bur·tine (tī'bĕr·tĭn; -tīn), adj. [L. Tiburtinus, fr. Tibur.] Of or pertaining to Tibur (see in Gaz.); — often applied to the Sibyl of Tibur.

tic (tĭk), n. [F.] 1. Med. A local and habitual spasmodic motion of certain muscles, esp. of the face; twitching.
2. Hence, an involuntary or habitual mental reaction or response to a particular stimulus.

tic (tĭk), adj. Correct. Slang.

ti·cal' (tĭ·kăl'; -kôl'; tē'kŭl), n.; pl. TICALS (-kälz'; -kôlz'; -kŭlz), TICAL. [Malay tikal.] a The former coin unit of Siam, replaced in 1928 by the baht (which see); also, a silver coin. b A weight. See WEIGHT, Table.

tic'ca (tĭk'ȧ), adj. [Hind. ṭhīkā contract, hire, fare.] Hired; as, a ticca gharry. India.

‖tic' dou'lou'reux' (tēk' dōō'lōō'rŭ'; tĭk' dōō'lōō·rōō'). [F., fr. tic a twitching + douloureux painful.] Med. Spasmodic trigeminal neuralgia; face ague.

tice (tīs), v. t. & i. [Aphetic form of entice.] To entice. Obs. exc. Dial.

tice, n. a An enticement. b Cricket. A yorker.

tice'ment (tīs'mĕnt), n. Enticement. Obs. exc. Dial.

tic'er (tīs'ĕr), n. An enticer. Rare.

Tich'borne Claim'ant (tĭch'bôrn). Arthur Orton (1834–98). In 1865 he claimed to be Roger Charles Tichborne, the heir to a baronetcy and large estates in England, who was lost at sea in 1854. Lady Tichborne accepted him as her son. He issued bonds (Tichborne bonds) payable upon his obtaining the estates, and brought an ejectment action (Tichborne Case) against the trustees. After a lengthy trial in the Court of Common Pleas in 1871, he was exposed and was nonsuited. He was later sentenced for perjury to 14 years' penal servitude.

tich'el (tĭk''l), n. A number; troop; lot. Contemptuous. Scot.

Ti·chod'ro·ma (tī·kŏd'rō·mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. teichos wall + dromos a running.] Zool. The genus of Certhiidae consisting of the wall creeper. — ti'cho·drome (tī'kō·drōm), n.

tich'or·rhine (tĭk'ō·rīn; -rĭn; 156), n. [Gr. teichos a wall + rhis, rhinos, nose.] The woolly rhinoceros.

tick (tĭk), n. [ME. tike, teke; akin to D. teek, tiek, G. zecke.] 1. Any of numerous arachnids of the order Acarida but larger than the ordinary mites, which attach themselves to man and many animals and birds, and suck their blood. Their young have six legs, the adults eight. Some species are vectors of specific diseases of man and other animals. Ixodidae is the typical family. Cf. CATTLE TICK; ARGAS, Illust.
2. Any of certain degraded parasitic dipterous insects, as the bird ticks, sheep tick, and bat ticks.
3. An offensive person; a pest. Slang.
4. A tickbean. Chiefly Dial.
— full as a tick. Full to repletion; surfeited. Slang.

tick, n. [Like D. tijk, G. zieche, F. taie, ult. fr. L. theca case, cover (ML. techa, teca), fr. Gr. thēkē; akin to Gr. tithenai to put. See THESIS; cf. THECA, TICKING fabric.]
1. The stout cover, or case, usually of ticking, which when filled with hair, feathers, or the like, forms a mattress, pillow, or bolster.
2. Colloq. a A mattress. b Ticking.

tick (tĭk), v.; TICKED (tĭkt); TICK'ING. [Prob. of imitative origin; cf. D. tikken, Nor. dial. tikka.] Intransitive: 1. To touch or tap a person or thing gently; to pat one affectionately; to fondle; — often in the phrase tick and toy, to flirt. Now Dial.
2. To make a tick or a continuous series of ticks, as a watch, the heart, or a meter does.
3. Hence: a Slang. To click, or make a hit. b To come, or recur, in course of time; as, when rent day ticked round again.
—, Transitive: 1. To touch lightly, as in tag or in fondling; esp., to tag. Now Dial.
2. To mark with a tick (see 4th TICK, 4) or ticks; to spot; also, check with a tick. See tick off a, below. "Evenly marked head and eyes, muzzle and legs ticked."
Dept. of Agric. Bulletin.
3. To mark, note, count, record, give forth, etc., by or as by the ticks of a clock, a clicking device, a telegraph instrument, or the like; as, the clock ticks the hours away; the taximeter ticks up a huge fare.
tick off. a To check off; to get rid of; to dispose of. b Slang. To identify in kind, type, nature, etc.; "to get the number of"; also, to peach upon; to inform against.

tick, n. 1. A light touch, as in playing tag; a tap; also, the game of tag. Now Chiefly Dial.
2. A light quick audible beat, as of a clock.
3. Time taken or indicated by the tick of a clock; a moment or second; as, to do something in three ticks.
4. A dot, speck, dash, etc., esp. one, as a crowfoot (sense 3), to direct attention to something or to serve as a check.
— not a tick fleid. Not a bit alarmed. Scot. — on or to the tick. Just on time. Colloq.

tick, n. [Abbr. fr. TICKET.] Credit; trust; also, a credit account; as, to buy or sell on tick. Colloq. — to go tick. To get trusted; to run in debt. Colloq.

tick, v. i. To buy or sell on credit; to go tick or to give tick. — v. t. To charge (a thing) up to one's account. Both Colloq.

tick, n. 1. Crib biting.
2. A tic (sense 2); a fixed idea or notion.

tick, v. i. Of a horse, to crib-bite.

tick, n. [Named from its noise.] Whinchat. Local, Eng.

tick'-a-tick' (tĭk'ȧ·tĭk'; 66), adv. [Imitative.] With a continuous ticking sound.

Thy'sa·nou'ra (thĭ'sȧ·nōō'rȧ; thĭs'ȧ-), thy'sa·nou'ran (-răn), -nou'rous (-rŭs), etc. Syns. of THYSANURA, etc.

thy'sa·nu'ri·an (-nū'rĭ·ăn), adj. = THYSANURAN.

thy·sel' (thĭ·sĕl'). Scot. & dial. Eng. of THYSELF.

Tiam (tyăm), n. = 2d CHAM. See AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES.

Tib'hath (tĭb'hăth). Bib. [-AD.]

tib'i·ad (tĭb'ĭ·ăd), adv. See 1st, ti·bie'i·nist (tĭ·bĭs'ĭ·nĭst), n. = TIBICEN.

Tib'ni (tĭb'nī). Bib.

Tib'u (tĭb'ōō). Var. of TIBBU.

ticchen, n. [AS. ticcen.] A young goat; a kid. Obs.

ticht (tĭkt). Scot. & Ir. var. of TIGHT.

tick'bean' (tĭk'bēn'), n. Any of certain horse beans having small seeds resembling a tick.

tick'bird' (-bûrd'), n. A bird that eats ticks infesting quadrupeds, as the beefeater and ani.

tick clover. The tick trefoil.

tick doleru. = TIC DOULOUREUX. Lamb.

ticked (tĭkt), adj. [From TICK a small mark.] Finely spotted, as a dog; dotted, as a line.

tick'en (tĭk'ĕn; -ĭn), n. Ticking. Brit.

tick'er (tĭk'ĕr), n. 1. One who ticks.

2. Something that ticks, or produces a ticking sound, as a clock, a telegraphic sounder, etc. Specif.: a Thieves' Slang. A watch. b Stock Exchange. A telegraphic receiving instrument that automatically prints off stock quotations (stock ticker) and other news on a paper ribbon or tape (ticker tape).

tick'er. Radio. Var. of TIKKER.

tick'et (tĭk'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [F. étiquette a ticket, label, inscription, prescript, etiquette, fr. OF. estiquet(te), fr. estiquer to stick, fr. MD. steken. See STICK, v.; ETIQUETTE, TICK credit.] 1. Originally, a note in writing; now, a written, typed, printed, or engraved notice, record, memorandum, or token; a piece of cardboard, a slip, etc., containing such a note or notice; as: a A public notice; a placard. b A name or identification card; a label. c Now Chiefly Dial. A visiting card. d A tag on merchandise; esp., a price tag.

2. A document that serves as a certificate, license, permit, or the like; a voucher; now specif., a master's, captain's, mate's, pilot's, or airman's certificate.

3. A certificate, evidence, or token of a right, as of admission to a place of assembly, of passage in a public conveyance, of debt, of a chance, or the like; as, a theater ticket; a railroad or steamboat ticket; a lottery ticket; a pawn ticket. It is generally held by the courts that a ticket of admission to a public performance, as in a theater, is merely a revocable license; and that common carriers may restrict the use of their tickets to the original purchaser.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

ticket booth	ticket-making, adj.	ticket scalper ticket-canceling, adj.	ticket office	ticket-selling, adj.
ticket clerk	ticket printer	ticket taker ticket collector	ticket-printing, adj.	ticket varnisher ticket-counting, adj.	ticket punch	ticket-vending, adj.
ticket-dating	ticket rack	ticket window ticket holder	ticket-registering, adj.	ticket writer ticket maker

4. a A soldier's or sailor's pay warrant or formal discharge with such a warrant. b Short for TICKET OF LEAVE.

5. Colloq. a The suitable, correct, or desirable thing; — with the. b The action or program planned. c Scot. A ludicrous object; a sight.

6. A tick, or score; an I O U; also, credit; trust. Obs.

7. Banking. A record slip of sums, transactions, etc., to be entered, as a deposit slip; in clearinghouse practice, a memorandum of a bank's credit items submitted by its representative.

8. London Stock Exchange. The ticket used on name day (SENSE 2).

9. Mining. a A sealed bid for ore to be sold. b Eng. = TOKEN, n., 9.

10. Politics. A list of candidates, esp. of one party only, to be voted for at an election; a ballot. U. S.

tick'et, v.; TICK'ET-ED; TICK'ET-ING. Transitive: 1. To distinguish by or as by a ticket; to put a ticket or label on; as, to ticket goods with descriptions or prices; hence, to label; to characterize, or describe in a set phrase; as, to ticket all reformers as fanatics.

2. To furnish with a ticket or tickets, to book. U. S.

—, Intransitive: 1. To issue tickets, esp. railroad tickets. U. S.

2. Mining. To make a sealed bid, or ticket.

tick'et, adj. Concerned with the issuance or collection of tickets; requiring tickets.

tick'et, n. A very small amount. Dial. Eng.

ticket agent. One who serves as agent or conducts an agency for the selling of tickets, esp. railroad or theater tickets. — ticket agency.

ticket chopper. Railroads. a A ticket-canceling box. b The person who operates it. Both Slang.

ticket day. Name day. Cf. SETTLEMENT, n., 22.

tick'et-er (tĭk'ĕ-tĕr; -ĭ-tĕr), n. 1. One who tickets; specif., a labeler.

2. One furnished with a ticket.

ticket gate. An exit on a railway platform where passengers issuing from a train surrender their tickets. Brit.

tick'et-ing, n. 1. Act of one who tickets or furnishes tickets.

2. Mining. A periodical sale of ore. Cf. 1st TICKET, n., 9 a.

tick'et-mon'ger (tĭk'ĕt-mŭng'gĕr; tĭk'ĭt-), n. Formerly, one who bought up seamen's pay warrants at reduced valuation.

ticket night. Theater. The night of a benefit performance the receipts of which are shared by several performers according to the number of tickets sold by each.

ticket of leave. A license or permit given to a convict under imprisonment to go at large, and to labor for himself, subject to certain specific conditions. Tickets of leave were first granted to convicts in Van Diemen's Land under the prison reforms of 1840. In the United States a similar license is usually called a parole. — tick'et-of-leave', adj. — tick'et-of-leav'er, tick'et-of-leav'ism, n. All British.

ticket porter. A London porter having a city license; also, a ticket collector.

tick'ey (tĭk'ĭ), n. Also tick'le. Threepence. Colloq., S. Africa.

tick farcy. Epizootic lymphangitis.

tick fever. a Med. Any febrile disease transmitted by ticks, as Rocky Mountain spotted fever. b Veter. Texas fever.

tick'ing (tĭk'ĭng), n. [From TICK a bed cover.] A strong, closely woven linen or cotton fabric, of which ticks for beds, pillows, or bolsters are made; also, Rare, the bedtick.

tick'ing, n. 1. The act of one who ticks; specif., Now Dial., wanton trifling.

2. Ticks, or sounds, made by a clock, a telegraph sounder, etc.

tick'ing, n. [Cf. 4th TICK, 4.] State of being ticked, esp. of being finely spotted. Hence: a Minute distinct color marks on a bird or mammal. b A distribution of longer guard hairs throughout the fur.

ticking work. Embroidery on ticking.

tick'le (tĭk'l), v.; TICK'LED (-ld); TICK'LING (-lĭng). [Perh. freq. of TICK to beat, pat.] Intransitive: 1. To feel excitement, tingling, or titillation; to tingle or thrill with or as if with pleasure. Obs.

He with secret joy therefore Did tickle inwardly in every vein. Spenser.

2. To have a tingling or restless sensation; as, my back tickles; also, Now Rare, to have an itching desire.

3. To excite the surface nerves; to cause a tickle. Colloq.

—, Transitive: 1. To excite or stir up agreeably; to awaken pleasure in; to gratify, esp. sensuously; as, she was tickled by his success; food that tickles the palate.

2. To touch (one or a part of one's body) lightly with or as with fingers, a feather, etc., so as to excite the surface nerves and to cause uneasiness, laughter, or spasmodic movements; to titillate; to tease by such touching; as, the feather tickles her hand.

3. To excite; annoy; provoke; now, usually with up, to stir up; to arouse to action.

We must tickle 'em up a bit. Sir Gilbert Parker.

4. To whip; chastise; to beat.

5. To touch or stir gently; also, to move, take, do, operate, etc., by or as by light touches; to play, touch up, or portray, etc., with light strokes.

I'll tickle ye off a Covenanter as readily as old Jack could do a young Prince. Scott.

6. To excite amusement or merriment in; to arouse the sense of humor of; to amuse; divert.

The mimic court of justice in the orchard tickled him immensely. Margaret Deland.

7. Angling. To capture (a trout) by groping for it with the hands and sliding the fingers into its gills.

tickle it. To achieve success; tobring to the desired end. Obs.

tickle the palm (of). Also tickle in the palm. To bribe; also, to tip. Colloq.

tick'le (tĭk''l), n. [From TICKLE, v.] Act of tickling or state or fact of being tickled; a tickling touch or touches; a tickling sensation, device, etc.; a tickler.

tick'le, n. [From TICKLE, adj.] In Newfoundland and Labrador, a narrow water passage, as between two islands to a harbor.

tick'le (tĭk''l), adj. [See TICKLE, v.] Archaic & Dial. 1. Easily excited or moved; specif.: a Obs. Frail; wanton. b Easily startled or offended; touchy. c Dial. Easily scared.

2. Unsteady; unstable; insecure; specif., ready to go off or spring, as a gun or trap. See 1st SEAR, 2.

Tickle as the unsteady air. Spenser.

3. Requiring delicate handling; specif.: a Nice; difficult; ticklish. b Delicate; squeamish.

☞ COMBINATIONS (in sense 1) are:

tickle-footed, tickle-headed, tickle-heeled, tickle-tongued.

— tick'le-ly, adv. — tick'le-ness, n.

tick'le, adv. Ticklingly; ticklishly; insecurely. Obs.

tick'le-back' (tĭk''l-băk'), n. A stickleback.

tick'le-brain' (-brān'), n. A kind of strong liquor; also, one who uses or deals in it. Old Slang.

tick'led (tĭk''ld), adj. Affected or aroused by tickling; highly pleased, gratified, or amused.

tick'led, adj. Filed in a tickler. Colloq.

tickle grass. Rough bent.

tick'len-burg (tĭk'lĕn-bûrg), n. [From Tecklenburg, near Osnabrück, Germany.] A coarse mixed linen fabric.

tick'ler (tĭk''lĕr), n. 1. One who tickles, or is given to teasing by tickling.

2. A device for tickling, esp. for jogging the memory.

3. Colloq. a A small pocket flask; also, a sip, as of whisky; a dram. b Local, U. S. A small weapon, as a knife or pistol. c A strap, cane, or the like, for whipping. d Eng. A prong for extracting bungs from casks. e A merrymaking device for tickling faces and necks of passers-by.

4. Something puzzling; a ticklish problem or situation. Colloq.

5. Accounts. A book, file, or set of memoranda, kept, as in a bank, to show the amounts due upon notes, etc., and the days of payment.

6. Elec. A tickler coil.

7. Law. In some States, a temporary record in the office of the Register, Recorder, or County Clerk, of deeds, mortgages, etc., filed for recording, containing notice of such filing preliminary to actual entry in the official books of record.

tick'ler, n. = 3d TICKLE.

Tick'ler, Timothy. Robert Syme, an Edinburgh lawyer; — so called as an interlocutor in Wilson's Noctes Ambrosianae.

tickler coil. Elec. A feed-back coil.

tickler file. Com. A file that serves as a reminder, arranged to bring matters to timely attention; — called also a calendar file. Cf. TICKLER, n., 2. Colloq.

tick'le-some (tĭk''l-sŭm), adj. Ticklish; as: a Now Dial. = TICKLE, adj. b Easily tickled.

tick'le-to'by (-tō'bĭ), n. [tickle, v. + toby buttock.] A whip; switch; also, whipping.

tick'le-weed' (-wēd'), n. The American hellebore.

tick'ling (tĭk'lĭng), n. 1. Act of tickling; state or sensation of or as of being tickled.

2. Something that tickles; a craving; gratification.

tick'ling, adj. That tickles. — tick'ling-ly, adv.

tick'lish (tĭk'lĭsh), adj. 1. Sensitive to tickling.

2. Easily overturned or unbalanced; not affording security of support; unsteady; unstable; as, a ticklish boat or foothold; of persons or their tempers, easily upset; touchy; oversensitive; as, you are ticklish on this point.

3. Uncertain; unreliable; changeable; as, ticklish weather.

4. Requiring careful handling; delicate; nice; critical; risky; as, a ticklish situation, problem, or subject.

— tick'lish-ly, adv. — tick'lish-ness, n.

tick'lish, adv. Ticklishly. Now Rare.

tick'ly (tĭk'lĭ), adj. Tickling; ticklish.

tick'ly-bend'ers (-bĕn'dĕrz), n. pl. Kittly-benders.

tick'ney (tĭk'nĭ), n. Coarse earthenware, as that made at Ticknal. Obs. exc. Dial.

tick paralysis. A paralysis of sheep caused by the bite of any of certain ticks, as Dermacentor venustus.

tick'seed' (tĭk'sēd'), n. [tick the insect + seed; cf. G. wanzensamen, lit., bug seed.] a The coreopsis. b The tick trefoil.

tick'seed' (-sēd'), tick'seed'ed (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Having a sticky seed that adheres to hair, clothing, etc.

tickseed sunflower. Any of the large-rayed North American species of Bidens, esp. B. coronata and B. trichosperma. See BIDENS.

tick'tack' (tĭk'tăk'), n. [Imitative. See TICK to beat, to pat; (for sense 2) cf. TRICKTRACK.] 1. A noise like that made by a clock or watch or by the heart.

2. An old kind of backgammon played with both men and pegs; tricktrack.

3. A contrivance for making a tapping or rattling sound on a window, door, or the like, and which can be operated from a distance, used esp. by children in practical joking, as on Halloween.

4. Secret signaling between bookmakers at races. Slang.

tick'tack' (tĭk'tăk'), v. i. & t. To move or sound with a ticktack; also, to signal by ticktack. — tick'tack'er (-ĕr), n.

tick'tack', adj. Using or used in ticktacking, or signaling.

tick'tack', adv. With a ticktack.

tick'tack-toe', tick'tack-too' (tĭk'tăk-tō', -tōō'), n. 1. A game played by two players who alternately put crosses and ciphers in compartments of a figure formed by two vertical lines crossing two horizontal lines, the object being to get a row of three crosses or three ciphers before the adversary does so; — called also noughts-and-crosses.

2. The prank or practical joke of using a ticktack (def. 3).

tick'tick' (tĭk'tĭk'), n. A ticking sound; also, a watch.

tick'tock' (tĭk'tŏk'; 66), n. A ticking sound, esp. that made by a large clock. — tick'tock', v. i.

tick trefoil. Any plant of the genus Desmodium; — so called from the trifoliolate leaves and roughened, sticky loments which adhere to clothing and to animals.

tick'y (tĭk'ĭ), adj. Affected or infested with, or full of, ticks.

tick'y. Variant of TICKEY, n.

tic'-po-lon'ga (tĭk'pō-lŏng'gä), n. [Singhalese tikpolañgā, fr. tik spot + polañgā viper.] Russell's viper.

Ti-cu'na (tē-kōō'nä), n. An Indian of a group of tribes, constituting the Ticunan stock and a linguistic family, dwelling in northeastern Peru and western Amazonas, Brazil. They are naked savages who live by hunting. — Ti-cu'nan (-năn), adj.

tid (tĭd), n. [See TIDE time.] Chiefly Scot. a The right time or season. b Mood; humor; also, ill-humor. — v. t. To time.

tid, adj. [Cf. TIDBIT.] Fond; tender. Dial. Eng.

tid, adj. Sprightly; lively; also, childish; silly. Dial. Eng.

tid, n. = 2d TIT, 2. Barrie.

tid'al (tĭd'ăl; -l), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to tides; caused by tides; having tides; periodically rising and falling, or flowing and ebbing; as, tidal waters or breathing.

2. Moved or actuated by tides; as, a tidal motor.

3. Dependent, as in regard to the time of arrival or departure, upon the state of the tide; as, a tidal steamer; a tidal train, one run in connection with a tidal steamer; also, navigable only at high tide; as, a tidal harbor. — tid'al-ly (tĭd'ăl-ĭ; -'l-ĭ), adv.

tidal air. Physiol. The air which passes in and out of the lungs in an ordinary breath. It averages thirty cubic inches in human adults.

tidal amplitude. See TIDAL CONSTANT.

tidal basin. A dock communicating with tidal water through lock gates or locks.

tidal bore. = 4th BORE.

tidal box. Fish Culture. A hatching box with an automatic siphon which causes the level of the water in the box to rise and fall alternately.

tidal breeze. Meteorol. A light breeze supposed to be caused by tidal action, as in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

tidal clock or watch. A clock or watch showing the times of high and low water and the state of the tides at any time of day.

tidal constant. Either of the two factors which, combined, completely specify a simple tide, the first being the amplitude of a tide (tidal amplitude), or the elevation of high water above mean sea level, and the second, its epoch (tidal epoch), or the time elapsing between the moon's meridian passage and the ensuing high tide.

tidal crack. A tide crack.

tidal current. = TIDE, n., 6.

tidal day. Tide day.

tidal friction. The frictional effect of the tidal wave, especially in shallow waters, lengthening the tidal epoch and tending to retard the rotational velocity of the earth and so increase very slowly the length of the day.

tidal load. Variation of pressure in the earth due to the movement of the water caused by the tide or due to the stresses produced by the changing positions of the moon and sun relative to the earth.

tidal river. A river, as the Hudson, up the course of which the tides are noticeable for a considerable distance.

tidal stream. = TIDE, n., 6.

tidal theory. Astron. a Any theory of the evolution of a celestial body that is based on the action of tidal forces; usually, specif., the theory of Sir George Darwin explaining thus the moon's origin and evolution. b The theory of the present ocean tides.

tidal watch. See TIDAL CLOCK.

tidal wave. a A tide wave. b Popularly: (1) The great sea wave that sometimes follows an earthquake. See SEISMIC SEA WAVE. (2) The great rise of water along shore due to exceptionally strong winds, as at Galveston, Texas, in September, 1900. c An overwhelming impulse, burst of feeling, majority vote, or the like.

tid'bit' (tĭd'bĭt'), n. A titbit. U. S. tid'dle (tĭd''l), v. i. [Cf. AS. tīḡdrian, tīḡedrian, to grow weak or frail.] To potter; fidget. — v. t. To rear carefully; fondle; pamper. Both Chiefly Dial.

tid'dle, v. t. To tickle. Dial.

tid'dley (tĭd''lĭ), adj. Very small or trivial. Slang.

tid'dling (dial. tĭd''lĭn), n. An animal or child reared with unusual care; a pampered pet. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

tid'dly-wink' (tĭd''l-ĭ-wĭngk'), n. 1. An unlicensed public house; a beerhouse. Slang, Eng.

2. pl. A game in which the object is to snap small disks, as of bone, from a flat surface into a small cup or basket.

tid'dly-wink'ing (-ĭng), n. Idling; droning; cheating. — tid'dly-wink'er (-ĕr), n. Both Slang, Eng.

tid'dy (tĭd'ĭ), n. Games. In gleek, the four of trumps.

tid'dy, adj. Tiny; trivial (cf. TIDDLEY); also, childish; babyish. Dial. Eng.

tid'dy, n. A small girl or child. Dial.

tide (tīd), n. [ME. tide, tid, fr. AS. tīd time; akin to OS. & OFris. tīd, D. tijd, G. zeit, OHG. zīt, ON. tīth, and prob. to Skr. dayate he apportions, Gr. daiomai I divide, distribute. Cf. DEMOCRACY, DEMON, TIDING, TIDY, TIME.] 1. Time; a space of time; period; hour. Obs.

They . . . rest their weary limbs a tide. Spenser.

2. A point or period of time, as in a day, year, or lifetime; a definite moment, period, season, or occasion; esp., an ecclesiastical anniversary; a festival or, often, its season as distinguished from the day on which it falls. Archaic. Cf. -TIDE.

3. Fit or opportune time; opportunity. Archaic.

Time and tide wait for no man. Old Proverb.

---

tick'eat'er, n. = TICKBIRD. tick'et-less, adj. See -LESS. tick'le, n. See TICKEY. tick'l, tick'ld. Tickle, tickled. Ref. Sp. tick'le-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. tick'less, adj. See -LESS. tick'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. tickt. Ticked. Ref. Sp. tick'weed', n. = PENNYROYAL b. ti-coon', Tycoon. Ref. Sp. tic'tac'. Var. of TICKTACK. tic'tack'er. Var. of TICKTACKER. ticktack man. A ticktacker. tic'tic', Var. of TICKTICK. tic'toc' Var. of TICKTOCK. ti'cul (tĭ'kŭl), n.; pl. TICULA (-kū-lĭz), TICUL. [See TICAL.] See WEIGHT, Table.
Ti'dal (tī'dăl). Bib. tid'der. Var. of TITTER, adv. tid'der (tĭd'ĕr). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TOTHER. tid'di-vate (tĭd'ĭ-vĕt). Dial. Eng. var. of TITIVATE. tid'dle-dy-winks', n. pl. = TIDDLYWINK, 2. [LER, 3 e. Eng.
tid'dler (tĭd'lĕr), n. = 1st TICK-tide. † TIDY.

4. A space of time, as between high tides or during the height of a flood tide, in which certain work can be carried on. Chiefly Nautical.

5. The alternate rising and falling of the surface of the ocean, and of gulfs, bays, rivers, etc., connected with the ocean. The tide ebbs and flows twice in each lunar day (24 h. 51 m.). It is occasioned by the attraction of sun and moon (the tide-raising force of the latter being three times that of the former), acting unequally on the waters in different parts of the earth, thus disturbing their equilibrium. High tide upon one side of the earth (direct tide) is accompanied by high tide upon the other side (opposite tide). Hence, when sun and moon are in conjunction or opposition, as at new moon and full, their combined action produces a tide greater than usual, called spring tide, as shown in Illust. (right and left). When the moon is at first or third quarter (above or below), the sun's attraction in part counteracts the moon's, causing (under the moon and opposite it) a smaller high tide than usual, called neap tide. The flow or rising of the water is called flood tide; the reflux, ebb tide.

Spring Tides and Neap Tides.

6. The nearly horizontal flow of the sea, forth and back, as in channels and harbors; — often called the tidal current, or stream.

7. Something which may turn, rise and fall, or decrease or increase, as a tide; as, the tide of enthusiasm waned; also, the time during which something is at its height or best.

If I was to die in that tide of my fortunes. Stevenson.

8. Chiefly Poetic. a A stream; current; flood; as, a tide of blood. b The sea. c Local, U. S. A freshet.

9. A fair occurring on a parish feast day. Dial. Eng.

10. Physiol. The normal variation in the concentration of certain constituents of the body fluids, correlated with eating, fasting, etc.; as, the fasting tide; esp., an increase in some specified constituent or class of constituents; as, the alkaline tide during a meal.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

tide-beaten	tide-forsaken	tide-ribbed tide-beset	tide-free	tide-swept tide-bound	tide-generating	tide-taking tide-caught	tide-locked	tide-tossed tide-covered	tide-marked	tide-trapped tide-driven	tide-predicting	tide-washed tide-flooded	tide-producing	tide-worn

-tide (-tĭd). A combining form of the noun tide, as in:

Ascensiontide	Michaelmastide	Shrovetide
Bartholomewtide	morrowtide	springtide
Christmastide	nighttide	summertide
Eastertide	noontide	Whitsuntide
eventide	Paschaltide	wintertide
Lammastide	primrosetide	yuletide
Maytide	Rogationtide

tide (tīd), adj. Tidal; as, a tide flow, hole, gauge.

tide (tīd), v.; TID'ED (tīd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); TID'ING (tīd'ĭng). Intransitive: 1. To flow as a tide; to pour forth; to surge.

2. To drift with the tide; esp., Naut., to work into or out of a river or harbor by drifting with the tide, anchoring when it becomes adverse; — often with indefinite object, it.

3. To drift; to be carried; to continue; — with on or onward.

—, Transitive: 1. To cause to float with the tide; to drive or carry with or as with the tide or stream; as, wreckage tided up the river.

2. To carry through or help along in the manner of a boat floated on a high tide; as, the gift tided us over that winter.

3. To pass as if drifting (see TIDE, v. i., 2) or drifted with a tide; variously, to surmount, live through, endure, cover, etc.; — always with over; as, he tided over the difficulty or a hard winter. "The lifetime of Bede tides over the first half of the eighth century." M. R. James.

4. To proceed along (one's way) by taking advantage of tides.

tide, v. i. [AS. tīdan to happen. See TIDE, n.] To betide; happen; befall. Archaic.

tide boat. A small craft plying with the tides.

tide'coach' (tīd'kōch'), n. A public coach timed to meet a packet arriving at a certain tide. Obs.

tide crack. In the arctic, a crack, caused by the tide, separating the ice foot and sea ice.

tid'ed (tīd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Affected by, or having, tides.

tide day. The interval between the arrival of any two consecutive high waters of the direct tide (or of the opposite tide) at any given place, its average length being 24 h. 51 m.

tide'ful (tīd'fo͝ol), adj. 1. Seasonable. Obs.

2. Flooded by the tide.

tide gate. a An opening, through which water may flow freely when the tide sets in one direction, but which closes automatically and prevents the water from flowing in the other direction. b Obs. A tideway. c Naut. A place where the tide runs with great velocity, as through a gate.

tide gauge. A gauge for showing the height of the tide, esp., one for registering its state continuously.

tide'head' (tīd'hĕd'), n. The inland limit of the tide.

tide hole. A hole made in ice to observe the tides.

tide'land' (-lănd'), n. Land overflowed during flood tide.

tideland spruce. The Sitka spruce.

tide lock. A lock situated between an enclosed basin, or a canal, and the tidewater of a harbor or river, when they are on different levels, so that craft can pass either way at all times of the tide; — called also guard lock.

tide'ly (tīd'lĭ), adv. Obs. a Suitably; fitly. b Cleverly; smartly.

tide'mak'er (-māk'ĕr), n. a An effective cause of tides. b A tide boat. — tide'mak'ing (-ĭng), n. & adj.

tide'mark' (-märk'), n. 1. A high-water, or rarely low-water, mark left by tidal water or a flood; the point it reaches; also, a mark placed to indicate this point.

2. A line on one where the dirt stops. Colloq.

tide mill. a A mill operated by the tidal currents. b A mill for clearing lands from tidewater.

tide pool. A pool left by an ebb tide.

tide predictor. A mechanical device for predicting the times of high and low tide.

tide'race' (tīd'rās'), n. A strong tidal current.

tide register. A tide gauge.

tide rip. 1. A rip (see 4th RIP) due to opposing tides.

2. A tidal wave.

tide'-rode', adj. Naut. Swung by the tide, regardless of the wind, when at anchor; — opposed to wind-rode.

tides'man (tīdz'măn), n. 1. A tidewaiter (senses 1 & 2).

2. A laborer busy only at certain states of the tide.

tide'sur·vey'or (tīd'sĕr·vā'ĕr), n. An executive custom officer who supervises tidewaiters, as still in China.

Tides'well (tīdz'wĕl), n. [From Tideswell, Derbyshire, Eng.] A morris dance of a formal, processional character.

tide table. A table which indicates the height of the tide in a given harbor at different times of the day and night throughout one year.

tide'wait'er (tīd'wāt'ĕr), n. 1. a A customs officer who boards vessels and watches the landing of goods. b Eng. A dock laborer who tows or warps vessels in or out at full tide.

2. One who bides an opportune time.

tide'wa'ter (-wô'tĕr), n. Water overflowing land at flood tide; also, water affected by the ebb and flow of the tide; hence, broadly, the seaboard. — tide'wa'ter, adj.

tidewater cypress. The bald cypress; also, its wood.

tidewater glacier. A glacier which descends to the sea, esp. if it breaks off into icebergs.

tide wave. A rise and fall of water as the tide moves about the earth.

tide'way' (tīd'wā'), n. 1. A channel in which the tide runs; also, a rush of tidal water through a channel or stream.

2. Figuratively, any similar course or onrush.

tide wheel. A water wheel operated by the tides.

tide work. Work done during a tide (sense 7).

ti'ding (tī'dĭng), n. [ME. tidinge, tithinge, tidinde, fr. or influenced by ON. títhindi, pl. (Dan. tidende, sing., Sw. tidender, pl.); akin to AS. tīdung, G. zeitung news, newspaper, and AS. tīdan to happen, E. betide, tide. See TIDE, v. i. & n.] 1. An event; happening. Archaic.

2. An account of what has taken place, but was not before known; a piece of news; a message; — now commonly pl., news; intelligence; as, good tidings.

Syn. — Advice, information. See NEWS.

tid'ing (tīd'ĭng), n. A tidal flow or ebb; also, a progressing or drifting with the tide.

tid'ley (tĭd'lĭ), n. A wren. Dial. Eng.

tid·ol'o·gy (tīd·ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [tide + -logy.] The science or theory of tides. — tid'o·log'i·cal (tīd'ō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj.

ti'dy (tī'dĭ), adj.; TI'DI·ER (-dĭ·ĕr); TI'DI·EST. [ME. tidy, tidi, fr. tid time, season; cf. D. tijdig timely, G. zeitig, Dan. & Sw. tidig. See TIDE, n.] 1. Being in proper time; timely; seasonable. Obs.

2. Properly filled-out; plump; comely; healthy. Now Scot. & Dial. Eng.

3. a Obs. Worthy; upright; skillful; diligent. b Colloq. Pretty good; fair.

Ye'll make a tidy smith one o' these days. Jeffery Farnol.

4. Neat in appearance, habits, or arrangement; orderly; kept in order; also, keeping oneself trim, one's house in order, or one's possessions in place; as, a tidy room, housekeeper, or sewing basket.

5. Not small in size, amount, extent, etc.; comfortably large or great; as, a tidy farm, sum, or success. Colloq.

Syn. and Ant. — See NEAT.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tidy-kept, tidy-looking, tidy-minded.

ti'dy, adv. Tidily. Dial. & Vulgar.

ti'dy, v. t.; TI'DIED (tī'dĭd); TI'DY·ING. To put in proper order; to make neat or tidy; — often with up; as, to tidy a room or one's dress. — v. i. To make things tidy; — usually with up.

ti'dy (tī'dĭ), n.; pl. TIDIES (-dĭz). 1. A piece of fancy work used to protect the back, arms, or headrest of a chair, sofa, etc., from wear or soil.

2. A child's pinafore. Dial. Eng.

3. A receptacle with pockets or compartments in which sewing materials, toilet articles, odds and ends, etc., can be kept in order.

ti'dy·tips' (tī'dĭ·tĭps'), n. sing. & pl. An annual Californian herb (Layia elegans) having yellow-rayed flower heads often tipped with white. See WILD FLOWERS, Plate.

tie (tī), v.; past tense & past part. TIED (tīd), Obs. TIGHT (tīt); pres. part. & verbal n. TY'ING (tī'ĭng), TIE'ING. [ME. tien, teyen, fr. AS. tīgan, fr. tēag, tēah, a rope; akin to ON. taug, and AS. tēon to draw, to pull. See 1st TOW.] Transitive: 1. To fasten or attach (one thing to another) by means of a connecting and knotted rope, band, cord, or the like. "Tie the kine to the cart." 1 Sam. vi. 7.

2. To unite or join firmly; to connect; Colloq., to marry.

In bond of virtuous love together tied. Fairfax.

3. To bind, esp. so as to prevent free movement, choice, etc.; to constrain by authority, influence, agreement, or obligation; restrict; confine; as, to tie one to secrecy; to be tied to one's work or argument; to be tied by illness to one's bed. See TIED, adj.

4. Now Rare. a To reduce to bondage. b To bind by gratitude or the like; — chiefly in passive. c To make binding; to cement.

5. To bring together, bind, or confine, the parts, sides, or ends, of (a thing) by means of a cord, lace, etc., drawn around or through and knotted; to close an opening in by drawing and knotting a cord, attached strings, laces, or the like; as, to tie a bonnet, a bundle, an artery, or one's shoes.

6. To form a knot or bow in; to knot; as, to tie one's scarf, shoelaces, or sash; also, to fashion by such an action; as, to tie a sailor's knot or three bows.

7. To make or have an equal score with, in a contest; hence, Slang, to equal; beat.

8. Agric. To bind together, as stripped tobacco or stalks, and ears of wheat; to sheaf, or the like.

9. Elec. To join electrically (two power stations) so that each can furnish power to the other.

10. Mach. & Railroads. To provide or secure with a tie or ties; as, frames tied together; to tie a railroad track.

11. Music. To unite, as notes, by a tie.

—, Intransitive: To make a tie; specif.: a To make a bond or connection. b To make an equal score; to be equal. c Rare. To pair one's vote. d To attach oneself or itself; as, this fact ties to no other.

Syn. — TIE, BIND. To TIE is to fasten, esp. by knotting a cord or the like; to BIND is to make fast by or as if by a band or ligature; as, "I'll tie [our horses] in the wood" (Shak.); "Gather ye together . . . the tares, and bind them in bundles" (Matt. xiii. 30). Cf. HAMPER.

Ant. — Loose, unfasten, free.

tie by the leg. To tie down completely; to shackle.

tie down. a To restrain or confine, by or as by tying or fastening (to something); as, to tie one down to facts or to a job. b To deprive of freedom of choice, range, etc.; to fetter; shackle; as, poets should not be tied down by rules.

tie in. a To make a connection; to join in; to pitch in. b Weaving. To join warp threads of one series to another to pull a new set of warp threads through the reed.

tie one's hands. To make one unable to act or proceed in an action.

tie one's tongue. To compel one to remain silent; to impose secrecy upon one.

tie the knot. To perform the marriage ceremony; also, to get married. Colloq.

tie up. a To attach, fasten, or bind securely; also, to wrap up, as a bundle. b To make a connection or connections; to join; also, to relate itself; — with to or with. c To confine, restrain; to hinder from motion or action; to prevent from operating, being used, etc.; as, to tie up a railroad, factory, or stores of supplies. d To put in such a place, or invest in such a manner, as to make unavailable for other purposes; as, to tie up one's money in land. e To subject (property) to such restrictions, or bring into such a condition, that sale or alienation is impossible; as, the will tied up the estate. f To assume a definite association of interest.

— tied to a wife's, mother's, etc., apron strings. Controlled by, or clinging to, a wife, mother, etc., as if a child.

tie- (tī-). A combining form of the verb tie, denoting that ties or serves as a tie, as in *tie*bar; — often written separately, as in:

tie band	tie knot	tie stay tie bolt	tie post	tie strap tie cord	tie rope	tie wall tie (tī), n.; pl. TIES (tīz). [Cf. AS. tēh, tēah, tēag. See TIE, v.] 1. A band, cord, rope, chain, string, lace, etc., used for tying; specif., a shoelace.

2. Something which serves as a connecting link or member; a link. See technical senses, below.

3. Figuratively, a bond; specif.: a A moral or legal obligation to someone or something; a restraining power, influence, pledge, duty, or the like; as, the ties of married life; the tie of secrecy. b A bond of union or affection between persons; a close relationship or connection; as, the ties of friendship or of race.

4. Something that is knotted or is to be knotted when worn; as: a A tiewig. b A hair knot. c A necktie. d pl. Low laced shoes; oxfords.

5. A tying or knotting; also, a method or an instance of tying. Rare.

6. An equality in numbers, as of votes, scores, etc.; equality in any contest, as a race, election, or competition; hence: a A match which ends in a tie, or draw. b Brit. A deciding match played by those who were tied.

7. A sag on the back of developed cattle where the skin is bound down by connective tissue.

8. Arch., Engin., etc. A beam, post, rod, or angle, holding two pieces together; a tension member in a construction. Cf. STRUT.

9. Commerce. The obligation of a tied house (which see) to purchase its goods of a certain firm. Brit.

10. Music. a A curved line joining two notes indicating the same pitch, to denote a single tone sustained through the time value of the two; a bind. Cf. 5th SLUR, 4 a. It is used often simply for rhythmical clearness, as shown in the left-hand figure, in which the second measure might otherwise have been written as at the right. b A connecting line in stroked notes.

Ties, 10, a.

11. Naut. a = TYE, n., 3. b = STOP, n., 19 a.

12. Railroads. One of the transverse supports to which the rails are fastened to keep them to line, gauge, and grade; — called also (esp., Brit.) sleeper.

13. Sports. Any match in a tournament in which the contestants are paired off two by two, the losers dropping out until only one contestant, the winner, is left.

14. Stenciling. A narrow strip of material left in the open part of a stencil to stiffen or hold the design together.

15. Weaving. Any method of connecting the threads in a Jacquard loom to produce a desired pattern; hence, the arrangement of threads thus produced.

tie. Variant of TYE.

tie'back' (tī'băk'), n. A cord, finished strip of material, or the like used to hold curtains back.

tie bar. a A bar used as a tie rod. b Railroads. A rod between two switch rails to hold them to gauge. c Print. A bar showing a tie between two letters, as in tū.

tie beam. A beam acting as a tie, as in a roof. See ROOF.

tie breaker. A circuit breaker placed on the line joining two power stations electrically.

tie conductor. A conductor used to join two power stations electrically.

tied (tīd), adj. 1. Secured, bound, or united by a tie; knotted; connected; constricted; constrained; bound down.

2. Brit. a Bound, as a business or public house. b Held, as a cottage, only by a tenant who works for the owner.

3. = Tied-and-dyed.

tied'-and-dyed', adj. Designating a method of dyeing in which a design is obtained by bunching and tying portions of the fabric so that they will not absorb the dye; also, dyed in such a manner; as, a tied-and-dyed scarf.

tied house. A tied (sense 2 a) business house, or, usually, public house, under contract to buy of a certain firm, the contract usually depending on a mortgage given by the tied house to the other. Brit.

tied image. Psychol. A memory image blended with and completing a sensory impression.

tied letters. Print. Two or more characters on one type body.

tie dyeing. Dyeing by the tied-and-dyed method.

tie feeder. Elec. See FEEDER, 6.

tie'-in' (tī'ĭn'), n. Something that ties in; as: a An advertisement placed by a retail dealer near the advertisement of the manufacturer. b Comment uniting in one article two otherwise separate advertising items. c Elec. The electrical joining of two central stations so that each can furnish power to the other.

tie line. a Railroads. A string used for lining one end of track ties before laying rails when building a track. b Surv. A line measured on the ground to connect some object to the survey. If distances alone are measured, two tie lines are required to locate a point.

tide'less, adj. See -LESS. — tide'less·ness, n. tide'like', adj. & adv. See -LIKE. tides'-way', n. = TIDEWAY. Obs. tide'wait'er·ship, n. See -SHIP. tide'ward (tīd'wĕrd), adv. See -WARD. ti'di·a·ble, adj. See ABLE. ti'did. Tidied. Ref. Sp. tidi'fin. † TYDER, a bird.
ti'di·ly (tī'dĭ·lĭ), adv. of TIDY. tidinde. † TIDING.
ti'di·ness (tī'dĭ·nĕs; 119), n. See -NESS. tid'ing·less, adj. See -LESS. Poetic. tid'i·ose, adj. Anxious; impatient. Obs. tid'ling. Var. of TIDDLING. ti'dy·ism, n. See -ISM. tie'dog', n. = BANDOG. Obs. tie'go (tī'gō; cf. VERTIGO), n. Vertigo. Obs. tie'ing. Var. of TYING.

tie'mann·ite (tē'mănˑīt), n. [After W. Tiemann, a German, who discovered it.] Mineral. Native mercuric selenide, HgSe, occurring commonly in dark-gray or nearly black masses of metallic luster. Sp. gr., 8.2–8.5.

tie mill. A machine with four circular saws arranged to cut from a log two slabs, two boards, and a cant, or tie, all at one operation.

tien (tyĕn), n. [Chin. (Pek.) t'ien[1].] Chinese Philos. a The sky. b [cap.] The controlling principle in the universe. See TIEN CHU.

Tien Chu (tyĕn jū). [Chin. (Pek.) T'ien[1]-chu[3].] Lord of Heaven; — used by the Roman Catholics to translate the word "God" into Chinese. Hence the Roman Catholic Church is known in China as the T'ien Chu Chiao (jyou), or T'ien Chu T'ang (tăng).

‖ tien'da (tyĕn'dä), n. [Sp., prop., tent, awning.] A booth or shop where goods are sold.

‖ tiens (tyăN), interj. [F., imper. sing. of tenir to hold.] An expression of surprise; indeed! Well, well! Just think!

tie'–on' (tī'ŏn'), adj. Fastened by tying or knotting. Cf. SLIPOVER.

tie'–out' (-out'), n. A rope or cable anchorage.

tie periwig. A tiewig.

tie'pin' (tī'pĭn'), n. A scarfpin.

tie plate. a Naut. One of several narrow plates to space and strengthen deck beams. b Mach. A plate to distribute the pressure of a tie, as on a supporting beam. c Railroads. A metal plate between the rail and tie to assist in holding the rail to line and to protect the tie from mechanical wear.

tie'–plate', v. t. Railroads. To furnish, as a track, with tie plates: — tie'–plat'er (-plāt'ĕr), n.

ti'er (tī'ĕr), n. 1. One who ties; specif., one whose work is tying a (specified) thing, as in:

bale tier	jute tier	warp tier
bobbin tier	knot tier

2. A child's pinafore tied with tape or cord. Local, U.S. 3. Something used for or in tying, as a band; specif., an awllike tool with an eye near its point, used by butchers as a needle in tying up a roast of beef.

tier (tēr), n. [OF. tire. See ARTILLERY.] 1. A row, rank, or layer; esp., one of two or more rows one above another; as, arranged tier upon tier; three tiers of arches; flounces in tiers; a tier of shelves in a library. 2. Specif.: a A row of guns or gun portholes, as in a warship or fort. b A class or grade, as in society. c Colloq., U.S. A group of counties or States that form a row on a map. d A vertical layer of brickwork whose thickness is the width of a brick. e In Tasmania, a mountain range. f A tiered arrangement; — rare, except in attributive use. 3. Naut. a The ranges of the fakes, or windings, of a coiled cable. b Rare. The hollow space in a coil of cable. c A cable tier. d A row of moored or anchored ships. 4. Radio. An antenna array consisting of rows of antenna elements placed one above another.

tier (tēr), v. t. & i. To place, arrange, or to be arranged, in tiers or layers.

tier building. A building of several stories, the floors of which may or may not have partitions.

tierce (tērs; 37), n. [OF. tierce, terce (F. tierce), fr. L. tertia, fem. of tertius third. See THIRD; cf. TERCE, TERCEL, TERCET, TERTIARY.] 1. A third. Obs. 2. A liquid measure. See MEASURE, Table. Hence, a cask holding it, larger than a barrel and smaller than a hogshead. 3. Card Playing. A sequence of three cards of the same suit. Tierce of ace, king, queen, is called tierce major. 4. Eccl. The third of the canonical hours, or nine A.M.; also, the service or office for that hour;—called also undernsong. 5. Fencing. A position in parrying, engaging, etc., in which the wrist is turned inward, the nails turned slightly downward, and the point of the weapon is about on the level of the eye and a little outside the line on the right.

Lunge, and Parry in Tierce.

6. Music. a A third. b The tone two octaves and a major third above a given tone. Also, an organ stop giving tones at this interval from the normal pitch of the digitals. 7. Scots Law. = TERCE.

tierce, v. t. To put into tierces. — v. i. To parry or lunge in tierce.

tier·cé' (tēr-sā'), adj. [F.] Her. Divided into three parts of different tinctures; — said of an escutcheon; also in combination; as, tiercé in bend, tiercé in gyrons (bend-sinisterwise), tiercé in pale, tiercé in pile (from sinister to dexter), etc.

tierce major. See TIERCE, n., 3.

tierce rhyme. [F. tierce-rime.] Terza rima.

tier'ce·ron (tēr'sĕ·rŏn), n. [F.] Gothic Arch. One of the minor ribs in vaulting, springing from the pier on either side of the main diagonal rib, and therefore not passing through the center of the vault.

tiered (tērd), adj. Having tiers, rows, or layers; — chiefly in combination; as, triple-tiered.

tier'er (tēr'ĕr), n. One who tiers; specif., Naut., one of the sailors stationed in the cable tier to stow the chain or cable as it comes in.

‖ Tier'gar'ten (tēr'gär'tĕn), n. [G.] A zoological garden; specif., a famous park in Berlin containing a zoological garden at one end.

tie rod, or tie'rod' (tī'rŏd'), n. 1. A rod used as a tie, or connecting member or brace; a tie bar. 2. In steering systems of automotive vehicles, a rod connecting one of the arms of each steering knuckle to the corresponding arm of the other.

tier ranger. A thief operating among river tiers (sense 3 d).

‖ tier'ras (tyĕr'räs), n. pl. [Sp., pl. of tierra earth.] Quicksilver Mining. Fine material of earth or rock mixed with ore.

tiers'–ar'gent' (tyâr'-zär'zhăN'), n. [F., fr. tiers third + argent silver.] A silver alloy containing approximately one third of its weight of silver. In one variety the silver is alloyed with aluminum, in another with German silver.

‖ tiers' é'tat' (tyâr'-zā'tä'). [F.] The third estate, or commonalty, in France; — so called in distinction from, and as inferior to, the nobles and clergy. Hist.

tier shot. Mil. A form of grapeshot in which the shot were arranged in regular tiers, separated by plates.

tiers'man (tērz'măn), n. 1. One who arranges articles, as casks, in tiers. 2. In Tasmania, one who lives in the mountains.

tie'tick (tē'tĭk), n. [Imitative.] The meadow pipit; also, the rock pipit. Local, Brit.

tie'–tie' (tī'tī'), n. Naut. One of several cords on a hammock by which, instead of a lashing, it may be tied in a roll; any similar cord. — tie'–tie', adj.

tie'–up' (-ŭp'), n. Act or fact of tying up; state of being tied up; also, something, as a ribbon, or tape, that is tied up or is used in tying up. Specif.: a Obs. A tiewig. b A knockout blow. c U. S. A suspension of traffic or business, as by a strike of employees, a breakdown of machinery, etc. d Railroads. The enforced idleness of a train crew because of a rule, or statutory provision, as to the maximum number of hours' work. e Weaving. = TIE, n., 15. — tie'–up', adj.

tie'wig' (tī'wĭg'), n. A wig having the back hair tied with ribbon. — tie'wigged' (-wĭgd'), adj.

tiff (tĭf), n. [Perh. orig., a sniff, sniffing; cf. ON. thefr a smell, taste, thefa to sniff, Nor. tev a drawing in of the breath, teva to sniff, smell, Sw. dial. täv smell, scent, taste. Cf. TIFFIN.] 1. A small draft of liquor, esp. of punch; also, small beer. Now Rare.

tiff, v. t. [See TIFFIN.] To drink; sip. Obs.

tiff, v. t. [ME. tiffen, fr. OF. tiffer, tifer.] To deck out; to dress. Obs.

tiff (tĭf), n. [Prob. of imitative origin (cf. HUFF). Cf. TIFT a puff.] A slight fit of anger; an outburst, as of temper; a pet; a petty quarrel.

tiff, v. i.; TIFFED (tĭft); TIFF'ING. To be in a tiff or pet; to quarrel in a small way; to be peevish.

tiff, n. Scot. & Dial. Eng. a Order; state; condition. b Mood; fit; humor. c A stretch of time; a spell.

tiff, v. i. [From tiffing. See TIFFIN.] To take tiffin; to lunch. India.

tif'fa·ny (tĭf'ȧ·nĭ), n.; pl. -NIES (-nĭz). [OF. tiphanie Epiphany, fr. LL. theophania; — perh. so called with ref. to its transparency. See THEOPHANY.] 1. A species of gauze, originally of very thin silk, but now of muslin; a transparent lawn. 2. A flour sieve made of tiffany. Local, Eng.

tif'fa·ny, adj. Like tiffany; flimsy.

tif'fa·ny·ite (tĭf'ȧ·nĭ·īt), n. [After Charles Lewis Tiffany, Am. jeweler.] Mineral. A hydrocarbon assumed to exist in certain very luminescent diamonds.

tif'fie (tĭf'ĭ), v. t. To tiffle. Rare.

tif'fin (tĭf'ĭn), n. [Prop., tiffing a quaffing, a drinking, fr. tiff to drink, fr. tiff, n. See TIFF a drink.] 1. Luncheon, esp. at midday. Orig. India. 2. A brown, yellowish red-yellow in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

tif'fin, v. i. & t. To take or provide with tiffin; to lunch. Colloq.

tiff'ish (tĭf'ĭsh), adj. Inclined to tiffs; peevish; petulant.

tif'fle (tĭf''l), ti'fle (tī'f'l; tĭf''l), v. i. To potter; idle; trifle. Now Dial. Eng.

tif'fle, ti'fle, v. t. 1. To entangle or disarrange; to tumble. Obs. 2. To unravel; fray. Chiefly Dial.

tif'fy (tĭf'ĭ), adj. Tiffish. Dial. Eng.

ti·fi'nagh (tĭ·fē'năK), adj. [Tuareg tifīnagh writing(s).] Designating, or pertaining to, a Libyan alphabet, apparently descended from the Old Libyan or Numidian characters (derived from the Punic cursive script), and still used by the Tuaregs.

tift (tĭft), v. t. Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of TIFF.

tift, n. Scot. & N. of Eng. a A puff (of wind); a gust. b A whiff; sniff. c Hurry; hasty flight; breathlessness.

tift, v. i. To pant. Dial. Eng.

tift'er (tĭf'tĕr), n. A difficulty; a stiff breeze. Dial. Eng.

tig (tĭg), v. t. & i. [Cf. TICK, v. i., TAG.] 1. Scot. & Dial. a To touch; tag; pat. b To run about, as cattle pestered by flies. 2. To tap or touch for a loan. Slang, Australia.

tig with. To have dealings with; to meddle or tamper with. Chiefly Scot.

tig, n. Scot. & Dial. a A touch. b The game of tag. c A fit of ill-humor.

tig. Variant of TYG.

tige (tēzh), n. [F., a stalk, fr. L. tibia a pipe.] In an early form of rifle, a steel pin in the breech against which the ball was hammered by the ramrod and expanded to fit the grooves. The charge was placed around the tige.

ti·gel'la (tĭ·jĕl'ȧ), ti·gelle' (tĭ·jĕl'), n. Also ti·gel'lum (tĭ·jĕl'ŭm), ti·gel'lus (-ŭs). [NL., fr. F. tigelle, dim. of tige stem, stalk. See TIGE.] Bot. A short or rudimentary stem; specif., the hypocotyl. — ti·gel'late (-ăt), adj.

ti'ger (tī'gĕr), n.; pl. TIGERS (-gĕrz), sometimes TIGER. See PLURAL, Note. [ME. tigre, fr. OF. tigre, fr. L. tigris, fr. Gr. tigris, of Iranian origin; cf. Av. tighri arrow, tighra pointed; akin to Gr. stizein to prick. The tiger was named from its swiftness; cf. L. Tigris the Tigris river, fr. Gr. Tigris, fr. OPer. Tigra. See STICK, v.] 1. a A large Asiatic carnivorous mammal (Felis tigris) of the cat family, of a tawny color transversely striped with black. The long untufted tail is ringed with black and the under parts are mostly white. The tiger has no mane. It slightly exceeds the lion in measurements, its totallength being ordinarily nine to ten feet, but sometimes more than twelve feet. Though able to climb trees, it does not habitually do so. In many districts it lives largely on cattle and often takes to man eating. The tiger ranges from Persia across Asia to the Malay Peninsula, Sumatra, and Java, and northward to southern Siberia. Northern specimens have much longer and softer hair than the southern ones, and are often regarded as a different species or subspecies. Cf. BENGAL TIGER. b Any of certain other animals; as, in Spanish America, the jaguar; in South Africa, the leopard; and in Tasmania, the thylacine. c Short for TIGER CAT, TIGER SNAKE, etc.

Tiger. (1/60)

2. A ferocious, bloodthirsty person or, more rarely, animal; also, a tigerish nature or temper; as, to rouse the tiger in one. 3. Old Slang. a A groom in livery, esp. a boy or undersized man, who rides in a vehicle, as a dogcart, driven by his master or mistress. He usually stands on a small platform in the rear. b A dissolute or vulgar fellow; a swaggerer, bully, rake, or the like. 4. [cap.] a An organization having a representation of a tiger as its emblem; as, the Tammany Tiger. b A member of such an organization. 5. U. S. a A howl or yell (sometimes the word tiger) at the end of a round of enthusiastic cheering. b A blind tiger. 6. Cards. a A poker hand, sometimes played, containing seven high, deuce low, without a pair, straight, or flush. It beats a straight, but loses to a flush. b A faro bank. See buck the tiger, under BUCK, v. 7. A hardy, fearless native, employed as a carrier by Himalayan exploring parties.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

tiger-footed	tiger-marked	tigerproof tigerhearted	tiger-minded	tiger-spotted tiger-looking	tiger-passioned	tiger-striped — The Tiger. A poem in the collection Songs of Experience (1794) by William Blake. — the Tiger. Georges Clemenceau; — a nickname.

ti'ger, (tī'gĕr), adj. Pertaining to or like the tiger; tigerish.

ti'ger, v. i. To move like a tiger.

tiger beetle. Any of numerous species of active carnivorous beetles constituting the family Cicindelidae, and mostly of the genus Cicindela whose larvae live in tunnels in the soil. They have rapid flight. See INSECT, Plate.

Tiger Beetle (Cicindela hirticollis). Nat. size.

ti'ger·bird' (tī'gĕr·bûrd'), n. a The amadavat. b The tiger bittern. c A barbet of the subfamily Capitoninae.

tiger bittern. Any of several South and Central American herons of the genus Tigrisoma having plumage with much buff or chestnut vermiculated with black.

tiger cat. a Any of certain wildcats of moderate size and variegated coloration, as the clouded tiger, the marbled tiger cat, the serval, the ocelot, and the margay. b In Australia, any of certain dasyures. c A domestic cat with tigerlike markings. d A fierce or fiercely angry person tiger chop. The tiger's-jaw.

Marbled Tiger Cat (Felis marmorata).

tiger cocoa. See PATASHTE.

tiger cowrie. A tiger shell.

ti'ger·eye' (tī'gĕr·ī'), n. 1. Also ti'ger's–eye' (tī'gĕrz·ī'). A chatoyant stone, usually yellow-brown, much used for ornament. It is a silicified crocidolite, in which the fibers penetrating quartz are changed to oxide of iron. A blue variety is called hawk's-eye. 2. Pottery. A glaze resembling in look the tigereye.

tiger finch. The amadavat.

tiger fish. A large fresh-water game fish (Hydrocyon lineatus) of the rivers of South Africa.

ti'ger·flow'er (tī'gĕr·flou'ĕr), n. Any plant of the genus Tigridia; — in allusion to the flowers, which are spotted or streaked.

Tigerflower (Tigridia pavonia).

ti'ger·foot' (-fo̅o̅t'), n. A tropical Old World species of Ipomoea (I. pes-tigridis) having pedately lobed leaves.

tiger frog. a The leopard frog. b = BULLFROG c.

tiger grass. A low East Indian fan palm (Nannorhops ritchieana) used in many ways by the natives.

tiger heart. Med. A heart in which stripes of yellowish or white myocardium, caused by fatty degeneration, alternate with stripes of normal color, so that tiger skin is simulated. The condition is seen on the inside of the organ.

ti'ger·ish (tī'gĕr·ĭsh), adj. Of, pertaining to, or like, a tiger or tigers; also, specif.: a Full of tigers. b Fierce; bloodthirsty. c Old Slang. Swaggering; flashy. — ti'ger·ish·ly, adv. — ti'ger·ish·ness, n.

ti'ger·ism (-ĭz'm), n. Tigerishness; swagger.

tiger lily. 1. a A common Asiatic garden lily (Lilium tigrinum) having nodding orange-colored flowers densely spotted with black, with the perianth segment strongly reflexed. b Any of various lilies having similar spotted flowers, as L. pardalinum, L. philadelphicum, etc. 2. A color, yellowish-red in hue, of high saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

ti'ger·ly (tī'gĕr·lĭ), adj. Tigerish; tigerlike.

tiger mosquito. The yellow-fever mosquito.

tiger moth. See ARCTIIDAE; APANTESIS; BUTTERFLY, Plate.

ti'ger–mouth', n. The tiger's-mouth.

ti'ger·nut' (tī'gĕr·nŭt'), n. The chufa.

tiger python. A large Indian rock snake (Python molurus).

tiger salamander. A widely distributed North American salamander (Ambystoma tigrinum).

ti'ger's–claw' (tī'gĕrz·klȯ'), n. Mach. A boring rod or rifling rod in which the tool is sheathed on entering the bore and is automatically thrust outward on the cutting stroke.

ti'ger's–eye' (-ī'), n. A tigereye.

ti'ger's–foot' (-fo̅o̅t'), n. A tigerfoot.

tiger shark. Any of several large and voracious sharks irregularly banded and spotted, esp. Stegostoma tigrinum of the Indian Ocean and western Pacific, and Galeocerdo arcticus (syn. tigrinus) of the South Atlantic coast and the West Indies.

---

tie'mak'er, n. See MAKER. — tie'mak'ing, n. & adj.

Tie'mann-Reil'mer re·ac'tion. Chem. = REIMER-TIEMANN REACTION.

tiend. Var. of TEIND.

tier. ‡ TEAR, TIRE.

tierced (tērst), adj. Her. = TIERCÉ.

tier'cel. Var. of TERCEL.

tier'cet (tēr'sĕt; tûr'-). Var. of TERCET.

tierd. Tiered. Ref. Sp.

tier'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tierse. Tierce. Ref. Sp.

tif. Tiff. Ref. Sp.

tif·foon'. ‡ TYPHOON.

tif'fle. Var. of TIFFLE.

ti·foon'. Typhoon. Ref. Sp.

tift'y (tĭf'tĭ). Var. of TIFFY.

Scot. & Dial. Eng.

ti'tus. Typhus. Ref. Sp.

tige (tĭg), n. Short for TIGER.

ti'ger·an'tic, adj. Tigerish. Obs.

ti'ger·hood, n. See -HOOD.

ti'ger·ine (tī'gĕr·ĭn; -īn; 156) Var. of TIGRINE.

ti'ger·kin, n. Dim. of TIGER.

ti'ger·like', adj. & adv. See -LIKE ti'ger·ling, n. Dim. of TIGER.

tiger shell. A large cowrie (Cypraea tigris) thickly covered with brown spots on the upper surface.

ti'ger's–jaw' (tī'gĕrz·jô'), n. A South African fig marigold (Mesembryanthemum tigrinum) having long ciliate teeth on the upturned leaf margins. Cf. CAT-CHOP.

ti'ger's–milk' (-mĭlk'), n. 1. The sap of the plant blind-your-eyes.
2. Gin or other strong liquor. Slang.

ti'ger's–mouth' (-mouth'), n. Any of several plants of the figwort family, as the foxglove, snapdragon, and toadflax.

tiger snake. a In Australia and Tasmania, a very venomous elapine snake (Notechis scutatus, syn. Hoplocephalus curtus) of a brown color with dark crossbars; — called also brown-banded snake. b In South and East Africa, a back-fanged snake (Tarbophis semiannulatus).

ti'ger's–tail', or ti'ger·tail' (tī'gĕr·tāl') spruce. A Japanese evergreen tree (Picea polita) with rigid spiny leaves, often cultivated for ornament.

tiger swallowtail. See SWALLOWTAIL, 2.

tiger wolf. a The spotted hyena. See HYENA. b The thylacine.

ti'ger·wood' (tī'gĕr·wŏŏd'), n. a The variegated wood said to be of a tree (Machaerium schomburgkii) native to Guiana. b The wood said to be of a South American tree (genus Jacaranda).

tig'ger (tĭg'ĕr), n. One who tigs. Dial.

tight (tīt), adj.; TIGHT'ER (-ĕr); TIGHT'EST. [ME. tight, thight, of Scand. origin; cf. ON. thētt, Dan. tæt, Sw. tät; akin to D. & G. dicht, Lith. tankus, Skr. tanakti it draws together, gathers, takra buttermilk, and E. THEE to thrive.] 1. Compact or close in texture; dense; solid; as, tight cloth or tissues. Now Rare.
2. So close in structure as not to admit the passage of a liquid or fluid; not leaky; often, watertight; hence: a Proof or proofed against entrance or absorption of something specified or implied; as, a tight ship or cask; a tight (not open-minded) brain. b Not permitting flow of mucus.
3. a Held, bound, or fixed securely or firmly; difficult to move, stir, eradicate, etc.; as, a tight screw or drawer. b Hence, unmoved or steady; as, to sit tight.
4. Not slack or loose; firmly stretched or drawn; taut; as, a tight knot, belt, or rope.
5. Of persons: a Now Chiefly Dial. Well-formed; shapely; comely; trim; also, neat; tidy in dress.

Clad very plain, but clean and tight. Evelyn.

b Capable; energetic; competent; alert; ready; smart.

They were right, tight boys, never sulky or slow,
A fruitful, a goodly muster. S. V. Benét.

c Rare. Faithful; constant.
6. Compact in arrangement or construction; snug; trim; tidy. Now Dial.
7. Close-fitting; usually, too close or small for comfort; as, a tight coat, shoe, or fit.
8. Difficult to get through or out of; not easily circumvented, coped with, or the like; hard; severe; exacting; — chiefly in colloquial expressions; as, he needs a tight hand over him; that was a tight squeeze; to be in a tight place.
9. Closefisted; stingy; as, tight in one's dealings. Colloq.
10. Packed close or closely together; highly compressed; without fluency; of language, style, etc., extremely condensed; of a newspaper (Slang), pressed for space.

His tight little verses an inch in diameter. Amy Lowell.

11. Intoxicated; tipsy. Slang.
12. Agric. Impervious to moisture; as, a tight soil.
13. Coopering. = WET, adj., 13.
14. Art. Lacking freedom or breadth of treatment.

The execution is dry, hard, and tight. Sir W. Armstrong.

15. Com. Scantily supplied or obtainable in proportion to the demand; closely held; dear; not easy; — of money or of a commodity. Also, characterized by such a condition of money; — of the money market. Cf. EASY, adj., 9.
16. Forestry. Sound in every way and free from ring shakes and checks; as, logs with tight hearts.
17. Sports. a Of the mode of play, in football, etc., cautious or with the men in close touch or formation. Cf. LOOSE, 14 b. b Evenly contested; close; as, a tight game.
Syn. — TIGHT, TAUT. TIGHT is the general, TAUT, the nautical term. Cf. TENSE.

tight– (tīt-). A combining form of tight, adj. & adv.

tight-ankled	tight-gartered	tight-shut tight-belted	tight-hosed	tight-skinned tight-bodied	tight-limbed	tight-skirted tight-booted	tight-lipped	tight-sleeved tight-bound	tight-looking, adj.	tight-stretched tight-clap, n.	tight-made	tight-tie, n.
tight-clenched	tight-necked	tight-valved tight-closed	tight-packed	tight-waisted tight-draped	tight-pressed	tight-wound tight-drawn	tight-reining, adj.	tight-woven tight-fit, adj.	tight-rooted	tight-wristed tight-fitting, adj.	tight-set

-tight (-tīt). A combining form of the adjective tight, denoting impervious to, as in the following and their derivatives in -ly and -ness:

airtight	hog-tight	smoketight dust-tight	lighttight	steamtight fire-tight	oiltight	storm-tight friction-tight	pig-tight	thought-tight gastight	raintight	watertight hand-tight	skintight	windtight tight (tīt), adv. 1. Tightly; firmly; hard.

2. Chiefly Dial. a Soundly; vigorously. b Fast; quickly. Cf. TITE adv.

tight, v. t. 1. To tighten; to make tight, esp. watertight. Obs.
2. To put in order; to tidy; — with up. Now Dial.

tight, n. With the, a tight, esp. watertight, condition; also, a tight place, corner, play, etc. Slang.

tight, v. t. & i. = TEE, draw, etc. Obs.

tight, v. t. To set or fix; settle upon; appoint; intend. Obs.

tight and loose pulleys. Fast and loose pulleys.

tight back. Bookbinding. A book back glued solidly to the cover, as distinguished from an open back or spring back.

tight cooper. = WET COOPER.

tight cooperage. Sets of two round heads and a number of staves held together with hoops, suitable for making containers for liquids. Cf. SLACK COOPERAGE.

tight coupling. Elec. Coupling such that currents flowing in the two circuits have a considerable effect on each other, the coupling coefficient being relatively large.

tight'en (tīt'n), v. t.; TIGHT'ENED (-'nd); TIGHT'EN·ING. To make tight; to draw tighter; to straiten; to make more close in any sense; as, to ride with tightened reins. — v. i. To become tight or tighter.
Ant. — Loosen, relax, slacken.

tighten one's belt. To stint oneself, esp. in food; to practice rigid economy.

tighten up. To tighten so as to prevent leakage, etc., or to make firmer, sounder, or the like.

tight'en·er (tīt'n·ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which tightens.
2. Mach. An idle pulley or a sprocket wheel pressed against a belt, band, rope, or chain, to tighten it.

tight'en·ing pul'ley. Mach. A tightener.

tight'er (tīt'ĕr), n. A tightener. Archaic.

tight'fist'ed (-fĭs'tĕd; -tĭd; 66; 119), adj. Closefisted; disposed to parsimony; that is a tightwad.

tight fit. Mach. See 5th FIT, 4.

tight'ish (tīt'ĭsh), adj. & adv. Rather tight or tightly (in various senses).

tight joint. Bookbinding. A book joint against which the cover board is set snugly without the space or depression of the open joint; — called also smooth joint.

tight'ly (tīt'lĭ), adv.; TIGHT'LI·ER (-lĭ·ĕr); TIGHT'LI·EST. In a tight manner or state; so as to be tight; tight.

tight'rope' (tīt'rōp'), n. A rope stretched taut on which acrobats perform. — tight'rope', adj.

tight'rope', v. i. To walk, dance, etc., on a tightrope.

tights (tīts), n. pl. 1. Close-fitting breeches. Now Rare.
2. Skintight garments, usually for the lower part of the body and the legs, worn esp. by performers in public.

tight scrummage. See SCRUMMAGE, n.

tight squeeze. A passage, or figuratively, difficulty, which one barely manages to get through. Colloq.

tight'wad' (tīt'wŏd'), n. [See 1st WAD, 5.] One who keeps his "wad" tightly rolled; one who spends, lends, or gives away money grudgingly, or not at all. Slang, U. S.

tight'wire' (-wīr'), n. A tightrope made of wire.

tight work. Work at making watertight containers.

tig·lal'de·hyde (tĭg·lăl'dē·hīd), n. [tiglic + aldehyde.] Chem. A liquid, C_4H_7CHO, having the odor of bitter almonds, obtained by distilling guaiacum (resin); tiglic aldehyde; — called also guaiol.

tig'lic (tĭg'lĭk), adj. Also tig·lin'ic (tĭg·lĭn'ĭk). [NL. tiglium croton-oil plant (Croton tiglium), fr. Gr. tilos a thin stool; — so named from the purgative property of the seeds. Cf. TILLEY.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating a white, crystalline, unsaturated acid, $C_4H_7CO_2H$, found as esters in Roman camomile oil, in croton oil (from Croton tiglium), etc.; α-methyl-crotonic. It is stereoisomeric with angelic acid.

tiglic aldehyde. Chem. Tiglaldehyde.

tig'num (tĭg'nŭm), n. [L.] Civil Law. Building materials.

Ti·gré' (tē·grā'), n. A modern dialect descended from Ethiopic, spoken in the regions north of Tigré. It is closer than Tigriña to Ethiopic. See SEMITIC LANGUAGES. — adj. Of or pertaining to Tigré.

ti'gress (tī'grĕs; -grĭs; 119), n. [Cf. F. tigresse.] A female tiger; also, a tigerish woman.

Ti·grid'i·a (tī·grĭd'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See TIGER. So named from the spotted flowers.] Bot. A small genus of Mexican and Central American plants (family Iridaceae), the tiger-flowers, having variegated flowers with spreading perianth segments and 2-parted style branches. Their flowers are handsome but evanescent. See TIGERFLOWER, Illust.

Ti·gri'ña, Ti·gri'na, or Ti·gri'nya (tē·grē'nyä), n. A modern dialect descended from Ethiopic, spoken in the region of Tigré proper; — sometimes called Southern Tigré. See SEMITIC LANGUAGES.

ti'grine (tī'grĭn; -grīn), adj. [L. tigrinus, fr. tigris tiger.] Of or pertaining to a tiger; like a tiger, esp. in coloring.

Ti'gris (tī'grĭs), n. [L., tiger.] Astron. The constellation LYNX, a part of which is now Vulpecula; also, Sagitta. Obs.

tigro-. A comb. form from tigroid denoting tigroid granules, as in ti·groi'y·sis, ti'gro·lyt'ic. See -LYSIS, -LYTIC.

ti'groid (tī'groid), adj. [See TIGER; -OID.] Resembling a tiger; striped or spotted.

tigroid granules. Med. The Nissl granules.

Ti'gua (tē'wä), n. An Indian of a group of Tanoan tribes, commonly known by the names of their pueblos as Isleta, Picuris, and Taos. Cf. PUEBLO.

Ti'ki (tē'kē), n. [Maori.] 1. Polynesian Myth. a The first man. b The god said to have created the first man; hence, as such, an ancestor.
2. [not cap.] a In Polynesia, a wood or stone image regarded as the temporary embodiment of a god or other supernatural power, but not worshiped as an idol. b In New Zealand, an image, usually large and of wood, or a small greenstone pendant, representing an ancestor.

ti'ki·ti'ki (tē'kē·tē'kē), n. [Tag. (Sp. tiquitiquí) a kind of rice bran.] An alcoholic extract of rice polishings used in the treatment of beriberi.

tik'ka (tĭk'ȧ), n. [Beng. & Marathi ṭikā, Panjabi ṭikkā spot, mark.] A leaf spot of the peanut caused by the imperfect fungus Cercospora personata). India.

tik'ker (tĭk'ĕr), n. [Adaptation of ticker.] Radio. A form of interrupter used in the early days of radio as a detector of continuous waves, consisting of a rapidly rotating wheel and a fine wire brush, the current being made and broken by momentary contacts between the brush and a continuous strip of conducting material in the rim of the wheel.

tik'lin (tĭk'lĭn), n. [Tag. tikling.] An East Indian rail (Hypotaenidia philippensis).

tik'o·losh' (tĭk'ō·lŏsh'), n. [Xosa uTikoloshe, Zulu uTokolo(t)she.] In South African folklore, a mischievous spirit, believed to be a short little man living in the water and friendly to children.

tik'or (tĭk'ĕr), n. [Hind. tīkkur.] A starch or arrowroot made from the tubers of an East Indian herb (Curcuma angustifolia); also, the plant itself.

ti·kur', ti·koor' (tē·kōōr'), n. [Hind. tikūr.] An East Indian tree (Garcinia pedunculata) having a large yellow fleshy fruit with a pleasant acid flavor.

til (tĭl; tēl), n. Also teel. [Hind. til, fr. Skr. tila.] Sesame; also, the til tree (sense b).

‖til (tēl), n. [Pg.] See TILDE.

til (tĭl). Var. of TILL. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

til'a·ite (tĭl'ȧ·īt), n. [From Tilai Kamen, on Kosva riv., NW Ural area.] Petrog. A melanocratic olivine-gabbro, composed of diopside, olivine, and very little basic plagioclase.

til'a·ka (tĭl'ȧ·kȧ), n. [Skr., lit., sesame seed.] An ornamental spot, usually red, worn on the forehead by Hindus (men and women). It is sometimes a sectarian mark.

til'as·ite (tĭl'ȧs·īt), n. [After Daniel Tilas, Sw. mining engineer.] Mineral. A magnesium calcium arsenate containing fluorine. It occurs in violet-gray granular masses. Sp. gr., 3.3.

til'bu·ry (tĭl'bĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-ĭz). [After its designer, Tilbury, a London coach builder.] A kind of gig, or two-wheeled carriage, with or without a top.

til'de (tĭl'dē; -dĭ; Sp. tēl'dȧ), n. [Sp., fr. L. titulus a superscription, title, token, sign. Cf. TITLE.] A diacritical mark written over n in Spanish to form the letter ñ, which represents a simple palatal nasal, as in cañon. The tilde corresponds to a dash or straight line written instead of m or n, used often in medieval script and occasionally still in German script. The same mark, called til, represents in Portuguese the nasalization of a vowel or diphthong, as in lã, não, põe. This use of the til has been widely adopted in the transcriptions of Oriental tongues. The letter ñ is often used to transliterate a letter representing a palatalized n in Sanskrit and other Oriental languages. In transcriptions of African and Oceanic tongues the letter ñ is sometimes written for the guttural nasal sound (ng).

tile (tīl), n. [ME. tile, tigel, fr. AS. tigle, tigele, tigule, fr. L. tegula. See THATCH; cf. TEGULAR.] 1. A plate, or thin piece, of fired clay, stone, concrete, or the like, of a kind used for covering the roofs of buildings, for floors, walls, drains, furnace linings, etc., and often for ornamental work. Also, a piece of metal used for roofing.
2. By extension: a A piece of fired clay designed for the construction of fireproof partitions, floor arches, etc. b An earthenware drain, as a pipe or gutter; also, such a pipe. c A plate, or thin piece, of resilient material, as an asphalt composition, cork, linoleum, rubber, or the like, used for floors, walls, etc.
3. Tiles collectively; tiling.
4. A stiff hat; esp., a high silk hat. Colloq.
5. Figuratively, some power essential to mental soundness; — chiefly in the phrase to have a tile loose, to be slightly crazy; to be cracked.
6. A piece like a small domino, used in mah-jongg.
7. Metal. A small flat piece of dried earth or earthenware, used to cover vessels in which metals are fused.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tile-clad	tilemaking	tileworks
tile-covered	tile-roofed	tilewright tilemaker	tilework	tileyard

— on or upon the tiles. On a debauch; caterwauling.

tile, v. t.; TILED (tīld); TIL'ING (tīl'ĭng). 1. To cover with or as if with tiles; as, to tile a house.
2. Often tyle. To protect (a Masonic lodge) from intrusion; also, to bind or swear to secrecy.
3. To tile-drain.

tiled (tīld), adj. 1. Covered or roofed with or as with tiles; furnished with tiles.
2. Specif.: a Imbricated. b Slang. High-hatted. c Sun-dried; — of fish. d Masonry. Protected from intrusion.

tile drain. A drain made of tiles.

tile'–drain', v. t. & i. To drain by, or furnish with, a tile drain.

Tilefish. (1/20)

tile'fish' (tīl'-fĭsh'), n.; pl. (-FISH -FISHES -ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. A large deepwater food fish (Lopholatilus chamaeleonticeps) more or less thickly covered with large round yellow spots and having a fleshy appendage on the back of the head. It was abundant in 1881 off the eastern United States, in 1882 was nearly exterminated by an environmental change, but is now again plentiful.

tile hook. A piece of iron rod bent at right angles and used to lower drain and sewer tile into a trench.

tile kiln. A tilery.

tile ore. Mineral. An earthy cuprite, often mixed with iron oxide.

tile pin. A hardwood pin for securing a roofing tile.

tile pipe. Pipe made of cement or pottery and used for drains, chimney pots, linings for chimney flues, etc.

til'er (tīl'ĕr), n. 1. A maker or layer of tiles.
2. Often tyl'er. A doorkeeper in a Freemasons' lodge.
3. A kiln or field where tiles are made.
4. Slang. a A thief, or thieves' accomplice. Cf. ADAM TILER. b A roof-prowling cat.

tile red. A color, reddish red-yellow in hue, of high saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

tile'root' (tīl'rōōt'; 200), n. [tile, n. + root.] Any South African plant of the genus Geissorhiza (family Iridaceae) in which the rootstock is covered with the imbricated bases of dead leaves.

til'er·y (tīl'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -ERIES (-ĭz). [From TILE; cf. F. tuilerie, fr. tuile a tile, fr. L. tegula.] A kiln or field where tiles are made or burned.

tile'seed' (tīl'sēd'), n. Any Australian tree of the genus Geissois (family Cunoniaceae) having imbricated seeds.

tile'sherd' (-shûrd'), n. A fragment of a tile. Obs. exc. Dial.

tile'stone' (-stōn'), n. 1. A tile; tiling. Obs.
2. Geol. Any of several beds of shale or sandstone, often red in color, belonging to the upper part of the Ludlow group, English Upper Silurian.

Til'i·a (tĭl'ĭ·ȧ), n. [L., linden. Cf. TEIL.] Bot. A genus of the tribe, the lindens, or basswoods, typifying the family Tiliaceae, distinguished by the winglike bract coalescent with the peduncle, and by the indehiscent fruit having one or two seeds. They are natives of temperate regions. Many are planted as shade trees, and the tough fibrous inner bark of T. vulgaris affords the Russia matting of commerce.

Til'i·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of herbs, shrubs, or trees (order Malvales), the linden family, distinguished from related groups mainly by the free stamens and 2-celled anthers. There are about 37 genera (as Tilia, Grewia, and Corchorus), including about 380 tropical and temperate species. — til'i·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

til'i·ce'tum (tĭl'ĭ·sē'tŭm), n. [NL., irreg. fr. tilia lime tree; suggested by some L. word in -cetum; cf. L. ilicetum, fr. ilex.] A walk bordered by limes. Obs.

til'i·kum (tĭl'ĭ·kŭm), til'li·cum, n. pl. [Chinook Jargon tilikum, fr. Chinook tilikhum.] The common people, as distinguished from the chiefs, of Indian tribes. Northwestern N. A.

til'ing (tīl'ĭng), n. 1. The act of one who tiles.
2. a Tiles collectively. b A surface of tiles. c Tilework.

till (tĭl; 71), prep. [ME. till, til, fr. AS. (Northumbrian) til (perh. fr. ON.); akin to OFris. & ON. til, also to AS. til good, excellent, G. ziel end, limit, object, OHG. zil, Goth.

---

ti'ger·y, adj. = TIGERISH. tigh. Obs. past tense of TEE, TIE. tight. ✝ TITE. tight'end. Tightened. Ref. Sp. tight'ner (tīt'nĕr). Var. of TIGHTENER. tight'ness, n. See -NESS.
Ti·gral', n. = TIGRIÑA. ti'gre. ✝ TIGER.
Ti·gre'an, n. & adj. = TIGRÉ. ti'gress·like', adj. See -LIKE. ti'grin. Tigrine. Ref. Sp. ti'grish. Var. of TIGERISH. tig'tag', n. = TAG, the game.
Tig'u·rine (tĭg'ū·rĭn), adj. & n. [L. Tigurinus, adj.] = ZWINGLIAN. [WEIGHT, Table.] ti·kal', Var. of TICAL (see tike. ✝ TICK, an insect.
tike. Var. of TYKE. tik'el. ✝ TICKLE. [See ESKIMO.] Tik'e·ra'miut (tĭk'ē·rā'mĭut), n.
Tik'vah (tĭk'vä). Bib.
Tik'vath (-vȧth). Bib.
til. ✝ TEIL, TELL, TILE. tild. Tilled. Ref. Sp.
Til'da (tĭl'dȧ), n. Dim. of MATHILDA, MATILDA. tile. ✝ TEIL, TILL, v. tile'like', adj. See -LIKE.
til·ette' (tĭl·ĕt'), n. A small tile, or tessera. Obs. tile'ways', adv. See -WAYS.
Til'gath·pil·ne'ser (tĭl'găth·pĭl·nē'zĕr; -sĕr), n. Bib. = TIGLATHPILESER. See Biog.

āle, châotic, câre, ădd, ăccount, ärm, ask, sofȧ; ēve, hẽre (116), ĕvent, ĕnd, silĕnt, makĕr; īce, ĭll, charĭty; ōld, ôbey, ôrb, ŏdd, sôft, cŏnnect; fōōd, fŏŏt; till, gatile, fit, convenient, and E. till to cultivate. See TILL, v.] 1. Obs. exc. Scot. & N. of Eng. a To (place of arrival); through to; as far as; as, till an end. b To or toward (limit or goal); as, changed till a dragon; also, Obs., suitably to; to become; as. c To; — introducing an indirect object or complement of certain adjectives and nouns; as, gie it till him; aye kind till his ain. d To; — as sign of the infinitive and introducing infinitives of purpose. e Chiefly Scot. Variously: At, by, for, of, or concerning.

‖ Foreign Word. ✝ Obsolete Variant of. + combined with. = equals. Abbreviations, Signs, etc., are explained on pages immediately preceding the Vocabulary.

2. Throughout the interval extending to; during the whole time from the starting point up to; up or down to (a specified time); — with an implication of termination or change at the time mentioned; as, till his return; till after four o'clock; till next week; to live till ninety.
3. At any time before or before the arrival, appearance, or beginning of; — used after a negative expression, with an implication that the action or condition did begin or is to begin at the specified time; as, a refund which I did not get till ten years later.

till (tĭl; 71), conj. [From TILL, prep.] 1. Throughout the interval extending to the time thereafter specified; up to the time when.

And said unto them, Occupy till I come. Luke xix. 13.

2. Before; — after a negative statement or an injunction; specif.: a Previous to the time when; at any time before; unless at some future time; as, you 'll never succeed till you concentrate your efforts. b Now Dial. Up to or at the time when; when; as, he scarcely reached home till the rain started.
3. In extent of time intervening before; as, it seemed long till dawn came. Now Dial.
4. Continuously up to the point at which; for so long that; so that finally; as, he ran and ran till he could run no more; — formerly often with that, after so long, such, etc.
5. While; whilst. Obs. exc. Scot. & N. of Eng.

Enjoy the roses till they flourish. T. Wright.

6. Than; as, more till one can play. Dial.
7. In order that. Ir.
☞ In meaning there is no marked distinction between till and until; in usage till remains the usual form, but its compound until is preferred as the opening word of a sentence and often in more formal writing.

till, adv. Obs. a Forwards; — in the phrase till and fra. Cf. TO AND FRO. b Right through; even; — with to, unto, into.

till (tĭl), v.; TILLED (tĭld); TILL'ING. [ME. tilen, tilien, fr. AS. tilian, teolian, to aim, strive for, till; akin to OS. tilian to get, D. telen to propagate, G. zielen to aim, ziel an end, object. See TILL, prep.; cf. TILTH.] Transitive:
1. To labor or strive for; to earn; gain; get. Obs.
2. To plow and prepare for seed, and to sow, dress, raise crops from, etc.; to cultivate; as, to till the earth, a farm.
3. Figuratively: a To cultivate; to train; to develop, as a mind, by effort. b To work upon; to make researches into, as a field of knowledge.
4. To prepare; to set, as a snare. Now Dial. Eng.
—, Intransitive: To labor, now only on the soil; to cultivate soil or crops.

till, n. Act of tilling; tillage. Chiefly Dial.

till, v. t. & i. [ME. tillen. See TILL a drawer.] To draw; entice; charm. Obs. exc. Dial.

till (tĭl), n. [Earlier tille, tylle, fr. ME. tillen, tyllen, tullen, to draw, pull, fr. AS. tyllan in fortyllan to draw away, lead astray, of obscure origin. Cf. TOLL to draw, ring a bell.] 1. Orig., a tray, box, casket, drawer, etc., in a chest, trunk, or the like; often, a secret drawer or tray in a cabinet; now, such a receptacle for valuables, esp. money; specif., a drawer for money behind a counter or desk, as in a shop or bank.
2. A till basket.
3. Print. a One of the four spaces between projections above the platen of a hand press. b In early hand presses, a piece fitted between the main uprights, in which rested the sleeve with the spindle and screws.

till, v. t. To put, as money, in a till.

till, n. [Origin uncert. Cf. THILL, 2.] 1. A kind of coarse, obdurate land. Chiefly Scot.
2. Geol. Unstratified glacial drift, consisting of clay, sand, gravel and boulders intermingled in any proportions; — called also boulder clay.

till, n. Short for LENTIL. Obs. exc. Dial.

till'a·ble (tĭl'ȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being tilled; arable.

Til'lae·as'trum (tĭl'ē·ăs'trŭm), n. [NL., after M. A. Tilli, It. botanist. Cf. TILLAEA.] Bot. A genus of 20 species of widely distributed aquatic or mud herbs of the orpine family (Crassulaceae), with minute stems and leaves, tiny greenish flowers, and several-seeded follicles. T. aquaticum is the pygmyweed.

till'age (tĭl'ĭj), n. 1. The operation, practice, or art of tilling land; the improving of land for agricultural purposes.
2. A place tilled or cultivated; cultivated land; also, crops.
— in tillage. Under cultivation.

Til'la·mook (tĭl'ȧ·mōōk), n. An Indian of a Salishan tribe of the coast of Oregon.

Til·land'si·a (tĭ·lănd'zĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Elias Tillands, Sw. botanist.] Bot. a An immense genus of chiefly epiphytic plants of the pineapple family (Bromeliaceae), confined to tropical and subtropical America. They usually bear a rosette of narrow overlapping basal leaves, which often hold a considerable quantity of water. The spicate or paniculate flowers have free perianth segments, and are often subtended by colored bracts. Many are cultivated for ornament. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

till alarm. A device for sounding an alarm when a money drawer is tampered with.

till basket. A rectangular basket formed of two or more pieces of veneer crossed at right angles to fit within a crate.

till'er (tĭl'ẽr), n. [From TILL, v.] 1. One who tills; a husbandman; cultivator; plowman.
2. A device for tilling. Cf. FIELD TILLER.

till'er, n. [OF. tellier, telier, fr. ML. telarium weaver's beam, fr. L. tela a web. See TOIL a snare; cf. TELARY.] 1. a Obs. The stalk, or handle, of a crossbow; sometimes, the bow itself. b Obs. A similar shaft fixed on a long bow for use as a crossbow. c A notched stick used to hold a bow drawn, esp. in making.
2. A lever of wood or metal fitted to the rudderhead and used for turning the rudder from side to side. Cf. 1st HELM, 1. In small boats it is usually a long lever parallel with the keel and turned by hand; in large vessels it is moved by mechanical appliances, and is usually in the form of a quadrant or arm extending on each side of the rudderhead perpendicular to the keel, from the ends of which ropes or chains (tiller ropes or chains) lead forward to the wheel or other steering device.
3. a Dial. Eng. A lever. b A handle shaped like a boat's tiller, as the upper handle of a pit saw. c A two-handled bar for turning the rope in rope drilling. d See FIRE APPARATUS, Illust.

till'er (tĭl'ẽr), v. i. Archery. To use a tiller.

till'er, n. [AS. telgor a small branch.] Obs. exc. Dial. a A young timber tree; also, a stump sprout. b A sprout or stalk, esp. one from the root or from the axils of the lower leaves.

till'er, v. i.; TILL'ERED (-ẽrd); TILL'ER·ING. Agric. To put forth new tillers, or shoots; as, wheat and rye tiller. — v. t. To send (out, etc.), as stalks.

till'er, n. A till, or small drawer. Dryden.

tiller bow. Archery. A crossbow. Obs.

tiller chains. See 2d TILLER, 3.

till'er·ing (tĭl'ẽr·ĭng), n. [See 4th TILLER.] The extent to which more than one shoot branches from the individual grains of barley in the early stages of growth.

tiller lines. Tiller ropes or chains (see 2d TILLER, 3). till'er·man (tĭl'ẽr·măn), n. One in charge of a tiller.

tiller rope. a pl. See 2d TILLER, 3. b See WIRE ROPE.

Til·le'ti·a (tĭ·lē'shĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., of uncert. origin.] Bot. A genus of smuts typifying the family Tilletiaceae, distinguished by single spores which form a promycelium with a terminal tuft of sporidia. Among the numerous species affecting cereals and other grasses are T. tritici and T. levis (the stinking smuts of wheat), T. secalis of rye, and T. horrida of rice.

Til·le'ti·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. One of the two families of smuts (order Ustilaginales), distinguished from the Ustilaginaceae by the simple promycelium, which bears the sporidia in an apical cluster. It includes numerous genera, some of which, as Tilletia and Urocystis, attack cultivated plants. See SMUT, n., 2. — til·le'ti·a'·ceous (-shŭs), adj.

‖til'leul' (tē'yŭl'), n. [F.] 1. A lime tree or its flower.
2. A tisane made from the flowers of the lime tree.
3. Tilleul green.

tilleul green. A color, yellow in hue, of low saturation and very high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

til'ley (tĭl'ĭ), n., or tilley seed. [F. tilli, fr. NL. tiglium; cf. It. tiglia, NL. grana tiglia, grana tilli. See TIGLIC.] The seeds of the croton-oil plant (Croton tiglium).

til'ley. Var. of TILLY.

till'ite (tĭl'ĭt), n. [9th till + 1st -ite, 4.] Geol. Rock formed of consolidated or lithified till and generally a record of a glacial epoch older than that of the Quaternary.

till money. Banking. Money kept by a bank to meet its daily cash requirements.

Til'lo·don'ti·dae (tĭl'ō·dŏn'tĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. tillein to pluck, tear + -odontia.] Paleontol. A family of insectivores of the Eocene of England and North America, having rodentlike incisors and a skull resembling that of a carnivore. It is sometimes regarded as constituting an order, Til'lo·don'ti·a (-shĭ·ȧ). — til'lo·dont (tĭl'ō·dŏnt), adj. & n.

til'lot (tĭl'ŭt), n. [See TOILET.] A cloth for wrapping fabrics. — v. t. To put or wrap in tillots. — til'lot·ter (-ẽr), n.

till'y (tĭl'ĭ), adj. Composed of, or of the nature of, till, or clay.

til'ly (tĭl'ē), n. [Ir. tuilleadh.] Something added for good measure. Anglo-Ir.

Til'ly (tĭl'ĭ), n. Dim. of MATHILDA, MATILDA.

til'ly (tĭl'ĭ), tilly seed. Vars. of TILLEY, TILLEY SEED.

til'ly-val'ly (tĭl'ĭ·văl'ĭ; 66), interj. [Origin uncert.] Bosh; nonsense. Archaic.

til'mus (tĭl'mŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tilmos, fr. tillein to pluck, pull.] Med. Floccillation.

til oil (tĭl; tēl). Sesame oil. See OIL, Table I.

til'pah (tĭl'pä), n. [Prob. fr. Sp. tilma mantle, blanket, fr. Nahuatl tilmatli.] A parti-colored rug or blanket often used between the saddle and the saddle blanket. Southwestern U. S.

til seed (tĭl; tēl). [See TIL.] a The seed of sesame. b Niger seed.

tilt (tĭlt), n. [ME. telt (cf. Dan. telt), var. of teld, fr. AS. teld, geteld, tent; akin to MD. telde, telte, G. zelt, ON. tjald, Sw. tält, tjäll, Dan. telt, and AS. beteldan to cover.]
1. A covering overhead; a canopy; awning; esp., a tent. Now Obs.
2. A cloth covering or canopy of a cart, wagon, boat, stall, etc.
3. In Newfoundland and Labrador, a kind of log house in which the logs are set upright.
4. Also tilt bonnet. A sunbonnet. Dial Eng.

tilt, v. t.; TILT'ED; TILT'ING. To cover or provide with a tilt, or awning; as, a tilted jousting field.

tilt, v. [ME. tilten, tulten, to totter, fall, fr. a derivative of AS. tealt unstable, precarious; akin to AS. tealtian to be unsteady, tealtrian to totter, D. touteren to swing, ON. tyllast to trip (def. 1).] Transitive: 1. To cause to totter or fall; to upset. Obs.
2. To cause to slope; to incline; tip; as, to tilt a chair back.
3. To pour forth (contents) by tipping; to empty, unload, etc., in such a manner; as, to tilt out coal.
4. [From 4th TILT.] a To point or thrust in or as in a tilt. b To make a tilt or rush at; to charge against.

Sons against fathers tilt the fatal lance. J. Philips.

5. To hammer or forge with a tilt hammer.
—, Intransitive: 1. To be overturned or upset; to topple. Obs.
2. To move or shift so as to lean or incline; to heel over; to tip; also, to slant; slope; as, the board tilted up as he stepped on it; the tree tilts to the south.
3. To move up and down; to sway unsteadily; to seesaw; of a boat, etc., to pitch.

Little bird . . . tilting among the leaves. Amy Lowell.

4. [From 4th TILT.] To engage in a tilt, or combat with lances; to ride or charge and thrust with a lance; to joust; also, to charge or fight in a similar manner; to make an impetuous attack; as, to tilt at wrongs.
5. To rush or burst, as into a place. Colloq.
6. Seismol. & Geol. To incline from a horizontal or vertical position; — said of strata, surfaces, buildings, etc.
Syn. — See TIP.

tilt at windmills. To fight imaginary enemies or illusory evils; — from an incident in Don Quixote.

tilt (tĭlt), n. 1. A military exercise on horseback, in which two combatants charging with lances, spears, or the like, try to unhorse each other, or a similar exercise in which an armed rider charges at a mark; also, a tournament, or series of tilts. See QUINTAIN. Hist.

The doughty chivalry of the age, who frequented tilt and tournament. Scott.

2. Hence: a Any encounter in which opponents attack each other in the manner of tilting knights; as, he had a sharp tilt with the manager. b A thrust; a stroke. c Speed. See FULL TILT. d An altercation; a dispute.
3. A place where tilts are held; a tiltyard. Obs.
4. The act or fact of tilting, or inclining; the state or position of being tilted; as, an unexpected tilt of a board; to give a board a tilt.
5. Something which tilts, or slants. Specif.: a A slope. b Local, U. S. A seesaw. c A contrivance used in fishing through the ice, in which the tilting of a piece gives notice of the biting of a fish; a tilter; a tiltup. d Short for TILT HAMMER.
6. The black-necked stilt. See STILT. Local, U. S.
7. Sports. Any of various sports resembling or suggesting tilting with lances, as a water sport in which the contestants stand on logs or in canoes or boats and thrust with poles.
— at tilt. Atilt.

tilt, adj. Pertaining to or used in tilting; also, that is emptied by tilting; as, a tilt cart or wagon.

tilt'board' (tĭlt'bōrd'; 181), n. Psychol. An apparatus for testing perception of bodily position by rotating a blindfolded person from horizontal to vertical or oblique positions.

tilt boat. Naut. A tilt-covered boat; esp., a passenger boat of this type plying between London and Gravesend. Hist.

tilt'er (tĭl'tẽr), n. 1. One who tilts; specif.: a A jouster. b A workman who operates a tilt hammer. c A workman who tilts out coal.
2. Something that tilts or is used for tilting; specif.: a Old Slang. A sword. b A seesaw. c Fishing. = 4th TILT, 5 c.
3. a The spotted sandpiper. b The solitary sandpiper. c Local, U. S. An avocet.

tilt'er, v. i. To swing up and down; to seesaw. Colloq.

tilth (tĭlth), n. [AS., fr. tilian to till. See TILL to cultivate.] 1. Act or occupation of tilling; cultivation of the soil; figuratively, mental or spiritual cultivation; specif., a plowing or harrowing; as, land in good tilth.
2. Produce from tilled ground; crop.
3. Cultivated, or tilled, land, as distinguished from pasture, etc.
4. The state of being tilled; condition when tilled; as, land in good tilth.
5. Surface soil as prepared for sowing or planting; the depth of friable earth.

tilth, v. t. To till. Rare.

tilt hammer. Mach. A helve hammer.

tilt'ing (tĭl'tĭng), adj. 1. That tilts, causes to tilt, or may be tilted; slanting; swaying; rising and falling.
2. Used for or in tilting; as, a tilting field or lance.

tilting bucket seat. Automobiles. A seat, usually in front, which may be tilted forward.

tilting conveyor. Mach. A gravity conveyor.

tilting fillet. An arris fillet.

tilting hammer. A tilt hammer.

tilting helmet or helm. A helmet of great size and strength, worn at tilts. See HELMET, Illust.

tilting mill. A tilt mill.

tilting plank. The plank used in teetering.

tilting table. Veter. An operating table used in casting a horse.

tilting yard. A tiltyard.

tilt mill. Metal. A mill where metal, as steel, is tilted.

til tree (tĭl; tēl). a Var. of TEIL TREE. b [Pg. til.] An ill-smelling tree (Ocotea foetens) of the Canary Islands.

tilt roof. Arch. A roundheaded roof, like a wagon canopy.

tilt steel. Blister steel beaten out, originally with a tilt hammer, now with a steam hammer.

tilt'up' (tĭlt'ŭp'), n. 1. The spotted sandpiper. Local, U. S.
2. Fishing. = 4th TILT, 5 c.

tilt'y (tĭl'tĭ), adj. Irritable. Dial. Eng.

tilt'yard' (-yärd'), n. A yard or place for tilting.

til'yer (tĭl'yẽr), n. The rose-colored starling. India.

Ti·mae'us (tĭ·mē'ŭs), n. A dialogue by Plato, named from the chief interlocutor, a Pythagorean philosopher. It embodies a theory of the universe, or cosmogony. An incidental passage contains the story of Atlantis.

Ti·ma'li·a (tĭ·mā'lĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., said to be fr. an E. Ind. name.] Zool. A genus of oscine birds formerly extensive, but now restricted to a few species of India and Java. It gives the name to the family Tim'a·li'i·dae (tĭm'ȧ·lĭ'ĭ·dē), of uncertain limits and characteristics, to which are referred many genera and species which cannot well be assigned elsewhere. The more typical forms are mostly called babblers or babbling thrushes, and are characterized by short rounded wings with a large outer primary, a thrushlike bill, and unspotted young. These constitute the subfamily Ti·ma'li·i'nae (tĭ·mā'lĭ·ĭ'nē). — ti·ma'li·ine (tĭ·mā'lĭ·ĭn; -ĭn; 156), tim'a·line (tĭm'ȧ·lĭn; -lĭn; 156), adj.

Ti·man'dra (tĭ·măn'drȧ), n. A mistress to Alexander in Shakespeare's Timon of Athens.

ti·mar' (tē·mär'), n.; It. pl. TIMARRI (-rē). [Turk. tīmār a military fief, care, fr. Per. tīmār sorrow, care.] 1. The fief held by a spahi. Obs. exc. Hist.
2. = TIMARIOT. Obs.

ti'ma·rau' (tē'mȧ·rou'), n. Also ti'me·rau' (-mĕ·rou'). [Prob. Mangyan.] A small buffalo (Bubalus mindorensis) of Mindoro, intermediate in character between the water buffalo and the anoa. It is blackish brown, about three and a half feet high, and stocky, with short heavy horns.

ti·mar'i·ot (tē·mär'ĭ·ŏt), n. [F.] One holding a timar. Obs.

ti·maw'a, ti·mau'a, (tē·mou'ȧ), n. [Tag.] A free native. Phil. I.

ti'ma·zite (tē'mȧ·zīt), n. [From Timok Valley, Serbia.] Petrog. A variety of andesite.

tim'bal (tĭm'bȧl; 91), n. [F. timbale (after cymbale cymbal), fr. tamballe (after tambour tambour), fr. Sp. atabal, atabal. See ATABAL.] A kettledrum (sense 1); hence, Zool., the vibrating membrane in the shrilling organ of a cicada.

---

till'a·bl. Tillable. Ref. Sp.
Til·lae'a (tĭ·lē'ȧ), n. [NL.] Syn. of TILLAEASTRUM (in part). tillede. Obs. past. of TELD. till'erd. Tillered. Ref. Sp. till'er·less, adj. See -LESS. till'let. Var. of TILLOT.

til'let, n. [OF. teillet, tillet. See TEIL.] The linden. Obs. till'ey-val'ley. Var. of TILLY-VALLY. till'il·oum (tĭl'ĭ·kŭm). Var. of TILLIE-VALLIE (tĭl'ĭ·văl'ĭ; tĭl'ĭ·vŭl'ĭ; 66). = TILLY-VALLY. Scot.

Til'lim. Var. of TEHILLIM. till'man (tĭl'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A husbandman. Obs. till'ow (tĭl'ō). v. i. & t. Dial. var. of 2d TILLER. [TILLY-VALLY.] til'ly-fal'ly (tĭl'ĭ·făl'ĭ; 66). Var. of Ti'lon (tī'lŏn). Bib.

Til'sit (tĭl'zĭt), n. See TREATY, Table. til'sman, n. = TILLMAN. Obs. tilt'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
tilted milling machine. Mach. See MILLING MACHINE. tilt'ish, adj. = TILTY. Obs. — tilt'ish·ness, n. Obs. tilt'like', adj. See -LIKE. tilt'mak'er, n. See MAKER. — tilt'mak'ing, n. & adj. [SLE.] tilt'-top' ta'ble. = TIP-TOP TABLE. til'ture, n. [From TILL, v.; after culture.] Tillage. Obs.

tim. Scot. var. of TEEM, empty.
Tim (tĭm), n. Dim. of TIMOTHY.
Tim. Tiny. See TINY TIM.
tim'a·ble, time'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
Ti·mae'us, or Ti·mae'us (tĭ·mē'-[ē̆s). Bib.
Ti·mai'ni, n. = TEMNE 2.

---

tim'bale (tĭm'bȧl; tăn'bȧl'), n. [F., prop., a kettledrum; — so named from the form of the mold used. See TIMBAL.] 1. Cookery. A seasoned preparation, as of chicken, lobster, cheese, or fish, cooked in a drum-shaped mold; a small pastry shell filled with a cooked mixture; also, such a pastry shell. 2. (pron. tĭm'bȧl). Zool. A timbal.

timbale iron. A long-handled utensil with a solid cup-shaped head, used in making pastry shells for timbales.

tim'bang (tĭm'bŭng), n. sing. & pl. [Malay timbaṅ weight, weighing.] See WEIGHT, Table.

tim'be (tĭm'bā), n. [Prob. fr. Mex. Sp.] The bark or root of any of several Mexican trees and shrubs, esp. Acacia angustissima and Calliandra anomala, used in the manufacture of tepache.

tim'ber (tĭm'bĕr), n. [AS., wood, building; akin to OFris. timber, D. timmer a room, G. zimmer, OHG. zimbar timber, a dwelling, room, ON. timbr timber, Sw. timmer, Dan. tømmer, Goth. timrjan to build, timrja a builder, L. domus a house, Gr. domos house demein to build Skr. dama a house. Cf. DOME, DOMESTIC, DOMICILE.] 1. Originally, a building; a structure; later, material for construction; substance or matter out of which something can be built or formed; — now only figurative.

Such dispositions are the very errors of human nature; and yet they are the fittest timber to make politics of. Bacon.

2. a Now Dial. Wood. b Wood suitable for building houses, bridges, ships, etc. whether on the tree or cut and seasoned; wood used in carpentry or joinery.

3. a A squared or dressed piece of wood, esp. one of comparatively large width and thickness (in the United States, four inches or more), ready for use or already forming part of a structure; as, the timbers of a roof; bridge or floor timbers. b Eng. Lumber (sense 3). c Eng. Sawed lumber more than 4½ in. thick and more than 6 in. wide.

4. Land covered by trees from which timber (sense 2 b) is produced; forest; wood; trees collectively; also, a tree or its bole. Chiefly U. S.

5. Something made of wood; as: a Obs. The wooden part of an implement or weapon. b Slang. A wooden leg. c Poetic. A boat.

6. a Structure or build; specif., of dogs, bony structure. b Hence, quality; type; as, there are few men of his timber.

7. Law. Trees which, as part of the freehold, may not be cut by a life tenant. In England 20-year-old (or older) oak, ash, and elm are timber, and local custom sometimes includes other varieties. Chiefly British.

8. Shipbuilding. A rib, or a curving frame, branching outward from the keel and bending upward in a vertical direction, usually composed of several pieces united.

9. Sports. A wooden gate, fence, stile, or the like. Eng.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

timber-boring, adj.	timber estimator	timber preserver timber-built	timber faller	timber-producing, timber-carrying, adj.	timber-floating,	adj.
timber-ceilinged	adj.	timber-propped timber contractor	timber-framed	timber shifter timber-covered	timber-headed	timber-skeletoned timber cutter	timber-laden	timber-strewn timber-cutting	timber-lined	timber tree timber-devouring,	timber loader	timber unloader
adj.	timber marker	timberwright timber-eating, adj.	timber measurer	timberyard timber estimating	timbermonger tim'ber (tĭm'bĕr), v.; -BERED (-bĕrd); -BER-ING. [AS. timbran, timbrian; akin to Goth. timrjan, ON. timbra, G. zimmern. See TIMBER, n.] Transitive: 1. To build, construct, or contrive, now only of wood. Archaic. 2. To furnish with timber or timbers; to frame, cover, support, stay, shore up, underpier, etc., with timbers.

His bark is stoutly timbered. Shak.

3. Obs. a To fuel. b To cut into beams, etc.; — with out. —, Intransitive: 1. To build or make a nest. Obs. 2. To become timber or fit for timber; — of a tree.

tim'ber, adj. 1. Formed of wood; wooden. Now Rare. 2. Heavy as wood; dull; specif., timbertuned. Scot. 3. Of, pertaining to, or for timber.

tim'ber, n. [OF. timbre, fr. MLG. timber, timmer, lit., lumber; — so called because packed and shipped between two heavy boards. See TIMBER WOOD.] Com. a A certain number of fur skins, as 40 skins of martens, ermines, sables, etc., or 120 of some other animals. b Ten eelskins; — a unit of measurement.

tim'ber. Var. of TIMBRE.

timber and a half hitch. See 2d KNOT, 1. timber and room. Shipbuilding. Room and space.

timber bar. Railroads. A kind of crowbar the working end of which has a square section and ends in a right pyramid. See 1st BAR, Illust.

timber beetle. Any of various beetles whose larvae bore deeply in the wood of trees, as the ambrosia beetles.

timber borer. Any of numerous insects whose larvae develop in the trunks of trees or in timbers.

timber cruiser. = CRUISER, n., 4 a. tim'bered (tĭm'bĕrd), adj. 1. Furnished with, made of, or covered with, timber or timbers; — often in compounds. 2. Built; formed; made; contrived; specif., having (such) a timber, or constitution or build. 3. Covered with growing timber; wooded, as land. 4. Massive, like timber. Obs. "Timbered bones." Spenser.

-tim'bered (-tĭm'bĕrd). Comb. form of timbered, as in:

clean-timbered	hard-timbered	soft-timbered half-timbered	open-timbered	well-timbered tim'ber-er (tĭm'bĕr-ĕr), n. Mining. A timberman.

timber forest. High forest.

timber frame. Sawmills. A gang of saws set in a sash. Eng. Cf. GANG SAW.

timber grapple. A lug hook.

timber grouse. Any grouse that inhabits woods, as the ruffed grouse, as distinguished from a prairie chicken. Western U. S.

tim'ber-head' (tĭm'bĕr-hĕd'), n. Naut. a The top end of a timber, used above the gunwale, for belaying ropes, etc.; — called also kevelhead. b A bollard bolted to the deck where the end of a timber would come.

timber hitch. Naut. A hitch used for temporarily securing a rope to a spar. See 2d KNOT, 1. — tim'ber-hitch', v. t.

tim'ber-ing, n. 1. The action of one who timbers. 2. Timbers collectively; timberwork; timber.

tim'ber-jack' (tĭm'bĕr-jăk'), n. A lumberjack. U. S.

timber jumper. A hunter (horse) skilled in jumping fences, etc. Slang.

tim'ber-land' (tĭm'bĕr-lănd'), n. Wooded or forested land, esp. when consisting of marketable timber.

timber leader. Mining & Quarrying. One who moves planks, props, etc., to working places.

tim'ber-less (tĭm'bĕr-lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. See -LESS.

tim'ber-like' (-līk'), adj. See -LIKE.

timber line. On mountains and in the frigid regions, the line above which there are no trees. — tim'ber-line', adj.

tim'ber-ling (tĭm'bĕr-lĭng), n. [timber + 1st -ling.] A small tree. Eng.

tim'ber-man (tĭm'bĕr-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). 1. A lumberman; also, Obs., a carpenter. 2. Mining. A man employed in placing timber supports.

timber mare A kind of wooden horse on which soldiers were forced to ride for punishment.

timber mill. a A mill that saws logs into heavy timbers. b In a sawmill, the sawing rig as used in cutting logs into heavy timbers.

tim'ber-some (tĭm'bĕr-sŭm). Var. of TIMORSOME. Dial. Eng.

tim'bern (tĭm'bĕrn), adj. Wooden. Dial. Eng.

timber rattlesnake. The banded rattlesnake.

timber right. Ownership of standing timber without ownership of the land.

timber rot. Plant Pathol. a Any decay of lumber and building timbers; specif., that caused by Poria incrassata. b A fungous disease of various herbaceous plants caused by Sclerotinia sclerotiorum, characterized by stem lesions near the ground and white mold on the surface; — so called from the dry granular decay of the stem tissue.

timber scribe. Forestry. A bark blazer.

timber toe. A wooden leg. — tim'ber-toed', adj. Both Slang.

timber topper. Orig., a timber jumper; now, a hurdle racer. — timber topping. Both Slang.

timber tower. A portable wooden tower used in sieges. Rare.

tim'ber-tuned' (tĭm'bĕr-tūnd') adj. Having an unmusical ear or voice. Scot.

timber wheels. Logging wheels.

timber wolf. a The large gray wolf of northern North America; — distinguished from the coyote. See WOLF. b The fur or pelt of this animal.

tim'ber-wood' (tĭm'bĕr-wŏŏd'), n. Stoutwood.

tim'ber-work' (-wŭrk'), n. Work made of timbers; a timber construction.

timber worm. Any worm infesting timber; a timber borer; specif., the chestnut timber worm (Melittoma sericeum) which lives in the wood of chestnut trees.

tim'ber-y (tĭm'bĕr-ĭ), adj. Abounding in timber.

tim'bes-tere (tĭm'bĕs-tĕr), n. [See TIMBRE; -STER.] A female timbrel player. Obs.

Tim'bi-ra' (tĭm'bē-rä'), n. An Indian of a Tapuyan tribe in Brazil.

tim-bo' (tēm-bō'), n. [Sp. timbó, fr. Guarani timbó.] 1. A beautiful timber tree (Enterolobium timbouva) of Argentina, used also for street planting in Buenos Aires; also, its red, easily worked wood, used for furniture and interior woodwork. 2. An Amazonian woody vine (Paullinia pinnata) the bitter bark of which contains a fish poison.

tim'bre (tĭm'bĕr; F. tăn'br'), n. [OF., a bell to be struck with a hammer, a timbrel, the arched part of a helmet, hence, crest of a helmet, crest, stamp, also (from bell), sound, tone. See TIMBREL.] 1. A timbrel. Obs. 2. Peculiar or distinctive character, quality, or tone. Cf. 1st TIMBER, 6. 3. Her. The crest on a coat of arms; hence, a miter, coronet, or the like, placed over an achievement. 4. [F.] Music. The quality of tone distinguishing voices or instruments; tone color; clang tint. See TONE, n., 11 a. 5. Phonet. The resonance quality of a voiced speech sound, esp. a vowel, by which the ear recognizes and identifies it. Timbre is distinct from loudness, or intensity, and from pitch of the fundamental tone, and depends chiefly on the number and character of the partials, or overtones. See Pron., §§ 27–30.

tim'bre, v. i. To play the timbrel. Obs. — v. t. Her. To surmount and adorn with a timbre.

tim'brel (tĭm'brĕl), n. [Dim. of ME. timbre, fr. OF. timbre, fr. L. tympanum, fr. Gr. tympanon, typanon, fr. root of typtein to strike, beat. See TYPE; cf. TIMBRE, TYMPANUM.] Music. A small hand drum or tambourine (which see). Ez. xv. 20.

tim'brel, v. t. & i. To play upon a timbrel; to accompany with a timbrel. — tim'breled, tim'brelled (-brĕld), adj. — tim'brel-er, tim'brel-ler (-brĕl-ĕr), n.

timbrel arch. An arch constructed of two or more layers of flat tile, brick, or the like, laid with their largest faces tangent to the curve of the arch.

timbrel vault. A vault constructed on the principle of the timbrel arch.

tim'bro- (tĭm'brō-). A combining form, French timbro-, from timbre, meaning postage stamp, as in:

timbrologist	timbromaniac	timbrophilism
timbrology	timbromanist	timbrophilist timbromania	timbrophilic	timbrophily time (tīm), n. [ME. time, fr. AS. tīma; akin to AS. tīd time, and to ON. tími, Dan. time an hour. See TIDE.] 1. The period during which an action, process, condition, or the like, continues; the interval between leaving and returning, beginning and ending, etc.; measured or measurable duration; as, gone a long time; written in three hours' time. 2. The point or period when something occurs; the moment of an event, process, etc.; an occasion; as, there was no one present at the time. 3. The allotted, appointed, fixed, or customary moment or hour for something to happen, begin, or end; the natural, normal, or expected terminus of a period, as of life (hence, death) or of gestation (hence, parturition or delivery); as, be here on time; the leader called time; spring came ahead of time this year; he died before his time.

She was within one month of her time. Clarendon.

Also, the scheduled moment of arrival or departure; as, find out the times of the New York trains. 4. Fitting moment; proper or due season; favorable opportunity; as, now is the time to buy this stock. 5. The known, fixed, or anticipated period during which a person or thing exists, or a condition persists sometimes normally rather than actually; variously, a lifetime or the duration of gestation, a prison sentence, compulsory military service, apprenticeship, or the like.

One man in his time plays many parts. Shak.

He was nineteen — not six months out of his time — and was in sole charge of a ship. C. Fox Smith.

6. A period set apart in some specified or implied way from others in a day, year, lifetime, or the course of history; variously, a spell, a moment (sense 5), a generation, an age, an era, an epoch, etc.; as, the patient has her good times more often now; it is his daily time for recreation; in our time; at the time of Elizabeth. 7. A definite moment, hour, day, or year, as indicated or fixed by the clock or calendar; the precise instant, date, or the like; as, the time was midnight; we know only approximately the time of Chaucer's birth; also, a point or portion, further specified, of a day, week, year, etc.; as, it is bed-time; in the summer time. 8. Obs. a An hour; also, a year. b Weather. 9. One of a number of recurring or multiplied instances, or repeated acts; a recurrent occasion; as, each time that it occurs; write this 50 times; this has been said times without number; also, in pl., a being multiplied or manifolded by a (specified) number; — often equivalent to a sign of multiplication (×), the number preceding it being the multiplier of the number following, or multiplicand; as, four times four is sixteen; that is ten times better. 10. Finite, as contrasted with infinite, duration; the duration of one's life or of the material universe; often the present life, as distinguished from the future life; as, when time shall be no more.

Till time and sin together cease. Keble.

11. The uninterrupted succession of days, years, or of events; duration without reference to point or period; the passing of hours, etc.; — often personified (see FATHER TIME) or objectified; as, time left its marks on his face; we must leave his cure to time; time hangs heavy only on the idle. 12. A period sufficiently or conveniently long; often, specif., leisure; opportunity; as, it is hard to find time for reading your book; also, in debt settlements, an extension of the customary term or period of credit; as, to ask time to pay for a piano; to buy goods on time. 13. Usually pl. With the. Conditions prevalent at present or in a specified or implied period; often specif., the present state of advancement; as, his doctrines did not fit in with the times; to move with the times; behind the times. 14. One's experience during a specified period or on a definite occasion; the way in which one is affected by an event, a condition, etc.; as, to have a hard time in an examination or a good time at a dance; specif., a highly enjoyable (or less often, disagreeable) experience; as, a high time; he seems to be having a time of it. "Off . . . this afternoon again to play tennis. You do have times!" Arnold Bennett.

15. Reckoning of time; system of reckoning the lapse or progress of time; as, astronomical, mean, sidereal, solar, or standard time. 16. Rate of speed in marching, dancing, speaking, etc.; tempo; as, to march in quick time; an actor's sense of time. Cf. def. 22.

A trumpeter, taking the time from them, blew a call. Masefield.

17. The length of the period required for, or consumed in, performing an action or going over a course, as in a railroad journey or race; as, the winner's time in the race was 1.20. 18. Fuss; demonstration; as, to make a time over a person. Colloq. 19. Drama. The unity of time. See UNITY, 6. 20. Geol. Any division of geologic chronology. 21. Labor. a The hours, days, etc., given to, or due to be given to, one's work; as, to make up time. b The period allotted for a job; as, task time. c Amount of pay due, esp. according to the hourly rate; as, to get one's time or back time. d Payment for overtime with reference to the regular rate, or time (sense c); as, straight time; double time; time and a half. 22. Music. The grouping of the successive rhythmic beats or pulses into equal measures; — called also meter, and rhythm (which see). The length of the rhythmic beats is represented by a note — as a half, quarter, eighth, etc. — taken as a time unit, an equal number being marked off to each measure by the principal "grammatical" accent, the position of which is represented by the bar. See TIME SIGNATURE. Simple time, or measure, groups the beats or time units by twos or threes and indicates this by a two or a three in the numerator of the signature, as $\frac{2}{4}$ or $\frac{3}{8}$. In compound time, or measure, each measure is made up of a group of units in simple time. According to usage in the United States there may be two, three or more such groups in a compound measure as $\frac{6}{4}$, $\frac{9}{8}$, or $\frac{12}{8}$; according to British usage, only measures which are divisible into groups of three, as $\frac{6}{8}$ or $\frac{9}{8}$, are considered compound. Two-part time (called also duple time or measure) has two, or, in the United States, multiples of two units to the measure. It is simple duple time when $\frac{2}{4}$, $\frac{2}{2}$, or $\frac{2}{8}$; compound duple time when $\frac{6}{4}$, $\frac{6}{8}$, or $\frac{9}{8}$ (except in England where these are called quadruple time or measure and considered to be simple); $\frac{9}{4}$ and $\frac{9}{8}$ (sextuple time or measure); or $\frac{12}{8}$. See ALLA BREVE, COMMON MEASURE, QUADRUPLE MEASURE.

Time. a Simple Duple; b Compound Duple; c Simple Triple; d Compound Triple.

Three-part time (called also triple time or measure) has three units to the measure, the commonest signatures for simple triple time being $\frac{3}{4}$, $\frac{3}{2}$, and $\frac{3}{8}$, and for compound triple time $\frac{9}{4}$, $\frac{9}{8}$, and $\frac{9}{16}$ (then called nine-part, or nonuple, time or measure). Irregular times or measures are five-part or quintuple, and seven-part or septuple. Such groups are usually treated as being compounded of ordinary duple and triple measures, quintuple consisting of a duple and a triple measure in combination; and septuple of a triple and a quadruple, there being no fixed principle as to the order of these lesser groups in either case. Mixed times consist of various irregular combinations of different kinds of measures in the same composition. 23. New York Stock Exchange. 2.15 P.M., before which hour securities must be delivered on contracts maturing on the current day. 24. Philos. That character and relation of all events and things with respect to which they are distinguished as simultaneous or successive, and as becoming, enduring, or passing away; that order of phenomena in general by reference to which all permanence and change are predicated, — usually conceived as a dimension of reality, distinguished from the spatial by the fact that the order of temporal succession is irreversible. The oldest conception of time is that of an absolute flowing, which is a reality apart from the events which fill it and has a fixed uniform rate in terms of which all change is measured. The classic expression of this conception of absolute time is in Newton's Principia. Kant conceived time as having no existence outside the mind and being but a subjective mode in which phenomena appear to us. More recent conceptions take time to be objectively real but emphasize the impossibility of any determination of time apart from the observable process of change in things, and, hence, conceive time as relative or consisting in the relations of phenomena, not as absolute. The subjective feeling of duration, with its absolutely given present, is sometimes distinguished from the objectively determinable order in which durations are measured and any absolute present is indifferent, the former being called subjective time, the latter objective, mathematical, or physical time. (See def. 24 a & b.) Astronomical time is time measured by reference to the mean apparent motion of the fixed stars. According to current concep tions of mathematical physics, the distinction between temporal and spatial order is not absolute, since all observation of events at a distance occurs not only in a different place from the event but also at a later time. The interval between the event and the observer is thus a space-time interval, and the manner in which the time dimension is separated from space dimensions depends upon the relative motion of the observed system and the observer. Thus for observers whose motion relative to the system observed is different, two events which are simultaneous for one may be successive for another. But if event A is later than event B for one observer, there can be no other observer for whom B will be later than A. Thus this conception retains the notion of time as an irreversible direction of change.

25. Photog. The shutter setting on any camera for making a time exposure.

26. Phrenol. The capacity for judging or measuring intervals, esp. of time.

27. Physics. a The number that represents the duration of a phenomenon, or the duration between two events. The number is obtained by counting the number of times some recurrent phenomenon, arbitrarily chosen, as the swing of a pendulum, repeats itself. b The number, or date, that represents the instant of occurrence of an event. This number is obtained by counting from the time when some especially selected event occurred. Thus if the time that the sun crossed the meridian on some particular day is selected as an epoch, by counting the swings of a pendulum from that instant or by counting the subsequent crossings of the meridian by the sun, numbers or dates indicative of time are obtained. See YEAR. Cf. INSTANTANEOUS, DEFINITE-TIME, INVERSE-TIME.

28. Pros. A unit of duration, as a basis for meter; esp., the primary or least unit of quantity, the mora.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

time-authorized	time-deluding	timeproof
time-battered	time-discolored	time-rent time-beguiling	time-eaten	time-rusty time-bent	time-economizing	time-served time-bettering	time-enduring	time-shrouded time-bewasted	time-gnawn	time-taught time-blackened	time-halting	time-tested time-blanched	time-hastening	time-tried time-born	time-lasting	time-wasted time-bound	time-marked	time-wasting time-breaking	time-measuring	time-wearied time-canceled	time-mellowed	time-white time-changed	time-noting	time-withered time-cleft	time-pressed

— at the same time. a At the same moment or during the same period. b However; nevertheless. — at times. At intervals; now and then; as, at times he reads, at other times he rides. — behind the times. Backward in adopting things proper or suitable to the present; not up to date. Colloq. — behind time. Late. — between times. During interims. — by times. Obs. a Betimes. b Now and then. — from time to time. Occasionally; once in a while. — in good time. a In time; seasonably or eventually. b Archaic. Forsooth! indeed! — in no time. Very rapidly; almost instantaneously. — in time. a In good or due season; sufficiently early; as, he arrived in time. b In the course of time; eventually; as, you will in time recover your health. c In correct rhythm or tempo. — keep time. a To run on time. b To execute rhythmical movements in unison. c To record employees' times, or hours of work — on time. Chiefly U.S. a At the appointed time; punctually. b Running, as a train, at the scheduled speed. c Com. On a charge account where payments are made at stated times; on the installment plan; as, to buy on time. — out of time, out of due time. Not in proper time; unseasonably; prematurely; also, too late. — the time, the time being. The present time. — to time. a Obs. Forever; also, until. b = AGAINST TIME. — what time. At the time that. Archaic.

-time (-tĭm). A combining form of the noun time, as in:

aftertime	daytime	nighttime	sometime
bairntime	dinnertime	noontime	springtime bedtime	foretime	onetime	summertime
beforetime	fruittime	playtime	suppertime blossomtime	harvesttime	ragtime	teatime budtime	lifetime	ringtime	termtime bytime	Maytime	rosetime	threshingtime coffeetime	mealtime	schooltime	wartime cradletime	morntime	seedtime	wintertime time (tīm), v.; TIMED (tīmd); TIM′ING (tīm′ĭng). Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To happen; befall b To fare. c To prolong the time; to procrastinate; — usually time it out. d Rare. To give the time.

2. To keep or beat time; to move in time. Rare.

—, Transitive: 1. To arrange, set, find, or choose, a time or times for; to schedule; to bring about at (such) a time or times; as, he timed his appearance rightly.

2. To regulate as to time; specif.: a To make coincident in time; to cause to keep time, or move, sound, or the like, in unison; as, to time one's steps to the music; also, to set the tempo for, as by beating; as, the conductor timed the performance admirably. b To adjust (a watch, etc.) by tentation so that it keeps correct time. c To regulate the speed or stops of (a train, etc.) according to a timetable.

3. To give a fixed or appropriate time or measure to; to give metrical or rhythmical value to (syllables, notes, etc.). Cf. TIMING.

4. To ascertain or record the time, duration, or rate, of; as, to time the speed of horses, or work done; also, to calculate or estimate the speed of (a moving body).

5. Mach. To dispose so that an action occurs at a desired instant, as ignition in a gas engine.

time (tīm), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to time; as, a time pattern; giving, recording, or marking, the time or times; as, a time register.

2. Timed so as to ignite, explode, etc., at a given moment; as, a time fuse or bomb. See TIME, v. t., 5.

3. Com. a Of a bill, draft, note, etc., payable on a specified future day or a certain length of time after sight, or presentation for acceptance. b Of a transaction, made with the understanding that time, or extended terms, will be given for settlement; also, to be paid for in installments, or on time; as, a time bargain, sale, purchase, or payment.

time about (Scot. ȧ-bōōt′). Alternately; in turn; by turns.

time allowance. Yachting. An allowance of time, usually in seconds per mile, for difference in measurement of yachts in racing. The basis on which time is allowed may be tonnage, length, or other factors.

time and again. Repeatedly.

time and a half. See TIME, n., 21 d.

time and temperature method. Photog. Thermo development.

time at bat. Baseball. A full turn at bat by a batsman, but not so charged against the batsman in the box score if he is hit by a pitched ball, receives a base on balls, makes a sacrifice hit, or is awarded his base because of interference by the catcher.

time azimuth. Navig. An observation by compass of the azimuth of a celestial body, the time being noted, as a step in computing the compass error.

time ball. A ball on a pole, arranged to drop suddenly to mark some point of mean time, as noon.

time bargain. Com. A contract the time for the execution of which is expressly fixed; specif., a contract for something to be delivered or held at a future day specified.

time′-barred′ (tīm′bärd′), adj. Barred by lapse of time under a statute of limitations.

time bill. a Finance. A bill of exchange payable at a definite future time. Cf. SIGHT BILL. b Brit. A timetable of trains, etc., esp. one that is posted; also, a guard's record of train departures.

time book. a Rare. A chronicle. b A book in which times of workers, trains, etc., are recorded.

time′card′ (tīm′kärd′), n. 1. A card on which is a timetable.

2. Labor. A card on which is kept a daily record of the time one has worked or the time of one's arrival and departure.

time chart. A chart showing the standard times in various parts of the world with reference to a given time or times at a specified place.

time charter. A lease of a manned ship for a specified period.

time charter party. See CHARTER PARTY.

time clerk. A timekeeper.

time clock. A clock with a device to record the times of arrival and departure of employees, or the time at which a given job is begun or completed. Cf. TELLTALE, n., 3.

time constant. 1. Electrodynamics. The time which it takes for a current turned into a circuit, under a steady electromotive force, to reach a definite fraction of its final strength. This fraction is $\frac{e-1}{e} = 0.623$ in which e, 2.7183, is the base of the natural system of logarithms. The time constant is the ratio of the inductance of the circuit in henrys to its resistance in ohms.

2. Electrostatics. The time required for a charge on a condenser to decrease to $\frac{1}{2.718}$ of its original value in the process of discharging. It is equal to the product of the resistance in ohms of the discharging circuit and the capacity in farads of the condenser.

timed (tīmd), adj. Made to occur at or in a set time.

-timed (-tīmd). Timed, adj., used in combinations, as in: ill-timed, long-timed, well-timed.

time′-de-lay′ re′lay. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3.

time deposit. Banking. A bank deposit payable at a definite future date, or upon advance notice to the bank for a specified time. In the United States the Federal Reserve Act classifies time deposits for reserve purposes as comprising all deposits payable after thirty days, all savings accounts and certificates of deposit which are subject to not less than thirty days' notice before payment, and all postal savings deposits.

time derivative. Math. & Physics. The derivative with respect to the time. When the dependent variable is a length, its time derivative is called velocity (which see). The time derivative of a generalized co-ordinate (see 3d CO-ORDINATE) is called a co-ordinate velocity.

time detector. A watchman's time clock, or telltale.

time discount. Com. A reduction in an invoice price in consideration of payment within a specified time.

time draft. See TIME, adj., 3 a.

time enough. Sufficiently soon; no haste.

time exemplar. Psychol. A constant error in the comparison of magnitudes, resulting from the fact that one magnitude follows the other in time.

time′-ex·pired′ (tīm′ĕks-pīrd′), adj. Mil. Having completed the term of enlistment, but being still enrolled in the reserves; — said of noncommissioned officers and men of the British Army time exposure. Photog. Exposure for a definite time, usually more than one half second; also, a photograph taken by such exposure. — time′-ex·po′sure, adj.

time fire. Mil. Artillery fire in which the projectile bursts, or is intended to burst, in air.

time fuse. See FUSE, n., 1. — time′-fused′, adj.

time globe. A globe that makes a revolution by clockwork every twenty-four hours, arranged to indicate local or standard time at all points on the globe.

time gun. Mil. A gun fired at a fixed hour or set time.

time hit. A hit made by a time thrust.

time′-hon′ored, or -hon′oured (tīm′ŏn′ĕrd), adj. Honored or revered because of age or long-established usage.

time immemorial. a Eng. Law. A time antedating (legal) history, and beyond "legal memory" so called, formerly an indefinite time, but in 1276 fixed by statute as the beginning of the reign of Richard I (1189). Proof of unbroken possession or use of any right since that date made it unnecessary to establish an original grant. In England and the United States the time immemorial of the common law has been more or less modified by prescription acts. b Time so long past as to be indefinite in history or tradition.

time′keep′ (tīm′kēp′), v. i. To keep time.

time′keep′er (-kēp′ĕr), n. One who or that which keeps, marks, measures, regulates, or determines, the time. Specif.: a A timepiece. b A person who keeps a record of time spent by workmen at their work; also, Rare, a time clock. c One appointed to mark and declare the time of participants, or the elapsed time, in races, games, etc. d One who marks the time in musical performances. e Rare. An almanac.

time killer. One who or that which kills, or consumes, time; a diversion for idle moments. — time′-kill′ing, adj.

time lag. = 4th LAG, 4 b.

time′less, adj. 1. Untimely; premature. Archaic.

Must I behold thy timeless, cruel death? Shak.

2. Having no beginning or end; interminable; unending; eternal. "Timeless night and chaos." Young.

3. Not restricted to a particular time or date; undated; dateless; as, timeless art or fame.

4. Without time; specif., outside the categories of time and space; not affected by time.

5. Having no sense of or feeling for time.

— time′less·ly, adv. — time′less·ness, n.

time′less, adv. Timelessly.

time limit. A fixed period for doing or ending something; specif., Psychol., one for a test intended to measure the amount of work an individual can accomplish in this time. Cf. AMOUNT LIMIT.

time loan. Finance. A loan with a definite maturity date; — in contrast to a demand loan.

time lock. A lock operated by clockwork and having no keyhole, spindle, or other connection, through the door.

time′ly (tīm′lĭ), adv. [AS. tīmlīce.] Early; soon; seasonably; opportunely. Archaic.

Timely advised, the coming evil shun. Prior.

time′ly, adj.; TIME′LI·ER (-lĭ·ĕr); TIME′LI·EST. 1. a Now Rare. Showing itself or occurring in good time; early; before its time; also, in due season; occurring at the normal time. "The timely dew of sleep." Milton. b Seasonably or opportunely timed; as, a timely joke or editorial.

2. Obs. a Temporal. b Marking or keeping time.

Syn. and Ant. — See OPPORTUNE.

— time′li·ly (-lĭ·lĭ), adv. — time′li·ness, n.

time money. A time loan.

tim′e·nogu′y (tĭm′ĕ-nŏg′ĭ; tĭm′-), n. Naut. Any rope to prevent rigging from chafing or fouling, by stretching taut from a projecting obstacle, or by lifting a part clear.

time note. See TIME, adj., 3 a.

time of day. a The time as indicated by the clock; hence, the present moment, hour, etc.; the present time. b A salutation equivalent to "a fine day," or the like; — chiefly in to pass, or give, the time of day. c Colloq. The state of the case; the true situation; the correct thing.

time of one's life, the. The time (sense 14) which one has most enjoyed. Colloq.

time′ous (tīm′ŭs), adj. Timely. Scot. — time′ous·ly, adv.

time′ous (tīm′ŭs), adv. Betimes. Scot. & Ir.

time out. Time (sense 21 a) in which a worker is absent or intermits work; hence, an intermission. Colloq.

time out of mind. Time immemorial.

time′piece′ (tīm′pēs′), n. A clock, watch, or other device, to measure or show progress of time; a chronometer.

time′pleas′er (-plēz′ĕr), n. A timeserver.

time policy. Insurance. A policy limited to become void at a specified time. See 3d POLICY, 1.

time quadrature. Elec. See QUADRATURE.

tim′er (tīm′ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which times; as: a A timekeeper. b A timepiece; esp., a stop watch for timing races, etc. c A device in the ignition system of an internal-combustion engine, causing the spark to be produced in the cylinder at the correct time, either by the interruption or by the closing of the primary circuit.

2. One who serves, works, etc., a (specified length of) time; one who performs an action, esp. runs a race, in (such) time; one of a (given) time; as, a half-timer; old-timer.

time rating. See 2d RATING, 4.

time recorder. = TELLTALE, n., 3.

ti·mer′i·ty (tĭ·mĕr′ĭ·tĭ), n. [See TIMOROUS.] = TIMIDITY. Obs.

times (tīmz), adv. Many times. Chiefly Dial. Eng.

time′sav′ing (tīm′sāv′ĭng), adj. That expedites the matter in hand; as, timesaving devices, expedients. — time′sav′er (-ĕr), n.

time selling. Com. Installment selling.

time sense. Psychol. The ability to feel the lapse of time and to estimate and compare short intervals.

time series. Statistics A series of enumerations, measurements, or estimates, of a phenomenon arranged according to time.

time′serv′er (tīm′sûr′vĕr), n. One who practices time-serving.

time service. Astron. The determination and announcement of the precise time, usually conducted as a part of the work of an astronomical observatory. It is determined by transit observations of stars, and is announced mainly by telegraphic and radio signals. See TIME SIGNAL.

time′serv′ing (tīm′sûr′vĭng), adj. Obsequiously complying with the spirit of the times, or the humors of those in power, implying a surrender of one's independence or integrity. — time′serv′ing, n. — time′serv′ing·ness, n.

Syn. — Temporizing. Ant. — Forthright, independent.

time sheet. Labor. a A sheet for recording the time of arrival and departure of workers, and for recording the amount of time spent upon each job. b A sheet for summarizing hours worked by each worker during a pay period time shrapnel. Mil. A shrapnel, the case of which is fitted with a time fuse.

time sight. a Astron. A set of observations, usually made with a transit instrument, for the determination of time. b Navig. An observation by sextant of the altitude of a heavenly body to determine longitude by comparing the local time with Greenwich time.

time signal. A signal indicating an exact instant of time, sent by telegraph or radio to regulate timepieces.

time signature. Music. A sign at the beginning of a composition or movement, placed after the key signature, to indicate its variety of measure; — called also measure, or rhythmical, signature. It is in the form of a fraction, of which the denominator indicates the kind of note taken as time unit for the beat, and the numerator, the number of these to the measure. See MENSURABLE MUSIC; TIME, 22.

Table of the Common Time Signatures

$\frac{2}{2}$	two-two time or meter, or two-half measure
$\frac{2}{4}$	two-four time or meter, or two-quarter measure
$\frac{2}{8}$	two-eight time or meter, or two-eighth measure
$\frac{3}{2}$	three-two time or meter, or three-half measure
$\frac{3}{4}$	three-four time or meter, or three-quarter measure
$\frac{3}{8}$	three-eight time or meter, or three-eighth measure
$\frac{4}{4}$	four-two time or meter, or four-half measure
$\frac{4}{4}$	four-four time or meter, or four-quarter measure
$\frac{4}{8}$	four-eight time or meter, or four-eighth measure
$\frac{6}{2}$	six-two time or meter, or six-half measure
$\frac{6}{4}$	six-four time or meter, or six-quarter measure
$\frac{6}{8}$	six-eight time or meter, or six-eighth measure
$\frac{6}{16}$	six-sixteen time or meter, or six-sixteenth measure
$\frac{9}{4}$	nine-four time or meter, or nine-quarter measure
$\frac{9}{8}$	nine-eight time or meter, or nine-eighth measure
$\frac{9}{16}$	nine-sixteen time or meter, or nine-sixteenth measure
$\frac{12}{4}$	twelve-four time or meter, or twelve-quarter measure
$\frac{12}{8}$	twelve-eight time or meter, or twelve-eighth measure
$\frac{12}{16}$	twelve-sixteen time or meter, or twelve-sixteenth measure
$\frac{5}{4}$	five-four time or meter, or five-quarter measure
$\frac{5}{8}$	five-eight time or meter, or five-eighth measure
$\frac{7}{4}$	seven-four time or meter, or seven-quarter measure time. + THEME, THYME.

time′fel′low, n. A contemporary. Obs.

time′ful, adj. = TIMELY, adj. — time′ful·ly, adv. — time′ful·ness, n.

time′ist. Var. of TIMIST.

time′keep′er·ship, n. See -SHIP.

Ti·me′li·a (tĭ·mē′lĭ-ä), Tim′e·lĭ·i·dæ (tĭm′ĕ-lĭ′dĭ-ē), ti·mel′i·ine (tĭ·mĕl′ĭ-ĭn; -īn; 156). Vars. of TIMALIA, TIMALIIDAE, TIMALIINE.

time′ling, n. = TIMESERVER.

‖ti′me·o Da′na·os et do′na ferentes (tĭm′ē-ō dăn′ä-ŏs ĕt dō′nä fĕ-rĕn′tēz). [L.] I fear the Greeks even bringing gifts; hence, foes are to be mistrusted even when they make friendly advances. Vergil (Aeneid, II. 49).

ti′me·rau′ (tē′mĕ-rou′). Var. of TIMARAU.

tim′er·some. Var. of TIMORSOME. Obs. exc. Dial.

time space. = SPACE TIME, 1. time spirit. The Zeitgeist.
Times Square (tīmz). A square in New York City at Broadway and 42d St., where the offices of the New York Times are situated. Cf. GREAT WHITE WAY. time stamp. A clock-actuated device for recording time, as a device for recording the date and time of day that letters, or the like, are received. — time′-stamp′, v. t.
time star. Astron. A clock star. time switch. Elec. A switch which automatically operates at a set time. See SWITCH, n., 5. time study. Industrial Engin. A determination of the time required to do a task. Usually, the task is resolved into its elementary operations and the time needed for doing each of these is determined by means of a stop watch or micro-motion apparatus. The time for doing the job, called the standard time, is the sum of the times required for doing each elementary operation plus an allowance for unavoidable delays and fatigue. — time′-stud′y, adj.
time′ta′ble (tīm′tā′b'l), n. 1. A tabular statement of the time at which, or within which, several things are to take place; a schedule of times; specif., a train sheet; as, a timetable of trains, tides, courses, etc.
2. = TIME SHEET a.
3. Music. A table showing the time value or relative duration of the various notes. See NOTE, n., 1. time′tak′er (tīm′tāk′ĕr), n. A timekeeper. — time′tak′ing, n.
time′-tem′per-a′ture curve. A graph showing the increase in temperature with time in a furnace test to determine the fire resistance of materials.
time thrust. Fencing. An attack delivered between two movements of the adversary's attack.
time ticket. = TIME CARD, 2. time train. Horol. The train of wheels that drives the hands of a timepiece. time triangle. The astronomical triangle. time value. 1. Econ. a Value measured by hours of labor. b Value due to the date of receipt of goods or maturity of obligations.
2. Music. The relative duration of a note or rest. time′work′ (tīm′wûrk′), n. Work paid for at so much by the hour or the day. — time′work′er (-wûr′kĕr), n.
time′worn′ (-wōrn′), adj. Worn or impaired by time; hence, antiquated; out-of-date. time zone. A geographical region within which the same standard time is used.
Tim′i-as (tĭm′ĭ-ăs), n. Prince Arthur's squire in Spenser's Faerie Queene, representing chivalrous honor and, in the allegory, Sir Walter Raleigh. tim′id (tĭm′ĭd), adj.; TIM′ID-ER (-ĕr); TIM′ID-EST. [L. timidus, fr. timere to fear; cf. F. timide.] Feeling or evincing want of courage or self-confidence; easily frightened or overawed; not bold; fearful.

Poor is the triumph o'er the timid hare. Thomson.

Syn. — Fearful, timorous, cowardly, pusillanimous, faint-hearted, shrinking, retiring, shy. See AFRAID.
Ant. — Brave, fearless intrepid, courageous; bold, assured, confident.
— tim′id-ly, adv. — tim′id-ness, n.
ti-mid′i-ty (tĭ-mĭd′ĭ-tĭ), n. [L. timiditas; cf. F. timidité.] Quality, state, or manifestation, of being timid. tim′id-ous (tĭm′ĭ-dŭs), adj. = TIMID. Obs. tim′ing (tīm′ĭng), n. 1. An event; happening. Obs.
2. Determination of occurrence at a particular time.
3. The art or practice of regulating the tempo in musical performance, utterance, dramatic action, etc., so as to heighten the effectiveness of certain moments by emphasis and of the whole by appropriate variations; also, the effect so produced.
4. Athletics & Sports. The regulating of the speed of a motion, stroke, blow, etc., so as to cause it to reach its maximum at the correct moment; also, the co-ordination of movements of body, arms, and hands, to produce this effect.
5. Boxing. Measure or degree of co-ordination between a boxer's blows and the opportunities offered for attack.
6. Fencing. A time thrust. timing gears. In internal-combustion engines, the gear train with a two to one reduction through which the crank-shaft drives the camshaft and thus controls valve timing.
timing screw. Horol. Any of the screws in the rim of a watch compensation balance, used in timing the watch.
timing valve. Mach. In gas engines with hot-tube ignition, an adjustable valve which automatically opens to permit a portion of the compressed explosive mixture to enter the ignition tube, and so cause ignition, at any desired point of the stroke. Cf. TIMER c.
tim′ish (tīm′ĭsh), adj. Fashionable; modish. Rare.
tim′ist (tīm′ĭst), n. 1. A timeserver. Obs.
2. One who or that which keeps time.
ti-moc′ra-cy (tĭ-mŏk′rȧ-sĭ), n. [OF. tymocracie (F. timocratie), fr. ML. timocratia, fr Gr. timokratia, fr. tīmē honor, worth, value. See -CRACY.] Polit. Sci. a As defined by Plato (Rep. 545 B), a state in which love of honor or glory is the ruling principle. He considered Sparta the type of such a state. b As derived from Aristotle, a state in which political and civil honors are distributed according to a rating of property. — ti′mo-crat′ic (tī′mō-krăt′ĭk), ti′mo-crat′i-cal (tī′mō-krăt′ĭ-kăl), adj. ti′mon (tī′mŏn), n. [F. See TEMON.] Helm; rudder. Obs.
Ti′mon (tī′mŏn), n. The hero of Shakespeare's Timon of Athens; hence, a bitter cynic or misanthrope. — Ti-mo′ni-an (tĭ-mō′nĭ-ăn), adj.
ti′mon-eer′ (tī′mŏn-ēr′), n. [F. timonier.] Helmsman. R.
Ti′mon-ism (tī′mŏn-ĭz′m), n. Misanthropy. — Ti′mon-ist (-ĭst), n. & adj.
Ti′mon-ize (-īz), v. i. To play the misanthrope; to be a Timonist.
Ti′mon of Athens (tī′mŏn). A play, partly by Shakespeare, written perhaps 1607 but first published 1623. Its hero, Timon, the Cynic, was an Athenian misanthrope of the time of the Peloponnesian War. ti′mor (tī′mŏr), n. [L.] Dread. Rare.
Ti′mo-rese′ (tē′mō-rēz′; -rēs′), n. sing. & pl. a One of the native inhabitants of Timor Island. b Their Indonesian speech.
‖ti′mo-ro′so (tē′mō-rō′sō), adj. [It.] Music. Timorous; hesitating; — a direction.
tim′or-ous (tĭm′ĕr-ŭs), adj. [OF. timoureus, temerous, fr. LL. timorosus, fr. L. timor fear. See TIMID.] 1. Full of fear or fears; timid; lacking in courage; shrinking.
2. Indicating, or caused by, timidity; as, timorous doubts.
3. a Obs. Causing fear; terrible. b N. of Eng. Hard to please.
Syn. — See AFRAID. Ant. — See BOLD.
— tim′or-ous-ly, adv. — tim′or-ous-ness, n.
Ti-mo′te (tē-mō′tā), n. An Indian of a group of about thirty closely related tribes, formerly in Mérida and Trujillo in western Venezuela. Their language is now extinct.
— Ti-mo′te-an (-tē-ăn; tĭm′ō-tē′ăn), adj.
Ti-mo′the-an (tĭ-mō′thē-ăn), n. Eccl. Hist. A follower of Timotheus, a Monophysite of the 5th century.
Tim′o-thy (tĭm′ō-thĭ), n. [F. Timothée, fr. L. Timotheus, fr. Gr. Timotheos; cf. Gr. timē honor; theos God.] 1. Lit., honoring God; — masc. prop. name. L. Timotheus (tĭ-mō′thē-ŭs); F. Timothée (tē′mō′tā′); It. Timoteo (tē-mō′-tā-ō); Sp. Timoteo (tē′mō-tā′ō); Pg. Timotheo (tē′mō-tā′-ōō); G. Timotheus (tē-mō′tā-ōōs). — Dim. Tim (Tim′kin, Obs.).
2. Bib. a A convert, and later a colleague, of St. Paul. b Either of the two Epistles to Timothy. See NEW TESTAMENT
3. [not cap.] [After Timothy Hanson, who carried the seed from New York to Carolina about 1720.] A European grass (Phleum pratense) with long cylindrical spikes, grown in the northern United States and in Europe for hay; herd's-grass timothy grass. Timothy. tim′pa-ni (tĭm′pȧ-nē), n. pl.; sing. tim′pa-no (-nō). [It. See TYMPANUM.] Music. Kettledrums; esp., a set of them, usually two or three, but sometimes four or even five in number, all of which are played by the same performer. See KETTLE-DRUM.
— tim′pa-nist (-nĭst), n.

Timothy.

Ti-mu′cua (tē-mōō′kwä), n. An Indian of the most important of the Timucuan tribes, formerly dwelling along the St. Johns River in Florida. They were Christianized by Spanish missionaries. See TIMUCUAN.
Ti-mu′cuan, Ti-mu′quan (tē-mōō′kwăn), adj. Pertaining to or designating an extinct linguistic family of American Indians, consisting of several important tribes, formerly inhabiting most of Florida. They were almost exterminated during the 18th century by the English and their Indian allies.
tin (tĭn), n. [AS.; akin to D. tin, G. zinn, OHG. zin, ON. & Dan. tin, Sw. tenn.] 1. A chemical element obtained by smelting as a soft, faintly bluish-white, crystalline metal, malleable at ordinary temperatures, but brittle when heated. Symbol, Sn; at. no., 50; at. wt., 118.70. Sp. gr., 7.3. Tin sometimes occurs native. In combination it is found in several minerals, but its only ore is cassiterite, mined chiefly in the Malay States, the Dutch East Indies, and Bolivia. Tin has a low melting point (232° C. or 450° F.) and is purified from iron by liquation. Below 18° C. (64° F.), a gray, pulverulent, allotropic modification (gray tin), with sp. gr. 5.75, is the stable form, and ordinary tin in cold climates sometimes changes gradually into this, the transformation being called tin plague or tin pest. Tin is not oxidized by moist air. It is used chiefly as a coating to protect iron and copper (see TIN PLATE), as tin foil, and in solder, bronze, and other alloys. It is bivalent (stannous) and quadrivalent (stannic), and in each state forms acid and basic compounds.
2. Thin plates of iron or steel covered with tin; tin plate.
3. A box, can, pan, or other vessel, of tin plate; as, a tin of biscuits; a pie tin; specif., Chiefly Brit., a hermetically sealed can of tin plate for foodstuffs such as preserves; as, a tin of peaches. Also, a drinking vessel made of tin.
4. Money. Slang.
5. Dyeing. A steam-heated iron cylinder for drying yarn, cloth, etc., after dyeing.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tin-bearing, adj.	tin-covered	tin-lined tin-bottomed	tin cup	tin-malled
tin oax	tin-edged	tin pail tin-capped	tin-filled	tin-roofed tin-colored	tin-handled	tin-tabled tin (tĭn), v. t.; TINNED (tĭnd); TIN′NING. 1. To cover or coat with tin; to plate with tin.

2. To put up or pack in tins; to can. Chiefly Brit.
3. To cover (a soldering bit, the back of an electrotype shell, etc.) with solder or a tin composition.
tin, adj. 1. Of or pertaining to tin; tinned; forming or preserved in tin.
2. Figuratively, of base or inferior material; petty; not genuine; — often merely derogatory.

The Little Tin Gods harried their little tin souls. Kipling.

tin (tĭn). Var. of TINE, to shut, TIND, to kindle. Obs. exc. Dial.
‖ti-na′ja (tē-nä′hä; 162), n. [Sp., aug. of tina, fr. L. tina wine jar.] A large porous water jar for cooling water by evaporation; hence, Southwestern U. S., a water pocket or pothole.
Ti-nam′i-dae (tĭ-năm′ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL. See TINAMOU.] Zool. A family consisting of the tinamous. Tin′a-mus (tĭn′ȧ-mŭs) is the type genus. The family is coextensive with an order, Ti-nam′i-for′mes (tĭ-năm′ĭ-fôr′mēz), syns. Dromaeognathae and Crypturi, of the superorder Palaeognathae.
tin′a-mine (tĭn′ȧ-mĭn; -mīn; 156), adj. Of or pertaining to the tinamous.
tin′a-mou (tĭn′ȧ-mōō), n. [F., fr. Galibi tinamu, fr. t-, indef. pref. + inamu, ñamu, of Tupian origin; cf. Oyampi inamú, Tupi inambú.] Any of numerous birds constituting the family Tinamidae and the order Tinamiformes, resembling gallinaceous birds in habits, but related to the ratite birds, esp. in the structure of the palate, though the sternum is deeply keeled. The tail is rudimentary, the pygostyle being wanting, and the eggs have a peculiar enamel-like surface. In many localities they are called partridges and are much hunted, their flesh being very delicate. Tinamus, Crypturus, and Rhynchotus, are important genera. They are chiefly South American, some ranging into Mexico.

Tinamou (Rhynchotus rufescens).

ti′nam-pi′pi (tē′năm-pē′pē), n. A fine variety of cloth made from hemp fiber. Phil. I. ti′na proc′ess (tē′nȧ). [Sp. tina tub. See TINAJA.] A process for amalgamation of silver ores in tubs. tin′-bound′, v. t. & v. i. To mark boundaries (on) in order to establish tin-mining rights; — chiefly in present participle. — tin′-bound′er, n. Hist.
tin′cal (tĭng′kăl; -kôl), n. [Malay tinkal, fr. Per. tinkāl, tinkār, perh. fr. Skr. {aṅkaṇa.] Crude native borax, formerly imported from Tibet, and once the chief source of boric compounds. Cf. BORAX. tin calciner. See CALCINER. tin′chel (tĭn′kĕl), n. Also tin′chill. [Gael. timchioll a circuit, compass.] A ring formed by hunters to enclose deer. Scot.
tin chloride. Chem. a Stannic chloride. b Stannous chloride.
tin′clad′ (tĭn′klăd′), adj. a Colloq. Very lightly armored or protected. b Covered with tin plate or terneplate; as, a tinclad door, a wooden door covered with terneplate.
tin′clad′, n. Nav. A gunboat protected with light armor against small-arm fire; — first used facetiously of the light ironclads, converted from river steamers, used on western rivers by the Federals in the American Civil War. Colloq.
tin cow. A can of condensed or evaporated milk. Slang, U. S.
tin cry. The peculiar creaking noise made when a bar of tin is bent, by the grating of the crystal granules on each other.
tin crystals. Dyeing. See STANNOUS CHLORIDE. tinct (tĭngkt), adj. [L. tinctus, past part. of tingere to tinge. See TINGE.] Tinged; tinted; also, delicately flavored. Poetic.
tinct, v. t.; TINCT′ED; TINCT′ING. [See TINCT, adj., TINGE.] Obs. a To color or tinge; to tint; dye. b To imbue, as with a substance, quality, etc.; to impregnate. c Alchemy. To imbue with a tincture, or essential principle.
tinct, n. [L. tinctus a dyeing, dipping. See TINT.] 1. Color; tinge; tincture; tint. Poetic. "Blue of heaven's own tinct." Shak.
2. Alchemy. = TINCTURE, 4 a.
tinc′tion (tĭngk′shŭn), n. [LL. tinctio a dipping, fr. L. tingere, tinctum, to dip, stain.] 1. Act or process of staining or dyeing; also, coloring matter.
2. Pharm. The addition of a substance to a medicinal preparation to impart color.
tinc′to′ri-al (tĭngk′tō′rĭ-ăl; 181), adj. [L. tinctorius, fr. tinctor a dyer, fr. tingere, tinctum, to dye. See TINGE.] Of or relating to color or colors, or to dyeing or staining; imparting a color. — tinc′to′ri-al-ly, adv.
tinc′tu-mu-ta′tion (tĭngk′tū-mū-tā′shŭn), n. [See TINCT, n.; MUTATION.] Zool. Color change, esp. that exhibited by certain animals having active chromatophores. tinc′ture (tĭngk′tūr; 277), n. [L. tinctura a dyeing, fr. tingere, tinctum, to tinge, dye. See TINGE; cf. TAINTURE.]
1. A substance which colors, dyes, or stains; hence, a color given a substance by nature or art; a tinge. Poetic.

Dye, ever fresh and fresh, our garment's tincture. Browning.

2. A superadded characteristic or quality; a modification resulting from influence or admixture; a cast; coloring; also, an admixture, esp. a slight one; a trace; vestige; smack; suspicion; as, there was not a tincture of fear in his behavior.

All manners take a tincture from our own. Pope.

3. Obs. a An imbuing or impregnating with color; act of dyeing or staining. b An active principle of a substance; extractive or volatile essence.
4. a Alchemy. An immaterial, quintessential, active principle believed capable, when infused, of causing material and spiritual transmutations. b Old Chem. A principle, esp. one obtained by extraction; also, an extract.
5. Her. Any of the metals or colors used in armory. The two metals are: gold (called or), represented in engraving by a white surface covered with small dots; and silver (argent), represented by a plain white surface. The chief colors are represented as follows: red (called gules), by a shading of vertical lines; blue (azure), by horizontal lines; black (sable), by horizontal and vertical lines crossing; green (vert), by diagonal lines from dexter chief corner; purple (purpure), by diagonal lines from sinister chief corner. The names of or and argent are not found in English blazonry before the late 16th century.
6. Pharm. A solution of a medicinal substance or substances, usually a plant principle, in an alcoholic menstruum (spirituous tincture) or in a mixture of alcohol and ether (ethereal tinctures).
tinc′ture (tĭngk′tūr), v. t.; TINC′TURED (-tūrd); TINC′TUR-ING (-tūr-ĭng). 1. To stain with a color; to tinge; dye. "Tinctured daintily with florid hues." Wordsworth.
2. To imbue (something) with a character or quality foreign to it; to affect by infusion or contamination; to impart a flavor, odor, etc., to; taint.

Sin . . . may . . . tincture all our soul. Barrow.

tincture of ferric citrochloride. A medicinal preparation containing ferric chloride, ferric citrate, and sodium citrate, used as an iron tonic in mixtures containing tannin.
tincture of iron or steel. An alcoholic solution of ferric chloride.
tincture press. Pharm. A cylindrical press used to express the menstruum adhering to the particles of a drug after extraction. tind (tĭnd), v. t. & i. [AS. tyndan, akin to tendan (in comp.). See TINDER.] To kindle; to set on fire. Dial.
tin′dal (tĭn′dăl), n. [Hind. taṇḍel, fr. Telugu taṇḍēlu.] 1. A petty or noncommissioned officer of lascar sailors or soldiers; also, the head of a gang of lascar or East Indian workmen.
2. A personal head servant or overseer.
tin′da-lo (tĭn′dȧ-lō; tĕn′-), n. [Tag.] A timber tree (Intsia rhomboidea) of the Philippine Islands, having hard valuable wood like ipil; also, the wood.
tin′der (tĭn′dĕr), n. [ME. tinder, fr. AS. tynder, tyndre; akin to D. tonder tinder, G. zunder, OHG. zuntara, zuntra, ON. tundr, Sw. tunder, Dan. tönder, also AS. tendan (in comp.) to kindle, G. zünden, OHG. zunten, ON. tendra, Goth. tandjan to kindle, tundnan to be kindled, to burn. Cf. TEND to kindle.] Something very inflammable; esp., such a material used for kindling fire from a spark, as, formerly, scorched linen, which was ignited in a tinder box, or now often, certain dried fungi, esp. of the genus Polyporus. See 1st PUNK, 2.

☞ COMBINATIONS are: tin′der-cloaked′, tin′der-dry′.

Ti-me′us. Var. of TIMAEUS. time′ward, adj. & adv. See -WARD. [OTHY.] Tim′kin, n. Obs. dim. of TIM. tim′mer (tĭm′ĕr). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of TIMBER.
Tim′na (tĭm′nȧ), Tim′nah (-nȧ), Tim′nath (-năth), Tim′na-thah (tĭm′nȧ-thȧ), Tim′nath-he′res (năth-hē′rēz; -rēs), Tim′nath-se′rah (-sē′rȧ), Tim′nite (tĭm′nīt). Bib.
Tim′ne. = TEMNE, a.
tim′or-os′i-ty (tĭm′ĕr-ŏs′ĭ-tĭ), n. Timorousness. Obs.
tim′or-some (tĭm′ĕr-sŭm), adj. = TIMOROUS. Obs. exc. Dial.
Ti-mo′the-us (tĭ-mō′thē-ŭs). Bib.
Tim′o-thy Tick′let. See TICKLER, TIMOTHY. tim′ous (tĭm′ŭs). Var. of TIMOROUS. Obs. exc. Scot.
tim′pan. Var. of TYMPAN. timse (tĭmz). Var. of TEMSE.
Ti′mu-qua′nan (tē′mōō-kwä′-nän), adj. = TIMUCUAN.
tim′-whis′key (tĭm′hwĭs′kĭ), n. = WHISKEY, a carriage.
Ti′na (tē′nȧ), n. Dim. of ALBERTINA, CHRISTINA. tin′age, n. A tinaja. Obs. tinc′tile, adj. [L. tinctilis in which something is dipped.] Tinctorial. Obs. [RIAL. tinc′to′ri-ous, adj. = TINCTO-tind. † TINE, prong.

tin'der·box' (tĭn'dĕr·bŏks'), n. 1. A metal box in which tinder is kept, usually with a flint and steel for striking a spark.

Tinderbox, 18th century, with lid to be used as a candlestick.

2. A person or thing suggestive of a tinderbox in inflammability or combustibility; one ready to flare up on the slightest provocation.

tin'dered (tĭn'dĕrd), adj. Charred.

tinder fungus. a A very destructive pore fungus (Fomes, syn. Polyporus, fomentarius) which attacks the beech, elm, and various fruit trees. It is used in making tinder and a pliant feltlike material. b The hard tinder fungus.

tin'der·ish (tĭn'dĕr·ĭsh), adj. Dry and inflammable as tinder.

tin'der·y (tĭn'dĕr·ĭ), adj. Like tinder; highly inflammable.

tin dichloride. Chem. Stannous chloride.

tin dioxide. Chem. Stannic oxide.

tine (tīn), n. [ME. tind, fr. AS. tind; akin to MHG. zint, ON. tindr, Sw. tinne, and prob. to G. zinne a pinnacle, OHG. zinna.] 1. A slender, pointed, projecting part, usually one of a set of two or more; a tooth or spike, as of a fork or a harrow; a prong, as of an antler.

2. Act or process of harrowing.

tine, v. t. 1. To furnish with a tine or tines.

2. To harrow. Rare.

tine, v. t. [AS. tūnan, fr. stem of tūn an enclosure. See TOWN.] To shut; enclose; also, repair. Obs. exc. Dial.

tine, v. t. & i., past & past part. TINT. [ON. tīna; akin to E. TEEN.] To lose or be lost; to destroy; perish. Now Chiefly Dial.

tine one's snood. To lose one's virginity. Scot.

tine the gate. To lose the, or one's, way. Scot.

tine (tīn), n. A forfeit; a fine. Dial. Eng.

tine, n. [OF., fr. L. tina.] A tub or vat. Obs.

tine, n. [ME. See TINY.] A brief time. — adj. Tiny. Both Obs.

tine, n. Pain; trouble; grief; teen.

tine (tīn), n. Also tine'grass' (-grăs'), tine'tare' (-târ'), tine'weed' (-wēd'). Any of various plants, as vetches, having twining or clasping tendrils. Dial. Eng.

tine (tīn). Var of TIND, to kindle.

tin'e·a (tĭn'ē·ȧ), n. [L., worm, moth.] 1. Med. Any fungus skin disease, esp. ringworm. See RINGWORM, 1; SYCOSIS.

2. [cap.] Zool. The type genus of the family Tineidae.

‖tī'ne·a cir'ci·na'ta (tī'nē·ȧ sûr'sĭ·nā'tȧ). [NL. See CIRCINATE.] Med. Ringworm of the body, characteristically somewhat circular in outline.

‖tī'ne·a cru'ris (krōō'rĭs). [NL. See CRURAL.] Med. Ringworm of the inner surface of the thighs and the perineum.

‖tī'ne·a fa·vo'sa (fȧ·vō'sȧ). [NL.] Med. & Veter. Favus.

‖tī'ne·a im'bri·ca'ta (ĭm'brĭ·kā'tȧ). [NL. See IMBRICATE.] Med. A form of ringworm characterized by concentric rings of overlapping scales, occurring esp. in the tropics.

tin'e·al (tĭn'ē·ăl), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, tinea.

tin'e·an (tĭn'ē·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to the Tineina. — n. A moth of that group.

‖tī'ne·a ton·su'rans (tŏn·sū'rănz). [NL. tonsurans. See TONSURE.] Veter. A disease of the skin, caused by the parasitic fungus Trichophyton tonsurans, and characterized by circular scurfy patches with irritation and loss of hair.

tined (tīnd), adj. Furnished with tines; pronged.

-tined (-tīnd). A combining form of tined, as in: two-tined, three-tined, wooden-tined.

Tī·ne'i·dae (tĭ·nē'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See TINEA.] Zool. The typical family of moths of the superfamily Tineoidea. In old classifications, it was the only family, hence coextensive with the group Tineina. See TINEA, 2. — tin'e·id (tĭn'ē·ĭd), n. & adj.

Tin'e·ī'na (tĭn'ē·ī'nȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A group, formerly a superfamily, of small moths, nearly coextensive with the modern superfamily Tineoidea. — tin'e·ine (tĭn'ē·īn; -ĭn; 156), adj.

tine'man (tīn'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). [From misreading of AS. tūnmann(n) villein, fr. tūn manor, estate + man(n) man. See TOWN; MAN.] Erroneously, a forester (sense 1).

Tin'e·oi'de·a (tĭn'ē·oi'dē·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TINEA; -OID.] Zool. A superfamily of small moths comprising the majority of the microlepidoptera, as the clothes moths, carpet moths, leaf miners, etc. They have narrow, simply veined wings broadly fringed with hairs. Cf. TINEINA. — tin'e·oid (tĭn'ē·oid), adj. & n.

One of the Tineoidea (Ornix geminatella). a Imago; b Larva; c Pupa.

tine'ty (tīn'tĭ), adj. Tiny. Chiefly Dial.

tin foil. a Tin in thin sheet form. b A similar thin sheet of tin and lead, used in wrapping confections, etc. — tin'-foil', adj.

tin'-foil', v. t. To cover or coat with, or wrap in, tin foil. — tin'-foil'er, n.

tin'-foil' pa'per. Paper with tin in a fine state of division (produced by chemical precipitation) pasted on its surface.

tin frame. A kind of buddle used in the process of washing tin ore. Cornwall.

ting (tĭng), n. [Imitative. Cf. DING, TINK.] A high-pitched sound, such as is made by a light stroke on glass.

ting, v. t.; TINGED (tĭngd); TING·ING. a To cause to make a ting or tings. b Dial. To collect (bees) by tings sounded on pans or shovels. — v. i. To sound with or emit a ting; to make a ting or tings.

ting (tĭng), n. = TANG, prong, etc. Dial. Eng.

ting, n. = 3d THING. Shet. & Ork. I.

Ting (dĭng), adj. [Chin. (Pek.) Ting[4].] Designating Chinese pottery of the Sung period made at Tingchow in Hopeh province. The best-known variety has a cream or ivory glaze over a soft-looking white body.

ting'-a-ling' (tĭng'ȧ·lĭng'), n. [From TING.] The sound of a tinkling bell. — ting'-a-ling', adv.

tinge (tĭnj; 140), v. t.; TINGED (tĭnjd); TINGE'ING or TING'ING (tĭn'jĭng). [L. tingere, tinctum, to dye, stain, wet; akin to Gr. tengein, and G. tunken to dip, OHG. dunkōn. Cf. DISTAIN, DUNKER, EXTINGUISH, STAIN, TAINT, TINCTURE, TINT.] Transitive: 1. To impart a tint to; to color slightly or superficially by reflection, staining, or the like; to modify the cast or hue of (a color); as, clouds tinged with rose, green, and purple; pink tinged with silver.

Their white and glittering spires Tinge not the moon's pure beam. Shelley.

2. To impart a trace or traces of one's characteristic flavor, odor, quality, etc., to; to modify slightly by or as by infusion or communication.

Howe'er opinion tinge the varied mind. Gray.

—, Intransitive: To take a (particular) cast or hue.

Syn. — Color, dye, stain.

tinge, n. 1. A slight coloring, cast, flavor, quality, or the like, taken from or imparted by something else; a trace of something extraneous, foreign, or not characteristic; a smack; a shade; a suggestion; as, a tinge of red in the brown; not a tinge of partisanship in his policy. Cf. TINCTURE.

2. In the trade, a secret sign on a merchandise tag, indicating a premium attached to its sale.

3. Cotton Mfg. A yellow discoloration of the lint by the plant juices, resulting from field exposure of mature cotton after frost.

Syn. — See COLOR.

tinged (tĭnjd), adj. Having a tinge; stained, discolored, modified, or marked, by or with a tinge.

-tinged (-tĭnjd). Tinged, adj., used in combination, as in yel'low-tinged'.

tin'gent (tĭn'jĕnt), adj. [L. tingens, pres. part. of tingere to tinge. See TINGE.] Having the power to tinge. Obs.

ting'er (tĭn'jĕr), n. One who or that which tinges.

Ting·gian' (tĕng·gyän'), Tin·guian' (tĕng·gyän'), n.; pl. -GIAN or -GUIANES (-gyä'nās). One of a peaceable people of northwestern Luzon, mostly pagan, resembling the Ilokano; also, their language.

tin'gi (tĭng'gē), tin'guy (-gē), n. [Pg. tingui, fr. Tupi tinguí.] Either of the Brazilian trees Magonia glabrata and M. pubescens (family Sapindaceae). A soap is made from the seeds; the root bark is a fish poison.

Tin·git'i·dae (tĭn·jĭt'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. The family of bugs (order Hemiptera) containing the lace bugs. Tin'gis (tĭn'jĭs) is the type genus. — tin·git'id (tĭn·jĭt'ĭd), adj. & n.

One of the Tingitidae (Corythuca arcuata).

tin'glass' (tĭn'glăs'; 83), n. a Bismuth. Now Rare. b Tin. Obs.

tin'gle (tĭng'gl), n. Brit. a A tack, or very small nail. b A fastening or support, as a strip of metal or lead forming a clip, joint, or the like. c Naut. A patch on a boat overlapping the hole or leak that it covers.

tin'gle (tĭng'gl), v.; TIN'GLED (-g'ld); TIN'GLING (-glĭng). [See TINKLE, TING.] Intransitive: 1. To tinkle. Now Rare.

2. To experience or feel a ringing, stinging, prickling, or thrilling, sensation, as from a shrill sound, cold, a sharp slap, nervous excitement, or the like.

The ears of every one that heareth it shall tingle. 1 Sam. iii. 11.
The pale boy senator yet tingling stands. Pope.

3. To cause a thrilling, stinging, or prickling, sensation.

The trumpets tingle in his ears. Scott.

4. To be vibrant or alive; to stimulate one; as, the book tingles with interest.

—, Transitive: 1. To cause to ring or tinkle. Now Rare.

2. To cause a ringing, stinging, or thrilling, sensation in; to stir or stimulate; make vibrate; as, news that tingles all hearts.

tin'gle, n. 1. A tinkling sound. Rare.

2. A tingling sensation or condition; a state of being tingled; as, to feel a tingle in the cheek; to be all in a tingle.

tin'gler (tĭng'glĕr), n. Something that tingles or causes tingling, as a hard slap. Colloq.

tin'gling (-glĭng), adj. That tingles; smarting; thrilling; vibrating; tremulous. — tin'gling·ly, adv.

tin'glish (tĭng'glĭsh), adj. Tingling. Rare.

tin'gly (-glĭ), adj. Tingling or causing tingling.

ting'tang' (tĭng'tăng'; -tȧng'), n. [See TING.] The sound of a bell; also, a small or harsh bell; anything inferior. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

tin'gua·ite (tĭng'gwȧ·īt), n. [From the Tinguá Mountains in Brazil, of Tupian origin; cf. Tupi tinga white.] Petrog. An igneous rock consisting of a dense green aggregate of alkalic feldspar, nephelite, and aegirite needles, sometimes with phenocrysts of feldspar, and generally occurring in narrow dikes and sheets. — tin'gua·it'ic (-ĭt'ĭk), adj.

tin'gua·it'ic tex'ture (-ĭt'ĭk). Petrog. A texture resembling that found in tinguaite and produced by a granular aggregate of leucocratic minerals of approximately equal size, filled with needles of aegirite, most abundant between the grains of light minerals, but also penetrating them.

tin hare. = ELECTRIC HARE.

tin hat or helmet. A steel helmet. Soldiers' Slang.

tin'horn' (tĭn'hôrn'; 66), adj. Having little money, financial strength, power, or ability, though often pretending to such; cheap and flashy; as, a tinhorn gambler. — n. A tinhorn person. Both Slang.

tin'house' (-hous'), n. A building used for working tin.

Tin'i·a (tĭn'ĭ·ȧ), n. [Etruscan.] An Etruscan god whose functions are similar to those of Zeus or Jupiter.

tin'ing (tīn'ĭng), n. [From TINE to lose.] Act or fact of losing. Now Dial.

— between tining and winning. Between failure and success; in a doubtful or critical state.

tin'ing (tīn'ĭng), n. [From TINE to shut in.] An enclosure; also, wood used to repair a hedge. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

tin'ing, n. Now Dial. a A harrowing. b Tines collectively, esp. of a harrow.

tink (tĭngk), n. & v. [ME. tinken, of imitative origin. Cf. TING, TINKER, TINKLE.] Tinkle. Now Rare.

tink, n. & v. Tinker. Obs. exc. Scot.

tink'-a-tink', n. A series of sounds such as those made by plucking strings of a banjo or guitar.

tink'er (tĭngk'ĕr), n. [Cf. TINK, TINKLER.] 1. A mender of kettles, pans, etc., esp. an itinerant one.

2. a Chiefly Scot. & Ir. A gypsy; tramp; vagrant. b Colloq. A rascal; a rogue; — applied esp. to a child.

3. An unskillful mender or maker; a botcher; a bungler; also, a Jack-of-all-trades.

4. Act of, or effort at, tinkering; a fruitless or unskillful attempt to mend or improve.

Spend their time and money in having a tinker at it. T. Hughes.

5. a Local, Canada & Eng. The razor-billed auk. b Local, Eng. The common murre Uria aalge.

6. Any of various fishes; as: a A mackerel about eight or nine inches long and probably two years old. b The chub mackerel. c A silversides. d Colloq., Eng. A skate.

tink'er (tĭngk'ĕr), v.; -ERED (-ĕrd); -ER·ING. Intrans.: 1. To work, act, or wander, as, or in the manner of, a tinker.

2. To make futile attempts to mend, repair, or improve; to potter fruitlessly; — with at or with; as, to spoil a poem by tinkering at it.

—, Transitive: To mend as a tinker, esp. in a makeshift, botching manner; to patch or repair temporarily; to work upon so as to improve or restore to use, etc.; — chiefly with up.

I tinkered up the barnyard fence, and locked the doors. E. S. P. Ward.

tink'er·bird' (tĭngk'ĕr·bûrd'), n. Any barbet with a ringing note, esp. Xantholaema haematocephala. India.

tink'er·er (-ĕr), n. One who tinkers.

tink'er·ly (-lĭ), adj. Tinkerlike; bungling; unskillful; botched. "This tinkerly verse." W. Webbe.

tinker mackerel. The chub mackerel. See also TINKER, n., 6 a. tink'er's curse or cuss (tĭngk'ĕrz). Anything as valueless or insignificant as the oath or curse of a tinker or one given to idle profanity.

tinker's damn, or dam. [tinker + damn, n.; cf. tinker's curse, tinkler's curse, trooper's damn, to swear like a tinker.] Something absolutely worthless; as, not worth a tinker's damn; not to care a tinker's damn, that is, to be completely indifferent.

tink'er·shire (tĭngk'ĕr·shīr), tink'er·shue (-shū), n. The common murre Uria aalge. Local, Eng.

tinker's root, tinker's weed. [After a Dr. Tinker of New Eng.] Feverroot.

tin kettle. A tin-plated kettle; — often with allusion to its being tied to a dog's tail or used in a charivari.

tin'-ket'tle, v. t. To annoy with a charivari. — tin'-ket'tler, n.

tin'kle (tĭng'k'l), v.; TIN'KLED (-k'ld); TIN'KLING (-klĭng). [Freq. of TINK. Cf. TINGLE, DINGDONG.] Intransitive: 1. To tingle, as the ears. Now Rare.

2. To make, or emit, a series of short, thin, clinking or ringing notes; to ring as one or more tiny bells.

As sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal. 1 Cor. xiii. 1.

3. Of things, to make sounds of or like tinkling (sense 2), as in moving, flowing, etc.; of verse, to jingle; of persons, to utter nonsense; to chatter idly.

The grots that echo to the tinkling rills. Pope.

—, Trans.: 1. To cause to give forth tinkles, or short, thin bell-like sounds; as, to tinkle the keys of a piano.

2. To sound or express with tinkles; also, to summon, cause to swarm, as bees, or call attention to, by means of such sounds; as, small clocks tinkled the hours.

tin'kle, n. A tinkling sound, as from a small bell, a clinking of coins, or a plucking of a stringed instrument; hence, a delicate, often meaningless, rhyme or sound effect in verse or speech.

tin'kle (tĭng'k'l), v. i. To tinker. Obs. exc. Dial.

tin'kler (tĭng'klĕr), n. [Cf. TINKER.] A tinker, esp. a traveling one; hence, a vagabond, as a gypsy. Now Scot & Dial.

tin'kler (tĭng'klĕr), n. One who or that which tinkles, as a small bell. Colloq.

tin'kle–tan'kle, n. [Redupl. of TINKLE.] A series of sounds such as are made by plucking banjo strings. — tin'kle–tan'kling, n.

tin'kling (tĭng'klĭng), n. 1. A tinkle, or succession of tinkles. "Drowsy tinklings lull the distant folds." Gray.

2. A grackle (Holoquiscalus jamaicensis), native to Jamaica; — so called from its note. It often associates with domestic cattle, and rids them of insects.

tin'kling adj. That tinkles; jingling; also, characterized by sound, not sense. — tin'kling·ly, adv.

tin'kly (-klĭ), adj. Tinkling.

tin'let (tĭn'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A small tin, or can. Chiefly Brit.

tin liquor. Dyeing. A solution of stannous chloride, used as a mordant.

tin loaf. A loaf of bread baked in a tin; — distinguished from a cottage loaf.

tin'man (tĭn'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A maker of, or worker in or on, tin plate; a maker or manufacturer of tin or tin-plate vessels; a tinsmith; also, a dealer in tinware.

tin monoxide. Chem. = STANNOUS OXIDE.

Tin'ne, Tin'neh (tĭn'ĕ), n. pl. a The Indians of the northern division of the Athapascan stock. b = ATHAPASCAN.

tinned (tĭnd), adj. 1. Covered, coated, or plated, with tin.

2. Preserved in tins, or cans; canned. Chiefly Brit.

3. = CANNED, 2. Slang.

tin'nen (tĭn'ĕn), adj. Made or consisting of tin. Obs.

tin'ner (tĭn'ĕr), n. a A tin miner. b A tinman; tinsmith. c Chiefly Brit. A canner (sense 1).

tin'ner·y (-ĭ), n. Tin mine or works; tin mining.

tin'ni·fied (tĭn'ĭ·fīd), adj. Tinny; containing tin. Rare.

tin'ning (-ĭng), n. 1. The action or occupation of one who works with tin; specif., tin plating; tin repairing; tin mining; canning foodstuffs; etc.

2. A coating or lining of tin or tin foil.

tin·ni'tus (tĭ·nī'tŭs), n. [L., fr. tinnire to jingle.] Med. A ringing, whistling, or other sensation of noise, which is purely subjective; — called also ‖tin·ni'tus au'ri·um (ô'rĭ·ŭm).

tin'nock (tĭn'ŭk), n. The blue titmouse. See TITMOUSE. Local, Brit.

tin'ny (-ĭ), adj.; TIN'NI·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); TIN'NI·EST. 1. Of, abounding in, or yielding, tin.

2. Like or suggestive of tin; specif.: a Thin, hard, and brittle; metallic. b Bright; cheaply splendid. c Tasting of tin, as a canned foodstuff. d Slang. Rich; wealthy. — tin'ni·ly, adv. — tin'ni·ness, n.

tin'ny, n. Scot. a Dim. of TIN, 3. b A tinsmith.

Ti'no (tē'nō), n. The language of the Sambals. See AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES.

tin opener. A can opener. British.

---

tin'der·like', adj. See -LIKE.
tin'der·ous, adj. = TINDERISH. tine'grass', n. = 9th TINE. tinet. + TINNET.
tine'tare', n., tine'weed', n. = TINE, a vetch.
Tine'wald. Var. of TYNWALD. tin'ful, n.; pl. TINFULS. See -FUL.
Tin·gian' (tĕng·gyän'). Var. of TINGGIAN. tin'gi·ble (tĭn'jĭ·b'l), adj. [L. tingere to stain.] See -ABLE. — tin'gi·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.
Tin'gi·dae (tĭn'jĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of TINGITIDAE. — tin'gid (-jĭd), adj. & n. tin'gil. Tingle. Ref. Sp. tin'gil. Tingled. Ref. Sp.
tin'gle·tan'gle, n. = TINGTANG.
Tin·guian'. Var. of TINGGIAN. tin'guy (tĭng'gē). Var. of TINGI. ting'wall (tĭng'wôl). Var. of TINWALD.
Tin'gi·dae (tĭn'jĭ·dē). n. pl. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of TINGITIDAE. tin'nij·ly, adv. of TINY.
ti'ni·ness, n. See -NESS. tin'kal. Var. of TINCAL. tink'erd. Tinkered. Ref. Sp. tink'er·dom (tĭngk'ĕr·dŭm), n. See -DOM. tink'er·like', adj. See -LIKE.
tink'er·wise', adv. See -WISE. tin'kl. Tinkle. Ref. Sp. tin'kld. Tinkled. Ref. Sp.
tin'kler·man, n. Erro... for TRINKERMAN. tinkt. Tinked. Ref. Sp. tin'like', adj. & adv. See -LIKE. tin'net, n. = 2d TINSEL. Obs. exc. Dial.
Tin'ne·vel'ly sen'na (tĭn'ē·vĕl'ĭ·). [From Tinnevelly, Madras, India.] See 1st SENNA, 2.
Tin'ni (tĭn'ĭ), n. = TEMNE a. tin'ni·ent (tĭn'ĭ·ĕnt), adj. [L. tinniens, pres. part. of tinnire to ring, tinkle.] Emitting a clear sound. Obs.
tin'ni·ment, n. [L. tinnimentum.] Tinkling. Obs.
Ti·noc'er·as (tī·nŏs'ĕr·ăs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. teinein to stretch + keras horn.] Paleontol. Syn. of UINTATHERIUM.

---

tin ore. Cassiterite.

ti·ño′sa (tē-nyō′sä), n. [Sp. tiñoso scurfy, scabby.] A tropical black carangoid fish (Xurel lugubris) so poisonous that its sale is prohibited in some countries, as Cuba.

tin oxide. Chem. a Stannic oxide. b Stannous oxide.

tin′-pan′, tin′-pan′ny, adj. Emitting sounds such as those made by striking a tin pan; tinny; noisy; harsh; — often applied to musical instruments.

tin-pan alley. A street or quarter frequented by musicians, esp. those employed in theaters and dance halls; now, a district largely devoted to the interests of composers, publishers, etc., of popular music; figuratively, the body or realm of such composers, etc.

tin pest. See TIN, n., 1.

tin plague. See TIN, n., 1.

tin plate. Thin sheet iron or steel coated with tin.

tin′-plate′, adj. Of tin plate; as, tin-plate ware.

tin′-plate′, v. t.; -PLATED (-plāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -PLAT′ING. To plate or coat with tin. — tin plater.

tin-plate worker. A tinsmith.

tin pot. 1. A pot made of tin or tin plate.
2. In the tin-plating process, the vessel holding the molten tin.

tin′-pot′, adj. Very poor or paltry; wretched; inferior; third-rate. — tin′-pot′ty (tĭn′pŏt′ĭ), adj. — tin′-pot′ti·ness (-ĭ·nĕs; 119), n. All Slang.

tin′-pot′ter·y, n. Tinware.

tin pulp. Dyeing. A precipitate of tin ferrocyanide.

tin putty. = PUTTY POWDER.

tin pyrites. Stannite.

tin salt. Dyeing. See STANNOUS CHLORIDE.

tin′sel (tĭn′sĕl; -s'l), n. [ME. See TINE to lose.] a Obs. Loss; a being lost. b Scots Law. Forfeiture. See TINSEL OF THE FEU.

tin′sel, n. Brushwood and thorns for hedges. Obs.

tin′sel, n. [F. étincelle a spark, OF. estincelle. See STENCIL.] 1. Also tinsel cloth, satin, etc. A fabric originally of silk or silk and wool, with a glittering surface produced by the interweaving of gold, silver, or other bright metallic threads, or by overlaying with tinsel (sense 2 below). Hist.
2. A shining, metallic or metal-coated, material used in thin sheets, strips, threads, etc., to produce a glittering or sparkling appearance at small expense, as in needlework or in artificial flies.
3. Something having the glitter but not the worth of gold; false show; also, cheap, gaudy ornamentation.
4. The color deep stone.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tinsel-bright	tinsel-embroidered	tinsel-paned
tinsel-clad	tinselmaker	tinsel-slippered tinsel-covered	tinselmaking	tinselweaver tin′sel (tĭn′sĕl; -s'l), adj. 1. Interwoven with or overlaid with gold or the like; made of or covered with tinsel (see 3d TINSEL, 2); as, tinsel braid, fringe, or netting.

2. Cheaply glittering or gaudy; showily pretentious; specious; tawdry. "Tinsel trappings." Milton.

tin′sel, v. t.; TIN′SELED (-sĕld; -s'ld) or TIN′SELLED; TIN′SEL·ING or TIN′SEL·LING. To interweave, overlay, or adorn, with or as with tinsel; to give a deceptive brightness, glitter, or richness, to; to make tawdry or specious; — now chiefly in past part.

tin′sel·ly (tĭn′sĕl·ĭ; -s'l·ĭ), adj. Excessively tinseled. — adv. Gaudily.

tinsel of the feu. Forfeiture of the feu right for failure to pay feu duty for two entire years.

tin′sel·ry (tĭn′sĕl·rĭ; -s'l·rĭ), n. Tinseled material, ornamentation, or appearance; pretentious display.

tin shop. A shop in which tinware is made or repaired.

tins′man (tĭnz′măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A tinsmith.

tin′smith′ (tĭn′smĭth′), n. A worker in tin or tin plate; a maker of tinware; a tinner; tinman. Cf. WHITESMITH. — tin′smith′ing, n.

tin′smith′y (-ĭ), n. A tinsmith's workshop.

tin soldier. A toy soldier made of tin; also, Humorous, a member of the militia.

tin spirit. Dyeing. Any of various solutions of tin compounds used as mordants, called, according to use, cotton spirits, aniline spirit, red spirit, etc.

tin spot. A small hard white mass occurring sometimes in phosphor bronze, composed of an alloy of copper, tin, and phosphorus, differing from the body of the mixture and frequently so hard as to be untouched by a file. Tin spots are caused by excess of phosphorus.

tin′stone′ (tĭn′stōn′), n. The mineral cassiterite.

tin stream. Also tin streams. An alluvial deposit of tin ore.

tin streaming. The washing of tin from a tin stream. — tin streamer.

tin′stuff′ (tĭn′stŭf′), n. Crude tin ore. Cornwall.

tint (tĭnt), n. [For older tinct, fr. L. tinctus a dyeing, dipping, fr. tingere to dye; cf. It. tinta, tinto. See TINGE; cf. TAINT, TENT wine, TINTA.] 1. A slight coloring; a color, esp. a light color; specif., a slight chroming (see CHROME, v. t., 2). "Like a rose in vermeil tint." Keats.
2. A tinge; specif., a pale or faint tinge of any hue; as, white without a tint of yellow.
3. A color gradation with reference esp. to the amount of white in the mixture; as, to mix blue paint until it is several tints lighter. Cf. SHADE, 5 a.
4. Colors. A color, which, with respect to brilliance only, resembles white more closely than median gray resembles white; a color lighter, or having a higher brilliance, than median gray; — contrasted with shade. Cf. COLOR. See MEDIAN GRAY.
5. Engraving. A shaded effect produced by fine parallel lines close together.
6. Print. A light-colored surface serving as a background.
Syn. — See COLOR.

tint, v. t.; TINT′ED; TINT′ING. To impart or apply a tint to; to color slightly; to tinge. — v. i. To acquire a tint.

tint, n. [Origin obscure.] A taste; foretaste; a trace. Dial.

tint. Past tense & past part. of 4th TINE.

tin′ta (tēn′tä), n. [Pg., fem. of tinto, adj., tinged, fr. L. tinctus. See TINT.] A red wine. See MADEIRA, 2.

tin tack. a A tin-plated tack. b pl. = BRASS TACKS.

So now let us come down to tin tacks. G. B. Shaw.

tint′age (tĭnt′ĭj), n. Tinting; tints collectively.

Tin·tag′el (tĭn·tăj′ĕl), or Tin·tag′il (-ĭl), n. A castle, now ruined, on Tintagel Head on the coast of Cornwall, connected with the Arthurian legends.

tin′ta·marre′ (tĭn′tä·mär′), n. Also tin′ta·mar′. [F. tintamarre.] A great confused noise; uproar; din. Archaic.

tin′tar·ron′ (tēn′tär·rōn′), n. [Sp. tintarón.] Liquid indigo used for dyeing. Phil. I.

tint block. Engraving & Printing. A wood or metal plate, with or without design on its face, for printing a background, or for filling in a panel or other space.

tint′ed (tĭn′tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Colored; tinged; given tints or gradations of hue.

-tint′ed. Tinted, adj., used in combinations, as in:

amber-tinted	lilac-tinted	ruby-tinted azure-tinted	opal-tinted	salmon-tinted blue-tinted	pastel-tinted	soft-tinted dawn-tinted	rainbow-tinted	topaz-tinted gray-tinted	red-tinted	vermeil-tinted green-tinted	rose-tinted	warm-tinted lavender-tinted	rosy-tinted tint′er (tĭn′tĕr), n. 1. One who makes or applies tints.

2. Something that tints; specif., a piece of colored glass used with the slides in a magic lantern to give the projections a tinted effect.

Tin′tern Ab′bey (tĭn′tĕrn). 1. A ruin in Monmouthshire of a Cistercian monastery founded in 1131.
2. The short title of a reflective poem (1798) by Wordsworth, composed in the vicinity of this ruin.

tin′ter·nell (tĭn′tĕr·nĕl), n. [Cf. OF. tintenele a little bell.] A certain old tune used for dances, as the bergerette in which verses were recited. — tin′ter·nel′ling (-nĕl′ĭng), adj. Both Obs.

tin tetrachloride. Chem. = STANNIC CHLORIDE.

tin′tie (tĭn′tĭ), n. The common wren. Local, Eng.

tint′ing, n. 1. The action or process of one who tints.
2. Engraving. Act or manner of producing tint; also, the tint.
3. Photog. The dyeing of the gelatin layer of a transparency, lantern slide, motion-picture film, etc., uniformly with a dye solution.

tin′tin·nab′u·lant (tĭn′tĭ·năb′ū·lănt), adj. Tintinnabulary.

tin′tin·nab′u·lar′y (-lĕr′ĭ or, esp. Brit., -lĕr·ĭ), adj. Also tin′tin·nab′u·lar (-lĕr). [L. tintinnabulum a little bell, fr. tintinnare to ring, to jingle, fr. tinnire to jingle.] Of or pertaining to bells or their sounds; jingling; tinkling.

tin′tin·nab′u·late (-lāt), adj. Bell-shaped. Ruskin.

tin′tin·nab′u·late, v. i. & t. To make or cause to make a tintinnabulation.

tin′tin·nab′u·la′tion (-lā′shŭn), n. The ringing of bells; a tinkling or jingling sound, as of a bell or bells.

tin′tin·nab′u·lism (tĭn′tĭ·năb′ū·lĭz′m), n. Bell ringing. — tin′tin·nab′u·list (-lĭst), n. Both Rare.

tin′tin·nab′u·lous (-lŭs), adj. Tintinnabulary; bell-ringing.

tin′tin·nab′u·lum (-lŭm), n.; pl. -ULA (-lä). [L., a bell. See TINTINNABULARY.] 1. A bell; also, an ancient bell rattle.
2. A mechanical rhymester; also, mechanical rhyme or rhythm. Rare.

tint′ist, n. One skilled in tinting.

tint meter. = TINTOMETER.

tint·om′e·ter (tĭn·tŏm′ĕ·tĕr), n. [tint + -meter.] Physics. An apparatus for the determination of colors by comparison with arbitrary standards; a colorimeter. — tin′to·met′ric (tĭn′tō·mĕt′rĭk), adj. — tint·om′e·try (tĭn·tŏm′ĕ·trĭ), n.

tint photometer. A kind of chromometer.

tint tool. Engraving. A fine graver used for cutting the parallel lines which produce tints.

tint′y (tĭnt′ĭ), adj. Abounding in tints; tinted too much; having many inharmoniously combined tints, as a painting.

tin′type′ (tĭn′tīp′), n. Photog. A ferrotype.

tin′typ′er (-tīp′ĕr), n. One who takes tintypes.

tin′wald (tĭn′wôld), n. [Cf. ON. thingvöllr parliament field. Cf. THING.] 1. Meeting place of a council; — now only in place names. Scot.
2. [cap.] Var. of TYNWALD.

tin′ware′ (tĭn′wâr′), n. Articles, esp. utensils, made of tin plate.

tin wash. = TIN STREAM.

tin washing. = TIN STREAMING.

tin wedding. The tenth anniversary of a wedding or its celebration. See WEDDING, Note.

tin′-white′ (66), adj. Of the color of tin; bluish-white.

tin′work′ (tĭn′wûrk′), n. 1. Work in tin; something made of tin; that part of a structure composed of tin.
2. Usually pl. in form, but often construed as a sing. An establishment where tin is smelted, rolled, or otherwise worked.
— tin′work′ing (-wûr′kĭng), n. & adj. — tin′work′er (-kĕr)., n.

ti′ny (tī′nĭ), adj.; TI′NI·ER (-nĭ·ĕr); TI′NI·EST. [ME. tine, of uncert. origin.] Very small or diminutive; minute.

When that I was and a little tiny boy. Shak.

Syn. — See SMALL. Ant. — See ENORMOUS.

ti′ny, n.; pl. TINIES (-nĭz). A very young child; an infant.

Tiny Tim. 1. In Dickens's Christmas Carol, the diminutive crippled son of Bob Cratchit.
2. [not caps.] A yellow-flowered prairie herb (Thymophylla aurea), family Carduaceae.

tin′zen·ite (tĭn′zĕn·īt), n. Mineral. A silicate of manganese, aluminum, and calcium, $Mn_3O_4.Al_2O_3.2CaO.4SiO_2$, occurring in yellow, monoclinic crystals at Tinzen, Grisons, Switzerland.

-tion (-shŭn). [F., OF., or L.; OF. -cion (F. -tion), fr. L. -tio, -tionis, prop. -io, -ionis, added to a participial stem. Cf. -ION.] A compound suffix forming nouns from verbs and denoting action, state, and concrete instance or result, as in cau*tion,* decep*tion,* conten*tion.* Corresponding adjectives are formed in -tious (see -IOUS), as in cau*tious,* conten*tious.* Of similar origin and meaning are -sion and -xion, as in suspen*sion,* reflex*ion.*

Ti′on·on·ta′ti (tē′ŏn·ōn·tä′tē), Ti′on·non·ta′tes (-tās), n. pl. An Iroquoian tribe allied with the Huron. See HURON.

Ti′ou′ or Ti′ oux′ (tē′ōō′), n. An Indian of a tribe formerly living in Mississippi. See TONIKAN.

tip (tĭp), v. [ME. type, of uncert. origin. Cf. TIPPLE to tilt, TIPSY.] Transitive: 1. To overturn; overthrow; upset; to cause to lose balance, roll over, fall, or the like; as, to tip a boat or one out of a boat; to tip over a vase.
2. To turn from a vertical or horizontal position; to make incline or slant, as by raising an end or side; to tilt; cant; as, to tip a bed, a cart body, or a cask, on its side; also, to raise and tilt forward (one's hat) in salute.
3. To empty (a cart, a cask, etc.) by tilting; hence, Eng., to unload; to dump (rubbish).

Refuse tipped there from the barracks. Masefield.

4. Slang. a Obs. To intoxicate. b To drink (liquor) esp. at one draft; — usually with off.
5. Bowling. To knock down (a pin) otherwise than by direct impact of a bowl; as, the bowled kingpin tipped three other pins.
——, Intransitive: 1. To fall; to be or become upset or turned on its side; — often with over; as, the boat or the lamp tipped over.
2. To be or become tilted; to move from the vertical or horizontal; to slant; incline; as, the earth tips slightly; a plank tipped up; to tip back in one's chair.
Syn. — TIP, TILT, CANT, HEEL, CAREEN, LIST. To TIP is to cause to lean slightly; TILT commonly implies a greater disturbance of balance or equilibrium than tip; that which is CANTED is often thought of as askew; as, to tip a bucket, a table; "their chairs tilted back against the wall" (Hawthorne); "Her head canted a little to one side" (Mary Wilkins). HEEL, CAREEN, and LIST (intransitive only) are esp. nautical terms; as, the yacht careened before the wind; "[They] had made the vessel heel, and laid her on her side" (Cowper); to list to starboard. Cf. SLANT.

tip off, over, or over the perch. To die. Chiefly Dial.

tip the scales or scale, or the beam. To register weight on a scale or balance.

tip (tĭp), n. 1. The act, or an instance, of tipping; a tipped position; a tilt; as, give the board a tip.
2. A place for depositing something, as rubbish, material for embankments, etc., by tipping or dumping; a dump or dumping ground, as for refuse; also, the material deposited.
3. Eng. a An elevated runway along which railroad cars or wagons can be run to have their contents tipped or dumped at the end, as into a chute. b Such a runway together with a crane (a tip crane) which picks up a car or wagon and swings it bodily, so that its contents can be tipped or dumped as desired. Cf. TIPPLE.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tip car	tip sled	tip van tipcart	tip truck	tip wagon tip (tĭp), n. [ME.; akin to MLG., D., & Dan. tip, Sw. tipp, G. zipfel. Cf. TIP to tap, TIPPET, TIPPLE to drink.]

1. The pointed or rounded end or extremity of anything; an end; as, the tip of the finger, of a spear, or of a steeple; also, figuratively, Obs., crown; apex; summit; highest point.
2. An end piece or part; a piece, as a cap, nozzle, ferrule, or point, applied to the extreme end of anything; as, a tip for an umbrella, a gas burner, a pointer, etc.
3. The end of a feather or tail of fur used in trimming a hat, a scarf, or the like; specif., a small ostrich plume.
4. a = FOOTHOLD, 2. b = 1st CAP, 5 q.
5. A device for holding a part at an angle with the vertical.
6. Angling. a The smallest piece or section of a jointed fishing rod. b The terminal guide, on the end of the rod farthest from the butt.
7. Archery. a A protector, as a thimble of leather for the drawing fingers. b A pile. c A bow tip.
8. Bookbinding. Any part of a book treated as an insert and pasted to a text or other section.
9. Gilding. A thin, broad brush made of camel's hair, badger's hair, etc., used in laying gold leaf.
10. Hat Mfg. a The upper part of a hat crown. b A piece of stiffened lining pasted on the inside of a hat crown; also, any silk or satin material for lining a hat.
11. Meats. a The thin part of the loin, esp. of beef, next to the ribs. Hence, tip roast. b A slice cut from the tip.
12. Smithing. A short horseshoe reaching only half round the foot, worn to protect the crust, etc.
13. pl. Thread Mfg. Papers for covering the ends of spools.
14. Wool Trade. a The exposed end of the staple, or fiber, of wool on the sheep. b One of the areas or clumps formed by the clotted ends of the fibers and together giving to a sheep's wool its characteristic appearance, the form varying with the shape of the fibers, the action of the yolk, the folds of the skin, and climatic conditions; also, the characteristic formation of these collectively. Australia.
—at the tips of one's fingers. Known so thoroughly that one can make immediate use of the knowledge. —from tip to toe. From one end to another; in every single detail; as, fashionably dressed or closely examined from tip to toe. —on, or at, the tip of one's, or the, tongue. Just about to be uttered. Colloq.

-tip (-tĭp). A combining form of 3d TIP, as in: fingertip, silvertip, whitetip, withertip.

tip (tĭp), v. t.; TIPPED (tĭpt) or, Rare, TIPT; TIP′PING. 1. To form a tip or point upon; to cover or adorn the tip or end of; to apply or attach a tip to; as, a staff tipped with gold.
2. Bookbinding. To affix (an insert) by pasting it to the binding edge of a book or section; — often with in or into.
3. Fur trade. To change or improve the appearance of (fur) by staining the tips of the hair.
4. Hort. To remove the ends of (living shoots); as, to tip raspberries.

tip, v. [Cf. LG. tippen to tap, and TIP a point.] Transitive: 1. To strike lightly; to tap; touch.

Then tipt their forehead in a jeer,
As who should say, she wants it here. Swift.

2. In cricket, to hit (the ball) a glancing blow with the edge of the bat; to snick.
3. To give; variously, to pass, hand out, or send; to perform, sing, or act, for; to bestow or present, etc. Slang. "Now, Barbecue, tip us a stave." Stevenson.
4. To give a tip, or hint, to; to impart information, advice, or warning, to, secretly or stealthily; hence, with off, to warn of an approaching arrest, attack, etc., in time to permit escape or preparation. Colloq.
5. To make mention of in a tip or tips; — chiefly in passive; as, B is tipped for the next Prime Minister. Colloq.
6. To give a fee, or gratuity, to; as, to tip a servant.
——, Intransitive: 1. To move or proceed with or as with light steps; to trip; tiptoe.
2. To give a gratuity or gratuities; as, he tips handsomely.
3. To furnish tips, esp. tips on races or shares.

tip one the traveler. To impose upon one's credulity in the manner of a garrulous traveler. Old Slang.

tip one the wink. To give one a hint, suggestion, signal, or the like, by or as by a wink. Slang.

tip, n. [See TIP to strike slightly.] 1. A light touch or blow; a tap.
2. A bit of information (often expert or advance information) imparted privately for one's guidance, as in betting, or for following up, as a clue, hint, or warning; a pointer.
3. A small gift of money; esp., a fee or gratuity to a servant, a waiter, a porter, etc., for a service rendered or expected.

tip, n. Short for TIPPLE. Obs.

tip. Var. of TUP.

ti palm. = 2d TI a.

tip′-and-run′, n. A kind of cricket in which the batsman is required to run every time he touches a bowled ball with his bat.

tip′-and-run′, adj. 1. Cricket. That runs immediately on striking the ball.
2. Hence, characterized by bolting immediately upon striking; hence, consequence-shunning; — originally of World War raids.

tip'burn' (tĭp'bûrn'), n. [tip a point + burn, n.] Plant Pathol. A disease of the potato and other cultivated plants characterized by burning or browning of the tips and margins of the leaflets, caused by excessive heat and sunshine. Cf. HOPPERBURN.

tip cap. A peaked cap.

tip'cat' (-kăt'), n. A game in which a small piece of wood pointed at both ends, called a cat, is tipped, or struck lightly, with a stick or bat, so as to fly into the air and while there is struck by the same player so as to drive it as far as possible; also, sometimes, the cat.

tip cheese. A boy's game resembling tipcat.

tip crane. See 2d TIP, 3 b.

tip'–curled', adj. Curled at the tip or tips.

tipe (tīp), n. [See TIP to tilt.] A trap for catching mice, rabbits, etc. Dial. Eng.

tipe, n. = 3d TIP, 1. Obs.

tipe. Obs. var. and ref. sp. of TYPE.

tip'–fin'ger, v. i. To move, as in the dark, by feeling with the tips of one's fingers.

tip'ful (tĭp'fŏŏl; -fl), adj. Brimful.

tip'head' (-hĕd'), n. The head of a tip, or dump heap.

Tiph'i-a (tĭf'ĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tiphē a kind of insect.] Zool. A genus of shining black wasps, typifying a family, Ti·phi'i·dae (tĭ-fĭ'ĭ-dē), whose larvæ are parasitic in the larvæ of scarabaeid beetles.

ti'pi-ti' (tē'pē-tē'), n. [Pg., fr. Tupi typyti. See TAPIOCA.] An elastic plaited cylinder of jacitara-palm bark, used in expressing the juice from the root in making cassava. See JACITARA PALM.

tip'le (tĭp'l), n. [Sp., prop., soprano, treble.] Music. A kind of guitar with ten strings tuned in four groups.

tip'le. Var. of TIPPLE.

tip'man (tĭp'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A workman who tips receptacles of coal, slag, etc.

tip'most (-mōst), adj. Endmost.

tip'–off', n. A tipping off; esp., a timely warning of an approaching arrest, attack, or the like.

tip'–off', n. Basketball. = TAP-OFF.

ti·po'ni (tē-pō'nē), n. [Hopi.] Among the Hopi Indians, the symbolic standard of a chief, priest, or religious society, usually an ear of corn, decorated with feathers, turquoise, etc.

tip'o'ver fire extinguisher (tĭp'ō'vĕr). A fire extinguisher that is set in operation by inverting.

tip'pa·ble (tĭp'ȧ-b'l), adj. That can be tipped.

tip'pa–mal'ku (tĭp'ä-mäl'kōō), n. Among the Dieri of Australia, the household wife or husband. Cf. PIRRAURA.

Tip'pe·ca·noe' (tĭp'ē-kȧ-nōō'), n. A sobriquet of Gen. W. H. Harrison, afterward President of the United States, from his victory (1811) over the Indians near the Tippecanoe River.

tipped (tĭpt), adj. Having or provided with a tip, or end; pointed; headed.

-tipped (-tĭpt). Tipped, adj., used in combinations, as in:

buff-tipped	sulphur-tipped	thunder-tipped square-tipped	talon-tipped	white-tipped tip·pee' (tĭp-ē'), n. One receiving a tip.

tip'per (tĭp'ĕr), n. One who or that which tips, or tilts; a tipman.

tip'per, n. One who makes or puts on tips, or endpieces.

tip'per, n. One who gives tips.

tip'per (tĭp'ĕr), n. [After Thomas Tipper (d. 1785), brewer of Newhaven, Eng.] A kind of ale brewed with brackish water obtained from a particular well. Eng.

tip'pet (tĭp'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [ME. tipet, Tippet, prob. dim. of tip, tippe, a point; cf. G. zipfel. See TIP a point.] 1. A long hanging part or adjunct of the dress, as on a sleeve, cape, or hood; specif., a liripipe. Hist.

2. A scarf or scarflike garment made of fur, cloth, or the like, and usually having hanging ends.

3. Also hempen tippet. A hangman's rope. Old Slang.

4. Angling. a Scot. A length of gut or, formerly, of twisted hair, in a fishline, or used as part of a leader, or to fasten a fly to a dropper loop; a snell. b A barb of a feather, used as the tail of an artificial fly.

5. Ch. of Eng. A long black scarf, the distinguishing ecclesiastical vestment of the clergy in choir.

6. Zool. a A patagium (process of the prothorax) of an insect. b A ruff of feathers on a bird.

tip'pet, v. t. & i. To wear or furnish with a tippet.

tippet grebe. The crested grebe. See GREBE. Local, Eng.

tip'pet–scuf'fle, n. A wrangle among ecclesiastics. Milton.

tip'ping, n. 1. The action of one who or that which tips; an instance of such.

2. Music. = TONGUING, 2.

tip'ping, adj. Topping; ripping. Slang, Eng.

tip plant. A plant formed by the rooting in late summer, of the tip of a young cane, as in certain brambles.

tip'ple (tĭp''l), v. [Cf. Nor. tipla to tipple, to drip, E. dial. tip a draft of liquor, as v., to drink, G. dial. zipfeln to eat and drink in small parts, and E. TIP a point.] Transitive: 1. To sell (liquor) for drinking on the premises. Obs.

2. To drink, as liquor, frequently or by sips or small portions; hence, Poetic, to sip; suck, as a bee.

3. Now Rare. a To make intoxicated. b To spend, lose, etc., by tippling liquor.

——, Intransitive: 1. To sell liquor by the glass, etc. Obs.

2. To indulge in intoxicating drinks habitually and often, esp. too often, but in small quantities and usually without absolute drunkenness.

tip'ple, n. Liquor; drink; as, a popular tipple.

That mead was a drop of pretty tipple. Hardy.

tip'ple (tĭp''l), n. A tapering bundle of hay. — v. t. To bind (hay) in tipples." — tip'pler (-lĕr), n. All Dial. Eng.

tip'ple (tĭp''l), v. t. & i.; TIP'PLED (-'ld); TIP'PLING (-lĭng). [Freq. of TIP to tilt.] To cause to fall; to tip or throw over; to upset; overturn; tumble; to turn a somersault. Dial.

tip'ple, n. [From TIPPLE to tilt.] U. S. 1. An apparatus by which loaded cars are emptied by tipping, sometimes including an elevated runway (see 2d TIP, 3 a) or framework upon which the cars are run for tipping.

2. The place where such tipping is done; a tip; specif., a coal-screening plant.

tip'pler (-lĕr), n. 1. One who keeps a tippling house. Obs.

2. One who tipples, or habitually indulges in intoxicating liquors.

tip'pler, n. 1. One that tipples, or tumbles; a tipper.

2. Specif.: a A tipple, as for dumping coal. b The operator of a tipple; — called also tippleman. c A tumbler (lever) in a loom. d A stricker of flax.

3. One of an English breed of pigeons similar to the long-faced tumblers but unable to perform in flight. They are chocolate brown and white, mottled, or self-colored.

tip'pling house (tĭp'lĭng). A dramshop. Chiefly Hist.

tip'py (-ĭ), adj. Tiptop; smart; stylish. Slang, Brit.

tip'py, adj. Full of tips; also, Wool Trade, showing a tip defective because of grease or the like. — n. Tippy wool; also, a heavy yolky tip. Both Eng. & Australia.

tip'py, adj. Given to tipping; liable to tip; unsteady. Colloq.

tip·ree' (tĭp-rē'), n. sing. & pl. [Marathi tiprī.] See MEASURE, Table.

tip roast. See 3d TIP, 11.

tip roll. The list of servants to be tipped, or tips given.

tip'si·fy (tĭp'sĭ-fī), v. t. [tipsy + -fy.] To make tipsy. — tip'si·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ-kā'shŭn), n. — tip'si·fi'er (tĭp'sĭ-fī'ĕr), n. Colloq.

tip slide. A combined slide and tip, as for an awning frame.

tip speed. The velocity of the outer edge of a wheel or the like.

tip'staff' (tĭp'stȧf'), n.; pl. -STAVES (-stāvz'; -stȧvz'). 1. A staff tipped with metal.

2. An officer who bears a staff tipped with metal; a constable or bailiff; also, a court attendant.

tip'ster (tĭp'stĕr), n. [tip a hint + -ster.] One who gives or sells tips, or private information, esp. for gambling on the probable issue of events, as horse races, and for stock speculation. Colloq.

tip'stock' (-stŏk'), n. The detachable or movable fore part of a gunstock, lying beneath the barrel or barrels, and forming a hold for the left hand.

tip'sy (-sĭ), adj.; TIP'SI·ER (-sĭ-ĕr); TIP'SI·EST. [From TIP to lean, tilt.] 1. Being under the influence of strong drink; unsteady, staggering, or foolish, from the effects of liquor, but not absolutely drunk; fuddled.

2. Showing, producing, due to, or marked by, tipsiness.

Tipsy dance and jollity. Milton.

3. Tippy; unsteady; out of skew; as, a tipsy angle.

tip'sy, v. t. To tipsify.

tipsy cake. A cake made of pastry and almonds, or any dry cake, saturated with wine and served with custard sauce.

tipsy key. = BRÉGUET KEY.

tip'sy–top'sy, adj. Topsy-turvy. Rare.

tip table. A tip-top table.

tip'tail' (tĭp'tāl'), n. 1. The tip or end of the tail or buttocks.

2. The spotted sandpiper.

tip'–tap', n. A succession of tapping sounds. — v. i. To make a tip-tap.

tip'teer'er (tĭp'tēr'ĕr), n. A Christmas mummer. Local, Eng.

tip'tilt' (tĭp'tĭlt'), v. t. To tilt or turn up at the tip; — chiefly in past part.

tip'toe' (tĭp'tō'), n.; pl. -TOES (-tōz'). The tip, or end, of a toe; also, the ends of the toes collectively; — used esp. with reference to motion or posture on the balls of the toes; as, to walk on one's tiptoes.

— on tiptoe or a-tiptoe. Raised on the balls of the toes, esp., so as to see better; hence, roused; alert; as, to stand on tiptoe; a-tiptoe with expectation.

tip'toe', v. i. To go, step, or walk, on one's tiptoes; to step lightly, quietly, or stealthily; as, to tiptoe out of a room.

tip'toe' (tĭp'tō'), adj. 1. Standing or as if standing on tiptoe; hence, raised as high as possible; lifted up; exalted; also, alert; eager.

Above the tiptoe pinnacle of glory. Byron.

2. Walking or as if walking on tiptoes; cautious; stealthy. "With tiptoe step." Cowper.

tip'toe', adv. On, or as on, tiptoe; expectantly; eagerly; also, quietly; cautiously; warily.

Night's candles are burnt out, and jocund day Stands tiptoe on the misty mountain tops. Shak.

tip'toe'ing, adj. That is on tiptoe; moving on one's tiptoes; eager; alert; stealthy. — tip'toe'ing·ly, adv.

tip'top' (tĭp'tŏp'), n. [tip end + top.] 1. The very top; the highest or utmost point or degree; the best.

2. Usually pl. The highest class in society; the "nobs."

tip'top' (66), adj. At the top or highest point; of or characteristic of the highest station, quality, etc.; often, Colloq., prime; first-rate; in the best of health, spirits, etc. "Four tiptop voices." Gray. "That season had been tiptop." J. W. Riley. — tip'top' (66), adv. Colloq.

tip'top'er (tĭp'tŏp'ĕr), n. A fine or great gentleman or lady; a swell; a nob. Colloq.

tip'–top' ta'ble. A table whose top is hinged to tip to a vertical position; — called also tip table and tilt-top table.

Tip-top Table, 18th cent.

Tip'u·la (tĭp'ū-lȧ), n. [L. tip(p)ula water spider.] Zool. a The type genus of a family, Ti·pu'li·dae (tĭ-pū'lĭ-dē), constituted by the crane flies. b [not cap.] A fly of the genus Tipula. — tip'u·lid (tĭp'ū-lĭd), adj. & n.

Tip'u·la'ri·a (tĭp'ū-lā'rĭ-ȧ; 79), n. [NL. See TIPULA.] Bot. A genus of terrestrial orchids consisting of two species, one of the Himalayan region, the other, T. discolor, the crane-fly orchis, of the eastern United States. They are delicate herbs with solid bulbs, producing in late summer a racemose scape of greenish-purple flowers, and in autumn a single ovate purple leaf which persists through winter.

Tip'u·loi'de·a (-loi'dē-ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TIPULA; -OIDEA.] Zool. A superfamily of Nematocera, including the Tipulidae and their allies. — tip'u·loid (tĭp'ū-loid), adj. & n.

tip'up' (tĭp'ŭp'), n. 1. The spotted sandpiper.

2. Angling. A tilt.

tip'–up', adj. Constructed so as to permit being tipped up or out of the way; as, a tip-up cart or seat (in a theater).

Tip'u·ra (tĭp'ōō-rä) n. One of the natives of the Tripura state, Bengal; also, their language. See INDO-CHINESE LANGUAGES, Table.

tip worm. The larva of a gallfly (Cecidomyia vaccinis) that infests the tips of cranberry vines. Local, U. S.

‖ti'queur' (tē'kŭr'), n. [F.] Med. One subject to a tic or tics.

ti'rade (tĭ'rād; tĭ'rād'; now rarely tĭ-rād'; 277), n. [F., fr. It. tirata volley, drawing, fr. tirare to draw, to fire; akin to F. tirer. Cf. RETIRE, TIRE to pull.] 1. A long-drawn speech or declamatory passage, esp. one marked by intemperate and, usually, vituperative or harshly censorious language; a prolonged fire of invective.

2. Music. A rapid run connecting two melody notes.

3. Rhet. & Pros. A rhetorical passage or a strophe (sense 2 b) forming a distinct unit because of its single theme, single rhyme, or the like. Specif.: a = LAISSE. b A long speech in a play; — used esp. of French classic drama.

Syn. — Philippic, screed. Ant. — Eulogy, panegyric.

ti·rade' (tĭ-rād'; tĭ'rād), v. i. To make a tirade. Rare.

‖ti'rail'leur' (tē'rȧ'yŭr'; E. tĭr'ȧ-lûr'), n. [F., fr. tirailler to skirmish, wrest, fr. tirer to draw, to fire.] Mil. In the French army, an infantry skirmisher. The name tirailleurs is applied to various bodies of infantry, including all those in the colonial forces composed of native soldiers.

tir'a·lee (tĭr'ȧ-lē), n. [Imitative.] A succession of notes, as those in a bugle call, or in a bird's trill.

‖ti'rasse' (tē'räs'), n. [F.] Music. A pedal coupler.

tire (tīr), v. [AS. tȳrian, tīerian, tīorian, tēorian, of unknown origin.] Transitive: 1. To exhaust or considerably decrease the physical strength of, as by exertion; to weary; fatigue; as, she was tired by the walk; eyes tired with reading.

2. To exhaust or wear out the patience, attention, interest, or liking, of; to satiate to the point of weariness or aversion; to bore utterly; as, tired of an old toy or of fruitless speculation. "The plain truth is that you tire me. You talk and talk." James Branch Cabell.

3. To wear out; to use up; now, esp., to overwork, as rubber or soil.

——, Intransitive: To become weary; to have the strength fail or decrease; to have the patience reduced or exhausted; as, a feeble person soon tires.

Syn. — TIRE, FATIGUE, EXHAUST, JADE, FAG. TIRE is the general and ordinary word; FATIGUE is stronger, and implies great lassitude or weariness; to EXHAUST is to fatigue utterly; as, "Music that gentlier on the spirit lies than tired eyelids upon tired eyes" (Tennyson); "It tires me to death to read how many ways the warrior is like the moon, or the sun, or a rock, or a lion, or the ocean" (Walpole); "She flung herself upon a sofa, protesting . . . that she was fatigued to death" (Mme. d'Arblay); "[My head] is so fatigued by breakfast time . . . I am utterly incapable of sitting down to my desk again" (Cowper); "I am so exhausted as not to be able to write" (id.). To JADE is to wear out; it often implies dullness or satiety; FAG is more familiar and colloq.; as, "jaded and restless from the dissipations of the day" (Smollett); "Each spurs his jaded Pegasus apace" (Byron); "To the jaded . . . eye it is all dead and common, . . . flatness and disgust" (W. James); "I worked . . . at correcting manuscript, which fags me excessively" (Scott). Cf. IRKSOME.

Ant. — Rest, refresh, restore.

tire down. To pursue (game) until it is exhausted.

tire out or to death. To weary or fatigue utterly.

tire (tīr), n. 1. Tiredness; fatigue; weariness. Chiefly Dial.

2. pl. Veter. = MILK SICKNESS.

tire, v. t. & i. [F. tirer to draw or pull. Cf. TIRADE.] Obs. a To seize, pull, or tear, as a hawk preying; to gnaw or prey (upon).

And like a harpy tires on my life. Marlowe.

b To be intent (upon); to labor as in thought.

Upon that were my thoughts tiring. Shak.

tire, n. Obs. a A tiring, or gnawing piece. b In a loom, a pulling card.

tire (tīr), v. t.; TIRED (tīrd); TIR'ING (tīr'ĭng). [Aphetic for ATTIRE.] To attire; to dress, as the hair; also, Dial., to decorate (a church, etc.). Archaic.

[Jezebel] painted her face, and tired her head. 2 Kings ix. 30.

tire (tīr), n. [Aphetic for attire; ME. tir, atir. See ATTIRE.] 1. Furniture; accouterment; equipment; enginery. Obs.

2. Attire; apparel; dress; vesture; adornment. Archaic. "Having rich tire about you." Shak.

3. A lady's headdress. Cf. TIARA. Archaic.

On her head she wore a tire of gold. Spenser.

4. A tier, or pinafore.

tire, n. [So called as being an attire or covering for the wheel.] 1. The strakes of a wheel, collectively.

2. A hoop or band forming the tread of a vehicle wheel. The iron or steel tire shrunk on the fellies of a wagon or cart wheel serves also to bind these together. The pneumatic tire (commonly spelled tyre in British usage) for a bicycle or automobile serves primarily to reduce vibration or shock.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tire becker	tire filler	tire pump tire bender	tire-filling, adj.	tire remover tire-bending, adj.	tire finisher	tire repairman tire borer	tire fitter	tire retreader tire buffer	tire heater	tire roller tire case	tire-heating, adj.	tire setter tire changer	tire holder	tire shaper tire-changing, adj.	tire-inflating, adj.	tire shoe tire chipper	tire iron	tire shrinker tire clamp	tire lacing	tiresmith tire compressor	tire lock	tire stamper tire cooler	tiremaker	tire tool tire core	tiremaking	tire tread tire cover	tire mold	tire tube tire curler	tire molder	tire turner tire dresser	tire preservative	tire upsetter tire examiner	tire prier	tire valve tire fastener	tire protector	tire vulcanizer tire, v. t. [From 7th TIRE.] To put a tire on; to provide with tires; as, to tire a wheel or wagon.

tire, n. [F. tir.] A discharge (of cannon). Obs.

tire carrier. A bracket or rack at the rear or side of an automotive vehicle for carrying a spare tire.

tire cement. Any cement for repairing a tire or for attaching a patch to a tire or tube.

tire chain. A kind of chain designed to be fastened over the tread of a tire in order to give a firmer grip on a road, to prevent skidding or slipping, etc.

tired (tīrd), adj.; TIRED'ER (tīrd'ĕr); TIRED'EST (-ĕst; -ĭst; 119). Weary; fatigued; exhausted of strength, vitality, fertility, patience, or the like; as, tired by study, of inaction, or from years of labor; a tired child, soil, or shrub. — tired'ly, adv. — tired'ness, n.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tired-armed	tired-faced	tired-looking tired-eyed	tired-headed	tired-winged tired (tīrd), n. Tiredness. Rare.

tired, adj. Equipped or fitted out with tires; esp., of an automobile, provided with pneumatic tires.

---

tip'-eared', adj. See -EARED. tipe'write'. Typewrite. Ref. Sp.
Tiph'aah (tĭf'ȧä). Bib. ti'pi (tē'pē). Var. of TEPEE. tip'i·cal. Typical. Ref. Sp.
tip'l. Tipple. Ref. Sp. tip'ld. Tippled. Ref. Sp. tip'ler. Var. of TIPPLER. tip'less, adj. See -LESS. tip'let, n. Dim. of 3d TIP. tip'pence (tĭp'ĕns). Scot. var. of TWOPENCE. tip'pen·ny (-ĕn·ĭ). Var. of TWOPENNY. Scot. tip'per-off', n. Hat Mfg. = SHAPER, 2. tip'ple-man, n. See 2d TIPPLER, 2. tip'ply, adj. = 3d TIPPY. Colloq. tip'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. tip'si·ly, adv. of TIPSY. tip'si·ness, n. See -NESS. tip'stal'. Tipstaff. Ref. Sp.
tip'staves', n., pl. of TIPSTAFF. tipt. Tipped. Ref. Sp. tip'to'. Tiptoe. Ref. Sp. tip'top'ness, n. See -NESS. tip'top'pish, adj. See -ISH. — tip'top'pish·ness, n. tip'top'some, adj. See -SOME.
Ti'ras (tī'rȧs). Bib.
Ti'rath·ites (tĭ'rȧth·ĭts), n. pl. Bib. tircel. † TERCEL.
tire. † TEAR; TEER; TIER, a row; TYRE.

-tired (-tīrd). A combining form of 3d tired, as in:

cushion-tired	rubber-tired	solid-tired iron-tired	small-tired	steel-tired pneumatic-tired	smooth-tired tire gauge. A gauge for measuring the air pressure in a tire.

tire'house' (tīr'hous'), n. A wardrobe or dressing room (tiring room) in a theater. Hist.

tire'less (tīr'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Untiring; unwearying; as, a tireless worker; also, rarely, unwearied. — tire'less·ly, adv. — tire'less·ness, n.

Syn. — See INDEFATIGABLE.

tire'less, adj. Without a tire or tires.

tire'maid' (tīr'mād'), n. A tirewoman.

tire'man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A wardrobe man and valet, esp. in a theater; also, a tailor. Hist.

tire'man' (-măn'), n. A manufacturer of, or dealer in, tires.

tire'-mile', n. A unit of measure denoting one mile traveled by one tire.

tire press. A press for mounting or demounting solid tires. — tire pressman.

tir'er (tīr'ĕr), n. An attirer. Rare.

tire rack. A tire carrier.

Ti·re'si·as (tī-rē'sĭ-ăs; -shĭ-ăs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Teiresias.] Gr. Myth. A blind Theban soothsayer. According to the commonest account, he was made blind by Pallas Athena, whom he saw in the bath. Later, unable to restore his sight, she gave him knowledge of future events and of the language of birds. He prophesies to Odysseus in the Odyssey, and has an important role in two great tragedies, the Oedipus Tyrannus and the Antigone of Sophocles.

tire'some (tīr'sŭm), adj. Fitted or tending to tire or bore; wearisome; tedious; also, annoying; irritating; as, a tiresome journey, discourse, person; tiresome delays. — tire'some·ly, adv. — tire'some·ness, n.

Syn. and Ant. — See IRKSOME.

tire tape. Adhesive tape for binding a tire.

tire'-val'iant, n. Some special kind of headdress. Shak.

tire'wom'an (tīr'wŏŏm'ăn), n.; pl. -WOMEN (-wĭm'ĕn; -ĭn; 119). A lady's maid; esp., in a theater, one who serves as wardrobe woman and lady's maid. Archaic.

ti·ri'ba (tē-rē'bä), n. [Pg., fr. Tupi tiribá.] Any Brazilian parrot of the genus Pyrrhura.

tir'ing (tīr'ĭng), n. The act of one that tires, or pulls; hence, a piece of tough flesh given a hawk for exercise of its back and neck muscles. Obs. exc. Hist.

tir'ing, n. Archaic. a An attiring, or dressing; a making up, as for the stage. b Attire; also, a tire, or headdress.

tir'ing i'rons. Also tar'ry·ing i'rons. A puzzle game the object of which is to remove a series of rings from two or more metal loops which have but one opening and are intricately interlinked.

tiring room. [For attiring room.] A dressing room, esp. one in a theater. Archaic.

tirl (tûrl), v. t. & i. [Var. of THIRL, THRILL.] To pluck a string; to make vibrate by plucking. Scot.

tirl, n. Scot. A thrill or vibration.

tirl, v. t. [Cf. TIRR.] To strip the covering from; to uncover; unroof; divest; also, to strip off (a covering of any kind). Chiefly Scot.

tirl, v. [Var. of TRILL to turn.] Chiefly Scot. Transitive: 1. To cause to revolve; to twirl; whirl; turn rapidly.

2. To rattle (a latch, pin, etc.) by moving rapidly up and down.

—, Intransitive: 1. To twirl or twist; to whirl in falling or flying.

2. To make a rattling or clattering sound with or as with the thirling pin (which see); hence, to knock or tap repeatedly; to patter.

tirl, n. Chiefly Scot. a A bout or turn, as at drinking or dancing. b Something which revolves, as a turnstile or wheel. c A tirling of a pin; also, a tap or rap; a rattle.

tirl. Scot. var. of THIRL.

tir'lie—wir'lie, tir'ly—whir'ly (tûr'lĭ·wûr'lĭ), n. [See TIRL; WHIRL.] A whirligig or the like; an ornament consisting of a number of intervolved lines; a flourish or the like; hence, also, an intricate contrivance. — adj. Intricate; intervolved. — adv. Like a whirligig. All Scot.

tirl'ing pin. A device for knocking, variously identified as: a The pin, or latch of a door, which was shaken up and down. b Archaic, Scot. A risp and ring. See RISP, n., 2.

tir'ma (tûr'mä), n. The oyster catcher. Hebrides I.

Tir' na nOg' (tēr' nä nōg'). [Ir. tīr na n-ōg the land of the young.] One of many names for the Elysium of the ancient Irish.

tir'o·cin'i·um (tĭr'ō·sĭn'ĭ·ŭm; tī'rō-), n.; pl. -IA (-ä). [L.] 1. A young soldier's first service or campaign; hence, novitiate; first trial or experience.

2. A band of recruits or novices. Rare.

Tir'o·lese' (tĭr'ō·lēz'; -lēs'), adj. Also Tyr'o·lese'. Of or pertaining to Tirol or its inhabitants. — n. sing. & pl. One of the people of Tirol.

T iron. a A rod with a short crosspiece at the end, used as a hook. b Iron in T bars, used in structures.

Ti·ro'ni·an (tī-rō'nĭ·ăn), adj. [L. Tironianus, fr. Marcus Tullius Tiro, the learned freedman and amanuensis of Cicero.] Of or pertaining to Tiro; designating, or pertaining to, a system of shorthand said to have been introduced by him into ancient Rome.

tirr (tĭr; tûr), v. t. & i. [Cf. TIRVE.] Scot. & Dial. Eng. To tear off; strip; uncover. Specif.: a To unroof. b Obs. To undress. c In quarrying, to remove the surface soil (from).

tir'ra·lir'ra (tĭr'ä·lĭr'ä), n. [Imitative.] An onomatopoeic representation of the note of a lark, robin, or of a like sound.

tir'ret (tĭr'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [See TERRET.] Her. A manacle or swivel depicted as a charge.

tir'rit (tĭr'ĭt), n. A word used by Mrs. Quickly, hostess in Shakespeare's Henry IV, perhaps a blunder for terror.

tir'ri·vee or -vie (tûr'ĭ·vē), n. A tantrum; commotion. Scot.

tirr'lie (tûr'lĭ), n. The kittiwake. Scot.

tirr'wirr' (tûr'wûr'), n. & v. Wrangle. Scot.

Tir·sha'tha (tûr·shä'thä; tûr'shä·thä), n. [Heb. tirshāthā', fr Av. tarshta feared, revered; akin to L. terrere to frighten. See TERROR.] Bib. A title of the Persian governor of Jerusalem, applied to Nehemiah and other officials.

Ti'ru·ral' (tē'rōō·rĭ'), n. sing. & pl. One of a peaceable pagan Malay people on the west coast of Mindanao; also, their language.

tirve (tûrv), v. t. [Cf. OHG. zerben to turn over. Cf. TERVE.] To strip; uncover; unroof; etc. Obs. exc. Scot.

tir'wit (tûr'wĭt), n. [Var. of TEWIT.] Lapwing. Local, Eng.

'tis (tĭz; 71). A contraction of it is.

ti·sane' (tē·zăn'; F. tē'zän'), n. [F.] 1. An infusion originally of barley, but now, commonly, of dried leaves, flowers, etc., such as linden blossoms, camomile, or cherry stems, used as a beverage or for mildly medicinal effects; a ptisan.

2. Pharm. A decoction, or medicinal tea; — used in French pharmacy.

ti·sar' (tē·zär'), n. [F. tisard, tisart, door of a furnace.] Glass Mfg. A square fireplace or furnace to heat the annealing arch.

Tish'i·ya (tĭsh'ĭ·yä), n. [Skr. tiṣya.] Sirius.

Tish'ri (tĭsh'rē), n. [LHeb., fr. Aram. Tishri, fr. Assyr.-Bab. Tashrītu the seventh month (beginning the second part of the year).] See JEWISH CALENDAR.

Ti·siph'o·ne (tĭ·sĭf'ō·nē), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tisiphonē avenger of murder.] One of the Erinyes.

tis'su·al (tĭsh'ū·ăl; -ōō·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to tissue.

tis'sue (tĭsh'ū; -ōō; 277), n. [OF. tissu, fr. tissu, past part. of tistre (F. tître, tisser) to weave, fr. L. texere. See TEXT.] 1. A woven fabric; specif.: a Archaic. A rich cloth interwoven with gold or silver threads, embossed with figures, or the like. b A sheer fabric, usually of silk; a fine gauze.

2. A ribbon, a girdle, or a band to hold a helmet. Obs.

> His helm to-hewen was in twenty places,
> That by a tissue heng, his bak bihinde. Chaucer.

3. An interwoven or interrelated number of things; a meshwork; a web; as, a tissue of lies.

4. Biol. An aggregate of cells (commonly of one or more particular kind or kinds), together with their intercellular substance, forming one of the structural materials out of which the body of a plant or an animal is built up. In animals, the tissues are numerous and intricately combined and may be classed under four great heads: (1) epithelial, including glands, the investing layers of cavities, etc.; (2) nervous, including sensory cells and centers of coordination; (3) muscular; (4) connective. (See EPITHELIUM; NERVE, 2; MUSCLE, 1; CONNECTIVE TISSUE.) In higher plants, all tissues were formerly grouped as parenchyma (fundamental tissues) and prosenchyma (those specialized for support or conduction); now, usually, the simple tissues are classed as parenchyma, sclerenchyma, and collenchyma (see these terms), while the complex tissues are regarded as combinations or modifications of these three, with the exception of the highly specialized conductive tissues (xylem and phloem) which form a uniform and continuous vascular system throughout the plant.

5. Paper Mfg. Short for TISSUE PAPER.

6. Photog. Carbon tissue. See CARBON PROCESS.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

tissue-building	tissue-destroying	tissue-producing tissue-changing	tissue-forming	tissue-secreting tis'sue, adj. Of or like tissue; gauzelike; also, sheer; as, tissue gingham.

tis'sue (tĭsh'ū; -ōō), v. t.; TIS'SUED (-ūd; -ōōd); TIS'SU·ING (-ū·ĭng; -ōō·ĭng). To weave or interweave; to embroider by or as by interweaving; to make into a tissue. Now Rare.

> Covered with cloth of gold tissued upon blue. Bacon.

tissue culture. Biol. The act, process, or science of making body tissue grow in a culture medium outside of the body; also, a culture of tissue, as fibrous tissue or epithelium. See CULTURE, n., 7.

tis'sued (tĭsh'ūd; -ōōd), adj. Woven in the manner of a tissue (senses 1 a & b); having the splendor or delicacy of tissue; also, Rare, clothed in tissue; wrapped in tissue paper.

> "Tissued flowers." Cowper.

tissue fibrinogen. Biochem. A substance, formed in the tissues of the body, that unites with the fibrinogen of blood to give fibrin, as in the clotting of blood.

tissue fluid. Physiol. The fluid normally present in the tissues, between cells, fibers, etc.

tissue paper. Gauzelike paper, used to protect engravings in books, to wrap up delicate articles, etc.

tis'sue·y (tĭsh'ū·ĭ; -ōō·ĭ), adj. Resembling tissue.

tiss'wood' (tĭs'wŏŏd'), n. a Tenn. A snowdrop tree (Halesia monticola); also, its wood. b U. S. The wood of the red bay. c The wood of the sandarac tree of Morocco.

tis'ty—tos'ty (tĭs'tĭ·tŏs'tĭ), n. A ball of cowslips. Dial. Eng.

tis·win' (tĭs·wēn'), n. [Sp. tecuín, tejuino. See TEXQUINO.] A fermented beverage made by the Apache Indians.

tit (tĭt), n. & v. [ME. titten, v., of uncert. origin.] Pull; tug; jerk; twitch. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

tit (tĭt), n. [Prob. orig. a child's word for small animal or thing; cf. ON. titlingr small bird, Icel. tittr titmouse, small plug or pin, Nor. dial. tita small object. Cf. TIT titmouse, TITBIT, TITLARK, TITLING, TITMOUSE, TOMTIT.] 1. A small or inferior horse; a nag; jade; often, a good little or young horse.

2. A girl or woman; — often in disrespect. Slang.

tit (tĭt), n. [From TITMOUSE.] A titmouse; also, by extension, esp. with qualifying terms, any of various other small birds, as hill tit, thrush tit, wren tit.

tit, n. A tap; a return blow; — chiefly in tit for tat.

tit, v. t. & i. Obs. exc. Dial. a To tap. b To twit.

tit, n. [AS. tit, titt. See TEAT.] 1. A teat; a pap or nipple.

2. Mach. a = TEAT, n., 2. b In nail making, the part that ejects the finished nails.

tit. Var. of TITE, adv. Obs. exc. Dial.

tit, past tense of TEE, draw. Obs.

Ti'tan (tī'tăn; 91), n. [L., fr. Gr. Titan.] 1. Gr. Myth. One of the primeval deities, children of Uranus and Gaea. The Titans include: Cronus and Rhea, from whom were descended Zeus and the Olympians; Iapetus and Themis and their descendants, Atlas, Epimetheus, Prometheus, Dione, Maia; Coeus and Phoebe and their daughter Leto; Oceanus and Tethys; Hyperion and Theia; Creus and Mnemosyne. The great event in Titan history was the Ti'tan·om'a·chy (-ŏm'ä·kĭ), or war with the Olympian gods in Thessaly, which resulted in the overthrow of the Titan dynasty. Cf. CRONUS, PROMETHEUS.

> The Titans were the earliest children of the earth, . . . a massive dim-featured race, but with an earthly rather than celestial grandeur, embodiments of mighty force dull to beauty, intelligence, light.
> G. E. Woodberry.

2. The sun personified; — from Helios the sun-god's being called Titan by Latin poets as the son of the Titan Hyperion.

> Didst thou never see Titan kiss a dish of butter? Shak.

3. [not cap.] One gigantic in size or power; a titanic being or, pl., race.

4. Astron. See SATURN, 2.

5. [not cap.] Short for TITAN CRANE.

Ti'tan (tī'tăn), adj. [often not cap.] Titanic.

titan-. = TITANO-.

ti'tan·ate (tī'tăn·āt), n. Chem. A salt or ester of titanic acid.

ti'tan·au'gite (-ô'jĭt), n. A basaltic augite, rich in titanium and, usually, alkali.

titan crane. Mach. A massive crane with an overhanging counterbalanced arm carrying a traveler and lifting crab, the whole supported by a carriage mounted on track rails. It is used especially for lifting and setting in place heavy masonry blocks for piers, breakwaters, etc. Cf. GOLIATH CRANE.

Titan Crane.

Ti'tan·esque' (tī'tăn·ĕsk'), adj. [Titan + -esque.] Characteristic of the Titans; Titanic.

Ti·ta'ni·a (tĭ·tā'nĭ·ä; tī-), n. 1. The wife of Oberon, and queen of the fairies, in Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream. The name is taken from Ovid (Metam. III. 173), who uses it for Diana.

2. Astron. See URANUS.

ti·ta'ni·a (tī·tā'nĭ·ä; tĭ-), n. Chem. = TITANIUM DIOXIDE.

Ti·tan'ic (tī·tăn'ĭk), adj. [Gr. Titanikos.] 1. Of, pertaining to, characteristic of, or like, the Titans; as, Titanic beings.

2. [usually not cap.] a Of enormous magnitude; gigantic; colossal; as, titanic ships; the titanic figures of Michael Angelo. b Manifesting or exerting more than human force or power; marked by tremendous brute force; often, earth-shaking; as, titanic wars or efforts. c Characterized by Titanism.

Ti·tan'ic (tī·tăn'ĭk), n. See SHIP, Table.

ti·tan'ic (tĭ·tăn'ĭk; tī-), adj. Chem. & Mineral. Of, pertaining to, or containing, titanium; specif., designating compounds of titanium in which it has a higher valence (four) as contrasted with titanous compounds.

titanic acid. Chem. a Any of various feeble acids derived from titanium dioxide. Specif.: (1) Normal titanic or orthotitanic acid, $Ti(OH)_4$, (titanic hydroxide), obtained as a white amorphous powder. (2) The acid H_2TiO_3, from which the ordinary titanates are derived. b Titanium dioxide.

Ti·tan'i·cal (tī·tăn'ĭ·kăl), adj. Titanic. Rare.

Ti·tan'i·cal·ly, adv. [often not cap.] of TITANIC, TITANICAL.

titanic anhydride. = TITANIUM DIOXIDE.

Ti'tan·ich'thys (tī'tăn·ĭk'thĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. Titan a Titan + -ichthys.] Paleontol. A genus of very large toothless archrodiran fishes of the Upper Devonian of Ohio. It constitutes a family, Ti'tan·ich·thy'i·dae (-ĭk·thĭ'ĭ·dē).

titanic iron ore. Ilmenite.

titanic oxide. Chem. = TITANIUM DIOXIDE.

ti'tan·if'er·ous (tī'tăn·ĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [titanium + -ferous.] Containing or affording titanium.

titaniferous iron ore. Ilmenite.

Ti'tan·ism (tī'tăn·ĭz'ĭm), n. The quality or spirit of a Titan, esp. that of defiance and headlong revolt against whatever limits or restrains, esp. against existing social or artistic conventions; specif., a marked tendency to expansiveness in expression, resulting in grandiosity, freedom from all restraint, etc. "The Titanism of every kind that has marked our modern emancipation." Irving Babbitt.

ti'tan·ite (tī'tăn·īt), n. [titanium + -ite.] Mineral. A monoclinic mineral, essentially calcium silicotitanate, $CaTiSiO_5$, commonly in wedge-shaped or prismatic crystals or compact masses and grains, as a constituent of igneous rocks. Specif., the brown to black variety, as disting. from sphene, which is yellow, greenish, etc. H., 5–5.5. Sp. gr., 3.4–3.56. Titanite is used to some extent as a gem. — ti'tan·it'ic (-ĭt'ĭk), adj.

ti·ta'ni·um (tĭ·tā'nĭ·ŭm; tĭ-), n. [NL., fr. L. Titani or Titanes, fr. Gr. Titanes, the sons of earth.] Chem. A metallic element white when pure, found (in combination) in many minerals, its chief ores being ilmenite and rutile. Symbol, Ti; at. no., 22; at. wt., 47.90; sp. gr., 4.5; melting point, 1800° C. (3272° F.). Titanium was discovered in 1789 by Gregor. It is widely distributed in small amounts, as in clays. The metal finds use as a constituent of certain alloys, and compounds of it are used as pigments, mordants, dyes, arc electrodes, etc. Titanium is chiefly quadrivalent and resembles silicon in some respects.

titanium dioxide. Chem. The compound TiO_2, occurring in three different crystal forms as rutile, octahedrite, and brookite, and also prepared as a white amorphous powder. It is used as a pigment and mordant.

titanium white. A white pigment consisting of titanium dioxide with some barium sulphate or similar material. It has high covering power and is resistant to light and fumes.

Titano-. A combining form, Greek Titano-, meaning Titan, used to denote titanic, as in Ti'tan·ol'a·ter, Ti'tan·ol'a·try, Ti'tan·o·ma'chi·a, Ti'tan·om'a·chy.

ti'tan·o- (tī'tăn·ō-; tī·tā'nō-), titan-. Chem. A combining form for titanium, used in designating certain complex compounds of titanium, as in ti'tan·o·co·lum'bate, ti'tan·o·cy'a·nide, ti'tan·o·flu'o·ride, ti'tan·o·mag'ne·tite, ti'tan·o·ni'o·bate, etc. — ti'tan·o (-ō; -nō), adj.

Ti'tan·o·sau'rus (tī'tăn·ō·sô'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. Titano- + -saurus.] Paleontol. A genus of South American Cretaceous dinosaurs. — ti'tan·o·saur' (tī'tăn·ō·sôr'), n.

tire'dom, n. See -DOM.

tire'ling, adj. Tired. Obs.

tire'ment, n. Adornment; attire. Obs.

tire'room', n. = TIRING ROOM.

tire'sol, n. A sunshade. Obs.

tire'some-weed', n. = KELGRASS a.

tire'sum. Tiresome. Ref. Sp.

Tir'ha·kah (tûr'hä·kä; tĭr·hä'-). Bib.

Tir'ha·nah (tûr'hä·nä; tĭr·hä'-nä). Bib.

Tir·hu'ti·a (tĭr·hōō'tĭ·ä), n. = MAITHILI.

Tir'ĭ·a (tĭr'ĭ·ä; tī'rĭ·ä). Bib.

tiring house. = TIREHOUSE.

tir'ing·ly, adv. of tiring, pres. part. of 1st TIRE, v.

tiring maid. = TIREMAID.

tiring woman. = TIREWOMAN.

tir'i·vee. Var. of TIRRIVEE.

tir'ly-toy', n. = TIRLIE-WIRLIE.

tir'o. Var. of TYRO.

ti·roc'i·ny, n. = TIROCINIUM. Obs.

tiromancy. † TYROMANCY.

ti·ron'ic, ti'ro·nism. Vars. of TYRONIC, TYRONISM.

tir'racks. Scot. var. of TARROCK.

tir'ra·vee, -vie. Vars. of TIRRIVEE.

Tir'rit·bi', n. See TALAMANCA.

tir'rit. Var. of TERRET.

tir·than'ka·ra (tĭr·tŭngk'kä·rä), n. See JAINISM. [Obs.

tir'y (tīr'ĭ), adj. Tired; weary.

Tir'zah (tûr'zä). Bib.

tise. † TICK, to entice.

Tish'ah b'ab' (tĭsh'ä bĭ·äv'). Also Tish'a bov (bōv). [Heb. tishʿāh ninth (day) + bʿāb in Ab.] See JEWISH HOLIDAYS.

Tish'bite (tĭsh'bīt). Bib.

tis'ic (tĭz'ĭk). Phthisic. Obs. or Ref. Sp.

tis'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl). † PHTHISICAL.

tisike. † PHTHISIC.

ti'sis. Phthisis. Ref. Sp.

tisse. † THIS.

tissew. † TISSUE.

tis'sick. Dial. var. of PHTHISIC.

tis'sue·less, adj. See -LESS.

tis'sue·like', adj. See -LIKE.

Ti'tan·ess, n. Fem. of TITAN.

Ti·ta'ni·an (tĭ·tā'nĭ·ăn), adj. Titanic. Rare.

ti'tan·i·flu'o·ride (tī'tăn·ĭ·flōō'ō·rĭd; -rĭd), n. Chem. = FLUOTITANATE.

Ti'tan·like', adj. See -LIKE.

ti'tan·o·sil'i·cate, n. [titano- + silicate.] = SILICOTITANATE.

Ti'tan·o·the·ri'i·dae (tī'tăn·ō·thē·rī'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Titano- + Gr. thērion (dim. of thēr a beast) + -idae.] Paleontol. A family of gigantic perissodactyls mostly from the Eocene and Oligocene of North America, somewhat allied to the rhinoceroses. The skull was broad and flattened and had two anterior divergent horns.— ti'tan·o·there (tī'tăn·ō·thēr; tī·tā'nō·), n.

Skeleton of one of the Titanotheriidae (Titanotherium robustum).

Ti'tan·o·the'ri·um (-thē'rĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Paleontol. a The typical genus of Titanotheriidae. b [not cap.] An animal of this genus; a titanothere.

ti·tan'ous (tī·tăn'ŭs; tī'tăn·), adj. Chem. Designating certain compounds of titanium in which that element has a lower valence (three) as contrasted with titanic compounds.

ti'tan·yl (tī'tăn·ĭl; -ēl), n. [titan- + -yl.] Chem. The bivalent radical TiO.

ti'tar (tē'tär), n. [Hind. tītar.] A francolin (Francolinus pondicerianus) of southern Asia. India.

ti'ta root (tē'tä). The root of an Indian herb (Coptis teeta), widely used as a remedy for various ills and as a tonic; — called also mishmee.

tit babbler. Any of several small East Indian and Asiatic timaliine birds of the genus Aethostoma, as Arostratum.

tit'bit' (tĭt'bĭt'), n. [See 2d TIT; BIT.] A delicate piece of anything eatable; a choice morsel of food, gossip, etc.

tit'bit'ty (-ĭ), adj. Full of titbits.

tit drill. Mach. A flat drill with a small central tit or teat to guide it, used to counterbore holes.

tite (tīt), adv. [ME., fr. ON. tītt rapidly, prop., neut. of tīthr frequent, eager.] Quickly; soon; promptly; immediately. Obs. exc. Dial.

tite, past tense of TEE, draw. Obs.

ti'ter, ti'tre (tī'tēr; tē'tĕr), n. [F. titre.] 1. Chem., Immunol., & Physiol. a The strength of a solution or concentration of a substance in solution as determined by titration. b The minimum amount or volume required to bring about a given result in titration.

2. Chem. The solidifying point of the fatty acids liberated from a fat. The determination of this point by melting the acids in a tube and noting the temperature at which they solidify again on cooling is called the titer test.

tit'fish' (tĭt'fĭsh'), n. A teatfish, or trepang.

tit for tat. [Prob. for tip for tap. See TIP a slight blow.] Blow for blow; an equivalent; retaliation; hence, a quarrel, argument, conversation, etc., marked by such; as, to give one tit for tat in a quarrel, a debate, or the like. "She did not like this tricky tit for tat." Zangwill.

tith'a·ble (tĭth'ä·b'l), adj. Subject or liable to payment of tithes; as, tithable lands or persons.

tith'a·ble, n. A person or thing that is tithable.

tith'al (tĭth'ăl), adj. Of or relating to tithes. Rare.

tithe (tīth), v. t.; TITHED (tīth'd); TITH'ING (tīth'ĭng). [AS. tēothian.] Transitive: 1. To pay or give a tenth part of, esp. for the support of the church; to pay taxes in the form of tithes (see TITHE, n., 1) on; as, to tithe an estate or crop; also, in phrase to tithe mint, rue, cumin, etc., to be meticulous regarding petty details and negligent in matters of importance.

2. Obs. a To give as a tithe. b To take a tenth part of or every tenth one from; to divide into tenths. c To reduce by or to one tenth of the original number; to decimate.

3. To levy a tenth part on; to tax to the amount of a tenth.

—, Intransitive: 1. To pay tithes. Obs.

2. To levy tithes. Rare.

tithe (tīth), n. [ME. tithe, tethe, properly an adj., tenth, fr. AS. tēotha, tēogetha, tenth; akin to AS. tīen, tīŋn, tēn, ten, G. zehnte, adj., tenth, n., a tithe, ON. tīund the tenth, tithe, Goth. taihunda tenth. See TEN; cf. TENTH, TEIND.] 1. A tenth part, or loosely a small part, of some specific thing paid as a voluntary contribution or as a tax to a superior for a public use, or the like; esp., as in British usage, a tenth part of the yearly increase arising from the profits of land, stock, or personal industry, paid, in kind or money, to the church or for religious or charitable uses; hence, any small ratable tax or levy. The levying of tithes in kind was practiced by the Hebrews and other races in the remotest antiquity. The custom of paying tithes survived in the Christian church as a voluntary contribution, but finally became generally established as a legal tax throughout Great Britain and Europe. Ecclesiastical tithes are generally classified as: praedial tithes, or those arising immediately from the soil, such as grain, hemp, flax, hay, fruit, wood; mixed tithes, or those arising from things nourished by the immediate products of the soil, such as colts, calves, wool, fowls, milk or cheese, honey and wax, etc.; and personal tithes, or those derived from the profits of industry in the arts, trades, commerce, etc. A further distinction is often made into great tithes and small, or as sometimes called privy tithes, the exact line of demarcation between which is uncertain, it being settled, however, that mixed and personal tithes are small tithes, and generally agreed that corn, hay, and wood are great tithes. The small tithes are also known as vicarage, or vicarial tithes, from the fact that they sometimes belong to the vicar instead of the rector, the great tithes being then known as parsonage, or rectorial tithes. In English law tithes are technically incorporeal hereditaments in gross; in the Civil law they are servitudes. In Great Britain and Ireland nearly all tithes have been commuted to a money payment under the various Tithe Commutation Acts. By the Tithe Act of 1925, tithe rent charges attached to benefices are now vested in Queen Anne's Bounty for the benefit of the incumbents. In Scotland tithes are technically called teinds.

2. In collective singular: a Payments of tithes; taxes. b Portions of a crop, etc., set apart or marked as tithes.

3. The tenth part of anything; a tenth; hence, any small or insignificant part or proportion.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tithebook	tithe-free	tithepayer
tithe-collecting, adj.	tithe gatherer	tithe-paying, adj.
tithe collector	tithemonger	titheright tithe, adj. [See TITHE, n.] Tenth; as, a tithe part.

tithe barn. A barn originally built to receive ecclesiastical tithes paid in kind. Eng.

tithe man. A tithe collector; also, Rare, a tithingman.

tithe pig. A pig set apart or given in payment of tithe.

tithe proctor. A tithe collector.

tith'er (tĭth'ēr), n. One who collects, pays, or advocates the payment of, tithes.

tith'er (tĭth'ēr; tĕth'ĕr). Dial. var. of TOTHER.

tith'ing (tīth'ĭng), n. [AS. tēothung.] 1. Act of one that tithes; a paying, levying, or taking of tithes.

2. That which is taken or set apart as tithe; a tithe.

3. English Law. A small administrative division locally preserved in many parts of England, apparently originally consisting of ten men with their families, or of the tenth part of the hundred. Cf. FRANKPLEDGE, MAINPAST.

There can be no doubt that over a large part of England the persons subject to the law of frankpledge were distributed into groups, each consisting of ten, or in some cases of twelve or more, persons; each group was known as a "tithing"; each was presided over by one of the associated persons who was known as the chief-pledge, tithingman, headborough, borsholder, head, or elder, that is, of the borh or pledge. Pollock & Maitland.

tith'ing·man' (tīth'ĭng·măn'), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn'). 1. Law. a O. Eng. Law. The chief man of a tithing. In many of his duties he corresponded to the modern constable. See TITHING, n., 3. b Hence: (1) Eng. A peace officer; an underconstable. (2) Local, U. S. A parish officer annually elected to preserve good order in the church during divine service, to make complaint of any disorderly conduct, and to enforce the observance of the Sabbath.

2. A tithe collector; tithe man.

tith'ing·pen'ny (-pĕn'ĭ), n. O. Eng. Law. A small tax or due paid by the tithings to the sheriff to defray court expenses.

ti·thon'ic (tĭ·thŏn'ĭk; tĭ-), adj. [See TITHONUS.] Designating actinic rays of light. Rare. — tith'o·nic'i·ty (tĭth'ō·nĭs'ĭ·tĭ; tĭ'thō-), n. Rare.

ti·thon'o·graph'ic (tĭ·thŏn'ō·grăf'ĭk; tĭ-; tĭth'ō·nō-), adj. [tithonic + -graph + -ic.] Pertaining to, or produced by, actinism. Rare.

tith'o·nom'e·ter (tĭth'ō·nŏm'ē·tĕr; tĭ'thō-), n. [tithonic + -meter.] An early form of actinometer in which chlorine and hydrogen are allowed to unite under the influence of light.

Ti·tho'nus (tĭ·thō'nŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tithōnos.] Gr. Myth. Son of Laomedon, king of Troy, the favorite of Eos (Aurora), who prevailed on the gods to grant him immortality, but forgot to ask for him immortal youth. He grew old, and was finally changed by Eos into a grasshopper. Eos rises daily from the couch of Tithonus, representing the rose of dawn springing from the gray of dawn.

tith'y·mal (tĭth'ĭ·măl), n. [L. tithymalus, fr. Gr. tithymalos.] Any spurge, esp. Tithymalus cyparissias. Obs.

Tith'y·ma·lop'sis (tĭth'ĭ·mă·lŏp'sĭs), n. [NL. See TITHYMALUS; -OPSIS.] Bot. A genus of about eighteen species of North American herbs of the spurge family (Euphorbiaceae), with a milky juice, alternate or whorled leaves, close clusters of small flowers surrounded by often showy involucres, and exserted capsules. T. corollata, the flowering spurge, and T. ipecacuanhae, the ipecac spurge, are common in the eastern States. Syn. Euphorbia (in part).

Tith'y·ma'lus (-mā'lŭs), n. [NL. See TITHYMAL.] Bot. A large, widely distributed genus of herbs of the spurge family (Euphorbiaceae), closely related to Tithymalopsis but differing in not having showy involucres. The flowers are often in umbellate clusters. T. cyparissias, the cypress spurge, and T. peplus, the devil's-milk, are common weeds in North America. Syn. Euphorbia (in part).

ti·ti' (tē·tē'), n. [Sp. tití, fr. Guarani titi.] Any of various small South American monkeys of the genus Callicebus (syn. Callithrix). They resemble the squirrel monkeys of the genus Saimiri, but the head is not so elongated posteriorly and the tail is more thickly haired.

ti'ti (tē'tē), n. [Perh. of Am. Ind. origin.] a A tree (Cliftonia monophylla) of the southern United States, having glossy leaves and racemes of fragrant white flowers succeeded by one-seeded drupes; — called also buckwheat tree, and ironwood. b Any related tree of the genus Cyrilla, often disting. as white titi. c S. Carolina. = SORREL TREE a. d Australasia. = 2d TI a.

ti'ti (tē'tē), n. [Maori.] A blue-footed petrel (Cookilaria cooki). New Zealand.

Ti'tian (tĭsh'ăn; tĭsh'ĭ-), n. 1. A painting executed by Titian, the artist.

2. [often not cap.] A color, used by Titian in his paintings, red-yellow in hue, of high saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

3. One having Titian hair.

Ti'tian, ti'tian (tĭsh'ăn; tĭsh'ĭ-), adj. Of the color Titian; loosely, red or reddish-brown; — chiefly of hair.

Ti'tian·esque' (tĭsh'ăn·ĕsk'), adj. [Titian + -esque.] After the manner of, or suggesting the style of, the Venetian painter Titian (Tiziano Vecellio, 1477–1576), who is noted for his breadth of treatment, realism, and rich but subdued coloring.

Ti'ti·an'ic (tĭsh'ĭ·ăn'ĭk), adj. Of, or suggestive of, the work of Titian; Titianesque.

ti·tien' (tē·tĕn'; tē'tyăn'), n. [Origin uncert.] A West Indian warbler (Dendroica petechia).

tit'il·la·bil'i·ty (tĭt'ĭ·lä·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Capability of titillating or of being titillated.

tit'il·lant (tĭt'ĭ·lănt), n. [L. titillans, -antis, pres. part.] Something titillating.

tit'il·late (tĭt'ĭ·lāt), v. t. & i.; -LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). [L. titillatus, past part. of titillare.] To tickle; to cause tickling; hence, to excite pleasurably.

tit'il·lat'er (-lāt'ēr), n. One who or that which titillates.

tit'il·lat'ing, adj. That titillates. — tit'il·lat'ing·ly, adv.

tit'il·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. [L. titillatio.] 1. Act of titillating, or state or sensation of being titillated.

2. A transient reaction; a slight thrill, esp. of pleasure.

Those titillations that reach no higher than the senses Glanvill.

3. Something titillating. Rare.

tit'il·la'tive (tĭt'ĭ·lā'tĭv), adj. Tending or serving to titillate.

tit'il·la'tor (-lā'tēr), n. A titillater. — tit'il·la·to'ry (-lä·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj.

tit'i·vate, tit'ti·vate (tĭt'ĭ·vāt), v. t. & i.; -VAT'ED (-vāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -VAT'ING (-vāt'ĭng). [Formed, perh. fr. tidy, in imitation of words in -ate fr. L.] To dress or smarten up; to spruce. — tit'i·va'tion, tit'ti·va'tion (-vā'shŭn), n. — tit'i·va'tor, tit'ti·va'tor (tĭt'ĭ·vā'tēr), n. All Humorous.

"Come here, an' let me titivate you." He sat down beside her, and submitted to be dusted. Quiller-Couch.

tit'i·vil (tĭt'ĭ·vĭl), tit'i·vil'ler (-vĭl'ēr), n. A term of contempt, applied variously to lawless persons, talebearers, and flatterers; — used esp. as the name of a character, sometimes a fiend, in early English plays. Obs.

tit'lark' (tĭt'lärk'), n. [See 2d TIT; LARK.] A pipit. ti'tle (tī't'l), n. [OF. title (F. titre), fr. L. titulus an inscription, label, title, sign, token. Cf. TILDE, TITRATE, TITTLE, TITULAR.] 1. A notice put over, upon, or under anything to distinguish or explain it; a placard. Archaic.

Hang up the Title; Our scene is Rhodes. Kyd.

2. That which is inscribed; legend; specif., I.N.R.I. (which see, in Abbreviations, Appendix) on the Cross or a crucifix. Hist.

3. Something carrying an inscription, as a sepulcher, tombstone, boundary stone, etc.; a monument. Archaic.

What title (Douay V., "monument") is that that I see? . . . It is the sepulcher of the man of God. 2 Kings xxiii. 17.

4. A document, as a title deed or certificate. Obs.

5. Law. a The union of all the elements which constitute ownership, at common law divided into possession, right of possession, and right of property, the last two now, however, being considered essentially the same. See OWNERSHIP. b That which constitutes a just cause of exclusive possession; the facts or events, collectively, which give rise to the ownership of property, real or personal; in a wider sense, as used by Austin, "any fact by the intervention of which the law invests or divests a right, or imposes or withdraws a duty" (2 Aust. Jur. 883); as, good title to an estate, or an imperfect title. c The instrument which is evidence of a right. For further Law senses see def. 15.

6. That which entitles one; sufficient proof or justification; a valid reason or ground; hence, claim; right; — with to, of, in, or the infinitive; as, his services give him a title to our gratitude; he has no title to anticipate our support; unable to establish his title of authorship.

7. A division of an instrument or book, usually one larger than a section or article, as of a statute or lawbook.

8. The distinctive designation of a written or printed production, as a book, usually placed at the beginning, on a page by itself; the name by which a literary production is known and distinguished. In the narrowest sense the title includes only the principal name or leading title, consisting of a word or phrase, and, in the case of a book, put on the binding in the shortest form that will be distinctive; in a broader sense, it includes everything on the title page preceding the author's name or its substitute, and thus may include a subtitle and various descriptive matter. In bibliography, esp. in old or rare books, or the like, the title is regarded as consisting of all the matter on the title page, including punctuation marks, etc.

9. A descriptive name; an appellation or designation.

Things change their titles as our manners turn. Pope.

10. An appellation of dignity, distinction, or pre-eminence (hereditary or acquired), given to persons by virtue of rank, office, achievement, or privilege, or as a mark of respect. (See PRECEDENCE.) Titles may be classified as those of: a Sovereignty, attached to hereditary rank and office, and grouped as (1) higher — Emperor (Czar, Kaiser), King, Sultan, Shah, Mikado; (2) lower — Grand Duke, Duke, Prince, Bey, Khan, Khedive, Raja, Emir. b Nobility, attached to hereditary rank irrespective of office, and grouped as (1) greater — Prince, Duke (Grand Duke, Archduke), Marquis, Count (Earl), Viscount, Baron; (2) lesser — Baronet, Knight (Chevalier, Ritter, Caballero), Esquire, Noble. c Office, usually appointive or elective, as those of the State — President, Viceroy, Governor General, Governor, Justice, Mayor, etc.; of the Church — see ORDER, 21 a; of the army — Generalissimo, Commander in Chief (Marshal, Field Marshal), General, Lieutenant General, Major General, Brigadier General, Colonel, Lieutenant Colonel, Major, Captain, 1st and 2d Lieutenant; of the navy — Admiral, Vice-Admiral, Rear Admiral, Commodore, Captain, Commander, Lieutenant Commander, Senior and Junior Lieutenant, Ensign; of societies, academic bodies, etc. — Grand Master, Warden, Chancellor, Dean, Professor, etc. d Courtesy, given by social usage. See COURTESY TITLE. e Distinction, officially conferred and implying recognition of merit, as those of honorary orders (see ORDER, 1 c), academic degrees, etc. f Membership, appointive or elective, and conferring privilege; as, Fellow, Alumnus, Brother. g Forms of reference and address; as, Majesty, Grace, Excellency.

11. Rank or position conferring or involving a title. Rare.

What once had beauty, title, wealth, and fame. Pope.

12. = TITTLE. Now Rare.

13. Bookbinding. In various uses: a A title page. b The first book section, containing the title page. c = TITLE SPACE. d A gold-stamped leather label for a book back. e A specially printed title page for insertion in a de luxe book in place of, or preceding, a text title.

14. Eccl. a R.C.Ch. (1) A parish church or parish. At Rome, titles seem to have been instituted, 25 in number, by Pope Marcellus (304), and to have had commonly two priests attached to each, one the proper titular and the other his subordinate. These priests were styled cardinal priests, whence the modern title cardinal. (2) A church in Rome or a see near Rome of which a cardinal is a titular head. See CARDINAL, 1. b A sphere of work or source of income or maintenance, required by a bishop of a candidate for ordination as a condition precedent to, or a claim in favor of, ordination.

15. Legislative and Court Law. a The heading forming the name of an act or statute, by which it is distinguished from others. At common law the title forms no part of the act, but in case of ambiguity may be referred to as an aid in interpretation. b Pleading. The heading which forms the distinctive designation of an action or proceeding, consisting usually of the name of the court, the names of the parties, and the description of the venue. See DECLARATION, 7.

16. Library Cataloguing. A literary work or book as distinguished from a particular copy; as, fifty titles of fiction and ten copies of each.

17. Motion Pictures. A subtitle.

18. Print. a A title page. b Title type. c A title border. d Any of several styles of type commonly used for titles, as DeVinne, Caslon boldface, and Bodoni boldface.

19. Sports. Championship; as, to win the title.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

title-bearing	title-hunting	title-seeking title-holding	title-mad	title-winning

Syn. — Heading; epithet, appellation. See NAME.

ti'tle (tī't'l), v. t.; TI'TLED (tī't'ld); TI'TLING (-tlĭng). [OF. titler (F. titrer), fr. L. titulare. See TITLE, n.] 1. Obs. a To set down or arrange under a title or titles; to record. b To ascribe; assign. c To give possession, or title, to.

2. To provide a title or titles for (a book, etc.).

3. To call by a title or the title of; to name; designate; entitle; also, to entitle to be called; to confer the title of.

4. Bookbinding. To stamp or otherwise print the title of (a book) on the front cover or back.

title bearer. A nobleman.

ti'tle·board' (tī't'l·bōrd'; 181), n. In Elizabethan theaters, a board fastened or held up bearing the title of the play.

title border. Print. A border surrounding a title page.

title by occupancy. Law. A right of property acquired by taking the first possession of a thing, or possession of a thing which belonged to nobody, and appropriating it.

title by possession. Law. Such right in property as mere possession of it confers. See POSSESSION, 6; ADVERSE POSSESSION.

title catalogue. Libraries. A catalogue in which books, etc., are listed only under their titles, usually arranged alphabetically.

ti'tled (tī't'ld), adj. Having or bearing a title, esp. one of nobility; noble.

title deed. Law. The deed, or one of the deeds, constituting the muniments or evidences of a person's ownership.

title essay, title poem, etc. The essay, poem, or the like, which gives the title to a book which represents a collection.

title hero. The hero of a play or novel having his name for its title.

ti'tle-hold'er (tī't'l-hōl'dĕr), n. One who holds a title; specif., a champion.

title insurance. See INSURANCE.

title letter. Print. Title type.

title page. The page of a book, etc., on which is given its full title, usually with the author's and publisher's names, date and place of publication, etc. Cf. IMPRINT, n., 2.

ti'tler (tī'tlĕr), n. 1. One who puts forth a claim to a title, as of possession. Obs.
2. One who titles.

title role or part. The part, or character, which gives the title to a play, opera, etc.; as, to act the title role in Hamlet; to sing the title part in Elijah.

title space. Bookbinding. The panel for the name, between the bands of the back of a book; — called also title.

title type. Print. Formerly, the type most commonly used in title pages, a series of capitals of full body depth.

ti'tling (tī'tlĭng), n. Act or occupation of one who titles; specif., a marking with a title or titles, as by stamping in gold; also, the title made; as, the titling on a book cover.

tit'ling (tĭt'lĭng), n. [See 2d TIT; -LING.] 1. Local, Brit. a A pipit, esp. the meadow pipit. b The hedge sparrow.
2. Stockfish; — formerly so called in customhouses.

tit'mal, tit'mall (tĭt'môl), n. The blue titmouse. See TITMOUSE. Local, Eng.

tit'man (-măn), n.; pl. TITMEN (-mĕn). The smallest in a litter of pigs, etc.; hence, a puny person; a runt.

Tit'marsh, Mi'chael An'ge·lo (mī'k'l ăn'jĕ·lō tĭt'märsh). A pseudonym which Thackeray used for some years, orig. in Frazer's Magazine. — Tit·marsh'i·an (tĭt·mär'shĭ·ăn), adj.

tit'mouse' (tĭt'mous'), n.; pl. -MICE (-mīs'). [ME. titemose, titmase, fr. tit small thing + AS. māse titmouse; akin to D. mees titmouse, G. meise, OHG. meisa, ON. meisingr. The English form has been influenced by the unrelated word mouse. See 2d TIT; cf. TIT titmouse.] Any of numerous widely distributed small oscine birds of Parus and allied genera of the family Paridae, allied to the nuthatches but longer-tailed; — commonly shortened to tit. They are arboreal and largely insectivorous, but do not creep up and down on tree trunks as do the nuthatches. The plumage is soft and fluffy, gray, black, and white being the prevailing colors in most species. They mostly nest in holes in trees, but some build a pendulous nest. The chickadees and tufted titmouse are the best-known American species (see these terms). Well-known European species are the greater, or great, titmouse (P. major), the coal titmouse (Parus, or Periparus, ater), the blue titmouse (Parus, or Cyanistes, caeruleus), the marsh titmouse (Parus palustris), and the crested titmouse (Parus, or Lophophanes, cristatus). See LONG-TAILED TITMOUSE.

Blue Titmouse (Parus coeruleus).

ti'to·ki (tē'tō·kē; colloq. tē·tō'kē), n. [Maori.] The New Zealand tree Alectryon excelsum. See ALECTRYON.

Ti'to Me·le'ma (tē'tō mĕ·lā'mä). In Geo. Eliot's Romola, a Greek, distinguished for beauty and learning but morally weak, who married Romola.

ti'trat·a·ble (tī'trāt·ȧ·b'l; tĭt'rāt-), adj. Chem. Capable of being titrated; as, titratable acidity.

ti'trate (tī'trāt; tĭt'rāt), v. t.; TI'TRAT·ED (tī'trāt·ĕd; tĭt'rāt-; 119); TI'TRAT·ING (tī'trāt·ĭng; tĭt'rāt-). [F. titrer, fr. titre standard, title. See TITLE.] To subject to titration; to standardize, analyze, or determine, by titration. — v. i. To perform titration.

ti·tra'tion (tī·trā'shŭn; tĭ-), n. Chem., Immunol., & Physiol. A method, or the process, of determining the strength of a solution, or the concentration of a substance in solution, in terms of the smallest amount of it required to bring about a given effect in reaction with another known solution or substance, as in the neutralization of an acid by a base, the agglutination of bacteria by a serum, etc. If the reaction in question is itself invisible, an indicator, having a visible reaction, correlated with the invisible, is used. See INDICATOR, 5. In chemical analysis, titration consists in adding a liquid in measured volume to a known volume of another liquid or to a known weight of some substance just until a point (end point) is reached at which a certain definite effect is observed; this effect is commonly a change of color, as that of the indicator litmus at the neutral point between acid and base. In immunology, titration consists in making a series of mixtures of measured increasing amounts of a substance in solution with an unvarying amount of a known solution; the mixture having the least amount of the test solution required may be determined by direct observation (as in agglutinin and precipitin reactions) or indirectly by adding, as indicator, a hemolytic system (as in the Wassermann reaction) or by animal inoculation (as in titration of diphtheria antitoxin).

ti tree (tē). Australasia. a The ti (Cordyline). b Erron. for TEA TREE, 2 a.

ti·trim'e·try (tĭ·trĭm'ĕ·trĭ), n. Chem. Measurement or analysis by titration. — ti'tri·met'ric (tī'trĭ·mĕt'rĭk), adj.

tit screw. Mach. A screw having on its end a small projection (tit, or teat) whose diameter is less than the minor diameter of the screw.

tit'ter (tĭt'ĕr), adv. [Compar. of TITE soon.] More quickly; sooner; rather. Obs. exc. Dial.

tit'ter, v. i. [See TEETER; cf. TITTER to laugh.] Now Dial. a To wobble; totter; tremble as with age or nervousness. b To seesaw. See TEETER.

tit'ter (tĭt'ĕr), v. i.; TIT'TERED (-ĕrd); TIT'TER·ING. [Perh. imitative, but cf. Nor. dial. titra to shake with laughter, Sw. dial. tittra to giggle, ON. titra to shake, tremble, and E. TEETER.] To give some vent to laughter one is seeking to stifle; to laugh with convulsive efforts at suppression; snicker; as, the audience tittered nervously. — v. t. To utter with a titter.

tit'ter (tĭt'ĕr), n. A tittering; partly stifled laugh.

tit'ter·a'tion (tĭt'ĕr·ā'shŭn), n. A state or fit of tittering, or laughing in a stifled way.

tit'ter·el (tĭt'ĕr·ĕl), n. The whimbrel. Local, Eng.

tit'ter·er (-ĕr), n. One who titters, or is given to tittering.

tit'ter·ing (-ĭng), adj. That titters. — tit'ter·ing·ly, adv.

tit'ter–tot'ter (-tŏt'ĕr), n. & v. i. [See TITTER to wobble; TOTTER.] Teeter; seesaw. — adv. In a teetering or swaying manner. All Now Dial.

tit'ter·y (-ĭ), adj. Inclined or given to tittering.

tit'ter·y, n. Gin, the alcoholic liquor. Obs. Slang.

tit'tie, tit'ty (tĭt'ĭ; Scot. also tĕt'ĭ), n. Sister; — an infantile or familiar term; also, a young girl. Scot. & Dial.

tit'tle (tĭt'l), n. [ME. titel, titil, fr. L. titulus superscription, label, title, perh. through OF. title title, F. titre title, mark over a word as a sign of abbreviation. See TITLE; cf. TILDE.] 1. A point or small sign used as a diacritical, punctuation, or similar mark, in writing or printing; variously: a Obs. A cedilla. b A tilde. c The dot over i or j. d A vowel point or accent, as in Hebrew or Arabic.
2. A particle; a minute part; a jot. Cf. 1st JOT.
Every tittle of this prophecy is most exactly verified. South.

tit'tle, v. i. [Cf. TATTLE.] To whisper; tattle; gossip. Now Chiefly Dial.

tit'tle (tĭt'l). Dial. Eng. var. of TICKLE.

tit'tle·bat' (-băt'; -bȧt'), n. A stickleback. Dial. Eng.

tit'tle est a'men' (ĕst ä'mĕn'; ä'mĕn'). In hornbooks, a tittle (usually i) followed by est amen, at the end of the alphabet; hence, the end; the outcome; the conclusion. Obs.

tit'tler (tĭt'lĕr), n. A telltale or tittle-tattle. Now Dial.

tit'tle–tat'tle (tĭt'l-tăt'l), n. [Redupl. of TATTLE.]
1. Idle, trifling talk, esp. gossip; scandalmongering.
2. An idle, trifling talker; a gossip; a tattler.

tit'tle–tat'tle, v. i. To talk idly; to prate; gossip. — tit'tle–tat'tler (-lĕr), n.

tit'tle–tat'tle, adj. Gossiping; given to gossip.

tit'tup (tĭt'ŭp), n. [Imitative.] Act of tittuping; lively, gay, or restless behavior or gait; a prance, caper, etc.

tit'tup, v. i.; -TUPED (-ŭpt) or -TUPPED; -TUP·ING or -TUP·PING. To behave or move in a lively or restless manner, as a horse or bird; to caper; to frisk; to hop here and there.

tit'tup, adv. In a tittupy manner.

tit'tup·y (-ĭ), adj. Also tit'tup·py. Given to tittuping; gay; lively; prancing; also, Dial., shaky; unsteady.

tit'ty (tĭt'ĭ), n. [Dim. of TIT teat.] Childish diminutive of TIT, teat; — used familiarly; also, milk from the breast.

tit'ty. Var. of TITTIE, sister. Scot. & Dial.

tit'ty·mouse' (-mous'), n. A titmouse. Obs. exc. Dial.

tit'u·bant (tĭt'ū·bănt), adj. [L. titubans, -antis, pres. part.] Staggering; tottering; unsteady; vacillating. — tit'u·ban·cy (-bȧn·sĭ), n. — tit'u·bant·ly, adv.

tit'u·bate (-bāt), v. i. [L. titubatus, past part. of titubare.] To stagger; totter; to reel or stammer as one tipsy. Now Rare.

tit'u·ba'tion (-bā'shŭn), n. [L. titubatio.] Act of titubating; specif., a peculiar staggering gait observed in cerebellar and other nervous disturbances.

tit'u·lar (tĭt'ū·lĕr), adj. [L. titulus title; cf. F. titulaire. See TITLE.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or bearing, a title; related to, or arising from, a title; as, titular honors or rank.
2. Existing in title or name only; nominal; as, to hold titular sovereignty; also, having the title to or honors accruing to an office, dignity, etc., without its duties or any responsibility for their performance; as, the titular head of the civil industry.
3. Eccl. a Designating, pertaining to, or taking the name of, a title (see TITLE, n., 14 a); as, a titular church at Rome; a cardinal titular. b Bearing a title derived from a defunct see, monastery, etc.; as, a titular abbot or bishop. See ABBOT, TITULAR BISHOP. c That is, or that has, the name of a titular (sense 2 c below); as, titular and patronal dedications of churches. d Rare. Narrowly, patronal; as, a church's or person's titular saint.

tit'u·lar, n. 1. A person holding a title; esp., one having the title and benefits of an office independently of its proper obligations.
2. Eccl. a A person who is entitled to enjoy a benefice without performing its duties; a titulary. b R.C.Ch. An incumbent of a title. See TITLE, 14 a. c The sacred person or thing (as, "Blessed Sacrament") from which a church derives its title or name; — a wider term than patron, which in strict usage is a saint or an angel.
3. Old Scots Law. A layman having a right to tithes. Called also titular of the tithes, of erection, of teind.

titular abbot. See ABBOT.

titular bishop. R.C.Ch. = BISHOP IN PARTIBUS INFIDELIUM. Since 1882 titular bishop is the official title.

tit'u·lar'i·ty (tĭt'ū·lăr'ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being titular.

tit'u·lar'y (tĭt'ū·lĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -lĕr·ĭ), adj. [See TITULAR.] Of, pertaining to, arising from, or consisting in, a title; titular.

tit'u·lar'y, n.; pl. -LARIES (-ĭz). 1. One holding a title; esp., one vested with title to something, as a benefice; a titular.
2. A list of official or honorary titles, following a name.

tit'ule (tĭt'ūl), v. t. To title; characterize; describe. Now R.

tit'u·lus (tĭt'ū·lŭs), n.; pl. -LI (-lī). [L.] 1. An explanatory or descriptive inscription, often poetical, placed under, over, or upon something; a title.
2. Law. Title. See TITLE, 5 & 15.

Ti'tus (tī'tŭs), n. [L. Titus or Gr. Titos.] 1. Masculine proper name. F. Tite (tēt); It., Sp., & Pg. Tito (tē'tō).
2. A Roman praenomen. Abbr., T.
3. The Epistle to Titus. See NEW TESTAMENT b.

Ti'tus An·dron'i·cus (tī'tŭs ăn·drŏn'ĭ·kŭs; cf. ANDRONICUS). The usual short title and hero of a play (1593–94), in part (probably) by Shakespeare. He is a noble Roman general in the wars against the Goths. The play is not historical.

Ti'tus Lar'ti·us (lär'shĭ·ŭs). In Shakespeare's Coriolanus, a valiant Roman soldier.

Tit'y·re–tu' (tĭt'ĕr·ē·tū'), n. [L. Tityre tu.] One of a class of roistering brawling young blades in 17th-century London, similar to the Mohocks; — from the first line of Vergil's first eclogue, "Tityre, tu patulae recubans sub tegmine fagi" (O Tityrus, thou reclining under the shade of the spreading beech tree). Hist.

Tit'y·rus (tĭt'ĭ·rŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tityros.] A fortunate freedman and shepherd in Vergil's first eclogue and in several of the others. In Vergil he represents the poet himself, who is thus designated also by Propertius. Chaucer is commemorated under this name by Spenser.

Tit'y·us (tĭt'ĭ·ŭs), n. [L. Tityos, fr. Gr. Tityos.] Gr. Myth. A giant, son of Gaea or of Zeus, who for offering violence to Leto was slain by her son Apollo. In Hades he lies prone while two vultures gnaw his liver.

Ti'u (tē'ōō), n. [AS. Tīw, OHG. Zīu, Zīo. See ZEUS; cf. TUESDAY, TYR.] Teut. Myth. A sky-god and war-god of ancient Teutonic peoples. As a personal god in myths he survives only in the Norse Tyr. His name was originally Tiwaz.

tiv'er (tĭv'ĕr), n. [AS. tīafor.] Red ocher. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

tiv'o·li (tĭv'ō·lĭ; tē'vō·lē), n. Wine made at Tivoli (see Gaz.).

tiv'y (tĭv'ĭ), adv. [See TANTIVY.] With speed; quickly; — a huntsman's word or cry.

tiv'y, v. i. To speed. Rare.

ti'za (tē'zȧ), n. [Sp. tiza, tizate, fr. Nahuatl tizatl.] The mineral ulexite.

ti·zeur' (tē·zûr'; tē'zĕr), n. [F. tiseur.] Glass Mfg. A fireman. See TEASER.

Ti·zo'na (tē·thō'nä; 267), n. [Sp.] A favorite sword of the Cid.

tiz'zy (tĭz'ĭ), n. [Corrupt. of TESTON.] A sixpence. Slang, Eng.

‖tjalk (tyälk), n. [D.] A Dutch type of hoy.

‖tjan'di (tyän'dē), n. [Jav. candi.] An ancient stone temple. Java.

tjan'ting (chän'tĭng), n. [Jav. canting.] A small cup-shaped instrument of copper used in applying the hot wax in batik work. Java.

tjen'kal (chĕng'käl), n. sing. & pl. [Malay cĕnkal.] See MEASURE, Table.

tji (chē), n. [Sundanese ci, cai.] Literally, water, river; — used in many place names in western Java.

tji (chē), n. sing. & pl. [Malay ci.] See WEIGHT, Table.

T joint. a = 1st TEE, 2 a. b = TEE JOINT.

tjo'site (tyō'sĭt), n. [From Tjose parish, Laurvik, Norway.] Petrog. A lamprophyric rock of the alkali-syenite family, composed of augite, olivine, and magnetite in a groundmass of anorthoclase.

tla'co (tlä'kō), tlac (tläk), n. [Sp. tlaco, fr. Nahuatl tlaco half; — so called because half a cuartilla.] The half of the cuartillo, or ⅛ real.

Tla'klu·lit (tlä'klōō·lĭt), n. An Indian of a Chinookan tribe dwelling on the Columbia River, near The Dalles, in Washington.

Tla·loc' (tlä·lōk'), n. [Nahuatl, lit., pulque of the earth, fr. tlalli earth + octli pulque.] The Aztec god of rain and thunder, one of the principal gods of the pantheon, who shared with Huitzilopochtli the great pyramid at Tenochtitlan. He is identical with the Maya Chac-Mool, and his cult, one of the most ancient in Mexico, was adopted by the Aztecs from the Toltecs. The victims sacrificed to him were usually children and maidens. See MICTLAN.

Tlas·ca'lan (tläs·kä'lăn), n. An Indian of a Nahuatlan tribe, formerly occupying the State of Tlaxcala, Mexico, which maintained a precarious independence in the face of numerous Aztec invasions. Defeated by Cortes, they later joined him in the conquest of Mexico. Cf. NAHUA.

Tlin'git (tlĭng'gĭt), n. pl. Also Tlin'kit (-kĭt). The Indians of a seafaring group of eighteen tribes of southern Alaska constituting the Koluschan stock, the chief tribes being the Chilcat, Sitka, Stikine, and Yakutat. They built substantial houses of cedar adorned with totem poles, and were expert stone carvers and copper workers. Slavery, the potlatch, and the use of immense labrets were characteristic. See KOLUSCHAN.

tme'ma (tmē'mȧ; mē'mȧ), n.; pl. -MATA (-mȧ·tȧ). [Gr. tmēma.] 1. A segment; a section. Rare.
2. Bot. In bryophytes, esp. mosses, a stalk cell which ruptures and sets free a gemma. It may be slender, a dolichotmema, or short and disklike, a brachytmema.

Tme·sip'ter·is (tmē·sĭp'tĕr·ĭs; mē-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tmēsis a cutting + -pteris.] Bot. A genus of fern allies (family Psilotaceae) having as the only known species T. tannensis, the fern clubmoss, of Australasia. It is an epiphytic fernlike plant, with large, lanceolate, green leaves.

tme'sis (tmē'sĭs; mē'sĭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. tmēsis a cutting; akin to Gr. temnein to cut. See TOME.] Gram. Separation of parts of a compound word by the intervention of one or more words (what place soever, for whatsoever place).

t'nead (t'nĕd), v. t. To exhaust; tire out. Scot.

TNT, or T. N. T. Abbr. Trinitrotoluene, or trinitrotoluol.

T nut. A nut shaped like the head of a T bolt.

to (tōō; unstressed, tōō, tŭ; 71), prep. [AS. tō; akin to OS. & OFris. tō, D. toe, G. zu, OHG. zuo, zua, zō, OLith. do, OL. -do, -du, as in endo, indu, in, Gr. -de, as in oikade homeward. Cf. INDIGENOUS, TOO, TATTOO a beat of drums.] Primarily to expresses the relation of direction of approach and arrival making its governed word denote the terminus. Besides bearing the senses which imply movement, to represents various aspects of signification denoted by the simple dative case of Anglo-Saxon, which denoted immaterial tendency and affection of the inner interests, in which uses the sphere of to verges upon that of for, though it contains less the idea of design or appropriation. Thus, to connects transitive verbs (such as those of passing, granting, communicating, denying) with their remoter or indirect objects, and intransitive and passive verbs with a following substantive that limits their action or application (this opened to me a new world; let us keep the seat to ourselves; clinging firmly to the rock; these remarks were addressed to a large audience); before a pronoun or substantive as indirect object, to is necessary when the ordinary word order is departed from (tell a story to the class). Likewise, to indicates the object or limit of application of the quality, character, capacity, or relation denoted by adjectives and equivalent phrases, and substantives, esp. such as express relations of contiguity, likeness, fitness, proportion, equalti'tle·dom, n. See -DOM. ti'tle·less, adj. See -LESS. tit'lene (tĭt'lēn). Dial. var. of TITLING. tit'tle-proof' (ōō), adj. See -PROOF. ti'tle·ship, n. See -SHIP. tit'like', adj. See -LIKE.

---

tit'mice', n., pl. of TITMOUSE. ti'trat·ble, adj. Chem. = TITRATABLE. ti'tre, n. Var. of TITER. tit'-tat'-to' (tĭt'tăt'tō'; -tōō'), tit'tat'toe', tit'tat'too'. Vars. of TICK-TACK-TOE. [Sp.] tit'tered (tĭt'ĕrd). Tittered. Ref.
Tit'ter·y-tu'. † TITYRE-TU. tit'ti·vate (tĭt'ĭ·vāt), tit'ti·va'tion, tit'ti·va'tor. Vars. of TITIVATE, etc. [TITLING.] tit'tlin (tĭt'lĭn). Scot. var. of Tit'ty·rie, n. = TITYRE-TU. Obs. tit'u·la'do, n. [Sp.] A titled person; a mere title. Obs.
tit'u·lar·ly, adv. of TITULAR. tit'u·la'tion, n. = INTITULATION. Rare.
tit'-up', n. = 4th TILT, 5 c. tit'up, tit'up·py. Vars. of TITTUP, TITTUPPY. [AMPORTAS.] Ti'tu·rel' (tē'tōō·rĕl'), n. See Tiw (tē'ōō). Var. of TIU.
Ti'was (tē'wăz), n. See TIU.
Ti'zi·an (tē'tsĭ·ăn), Ti'zi·an·esque' (-ĕsk'). Vars. of TITIAN, TITIANESQUE.
Ti'zite (tī'zĭt). Bib.
Tiz'ri (tĭz'rē). Var. of TISHRI. See JEWISH CALENDAR. [WIN.]
tiz·win' (tĭs·wēn'). Var. of TIStiz'zick (tĭz'ĭk). Var. of TISSICK.
Obs. exc. Dial.
tju·run'ga, n. = CHURINGA.
‖tla·chi'que (tlä·chē'kā), n. = AGUAMIEL.
Tla'pal·lan' (tlä'pĕl·yăn'), n. [Nahuatl, lit., place of color, fr. tlapalli color, esp. red + -tlan, locative suff.] See QUETZALCOATL.

---

ity, attraction, connection, disposition, conformance and their opposites (close to the line; similar to a book; disagreeable to the taste; indifferent to social prestige; welcome to the city; disobedient to rules; duty to humanity; to take a dislike to cities; a friend to the poor; son and heir to a duke; a victim to smallpox; apprentice to a doctor). Various extensions of the primary sense of to are: 1. Indicating anything regarded as a terminal point or limit in the direction of which there is movement and at which there is arrival or in the direction of which there is movement or tendency without arrival; — opposed to from. Specif.: a In the direction of and reaching; hence, so as to attain or reach as a limit of change, succession, transmission, or the like; — often elliptically with omission of a verb of motion; as, to drive to town; a trip to Niagara Falls; to revert to the former subject; he wore a hat to school. b In the direction of, as unreached object of movement, inclination, tendency; so as to approach; in a position situated in the direction of; as, facing to the north; lying to the south; inclines to obesity; to bow to an acquaintance; also, formerly, at (after looking, smelling, etc.); also, formerly, governing a noun or pronoun with -ward or -wards appended; as, to uswards or Godward, that is, toward us or God. c As far as; so far as to reach as limit in space; as, eighty feet to the ground. d Colloq. In as a place of visit requiring a journey; as, have you ever been to Washington? e Dial. & Illit. At or in as a place of retirement or occupation at some remove; as, to home; to work; he lives over to Smith's.

2. Indicating that which is in position of contact, contiguity, proximity, connection, or opposition; specif.: a Close against or by; upon; as, applying soap to the surface: a room adjacent to mine; finger to lips; they engaged hand to hand. b Before and straight at, often as expressing defiance; as, to denounce him to his face. c In ready attendance upon; as, to stand to one's post.

3. Indicating intention, purpose, or end; specif.: a Aiming at; with a view of gaining or engaging in; for the making of; as, means to an end; hastened to our aid; trained to diplomacy; we set ourselves to finding an alternative course. b For, as object of wish, inclination, or right; as, we drink to your health; title to property. c To receive or endure, as appointed or destined; as, born to the purple.

4. Indicating effect, consequence, or resultant condition; specif.: a To assume a state or condition of; in such a way or so thoroughly as to become; as, grew to a great monarchy; foliage turns to brilliant yellows; burn to ashes; diminish to a speck; former forest growing up to scrub oak. As distinguished from into after words expressing change, to is employed when a thing is merely made different in some respect, esp. in respect of some attendant feature, quality, or condition exchanged or substituted for another; as, he changed the appointment to Monday; the court reduced the penalty to a fine. b With attainment of; so as to bring about or induce; resulting in; as, beaten to death; gripped him to silence; the cards fell to his advantage; they exerted themselves to no avail. "The second man was of equal height but broad to wonderment." J. Stephens. c So as to have or regain command or mental possession of; as, she was suddenly brought to herself. d Chiefly Archaic. To serve as; in the capacity or part of; for; as, to take one to witness. "Water to his drink." Chaucer. "Wilt thou have this man to thy wedded husband?" Book of Common Prayer.

5. Indicating that which sustains addition, attachment, adherence, constituence, attribution, or harmonious accompaniment; specif.: a With in addition; besides.

Wisdom he has, and to his wisdom, courage. Denham.

b With in accompaniment; in harmony with; as, to dance to a tune; she sang to his guitar. "Trust thyself: Every heart vibrates to that iron string." Emerson. c As a part, constituent, or attribute of; as, to belong to a class; the vest to my suit; there's no more to it. d As an appendage, appurtenance, or accessory of; fitting; as, a kite with a tail to it; a key to the desk; a solution to the problem. e In the service of; as, tutor to a well-to-do family. f Without deviating from; in strict observance of; as, to keep to the rules; to stick to the letter of the law.

6. Indicating the object of reverence or honor; specif., in recognition, honor, or exaltation of; for the worship of; as, a temple to Janus; to drink to one's country.

7. Indicating that in respect of which there is accordance, appropriateness, equality, correspondence, agreement, or the contrary; specif.: a Archaic. For as a price; as, ten to the shilling. b Constituting in accordance with a standard unit; performed during; in; — esp. with the distributive use of the; as, sixty pounds to the bushel; thirty-four strokes to the minute. c As compared with, in number or quantity; as against; for; as, four shots to the Spaniard's one.

All that they did was piety to this. B. Jonson.

d Over against by way of comparison of amount or value; as, betting four to one; as, five is to twenty-five; carried ten to three. e In accordance with; after; as, not to my taste; marked to scale. f Rare. To compare with; equaling. Marlowe. g In or through the whole extent of; as far as is included or revealed by; within the range of; as, to my knowledge he has never broken one. h Equaling or fitting or diverging from in point of comparison, correspondence, agreement, or proportion; as compared with; with; — now, after many words, replaced by with; as, to find a rhyme to "haul." "He's grown quite another creature to what he was." Mme. d'Arblay. "Strangely contrasted to the chill aspect of the lake." Cooper. "He seemed to be of another race to them." C. Doyle. i Obs. Than; — after a comparative.

8. Indicating the end of a time period or interval or a limit of continuance; specif.: a Till; until the time or attainment of; as, to the end of time; assured of employment to seventy; from seven to eight; specif., from a point in the past as far as or until; — with implied continuance in the future; as, the belief survives to this day. b Before; before the arrival of; as, quarter to six. "'T is long to night." Shak. c Repeatedly with each recurrence of. See FROM . . . TO. d At or on (a specified time); — obsolete except in compounds, as today, and specifically, punctually at or on; as, to say to the day.

9. Indicating the final or full extent or degree; specif.: a So as to reach in amount; as, from eighty cents to a dollar a day. b Without excepting or erring by so much as; within; as, the monks were Danes to a man; had to pay to the last penny; accurate to a hair. c Reaching or equaling in fullness of extent or degree; not stopping short of; as, damages amounted to one hundred dollars; to the value of twenty dollars; faithful to death; to its highest level. d In such degree as to cause or result in; as, to love him to distraction. e So as not to exceed; as, restricted to ten dollars a week. f In a measurement or series or by successive stages or degrees as far as; as, from ten to twenty feet in depth; — often with ellipsis of years; as, likely to live to eighty.

10. Indicating that which prompts or encounters an answering action or tendency; specif.: a Answering or resisting; heedful of; in compliance with; as, to this he said Amen; he came to my whistle. "Fate and the dooming gods are deaf to tears." Dryden. b As regards the entry, comprehension, or compliance of; as, to open or close one's garden to visitors; blind to art; deaf to all entreaties. c For reception by; as, a fearful blow to a nature so sensitive.

11. Indicating that in the direction of which as goal or limit there is application of activity; specif.: a At as object of application; as, to fall to writing; put everything to the hazard; to put a stop to the riot.

The mad endeavor Would scourge thee to severer pangs. Shelley.

b Upon or against as object of force or attack; as, to take a cane to him. c Facing or against as a subject of force; so as to receive; as, the sail opened to the wind. "Ere yet his wings Have spread their glories to the gaze of noon." Shelley.

12. Indicating relationship based on service or interest or on relative position or direction; specif.: a Formerly, by way of; as, to name or trade. b Concerning; as touching; so far as concerns; as, an earl spoke to the resolutions; that's all there is to it; what's this to me? c As regards the direction, plane, or periphery of; as, parallel or perpendicular to a line or surface; tangent to a circle.

13. Indicating the recipient affected by action causing benefit, disadvantage, and the like, or by feeling, behavior, testifying, seeming, and the like; specif.: a So as to be received by; as affecting, upon; as, a son born to them; an insult to their teacher; as treated or used by; as, serving a food to the natives; a prey to harpies. b In the opinion or view of; in; as, that seems to me unwise; a spade was to him but a gardener's tool. c For the benefit of; at the disposal of; for; as, left much to the imagination.

Who have to thee Been purest ministers. Shelley.

d As for; in support or corroboration of; as, took his oath to the truth of the report; a witness to one's good character. e Governing a reflexive pronoun: (1) For the exclusive use of; with no other attending, interposing, or belonging besides; at the sole disposal of; as, a room to myself; to have a friend all to oneself; the newcomers kept to themselves; a class to itself. (2) Secretly within, esp. without addressing another; from the knowledge of all except; for none except; as, thought to myself; kept the news to himself; singing to herself.

14. Indicating scope of percipience or participation or that which participates in bringing an effect, thus bordering upon the idea of agency; specif.: a Through the perceptive faculties of; as regards the experience of; as, unbeknown to his parents; discernible only to the trained eye; incomprehensible to the uninitiated. b As impressing; as, to their trained eyes the outcome was already determined. c As an effect of the action or use of; as, twelve birds fell to our guns; succumbed to corruption; a sacrifice to ambition.

15. Introducing an infinitive, from an original use in Anglo-Saxon expressing the relations of direction, inclination, purpose, etc., before an inflected verbal noun in the dative (tō sawenne), which, after reduction by leveling in Middle English to the same form as the simple infinitive, retained to and gradually took over in addition the signification and most of the uses of the simple infinitive (see INFINITIVE) chiefly because the presence of to served to distinguish it from other verbal forms. In many constructions, thus: a Introducing an infinitive as an adverbial modifier: (1) Indicating purpose; as, come to help; to keep good health one most exercise; good to cure insect bites. (2) Indicating action or state in the direction of which the main verb tends; as, begins to speak or to look sick; aim to retire. (3) Indicating the application of adjectives, participles, and adjective phrases; as, difficult to curb; competent to fill the position. (4) Indicating futurity or appointed lot; as, born to prosper. (5) Indicating result or consequence; as, so silly as to believe the story; tired enough to quit; too long to fit. (6) Indicating cause or reason; as, blushed to hear such scandal. (7) Indicating condition; as, to hear him, one would think civilization doomed. (8) Indicating manner, in colloquial language; as, dressed to kill; pedaling to beat the cars. b Introducing an infinitive as an adjective modifier: (1) Indicating intention or futurity; as, the time to come; a house to sell; this paper is to be read tomorrow. (2) Indicating compulsion or fitness; as, you are to follow at once; a decision to be approved; no time to lose. (3) Indicating possibility; as, nothing to prevent one; many books to read; something to remember me by. (4) Indicating quality or character; as, he is a boy to be trusted. (5) Indicating the purpose or function of that which is named by a substantive; as, a room to work in. (6) Indicating permissibility because of superfluity; as, to have money to burn; rooms to spare. (7) Indicating the application of abstract substantives of tendency or quality; as, a longing to visit China. c As a meaningless sign before an infinitive equivalent to a verbal used as a substantive (now rarely as object of a preposition; cf. "could save the son of Thetis from to die" Spenser), in which uses the significance is the same as that of the gerund, the action or fact expressed by the verb; as, Americans like to travel; he taught his brother to read; to refuse his request, namely to float a loan. d Introducing an infinitive used predicatively, and equivalent in meaning to a substantive clause introduced by that, after verbs of causing, wishing, permitting, commanding, saying, believing, etc.; as, he ordered the division to retreat; I believe him to be honest. e Introducing an infinitive following an interrogative or relative pronoun or adverb; as, showing when, where, and how to attack. f Introducing an infinitive in absolute, elliptical, and parenthetic constructions, indicating volition, surprise, indignation, regret, and the like; as, to put the matter briefly; O to be a boy again! Whither to fly? "To sleep! perchance to dream!" Shak. g Introducing an infinitive equivalent to a finite verb, as in rapid narration to a past tense or, in obsolete usage, the second of a pair of infinitives following one auxiliary. h Standing for and supplying an infinitive already mentioned in the context; — esp. used finally, equivalent to to be or do so; as, we did not return oftener than we were obliged to. Colloq.

Syn. — See FOR.

to (tōō), adv. 1. To or in the direction of something; specif.: a Obs. To that place; thither. b In one direction in alternation with the opposite; as, to and to; neither to nor fro. Specif.: (1) Formerly, away; as, to and again, that is, backward and forward. (2) Forward; on; — formerly as a command; as, with feathers wrong end to. "Goes to and back, lackeying the varying tide." Shak. c Obs. In favor; as, either to or fro.

2. To or into a certain position or state; specif.: a Into contact, attachment, application, or a condition of rest; as, pull the door to gently; put the horses to, that is, into harness; to heave to; to lie to. "Can honor set to a leg?" Shak. b In or into agreement or acquiescence. "Forced to use a little fatherly authority to bring her to." Fielding. c To command of one's powers, esp. to a state of restored consciousness or composure; to a realization of the state of affairs; as, that will bring her to, if anything will. d To the matter or business in hand, often with an implication of vigor; as, we were hungry and fell to with a will; they set to with their fists; come, men, buckle to. e Naut. Close to the wind; — of a sailing vessel; as, keep her to.

3. Till then. Obs.

4. Again; — in the phrase to and again. Obs. Pepys.

5. At hand; by; — after close, near; as, to see a clown close to.

to (tōō), conj. Until; till. Obs.

to, adj. = ONE, 3; — chiefly in the to, the one, and a to-side, on one side. Obs. exc. Dial.

to- (tōō-; tŏō-; cf. TO, prep.). [AS. tō- asunder; akin to OFris. & OS. te-, ti-, G. zer-, Goth. dis-, L. dis-, du- (as in duplex), and E. TWO.] An intensive prefix used with verbs, and denoting: a Asunder; to pieces; as in to-break, to-hew. b Away; apart; as in to-go. c Archaic & Dial Completely; severely; as in to-beat. Cf. ALL-.

-to. A combining form of the preposition to, as in:

hereto	onto	unto
into	thereto	whereto

to. Obs. var. of TOE; TOO; TOOK; TWO.

to (tō), n. sing. & pl. [Jap. tō.] See MEASURE, Table.

to. Var. of TOU (see MEASURE, Table).

to'a (tō'ä), n. [Samoan.] 1. A valiant warrior.

2. Any species of the genus Casuarina, esp. the beefwood C. equisetifolia. Polynesia.

toad (tōd), n. [ME. tode, tade, fr. AS. tādie, tādige, of unknown origin. Cf. TADPOLE, TOADY.] 1. Any of numerous tailless leaping amphibians of the genus Bufo and other more or less nearly allied genera, esp. those of the family Bufonidae. Like frog (which see), the term toad is not a definitely limited one, and there are many amphibians to which either name is applied. The typical toads are generally terrestrial in their habits, except during the breeding season, when they seek the water. They have a short, squat body, comparatively weak hind legs, and are covered with a rough warty skin in which are glands that secrete an acrid fluid irritating to the lips of an attacking animal, but are otherwise harmless. The belief that they produce warts is without foundation. Most of the species burrow beneath the earth in the daytime and come forth to feed at night. They eat insects, worms, slugs, etc., and are hence most useful to man. The young, which hatch as tadpoles, attain the adult form within a few weeks. The natterjack and the common toad (Bufo vulgaris) are familiar European species. The common species of the eastern United States is B. americanus. Cf. AGUA TOAD.

European Toad (Bufo vulgaris).

2. A hateful person or thing. Contemptuous.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

toad-bellied	toad-hating	toad-shaped toad-blind	toad-housing	toad-swollen toad-green	toad-legged

— eat one's toads. To play the toady to one; to be one's servile follower. — toad under a harrow. A harassed or persecuted person.

toad (tōd), adj. Pertaining to or like a toad.

toad, v. t. & i. To toady.

toad'back' (tōd'băk'), adj. Arch. Having a section of three-lobed shape with one of the lobes uppermost, giving a fancied resemblance to the back of a toad; as, a toadback handrail. — n. Arch. A toadback rail, etc.

toad bug. Any of several small predaceous hemipterous insects constituting the family Nerthridae, having a short, broad, flat body, and projecting eyes. The common American species is Gelastocoris oculatus.

toad'eat' (tōd'ēt'), v. t. & i. To toady.

toad'eat'er (-ēt'ĕr), n. [Cf. TOADY.] 1. A mountebank's boy or assistant who ate, or pretended to eat, toads (popularly supposed to be poisonous), so that his master might show his skill in expelling the poison.

2. A fawning, obsequious parasite; a toady.

3. A servile dependent; a menial hanger-on.

toad'er (tōd'ĕr), n. A toady. Rare.

toad'fish' (-fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. a Any of certain marine fishes with jugular pelvic fins, a large thick head, a wide mouth, and scaleless slimy skin, constituting the family Batrachoididae (syn. Batrachidae) and suborder Haplodoci. Opsanus tau is the common species along the American Atlantic coast. O. pardus is a spotted species of the Gulf coast. Cf. MIDSHIPMAN, 2. b A frogfish. c A puffer. d The angler.

Toadfish (Opsanus pardus).

toad'flax' (tōd'flăks'), n. a A common Eurasian perennial herb (Linaria vulgaris), widely naturalized as a weed in the United States. It has showy yellow-and-orange flowers, whence it is called also butter-and-eggs, flaxweed, ranstead, etc. b Hence, by extension, any other plant of Linaria and, also, of the related genus Kickxia. c With qualifying adjective, any of various other plants; as, bastard toadflax.

toad'flow'er (-flou'ĕr), n. A South African succulent plant (Stapelia bufonia) with curiously variegated flowers.

toad'-frog' (-frŏg'), n. Popularly, any of various tailless amphibians, as a toad or toadlike frog; specif., a spadefoot toad.

toad grass. The toad rush.

toad'head' (tōd'hĕd'), n. The golden plover. Mass.

toad'i-er (-ĭ-ĕr), n. One who toadies.

toad'-in-the-hole', n. Cookery. A dish of meat boiled, baked, or fried in a batter.

toad'ish (tōd'ĭsh), adj. Like a toad.

toad lily. a A handsome Japanese herb (Tricyrtis hirta); family Melanthaceae, often cultivated for its delicately spotted white flowers. b U. S. The common white water lily (Nymphaea odorata). c The cultivated plant Fritillaria pyrenaica, of southern Europe.

toad orchis. A tropical African epiphytic orchid (Megaclinium bufo) cultivated for its beautiful purple-spotted flowers.

---

to (tō), n. Music. See SOLMIZATION.

toad'er-y, n.; pl. TOADERIES. See -ERY.

toad'ess, n. Fem. of TOAD (esp. sense 2). toad'id. Toadied. Ref. Sp.

toad'less, adj. See -LESS.

toad'let, n. See -LET.

toad'like', adj. See -LIKE. — toad'like'ness, n.

toad'ling, n. See -LING.

---

toad'pipe', toad'pipes' (tōd'pīp', -pīps'), n. Any of various horsetails (Equisetum). N. of Eng.

toad'root' (-rōōt'; 200), n. The red baneberry.

toad rush. A low-growing, nearly cosmopolitan rush (Juncus bufonius).

toad's'-back' (tōdz'băk'), n. A toadback.

toad's'-cheese' (-chēz'), n. Any poisonous fungus. Dial. Eng.

toad's'-eye' (tōdz'ī'), n., toad's'-eye' tin. A variety of cassiterite or tinstone; — so called from its appearance.

toad's'-mouth' (-mouth'), n. The snapdragon Antirrhinum majus.

toad snatcher. The reed bunting. Local, Eng.

toad spittle. = CUCKOO SPIT, 1 a.

toad spot. Veter. One of the nonpigmented spots occurring on the genitals in dourine.

toad'-spot'ted (tōd'spŏt'ĕd; -ĭd), adj. Covered with spots like a toad; marked by toad spots; hence, foully blemished; infamous.

toad stabber or sticker. A jackknife. Slang, U. S.

toad'stone' (tōd'stōn'), n. A bufonite or other petrifaction, stone, or similar object, popularly supposed to have formed in the head or body of a toad. They were often worn formerly as charms, antidotes to poison, etc.

toad'stone', n. Greenstone. Derbyshire, Eng.

toad'stool' (-stōōl'), n. Any of various fungi having an umbrella-shaped cap or pileus; a mushroom, often (esp. in popular usage) one of the poisonous varieties. The name is sometimes extended to other large fleshy fungi, as the morels, puffballs, etc. See MUSHROOM, 1.

toad'y (tōd'ĭ), adj. 1. Like a toad; ugly and repulsive; hideous.
2. Full of toads; as, a toady path.

toad'y, n.; pl. TOADIES (-ĭz). [From TOAD. Cf. TOADEATER.]
1. A small toad. Rare.
2. A toadeater (sense 2); a truckler to the rich or powerful; a sycophant.

toad'y, v. t. & i.; TOAD'IED (-ĭd); TOAD'Y-ING. To play the toady (to); to fawn (upon) with sycophancy.

To'ag (tō'ăg), n. 1. = NANTICOKE.
2. An Indian of the fugitive remnants of the Nanticoke, Conoy, and other tribes of Maryland and Virginia dispersed by the Iroquois in the early 17th century.

to and fro. a Forward and backward or from one side to the other, alternately; thither and back again; as, waiters hurrying to and fro. b Obs. Here and there in opposite directions. c Obs. In favor of one side and the other alternately. d Governing an object: to and away from or up and down alternately; as, going and coming to and fro the bedroom.

to'-and-fro' (tōō'ănd-frō'; 111), adj. Forward and backward; characterized by alternation, reciprocation, fluctuation, etc.; as, to-and-fro motion or visiting.

to'-and-fro', n.; pl. TOS-AND-FROS (tōōz'ănd-frōz'). 1. To-and-fro motion, movement, activity, etc., as, the to-and-fro of a pendulum.
2. Fluctuation; vacillation; specif., Obs., a bandying of words or questions; a discussion.

to'-and-fro', v. i. To pass forward and back repeatedly; as, a guard toing-and-froing along the rampart.

to-ar-rive' (tōō-ȧ-rīv'), adj. Com. Designating a contract providing that goods shipped shall arrive at a specified point, or be shipped from a point of origin, within a prescribed time; as, a to-arrive contract.

To a Skylark. 1. A lyric (1820) by Percy Bysshe Shelley in which the skylark's rapturous song is viewed as the poet's ideal in its escape from earthly restraints.
2. One of two lyrics by Wordsworth, esp. one composed in 1825 apostrophizing the skylark as "type of the wise who soar, but never roam."

toast (tōst), v.; TOAST'ED; TOAST'ING. [OF. toster to roast, toast, fr. (assumed) VL. tostare, fr. L. torrere, tostum, to parch, roast. See THIRST.] Transitive: 1. To brown by heat as of the sun or a fire; to dry, parch, etc. by heat; now usually, to brown (bread, cheese, bacon, etc.) by exposure to a fire or a gas or electric flame.
2. To warm thoroughly at a fire; as, to toast the feet.
——, Intransitive: To become dry and brown with heat; to warm oneself thoroughly at or as at a fire.

toast, n. [Cf. OF. tostée toasted bread. See TOAST, v.]
1. A slice or piece of toasted bread. Obs.
Fetch me a quart of sack, put a toast in it. Shak
2. Sliced bread dried and browned before or over a fire; as, to make toast; also, a kind of food prepared by putting slices of toasted bread into milk, gravy, drinks, etc.; as, milk toast.
3. A hard drinker; a soak; a tippler. Obs. Slang.
4. A brown, red-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
— to get or have (one) on toast. To swindle; worst; "roast." Slang, Eng.

toast, n. [So called because toasts were formerly put into the liquor, as a delicacy.] 1. Originally, a young woman in whose honor admirers drank or often drank; one such whose health was frequently proposed because of her beauty or charm; hence, Archaic, the belle of the season; the most admired young woman in her set.
2. Any person whose health is drunk, or anything in honor of which persons drink; a sentiment that is drunk to, as "The land we live in," etc.; as, the customary toasts were the king, country, and navy. b The act of proposing, or of drinking in honor of, such a toast; as, a dinner without toasts.

toast, v. t. To propose or drink to as a toast; to drink to the health or in honor of; as, to toast a belle, the flag, or one's health.
But now, the Press of America being toasted, up got Mr. JEREMY Sharpless. Mary S. Watts.
— v. i. To drink toasts; to propose a toast.

toast and water. Toast soaked in water; also, toast water.

toast'-and-wa'tered, adj. Dieted, as an invalid, on toast and water.

toast color. = 2d TOAST, 4. — toast'-col'ored, adj.

toast'ee' (tōs'tē'), n. One whose health is drunk in a toast.

toast'er (tōs'tĕr), n. 1. One who or that which toasts bread, cheese, etc.
2. Specif: a = TOASTING FORK. b Any of various kitchen utensils, as a double hinged grill for toasting bread over or under a fire or flame; also, an electric contrivance with a grill on which or by the side of which bread is toasted.
3. A thing suitable for toasting. Colloq. Rare.

toast'er (tōs'tĕr); n. One who proposes toasts; a toastmaster.

toast'ing fork. a A long-handled fork on which to toast bread, etc. b Humorous. A sword, rapier or the like.

toasting iron. = TOASTING FORK a & b.

toast list. Originally, a list of those to be toasted; now, a toastmaster's list of speakers.

toast'mas'ter (tōst'más'tĕr; see Pron., §83), n. At a public banquet, or the like, now, usually, one who presides and introduces the after-dinner speakers.

toast'mas'ter-y (-ĭ), n. A toastmaster's office, performance, or skill.

toast rack. A rack for holding several slices of toast edgeways. Chiefly Brit.

toast water. Water in which toasted bread has been steeped.

toast'y (tōs'tĭ), adj. Having the appearance or taste of toast. — toast'i-ness (-tĭ-nĕs; -nĭs), n.

toat (tōt), n. Handle of a joiner's plane.

to'a-to'a (tō'ä-tō'ä; colloq. tō'ȧ-tō'ȧ), n. [Maori.] a A New Zealand evergreen tree (Phyllocladus glaucus) with striking, whorled branches, often cultivated for ornament. b Tanekaha.

To'ba (tō'bä), n. sing. & pl. One of a Tatar tribe which ruled northern China during the 4th–6th centuries.

To'ba (tō'bä), n. An Indian of a numerous Guaycuruan tribe of El Chaco, who up to the middle of the 19th century carried on destructive raids against other Indians and the whites.

to-bac'co (tō-băk'ō; tŭ-), n.; pl. -OS, sometimes -OES (-ōz). [Sp. tabaco, fr. Taino tabaco a cigarlike roll of tobacco leaves, a Y-shaped pipe with which the Indians of the Antilles inhaled the smoke through the nostrils, prob. orig. fr. Tupi tabóca reed. On meaning cf. COHOBA.] 1. Any plant of the genus Nicotiana, esp. of the species cultivated for their leaves, the most common being N. tabacum, of South American origin. It is a tall annual with ample ovate or lanceolate leaves and white or pink tubular flowers.
2. a The leaves of this plant, prepared by drying and various manufacturing processes, and used either for smoking or chewing, or as snuff. In ordinary cultivation, the leaves are dried, either separately or on the stalk, tied in bundles (hands) and placed in heaps (bulks) to induce fermentation, which develops the aromas and flavors. The active properties of tobacco are due chiefly to nicotine. Tobacco was introduced into the Old World by a Spanish physician, in 1558. Lane, first governor of Virginia, and Sir Francis Drake brought to England in 1586 the materials and implements of tobacco smoking, which they gave to Sir Walter Raleigh, through whose influence the habit became fashionable. b Collectively, a crop of this plant, whether growing or harvested and cured.

Tobacco Plant. 1 Flowering Stem and Leaves, reduced; 2 Detached Flower (½).

3. With qualifying adjective or attributive, any of various other plants used like, or remotely resembling, tobacco; as, Indian tobacco, mountain tobacco, etc.
4. The manufactured product from tobacco leaves; smoking or chewing tobacco; cigars, cigarettes, etc., collectively; also, smoking as a practice; as, users of tobacco; to swear off on tobacco.
5. The color tobacco brown.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tobacco-abusing, adj.	tobacco grater	tobacco shaver tobacco bagger	tobacco-growing, adj.	tobacco shed tobacco barn	tobacco liquorer	tobacco shop
tobacco-breathed, adj.	tobacco machine	tobacco smoker tobacco carton	tobacco machinery	tobacco-smoking, adj.
tobacco case	tobacco molder	tobacco sprayer tobacco chewing, adj.	tobacco panner	tobacco spreader tobacco cultivator	tobacco pouch	tobacco-stained, adj.
tobacco cutter	tobacco press	tobacco-stemming, adj.
tobacco dryer	tobacco rack	tobacco stripper
tobacco dust	tobacco retainer	tobacco twister tobacco fertilizer	tobacco roller tobacco granulator

to-bac'co, adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or for, tobacco; made from tobacco; employed or used in the cultivation, curing, or preparation of tobacco.
2. Used for, or in the smoking of, tobacco; of, or relating to, the use of tobacco; caused by or by using tobacco.
3. Of the color of tobacco; of the color tobacco brown.

tobacco beetle. The cigarette beetle.

tobacco box. a Local, U. S. Any of several fresh-water sunfishes. b The tobacco-box skate. See 1st SKATE.

to-bac'co-box' skate. See 1st SKATE.

tobacco brown. The variable color of tobacco, ranging in hue from red-yellow to yellowish red-yellow, averaging red-yellow, and of low saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

tobacco bug. A small black bug (Dicyphus minimus), family Miridae, having green legs and underside. It sucks the sap of tobacco leaves; — called also suck fly.

tobacco camphor. = NICOTIANIN.

tobacco cloth. A sheer cotton fabric designed to shade growing tobacco plants.

to-bac'co-fied (tō-băk'ō-fīd; tŭ-), adj. Characterized by indulgence in tobacco. Rare.

tobacco flea beetle. See FLEA BEETLE.

tobacco hawk moth. Adult of a tobacco worm.

tobacco heart. Med. A functional disorder of the heart, characterized by irritability and irregularity, caused by excessive use of tobacco.

tobacco hornworm. = TOBACCO WORM.

to-bac'co-ism (tō-băk'ō-Īz'm; tŭ-), n. Med. A morbid state caused by prolonged excessive use of tobacco.

to-bac'co-ite (-īt), n. One who favors the use of tobacco.

tobacco lath. = TOBACCO STICK.

tobacco leaf miner. The splitworm.

tobacco liquor. = TOBACCO WATER.

to-bac'co-man (tō-băk'ō-măn; tŭ-), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). Tobacconist. Rare.

toast'mis'tress, n., fem. of TOASTMASTER. to-at'ler (tō-ăt'lĕr), n. Apnetic for TEETOTALER. Dial. Eng.

Tob (tŏb; tōb). Bib.

to-bac'chi-an, n. A smoker. Obs.

to-bac'co-less, adj. See -LESS.

to-bac'co-like', adj. See -LIKE.

to-bac'co-ner, n. = TOBACCONIST. Obs.

to-bac'co-nis'ti-cal, adj. See -ICAL.

to-bac'co-phil, n. See -PHIL.

to-bac'co-root', n. = BITTERROOT a.

to-bac'co-sick', adj. See SICK, 13.

tobacco mildew. Plant Pathol. A disease of growing tobacco caused by the downy mildew Peronospora hyoscyami; also, the fungus itself.

tobacco mosaic. A virus disease of tobacco; — called also calico. See MOSAIC, 7.

to-bac'co-na'li-an (tō-băk'ō-nā'lĭ-ăn; -nāl'yăn; tŭ-), n. [tobacco + -nalian as in bacchanalian.] A tobacco smoker. Humorous.

to-bac'co-ning (tō-băk'ō-nĭng; tŭ-), adj. & n. Smoking tobacco. Obs.

to-bac'co-nist (-nĭst), n. 1. One addicted to the use of tobacco. Obs.
2. A dealer in tobacco; also, a manufacturer of tobacco.

to-bac'co-nize (-nīz), v. t. & i. To impregnate or saturate with tobacco or tobacco smoke; to smoke tobacco.

tobacco pipe. 1. A pipe used for smoking tobacco.
2. The Indian pipe (an herb).

to-bac'co-pipe' clay. Pipe clay.

tobacco stick. One of the laths on which tobacco leaves are hung for curing.

tobacco stopper. A device for pressing down tobacco in a pipe.

tobacco thrips. A thrips (Thrips tabaci) often injurious to growing tobacco and to onions in Europe and North America. See THRIPS.

tobacco tongs. Metal tongs for taking a live coal from a fire to light a tobacco pipe.

tobacco water. A decoction of tobacco, used as an insecticide in gardening, etc.

to-bac'co-weed (tō-băk'ō-wēd'; tŭ-), n. The woolly elephant's-foot.

tobacco wilt. Plant Pathol. a A bacterial disease of tobacco caused by Erwinia (syn. Bacillus) nicotianae. b = GRANVILLE WILT.

tobacco worm. Either of two species of large, green, obliquely white-striped caterpillars with a hornlike process near the posterior end, which feed on the tobacco plant. They are the larvae of the hawk moths Protoparce quinquemaculata and P. sexta. See HAWK MOTH, Illust.

Tobacco Worm (Protoparce quinquemaculata).

to-bac'co-y (tō-băk'ō-I; tŭ-), adj. Full of tobacco fumes.

tobe (tōb), n. [Ar. thawb garment.] A piece of cotton cloth, of any of various colors and from 12 to 15 feet long, worn by natives as an outer garment. No. & Cen. Africa.

to-be' (tōō-bē'), n. [often cap.] That which is to be; the future. — adj. Future; that is to be.

to-beat', v. t. & i. See TO-. Obs.

To-bi'ah (tō-bī'ȧ), To-bi'as (-ȧs), n. [LL. Tobias, fr. Gr. Tōbias, Tōbeias, fr. Heb. Tōbhīyāh.] 1. Lit., the Lord is (my) good; — masc. proper name. L. Tobias; F. Tobie (tō'bē'); It. Tobia (tō-bē'ä); Sp. Tobias (tō-bē'äs); G. & D. Tobias (tō-bē'äs). — Dim. Toby.
2. In form Tobias. Bib. The son of Tobit in the Book of Tobit (see OLD TESTAMENT).

To-bi'as ac'id (tō-bī'äs). [After Georg Tobias, Ger. chemist.] Chem. See NAPHTHYLAMINESULPHONIC.

To-bi'as fish (tō-bī'ȧs). [Cf. Tobit vi–viii.] The sand launce (Ammodytes tobianus).

To'bik-har' (tō'bĭk-härr'), n. Any Shoshonean Indian of southern California under the influence of the Spanish missions. Cf. UTO-AZTECAN.

to'bine (tō'bĭn), n. [Cf. G. tobin, D. tabijn. See TABBY.] A kind of tabby, resembling lustring.

to-bi'ra (tō-bī'rȧ), n. [Jap., prop., leaf of a door, anything that opens up.] A commonly cultivated shrub (Pittosporum tobira) of China and Japan, with ornamental glossy leaves and white, fragrant flowers in terminal umbels.

tobira family. The Pittosporaceae.

To'bit (tō'bĭt), n. Bib. 1. A pious Jew whose story is related in the Book of Tobit.
2. The Book of Tobit. See OLD TESTAMENT, APOCRYPHA.

to-bog'gan (tō-bŏg'ăn), n. [Can. F. tobagan, tabaganne, of Algonquian origin; cf. Micmac tobâgun a drag made of skin, Abnaki udâbâgân. Cf. PUNG.] 1. A kind of long, flat-bottomed, light sled made of a thin board or boards curved up at one end, usually having low handrails at the sides. It is used for coasting, traveling, or transportation on snow or ice.

Toboggan.

2. The sport of tobogganing; hence, Slang: a A sudden, sharp decline, as in value or price. b A downhill course; — chiefly in phrase on the toboggan.

to-bog'gan, v. i.; TO-BOG'GANED (-ănd); TO-BOG'GAN-ING. To coast on a toboggan; to slide rapidly like a toboggan; to decline suddenly and sharply in value, as shares of a corporation.

toboggan cap. A long, knitted, cone-shaped cap, with a tassel or pompon at the apex, worn formerly by toboganners and children.

to-bog'gan-er, to-bog'gan-ist, n. One who toboggans.

toboggan slide or chute. A slide for coasting on toboggans, usually a steep wooden ice-covered chute.

to-bo'sa grass (tō-bō'sȧ). A forage grass (Hilaria mutica) of the southwestern United States.

to-break', v. t. & i. [AS. tō-brecan.] See TO-. Obs.

to-burst', v. t. & i. [AS. tōberstan.] See TO-. Obs. exc. Dial.

To'by (tō'bĭ), n.; pl. -BIES (-bĭz). [From Tobias. See TOBIAH.] 1. Dim. of TOBIAH, TOBIAS.
2. [not cap.] Slang. a Obs. The buttock. b Local, U. S. A kind of inferior, long, slender cigar, tapered at one end.
3. A small jug, pitcher, or mug, generally used for ale, shaped somewhat like a stout man, with a cocked hat forming the brim; hence, so much ale as is served in a Toby.

Toby.

4. Punch's dog in a Punch-and-Judy show, usually wearing a frill with bells to frighten the Devil.

toad'ship, n. See -SHIP.

toadstool disease. = MUSHROOM ROOT ROT.

toad'stool-like', adj. See -LIKE.

toad'wise', adv. See -WISE.

toad'y-ish, adj. See -ISH.

toad'y-ism, n. See -ISM.

toad'y-ship, n. See -SHIP.

To'ah (tō'ȧ). Bib.

toan'er (tōn'ĕr; tō'ȧn-ĕr). Var. of TONER. Dial. Eng.

to'ard (dial. tō'ĕrd), to'art (-ĕrt). Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. vars. of TOWARD.

toase. Var. of TOZE.

toast'a-ble, adj. See -ABLE.

To'bi'jah (tō-bī'jȧ). Bib.

to-bog'an. Var. of TOBOGGAN.

to-bog'gan-eer', n. See -EER.

to-bog'gin. Var. of TOBOGGAN.

to-brast'. Obs. past tense of TOBURST.

to-brost'. Obs. past part. of TOBREAK.

to'by (tō'bĭ), n. [Shelta tobar road, perh. by deliberate inversion fr. Ir. bóthar.] Street; way; highway; also, robbery on such; hence, high toby (cf. HIGHTOBY, in Vocab.), highway robbery by mounted thieves; low toby, such robbery by footpads. Thieves' Slang.

to'by, v. t. To rob on the highway. Thieves' Slang.

To'by, Uncle. See UNCLE TOBY.

Toby Belch, Sir. See BELCH, SIR TOBY.

To'by Fill'pot' jug (tō'bĭ fĭl'pŏt'). = TOBY, 3.

to'by-man (tō'bĭ-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). [toby road + man.] A highwayman. Thieves' Slang.

to'ca-lo'te (tō'kȧ-lō'tā), n. [Var. of CHICALOTE.] A European annual herb (Centaurea melitensis) widely naturalized in the New World and, in California, yielding considerable honey. Calif.

toc-ca'ta (tō-kä'tȧ; It. tôk-kä'tä), n. [It., fr. toccare to touch. See TOUCH.] Music. A brilliant composition, usually for organ or harpsichord, in free fantasia style, generally with many equal-timed notes in rapid movement.

‖toc'ca-ti'na (tôk'kä-tē'nä), n. [It.] A short toccata.

Toc H (tŏk āch). [From the initials of Talbot House, T being called toc in signaling to distinguish it from V, E, P, or B.] An interdenominational Christian organization of men and women for social service and fellowship, having its origin (1915) at Talbot House (named after Gilbert Talbot, a British lieutenant, son of the bishop of Winchester, killed in 1915), a rest and recreation center for soldiers at Poperinghe during the World War. There are branches throughout the British Empire.

To-char'i-an (tō-kăr'ĭ-ăn; -kä'rĭ-), n. [From Tochrĭ, appar. the name of the language in accompanying Uigur documents; identified with Gr. Tocharoi (Strabo), an Asiatic people.] 1. One of a people, of considerable culture and presumably European origin, dwelling in central Asia in the first millennium of the Christian Era, until they were overrun by the Uigurs. They were known to the Greeks and Hindus, and are mentioned in Chinese annals. See UIGUR. 2. The language of the Tocharians, recovered in 1904–08 from inscriptions and manuscripts found in temple ruins in northern Chinese Turkestan. These texts, from as early as the 7th century A.D., are for the most part Buddhistic in content and written in a form of the Indian Brahmi alphabet. The language has been established as a basically Indo-European tongue, with definite affinities to the centum languages of Europe, especially to the Italic and Celtic. There are two dialects, distinguished by phonetics, inflection, and vocabulary, but still obscure in their relationship. They are commonly designated as Tocharian A and Tocharian B, sometimes as Tocharian and Dialect B or Tocharian Dialect. See INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES. — To-char'i-an, adj.

toch'er (tŏk'ĕr), n. [Gael. tochar, tochradh.] Marriage portion; dot. — v. t. To dower; to give a dower or dot to. Scot. & N. of Eng.

tocher band. A marriage agreement or settlement. Scot.

tocher good. That given as dowry. Scot.

-to'ci-a (-tō'shĭ-ȧ; -sĭ-ȧ), -to'ki-a (-tō'kĭ-ȧ). [NL.] Obstetrics. A combining form, Greek -tokia, from tokos, denoting delivery, parturition, as in mogitocia, prosopotocia. Corresponding adjectives are formed in -tocous, -tokous.

tock (tŏk), n. [Pg. toco. See TOCO toucan.] An African hornbill of the genus Lophoceros.

to-cleave', v. t. & i. See TO-. Obs.

to'co (tō'kō), n. [Pg., fr. Tupi toco. See TOUCAN.] A large South American toucan (Ramphastos toco). It is chiefly black, with the rump and throat white, the latter tinged with yellow and bordered with red, and the under tail coverts crimson.

to'co (tō'kō), n. [From imper. of Hind. toknā to stop, check, challenge, blame.] A flogging or thrashing; sometimes a tongue-lashing; — usually in phrase to catch or get toco. Slang, Eng.

toco-. A combining form, Greek toko-, from tokos, meaning childbirth, offspring, as in tocology, toc'o-ge-net'ic, to-cog'o-ny.

To'co-ba'ga (tō'kō-bä'gä), n. An Indian of one of the Timucuan tribes.

toc'o-dy'na-mom'e-ter (tŏk'ō-dĭ'nȧ-mŏm'ē-tĕr; tō'kō-; -dĭn'ȧ-), n. [toco- + dynamometer.] An instrument by means of which the force of uterine puerperal contractions can be measured.

toc'o-kin'in (-kĭn'ĭn), n. [toco- + kin- + -in.] A vegetable extract similar to theelin in producing sexual excitation and related physiological effects.

to-col'o-gy (tō-kŏl'ō-jĭ), n. Also to-kol'o-gy. [toco- + -logy.] The science of obstetrics, or midwifery. — toc'o-log'i-cal (tŏk'ō-lŏj'ĭ-kăl; tō'kō-), adj. — to-col'o-gist (tō-kŏl'ō-jĭst), n.

to-come' (tōō-kŭm'), n. [AS. tōcyme.] The future; futurity. "The long Past, and the infinite Tocome." Hawthorne.

to'co-ro'ro (tō'kō-rō'rō), n. [Sp., from its note.] A Cuban trogon (Priotelus temnurus) having the bill serrated and the tail feathers concave at the end.

toc'sin (tŏk'sĭn), n. [F., fr. Pr. tocasenh, fr. tocar to touch, strike (akin to F. toucher) + senh bell (akin to OF. sein bell), fr. LL. signum, fr. L. signum a sign, signal. See TOUCH; SIGN.] An alarm bell, or the ringing of a bell for the purpose of alarm; any warning signal.

The loud tocsin tolled their last alarm. Campbell.

toc'-toc' (tŏk'tŏk'), n. A repeated dull thud.

toc'-toc', v. i. To make a toc-toc.

to-cus'so (tō-kōōs'ō), n. [Abyssinian tokusso.] A grass (Eleusine tocussa) cultivated in Abyssinia for its grain.

tod (tŏd), n. [Origin unknown.] A fox; hence, a crafty person. Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng.

Take care of the old tod; he means mischief. Stevenson.

tod, n. [Appar. fr. LG. tod, todde, bundle, pack, load.] 1. An old weight for wool. It was usually 28 pounds (12.70 KG.). 2. A bundle or load of wool (also hay, straw, etc.) of such weight or an approximate weight. Now Dial. 3. A bush; a thick shrub or mat, as of ivy; a bushy clump.

tod, v. i. To produce or obtain a tod (of wool, etc.). Obs. exc. Dial.

tod, n. Short for TODDY, U.S.

To'da (tō'dȧ), n. 1. One of an aboriginal people of light complexion and tall stature residing in the Nilgiri hills of southern India, and in Ceylon. They are a peaceful pastoral people, whose religion is organized around the care and veneration of cattle, especially the buffalo. They practice polyandry. 2. The language of the Todas. See DRAVIDIAN LANGUAGES.

To-cha'ric, To-cha'rish, To'-cha-rese'. = TOCHARIAN.

To'chen (tō'kĕn). Bib.

toch'er-less, adj. See -LESS.

to-com'e-ter (tō-kŏm'ē-tĕr), n. [toco- + -meter.] = TOCODYNAMOMETER.

-tocous. See -TOCIA.

to-crush', v. t. See TO-. Obs.

to-cut', v. t. See TO-. Obs.

to-day', to-day' (tōō-dā'; tŭ-; 70), adv. [AS. tō dæge. See TO, prep.; DAY.] 1. On or for this day; on the present day. 2. At the present time; nowadays.

to-day', to-day', n. The present day; also, the present time or age.

to-day'ish (-ĭsh), adj. Of or characteristic of today, or the present.

tod'der (tŏd'ĕr), v. i. Blend of TOTTER & DODDER.

tod'der, n. Spawn. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

tod'dick (tŏd'ĭk), n. [Cf. E. dial. toddy tiny.] A very small quantity; a tiny bit. Dial., U.S.

tod'dit'e (tŏd'ĭt), n. [After E. W. Todd, of Ontario.] Mineral. A niobate containing uranium, iron, etc. and occurring in rounded masses.

tod'dle (tŏd''l), v. i.; -DLED (-'ld); -DLING (-lĭng). [Cf. DODDLE, DADDLE.] 1. To walk with short tottering steps, as a child. 2. a Slang. To take a stroll; to saunter. b To walk; go. c U.S. To dance.

tod'dle, n. 1. Act of toddling; a toddling gait. 2. A toddler. Rare.

tod'dler (tŏd'lĕr), n. One who toddles; esp., a young child.

tod'dy (tŏd'ĭ), n. [Hind. tārī juice of the palmyra tree, fr. tāṛ palmyra tree, fr. Skr. tāla.] 1. The fresh or fermented sap of various East Indian palms. 2. A mixture of spirit (usually specified) and hot water sweetened; as, a rum toddy; also, a glass of such. Cf. GROG, 1.

tod'dy, v. t. To intoxicate with toddy.

toddy bird. Any of several Indian birds, esp. certain weaverbirds and wood swallows, that feed on palm juice.

toddy blossom. Grog blossom. Slang.

toddy cat. A palm civet. India.

tod'dy-ize (tŏd'ĭ-īz), v. t. To toddy.

toddy ladle. The American century plant (Agave americana); — so called from the mistaken idea that it was the chief source of pulque.

tod'dy-man (tŏd'ĭ-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A collector or manufacturer of palm wine.

toddy palm. Any of several wine palms, esp. the jaggery palm (Caryota urens).

toddy stick. A stick knobbed or flattened at the end, used in making toddy.

toddy tree. = TODDY PALM.

tode (tōd), n. [Origin obscure.] A kind of Dutch fishing boat. Obs.

tode (tōd), n. [Origin uncert.] Logging. A rude sled for hauling logs. — v. t. & i. To haul (logs) with a tode.

To'de-a (tō'dē-ȧ; tō-dē'ȧ), n. [NL., after H. J. Todé (1733–97), Ger. botanist.] Bot. A genus of delicate African and Australasian ferns (family Osmundaceae), distinguished from Osmunda by having the sporangia on the underside of the leaf. T. superba, of New Zealand, is the crape fern.

to-deal', to-dele', v. t. [AS. tōdǣlan.] To divide; separate; distribute; distinguish. Obs.

tod-low'rie (tŏd-lou'rĭ), n. [tod fox + Lowrie, Lawrie, a name given to the fox.] A fox or foxlike person. Scot.

to-do' (tōō-dōō'; tŭ-), n. [to + do. Cf. ADO.] Bustle; stir; commotion; ado. Colloq.

There was a great flurry and to-do. Thackeray.

to-draw', v. t.; past tense TO-DROWE'. [See TO-.] Obs. a To pull or tear to pieces. b To protract; to postpone. c To detract.

to-drese', v. i. [AS. tō-drēosan.] To fall away; perish. Obs.

to-dreve', v. t. [AS. tōdrǣfan.] To disperse. Obs to-drive', v. t.; past tense TO-DROF. [AS. tōdrīfan.] Obs. a To drive asunder or away; disperse. b To hew in pieces; shiver.

tod's'-tail' (tŏdz'tāl'), n. The common club moss. Scot.

tod stove. A close stove adapted for burning small round wood twigs, etc. U.S.

to'dy (tō'dĭ), n.; pl. TODIES (dĭz). [F. todier, fr. L. todus a kind of small bird.] a Any of several tiny nonpasserine insectivorous West Indian birds (order Coraciiformes) constituting the genus To'dus. They have a long flattened bill with strong rictal bristles. They nest in holes in banks. The green tody (Todus todus) of Jamaica, which is green with a crimson throat and whitish under parts, is the best-known. The todies constitute a family, To'di-dae (tō'dĭ-dē). b Usually with a qualifying word, any of certain other small brightly colored birds, esp. certain American flycatchers. Cf. KING TODY.

Green Tody (Todus todus).

toe (tō), n. [ME. too, taa, fr. AS. tā, tāhe; akin to D. teen, G. zehe, OHG. zēha, ON. tá, and prob. (with orig. meaning, finger) to Goth. gateihan to show. See DICTION, DIGIT.] 1. One of the terminal members or digits of the foot. In man and most other bipeds the term applies to a digit of a hind or lower limb as distinguished from the fingers of the arm or forelimb, but in quadrupeds generally to a digit of either pair of limbs. 2. The fore part or end of the foot; — opposed to heel. 3. Any part of anything worn on, or attached to, the foot, corresponding to the toe; as, the toe of a boot, skate. 4. That part of a thing which, by its position, formation, outline, etc., suggests a toe; as, the toe of Italy. 5. Agric. The extreme bottom point of a seed trench prepared by a furrow opener of a grain drill. 6. Carp. A board or other part of a structure occupying a low and forward position. 7. Engineering. a The lowest part of the slope of an earth embankment. b The line of contact between the lower or downstream face and the base of a dam. 8. Firearms. The corner of a gunstock which is lowermost when the gun is in firing position. 9. Golf. The outer end of the hitting surface of a club. 10. Mach. a A journal or pivot supported in a step bearing. b A lateral projection at one end, or between the ends, of a piece, as a rod or bolt, by which it is moved; a projecting arm, actuated by a cam, on the valve-lifting rod in the beam type of steam engine. c A projection from the periphery of a revolving piece, acting as a cam to lift another piece. 11. Mining & Quarrying. a The bottom of a bench. b The lower edge of a dump. c The bottom of a drill hole. 12. Organ Building. A metal tip at the lower end of the boat of some wooden pipes. 13. Railroads. The front end of a frog opposite the heel. — on one's toes. Active; busy; full of life; also, alert. — on the light, fantastic toe. In gay dancing movement; — now often without preposition, dancing. — toes up. Dead. — to turn up one's toes. To die.

-toe (-tō). A combining form of the noun toe, as in hammertoe, tiptoe.

toe (tō), v.; TOED (tōd); TOE'ING. Transitive: 1. To furnish with a toe or toes; as, to toe a stocking. 2. To touch, reach, or drive with the toes or with a toe; as, to toe a starting line, a football, or a golf ball. 3. Carp. To drive slantingly or aslant (a nail, spike, rod, or the like); also, to clinch or fasten by or with nails or rods so driven.

—, Intransitive: To stand, walk, or be placed so that the toes are held or turned (in a specified position or direction); as, to toe in or out; to toe in a straight line.

toe the line, mark, etc. To touch with the toes, in standing, a mark indicated as a starting or standing place, or the like; hence, Colloq., to act strictly according to a rule or standard; to come up to the scratch; to stand to one's obligations.

toe'-and-heel', adj. = HEEL-AND-TOE, adj.

toe'-and-heel', v. i. To dance; esp., to do tap dancing, jigging, or the like; — often with it.

toe biter. A tadpole.

toe'board' (tō'bōrd'; 181), n. A board or the like, for the toes, or at the toe, or base, of something; as, the toeboard of a swing; specif.: a pl. The sloping boards in the floor of an automotive vehicle in front of the forward seat. b Athletics. A curved piece of wood fastened to the ground at the front of the circle used for shot putting, throwing the weight, etc., to prevent overstepping.

toe box. A piece of leather or fabric placed between the toecap and lining of a shoe and treated with a gum which hardens after the shoe is lasted permanently. Cf. BOX TOE.

toe calk. = 3d CALK, 1.

toe'cap' (tō'kăp'), n. A piece of leather covering the toe of a shoe and reinforcing or decorating it. — toe'capped' (-kăpt'), adj.

toe clip. 1. A device which fits the toe of a shoe and which is attached to a cycle pedal to receive the foot and keep it from slipping. 2. Smithing. = 2d CLIP, 10.

toe crack. See SAND CRACK.

toed (tōd), adj. 1. Having a toe or toes. 2. Carp. Driven obliquely, as a nail; also, secured by diagonal or oblique nailing, as a board.

-toed (-tōd). A combining form of toed, denoting having (so many or such) toes. Corresponding adverbs are formed in -ly, as web-toed*ly;* corresponding nouns are formed in -ness as web-toed*ness.*

black-toed	one-toed	square-toed broad-toed	parrot-toed	thick-toed curly-toed	pigeon-toed	three-toed five-toed	round-toed	two-toed four-toed	sharp-toed	web-toed long-toed	short-toed	wide-toed narrow-toed	slender-toed	yoke-toed toe dance. A dance executed on the tips of the toes. — toe'-dance', v. i. — toe dancer.

toe distance. Railroads. The distance between the rails at the front end of a frog. Cf. FROG, 14, Illust.

toe dog. Mach. A short piece of bar steel (usually from two to four inches long) having one end flattened and the other cupped to receive the end of the setscrew of a screw plug. It is used esp. for clamping thin work to a table.

toe'-drop' (tō'drŏp'), n. Med. A morbid condition of the foot in which the toe is depressed and the heel elevated. It is due to paralysis of the muscles normally lifting the anterior part of the foot. See TALIPES.

toe hardy. A half-round hardy. See HARDY, Illust.

toe hold. 1. A hold, or place of support, for the toes, as in climbing; hence: a A means of gaining entry, surmounting barriers, or the like; as, this profession does not offer you a toe hold at present. b A slight footing; very little power, influence, territory, etc.; as, at this time the Turks had only a toe hold in Europe. 2. Wrestling. A hold in which the aggressor bends or twists his opponent's foot.

Gotch's Toe Hold.

toe'-in' (tō'ĭn'), n. 1. = CAMBER, 2. 2. Adjustment of the front wheels of an automotive vehicle so that they are closer together at the front than at the back.

toe kissing. A kissing of the toe, esp. the pope's toe, in obeisance. — toe'-kiss'ing, adj. — toe kisser.

toell'ite (tūl'ĭt), n. [From Toell, Tirol.] Petrog. A diorite-porphyrite with phenocrysts of biotite, hornblende, and garnets in a granophyric groundmass.

toe'-mark', v. t. Poultry. To mark (fowls) for identification by punching holes through the membrane between the toes.

toe'nail' (tō'nāl'; 66), n. 1. A nail of a toe. 2. Carp. A toed nail.

toe'nail' (66), v. t. Carp. To clinch or fasten by toed nails; to toe.

toe piling. Logging. Sharpened poles driven next to the upstream face of the mudsills of a dam to prevent water from getting under the foundations.

toe'plate' (tō'plāt'), n. A metal tab attached to the toe of a shoe to prevent slipping or the wear due to heavy use; as, a baseball pitcher's toeplate.

Toep'ler-Holtz' ma-chine' (tûp'lĕr-hōlts'). [After A. Toepler and W. Holtz, Ger. inventors.] Elec. An induction machine having two circular glass plates, the back one being fixed and having on it field plates of tin foil, the front one rotating and bearing on its face several small disks or carriers of tin foil. The collectors are connected with two Leyden jars, which act as accumulators.

toe ring. a A ring worn on the toe. b A ferrule, or a heavy ring, on the end of a cant hook.

toer'ne-bohm'ite (tûr'nĕ-bōm'ĭt; tûr'nĕ-), n. [After A. E. Törnebohm, Sw. geologist.] Mineral. A rare silicate of the cerium metals.

to'e-to'e (tō'ē-tō'ē), n. Often, less correctly, to'i-to'i. [Maori toetoe.] Any of several coarse New Zealand sedges and grasses of the genera Arundo, Cladium, etc.; specif., Arundo conspicua, used for thatching by the Maoris.

toe wall. A low retaining wall; — esp. used of an embankment wall in a railroad cut.

toe weight. A small metal knob attached to a horse's hoof to regulate the gait.

tod'dld. Toddled. Ref. Sp.

tod'dle-kins, n. See -KINS.

tode. ✝ TOAD.

To'di-dae (tō'dĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL.] See TODY.

tod'le. Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TODDLE.

to-drowe', past tense of TO-DRAW. Obs. [TODY.

To'dus (tō'dŭs), n. [NL.] See toe. ✝ TOW.

toe'less, adj. See -LESS.

toe'like', adj. See -LIKE.

toem'bak (tōōm'băk), n. sing. & pl. [D., fr. Bugi & Makassar tumba', lit., heap.] See MEASURE, Table.

toe-punch', v. t. = TOE-MARK.

toe-wan', Var. of TUAN. Chiefly Malaysia.

to′–fall′ (tōō′fôl′), n. Scot. & N. of Eng. a A lean-to. b A hanger-on. c A refuge. d Poetic. The falling (of night).

toff (tŏf), n. [From toft, for tuft. See TUFT, n., 4.] A dandy; swell. Brit. Slang.

tof′fee, tof′fy (tôf′ĭ; 185), n. a Chiefly Brit. Taffy. b U.S. Taffy in which cream is sometimes used instead of butter.

tof′fee-man, tof′fy-man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A taffymaker.

tof′ish (tôf′ĭsh), adj. Also toff′y (-ĭ). Stylish; smart. Brit. Slang.

To-fiel′di-a (tō-fēl′dĭ′ȧ), n. [NL., after Tofield, Eng. botanist.] Bot. A genus of perennial herbs (family Melanthaceae), the false asphodels, found in cool regions. They have linear, chiefly basal leaves, and small spicate sessile flowers with 6 anthers and 3 styles. T. palustris is common in northern North America.

to-fore′ (tōō-fôr′), to-forn′ (tōō-fôrn′), prep., adv. & conj. [AS. tōforan. See TO, prep.; FORE.] Before. Obs.

toft (tŏft; 185), n. [AS., homestead (ME. also, a knoll), fr. ON. topt, tupt (Dan. & Sw. toft)] 1. Now Dial. a The site for (or once used for) a dwelling and outhouses; a homestead. b An entire holding comprising a toft (sense a) and additional, usually arable, land; a messuage; — originally toft and croft.
2. An isolated hill or elevation; a knoll suitable for a house. Now Dial. Eng.

toft′er (tŏf′tĕr), n. The owner of a toft. Dial. Eng.

toft′man (tŏft′măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A tofter.

Toft ware (tŏft). Slip-decorated ceramic ware made by Thomas Toft, 17th-century English potter; hence, any similar slip-decorated ware.

to′fu (tō′fōō), n. [Jap. tōfu.] Bean curd.

tog (tŏg), n. [See TOGGERY.] 1. A coat; an outer garment. Chiefly Thieves' Slang.
2. pl. Clothes; esp. a set of clothes and accessories for a specified use; as, riding or golf togs. Colloq.
Put away his shore togs. Conrad.

tog (tŏg), v. t. & i.; TOGGED (tŏgd); TOG′GING (tŏg′ĭng). To put togs on; to dress; — usually with out or up. Colloq.

to′ga (tō′gȧ), n.; pl. TOGAS (-gȧz), TOGAE (-jē). [L. See THATCH; cf. TOG.] 1. Rom. Antiq. The loose outer garment worn by citizens when appearing in public, consisting of a single broad piece of cloth of a shape approaching a semicircle. It was of undyed wool, except the border of the toga praetexta.
2. Loosely: a A gown, garb, etc., associated with an office or profession; as, to don the toga of a judge. b U.S. Office; specif., senatorship.

Toga.

‖to′ga can′di-da (kăn′dĭ′dȧ). [L. candida white. See CANDID.] Rom. Antiq. The white toga worn by candidates for office.

to′gaed (tō′gȧd), adj. Clad in or as in a toga.

‖to′ga pal′ma′ta (păl′mā′tȧ). [L.] Rom. Antiq. A toga embroidered with a pattern of palm branches, worn on certain ceremonial occasions, such as a triumph.

‖to′ga pic′ta (pĭk′tȧ). [L. picta embroidered.] Rom. Antiq. An embroidered toga worn by a general on his triumph, a magistrate who was giving public games, a consul on entering office (in imperial times), and the emperor on festal occasions.

‖to′ga prae′tex′ta (prē′tĕks′tȧ). [L. praetexta bordered with purple.] Rom. Antiq. A toga with a broad purple border, worn by children, magistrates, persons engaged in sacred rites, and in late times by emperors.

‖to′ga pul′la or sor′di-da (pŭl′ȧ, sôr′dĭ-dȧ). [L. pulla dark gray, sordida soiled.] Rom. Antiq. The dark-gray or dingy toga worn by the lower classes, mourners, and accused persons.

‖to′ga pu′ra (pū′rȧ). [L.] Rom. Antiq. The toga of plain white color, without ornamental border. Cf. TOGA VIRILIS.

to′gat-ed (tō′găt-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Also, Rare, to′gate (-găt). [L. togatus, fr. toga toga.] Togaed; hence, stately; dignified.

‖to′ga vi-ri′lis (tō′gȧ vĭ-rī′lĭs). [L. virilis manly.] Rom. Antiq. The manly toga; the common toga of plain white, without ornament, assumed by boys about the end of their fourteenth year.

to-geth′er (tōō-gĕth′ĕr; tŭ-; 70). adv. [ME. togedere, togidere, fr. AS. tōgædere, tōgædre, tōgadore, fr. tō to + gador together. See TO, prep.; GATHER.] 1. In or into one company, assembly, or body, as persons, or one collection, group, mass, or place, as things; as, to call the members together; to come together for discussion; to gather one's books together.
2. In or into association, union, contact, or collision with each other in or into a specified or implied relationship or connection as of companionship, courtship (Now Dial.), cohabitation, etc.; as, to fasten, mix, or chain together; the foes rushed together; the few occasions on which they were together; to live together.
O youth of the bound black hair,
With whom I was once together. Douglas Hyde.
3. With reference to time: a At one time; coincidently; simultaneously; as, his conflicting aims could never be attained together. b In succession; without intermission; consecutively; on end; as, to work for hours together.
4. By combined action, effort, or the like; conjointly; as, together we forced the door open; the family together earned one hundred dollars a week.
5. In or into agreement, harmony, concert, unison, or the like; as, unable to get together in establishing a policy; the parts of this mechanism work together beautifully.
6. In such a manner or with such an effect as to form or reveal a coherent, integral, or undivided whole; in or into a condition or state where the parts constitute a unit or organic whole, the faculties are dominated by the will, etc.; as, the poem hangs together; you must pull yourself together.
7. With each other; so as to reciprocate (the action of the verb); as, to set friends by the ear together.
8. With special verbs: a Into a small or compact mass; as, to fold, roll, squeeze, etc., something together. b Colloq. As an intensive after add, multiply, join, co-operate, etc.; as, to add a column of figures together. c To each other, because related or because they are parts of the same whole, set, etc.; as, separate things which belong together.
9. As a unit or sum; in the aggregate; as, these examples taken together convince one fully. Used also, following all or other plural noun, with adjectival force equivalent to "taken, considered, referred to, as a whole; counted or summed up"; as, richer than all his brothers together; all together, there were 21 entries. Cf. ALTOGETHER.
— together with. In union with; along with.
Take the bad together with the good. Dryden.

to-geth′er (tōō-gĕth′ĕr; tŭ-), n. Togetherness. G. Meredith.

to-geth′er-ness, n. State or fact of being or belonging together.

tog′ger-y (tŏg′ĕr-ĭ), n.; pl. TOGGERIES (-ĭz). [From tog, pl. togs, fr. TOGEMAN.] Colloq. a Clothes, esp. of a particular kind or set; dress; also, trappings, or harness. b A haberdashery.

tog′gle (tŏg′′l), n. Also tog′gel. [Cf. TUG, v.] 1. Naut. A pin or bolt tapering at both ends with a groove around its middle, fixed transversely in an eye of a rope or chain to be secured to any loop, bight, or ring; a kind of button or frog capable of being readily engaged and disengaged for temporary purposes.
2. Any crosspiece attached to the end of, or a loop in, a chain, rope, line, strap, belt, etc., to prevent slipping, to serve in twisting or tightening, to hold something attached, or the like; as, the toggle of a watch chain; to use a stick as a toggle in tightening a rope; also, a chain, rope, etc., with such a device.
3. A rod or screw with a T-head crosspiece (T-head toggle) or with a cone-shaped compressible nut (conehead toggle) that can pass through a hole in one direction but not in the opposite direction.

1 T-head Toggle; 2 Conehead Toggle.

4. A short length of rope with a swivel and loop, used to tether an animal, esp. a baby kid.
5. In automobiles, a strap or cord fastened to the rear doorpost as a handhold for passengers.
6. Logging. A toggle chain.
7. Mach. A toggle joint, or a device having one; also, one of the bars of a toggle joint.

tog′gle (tŏg′′l), v. t.; TOGGLED (-′ld); TOGGLING (-lĭng). 1. To fasten with or as with a toggle; to hold fast with or as if with a toggle iron.
2. To furnish with a toggle or toggles; also, to mend, as a harness, in makeshift fashion with pieces of rope, etc.
I am at my best a toggled machine in danger of going to pieces at any moment. H. Garland.
— tog′gler (-lĕr), n.

tog′gle, adj. That is, is used as, or is equipped with, a toggle; as, a toggle pin or lanyard.

tog′gle, v. t. & i. To bungle. N. of Eng.

toggle bolt. Mach. A bolt having a nut with pivoted flanged wings that close against a spring when passed through a constricted passage and open after emerging.

toggle chain. Logging. a A device consisting of a short chain with a ring and toggle hook at one end and a ring at the other, for regulating the effective length of a binding chain for a load of logs. b A chain of any length with an end hook small enough to be inserted in a loose link that has been passed through a taut link.

toggle hook. A grabhook with a long shank.

toggle iron or harpoon. Whaling. A harpoon with a pivoted crosspiece in a mortise near the point to prevent it from being drawn out when an animal is harpooned.

Toggle Iron.

toggle joint. Mach. a A device consisting of two bars jointed together end to end but not in line, so that when a force is applied to the knee tending to straighten the arrangement, the parts abutting or jointed to the ends of the bars will experience an endwise pressure which increases indefinitely as the bars approach a straight-line position. It is used in stone crushers, the double wagon brake, some kinds of presses, etc. b A joint consisting of a bar pivoted at its middle point to a supporting bar so that the former may be turned to any position and hence be used for lifting tanks or the like by inserting the bar through a constricted opening and allowing it to assume a position normal to the supporting bar. — tog′gle–joint′, tog′gle–joint′ed, adj.

Toggle-joint Wagon Brake. a Handwheel that turns Female Screw b for raising (or lowering) Male Screw c to apply (or release) Brake Blocks d, d.

toggle press. A toggle-joint press. See PUNCH PRESS.

toggle riveter. A riveter that upsets the stem and forms the rivethead by the action of a toggle mechanism.

tog′less (tŏg′lĕs; -lĭs), adj. Without togs, or clothes for particular occasions.

togs (tŏgz), n., pl. of TOG. Clothes. See TOG, n., 2.

togt (tŏkt), n. [D. togt, tocht, undertaking, enterprise, draft, drawing.] S. Afr. a A trading enterprise. b Hired labor.

togt′–rid′er (tŏkt′rĭd′ĕr), n. [See TOGT.] A transport rider; esp., a man who buys merchandise in town, and trades upcountry for local products. S. Africa. — togt′–rid′ing, n. & adj. S. Africa.

togue (tōg), n. [Can. F., of Algonquian origin, prob. Micmac or Passamaquoddy.] The namaycush. Chiefly Maine.

togue (tōg), n. [See TOGE.] = TOGA, 2 a. Thoreau.

to–hack′, v. t. [AS. tōhaccian.] To hack to pieces. Obs.

to′he-ro′a (tō′hē-rō′ȧ), n. [Maori.] A marine bivalve (Amphidesma ventricosum) of New Zealand, used extensively for food.

to–hew′, v. t. [AS. tōhēawan.] To hew to pieces. See TO-. Obs.

to–hew′en, past part. of TO-HEW. Obs.

to-ho′ (tō-hō′), interj. Hunting. Stop; halt; — a call to dogs. Chiefly Brit.

To′ho-me′ (tō′hō-mā′), n. An Indian of an extinct Muskhogean tribe, of southwestern Alabama, related to the Choctaw.

To′ho-roth′ (tō′hō-rōth′), n. pl. [Heb. ṭĕhārōth, ṭĕhārōth, pl. of ṭāhōrāh purity, purification.] The last of the six orders or sections of the Mishnah.

to′hu-bo′hu (tō′hōō-bō′hōō), n. Also to′hu–bo′hu, tohu and bohu, tohu vabohu, etc. [Heb. tōhū wā bōhū without form and void (Gen. i. 2), fr. tōhū formlessness, confusion + bōhū emptiness.] Chaos; confusion.

to-hu′nga (tō-hōō′ngä; colloq. -hŏŏng′gä), n. [Maori.] A native priest or performer of sacred rites; a wise man; sage; a master craftsman; loosely, a shaman, or medicine man. New Zealand.

toil (toil), v.; TOILED (toild); TOIL′ING. [ME. toilen to pull about, to toil, fr. OF. touillier, toeillier, to pull or drag about, cause to roll or writhe, to make dirty (F. touiller to stir), fr. L. tudiculare to stir, fr. tudicula a small machine for bruising olives, fr. tudes a mallet, fr. tundere to beat. See STUTTER.] Transitive: 1. To pull about or keep pulling about; to tug; rend. Obs.
2. To harass or weary with labor or exertion; to overwork. Archaic. "Many who vex and toil themselves to get what they have no need of." I. Walton.
3. To work on; to till — often with out. Obs.
Places well toiled and husbanded. Holland.
4. To accomplish by great labor; to get or effect with effort.
[I] toiled out my uncouth passage. Milton.
—, Intransitive: 1. To contend in debate or with arms; to make a fight; to struggle. Obs.
2. To exert strength with pain and fatigue, esp. of the body, and with continued effort; to labor taxingly.
3. To proceed or advance with laborious exertion or with much effort or strain.
But they, while their companions slept, Were toiling upward in the night. Longfellow.

toil, n. [AF., turmoil, struggle (OF. toeil, toeil, a struggling, a writhing or wallowing, distress). See TOIL, v.] 1. Contention; turmoil; struggle; broil; battle. Archaic.
Returning from their famous Trojan toils. Shelley.
2. A particular task; a laborious effort; a painful struggle to accomplish an end, "Our toils obscure." Burns. "Various tracts enforce a various toil." Gray.
3. Labor with pain and fatigue; labor that taxes the body or mind, esp. the body. "Servile toil." Milton.
4. Rare. a The product of labor or effort.
Behold Villario's ten years' toil complete. Pope.
b Those who labor; the working class.
To let the Ghost of Gold Take from Toil a thousandfold. Shelley.
Syn. — Labor, drudgery; occupation, employment, task. See WORK.
Ant. — Ease; inactivity; pleasure.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

toil-assuaging	toil-hardened	toil-stricken toil-beaten	toil-marred	toil-weary toil-bent	toil-oppressed	toil-won toil-exhausted	toil-stained toil (toil), n. [F. toiles, pl., toils, nets, fr. toile cloth, canvas, spider web, fr. L. tela any woven stuff, a web; akin to texere to weave. See TEXT; cf. TILLER of a boat, TOILET.]

1. A net or series of nets spread so as to enclose and entrap game already there or driven there as quarry; — usually in pl. Archaic.
Then toils for beasts, and lime for birds, were found. Dryden.
2. Chiefly pl. Any snare or trap that may be likened to a mesh, network, or enclosure; as, a fly in a spider's toils. "Jackson has to be moving speedily to escape the toils [of enclosing enemy forces]." Sir Frederick Maurice.

toil, v. t. To ensnare, entrap, or entangle in or as in toils.

toile (twäl), n. [F.] Cloth; esp., a kind of sheer linen; also, Obs., a canvas.

‖toi′lé′ (twȧ′lā′), n. [F.] Lacemaking. In some laces, a pattern of flat texture resembling woven linen, as contrasted with the net ground.

‖toile′ ci′rée′ (twäl sē′rā′). [F.] Oilcloth, esp. of fine quality.

‖toile col′bert′ (kôl′bär′). [F.] Basket cloth.

toiled (toild), adj. 1. Worn with toil; exhausted; wearied. Now Rare.
2. Tilled; cultivated. Obs.

‖toile′ de Jou′y′ (twȧl′ dē zhōō′ē′). [F., cloth of Jouy.] = JOUY PRINT.

‖toile′ de re-li′gieuse′ (rē-lē′zhyûz′). [F.] Nun's veiling.

toil′er (toil′ĕr), n. One who toils; specif., a laboring man.

toi′let (toi′lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [F. toilette, dim. of toile cloth. See TOIL a net.] 1. Obs. A cloth covering; specif.: a A cloth put over the shoulders while shaving or hairdressing. b A toilet cover.
2. a Now Rare. The equipment for a dressing room or table; a toilet service or set. b A dressing table.
3. Act or process of dressing; esp., formerly, of dressing the hair; now, usually, a cleansing and grooming of one's person; as, to make a careful toilet; also, in the 18th century, the time when a lady completing her toilet received gentlemen callers. Cf. TOILETTE, 2.
The long labors of the Toilet cease. Pope.
4. Toilette, or attire; also, a toilette, or costume. Now Rare.
5. U.S. a A toilet room; a bathroom. b A water closet; esp. the water-flushed bowl and seat for use in defecation and urination.
6. Any cleansing or washing-up; specif., Surg., the systematic cleansing and aseptic dressing of a wound after an operation.
☞ PHRASES are:

toilet article	toilet cabinet	toilet hardware
toilet atomizer	toilet case	toilet mirror toilet bottle	toilet cup	toilet sponge toilet brush toi′let, v. i. To make one's toilet.

toi′let, adj. Pertaining to or used in the toilet; as, toilet powder, soap.

toilet cloth or cover. A covering of linen, silk, or tapestry spread over a toilet table.

toi′let-ed (toi′lĕt-ĕd; -lĭt-ĭd; 119), adj. Also toi′let-ted Having made one's toilet; also, wearing (such) a toilette; costumed.

toilet glass. A looking glass for a toilet table or dressing room.

toilet paper. A thin paper for use in toilet rooms, etc.

toilet powder. A fine powder, usually with soothing or antiseptic ingredients, used to sprinkle or rub over the skin of the body, as after bathing, usually distinguished from powder used as a cosmetic for the face.

toilet room. A room for making the toilet; a bathroom or lavatory esp. one with a toilet (sense 5 b).

toi′let-ry (toi′lĕt-rĭ; -lĭt-rĭ), n. pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [See -RY.]
1. A making of a toilet. Rare.
2. An article or preparation used in making one's toilet; — a general term in use in the trade.

---

toffee dipper. See DIPPER. toff′ing, n. See 3d -ING. to-frush′, v. t. See TO-. Obs. toft′stead (tŏft′stĕd), n. = TOFT, 1 a. Dial. Eng. to′fus (tō′fŭs), n. [L., tufa. See TUFA.] Tophus. Obs. & Ref. Sp.
tog. ✝ TUG, v.
to′ga-like′, adj. See -LIKE.
To-gar′mah (tō-gär′mȧ). Bib.
to-ga′ta (tō-gä′tȧ), adj. See COMOEDIA TOGATA. to′ga-wise′, adv. See -WISE. togd. Togged. Ref. Sp. toge (tōg), n. [F., fr. L. toga. See TOGA.] A toga; a coat or cloak. Obs. tog′ed (tōg′ĕd), adj. Togaed. Obs. toge′man (tōg′măn), n. [toge + man.] A coat or cloak. Obs. Slang. togen, past part. of TEE, draw. Obs. to-geth′er-hood, n. See -HOOD. to-geth′er-i-ness, n. = TOGETHERNESS. to-geth′ers (tōō-gĕth′ĕrz; tŭ-), adv. Together. Obs. togge. ✝ TUG. [TORPID, n., a.] Tog′ger (tŏg′ĕr), n. Corrupt. of tog′gle-joint′ press. Mach. See PUNCH PRESS. toght. ✝ TAUGHT, THOUGHT, TAUT.
To′gi-ag′miut (tō′gē-ȧg′mūt), n. See ESKIMO. to-go′, v. i. [AS. tōgān.] To go asunder; part; disperse. Obs.
To′hu (tō′hū). Bib.
To′i (tō′ĭ; toi), n. = 2d TI a.
To′i (tō′ĭ; -ĭ). Bib. toild. Toiled. Ref. Sp.
toile. ✝ TOOL.
Toilers of the Sea. See TRAVAILLEURS DE LA MER.

---

toilet service. The small articles as brush, comb, mirror, nail file, etc., used in making the toilet.

toilet set. a The vessels used in connection with a washstand. b A toilet service.

toilet soap. Hard soap for the toilet, prepared very often by milling. See MILL, v. t., 12; SOAP, 1.

toilet table. A dressing table.

toi·lette' (toi·lĕt'; F. twä'lĕt'), n. [F.] 1. A toilet table. Rare.
2. A toilet (sense 3); usually, a lady's toilet including bathing, hairdressing, application of cosmetics, and costuming.
"That evening over her toilette." Galsworthy.
3. Attire; esp., formal or fashionable attire; fashion of dressing; hence, a particular attire or costume; a lady's gown; as, noting each detail of her toilette; a display of toilettes.

toi'let·ware' (toi'lĕt·wâr'; toil'ĭt-), n. Merchandise comprising articles for the equipment of dressing room or table or bathroom.

toilet water. A perfumed liquid, usually weakly alcoholic, as cologne or Florida water, used in or after a bath, or as a freshener of the skin.

toil'ful (toil'fŏŏl; -fĭ), adj. Full of, or involving, toil; laborious; toilsome; as, toilful care. — toil'ful·ly, adv.

toi'li·net', toi'li·nette' (toi'lĭ·nĕt'), n. [F. toilinet. See TOIL a net.] A cloth for waistcoats, with filling of woolen yarn and warp of cotton and silk.

toil'ing (toil'ĭng), adj. That toils. — toil'ing·ly, adv.

toil'some (-sŭm), adj. 1. Attended with toil or fatigue; laborious; wearisome.
2. Rare. a Resulting from toil. Spenser. b Toilful.
— toil'some·ly, adv. — toil'some·ness, n.

toil'-tried' (-trīd'), adj. Affected by toil; toilworn. Hardy.

toil'worn' (-wôrn'; 181), adj. Worn out with toil.

to'ing and fro'ing (tōō'ĭng, frō'ĭng). A going or carrying to and fro. Rare.

toise (twäz), v. t.; TOISED (twäzd); TOIS'ING (twäz'ĭng). [F. toiser.] To eye; to look (a person) over. A Gallicism. Rare.

toise (toiz), n. [F., fr. VL. tesa, tensa, fr. L. tendere, tensum, to stretch, extend. See TENSE, adj.] See MEASURE, Table.

‖toi'sech (thō'shĕk), n. [Gael. tōiseach.] In ancient Scotland among the Celts, a personage of high rank; later, a chief of a clan.

‖toi'son' (twä'zôN'), n. [F.] A sheep's fleece.

‖toi'son' d'or' (dôr'). [F.] Literally, the Golden Fleece; specif., la Toison d'or, the order of the Golden Fleece, or its jewel. See ORDER, n., 1.

toit (toit), n. A small seat or hassock; also, a settle. Dial. Eng.

toit (toit), v. i. To totter; saunter; dawdle. Scot. & N. of Eng.

toit'ish (toit'ĭsh), adj. Also toit'y (-ĭ). Irritable. Dial. Eng.

to ka·lon' (tō kä·lŏn'). [Gr.] The beautiful; beauty. See BEAUTY, n., 4.

To·kay' (tō·kā'), n. [From Tokay, Hungary.] 1. A rich sweet grape of oval shape and whitish or purplish color.
2. a A moderately strong wine of a topaz color, produced in the vicinity of Tokay, in Hungary. Of the different Tokay wines, the To·ka'ji Sza'mo·rod'ni is rather dry; To·ka'ji As'su is sweet, and the To·ka'ji Es'sen·cĭ·a is the richest, best, and rarest. b A similar wine produced in California and elsewhere.

to·kay', n. A Malayan house lizard (Gekko gecko); — so called from its cry.

toke (tōk), n. Food, esp. bread, or a portion of it. Slang, Eng.

toke (tōk). Var. of TOOK, past tense of TAKE. Now Dial.

to'ken (tō'kĕn), n. [ME. token, taken, fr. AS. tācen, tācn; akin to OFris. tēken, OS. tēkan, D. teeken, G. zeichen, OHG. zeihhan, ON. teikn, Goth taikns sign, token, and ult. to Gr. deiknynai to show. See DICTION; cf. DIGIT, 2d POLICY, SYNDIC, TEACH, TEEN.] 1. An outward indication or expression; a visible sign; ocular or sensible evidence or proof; as, there were no tokens of his profound grief.
A merchant of Lisbon . . . permitted himself some tokens of hilarity at the defeat of the Armada. Motley.
2. Something that serves as a symbol or emblem; a symbolic act or thing; as, uncovering is a token of respect; a white flag is a token of surrender.
3. A divine or miraculous sign; hence, an omen; a portent; an advance sign. "Who sent tokens and wonders into the midst of thee, O Egypt." Ps CXXV. 9. "The token of waning night." Shelley.
4. A signal; a prearranged sign. Archaic.
He that betrayed him had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he. Mark xiv. 44
5. A distinguishing mark, or feature; a characteristic.
Do you not read some tokens of my son
In the large composition of this man? Shak
6. Something given or shown as a symbol or guaranty of one's authority, right, identity, etc.; a sign of authenticity, power, or good faith.
Give me some token for the surety of it. Shak.
7. Something given or treasured as a memento; a gift evidencing esteem, affection, regret at parting, etc.; a souvenir; a keepsake.
A handkerchief, an antique token my father gave my mother. Shak.
8. a A piece of metal intended for currency issued at a nominal or face value in excess of its real value; hence, any piece of currency similarly issued or current. The term token is chiefly applied to the pieces of metal formerly commonly issued by tradesmen to serve as currency, but in a broad sense is applied to coins, bills, or other medium of exchange, issued at a nominal redeemable value in excess of the real value, as the fractional silver currency, copper and nickel coins, paper notes, etc. The issuing of tokens by private persons is now made illegal in the United States and Great Britain and her colonies. Cf. HARRINGTON, JETTON, 2d COUNTER, 2. b The metal fare or ticket issued by a transportation company.
9. Coal Mining. A disk or strip of metal or leather having a peculiar mark designating a particular miner, sent with each corf or tub hewn or conveyed. Eng.
10. Eccl. A piece of metal given beforehand as a warrant or voucher to each person permitted to receive the Communion. In Scotland tokens were later superseded by cards. Brit. Chiefly Hist.
11. Med. A livid spot upon the body, indicating, or supposed to indicate, the approach of death. Obs.
12. Print. Formerly: a A quantity of paper sufficient for printing 250 impressions or for one hour's work on the hand press. It varied from half a ream (10 quires) to 11 quires. b A unit of presswork from one form. In some localities, as in Great Britain and New York, it was 250 impressions. In others, as Boston, Mass., it was 500 impressions. Any fraction of a token was reckoned as a full token.
13. Weaving. In a Jacquard loom, a colored signal to show the weaver which shuttle to use.
Syn. — See EMBLEM.
— by token, by the same token, or by this token. a For the same reason. b Also; furthermore; — introducing an additional statement that confirms, enforces, is related to, or bears upon, what has been said. Cf. more by token, under MORE, adv.

to'ken (tō'kĕn), v. i. [AS. tācnian; akin to G. zeichnen, and to AS. tācen token. See TOKEN, n.] 1. To betoken; to serve as a sign of; to signify; symbolize. Archaic.
2. To betroth; — chiefly in passive, to be engaged. Dial.

token book. A book listing parishioners receiving Communion tokens. See TOKEN, n., 10. Hist.

token coin. = TOKEN MONEY, 1.

to'kened (tō'kĕnd), adj. 1. Marked with a token.
2. Engaged, or betrothed. Dial.

token money. 1. Also token silver, etc. Money, silver (coin), etc., which is current for more than its intrinsic value.
2. Eccl. An offering, as Easter dues, paid by one receiving his Communion token.

token payment. A partial payment made upon a debt, as one between nations, intended to show the payer's good faith and to be an acknowledgment of the existence of the obligation.

token ring. A ring given as a token; esp., an engagement ring.

token sheet. Print. Formerly, the last sheet of each token, turned down to help in counting.

to'ken·worth' (tō'kĕn·wûrth'), n. The amount which a token is worth. Obs.

to'ko (tō'kō), n. [Malay; cf. Jav. tuku buy.] A shop or store, usually one kept by Chinese. Dutch E. Indies.

to'ko. Var. of TOCO, a flogging.

to'ko·no'ma (tō'kō·nō'mä), n. [Jap.] A nichelike recess opening from the living room of a Japanese house, in which a kakemono may be hung.

to'ko·pat' (tō'kō·păt'), n. [Assamese thokopat bunch of leaves.] An East Indian palm (Livistona jenkinsiana) the leaves of which are used for making the umbrellalike hats of the natives in Assam.

tok'-tok'kie (tŏk'tŏk'ĭ), n. Also tok'tok'je (-yĕ). [Imitative.] Any of several African beetles (genus Psammodes) of the family Tenebrionidae.

To'kyo (tō'kyō), n. a Capital of Japan. b Figuratively, the government of Japan.

tol (tōl), n. [Hind. & Beng. ṭol, Oriya ṭola.] A Sanskrit school or college. India.

tol-. Chem. = TOLU-.

to'lan (tō'lăn), n. Also to'lane (-lān). [From TOLUENE.] Chem. A white crystalline hydrocarbon, $C_6H_4.C_2C.C_6H_5$, obtained artificially; diphenyl-acetylene.

tol'booth', tol'booth' (tŏl'bōōth'; -bōō*th'), n. [ME. tolbothe. See TOLL tax; BOOTH stall, shed.] 1. A place where tolls are paid; tollhouse; customhouse. Obs.
2. A town or market hall. Chiefly Scot.
3. In Scotland, a burgh, town, or city, jail; hence, a prison.

‖tol'de·ri'a (tŏl'dā·rē'ä), n. [Sp. See TOLDO.] A village or encampment of Indians. Argentina.

tol'–de–rol' (tŏl'dĕ·rŏl'; -rōl'), n. A nonsense refrain in some old lusty songs; hence, an exclamation, outburst, or song of such character.

tol'do (tŏl'dō), n. [Sp.; akin to F. taudion, fr. taudis, fr. MF. tauder, taudir, of Teut. origin. See TELD.] A South American Indian tent or hut.

tole (tōl), v. t. To toll or entice. See 3d TOLL, 1. Dial.

tole (tōl). Dial. past tense of TELL.

To·le'dan (tō·lē'dăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Toledo. — n. A native or inhabitant of Toledo.

To·le'do (tō·lē'dō), n.; pl. -DOS (-dōz). A kind of sword or sword blade famous for its fine temper, made at Toledo in Spain.

Toledo tables. = ARZACHEL'S TABLES.

Toledo War. U. S. Hist. A dispute, 1835, between Ohio and Michigan, as to the boundary between them esp. involving the town of Toledo. Civil war threatened for a brief time, but the Federal government effected a compromise which included the admission of Michigan as a State (1837).

tol'er·a·ble (tŏl'ĕr·ȧ·b'l), adj. [F. tolérable, fr. L. tolerabilis. See TOLERATE.] 1. Capable of being borne or endured; supportable, either physically or mentally; as, tolerable but not agreeable heat; a scarcely tolerable state of affairs.
2. Capable of being suffered or permitted; sufferable; allowable. Obs.
3. Moderately good or agreeable; merely acceptable; fairly satisfactory; passable; as, a tolerable administration, entertainment, or translation.
4. In moderately good health; fairly well. Dial.
— tol'er·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — tol'er·a·ble·ness, n. — tol'er·a·bly, adv.

tol'er·a·ble, adv. Tolerably. Now Dial.

tol'er·ance (tŏl'ĕr·ȧns), n. [F. tolérance, fr. L. tolerantia.] 1. The act or practice of, or capacity for, bearing suffering or hardship; endurance. Now Rare.
Diogenes, one terrible frosty morning, came to the market place, and stood naked, quaking, to show his tolerance. Bacon.
2. The act, practice, or habit of tolerating; the quality of being tolerant; specif., the disposition to tolerate, or allow the existence of, beliefs, practices, or habits differing from one's own; now often, freedom from bigotry; sympathetic understanding of others' beliefs, etc., without acceptance of them; as, there was little religious tolerance in the 17th century, yet Sir Thomas Browne had the virtue of tolerance in a marked degree.
3. A specified allowance for error in weighing, measuring etc., or for variations from the standard or given dimensions, weight, or the like. Specif.: a Coinage. The amount which coins, either singly or in lots, are legally allowed to vary above or below the standard of weight or fineness. b Mach. The maximum allowable error in the value of the quantity indicated, as by a testing machine; specif., the difference between the two limiting sizes as a means of specifying the degree of accuracy. Tolerance is distinguished from allowance in that the former is merely a specification of the required degree of accuracy, of a part whereas the latter is a difference between the dimensions of mating parts which is essential for successful functioning. Cf. SCREW-THREAD TOLERANCE. c Transportation. The amount allowed for the difference of weight between shipments and billed weight, usually a percentage that varies with the commodity, owing to differences in scales or methods of weighing.
4. Forestry. Capability of growth in more or less shade.
5. Med. The constitutional or acquired capacity to endure shock, a poison, or, esp., a food or drug which may be harmful if taken in excess; the power of resistance to such, or the point at which such resistance ends; also, the amount of a drug, which may be so tolerated; as, a patient's tolerance for digitalis; of a food, the amount which may be ingested without excretion of any of it; as, a diabetic's low tolerance for sugar.
Syn. — TOLERANCE, INDULGENCE. TOLERANCE implies an attitude of (esp. intellectual) forbearance with reference to views, opinions, or actions with which one is not opeself fully in sympathy; INDULGENCE suggests more positively the gratification of desires, wishes, or appetites, or the relaxation of restraint; as, a large tolerance of differing creeds; a genial indulgence of others' whims; cf. self-indulgence. Cf. ALLOW, GRATIFY.
Ant. — Bigotry, intolerance.

tol'er·an·cy (tŏl'ĕr·ȧn·sĭ), n. [L. tolerantia.] The quality of tolerance (sense 2).

tol'er·ant (-ȧnt), adj. [F. tolérant, fr. L. tolerans, pres. part. of tolerare to tolerate. See TOLERATE.] 1. Inclined to tolerate; favoring toleration; characterized by tolerance; forbearing; indulgent.
2. Rare. a Susceptible (of). b Of or pertaining to tolerance, or amount allowed or tolerated.
3. Biol. Capable of sustaining unfavorable environment.
4. Forestry. Capable of growth in more or less shade.
5. Med. Capable of enduring or resisting the action of a drug, shock, or the like; esp., capable, through long use, of enduring without injury large doses of a drug, as morphine.
— tol'er·ant·ly, adv.

tol'er·ant, n. A tolerant person; one who tolerates or advocates toleration.

tol'er·ate (tŏl'ĕr·āt), v. t.; TOL'ER·AT'ED (-ā'tĕd; -ĭd; 119); TOL'ER·AT'ING (-ā't'ĭng). [L. toleratus, past part. of tolerare, fr. the same root as tollere to lift up, tuli, used as perf. of ferre to bear, latus (for tlatus), used as past part. of ferre to bear; akin to Gr. tlēnai to bear, tlētos, tlatos, bearing, enduring, to be endured. See THOLE, v.; cf. ATLAS, COLLATION, DILATORY, ELATE, EXTOL, LEGISLATE, OBLATE, PRELATE, RELATE, SUBLATION, SUPERLATIVE, TAEL, TALENT, TELAMON, TOLL tax, TOLL to take away, TRANSLATE.]
1. To bear up under; to endure; Obs. exc. Med., to endure or resist, esp. without injurious effect, the action of, as a poison.
2. To suffer to be, or to be done, without prohibition or hindrance; to allow or permit negatively, by not preventing; as, to tolerate doubtful practices.
Crying should not be tolerated in children. Locke.
3. To bear the existence of through indifference or lack of interest; to put up with.
Only that is real which men love and rejoice in; not what they tolerate, but what they choose. Emerson.
Syn. — See ALLOW. Ant. — See FORBID.

tol'er·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [F. tolération, fr. L. toleratio.] 1. Act or practice of tolerating; specif., the policy, usually governmental policy, of permitting the existence of all (or given) religious opinions and modes of worship contrary to, or different from, those of the established church or belief; recognition of the right of private judgment, esp. as to religious matters. See ACT OF TOLERATION.
2. A legal permission or authorization; a license. Obs.
3. Rare. a = TOLERANCE, 2. b = TOLERANCE, 3 a. c Med. = TOLERANCE, 5.

tol'er·a'tion·ism (-Iz'm), n. Advocacy or support of toleration. — tol'er·a'tion·ist (-ĭst), n. & adj.

tol'er·a'tive (tŏl'ĕr·ā'tĭv; -ȧ·tĭv), adj. That tolerates; permissive.

tol'er·a'tor (-ā'tĕr), n. [LL.] One who tolerates.

tol'er·ism (-Iz'm), n. Tolerationism. Borrow.

Tol'e·tan (tŏl'ē·tăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Toledo [L. Toletum] in Spain; Toledan.

tolf·rae'dic (tŏlf·rē'dĭk), adj. [Icel. tölfræthur duodecimal, fr. ON. tölfræthr. See TWELVE; and the 2d element in HUNDRED.] Pertaining to the ancient Scandinavian scale of notation on the basis of a hundred consisting of twelve tens (later it became a combination of the decimal and duodecimal scales).

tol·gua'cha (tŏl·gwä'chȧ), n. [Sp. toloache, toloachi, fr. Nahuatl toloatzin, fr. toloa to bow the head + -tzin, suff. indicating respect or affection.] a The narcotic annual herb Datura meteloides, used ceremonially by certain Californian Indian tribes. b Any of several related species of Datura.

tol'i·dine (tŏl'ĭ·dēn; -dĭn), n. Also -din. [From TOLUENE.] Chem. Any of several isomeric bases, $C_{13}H_{14}(CH_3)_2$-$(NH_2)_2$, dimethyl derivatives of benzidine. Specif., orthotolidine or o-tolidine (4,4′-diamino-3,3′-dimethylbiphenyl), a pearly crystalline compound obtained indirectly from toluene and used in making dyes.

toll (tōl), n. [ME. tol, fr. AS. toll, also tolne, like OFris. tolne, D. tol, OS. tol, tolna, G. zoll, OHG. zol, ON. tollr (Sw. tull, Dan. told), fr. LL. tolonium, fr. L. teloneum tollhouse, fr. Gr. telōnion, fr. telōnēs a tax collector, fr. telos a tax; akin to Gr. tlēnai to bear See TOLERATE; cf. TOLBOOTH.] 1. A tax or due paid for some liberty or privilege, particularly for the privilege of passing over a highway, as a road or bridge, for that of keeping a booth, vending goods, etc., in a fair, market, or other limited place, as a manor, for importing or exporting goods, etc.
A large part of the [old English] borough's revenue was derived from tolls, if we may use that term in its largest sense to include passage, pontage, lastage, stallage, boothage, ewage, tronage, scavage, and the like. Pollock & Mait.
2. The right to take toll; also, formerly, in England, the right of a lord to levy a tallage or tax upon his villeins.
3. A compensation taken for services rendered; specif.: a Now Dial. A portion of grain taken by a miller as his fee. b A charge for transportation or conveyance; as, railway tolls. c A charge for a long-distance call on a telephone.
4. That which is exacted or taken, as if toll; specif., number of casualties; as, a battle's heavy toll.
5. Short for TOLLGATE. Scot.

---

tol'let·ted, adj. Var. of TOILETTED.

tol'less, adj. See -LESS. — tol'less·ness, n.

toil'ous, adj. Laborious. Obs.

toil'sum. Toilsome. Ref. Sp.

toist, n. ✝ TYSTE.

to'i·toi' (tō'ē·tō'ē; colloq. toi'toi'), n. Var. of TOETOE.

·oke. ✝ TUCK.

To'ke·la'u (tō'kĕ·lä'ōō), n. See AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES, Table.

Tokelau ringworm. [From Tokelau islands in the South Pacific.] = TINEA IMBRICATA.

to'kend. Tokened. Ref. Sp.

to'ken·le s, adj. See -LESS.

To·kha'ri (tō·kä'rĭ·rē), n. = TOCHARIAN, n., 2; — called also Kuchean. [Var. of TOCHARIAN.]

To·khar'i·an (-kär'ĭ·ăn; -kä'rĭ-). ·to'ki·a. Var. of -TOCIA.

to·kol'o·gy (tō·kŏl'ō·jĭ). Var. of TOCOLOGY. [GODS, -TOCIA.]

-to·kous, -to·ky. Vars. of -TOCOUS, -TOCY.

toil. ✝ TOLL, to take away; TOOL.

to'la (tō'lä), n. [Hind. tolā.] See WEIGHT, Table.

To'la (tō'lȧ). Bib.

To'lad (tō'lăd). Bib.

To'la·ites (tō'lȧ·īts), n., pl. Bib.

tol'a·mine' (tŏl'ȧ·mēn'; tōl'ȧ·mĕn; -mĭn; 157), n. [tol- + amine.] = CHLORAMINE, 3.

Tol'ba·nes (tŏl'bȧ·nēz; tōl·bā'nēz). Bib. [of TELL.] told (tōld), past tense & past part.

told. Tolled. Ref. Sp.

tole. ✝ TOLA; TOLL; TOOL.

Toledan liturgy. See LITURGY, 1.

To·le'do·an (tō·lē'dō·ăn), n. & adj. = TOLEDAN.

tol'er·a·bl. Tolerable. Ref. Sp.

tol'er·a·blish (tŏl'ĕr·ȧ·blĭsh), adj. See -ISH.

tol'er·ant·ism, n. See -ISM.

Toleration Act. = ACT OF TOLERATION.

Toletan tables. = ARZACHEL'S TABLES.

tolibant. ✝ TURBAN.

tolipane. ✝ TURBAN.

tol'ite (tŏl'ĭt), n. See TRINITROTOLUENE.

tolk, tolke. ✝ TULK.

6. Short for TOLL CALL. Cf. def. 3 c, above.
Syn. — Tax, custom, duty, impost.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

toll agent	toll inspector	tollpenny toll clerk	tollmaster	tolltaker toll farmer

toll (tōl), v. Intransitive: 1. To take toll; to raise a tax or duty. Rare.
Well could he [the miller] steal corn and toll thrice. Chaucer.
2. To pay toll or tallage. Rare. Shak ——, Transitive: To collect or exact as or by way of toll; to take toll from (a person, grain, etc.).
toll (tōl), v.; TOLLED (tōld); TOLL'ING. [ME. tollen, tullen. See TILL, to draw, TILL a drawer.] Transitive: 1. Also tole. To draw (one) by attraction; to lure along; to entice; allure.
Whatever you observe him to be more frighted at than he should, tole him on to by insensible degrees, till at last he masters the difficulty. Locke.
Specif.: a To entice (game, esp. wild ducks) to approach by arousing their curiosity, as by the antics of a trained dog. b To scatter (bait) for attracting fish; to chum.
2. To draw by tugging; to pull; to drag. Obs.
3. To pull (a bell) so as to sound a summons, signal, or the like; specif., and now usually, to cause (a deep-toned bell) to sound single strokes spaced at regular intervals, esp. in announcement of a death or the progress of a funeral.
4. Hence: a To sound or strike by tolling or as if tolled; as, the clock tolls the hour. "The curfew tolls the knell of parting day." Gray. b To announce by tolling; also, to ring a toll for; as, to toll a friend's death or a departed friend.
5. To draw or summon by or as by means of a tolling bell.
Forlorn! the very word is like a bell
To toll me back from thee to my sole self. Keats.
——, Intransitive: 1. Rare: a To be pulled, drawn, or, as game, decoyed. b To hunt ducks or game by tolling, or decoying.
2. To sound or ring, as a bell, with strokes uniformly repeated at intervals, as to announce the death of a person, during a funeral, or (often toll in) to call a congregation into the church for the beginning of a service.
toll, n. 1. A lure or decoy. Obs.
2. The sound of a bell produced by strokes slowly and uniformly repeated.
toll (tōl), v. t. [AF. toller, fr. L. tollere. See TOLERATE.] O. Eng. Law. To take away; to vacate; to annul. toll, n. A clump of trees. Dial. toll (tŏl), n. sing. & pl. [Estonian, fr. G. zoll.] See MEASURE, Table.
toll'a·ble (tōl'ȧ·b'l), adj. Subject to the payment of toll.
toll'age (-ĭj), n. 1. Toll; also, payment or exaction of toll.
2. Tallage. Obs. toll bait. Chopped bait thrown out to attract fish. Local, U. S. toll bar. A bar, beam, gate, or the like, used at a tollhouse to stop passengers, etc.
toll board. 1. Railroads. A board or schedule of rates put up for public convenience. Eng.
2. Teleph. A telephone switchboard used mainly for establishing connections over toll lines.
toll'book' (tōl'bo̍ŏk'), n. A register of goods for sale or of tax dues. Obs.
toll bridge. A bridge for passing over which toll is paid.
toll call. A long-distance telephone call at charges above a local rate.
toll collector. a A tollgatherer. b A registering device for indicating the number passing through a turnstile or gate. c In a gristmill, a contrivance for the automatic separation of the toll (see 1st TOLL, 3 a) from the grist. toll corn. Corn taken as pay for grinding at a mill. toll dish. A dish for measuring toll in mills.
toll'er (tōl'ẽr), n. [AS. tollere, also tolnere.] A tollgatherer; also, a mechanical toll collector in a gristmill.
toll'er, n. One who or that which tolls; specif.: a A dog trained for use in tolling (see 3d TOLL, v. t., 1 a). b One who tolls a bell; also, a bell suitable for tolling. toll'er·y (tōl'ẽr·ĭ), n. Rare. a Toll collection. b Tollhouse. toll'gate' (-gāt'), n. A gate across a road, etc., where toll is taken. toll'gath'er·er (-găth'ẽr·ẽr), n. Toll collector; taxgatherer; publican (sense 1). toll'house' (-hous'), n.; pl. -HOUSES (-houz'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). 1. A tolbooth; esp., a town hall. Now Local Eng.
2. A house where a tollgatherer is stationed, esp. such a house at a tollgate or at the end of a toll bridge.
tol'li·ker (tŏl'ĭ·kẽr), n. Hat Mfg. A boxwood implement for glossing silk hats. toll'ing (tōl'ĭng), n. 1. Act of one that tolls, or lures. Now Rare exc. specif.: a The decoying of birds by a dog that tolls. Cf. PIPER, n., 7. b Use of toll bait in fishing; also, pl., toll bait.
2. Act of one who tolls a bell; also, the sound so produced.
3. A peculiar sound said to be made by the queen bee before the swarming occurs. Scot.
toll'keep'er (-kēp'ẽr), n. The keeper of a tollgate or tollhouse. toll line. A long-distance telephone line used in making toll calls. toll'man (tōl'mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A tollgatherer. tol'-lol' (tŏl'lŏl'), adj. [From TOLERABLE.] Soso; fair; tolerable. — tol'-lol'-ish (-ĭsh), adj. Both Colloq.
tol'-lol'-de-rol' (tŏl'lŏl'dē·rŏl'; -rōl'), n. A nonsense refrain used as an exclamation of pleasure.
toll road. A road for the use of which a toll is taken.
toll thorough. Eng. Law. Toll taken by a town for beasts driven through it, or over a bridge or ferry maintained at its cost.
toll traverse. Eng. Law. Toll paid for passage or traffic over the private ground, bridge, ferry, or the like, of another.
toll turn. Eng. Law. A toll paid at the return of beasts from market.
tol'ly (tŏl'ĭ), n. [Cf. TALLOW.] a A candle. b A cane. c A spire. — v. t. To light candles after hours. All School Slang, Eng.
Tol'mer's grass (tŏl'mẽrz). [After A. Tolmer.] A tall, Australian sedge (Lepidosperma gladiatum) with rigid, much-flattened stems. to·lo'sa wood (tō·lō'sȧ). [From Tolosa, near Hobart, Tasmania.] A Tasmanian tree or shrub (Pittosporum bicolor), family Pittosporaceae; also, its wood.

Tol'o·wa (tŏl'ō·wȧ), n. An Indian of an Athapascan coast tribe of Del Norte County, California.
tol·ox'y- (tŏl·ŏk'sĭ-). Chem. A combining form, tol- + oxy-, denoting presence of the univalent radical $CH_3C_6H_4O$-; tolyloxy-. There are three varieties (o-, m-, and p-). tol'patch (tŏl'păch), n. [G. tolpatsch, fr. Hung. talpas, lit., big-foot.] A foot soldier. — tol'patch'er·y (-păch'ẽr·ĭ), n. Carlyle. tol'sel. Var. of TOLSEY. Obs.
tol'ses'ter (tŏl'sĕs'tẽr; tōl·sĕs'tẽr), n. [toll tax + ME. & AS. sester, a measure, fr. L. See SEXTARIUS.] O. Eng. Law. A toll paid to the lord by a tenant for liberty to brew and sell ale. tol'sey (tŏl'zĭ; -sĭ), tol'zey (-zĭ), n. [ME. tollsell, tollseld, fr. AS. toll tax + sele, sel, hall, seld seat. See TOLL tax.] A tolbooth, also, a merchants' meeting place, or exchange. Chiefly Hist.
Tol·stoy'an, Tol·stoi'an (tŏl·stoi'ăn; tŏl'stoi-), adj. Of or pertaining to Leo Nikolaevich Tolstoy (1828–1910). — n. A follower of Tolstoy, who advocated and practiced manual labor, simplicity of living, nonresistance, etc., held that possession of wealth and ownership of property are sinful, and in religion rejected all teachings not coming from Christ himself.
Tol'stoy·ism (tŏl'stoi·ĭz'm; tŏl·stoi'-), n. The doctrines or practices of the Tolstoyans. — Tol'stoy·ist(-ĭst), n. & adj.
tolt (tōlt), n. [AF. tolte, fr. ML. tolta, fr. L. tollere to take away.] O. Eng. Law. A writ by which a cause pending in a court-baron was removed into a county court.
tolt, n. [Cf. dial. towte a low rounded hill.] An isolated peak rising abruptly. Newfoundland.
Tol'tec (tŏl'tĕk), n. An Indian of the earliest of the Nahuatlan tribes to invade central and southern Mexico. Through contact with the Mayas, they laid the foundations of Nahua culture. They disappeared before later invasions of peoples of their own stock. Cf. MAYA, NAHUA, TEOTIHUACAN.
Tol'tec, adj. Toltecan.
Tol'tec·an (-ăn), adj. a Of or pertaining to the Toltecs b = TEOTIHUACAN. tol'ter (tŏl'tẽr), v. i. [Cf. D. touteren, AS. tealtrian, and E. TOTTER.] To totter or hobble; to move clumsily or heavily. Scot. & Dial. Eng. tol'ter, adj. Tottery. Scot. to·lu' (tō·lōo'; 277), n., or tolu balsam. [Sp. tolú, fr. the seaport Santiago de Tolú, Colombia.] Balsam of Tolú. tol'u- (tŏl'ū-), tol-. Chem. A combining form of tolu, denoting relation to toluene or to toluic acid, as in tol'u·ni'trile, tol'u·quin·al'dine.
tol'u·al'de·hyde (tŏl'ū·ăl'dē·hīd), n. [tolu- + aldehyde.] Chem. Any of four aldehydes (o-, m-, p-, and α-), corresponding to the four toluic acids. See PHENYLACETALDEHYDE.
tol'u·ate (tŏl'ū·āt), n. Chem. A salt or ester of any of the toluic acids. tol'u·ene (-ēn), n. [tolu + benzene.] Chem. A light, mobile, colorless, liquid hydrocarbon, $C_6H_5CH_3$, of the aromatic series, originally made by distilling tolu balsam; methylbenzene. Toluene is chiefly obtained from coke-oven vapors and by distillation of coal tar. It is used in the manufacture of dyes and other compounds. to·lu'ic (tō·lū'ĭk; tŏl'ū·ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating any of four isomeric acids, $C_7H_7CO_2H$, carboxyl derivatives of toluene. Of these acids, three, called respectively orthotoluic, metatoluic, and paratoluic, are obtained as white crystalline compounds by oxidation of the three corresponding xylenes, and otherwise. The fourth is called a-toluic, or phenylacetic, acid (see PHENYLACETIC).
tol'u·ide (tŏl'ū·īd; -ĭd; 157), n. Also -id. Chem. Any of a series of compounds, $RCONHC_6H_4CH_3$, analogous to the anilides and derived from toluidine by the substitution of an acid radical for hydrogen in the amino group. to·lu'i·dine (tō·lū'ĭ·dēn; -dĭn; 157), n. Also -din. Chem. Any of three isomeric amino derivatives of toluene, $CH_3C_6H_4NH_2$, analogous to aniline and called orthotoluidine, metatoluidine, and paratoluidine, the first two being liquids and the third a white crystalline compound. They are chiefly obtained by reducing the corresponding nitrotoluenes and are used in making dyes. Ortho*toluidine* is also used in ore flotation and as an accelerator in vulcanizing rubber.
to·lu'i·do- (-dō-). Chem. A combining form of toluide, denoting: a Usually, = TOLUINO-. b Presence of the bivalent radical $CH_3C_6H_4N<$, of which toluidine is the hydride. — to·lu'i·do (-dō), adj.
to·lu'i·no- (-nō-). Chem. A combining form of toluidine, denoting presence of the univalent radical $CH_3C_6H_4NH$-, of which toluidine is the hydride. There are three varieties, o-, m-, and p-. See TOLUIDINE tol'u·ol (tŏl'ū·ōl; -ŏl), or -ole (-ōl), n. [tolu- + benzol.] Toluene, esp. in crude commercial form.
to·lu'ric ac'id (tō·lū'rĭk). [toluic + uric.] Chem. Any of three isomeric crystalline acids, $C_7H_7CO.NH.CH_2CO_2H$, distinguished as ortho-, meta-, and para-toluric acids. They are toluyl derivatives of glycine. tolu tree. The tree Myroxylon balsamum of northern South America, which yields tolu. Its wood has a red center, and an aromatic rose odor.
tol'u·yl (tŏl'ū·Il), n. [toluic + -yl.] Chem. The univalent acid radical C_7H_7CO, the varieties of which correpond to the different toluic acids. Cf. TOLUIC. tol'u·yl·ene (tŏl'ū·ĭ·lēn), n. a Stilbene. b Tolylene. tol'yl (tŏl'Il), n. [toluic + -yl.] Chem. The univalent radical $CH_3C_6H_4$, of which toluene is the hydride. There are four varieties, ortho-, meta-, para- tolyl, and α-tolyl (usually called benzyl).
tol'yl·ene (tŏl'ĭ·lēn), n. Chem. a The bivalent radical $CH_3C_6H_3$, of which toluene is the hydride. There are several varieties. b Benzal; — called specif. α-tolylene. c Improperly, the bivalent radical $C_6H_4(CH_2)_2$, one of the xylylenes. tol'yl·ene·di'a·mine' (-dī'ȧ·mēn'; -dī'ȧ·mēn; -mĭn; 157), n. Also -min. Chem. Any of several isomeric crystalline bases, $CH_3C_6H_3(NH_2)_2$, derived from toluene. Two are used in dye manufacture.
Tol'y·peu'tes (tŏl'ĭ·pū'tēz), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tolypeuein to wind, fr. tolypē a ball; — because the animal rolls itself into a ball.] Zool. The genus of South American armadillos containing the apar. — tol'y·peu'tine (-tĭn; -tīn; 156), adj. & n.
Tom (tŏm), n. 1. Short for, and diminutive of, Thomas; — a masculine proper name often used generically like Jack; as, Tom, Dick, and Harry.
2. Short for: a TOM O' BEDLAM. b GREAT TOM. c TOM OF LINCOLN. d TOM QUAD. e [not cap.] TOMFOOL. f Slang. TOMATO.
3. [not cap.] At gleek, the jack of trumps. Obs. exc. Hist.
4. [not cap.] The male of certain animals; — often used adjectively or in composition; as, tom turkey, etc.; specif., a male cat; a tomcat.
5. [not cap.] A distance piece or small shore, as between frames in shipbuilding.
6. [not cap.] See PURSE NET.
7. Mach. [not cap.] = TOMMY, n., 8.
8. Mining. An inclined trough in which gold-bearing earth or gravel is crudely washed; — usually called long tom, because it is longer than the rocker.
tom (tŏm), v. t.; TOMMED (tŏmd); TOM'MING. 1. [cap.] To call (one) Tom; to address (a person) familiarly.
2. To separate, support, etc., by a tom, or distance piece; — often with off.
Tom. Var. of TOOM. Obs. exc. Scot.
Tom, Uncle. See UNCLE TOM.
To'ma (tō'mȧ), n. sing. & pl. One of a Negro people in adjacent parts of Liberia and Sierra Leone, numbering about 40,000.
-to·ma (-tō·mȧ). [NL.] Zool. A combining form from Greek entoma, insects, denoting a genus, esp. of insects, marked by a (specified) type of segmentation, as in Neo*toma,* Pleuro*toma.*
tom'a·hawk (tŏm'ȧ·hôk), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Virginian tomahack, Lenape tomahikan ax, hatchet.]
1. A light ax used both as a missile and as a hand weapon by the North American Indians. Tomahawks include also the pipe tomahawk, a combination of tobacco pipe and ax. The aboriginal stone or copper weapon was early replaced by trade tomahawks of iron introduced by the whites. Cf. CALUMET, POGAMOGGAN.

Pipe Tomahawk, trade type.

2. In Australia, the stone hatchet of the aborigines; an ordinary hatchet.
— to blow tomahawks. To blow cuttingly and violently; — of a wind; hence, tomahawk-blow, a strong, cutting wind. — to dig up or bury the tomahawk. = to dig up or to bury the hatchet. See HATCHET, n., 1.
tom'a·hawk, v. t.; -HAWKED (-hôkt); -HAWK'ING. 1. To cut, strike, or kill, with a tomahawk.
2. To criticize or attack savagely; to assail mercilessly.
Battered, hacked, scalped, tomahawked as I have been for three years. Hannah More.
3. To cut (sheep) in unskillful shearing. Australia.
— tom'a·hawk'er (-hôk'ẽr), n.
tom'al'ley (tŏm'ăl'ĭ), n. The liver of the lobster, which becomes green when boiled. to·man' (tō·mȧn'), n. [Per. tūmān, fr. Turki tūman very many, ten thousand.] 1. A Persian gold coin, varying in value with the changes in the value of silver and with the demand for the gold pieces. Cf. PAHLAVI.
2. Among the Mongols, Tatars, etc., a military division of 10,000 men. tom'an (tŏm'ăn), n. [Gael., fr. tom. See TOMB.] A mound or hillock. Scot. to·man' (tō·mȧn'), to·mand' (-mȧnd'), n. [Ar. teman.] See WEIGHT, Table.
Tom and Jerry. a Corinthian Tom and his friend Jerry Hawthorn, a pair of rakes and sporting men in Pierce Egan's novel (1821) Tom and Jerry, or Life in London. b A hot sweetened drink of rum and water spiced with cinnamon, cloves, etc., and beaten up with eggs.
Tom'-and-Jer'ry, adj. [See TOM AND JERRY.] Designating a low tavern.
Tom'-and-Jer'ry, v. i. To indulge in drunken roistering.
to'ma·til'lo (tō'mä·tē'yō; -tē'yō; 170), n. [Sp., dim. of tomate tomato.] In Spanish America, a small variety of tomato; also, any of several fruits resembling a small tomato, esp. in the genera Solanum, Physalis, Lycium, etc. to·ma'to (tō·mā'tō; tō·mä'tō; 277: cf. POTATO), n.; pl. -TOES (-tōz). [Sp. tomate, fr. Nahuatl tomatl.] 1. a A South American perennial herb (Lycopersicon esculentum) widely cultivated, usually as an annual, for its fruit. It has interruptedly pinnate leaves and yellow flowers. b Its large rounded or oblate pulpy berry which is red or yellow when ripe. c One of these fruits served raw or cooked as a vegetable; as, sliced tomatoes; also, a dish of cooked, esp. stewed, pulp of tomatoes; as, to pass the tomato; to serve tomatoes with the dinner.
2. Any other species of Lycopersicon; also, its fruit.
3. The color tomato red.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tomato bouillon	tomato ketchup	tomato sauce tomato can	tomato-leaf, adj.	tomato scalder tomato-colored	tomato packer	tomato transplanter tomato-growing, adj.	tomato paste	tomato trellis tomato hanger	tomato pulp	tomato-washing, adj.
tomato juice	tomato purée tomato black rot. = NAILHEAD SPOT. tomato blight. = WESTERN TOMATO BLIGHT. tomato curly top. = WESTERN TOMATO BLIGHT. tomato eggplant. A tropical annual herb (Solanum integrifolium) sometimes grown for its white flowers and scarlet or yellow, inedible fruit resembling the eggplant but smaller. tomato fern. See FERN, Table.

tomato fruitworm. The bollworm.
tomato gall. A large irregular yellowish-green or reddish gall on the grapevine produced by a small two-winged fly (Lasioptera vitis).
tomato hawk moth. A tobacco hawk moth. Cf. TOMATO WORM. tomato leaf blight. Plant Pathol. A very common and destructive fungous disease of the tomato caused by Septoria lycopersici. tomato leaf mold. Plant Pathol. A fungous disease caused by Cladosporium fulvum, esp. severe in greenhouse cultures and in field crops in warm humid regions. All parts of the plant are attacked, the leaves showing yellowish spots above and a purplish mold beneath. tomato mosaic. Plant Pathol. A virus disease of the tomato. See MOSAIC, 7. tomato red. A color, reddish red-yellow in hue, of very high saturation and medium brilliance; — called also tomato. Cf. COLOR. — to·ma'to-red', adj.
tomato sphinx. = TOMATO HAWK MOTH.

toll'booth'. Var. of TOLBOOTH.
Tol'le·tan (tŏl'ē·tăn), adj. [L. Toletanus.] Toledan. Obs. toll'-free' (66), adj. See -FREE. toll'hall', n. = TOLBOOTH. Obs. tol'lon (tō'yŏn; 170). Var. of TOYON. tol'men (tŏl'mĕn). Var. of DOLMEN. to·lu'i·dide (tō·lū'ĭ·dīd; -dĭd), n. Also -did. Chem. = TOLUIDE. toluidine red. See DYE, Table. to·lu'i·di'no- (-dē'nō-). = TOLUINO-, — to·lu'i·di'no (-nō), adj.
Tol'u·if'er·a (tŏl'ū·ĭf'ẽr·ȧ), n. [NL. See TOLU; -FEROUS.] Bot. Syn. of MYROXYLON. tol'u·sal'ra·mine (tŏl'ū·săl'ĭ·rȧ·mēn; -mĭn; 157), n. Also -min. Chem. See SAFRANINE, 1. tol'u·ta'tion (-tā'shŭn), n. [L. tolutim on a trot.] A pacing or ambling. Obs.
tol'u·yl·ene·di'a·mine', n. Also -min. Chem. = TOLYLENEDIAMINE. [= TOLUIC.] tol'u·yl'ic (tŏl'ū·Il'ĭk), adj. Chem. to'ly. ✝ TULY.
tol'zey, n. Var. of TOLSEY. tom'a·hawked. Tomahawked. Ref. Sp. [TAMALE.] to·ma'le (tō·mä'lē). Var. of Tom'-a-lin' (tŏm'ȧ·lĭn'), n. Var. of TAM LIN. Sometimes erroneously written Tom'-a-Lin'coln.
Tom'-and-Jer'ry·ism, n. See -ISM. to·ma'sha. Var. of TAMASHA.
Tom'-a'-Stiles' or -Styles' (tŏm'ȧ·stīlz'). See RICHARD ROE. to'ma'ta·ku'ru (tō'mä'tä·kōō'rōō). Var. of TUMATAKURU.

tomato streak. Plant Pathol. A virus disease of tomatoes believed to result from a mixed infection of potato mosaic and tomato mosaic, characterized by dark elongated streaks on stems and petioles and necrosis of the leaves at first in spots but later becoming general.

tomato stripe. = TOMATO STREAK.

tomato wilt. Plant Pathol. a A destructive fungous disease of the tomato caused by Fusarium lycopersici. b A bacterial disease caused by Phytomonas (syn. Pseudomonas) solanacearum.

tomato worm. A tobacco worm of either of the two species; — so called when found feeding on the tomato plant.

tomato yellows. = WESTERN TOMATO BLIGHT.

tomb (tōōm), n. [ME. tomb(e), toumbe, tumb, fr. AF. tumbe, OF. tombe, fr. LL. tumba, fr. Gr. tymbos sepulchral mound; akin to MIr. tomm hillock, L. tumere to swell, tumidus swollen, tumor a swelling, tumulus a mound, tumultus a tumult, Skr. tavas strong, tumra strong, fat. See THIGH, THUMB; cf. CATACOMB, THOUSAND, TUMEFY, TUMOR, TUMULT, TUMULUS.] 1. A cavity in which a corpse is deposited; a grave; now, Poetic, any place of interment; the last resting place.
2. A house, chamber, or vault, formed wholly or partly in the earth or entirely above ground, for the reception of the dead. "In a tomb of marble stones." Chaucer.
3. A monument, as in a church, erected to enclose the body and preserve the name and memory of the dead; also, Rare, a cenotaph.
4. A tomblike structure or building; specif., the Tombs, the city prison of New York.
5. R.C.Ch. An altar cavity for relics.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tomb-black, adj.	tomb maker	tomb-robbing, adj.
tomb-breaker	tomb-making, adj.	tomb-strewn tomb-dwelling, adj.	tomb-paved	tomb tower tomb, adj. Of or serving as a tomb.

tomb, v. t.; TOMBED (tōōmd); TOMB'ING (tōōm'ĭng). To place or enclose in or as in a tomb; to bury; entomb.

tom'bac (tŏm'băk), n. Also tom'back, tom'bak, tam'bac. [F. and Pg.; F. tombac, fr. Pg. tombac, fr. Malay têmbaga copper, fr. Skr. tāmraka.] An alloy consisting essentially of copper and zinc, used for cheap jewelry, gilding, etc. One kind of white tombac contains arsenic. All of its varieties are in composition brass. In the form of foil it is often called Dutch metal, or gold. Cf. BRASS, n., 1.

tom-bac' (tŏm-băk'). Var. of TUMBAK, tobacco.

tomb'al (tōōm'ăl), adj. Of, pert. to, or serving as, a tomb.

tomb bat. Any Old World emballonurine bat of the genus Taphozous which inhabits caves and tombs, especially the Egyptian species (T. perforatus).

tom-bé' (tŏm-bā'), n. [Prob. of S. W. Amer. Ind. origin.] A large Indian drum. Southwestern U. S.

tomb house. Tomb; mausoleum.

tomb'ic (tōōm'ĭk), adj. Tombal.

tom'bo-la (tŏm'bō-lä), n. [It.] A kind of lottery or game in which each number of a set or series on one card must be drawn to win. Cf. LOTTO.

tom'bo-lo (-lō), n. [It., prop., tumble, cushion. See TUMBREL, TUMBLE.] A sand-and-gravel bar or reef which connects an island with the mainland.

tom'boy' (tŏm'boi'), n. [Tom + boy.] 1. Obs. a A rowdy; a boisterous boy. b A strumpet; a harlot.
2. A romping girl; a hoyden.

tom'boy'ful (tŏm'boi'fōōl; -fl'), adj. Tomboyish. Rare.

tom'boy'ish (-ĭsh), adj. Being or playing the tomboy; hoydenish. — tom'boy'ish-ly, adv. — tom'boy'ish-ness, n.

Tom Brown's School Days (brounz). A story (1857) of British public-school life, by Thomas Hughes. It was followed by Tom Brown at Oxford. Tom Brown is represented as a hearty young fellow, the typical British schoolboy and undergraduate.

tomb'stone' (tōōm'stōn'), n. An inscribed stone placed horizontally over a grave; a ledger; also, any gravestone, or monument; headstone.

tom'cat' (tŏm'kăt'; 66), n. [Tom + cat.] A male cat.

tom'cod' (-kŏd'), n. [Tom + cod.] a Any of several small fishes of the genus Microgadus closely resembling the common codfish except in size, esp. M. tomcod of the Atlantic coast, and M. proximus of the Pacific coast, of North America. b Local U. S. = KINGFISH a. c Calif. The bocaccio.

Tomcod (Microgadus tomcod).

Tom Col'lins (kŏl'ĭnz). A mixed drink of gin, sugar, lime or lemon juice, and soda or Seltzer water.

Tom'-come-tick'le-me, n. An old card game.

Tom Cox's trav'erse (kŏk's'ĭz). Naut. A method of shirking one's full share of work by prolonging each task; — often used in the phrase, "working Tom Cox's traverse — three times round the longboat and a pull at the scuttle butt." Slang.

Tom, Dick, and Harry. Persons taken at random; the common run of humanity; when modified by every, every body; everyone; — often derogatory.

Tom Drum. See DRUM, JOHN.

tome (tōm), n. [F., fr. L. tomus, fr. Gr. tomos a piece cut off, a part of a book, a volume, akin to Gr. temnein to cut. See CONTEMN, TONSURE, cf. ANATOMY, ATOM, ENTOMOLOGY, EPITOME, THESIS, -TOMY.] 1. A volume forming part of a larger work; also, any book; now, usually, a ponderous volume.
2. R.C.Ch. A papal letter containing a dogmatic pronouncement; — used only in specific instances; as, the Tome of St. Leo, a letter defining the Church's teaching on the two natures of Christ. Hist.

tome. Var. of TAUM.

-tome (-tōm). A combining form, Greek -tomon, from tomos, a cutting, the agent or result of cutting, denoting: a A part or section, as in angio*tome,* gono*tome.* b A cutting instrument; — used chiefly in surgery, as in micro*tome,* pharyngo*tome.* c An intersecting line, as in isc*tome.*
☞ Corresponding adjectives are formed with -tom'ic as in gastro*tomic.*

to-melt', v. i. To melt completely. See TO-. Obs.

to'ment (tō'mĕnt), n. Tomentum.

to-men'tose (tō-mĕn'tōs; tō'mĕn-tōs), adj. [NL. tomentosus, fr. L. tomentum a stuffing of wool, hair, or feathers; cf. F. tomenteux.] Covered with densely matted hairs; as, a tomentose leaf.

to-men'tous (tō-mĕn'tŭs), adj. Tomentose.

to-men'tu-lose (-tū-lōs), adj. Minutely or slightly tomentose.

to-men'tum (tō-mĕn'tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tä). [L.] 1. Bot. Pubescence composed of densely matted, woolly hairs.
2. Anat. A flocculent investment of the deep surface of the pia mater, made up of minute blood vessels.

Tomes's fibers or fibrils (tōmz'ĭz). [After Sir John Tomes (1815–95), Eng. dental surgeon.] Fibers extending from the odontoblasts into the dental canals; dentinal fibers. See DENTINE.

tom'fool' (tŏm'fōōl'), n. [Tom + fool.] 1. Now Rare. Often Tom Fool. a A half-wit; a mental defective. b A buffoon in a play, pageant, etc.; a professional clown.
2. One lacking in sense or good judgment; a great fool; blockhead.
3. The Jamaican rainbird (Saurothera vetula).
4. A Jamaican tyrant flycatcher (Myiarchus stolidus).

tom'fool' (tŏm'fōōl'), v. i. To act the tomfool. — v. t. To make a tomfool of. Both Colloq.

tom'fool' (66), adj. Extremely foolish, stupid, or doltish; also, of, from, or characteristic of, a tomfool or tomfools.

tom'fool'er-y (tŏm'fōōl'ĕr-ĭ), n.; pl. -ERIES (-ĭz). 1. Foolish or ridiculous trifling; nonsensical behavior or speech; nonsense; as, to indulge in tomfoolery.
2. Any act, practice, speech, or thing regarded as nonsensical, foolish, or useless. "Race horses and football and tomfooleries of that sort." S. Kaye-Smith.
3. Specif., silly or trumpery trifles, ornaments, or the like. "My absurd craze for filling the house with tomfoolery." J. K. Jerome.

tom'fool'ish (-ĭsh), adj. Given to tomfoolery; nonsensical. — tom'fool'ish-ness, n.

tom hurry. A skua gull. Local, Eng.

to'mi-al (tō'mĭ-ăl), adj. Zool. Pertaining to the tomium.

to-min' (tō-mēn'), n.; pl. TOMINES (-mē'nās). [Sp. tomín, fr. Ar. thumn one eighth. Cf. TOMINI, TOUMNAH.] 1. See WEIGHT Table.
2. A silver coin of certain South American countries; esp., the ⅕ boliviano of Bolivia. See COIN, Table.

to'mi-ni' (tō'mē-nē'), n. [Ar. thumni belonging to one eighth. Cf. TOMIN.] See MEASURE, Table.

tom'ish (tōm'ĭsh), adj. Suggesting a tome, or large volume, in size, weight, or the like.

To-mis'to-ma (tō-mĭs'tō-mä), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tomos cutting + -stoma.] Zool. A genus of gavials including one living species. See GAVIAL.

to'mi-um (tō'mĭ-ŭm), n.; pl. TOMIA (-ä). [NL., fr. Gr. tomos sharp, cutting.] Zool. The cutting edge of the bill of a bird.

Tom Jones (jōnz). The familiar title and hero of a novel (1749) by Fielding, The History of Tom Jones, a Foundling. He is goodhearted, frank, generous, and manly, but prone to lapses from virtue. He turns out to be an illegitimate nephew of Squire Allworthy, his benefactor, is made the Squire's heir, and marries the fair Sophia Western.

tom'kin post (tŏm'kĭn). In a grinding mill, the post which forms the fulcrum for the bridgetree.

Tom'mer (tŏm'ĕr), n. An actor who plays only in Uncle Tom's Cabin. — Tom'ming (-ĭng), n. Theatrical Slang, U. S.

tom'my (tŏm'ĭ), n. [From THOMAS.] 1. [cap.] Familiar for, and diminutive of, THOMAS.
2. A loaf or hunk of bread; a ration of bread; also, provisions; specif., the food carried by workmen as their daily allowance. Military Slang, & Dial. Eng., & Scot.
3. a Goods given to a workman instead of money wages; also, the truck system; the exchange of labor for goods instead of money; — hence, tommy master, one who pays his workmen by the truck system; tommy shop or store, a shop or store conducted on the tommy system; tommy system, the truck system etc. b Short for TOMMY SHOP, TOMMY SYSTEM, etc. See sense a.
4. A simpleton; a fool. Dial. Eng.
5. A tomcat. Colloq.
6. Pewter solder.
7. A Tommy Atkins; a British soldier.
8. Mech. A short rod used as a key, esp. one for turning a capstan screw.

tom'my, v. t. To subject to, or oppress by, the tommy, or truck, system.

Tommy and Grizel. See SENTIMENTAL TOMMY.

Tom'my At'kins (ăt'kĭnz). [From Thomas Atkins, fictitious name used as model in official blank forms for private soldiers.] Any white regular soldier of the British Army; also, such soldiers collectively.

tom'my-bag' (tŏm'ĭ-băg'), n. A bag in which one's tommy, or daily allowance of food, is carried. Slang & Dial.

tommy bar. Mach. A bar used as a tommy to turn bolts, screws, etc.

tommy book. A book recording one's account with a tommy shop. Slang & Dial.

tom'my-cod' (tŏm'ĭ-kŏd'), n. A tomcod. Colloq.

tommy day. The opening day of a tommy shop. Slang & Dial.

tommy hole. Mach. A hole in a piece in which to insert the end of a tommy to turn it.

tommy master. See TOMMY, 3 a.

tommy noddy. A tomnoddy.

tom'my-rot' (tŏm'ĭ-rŏt'), n. [tommy + rot.] Rank foolishness or nonsense. Slang.

tommy shop or store. See TOMMY, n., 3 a.

tommy system. See TOMMY, 3 a.

tom'nod'dy (tŏm'nŏd'ĭ), n. [Tom + noddy.] 1. The puffin Fratercula arctica. Chiefly Scot.
2. A fool; dunce; noddy.

tom'noup' (tŏm'nōp'), n. The greater titmouse. See TIT-MOUSE. Local, Eng.

Tom o' Bed'lam (ō bĕd'lăm). Formerly, a deranged wandering mendicant discharged as incurable from Bethlehem (Bedlam) Hospital, Eng.; hence, a wandering mendicant, either mad or feigning to be so; a madman; a bedlamite.

Tom of Lin'coln (lĭng'kŭn). A famous bell (also called Great Tom of Lincoln) which hangs in the central tower of Lincoln Cathedral, England. It weighs 5 tons 8 cwt. It was cast in 1835, in part from an older bell (Old Tom of Lincoln), which was cast in 1610 and weighed 4 tons 18 cwt.

To-mop'ter-is (tō-mŏp'tĕr-ĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tomos a cut + pteron wing (but taken to mean, fin).] Zool. A genus of transparent free-swimming marine annelids having long deeply divided or forked parapodia. It constitutes a family, Tom'op-ter'i-dae (tŏm'ŏp-tĕr'ĭ-dē).

Tomopteris (T. smithii). a Female containing Eggs; b One of the Parapodia; c Tail.

to-morn' (tōō-môrn'), n. & adv. [to, prep. + morn.] Tomorrow. Archaic & Dial.

to-mor'row (tōō-môr'ō; tŭ-; 70; 185), adv. Also to-mor'row. [to, prep. + morrow.] On or for the day after today; on or for the morrow. — to-mor'row-ness, n.

to-mor'row, n. Also to-mor'row. The day after the present; the morrow.

One today is worth two tomorrows. Franklin.

to-mor'row-er (-ō-ĕr), n. A procrastinator.

to-mor'row-ing (-ĭng), adj. Procrastinating.

to-mo'sis (tō-mō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tomos a cut + -osis.] Plant Pathol. A disease of cotton characterized by the fraying and perforation of the leaves.

-to-mous (-tō-mŭs). A combining form, Greek -tomos, from tomos a cut, denoting cut or divided in a (specified) way, used chiefly in Bot. & Mineral, as in poly*tomous.*

Tom Pepper. Naut. A remarkable liar. Slang.

Tom Pinch. See PINCH, TOM.

tom'pi-on (tŏm'pĭ-ŭn), n. 1. Var. of TAMPION.
2. An inking pad used in lithography.

Tom'pi-on, n. A watch, esp. one made by Thomas Tompion (1639–1713). Now Chiefly Hist.

tom'pip'er (tŏm'pĭp'ĕr), n. A piper; — familiarly so called.

Tom Poker. A child's bogy.

tom pudding. The European dabchick. Local, Eng.

Tom Quad (kwŏd). The great quadrangle of Christ Church College, Oxford; — so called from Great Tom (which see).

Tom Saw'yer (sô'yĕr). The familiar title and boy hero of a novel (1876) by S. L. Clemens ("Mark Twain"), The Adventures of Tom Sawyer, a story of American boy life in a small Missouri town about the middle of the 19th century. His comrade in adventure is Huckleberry Finn. See HUCKLEBERRY FINN.

Tom Tailor. 1. Any tailor; the tailor as a type.
2. [not cap.] Stormy petrel. Eng.

Tomtate.

tom'tate (tŏm'tāt), n. A Florida and West Indian grunt (Bathystoma rimator); also, any of various allied species.

Tom Thumb (thŭm). 1. A legendary diminutive personage celebrated in English literature. A ballad of his adventures, printed in 1630, places him in King Arthur's court.
2. Charles Sherwood Stratton (1838–83), a famous dwarf, born at Bridgeport, Conn.; — a pseudonym given to him by P. T. Barnum, who exhibited him in public. Queen Victoria additionally entitled him "General." When first exhibited he was 2 feet high and weighed 16 pounds; he afterwards increased somewhat in height and became stout. In 1863 he married Lavinia Warren, a dwarf.
3. Hort. A dwarf type, race, or individual; — often used attributively; as, Tom Thumb peas; specif.: a Eng. The meadow pea. b Eng. The male orchis.

Tom Thumb nasturtium. The dwarf nasturtium.

Tom Tid'dler's ground (tĭd'lĕrz). In a children's game, a space marked off for the chief player, Tom Tiddler, and invaded, if chance permits, by the others, who then sing, "We're on Tom Tiddler's ground, picking up gold and silver"; hence, any place, as a no man's land, where pickings may be sought or had without effective interference.

Tom Ti'ler, Ty'ler (tĭ'lĕr). Obs. a Any Tom, Dick, or Harry. b A henpecked husband.

tom'tit' (tŏm'tĭt'; tŏm'tĭt'), n. [See TOM; 3d TIT.] a Local, Eng. A titmouse; esp., the blue titmouse. See TIT-MOUSE. b Local, Eng. The wren. c Ir. The tree creeper. d New Zealand. A miro (bird).

tom'-toe' (-tō'), n. The great toe. Dial.

tom'-tom' (tŏm'tŏm'), n.; pl. TOM-TOMS (-tŏmz'). [See TAM-TAM.] 1. Either of two instruments of percussion known for the harshness and monotony of their tones, and now used somewhat in orchestras for certain effects: a A kind of drum of barbaric Eastern origin, of several types and shapes, but commonly beaten with the hands. b Usually tam-tam. A metallic disklike instrument made of an alloy of copper and tin and beaten with a drumstick or felted hammer; a Chinese gong. See GONG, 1.

Tom-tom, 1 a.

2. In extended use: a Something used to make a noise suggestive of the tom-tom's beating. b Any insistently monotonous beating, rhythm, or rhythmical sound.

tom'-tom', v. i. To sound a tom-tom, esp. as a signal; to make tom-tom sounds. — v. t. To sound on the tom-tom; to play or execute on or as if on a tom-tom.

tom'-tom', adj. Of or pertaining to the tom-tom; characteristic or suggestive of the tom-tom.

Tom Tower. The tower at Christ Church, Oxford University, in which the bell known as Great Tom hangs.

Tom Tram (trăm). A jester; a professional fool.

tom'-trot' (tŏm'trŏt'), n. A kind of toffee. Eng.

Tom Tul'li-ver. See TULLIVER, MAGGIE.

Tom Truth. One who tells the plain truth; a blunt person.

-tomy. [Gr. -tomia (as in artĕriotomia arteriotomy), fr. tomē a cutting; akin to Gr. temnein to cut. See TOME.] A combining form meaning a cutting, as in ana*tomy* specif., Surg., an operation of incision or section, as in arterio*tomy,* poly*tomy,* stereo*tomy.*
☞ Corresponding adjectives are formed with -tomic, to-maun' (tō-môn'). Var. of TOMAN, the coin.

---

tom'-ax', n. [tomahawk + ax.] = TOMAHAWK. Rare. Johnson.

tombd. Tombed. Ref. Sp.

tombester. † TUMBESTER.

tom'ble. † TUMBLE.

tomb'less (tōōm'lĕs; -lĭs), adj. See -LESS.

tomblester, n. = TUMBESTER. Obs.

tomb'let, n. Dim. of TOMB.

tomb'like', adj. See -LIKE.

Tomb of Ha'dri-an (hā'drĭ-ăn). See CASTEL SANT' ANGELO.

tom'boy-ism, n. See -ISM.

tome. † TOMB, TOOM.

tome'ful (tōm'fōōl), n.; pl. TOMEFULS (-fōōls). See -FUL.

tome'let, n. See -LET.

-tom'ic. See -TOME, -TOMY.

-to-mist. See -TOMY.

-to-mize. See -TOMY.

tom'john' (tŏm'jŏn'). Corrupt. of TONJON. Colloq.

tom'jon. Var. of TONJON.

tom'kin. † TAMPION.

Tom'kin, n. Dim. of THOMAS.

tom'me (tŏm'ĕ), n. [Dan.] See MEASURE, Table.

tom'my-ax', tom'my-axe', n. [See TOM-AX.] = TOMAHAWK. Australia. [TAMMIE NORIE.]

tom-nor'ry (tŏm-nŏr'ĭ). Var. of TOMOLO (tō'mō-lō), n.; pl. -LI (-lē). [It.] See MEASURE, Table.

Tomp'kins King (tŏmp'kĭnz). [From Tompkins Co., N. Y.] = KING APPLE. [PION, 2.]

tom'pon (tŏm'pŭn) n. = TOMtom'rig', n. [Tom + rig a wanton.] Strumpet; tomboy. Obs.

Tom-tit'mouse', n. = TOMTIT a.

as in adenotomic, nouns denoting a specialist in -tomist, as in laparotomist, and verbs in -tomize, as in laparotomize.

amygdalotomy	fallotomy	ornithotomy ankylotomy	fasciotomy	ovariotomy autotomy	gastroenterotomy	phrenicotomy blepharotomy	gastrotomy	pubiotomy caecotomy	glossotomy	pulpotomy cholecystotomy	hebetomy	salpingotomy cirsotomy	herniotomy	sclerotomy coccygotomy	hysterotomy	tenotomy craniotomy	laparotomy	thoracotomy dichotomy	lithotomy	thyrotomy duodenotomy	microtomy	tonsillotomy elytrotomy	neurotomy	trichotomy enterotomy	orbitotomy

ton (tŭn), n. [ME. tonne. See TUN.] 1. Com. A large weight, usually divided into twenty hundredweight. Specif.: a The weight of 2,240 pounds avoirdupois (1,016.06 kg.), often called long ton, gross ton, shipper's ton, or shipping ton. It is the ton in common use in England, and is employed for certain purposes in the United States and elsewhere. b The weight of 2,000 pounds (907.20 kg.), often called short ton. It is the one in common use in the United States, Canada, South Africa, etc., and is used to a small extent in England, esp. in Liverpool. c The weight of 1,000 kilograms (2,204.6 lbs.), usually called metric ton. Abbr., M. T. d The weight equal to 21 hundredweight of 112 pounds each, or 2,352 pounds (1,066.-87 kg.); — called specif. Cornish mining ton. See ASSAY TON.

2. Naut. & Com. a A unit of internal capacity for ships; 100 cubic feet (2.8317 cu. m.); — called specif. register ton. See TONNAGE, 5. b A unit approximately equal to the volume of a long ton weight of sea water, used in reckoning the displacement of vessels, esp. war vessels; 35 cubic feet; — called specif. displacement ton. c A unit of volume for cargo freight, usually reckoned at 40 cu. ft.; — called specif. measurement or freight ton.

3. A European unit for measuring timber, equal to 480 board feet.

4. pl. A great quantity or amount; heaps; lots. Colloq.

-ton. A combining form of the noun TON, used, with a preceding numeral, as an attributive adjective; as, a ten-ton truck.

ton, n. A tunny. Obs.

‖ton (tôn), n. [F. See TONE.] 1. The prevailing fashion or mode; the vogue; also, smartness; style.

2. The world of fashion; the smart set.

ton. Var. of TONE, the one; TUN; TURN. Obs. exc. Dial.

ton, n. Obs. pl. of TOE.

ton, past part. of TAKE. Obs. exc. Scot.

-ton (70). [See TOWN.] A suffix meaning originally an enclosed piece of ground; later, a village or town; — very common in English place names, as in Boston, Taunton, Charleston. See -TOWN, 2.

ton'al (tōn'ăl), adj. [ML. tonalis.] 1. Of or pertaining to tone, tonality, or tonicity.

2. Music. Modified, as regards repeated intervals, to conform to a change of tonality; as, a tonal fugue. Cf. REAL, adj., 13.

— ton'al·ly, adv.

ton'al (tŭn'ăl), n. Physics & Mech. The force which acting on a mass of a ton avoirdupois will impart to it an acceleration equal to one foot per second per second.

to·na'la·ma'tl (tō·nä'lä·mä't'l; -tĕ), to'nal·ma'tl (tō'näl-), n. [Nahuatl, lit., book of days, fr. tonalli day + amatl paper book.] In the Mayan and Mexican calendars, a period of 260 days. Cf. MAYAN CALENDAR.

ton'al·ist (tōn'ăl·ĭst), n. One who emphasizes tonality; esp. a devotee of tonal music.

to'nal·ite (tō'năl·īt), n. [It was first described from Tonale in Tirol.] Petrog. A granular igneous rock which is a variety of quartz-diorite containing biotite. In the United States any quartz-diorite is generally so called.

to·nal'i·tive (tō·năl'ĭ·tĭv), adj. Tending to tonality.

to·nal'i·ty (tō·năl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [Cf. F. tonalité.] Tonal quality; specif.: a Music. The principle of key in music; the affinity of a group or series of tones for a central tone or tonic; the character which a composition has by virtue of its key, or through the family relationship of all its tones and chords to the keynote, or tonic, of the whole.

The predominance of the tonic as the link which connects all the tones of a piece, we may, with Fétis, term the principle of tonality. Helmholtz.

b In the graphic arts, the arrangement or interrelation of the tones or tints of a picture; color scheme; tone system; also, the effect or quality resulting from closely related tones, especially in the darker values.

to'-name' (tōō'nām'), n. [AS. tōnama. See TO, prep.; NAME.] A surname; also, a nickname. Obs. exc. Scot.

to'nant (tō'nănt), adj. [L. tonans, -antis, pres. part.] Emitting thundering tones; blatant.

To'na·tl'uh (tō'nä·tĕ'ōō), n. [Nahuatl, lit., he will glow, fr. tona he glows; — with ref. to the rising sun.] The Aztec sun-god, worshiped with human sacrifice; — called also Ipalnemohuani.

ton·di'no (tŏn·dē'nō), n. [It.] Fine Arts. a A ringlike molding. b A metal disk for striking a coin. c A small tondo.

‖ton'do (tŏn'dō), n.; pl. TONDI (-dē). [It.] Art. A circular painting or sculptured medallion.

tone (tōn), pron. & adj. One; — a form due to mistaking that (or thet) one, on, or an for the tone, the tane; — chiefly with the, and commonly correl. to tother or tither. Obs. exc. Dial.

tone (tōn), n. [OF. and L.; OF. ton, fr. L. tonus a sound, tone, a stretching, fr. Gr. tonos a stretching, straining, raising of the voice, pitch, accent, measure or meter, in pl., modes or keys differing in pitch; akin to Skr. tāna tone, fiber, Gr. teinein to stretch, strain. See THIN; cf. MONOTONOUS, TON fashion, TONIC, TUNE.] 1. Vocal or musical sound, or esp., sound quality; a sound considered as of this or that character; as, tone production; variations in tone; a low, high, loud, soft, sweet, or harsh tone.

Whose tones the echoing aisles prolong. Burns.

2. Accent, or inflection or modulation of the voice, as adapted to the emotion or passion expressed, or as peculiar to the individual, his class, district, or race; as, English in a Scotch tone.

Of Attic phrase and senatorial tone. Cowper.

3. Artificial modulation (of the voice) in speaking or reading; singsong or affected intonation.

I never liked a man who spoke in a tone of voice. O. Henry.

4. In writing or speaking, style or manner of approach; method of address; as, he changed his tone when the audience became uneasy; to adopt a conciliatory tone.

5. Power to function or react under strain or as in health; healthy or normal elasticity; resiliency; as, his mind has lost its tone; to restore the tone of the body politic.

6. General or prevailing trend, character, or quality of morals, breeding, behavior, or the like; particular tenor, spirit, or tendency; as, a city's low moral tone; they give the tone to any social affair they attend; judge a school by its tone.

7. Frame (of mind); temper; mood; as, a philosophical tone of mind.

8. Color quality or value; any tint or shade of color; any modification of a chromatic or achromatic color with respect to brilliance or saturation; also, the color which appreciably modifies a hue or white or black; as, a bright, dark, or light tone of blue; the gray walls took on a greenish tone; the soft tones of the old marble.

9. Linguistics. a The musical pitch or intonation of a sound, word, or sentence, often used to express differences of meaning or function, as in "go!" and "go?" Called also inherent, or semantic, tone. See TONE LANGUAGE, PITCH LANGUAGES. b Specif., one of the four notes or keys in which Chinese (Pekingese) sounds are pitched. They are often indicated beside the character, or its romanized spelling, by the figures 1, 2, 3, 4. In central China there are five tones in which characters may be pronounced, and in southeastern China as many as eight. Since there are only some 400 sounds in the language, it follows that many words must have the same sound, and in order to reduce this confusion recourse is had to pitching the sounds in various keys. See On Words from the Chinese, p. xiv in Introduction.

Tones, 9 b, in Pekingese.

10. Med. That state of a body, or of any of its organs or parts, in which the animal functions are healthy and performed with due vigor.

11. Music & Acous. a A sound having such regularity of vibration as to impress the ear with its individual character, esp. as regards pitch, and to enter into harmonic relations; musical sound; — opposed to noise. See 6th SOUND, 1 b. A tone is characterized by its pitch (rate of vibration), its degree of loudness (square of amplitude of vibration), and its timbre (complexity of vibration). A simple tone is one resulting from a simple vibration at a fixed rate. Its pitch is definite, therefore, although its loudness may vary, and it can hardly be said to have timbre. In scientific nomenclature, tone is often used specifically to designate a simple tone. But nearly all musical sounds are complex (composite, or compound), that is, composed of two or more simple tones. These components are called partial tones, of which the lowest, which predominates and determines the pitch, is called the fundamental tone, or fundamental, and the others, upper partial tones, or overtones. The peculiar quality or timbre of a tone (called also tone color, or clang tint) is due to the number, vibration rates, and intensities of its overtones, and varies with the nature of the vibrating body and the mode of excitation. Overtones which are in the harmonic series of the fundamental (that is, having vibration numbers equal to 2, 3, 4, 5, etc., times that of the fundamental) are called harmonics. The tone of a tuning fork is nearly simple, that of a well-constructed musical instrument has chiefly harmonics for its overtones, while inharmonic overtones are usually prominent in the tone of a bell. See also HARMONIC, n., 1 a; COMBINATION TONE. b The larger interval between contiguous sounds in the diatonic scale, the smaller being a semitone; a whole step. c = TONE QUALITY.

☞ The use of the word tone, both for a sound and for the interval between two sounds or tones, is confusing, and step is preferred in the latter sense in careful usage.

12. Music. An ecclesiastical mode or a traditional tune or plain chant of the church; as, the Gregorian tones.

13. Painting. The general effect due to the combination of light and shade, together with color; — commonly implying harmony; as, this picture has tone.

14. Phonet. a Voice; vocal sound. b A particular pitch of voice, or change of pitch, considered as an element in the intonation of a phrase or sentence; as, a high, mid, or low tone; a rising, falling, high-falling, low-rising tone, etc. c Pitch, or change of pitch, that serves to express emotion, grammatical relations, etc.; specif.: emotional tone (conveying various feelings); grammatical tone (indicating morphological distinctions, as of different forms of a verb); syntactical tone (determining construction, as of today in When was it today? — according as it has a rising, or a low-level pitch); sentence tone (giving a word or phrase the meaning of a sentence); tone grammar (grammatical relations expressed or affected by tone). d = INTONATION, 4. e Word stress, or syllabic accent.

15. Photoengr. The part of a print bearing the black or the color.

16. Photog. The color of an image, as sepia.

17. Physiol. The normal tension or responsiveness to stimuli; tonicity; as, arterial tone.

18. Plant Physiol. The condition of normal balance of a healthy plant in its relations to light, heat, and moisture.

19. Psychol. Affective or emotional quality; as, the pleasant tone of an experience; feeling tone.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tone-full, tone pattern, tone-producing, adj., tone tester.

— in tone. In tune; in agreement or harmony. Obs. — out of tone. Out of tune; disordered. Obs.

-tone (-tōn). A combining form of the noun tone, as in demi*tone,* duo*tone,* penta*tone,* pre*tone.*

tone (tōn), v.; TONED (tōnd); TON'ING (tōn'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To intone; to utter with a tone, or in an affected tone. Now Rare.

2. To give tone, or a particular tone, to; to impart tone (in any sense) to give a particular intonation or inflection, character, color quality, etc., to; as, fear toned his voice; the exercise toned his muscles; the shingles will be toned in time.

3. To change by treatment the tone, or color, of; to modify in color; specif., Photog., to change the normal silver image of (a print, transparency, or lantern slide) into a colored image, usually one having clear high lights and colored shadows. It is done either by treatment with a solution containing certain inorganic salts, or by mordanting and dyeing.

—, Intransitive: 1. To assume a tone, esp. a color quality or tint; as, shingles tone beautifully in the salt-laden air.

2. To blend with respect to tone or color quality; to harmonize in color; as, the rug tones with the woodwork.

tone down. a To lower the tone, or sound pitch, character, colors, or the like, of; to give a lower tone to; to moderate; soften; mellow; as, passing years had toned down his rashness. "Evening sobers everything, tones everything down." M. Arnold. b To become lower, softer, less emphatic, etc., in tone; as, public enthusiasm has toned down. c Painting. To modify, as color, by making it less brilliant or less crude; to modify, as a composition of color, by making it more harmonious.

tone up. a To raise the tone of; to give a higher tone or character to; specif., to invigorate; strengthen; as, medicine to tone up the system. b To become raised or improved in tone; to grow stronger.

to'ne (tō'nĕ), n. = DHONI. India.

tone (tōn). Dial. var. of TUNE.

tone. Obs. past part. of TAKE.

tone accent. = PITCH ACCENT, 2.

tone color. Music. Timbre. See TONE, n., 11 a.

toned (tōnd), adj. [From TONE, n.] a Having or having been given tone or a tone; characterized or distinguished by a tone or tones; — much used in composition. Cf. -TONED. b Having, or characterized by, linguistic tones. See TONE LANGUAGE. c Having (such) a tone, or feeling tone.

-toned (-tōnd). A combining form of toned, as in:

deep-toned	many-toned	small-toned dull-toned	rich-toned	soft-toned fine-toned	rough-toned	sweet-toned full-toned	shrill-toned	twine-toned high-toned	simple-toned	weak-toned low-toned tone'–deaf. (66), adj. Relatively insensitive to differences in the pitch of musical tones. — tone deafness.

tone gap. Psychol. A limited range of pitch within which an individual is deaf, although he can hear tones above and below this range.

tone grammar. See TONE, n., 14 c.

tone island. Psychol. A limited range of pitch within which an individual can hear tones, although he is deaf to higher and lower tones.

tone language. A language, as Chinese, Sudanic, or one of the Bantu languages, in which variations in tone, or pitch, are regularly used to distinguish words of different meaning that otherwise would sound alike.

tone'less, adj. Without tone; devoid of tone, often, of expression; specif., of color, lacking in chroma; white, black or gray. — tone'less·ly, adv. + tone'less·ness, n.

tone long. Heb. Gram. A vowel that is not long in Semitic or pre-Hebrew, but becomes long in Hebrew by virtue of its position in relation to the accent of the word or phrase, and may be shortened when that position is changed.

to'neme (tō'nēm), n. [tone + -eme as in phon*eme.*] A group of variants of a tone, or intonation, that vary only because of differing phonetic or tonetic situation. See TONE, n., 9.

tone measurer. Music. A monochord.

tone painting. Music. The employment of tone and esp. the free use of tone colors in creating musical effects, particularly in impressionistic composition.

tone picture. Music. A musical composition, usually for orchestra, characterized by pictorial suggestion. Cf. TONE POEM.

tone poem. Music. An orchestral composition based on or suggestive of poetic sentiments or images, a variety of the symphonic poem developed esp. by Richard Strauss. — tone poet. — tone poetry.

tone quality. Music. a = TIMBRE, n., 4. b The character of tones with reference to their richness or perfection. c The character of the effect produced by a harmonic combination.

ton'er (tŏn'ĕr), n. One who or that which tones. Specif.: a An organic pigment that contains no inorganic pigment or inorganic carrying base. b A workman who changes colors in photography. c A workman who voices organ pipes or tunes pianos.

to'ner (tō'nĕr). Contr. for the one or the other. Dial. Eng tone syllable. An accented syllable.

to·net'ic (tō·nĕt'ĭk), adj. [tone + phon*etic.*] Pertaining to linguistic tones or to tone languages; dealing with or expressing intonation (sense 4); as, tonetic studies or notation. — to·net'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

to'ne·ti'cian (tō'nē·tĭsh'ăn; tŏn'ē-), n. [See -IAN.] One versed in tonetics.

to·net'ics (tō·nĕt'ĭks), n. The use or study of linguistic tones; the science of intonation. See -ICS.

tone'–up', n. A toning-up exercise, treatment, or the like.

tone wheel. Radio. A high-speed interrupter or commutator used for reception of continuous waves. It is run at a speed slightly different from the synchronous speed for the wave frequency, and thus produces a current of low frequency, or audio frequency.

tong (tŏng; 185), n. 1. Tongs. Obs. exc. Dial.

2. One leg of a pair of tongs. Humorous.

tong (tŏng; 185), v. t. & i.; TONGED (tŏngd); TONG'ING. To take, gather, hold, or handle with tongs; to use tongs; to take or gather something with tongs; as, to tong oysters or for oysters; to tong logs.

tong, v. t. & i. [Imitative. Cf. TANG.] To cause (a bell) to give forth a deep resonant tone or tones; to emit such a sound. — n. A tonging sound. Chiefly Dial.

tong (tŏng), n. [Chin. (Pek.) *t'ang*² (Cant. t'ong), lit., hall.] In China, an association, secret society, or organization of any kind; in the United States, usually, a secret association of Chinese, such as that of the highbinders. — tong'man (-măn), n.

tong (tŏng; tŏngg). Var. of TONGUE. Obs. exc. Dial.

ton'ga (tŏng'gä), n. [Hind. tāṅgā.] A kind of light two-wheeled vehicle, usually for four persons, drawn by ponies or bullocks. Anglo-Ind.

Ton'ga (tŏng'gä), n. a = THONGA. b Any of several Bantu peoples and languages found respectively in southern Portuguese East Africa, west of Lake Nyasa, and on the upper Zambezi.

Ton'gan (tŏng'găn), n. 1. A Polynesian of the native tribes of Tonga, among the most enlightened of the Polynesian peoples. They form a native kingdom under British protection.

2. The language of the Tongans. See AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES, Table.

Ton'gas (-găs), n. An Indian of a Tlingit tribe. See TLINGIT.

tong'kang' (tŏng'kăng'), n. [Malay tonkaṅ two-masted boat without yards.] A kind of large native boat or junk used in fishing and in local trading. Malay Archipelago.

---

ton. † TOWN.

ton'age. † TONNAGE.

tonal gap. = TONE GAP.

tonal island. = TONE ISLAND.

to·na'tion (tō·nā'shŭn), n. = INTONATION, n., 4.

Ton'bridge (tŭn'brĭj). Var. of TUNBRIDGE. [TONKA BEAN.]

ton'ca bean (tŏng'kä). Var. of tŏn'de (tŭn'dĭ), n. sing. & pl. [Dan., barrel, cask. See TUN.] See MEASURE, Table.

tŏn'de hart'korn' (härt'kôrn'), sing. & pl. [Dan. See TUN; HARD; CORN.] See MEASURE, Table.

tŏn'de land (lăn), sing. & pl. [Dan., See TUN; LAND.] See MEASURE, Table.

tone. † TEEN, TOWN, TUN.

tonel. † TUNNEL.

to·nel' (tō·nĕl'), n.; pl. TONELES (-nĕ'lĕs). [Sp., a cask.] See MEASURE, Table.

to'ne·la'da (tō'nā·lä'thä; 112), n. [Pg. & Sp.] See WEIGHT, Table; MEASURE, Table.

tone'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

ton'er (tŭn'ĕr). Var. of TONY, high-toned. Slang.

ton'-foot', n. = FOOT-TON.

ton'ga bean (tŏng'gä). Var. of TONKA BEAN.

tong borer. See BORER.

tonge. † TONG, TONGUE.

tong'er (tŏng'ĕr), n. = TONGSMAN.

tonggre. † TANG.

Ton'gri-an (tŏng'grĭ-ăn), adj. [From Tongres, Belgium.] Geol. Designating or pertaining to the lowest stage of the Oligocene as developed in the Paris Basin, France; Sannoisian. — Ton'gri-an, n.

tongs (tŏngz; 185), n. pl.; sometimes construed as sing. [ME. tonge, tange, fr. AS. tang, tange; akin to D. tang, G. zange, OHG. zanga, Dan. tang, Sw. tång, ON. töng, Gr. daknein to bite, Skr. daśati it bites.] 1. Any of numerous instruments or devices for taking hold of something, as a hot coal or piece of metal from a fire or forge, for ease or convenience in handling, or for lifting, dragging, carrying, twisting, or other special purpose; — called also pair of tongs. The common varieties of tongs consist of two legs joined at one end by a pivot or a spring or of two pieces hinged together like a pair of pincers or scissors. See LAZY TONGS, CHAIN TONGS, etc.

Tongs. 1 Common Fire; 2 Roofing; 3 Horseshoer's; 4 Pipe; 5–12 Various forms of Blacksmith's Tongs; 13 Coal; 14 Chain; 15 Rail; 16 Electric-Light Carbon; 17 Tongs with Reversible Sliding Jaw; 18 Curling; 19 Sugar; 20 Ice; 21 Skidding; 22 Crucible.

2. Obs. Slang. a Trousers or overalls. b The lower limbs; the feet.

tongs'-a-cross'-a-wall' seat. In horseback riding, a seat in which the legs are held straight, with the toes stuck out and to the front, and the balance depends upon the stirrups with no help from contact of the legs with the horse's body.

tongs'man (tŏngz'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One who uses, handles, or gathers something with tongs, as oysters or steel rails; a tonger.

tongue (tŭng), n. [ME. tunge, tonge, fr. AS. tunge; akin to OFris. tunge, D. tong, OS. tunga, G. zunge, OHG. zunga, ON. & Sw. tunga, Dan. tunge, Goth. tuggo, OL. dingua, L. lingua. Cf. LANGUAGE, LINGO, LINGUAL, TANG tongue.] 1. An organ or process (often protrusible and freely movable) of the floor of the mouth, present in most vertebrates. Its base is attached to the hyoid bone. In man it is soft and fleshy, consisting of muscles of two kinds, intrinsic, confined to the tongue itself, and extrinsic, connecting its base with other parts; and it serves, among other uses, as an organ of speech, and as the principal organ of taste, its upper surface being thickly covered with small papillae, on some of which taste buds are borne. In birds the tongue is usually chiefly hard and horny. In snakes it is forked and serves as a tactile organ (not a sting, as many suppose). In many toads it is free at the hind end and (as also in the chameleons) can be suddenly protruded to catch insects with its sticky surface. In fishes it is usually hard and immovable.

2. An appearance, figure, or representation of a tongue; as, the Pentecostal tongues of fire.

3. The flesh of the tongue of an animal, as the ox or sheep, used as an article of food, esp. after smoking or pickling.

4. The human tongue as the organ of speech; the power of communication through speech; also, the exercise of that power; — now poetic except in partly literal, partly figurative phrases; as, to hold or loose one's tongue.

No tongue then was able their joy to express. Burns.

5. Hence: a That which is uttered; spoken words; speech. b Act of speaking; discoursing; utterance in words. "Much tongue and much judgment seldom go together." L'Estrange. c Words as mere outward expression, or profession. "My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth." 1 John iii. 18. d One who utters something. "Done to death by slanderous tongues." Shak.

6. A language; esp., a spoken language. Specif.: a The speech used by a particular people or class or in a particular region; a dialect. b Usually pl. A language other than one's own; a foreign or strange language. See GIFT OF TONGUES. "Would I had bestowed that time in the tongues that I have in fencing." Shak. c pl.: with the. The learned or classical languages; sometimes, specif., Obs., the three tongues, Latin, Greek, and Hebrew. d Archaic. A people having a distinct language. "I will gather all nations and tongues." Is. lxvi. 18.

7. Manner or quality of utterance with respect to tone or sound, the sense of what is expressed, or the intention of the speaker; as, to know a hypocrite by his tongue; a soft or flattering tongue. "My ear, won by thy tongue." Gray.

8. Something uttered or voiced; specif.: a A vote; suffrage. Shak. b Obs. Honorable report; fame.

9. The cry of or as of a hound pursuing or in sight of game; — also in phrases to give or throw tongue, to bark or howl vociferously. Cf. MUSIC, n., 8.

And when the pack crashed into tongue. Masefield.

10. Something like an animal's tongue in form, function, position, or motion, as a jet of flame, etc.; in technical usage, any of numerous things fastened on or at only the end or side, and often movable; as: a The flap of thin leather under the lacing or buckles of a boot or shoe. b A bell clapper. c A movable pin in a buckle, which passes through a hole in the strap, etc., to be secured; also, the corresponding pin of a brooch or the like. d The pole of a vehicle, as of a two-horse carriage or of an oxcart. Cf. SLIP TONGUE. e The projecting rib on one edge of a board to fit into a corresponding groove in an edge of another board to make a flush joint (called a tongue-and-groove joint). f The swiveling part of a carpenter's bevel. g The index of a balance or scale. h The tang of a sword, etc.

11. a A small sole; a tonguefish. b The beeweed.

12. Founding. A supplementary attachment to a strickle.

13. Mach. A feather.

14. Music. The free, or vibrating end of a reed.

15. Naut. a Now Rare. A short piece of rope spliced into the rigging so as to form an eye. b Now Rare. The upper piece of a mast composed of several pieces. c A short block of wood or iron so placed in the jaws of a gaff as to facilitate its sliding up and down the mast.

16. Phys. Geog. a A point, or long narrow strip of land, projecting from the mainland into a sea or other body of water. "A clump of pines . . . on a tongue of red earth." Masefield. b A point of ice projecting, nearly horizontally, as from the submerged part of an iceberg. c In a stream, a current that runs rapidly between rocks.

17. Railroads. The movable rail of a street railway switch.

18. Zool. a The radula, or lingual ribbon, of a mollusk. b The lingua of an insect; esp., in Lepidoptera, the proboscis; in bees, the proboscis as a whole, or the ligula (sense 3 a), which in the honeybees is long and hairy.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tongue-baited	tongue-gilt	tongueproof tongue-bang, v.	tongue-haltered	tongue-puissant tongue-bitten	tongue-hammer, v.	tongueusore tongue-bound	tongue-jangling	tongue-taming, adj.
tongue compressor	tongue-kill, v.	tongue-taw, v.
tonguecraft	tongue-leaved	tonguetip tongue depressor	tongue-lolling, adj.	tongue-valiant tongue-dumb	tongue-murdering, adj.	tongue-wagging, adj.
tongue-free		tongue-wanton tongue-garbled	tongueplay — tongue in cheek, etc. See under CHEEK.

tongue (tŭng), adj. Of, pert. to, or done by, the tongue.

tongue- (tŭng-). A combining form of the noun tongue, as in tongue-lashing; esp., Phonet., in adj. compounds specifying the position of, or the part taken by, the tongue (see Pronunciation, § 43, in the Introduction); as in tongue'-back', tongue'-blade', tongue'-front', tongue'-point'.

-tongue (-tŭng). Comb. form of the noun tongue, as in:

beardtongue	cowtongue	hartstongue beartongue	deadtongue	horsetongue beeftongue	deertongue	oaktongue blacktongue	earthtongue	oxtongue bluetongue	goosetongue	sparrowtongue tongue (tŭng), v.; TONGUED (tŭngd); TONGU'ING (tŭng'-ĭng). Transitive: 1. To speak; to utter. Archaic exc. specif.: a Now Colloq. To chide; to scold. "How might she tongue me." Shak. b Dial. To pronounce.

2. To give a tongue to; specif., Poetic, to give a voice or power of expression to (something).

3. To touch or lick (up) with or as with the tongue or tongues; as, the horse tongued its bit; the flames tongued up the dry logs.

4. a To cut a tongue on; as, to tongue a board. b To join by means of a tongue and groove, as boards.

5. Music. To produce (tones) by tonguing (which see).

In vain did he lip and tongue the notes as instructed. Zangwill.

——, Intransitive: 1. To talk; prate; — often with it; as, to tongue it incessantly. Now Rare.

2. To project like a tongue of land; to throw out tongues, as of flame.

3. Hort. To make a cut or slit in the stem of a plant before the operation of layering.

4. Hunting. To give tongue. See TONGUE, n., 9.

5. Music. To practice tonguing (which see).

tongue and groove. A projecting rib on one edge of a board together with a corresponding groove into which this rib fits on the edge of another board; — commonly attrib., tongue-and-groove, as; a tongue-and-groove joint, edge; a tongue-and-groove bit.

tongue'-and-lip' joint. Carp. A tongue-and-groove joint for boards, in which the board with the tongue has also a flush bead which serves to conceal the joint.

Tongue-and-lip Joint.

tongue bar. Zool. One of the downward projecting processes in the branchial clefts of Balanoglossus and its allies, and in larval lancelets.

tongue'bird' (tŭng'bûrd'), n. The wryneck. Local, Eng.

tongue bit. A horse's bit having a plate to keep the tongue under the mouthpiece.

tongue bone. The hyoid bone.

tongued (tŭngd), adj. Having a tongue or tongues; hence, expressive; vocal. "More tongued with censure of the world's blind greed." Edwin Markham.

-tongued (-tŭngd). A combining form of tongued, denoting having (so many or such) tongues. Corresponding adverbs are formed in -ly; as trumpet-tongued*ly;* corresponding nouns are formed in -ness, as trumpet-tongued*ness.*

black-tongued	honey-tongued	short-tongued brush-tongued	huge-tongued	shrill-tongued clod-tongued	ill-tongued	silver-tongued coarse-tongued	light-tongued	smooth-tongued double-tongued	long-tongued	soft-tongued fair-tongued	loose-tongued	thick-tongued false-tongued	low-tongued	true-tongued fine-tongued	many-tongued	trumpet-tongued foul-tongued	mild-tongued	two-tongued free-tongued	red-tongued	voluble-tongue glib-tongued	rough-tongued	white-tongued golden-tongued	sharp-tongued tongue'dough'ty (tŭng'dou'tĭ), adj. Bold in speech. Milton.

tongue'fence' (-fĕns'), n. Argument; debate. — tongue'-fen'cer (-fĕn'sĕr), n. Both Rare.

tongue fern. A tropical Asiatic fern (Cyclophorus lingua) often cultivated for its tongue-shaped fronds. tongue'fish' (tŭng'fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. A sole; — on the coast of the southern United States, applied esp. to Symphurus plagiusa, a small species inhabiting sandy bottoms.

tongue'flow'er (-flou'ĕr), n. Any Australian orchid of the genus Glossodia, in allusion to the tongue-shaped lip.

tongue'-flow'ered (-ĕrd), adj. Having tonguelike flowers or parts.

tongue-flowered orchis. A southern European terrestrial orchid (Serapias lingua) having a flower with a tongue-shaped lip.

tongue'ful (tŭng'fŏŏl; -f'l), n.; pl. TONGUEFULS (-fŏŏlz; -f'lz). See -FUL.

tongue'-graft', v. t. To whipgraft.

tongue grafting, tongue graftage. Whip grafting.

tongue grass. a Peppergrass (Lepidium). b Chickweed.

tongue hero. A self-professed hero; a braggart. Coleridge.

tongue joint. A joint with a tongue on one piece secured in a recess in the other.

tongue'-lash', v. t. & i. To give a tongue-lashing (to).

tongue'-lash'ing, n. A severe scolding. Colloq.

tongue'less, adj. 1. Having no tongue.

2. Hence, speechless; mute; not voiced or voiceless.

3. Not spoken of; unheralded. Shak.

tongue'let (tŭng'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A small tonguelike part, process, or thing.

tongue'man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A speaker. Rare.

tongue'man-ship, n. Quality of being facile in the use of the tongue, as for storytelling, gossip, speechmaking, etc.

tongue of the trump. The tongue of a jew's-harp; hence, the most important person. Scot.

tongue'-pad', n. A great or glib talker. Now Chiefly Dial.

tongue'-pad', v. t. & i. To scold; — with it, to play the scold. Chiefly Dial.

tongue pipe. Organ Building. = REED PIPE.

tongu'er (tŭng'ĕr), n. One who tongues; specif.: a One who makes or puts on tongues (sense 10). b U. S. A packing employee who handles tongues.

tongue'-shaped' (tŭng'shāpt'), adj. Having the form of a tongue; lingulate.

tongue shell. A brachiopod of Lingula or allied genus. See LINGULA.

tongue'shot' (tŭng'shŏt'), n. The range of the voice.

tongue speaking. Oral communication. Obs.

tongue'ster (tŭng'stĕr), n. A glib or talkative person; a voluble speaker; a babbler.

tongue swallowing. Med. Backward traction of the tongue into the pharynx causing choking.

tongue'-tack' (tŭng'tăk'), v. To make tongue-tied.

tongue'tack'ed (-tăk'ĭt), adj. Tongue-tied. Scot.

tongue'-tie', n. Med. Impeded motion of the tongue due to shortness of the frenum, or to its adhesion to the gums.

tongue'-tie', v. t. To deprive of speech or the power of distinct articulation, as by a tongue-tie or a gag; to make speechless, silent, or unable to speak freely.

tongue'-tied' (-tīd'), adj. 1. Suffering from tongue-tie.

2. Unable to speak freely, from any cause, as shyness; as, a tongue-tied pupil or witness.

tongue'-ti'er (-tī'ĕr), n. That which tongue-ties; a gag.

tongue tree. The tongue of a vehicle.

tongue twister. A word, phrase, sentence, etc., difficult to articulate readily because of a succession of similar sounds, chiefly consonantal sounds varied by small changes, as in "Shall he sell sea shells?"

tongue'-walk', v. t. To tongue-lash; scold severely.

tongue work. 1. Linguistic studies or employment. Obs.

2. Talking; esp., public speaking.

tongue worm (wûrm). A parasitic arthropod of the group Linguatulida (which see). tongue'y, tongu'y (tŭng'ĭ), adj. 1. Ready or voluble in speaking; garrulous.

2. Of the nature of, or affected by, the tongue; as, a *tongue*y voice.

tongu'ing (tŭng'ĭng), n. 1. The act or employment of one who tongues; also, tongues, as of boards, collectively.

2. Music. Modification or interruption of tone for a rapid staccato effect by the performer's tongue, in playing a wind instrument. In single-tonguing only one kind of stroke is used, the tongue articulating a rapid "t"; in double-tonguing, two strokes, as for "t" and "k," are alternated; in triple-tonguing, "t, k, t," etc.

-to'ni-a (-tō'nĭ-ă). [NL.] Med. A combining form, Greek -tonia, from tonos tension, denoting a condition of tonus, as in:

hypotonia, isotonia, myotonia, sympathicotonia, vagotonia.

ton'ic (tŏn'ĭk), adj. [Gr. tonikos; cf. F. tonique, NL. tonicus. See TONE.] 1. Pertaining to or characterized by tension, esp. muscular tension; hence, producing or adapted to produce healthy muscular condition and reaction. Cf. sense 8, below.

2. Increasing or restoring physical or mental tone; having the virtue or effect of a tonic; invigorating; refreshing; bracing.

There was a tonic quality in her laughter. Agnes Repplier.

3. Of or pertaining to tones or sounds.

4. Music. Of or pertaining to the keynote; as, the tonic chord.

5. Painting. Of or pertaining to tone, or the prevailing effect of color and of light and shade, in a picture or scene.

6. Philol. Of or pertaining to linguistic tones or languages using them; employing tones to distinguish words; as, Chinese is a tonic language. See TONE, n., 9.

7. Phonet. a Voiced. b Of a sound or a syllable, stressed; accented. Cf. PRETONIC, POSTTONIC.

8. Physiol. & Med. Of, pertaining to, or characterized by tonus, or tone; characterized by continuous muscular contraction; as, tonic convulsions.

9. Plant Physiol. Characteristic of or designating a condition of tone; causing or exhibiting normal reactions to external factors; as, a tonic influence; a tonic relation, etc.

ton'ic, n. [Cf. F. tonique, NL. tonicum.] 1. Med. A medicine having a tonic effect. Cf. TONIC, adj., 2.

2. Music. The keynote or key tone. See TONALITY.

3. Phonet. A voiced sound.

ton'ic (tŏn'ĭk), v. t.; TON'ICKED (-ĭkt); TON'ICK-ING. To give a tonic to; to strengthen by a tonic.

-ton'ic (-tŏn'ĭk). A combining form of tonic, as in:

allaxotonic	mesotonic	semitonic angiotonic	myotonic	subtonic anisotonic	neurotonic	supertonic auxotonic	omnitonic	thelytonic clonicotonic	polytonic	uterotonic hypertonic	posttonic	vasotonic hypotonic	pretonic isotonic	protonic

tonic accent. a Syllabic accent; vocal accent as compared with a written, or graphic, accent. b Pitch accent. Cf. ACCENT, n., 1.

ton'i-cal (tŏn'ĭ-kăl), adj. Tonic. Obs.

ton'i-cal-ly, adv. 1. In a tonic manner.

2. Med. Continuously; without relaxation.

3. Phonet. In tone or pitch.

tonic immobility. Physiol. = CATAPLEXY.

to-nic'i-ty (tō-nĭs'ĭ-tĭ), n. 1. The condition or property of possessing tone, esp. muscular, systemic, mental, or moral tone; vigor; health.

2. Physiol. The state of healthy tension or partial contraction of muscle fibers while at rest; tonus; tone (sense 17).

The recovery of moral tonicity after the Napoleonic debauch is most noteworthy. W. C. Brownell.

3. Plant Physiol. State of being in tone; normal responsiveness to external stimuli.

ton'i-cize (tŏn'ĭ-sīz), v. t. To impart tone or tonicity to. Rare.

tonic key. Music. A key having the same keynote as another.

tonic major. Music. The major scale or key having the same tonic as a given minor scale or key.

tonic minor. Music. The minor scale or key having the same tonic as a given major scale or key.

tonic motion. In the human body, the constant muscular tension which serves to keep the frame erect. Obs.

ton'i-co- (tŏn'ĭ-kō-). A combining form for tonic, denoting tonic and, as in ton'i-co-bal-sam'ic, ton'i-co-clon'ic, ton'i-co-stim'u-lant.

tonic section. Music. A section or period in the tonic key of the composition closing with a tonic cadence.

Tong'king-ese' (tŏng'kĭng-ēz'; -ēs'). Var. of TONKINESE.

tong'man, n. = TONGSMAN.

tongue'-and-groove' joint. See TONGUE, n., 10 e. tongue'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tongue'-pow'der, n. Flattery. Obs.

tongues'man (tŭngz'măn), n. = TONGUEMAN. Rare.

tongu'i-ness (tŭng'ĭ-nĕs; -nĭs), n. See -NESS.

tonic sol-fa. Music. A system of letter notation based on tonality, or key relationship, and replacing the usual staff symbols by the initial letters of the sol-fa syllables or the syllables themselves. The key is shown by a letter indicating the keynote. Upper and lower octaves are indicated by small figures at the right of the letters. Bars divide the letters into measures and various marks of punctuation show the pulses and their combinations and subdivisions. The system was devised in England by Miss Sarah Glover about 1812 and improved by John Curwen about 1841. It is widely used for elementary vocal instruction in England and other parts of Great Britain but has gained but a very slight foothold in the United States. The melody of America appears thus in tonic-sol-fa notation:

Key G.

| d:d:r | t₁:-.d:r | m:m:f | m:-.r:d | r:d:t₁ | d:-:-|s:s:s |
| s:-.f:m | f:f:f | f:-.m:r | m:f.m:r.d | m:-.f:s | l.f:m:r | d:-:-||

See MODULATOR, 2. — tonic sol-faist.

tonic spasm. Med. See SPASM, 1.

ton'i-fy (tŏn'ĭ-fī), v. t. Rare. a To give ton, or style, to. b To tonicize.

to-night' (tō̆ō-nīt'; tŭ-; 70), adv. Also to-night'. [to, prep. + night.] 1. On this present night or the night following this present day.

2. On the night just now past; last night. Now Dial.

to-night', n. Also to-night'. The present or the coming night; the night after the present day.

Ton'i-kan (tŏn'ĭ-kăn), adj. Pertaining to or designating an American Indian linguistic family, formerly inhabiting a small area in Louisiana and Mississippi. The Tunica, now almost extinct, are the only living representatives of this family. The Koroa, Tiou, and Yazoo, whose languages are lost, may have belonged to this stock.

ton'ish (tŏn'ĭsh), adj. Tonnish; stylish. — ton'ish-ly, adv. — ton'ish-ness, n.

ton'ite (tŏn'īt), n. [L. tonare to thunder.] An explosive consisting of a mixture of guncotton with a nitrate or nitro compound. It is used for blasting and in grenades.

to-nit'ru-one (tō-nĭt'rōō-ōn), n. [It.] Music. A device for simulating thunder used in performing program music; a species of gong.

to-nit'ru-ous (tō-nĭt'rōō-ŭs), adj. [L. tonitrus thunder.] Thundering; fulminating.

ton'jon (tŏn'jŏn), n. Also tom'jon. [Hind. tām-jhām.] A kind of open sedan used in Ceylon, carried by a single pole on men's shoulders.

tonk (tŏngk), n. [Imitative.] A heavy unmusical clang, as of a cowbell. — v. i. To make such a sound.

ton'ka bean (tŏng'kä). [Appar. trans. of D. tonquinboontjes (pl.); the berries (beans, D. boon, dim. boontje) of Dipteryx odorata were used to mix with Tonkin tobacco; cf. F. tonca, tonka.] a The seed of a tropical South American tree (Dipteryx odorata). It has a pleasant odor, due to the presence of coumarin. It is used in the manufacture of coumarin, in perfumes, as a flavor for tobacco, and in making artificial vanilla extracts. b The tree itself.

Ton'ka-wa (tŏng'kä-wä), n. An Indian of the chief tribe of Tonkawan stock. — adj. = TONKAWAN.

Ton'ka-wan (-wăn), adj. Pertaining to or designating an American Indian linguistic family, now almost extinct, formerly inhabiting central Texas. The chief tribes were the Tonkawa, Ervipiame, Mayeye, and Yojuane. They were despised by the surrounding tribes and were reputed cannibals. A few survivors now live in Oklahoma.

ton'-kil'o-me'ter, n. A unit of transportation representative of the transportation of one ton of freight a distance of one kilometer.

Ton'kin-ese' (tŏng'kĭn-ēz'; -ēs'), adj. Of or pertaining to Tonkin. — n. a sing. & pl. A native, or natives, of Tonkin. The aboriginals resemble the Annamese, though taller and darker. b The Annamese dialect of Tonkin. See INDO-CHINESE LANGUAGES, Table.

ton'let (tŭn'lĕt), n. [F. tonnelet, lit., little tun; — the bands resemble staves.] In late medieval armor, one of the horizontal bands forming a short skirt.

ton'-mile', n. Railroads. A unit of measurement of the freight transportation performed by a railroad during a given period, usually a year, the total of which consists of the sum of the products obtained by multiplying the aggregate weight of each shipment in tons during the given period by the number of miles for which it is carried. — ton'-mile' (66), adj.

ton'-mile'age, n. Railroads. Ton-miles collectively; esp., the total ton-miles performed by a railroad in a given period.

ton'nage (tŭn'ĭj), n. [From TON a measure.] 1. Often tun'nage (tŭn'-). A duty formerly levied on every tun of wine imported and exported. Hist.

2. The rental of a ship at so much a ton per week or month. Obs.

3. A duty or impost on vessels, based on tons carried; also, a duty, toll, or rate on goods per ton transported on canals. See 1st TON, 2.

4. Ships collectively, usually in terms of the total number of tons registered or carried or of the sum of their carrying capacity; as, the tonnage built in American shipyards is relatively small; the tonnage devoted to Oriental trade.

5. The cubical content or burden of a vessel, or vessels, in tons; or, the amount of weight which one or several vessels may carry. A merchant vessel's tonnage for purposes of registration is her entire internal cubical capacity in tons of one hundred cubic feet each as ascertained in a certain manner prescribed by law (in United States by R. S. 4153, in Great Britain by Merchant Shipping Act, 1894) in different countries. It is of three kinds. Gross tonnage is such capacity of a vessel without deduction. Underdeck tonnage is the gross tonnage less the spaces above the second deck from the keel. Register, or net, tonnage is the gross tonnage less certain deductions for space occupied by engines, crew's quarters, etc., giving a rough measure of the capacity of the ship for cargo or passengers. The tonnage of war vessels is their displacement tonnage, or weight of the water displaced by them.

6. Total weight in tons; aggregate of tons shipped, carried, mined, etc.; as, this coal mine's daily tonnage is large; a railroad with the year's record for tonnage.

7. Capacity, size, or weight, as of a mind or body; — usually humorous.

ton'nage, v. t. To levy a tonnage tax upon. Rare. Milton. — v. i. To have a (specified) tonnage. Rare.

tonnage, or tunnage, and poundage. Eng. Hist. A duty, varying in amount, generally two or three shillings on every tun of wine and sixpence to twelve pence per pound on wool and other articles, formerly granted as a subsidy to the crown on all goods exported or imported. The arbitrary collection of this duty by Charles I in 1629 led to an Act of Parliament (1641) prohibiting its levy without the consent of parliament. After the Restoration the amount of tonnage and poundage varied until it was abolished by the Customs Consolidation Act in 1787.

tonnage coefficient. Naut. That decimal by which the product of the length, breadth, and depth of a vessel must be multiplied to obtain the gross tonnage.

tonnage deck. Naut. That deck the space below which is included in estimating underdeck tonnage. In vessels having more than one deck it is the second from the keel.

tonnage displacement. Displacement tonnage. See TONNAGE, n., 5. tonnage duty. Naut. = TONNAGE, 3.

tonnage opening. Naut. An opening left in a shade deck to bring the space covered within the exemptions of a rule for calculating tonnage.

tonnage pool. See 5th POOL, 5 b (2).

tonnage train. Railroads. A freight train that is operated only when a definite tonnage of freight has accumulated.

‖tonne (tŏn, almost tŭn), n. [F.] A metric ton. See TON, 1 c; WEIGHT, Table.

ton-neau' (tŭn-ō'; tō̆ō-nō'), n.; pl. TONNEAUS (tŭn-ōz'), TONNEAUX (tŭn-ōz'; F. tō̆ō-nō'). [F., lit., cask. See TUNNEL.] 1. Automobiles. Originally, an afterbody with the entrance at the rear (like that of a light two-wheeled cart formerly in use in France); now, an afterbody with sides enclosing the seat or seats, entered by a door now usually at the side; also, the entire body of an automobile having such an afterpart.

2. pl. -NEAUX. See WEIGHT, Table; METRIC SYSTEM.

ton'neau' de jauge' (tō'nō' d' zhōzh'); pl. TONNEAUX DE JAUGE. [F.] See MEASURE, Table.

ton'neau' de mer' (mâr'); pl. TONNEAUX DE MER. [F.] See MEASURE, Table.

ton-neaued' (tŭn-ōd'), adj. Having a tonneau.

tonneau lamp. A lamp mounted on the back of the front seat of a vehicle.

tonneau windshield. In some automotive vehicles, a windshield directly in front of the tonneau, usually attached to the back of the front seat.

‖ton'nelle' (tō'nĕl'), n. [F.] An arbor.

ton'ner (tŭn'ĕr), n. An object considered with reference to its tonnage, as a ship; — used in combination; as, a thousand-tonner. Colloq.

ton'nish (tŏn'ĭsh), adj. Also ton'ish. In the ton; fashionable; modish. — ton'nish-ly, adv. — ton'nish-ness, n.

tono-. A combining form, Greek tono-, from tonos, meaning strain, tone, mode, as in tonogram, tonometer.

To'no-Bun'gay (tō'nō-bŭng'gā), n. A novel (1909) by H. G. Wells; — from a patent medicine invented by the hero.

ton of refrigeration. See REFRIGERATION, 1.

ton'o-gram (tŏn'ō-grăm; tō'nō-), n. [tono- + -gram.] A curve recorded by a tonograph.

ton'o-graph (tŏn'ō-grăf; tō'nō-), n. [tono- + -graph.] Physiol. A recording tonometer.

to-nol'o-gy (tō-nŏl'ō-jĭ), n. [tono- + -logy.] The comparative or historical science of tones, or intonation. — ton'o-log'i-cal (tŏn'ō-lŏj'ĭ-kăl; tō'nō-), adj.

to-nom'e-ter (tō-nŏm'ē-tĕr), n. [tono- + -meter.] 1. Acoustics & Music. An instrument or device for determining the exact pitch or the vibration rate of tones, as by a series of graduated tuning forks.

2. Med. & Physiol. Any instrument for measuring tension or pressure, as blood pressure, the tension of the eyeball, or the pressure of a gas (aero*tonometer*).

3. Physical Chem. Device for measuring vapor pressure.

to-nom'e-try (-ē-trĭ), n. Act or art of measuring with a tonometer. — ton'o-met'ric (tŏn'ō-mĕt'rĭk; tō'nō-), adj.

ton'o-phant (tŏn'ō-fănt; tō'nō-), n. [tono- + Gr. phainein to show.] Physics. A modification of the kaleidophon, for showing composition of acoustic vibrations. It consists of two thin steel slips welded together, their length being adjustable by a screw socket.

ton'o-plast (-plăst), n. [tono- + -plast.] Biol. The protoplasmic membrane surrounding a vacuole in a living cell; the so-called vacuole wall. De Vries.

ton'o-scope (-skōp), n. [tono- + -scope.] Music. An acoustical instrument for enabling a singer or player to see instantly the slightest deviation from proper pitch of the tone being produced. It was invented about 1900 by Carl Seashore, an American psychologist.

ton'o-tax'is (-tăk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tono- + -taxis.] Biol. A taxis in which a difference of osmotic pressure of the surrounding medium is the directive factor. — ton'o-tac'tic (-tăk'tĭk), adj.

ton'ous (tōn'ŭs), adj. Full-toned; sonorous. Rare.

töns'berg-ite (tŭns'bûrg-īt), n. [From Tönsberg, southern Norway.] Petrog. A rock related to the anorthosites, and consisting almost exclusively of soda-microcline rich in lime.

ton'sil (tŏn'sĭl; -s'l), n. [L. tonsillae, pl.; cf. F. tonsille.] 1. Anat. a Either of a pair of prominent masses of lymphoid tissue, one on each side of the throat between the anterior and posterior pillars of the fauces. They are composed of lymph follicles grouped around one or more deep crypts, and (except the exposed surface covered only by epithelium) are surrounded by diffuse lymphoid tissue in a fibrous capsule. The lymph cells may escape into the mouth cavity through this epithelium, and become salivary corpuscles. b Hence, any of various similar masses of lymphoid tissue. See PHARYNGEAL TONSIL.

2. Anat. The amygdala of the cerebellum.

ton'sil-lar, ton'sil-ar (-sĭ-lĕr), adj. Anat. & Med. Of or pertaining to the tonsils.

ton'sil-lar-y (-lĕr-ĭ or, esp. Brit., -lĕr-ĭ), adj. Anat. & Med. Tonsillar.

ton'sil-lec'to-my (tŏn'sĭ-lĕk'tō-mĭ), n. [L. tonsillae tonsils + -ectomy.] The surgical removal of the tonsils. — ton'sil-lec-tom'ic (-lĕk-tŏm'ĭk), adj. — ton'sil-lec'to-mize (-lĕk'tō-mīz), v. t.

ton'sil-lit'ic (-lĭt'ĭk), adj. [From L. tonsillae tonsils.] Of or pertaining to the tonsils; tonsillar.

ton'sil-lit'ic, adj. [tonsillitis + -ic.] Of, pertaining to, or affected with, tonsillitis.

ton'sil-li'tis (-lī'tĭs), n. [NL. See TONSIL; -ITIS.] Med. Inflammation of the tonsils or of a tonsil; amygdalitis. When acute and suppurative or phlegmonous, or tending to be so, it is commonly called quinsy.

ton-sil'lo- (tŏn-sĭl'ō-), tonsill-. A combining form for tonsil, denoting of or pertaining to the tonsils, as in tonsillotomy, tonsillitis.

ton-sil'lo-lith (tŏn-sĭl'ō-lĭth), n. [tonsillo- + -lith.] Med. A concretion or calculus in a tonsil, usually in a tonsillar crypt.

ton-sil'lo-my-co'sis (tŏn-sĭl'ō-mī-kō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tonsillo- + -mycosis.] Med. Infestation of the tonsils with fungi.

ton-sil'lo-tome (tŏn-sĭl'ō-tōm), n. [tonsillo- + -tome.] Surg. An instrument for removing the tonsils.

ton'sil-lot'o-my (tŏn'sĭ-lŏt'ō-mĭ), n. [tonsillo- + -tomy.] The operation of removing all or part of the tonsils. Cf. TONSILLECTOMY.

ton'sor (tŏn'sĕr), n. [L.] A barber.

ton-so'ri-al (tŏn-sō'rĭ-ăl; 181), adj. [L. tonsorius, fr. tonsor a shearer, barber, fr. tondere, tonsum, to shear. See TONSURE.] Of or pertaining to a barber or his work; — generally used affectedly or humorously; as, tonsorial artist.

ton'sur-ate (tŏn'shĕr-ăt), n. [ML. tonsuratus.] The state of one receiving tonsure (sense a).

ton'sure (tŏn'shĕr; 249), n. [OF., fr. L. tonsura a shearing, clipping, fr. tondere, tonsum, to shear, shave; akin to Gr. tendein to gnaw, and perh. Gr. temnein to cut. See TOME.] Act of clipping the hair or of shaving the crown of the head; also, state of being shorn. Rare, exc. Eccl.: a The shaving of the head, a custom first practiced by monks, and later by some ecclesiastics, becoming in the 7th century a rite denoting admission to the clerical state. Monastic tonsure was called Eastern, or Greek (St. Paul's), when the whole head was shaved; Roman (St. Peter's), when all but a narrow band round the head was shaved; Celtic (St. John's, or of Simon Magus) when the head was shaved from forehead to ears. Nowadays, wherever tonsure is canonically obligatory, it is usually in the form of a shaven patch at the point of the head. The rite of tonsure in the Eastern Church accompanies admission to the lectorate, in the Western Church it is conferred by bishop or abbot, not as an ordination rite, but separately as a preparation for orders. b The shaven crown or patch worn by monks and ecclesiastics.

ton'sure (tŏn'shĕr; 249), v. t.; -SURED (-shĕrd); -SUR-ING (-shĕr-ĭng). To shave the head of; to confer the tonsure upon.

ton'sured (tŏn'shĕrd), adj. [Cf. F. tonsuré, past part.] Having a tonsure. Specif.: a Admitted by the rite of tonsure to the clerical state. b Shaven; shorn; clipped. c Bald.

ton'tine (tŏn'tēn; tŏn-tēn'; 277), n. [F., fr. It. tontina, after its inventor, Lorenzo Tonti, a Neapolitan banker of the 17th century.] 1. An annuity shared among a number, or a loan raised on life annuities, with the benefit of survivorship to the beneficiaries in either case; that is, upon the death of each beneficiary of the annuity his share is enjoyed by the survivors, until at last the whole goes to the last survivor, or to the last two or three, according to the terms on which the money is advanced. Also, loosely, those who share the annuity; collectively, the share or right of each individual, or the system on which the annuity is shared.

2. Any arrangement whereby a group of persons share certain benefits or advantages on such terms that upon the death or default of any member a part or all of the advantages enjoyed by him are distributed among the remaining members until on the death of all but one the whole goes to him, or, as in most modern insurance tontines, on the expiration of a given time (called the tontine period) the whole goes to those then remaining in the group. See LIFE INSURANCE.

3. A tontine policy, risk, or the like.

ton'tine (tŏn'tēn; tŏn-tēn'), adj. Designating, pertaining to, or involving, the principle or system upon which the tontine is based; as, tontine insurance, funds, etc.

ton-tin'er (tŏn-tēn'ĕr), n. A sharer in a tontine. Rare.

Ton'to (tŏn'tō), n. An Indian of an Apache tribe. See APACHE. Also, loosely, applied to Coyotero, Yavapai, Pinaleño, or Tulkepaia.

Tonto group. Geol. The Middle and Upper Cambrian of the Grand Canyon region. The Tonto group comprises, from the base up, the Tapeats sandstone, Bright Angel shale and Muav limestone.

to'nus (tō'nŭs), n. [L., a sound, tone. See TONE.] 1. Tonicity; tone; state of responding normally to stimuli.

2. Med. A spasm of continuous muscular contraction.

3. Physiol. The condition of mild steady activity characterizing normal protoplasm, as in a resting neuron or muscle fiber; as, muscular tonus. See CHEMICAL TONUS.

-tonus. [NL.] A combining form of tonus, as in electro-tonus, geo*tonus.*

to'ny (tō'nĭ), n.; pl. TONIES (-nĭz). [Abbr. fr. Anthony.] A simpleton. Obs. Slang.

ton'y (tŏn'ĭ), adj.; TON'I-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); TON'I-EST. [From TONE.] High-toned; aristocratic; swell. Vulgar, U. S.

To'ny (tō'nĭ), n. Dim. of ANTHONY, ANTONY.

-tony. Med. = -TONIA.

To'ny Bea'ver (tō'nĭ bē'vĕr). A mythical lumberjack corresponding closely to Paul Bunyan (which see). Local, U. S.

to'ny-hoop' (tō'nĭ-hōōp'), n. A female bullfinch. Local, Eng. & Scot.

To'ny Wel'ler. See WELLER, SAMUEL.

too (tōō), adv. [The same word as to, prep. See TO.] 1. Likewise; also; in addition; sometimes, moreover; — serving as a conjunctive adverb; as, this device is good, too, for aligning wheels; will you sell this, too? all over a petty trifle, too!

2. Over; more than enough; — noting excess of what is needed, fitting, desirable, etc.; as, it is too long, short, or wide; too high; too many; too much.

> His will, too strong to bend, too proud to learn. Cowley.
> O that this too too solid flesh would melt! Shak.

3. To such a degree as to be regrettable, unbearable, shameful, etc.; as, this is too bad; you are going too far; — often doubled for emphasis; as, he is too-too impetuous.

4. Very greatly; extremely; excessively; — merely intensive; as, I am too glad. Colloq.

Syn. — See ALSO.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all attributive adjectives or their derivatives) are:

too-aged	too-confident	too-familiar too-anxious	too-coy	too-fervent too-big	too-dainty	too-forced too-bigness	too-devoted	too-good too-bold	too-early	too-hectic
too-celebrated	too-earnest	too-large ton'i-trant (tŏn'ĭ-trănt), ton'i-trous (-trŭs). Misspellings of TONITRANT, TONITRUOUS.

ton'i-tro-cir'rus (tŏn'ĭ-trō-sĭr'ŭs), n. Meteorol. = FALSE CIRRUS. See CUMULO-CIRRO-STRATUS.

to-nit'ru-ant (tō-nĭt'rōō-ănt), adj. [LL. tonitruans, -antis, pres. part.] = TONITRUOUS.

to-nit'ru-ate (-āt), v. i. & t. [LL. tonitruare.] To thunder. Obs.

ton'ka-bean' cam'phor. = COUMARIN.

tonka-bean wood. = SCENTWOOD. Australia.

Ton'na (tŏn'ä), n. [NL. Cf. TUN.] Zool. Syn. of DOLIUM, 2.

tonne. † TON, TUN.

ton'nel. † TUNNEL.

ton-nit'ru-ous. † TONITRUOUS.

tonn'land (tŏn'länd), n. sing. & pl. [Estonian, fr. Sw. tunnland. Cf. TÖNDELAND.] See MEASURE, Table.

tonn'stel'le (tŏn'shtĕl'ē), n.; pl. -LEN (-ĕn). [G. tonne tun + stelle place.] See MEASURE, Table.

ton'o-clon'ic (tŏn'ō-klŏn'ĭk), adj. = TONICOCLONIC. [TONKA BEAN.]

ton'qua bean (tŏng'kä). = ton'quin bean (tŏng'kĭn). = TONKA BEAN. [exc. Dial.] tonse, v. t. = TONSURE, n. & t. Obs.

ton'sile (tŏn'sĭl; -sīl; 155), adj. [L. tonsilis, fr. tondere, tonsum, to shear, clip. See TONSURE.] Clipped, or fit for clipping. Obs.

ton'sil-ec'to-my, ton'sil-it'ic, ton'sil-i'tis. Vars. of TONSILLECTOMY, etc.

tonsill. = TONSILLO-.

‖ton-sil'la (tŏn-sĭl'ä), n. [L.] = TONSIL.

ton'sil-lec'tome (tŏn'sĭ-lĕk'tōm), n. = TONSILLOTOME.

ton'sil-lith (tŏn'sĭl-lĭth), n. = TONSILLOLITH.

ton-sil'o-tome (tŏn-sĭl'ō-tōm; tŏn'sĭl'ō-tōm), ton'sil-ot'o-my (tŏn'sĭ-lŏt'ō-mĭ). Vars. of TONSILLOTOME, TONSILLOTOMY.

tony. † DRONI.

To'ny Lump'kin. See LUMPKIN.

too. † TOE, TWO.

too-late	too-old	too-soonness
too-lateness	too-patient	too-timely too-laudatory	too-piercing	too-trusting too-long	too-proud	too-willing too-much	too-ripe	too-wise too-muchness	too-short	too-young too-near	too-soon

—but, or only, too. a Regrettably more than is customary or desirable. b Even exceedingly; — qualifying glad, pleased, or the like, as in polite assent to a request. — none, or not, too. Scantly; barely; not very; as, a crop none too plentiful.

too (tōō). Var. of TO. Obs. exc. Dial.

too (tōō). Var. of TEW.

too'dle (tōō'd'l), v. i. [Imitative; cf. G. dudeln to play the bagpipe.] To make a continuous low sound, as in cooing or playing a small pipe.

too'dle, v. i. To capture birds by chasing them until they are winded. Eton College Slang.

too'dle-loo'dle (tōō'd'l-lōō'd'l), n. The sound of toodling.

too'dle—oo' (tōō'd'l-ōō'), n. A word uttered as a familiar and cheery farewell; goodbye. Slang.

tool (tōōl), n. [ME. tol, tool, fr. AS. tōl; akin to ON. tōl, pl., and Goth. taujan to do, to make. Cf. TAW, v.] 1. An instrument of manual operation, as a hammer, saw, plane, file, or the like, used to facilitate mechanical operations, as distinguished from an appliance moved and regulated by machinery; the instrument of a handicraftsman or laborer at his work; an implement; as, the tools of a joiner, smith, shoemaker, etc.

2. Any implement or object used in performing an operation or carrying on work of any kind, esp. where the implement or object is used or worked by hand, and is movable, as disting. from power-driven machinery, etc. In this use, as in statutes exempting instruments of earning a livelihood, in engineering contracts, etc., tool has been held to designate books, a horse and wagon, a piano, a hand or foot-power printing press, a sewing machine, a floating pile driver and its scow, etc. See def. 8, below. Cf. MACHINE, n., 4.

3. A particular kind of tool (senses 1 & 2): a A bookbinder's instrument used in finishing and lettering. b A kind of large chisel. c A kind of small brush used in painting window sashes.

4. Anything which serves as a means to an end; the instrument by which something is effected or accomplished; as, money should always be regarded as a tool; he has all the tools essential to competent scholarship.

5. Figuratively: A weapon; esp., a sword. Archaic.

6. A person who is or allows himself to be another's instrument; one used to accomplish another's ends; a dupe; as, a tyrant's tool.

I was not made for a minion or a tool. Burke.

7. Dial. & Slang. a A useless worker. b A mischievous person.

8. Law. Any instrument or apparatus necessary to a person in the efficient prosecution of his trade or calling. According to legal decisions, the tools (see def. 1) of a mechanic (including anvils, vises, sawhorses, etc.), a barber's chair and mirror, a photographer's headrest, and in certain cases a doctor's equipage, are tools necessary in their respective callings. See also def. 2, above.

9. Mach. The cutting or shaping part in a machine or machine tool; also, a machine for shaping metal in any way; a machine tool. See MACHINE, n., 4.

Syn. — See IMPLEMENT.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tool bag	tool fitter	tool repairer tool belt	tool forge	tool roll tool boy	tool forger	tool set tool cabinet	tool gauge	toolsetter tool car	tool glazer	tool sharpener tool carriage	tool grinder	tool-sharpening, adj.
tool carrier	tool grinding	tool shop
tool cart	tool handle	tool socket tool case	toolhead	tool spindle tool chest	tool heater	tool stamper tool-cleaning, adj.	toolholder	tool stand tool coupling	toolholding	tool storekeeper tool-cutting, adj.	tool kit	tool table tool demagnetizer	tool lubricant	tool tray tool-dresser	tool miller	tool treating tool-dressing, adj.	tool oil	tool truck tool examiner	tool plane	tool turner
tool fasher	tool press	tool-using, adj.
tool fettler	tool rack	tool wagon
tool filer	tool reclaimer	tool whetter tool finder	tool regrinding tool (tōōl), v.; TOOLED (tōōld); TOOL'ING. Transitive: 1. To shape, form, or finish with a tool; specif., Bookbinding, etc., to letter or ornament (a book cover) in blind impression or in gold, silver, etc., by means of heated hand tools.

2. To drive, as a coach; to convey or draw in a vehicle. Slang.

3. To provide tools or machine equipment for (a factory, etc.).

4. To use as a tool; manage; manipulate. Colloq.

—, Intransitive: 1. To use tools, as in bookbinding; to perform manual mechanical operations.

2. To drive or ride in a vehicle; as, to tool through the park. Slang.

tool. Dial. var. of TOWEL.

tool angle. Mach. a The angle included between the top and front faces of a cutting tool. b Any angle used to designate the form of the cutting edge of a tool, as clearance angle, rake angle, etc. See CLEARANCE, Illust.

tool apron. See APRON, 15 c.

tool'box' (tōōl'bŏks'), n. a A box or chest to hold tradesmen's tools. b Mech. The adjustable mechanism containing the tool or cutter holder in a planing machine or other machine tool.

tool'build'er (-bĭl'dĕr), n. A builder or maker of tools. — tool'build'ing, n.

tool'er (tōōl'ĕr), n. 1. A broad chisel used by stonemasons in random work.

2. One whose work is tooling.

tool house. A house or shed, as in a garden, for storing tools.

tool'ing, n. A mechanical operation performed with or an effect produced by a tool or tools. Specif.: a Stone dressing in which toolmarks are left showing. b Hot-stamped impression in intaglio on ornamental leather work, either gilt or blind. c More or less special and ornamental handwork, as with chisels, gouges, etc., in wood, stone, metal, ivory, etc.

too little. Less than enough; insufficiency.

tool'mak'er (tōōl'māk'ĕr), n. A machinist who specializes in the construction, repair, maintenance, and calibration of the tools, jigs, fixtures, and instruments of a machine shop.

tool'mak'ing, n. The act, process, or art of making tools.

tool'man (tōōl'măn), n.; pl. TOOLMEN (-măn). One who works with or makes tools.

tool'mark' (-märk'), n. A mark, or impression, made in tooling.

tool'mark'ing, n. Toolmarks collectively.

tool'plate' (tōōl'plāt'), n. = TOOLBOX b.

tool post. Mech. A slotted post or analogous part in a lathe or other machine tool, in which the cutting tool is clamped. Cf. TOOLBOX b.

tool rest. Mach. A support for a tool, as an adjustable horizontal bar for supporting a hand tool when turning.

tool'room' (tōōl'rōōm'; 200), n. A room where tools are kept; esp., a room in a machine shop in which tools are made, stored, or loaned out to the workmen, each of whom gives a receipt for those he takes.

toolroom lathe. Mach. See 2d LATHE, 1. tool shed. A tool house.

tool'slide' (tōōl'slīd'), n. Mach. A part that supports a cutting tool, as in a tool post, and that contains or is mounted upon sliding members that may be moved in ways provided for the purpose.

tool'smith' (-smĭth'), n. A smith who forges, dresses, hardens, and tempers tools; a toolmaker.

tool steel. 1. Hard steel, usually crucible or electric steel, capable of being tempered so as to be especially suitable as a material for tools.

2. Any high-carbon or alloy steel used to make a cutting tool for machining metals.

tool'stock' (tōōl'stŏk'), n. = TOOL POST.

tool'stone' (tōōl'stōn'), n. Archaeol. A rude stone implement in natural form. Cf. BANNER STONE.

tool subject. Educ. A subject studied chiefly as a means to other ends, and not as an end in itself, as reading and arithmetic. Cf. CONTENT SUBJECT.

tool temper. See TEMPER, n., 7.

toom (tōōm; dial. also tûm, tŭm), adj. [ME. tom, fr. AS. tōm. See TEEM to pour.] a Scot., N. of Eng., & Ir. Empty. b Hence: Scot. (1) Lank; lean. (2) Lacking intelligence; empty-sounding.

toom, v. i. To empty; pour. Scot. & N. of Eng.

toom, n. A dumping ground. Scot.

toom, n. [ON. tōm. See TOOM, adj.] Leisure: spare time. Obs.

toom'ly, adv. 1. Emptily; idly; vainly; leisurely. Obs.

2. With empty saddle. Scot.

too much. More than enough; a surfeit; excess.

toon (tōōn), n. [Hind. tun, tūn, fr. Skr. tunna.] An East Indian and Australian tree (Toona ciliata) the flowers of which yield a dye; also, its soft reddish wood, esteemed in India for furniture and general construction. Called also Indian mahogany.

toon. Var. of TONE, one. Obs. exc. Dial.

toon (tōōn). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TOWN.

Too'na (tōō'nä), n. [NL. See TOON.] a Bot. A small genus of Old World trees (family Meliaceae) closely related to Cedrela, but having a short disk and completely winged seeds. T. ciliata is the toon; T. sinensis, the Chinese cedar. b [not cap.] (1) = 1st TOON. (2) In Mexico, the tree Castilla elastica.

toon'wood' (tōōn'wŏōd'), n. The toon.

toor'ie (tōōr'ĭ), n. [Dim. fr. toor, Scot. var. of TOWER.] Scot. a A little tower or heap. b A knob of hair; the tassel on a Scots cap.

toor'ock (tōōr'ŭk), n. [Dim. of ME. tour tower. See TOWER.] A small tower or heap. Scot.

too'roo (tōō'rōō), n. [Galibi tourourou.] A South American palm (Oenocarpus bataua), the hard wood of which is used in cabinetwork, for walking sticks, etc.

toosh (tōōsh), n. [Shortened fr. dial. cartoush, curtoush, prob. fr. OF. courte houche (dial. of houce) a short robe or cloak.] A short gown or nightgown. Scot.

toot (tōōt), v. i. [AS. tōtian. See TOUT to spy.] Now Dial. a To stand out; to peep out; to sprout, or show above ground, as grain. b To peep; spy; gaze. c To pry; to look searchingly.

toot, n. [From TOOT to peep out.] An elevation or eminence, esp. one used as a lookout; specif., a rocky promontory. Now Dial.

toot (tōōt), v.; TOOT'ED; TOOT'ING. [Cf. D. toeten to blow a horn, G. tuten, Sw. tuta, Dan. tude; prob. of imitative origin.] Intransitive: 1. To blow or sound a horn or other wind instrument, esp. so as to produce short rapid blasts.

2. To give forth a toot or toots, as a horn.

Tooting horns and rattling teams of mail coaches. Thackeray.

3. To utter a similar sound, as certain birds.

4. To proceed, drive, or make one's (or its) way with tooting, esp. of an automobile horn; to motor. Slang.

—, Transitive: 1. To cause to sound, as a horn, the note being modified at the beginning and end as if by pronouncing the letter t; to blow; as, to toot a whistle; also, to sound on a horn, or the like; as, to toot a signal.

2. To spread or trumpet abroad, as a report. Scot.

3. To call out, as if tooting; to proclaim; shout; as, he tooted his friend's praises wherever he went.

toot one's own horn. = blow one's own trumpet, under BLOW, v.

toot (tōōt), n. 1. A tooting, or a sound resembling or suggesting a tooting; a short blast, as of a horn.

2. The least sign of interest or concern; as, not to give a toot for a project. Slang.

toot, v. i. 1. To drink. Scot.

2. To carouse; to go on a spree. U. S toot, n. 1. A draft or drink. Scot.

2. Carousal; a spree. Slang, U. S.

toot, n. A worthless person; a fool. Dial. & Slang.

toot, n. [G. tüte, düte, tute.] A grocers' conical paper bag. Pennsylvania.

toot (tōōt), interj. = TOOTS. Scot.

toot (tōōt). Corruption of TUTU.

toot, too't. Contr. of to it. Now Dial.

toot'er (tōōt'ĕr), n. [From TOOT to peep.] Obs. a A watchman; a lookout; a spy. b Anything that projects or juts out.

toot'er, n. One who or that which toots, as a trumpeter or a horn.

tooth (tōōth), n.; pl. TEETH (tēth). [ME. toth, tooth, fr. AS. tōth; akin to OFris. tōth, OS. & D. tand, OHG. zand, zan, G. zahn, ON. tönn, Sw. & Dan. tand, Goth. tunthus, Lith. dantis, W. dant, OIr. dēt, L. dens, dentis, Gr. odōn, odontos, Skr. danta; prob. orig. the pres. part. of the verb to eat. See EAT; cf. DANDELION, DENT notch, DENTAL, DENTIST, INDENT, MASTODON, TRIDENT, TUSK.] 1. Anat. & Zool. a In most vertebrates, one of the hard bony appendages which are borne on the jaws, or in many of the lower vertebrates on other bones in the walls of the mouth or pharynx, and serve for the prehension and mastication of food, as weapons of offense and defense, etc. The most highly specialized teeth occur in mammals, where their number is generally strictly limited and their differentiation in different parts of the jaws into incisors, canines, and molars (see these terms), adapted for different purposes, is generally well marked. Most mammals have two sets of teeth, a set of milk, deciduous, or temporary teeth, developed when young, which are afterwards replaced by a permanent set. A typical mammalian tooth consists of a root of one or more branches (called fangs), implanted in a socket in the jawbone (but not ankylosed with the bone), and a variously shaped crown, or projecting portion which may be connected to the root by a somewhat constricted neck. It is composed chiefly of dentine, surrounding a central pulp cavity, containing a vascular, sensitive pulp, and coated with enamel on the crown, and with cement or cementum (see these terms) on the root and sometimes also on parts of the crown. It develops deep in the jaw by the deposition of dentine about (and by the activity of certain cells of) a vascular papilla of mesoblastic tissue. The enamel is deposited by a downgrowth of the epithelium of the jaw, the enamel organ, and is hence (unlike the dentine) of epiblastic origin. In man the permanent teeth are eight in number in each side of each jaw, or 32 in all, and are arranged as shown in the cut. In birds teeth occur only in a few fossil forms. In the lower vertebrates teeth are commonly simpler in shape (often simply conical) and more numerous than in mammals, and are in some animals capable of replacement as often as destroyed or worn out. They may be implanted in long grooves in, or ankylosed to, the bone, or simply embedded in soft tissues. b In invertebrates, any of various hard or sharp, usually horny, chitinous or calcareous processes about the mouth or on any jawlike part, in function or appearance like the teeth of vertebrates, as those on the radula of a mollusk. c In a broad or loose sense, any toothlike process, as a hinge tooth (which see) of a bivalve shell. Cf. TUSK, TRITUBERCULY, DENTAL FORMULA.

Sections of Teeth (def. 1 a). 1 Human Molar Tooth; 2 Molar of Ox; 3 Tusk (Incisor Tooth) of Elephant. After Lydekker.

Permanent Teeth of the Right Side of the Upper and Under Jaw of Man. a, a Incisors; b Canines or Eyeteeth; c, c Bicuspids or Premolars; d, d, d Molars; e Crown; f Neck; g Fang or Root.

2. Any angular or rounded projection suggestive of the tooth of an animal in shape, arrangement, gripping, grinding, or cutting power, etc.; as, a tooth, or tine, of a fork; the teeth of a comb, rake, saw, or file.

Cycloidal Teeth (def. 2). a Root; b Flank; c Face. d Point; e Pitch Circle.

3. A sharp, jagged point or projection, as of rock.

With tooth and spike and jag . . . under the utmost crag Of Cornwall. Shelley.

4. Eating or appetite for eating; fondness or taste for (something); liking; as, a sweet tooth; a great tooth for fruit.

5. Something that pierces, gnaws, cuts, poisons, etc., as a tooth, or often, a fang; the power or quality of torturing, etc.; as, the teeth of the wind; to escape the tooth of time.

Fell sorrow's tooth doth never more Than when he bites, but lanceth not the sore. Shak.

6. A human tooth as a sign by its presence, absence, size, etc., of its possessor's age; — chiefly in phrases; as, he has not a tooth in his head (that is, he is decrepit); he is long in the tooth (that is, he is mature).

7. pl. A ship's guns, or cannon.

8. pl. A threat of power to compel or constrain; a menacing display of strength, as military or legal strength; as, the prosecution has not yet shown its teeth; hence, that which does or can compel submission, enforcement, etc.; as, to put teeth into new legislation; to draw the teeth of the opposition.

9. A surface, usually a rough surface, produced by mechanical or artificial means or a substance or thing; as, the tooth on a ply of asbestos. Specif.: a The roughness given an undercoat of paint to anchor the next coat. b The roughness raised by the toothing plane on the back surface of veneers to form a hold or key for the glue. c A roughness of surface on paper, canvas, or the like, which enables it readily to take ink, crayon, paints, water colors, etc. d Photog. On a negative film, a fine varnish coating that permits pencil marks in retouching.

10. Bot. In general, any small sharp-pointed marginal lobe; specif., one of the processes forming the peristome in a moss.

11. Carp. a = STUB TENON. b Any of the steps of a tusk.

12. pl. Gems. The lower zone of facets in a rose-cut diamond. See ROSE, 12, Illust.

13. Mach. One of the regular projections on the circumference, or sometimes on the face, of a wheel in a machine, etc., that engage with the corresponding projections on another wheel, esp. to transmit force and motion; a cog, as of a cogwheel.

14. Masonry. Any of the bricks or stones left projecting from a wall to provide for a subsequent extension.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tooth-bred	tooth gauge	tooth-pulling, adj.
tooth caliper	tooth-leaved	tooth pulp
tooth-chattering, adj.	tooth mark	tooth-rounding, adj.
tooth cleaner	tooth-marked	tooth-setting, adj.
tooth doctor	toothplate	tooth-shaped tooth-extracting, adj.	tooth plugger	tooth-tempting, adj.
tooth filling	toothproof	tooth-winged tooth forceps	tooth puller

Syn. — TOOTH, TUSK, FANG are here compared in their too'a. Var. of TOA.	took (tŏŏk). Past tense & dial. past part. of TAKE.	Corruption of KOTUKUTUKU.	tool'see, tool'si, tool'sy. Vars. of TULSI.	toon. Obs. pl. of TOE.	toor (tōōr). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of TOWER. too'art (tōō'ärt). Var. of TUART.	took (tŏŏk). Scot. var. of TUCK.	toold. Tooled. Ref. Sp.	tool'ye, tool'yie (tōōl'yĭ). Vars. of TUILYIE, n. & v.	toon'dra. Var. of TUNDRA.	toore. ✝ TOWER.

tooclef. Obs. past tense of TO-CLEAVE.	took'en. Past part. of TAKE.	Tooley Street, Three Tailors of. See THREE TAILORS, etc.	toome. ✝ TOMB.	toop (tūp). Scot. var. of TUP.	toose. ✝ TEASE.
tood (tŏŏd). Var. of TOAD. Obs. exc. Dial.	Now Illit. took'y-took' (tŏŏk'ĭ-tŏŏk'), n.	tool'less (tōōl'lĕs; -lĭs), adj. See -LESS.	toon. ✝ TONE, TUN.	toop (tōōp), n. sing. & pl. [Estonian topp.] See MEASURE, Table.	toose. Var. of TOZE.
				toor. Var. of TURF.	toos'ie. Scot. var. of TOUSY.

N O P Q R S T

nontechnical uses. TOOTH is general; a TUSK is a long and (esp.) projecting tooth; FANG suggests strength (esp. for seizing) or venomousness; as, "white as . . . Ethiopian's tooth" (Shak.); "a forted residence 'gainst the tooth of time" (id.); "swine . . . with bare tusks" (Shelley); "the icy fang . . . of the winter's wind" (Shak.); "an equivocation which now turned venomously upon him with the full-grown fang of a discerned lie" (G. Eliot).
— from the teeth outwards. Not from the heart; in outward appearance or profession only; on the surface; as, to be friends from the teeth outward. — in spite of one's teeth. In spite of one's opposition, threats, authority, etc.; hence, in defiance of one. Now Dial. — in the teeth of. a In or into direct contact or collision with; so as directly to confront or be confronted with; in or into the arms, face, or jaws, of; as, to ride in the teeth of a gale; to be stationed in the teeth of danger. b In direct opposition or contrariety to; in defiance of; as, to proceed in the teeth of the law. c Following cast, hit, throw, etc. (something), so as to show defiance to or bring a reflection or discredit upon (one); as, to hurl an ultimatum in the teeth of the enemy; his lack of ambition is often thrown in his teeth. — to the teeth. a Fully; thoroughly; completely; as, armed to the teeth. b Also to one's teeth. Openly; overtly.

That I shall live, and tell him to his teeth. Shak.

c Rare. The point of collision or of meeting face to face; to the jaws.

-tooth (-tōōth). A combining form of the noun tooth, as in:

bucktooth	eyetooth	picktooth
dogtooth	gagtooth	sabertooth tooth (tōōth; tōōth), v.; TOOTHED (tōōtht; tōōthd); TOOTH'ING. Intransitive: 1. To teethe; to cut teeth. Now Dial. 2. To engage by means of teeth, as cogwheels; to gear.

—, Transitive: 1. To furnish with teeth.

Toothed with pearl. Herrick.

2. To bite; to consume by chewing.
3. To indent; jag; as, to tooth a saw.
4. To lock into each other, as wheel cogs. See TOOTH, n., 13.
5. To give a tooth (sense 9) to; to roughen the surface of, as with the toothing plane.

tooth (tōōth), adj. Pertaining to or used for the teeth.
tooth'ache' (-āk'), n. Pain in a tooth or in the teeth.
toothache grass. A tall grass (Ctenium aromaticum) of the southern United States, having dense one-sided spikes and a very pungent taste.
toothache tree. The prickly ash.
tooth'ach'ing (-āk'ĭng), n. An attack of toothache. tooth'ach'y (-āk'ĭ), adj. Suffering from toothache; also, like toothache in painfulness, throbbing, etc. Colloq.
tooth and nail. Gamely, fiercely, and, sometimes, desperately; employing every available means of attack or defense; as, to fight tooth and nail.
tooth ax. A stonemason's axhammer with its cutting edges divided into teeth.
tooth'-ax', tooth'-axe', v. t. To dress with a tooth ax. tooth'bill' (tōōth'bĭl'), n. The tooth-billed pigeon.
tooth'-billed' (-bĭld'), adj. Having a notched bill.
tooth-billed pigeon. A Samoan bird (Didunculus strigirostris), allied to the pigeons and somewhat like the extinct dodo. It is chiefly chestnut brown, becoming greenish black on the head and neck. The lower mandible has several notches near the end. See DIDUNCULUS. tooth'brush' (-brŭsh'), n.; pl. TOOTHBRUSHES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119). A brush for cleaning the teeth. toothbrush tree. An Old World tree (Salvadora persica) the twigs of which, bound in clusters, are used as toothbrushes. It is said to be the mustard of the Bible.
tooth'brush'y (-ĭ), adj. Like a toothbrush. tooth chisel. See STONECUTTER'S CHISEL. — tooth'chis'-eled, -chis'elled (tōōth'chĭz'ĕld), adj. tooth'comb' (tōōth'kōm'), n. A comb with fine teeth. Eng.
tooth cough. A cough due to a diseased tooth.
tooth cress. = CORALWORT a. tooth'cup' (tōōth'kŭp'), n. The plant Rotala ramosior. tooth'draw'er (-drô'ĕr), n. One who extracts teeth; a dentist. — tooth'draw'ing, n.
toothed (tōōtht; tōōthd), adj. 1. Provided with teeth.
2. Bot. & Zool. Having marginal projecting points; dentate.
-toothed. A combining form of toothed, denoting having (so many or such) teeth. Corresponding adverbs are formed in -ly, as sweet-toothed*ly;* corresponding nouns are formed in -ness, as sweet-toothed*ness.*

angled-toothed	few-toothed	sharp-toothed angular-toothed	fine-toothed	short-toothed
arrow-toothed	flat-toothed	small-toothed bristle-toothed	gap-toothed	snaggle-toothed
buck-toothed	gat-toothed	spiny-toothed butter-toothed	goat-toothed	sweet-toothed ciliate-toothed	jagged-toothed	three-toothed coarse-toothed	large-toothed	triple-toothed crenate-toothed	long-toothed	two-toothed crooked-toothed	prickly-toothed	wavy-toothed
cut-toothed	rough-toothed	well-toothed dainty-toothed	saber-toothed	white-toothed
even-toothed	saw-toothed	wry-toothed toothed bur clover. The bur clover Medicago hispida. toothed chisel. The tooth chisel. See STONECUTTER'S CHISEL. tooth edge. The sensation excited in teeth set on edge. R. toothed herring. A mooneye, esp. Hiodon tergisus, of the upper Mississippi Valley and northward. toothed plane. = TOOTHING PLANE. toothed whale. See WHALE. toothed wheel. A wheel with teeth.

tooth'er (tōōth'ĕr; tōōth'ĕr), n. In making saws, one who or a machine that cuts out teeth.
tooth fever. A fever associated with teething. Colloq.
tooth'flow'er (tōōth'flou'ĕr), n. A small Asiatic and Polynesian weed (Dentella repens), family Rubiaceae, the corolla lobes of which have a small tooth on each side.
tooth'ful (-fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. Obs. a Full of teeth. b Toothsome. tooth'ful (Scot. tōōth'fōō), n. A bite of food or a small drink. — v. i. Scot. To tipple. tooth fungus. Any fungus of the family Hydnaceae. toot'hill' (tōōt'hĭl'), n. [See TOOT to peep out; HILL.] A citadel; a watch place. Obs., exc. in place names. tooth'ing (tōōth'ĭng; tōōth'ĭng), n. 1. Teething. Dial.
2. Act or process of furnishing with teeth or a tooth; indentation, surface roughening, etc.; also, the teeth or tooth or indentation so provided.
3. Masonry. Bricks alternately projecting at the end of a wall, in order that they may be bonded into a continuation of it when the remainder is carried up.
toothing plane. A plane whose iron is formed into a series of small teeth, for the purpose of scratching and roughening surfaces, as the backs of veneers.
tooth key. = TURNKEY, 2. tooth'less (tōōth'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. [AS. tōthlēas.] Having no teeth; esp., not having cut teeth, as an infant; having lost one's teeth, as an aged person; hence, infantile or decrepit; weak; futile. Cf. TEETHLESS. — tooth'less-ly, adv. — tooth'less-ness, n.
tooth'let, n. Dim. of TOOTH. — tooth'let-ed, adj.
tooth ornament. Arch. = DOGTOOTH, n., 2. tooth paste. A paste dentifrice.
tooth'pick' (tōōth'pĭk'), n. 1. a Chiefly Hist. A pointed instrument for clearing the teeth of substances lodged between them. b A small, flat, tapering splinter used for the same purpose; hence, pl., splinters; fragments.
2. Also toothpick bishop's-weed. The bishop's-weed.
3. Slang. a A bowie knife; — often Arkansas toothpick; hence, a native or inhabitant of Arkansas. b A slender pointed boat.
tooth'pick', adj. Pointed like a toothpick; — said esp. of boots and shoes. Slang, U. S.
tooth plane. = TOOTHING PLANE. tooth powder. A dentifrice in powder form.
tooth rail. = COGRAIL.
tooth rash. = STROPHULUS. tooth relic. The supposed tooth of the Buddha, now enshrined in the Buddhist temple of Kandy, Ceylon. tooth sac. The capsule of connective tissue that surrounds the developing tooth; — called also dentinal sac.
tooth'-set', adj. Set with teeth; having or showing set teeth; jagged in outline.
tooth shell. Any scaphopod mollusk of Dentalium or allied genus having a shell shaped like an Tooth Shell (Dentalium agile). Nat. size.

elephant's tusk. The shells were used in trading by the Indians along the northwest coast of North America. See SCAPHOPODA. tooth'some (tōōth'sŭm), adj. 1. Pleasing, esp. to the taste; delicious; palatable; agreeable; — now chiefly literal; as, a toothsome morsel.
2. Possessed of a discriminating taste for food. Rare.
— tooth'some-ly, adv. — tooth'some-ness, n.
tooth'stick' (-stĭk'), n. Toothpick. Rare.
tooth violet. = CORALWORT a. tooth'wash' (tōōth'wŏsh'), n. = MOUTHWASH. tooth wheel. = COGWHEEL. tooth'work' (-wûrk'), n. a Decorative toothing. b Slang. The use of teeth, as in eating; also, effective display of teeth, as in smiling.
tooth'wort' (-wûrt'), n. a A European plant (Lathraea squamaria) parasitic on the hazel and beech. Its rootstock is covered with tooth-shaped scales. b Any cress of the genus Dentaria; coralwort; — called also pepperroot. c Local, U. S. The shepherd's-purse. d The leadwort Plumbago scandens; — in allusion to the use of its caustic roots or leaves as a cure for toothache.
tooth wound. Med. A wound inflicted by a tooth. tooth'y (tōōth'ĭ), adj. a Toothed; showing prominent or active teeth; hence, ravenous. b Colloq. Toothsome. toot'ing-hole' (tōōt'ĭng-hōl), n. = PEEPHOLE. Obs.
too'tle (tōō't'l), v.; TOO'TLED (-t'ld); TOO'TLING (-tlĭng). [Freq. of TOOT.] Intransitive: 1. To toot gently, repeatedly, or continuously, on a wind instrument, as a flute; also, to make a similar noise by any means.

The tootling robin. John Clare.

2. To write tootle (sense 2).
3. To talk or mutter childishly or foolishly. Dial.
—, Transitive: To play, discuss, etc., with or as with the tootle of a flute.
too'tle, n. 1. The noise produced by tootling.
2. Feeble or verbose writing; twaddle. Colloq.
tootle bug. Angling. An artificial fly with dark-brown mottled wings, orange and yellow body with blue butt, brown hackle tied like that of a palmer fly.
too'tler (tōō'tlĕr), n. One who tootles, or writes tootle. too'tlish (-tlĭsh), adj. [See TOOTLE, v., 3.] Childish; muttering as an old man. Dial.
toot'moot' (tōōt'mōōt'), n. & v. Mutter. Scot. toot net (tōōt). A large anchored fishing net. Scot. too'-too', adv. To a regrettably excessive degree or extent; as, you are too-too kind. See TOO, adv., 3 too'-too', adj. Extreme as in opinions or in fashion; ultra; too advanced, smart, aesthetic, etc.; as, her clothes are too-too; a too-too radical. Slang.
too'-too', v. i. To make or give forth a sound as if uttering too-too or repetitions of such; to blow, call, etc., in this fashion. — n. A sound of too-tooing.
toot plant (tōōt). The tutu.
toots (tōōts), interj. Also toot. Tut. Scot.
Toots, Mr. A wealthy, shy, dull, but honest and warm-hearted, friend and unsuccessful suitor of Florence Dombey in Dickens's Dombey and Son, whose favorite saying is, "It's of no consequence."
toot'sy (tōōt'sĭ), n.; pl. -SIES (-sĭz). Also toot'sy-woot'sy (-wōōt'sĭ). a Childish or Humorous. Foot. b Humorous. A term of endearment for a person.
too'zoo (tōō'zōō), n. [Imitative.] The ringdove. Local, Eng. top (tŏp; 184), n. [AS.; akin to OFris. top a tuft, D. top top, OHG. zopf end, tip, tuft of hair, G. zopf tuft of hair, pigtail, top of a tree. ON. toppr a tuft of hair, crest, top, Dan. top, Sw. topp pinnacle, top. Cf. TOPER, TOUPEE, TUFT.] 1. A crowning tuft, esp. the hair on the head, or a crest, as of a bird or on a helmet; also, the forelock. Now Dial.
2. The highest part of the body; the crown; the head; — now chiefly in phrases, as from top to toe.
3. The highest point or level of anything; the upper end, edge, or extremity; the uppermost point, side, or surface; summit; as, the top of a tree, spire, or hill; the house*tops;* a polished table top.
4. The head of a plant; esp., the part of a plant with edible roots that is above ground; as, beet or turnip tops.
5. That part which is foremost because nearest the source; as, the top of a lake. See TOP OF THE MORNING a.
6. The part of a thing without natural elevation regarded as highest; the part assumed to be the highest or given the uppermost position in use; — opposed to foot; as, the top of the street, a page, or a map; seated at the top of the table.
7. The highest degree or pitch conceivable, attainable, or attained; the highest possible reach; the acme; the pinnacle; as, the top of one's ambition, career, powers, or voice.
8. The highest realization, embodiment, representative, or example; the most perfect actualization or instance. Poetic.

If He [Christ], which is the top of judgment, should But judge you, as you are. Shak.

9. The highest place, as in rank or achievement; a position of highest honor or success; the topmost rank or ranks; as, at the top of one's profession; he is bound to get to the top.
10. One reaching or occupying the highest position; the head; chief; front; as, the top of his school or class; — often, with complimentary suggestion only, in familiar address; as, good morning, old top! Cf. sense 11 b.
11. The choicest part; the best or finest of its lot or kind; the cream; the pick; as: a pl. The choicest sheep or lambs in a flock. b pl. Slang, Brit. Aristocrats; swells. c See TOP OF THE MORNING b.
12. Culminating point; the time just before that which has been advancing recedes; as, at the top of the tide; stocks bought at the top of the market.
13. A fitted part, attached unit, or the like, which serves as an upper piece, an endpiece, a lid, a covering, etc.; as: a The hood of a vehicle. b The turn-down part or band on top boots. c The upper of a shoe; esp., the parts above the vamp. d The gauntlet of a glove. e Obs. The end of a fishing rod to which a line is attached. f Obs. The upper part of an earring to which a pendant, or drop, is attached; hence, tops and drops, a pair of such earrings. g An ornamental piece imposed on the upper end of a vertical member of a piece of furniture.
14. a An old cheating trick with dice, one die being held in the fingers of the thrower to place as he desired. b Now Dial. Ceiling; vaulted or beamed roof. c A high headdress fashionable in the last part of the 18th century. d pl. Buttons finished, as by plating, only on the top, or face. e Circus Slang. A tent.
15. Short for TOP MILK, TOPSAIL, TOP SERGEANT, etc.; also, pl., for TOP BOOTS.
16. Basketry, etc. The leaf blades of the unopened new, or top, leaves of the palmetto, used for weaving baskets, hats, etc. Bahamas.
17. Cards. At bridge, a card or (pl.) cards that will win the first or second round of the suit, such as an ace, or king and queen.
18. Chem. The most volatile part (passing over first on distillation); — often in pl.; as, refinery tops.
19. Games. A forward spin given to a ball, as in golf, tennis, billiards, cricket, etc., by striking it on or near the top or above the center; also, the blow or stroke so given.
20. Jewelry. The part of a cut gem above the girdle; the crown; the bezel (of a brilliant). See BRILLIANT, Illust.
21. Naut. A platform surrounding the head of the lower mast, which serves to spread the topmast rigging, thus strengthening the mast, and furnishes a standing place for men aloft. On war vessels the tops serve as stations for certain members of the fire-control party and their instruments, and may also provide a station for antiaircraft machine guns.

Top, Naut.

22. Textiles. A bunch of fiber, as of flax, tow, or wool.
23. Theat. Cant. The price of the most expensive seats for a performance; as, shows having a three-dollar top.
24. Wool Mfg. A continuous strand (sliver) of the longer fibers straightened and separated from the short ones (noils) by combing. When drawn and spun it becomes worsted yarn.
Ant. — Bottom, foot, base.
— at or to the top of the tree. At the head or forefront, esp. in achievement. — from top to toe. From head to foot; altogether; completely; as, she was spick and span from top to toe. — on (the) top. In high (see HIGH, n., 3 b). Brit. — on top. Successfully; ahead of all others; in the position of having accomplished or won what one has worked for; as, he always comes out on top. Colloq. — on top of (one). In a position of advantage, superiority, or domination, esp. in a conflict or competition. — on top of the heap. Conspicuously successful, popular, or the like; especially prominent in business, society, etc. Slang. — on top of the world. a In the Arctic zone; near the North Pole. b Slang. In a position of eminent success, security, happiness, or the like. — over the top. a Mil. Over the front of a trench, esp. in attacking; — usually as a command. b Colloq. Over the assigned limit or goal.
-top (-tŏp; 184). A combining form of the noun top, as in:

bluetop	flattop	maintop	skunktop
browntop	goldentop	redtop	steepletop finetop	hilltop	roundtop	tiptop
firetop	housetop	silvertop	whitetop top (tŏp), v.; TOPPED (tŏpt) or, Obs., Poetic, & Ref. Sp., TOPT; TOP'PING. Transitive: 1. To remove or cut the top or tops of; specif.: a Obs. To cut the hair of; to crop. b To prune the top or upper part of (a plant, esp. of a root crop). c Obs. exc. Dial. To snuff (a candle). d Slang. To execute by beheading or, esp., hanging. e To cut, break, or otherwise take off, the top of (a steel ingot) to remove unsound metal. f To remove the top, or most volatile parts, from. See TOP, n., 18. g To separate the tops, or better animals, from a group; as, a topped herd. h To cut the top part from (a tree) in logging. Cf. TOPPER, 1 e.

2. To cover with a top or on the top; to provide, form, or serve as, a top for; to complete by giving a top or covering, endpiece, finishing touch, or the like; to crown; cap; tip; round off; as, to top soil with manure; to top furs; to top bedposts with carved pineapples; also, to be at the top of; as, this boy tops the list.

Like moving mountains topped with sun. Waller.
The decent church that tops the neighboring hill. Goldsmith.

3. To exceed or equal in height; to come to or over the top or tops of; hence, to reach or exceed in height, weight, amount, etc., of; as, to top his father by four inches; the rising water topped the boathouses; a deer that topped 300 pounds.
4. To be superior to; to excel; outdo; surpass.

His actions top his speech. Marlowe

5. To gain ascendancy over; to dominate.

Edmund the base shall top the legitimate. Shak.

6. To perform (one's part) eminently, or better than before; to better.

From endeavoring universally to top their parts, they will go universally beyond them Jeffrey.

7. To rise to or reach the top of; to ascend to the summit of; as, the traveler topped the ridge; also, to go over the tooth'ake'. Obs. var. & ref. sp. of TOOTHACHE. toothed'-billed', adj. See -BILLED. toothenague. † TUTENAG. tooth'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tooth'pick'er, n. Toothpick. Obs. toot'nague (tōōt'nāg). Var. of TUTENAG. too-wan'. Var. of TUAN. too'zle. Scot. & dial. var. of TOUSLE.

top of; to clear; surmount; to rise above; as, the dog topped the fence; the sun topped the eastern cliff.
8. Obs. a To cover, as an animal in breeding. b To cheat; esp., to cheat at dice. See TOP, n., 14 a. c To palm off; to impose (something); — with upon.
9. a To strike the top of, as a wall, with the hind feet, in jumping, so as to gain new impetus; — said of a horse. b To arrange, as fruit, with the best on top. c To put a stiffening piece or back on (a saw blade).
10. Breeding. To improve (domestic animals, esp., sheep) by crossing certain individuals or breeds with others superior.
11. Dyeing. To cover with another dye; as, to top aniline black with methyl violet to prevent greening and crocking.
12. Golf. To strike (the ball) above the center; also, to make (as a stroke) by hitting the ball in this way.
13. Paint Mfg. To strike a dye on (a pigment), as in the manufacture of Tuscan red.
—, Intransitive: 1. To top (in any sense) someone or something.
2. To make an end, finish, or conclusion; to round (off); to wind (up); — with with. See top off, below.
top off. a To complete by putting on a top, covering, or upper part, or by adding a finishing touch; as, to top off a stack of hay; to top off a dinner with coffee. b To give or serve as a top, cover, finishing touch, etc., to; as, a trip to Europe topped off his college course. c To end or wind up a meal, education, etc.; — with with; as, the banqueters topped off with cigars. d To finish, as livestock for the market.
top out. a = TOP, v. i., 1 g. b Building. To top off; to finish by putting on a cap or top (uppermost) course (topping-out course).
top up. a = TOP, v. t., 9 b. b = top off, above. top (tŏp), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or at, the top; highest; topmost; uppermost; as, the top floor, branch, crust, or layer; top prices or speed.
2. Foremost in order, rank, achievement, value, etc.; chief; head; pre-eminent; as, top sporting writer on a paper. Fine writing is, next to fine doings, the top thing in the world. Keats.
3. First-class; very good; as, top ale; to be in top form or shape. Colloq.
4. Having or fitted with a top; as, a top buggy. top, adv. In the topmost position; esp., Theat. Cant, at the top price, as for tickets of admission.

I was doin' Louise the blind girl in the Two Orphans, playin' thirty cents top. H. L. Wilson.

top (tŏp), n. [ME. top, AS. top; cf. MD. dop, top, OHG., MHG., & G. dial. topf; also AF. topet, and F. toupie; perh. akin to G. topf a pot.] 1. A child's toy, commonly cylindrical, pear-shaped, or conoidal, having a tapering, usually steel-shod, point on which it is made to gyrate, as by spinning with a string (see PEG TOP), a spring, with the fingers, or in one variety (whip top or whipping top) by whipping; — also used in the phrase to sleep like a top, to suggest the steady, quiet, unbroken motion characteristic of a spinning top and of breathing in healthy sleep.
2. Ropemaking. A plug, or conical block of wood, with longitudinal grooves on its surface, in which the strands of the rope slide in the process of twisting. top, v. Transitive: 1. To tip over; to upset; topple; to throw overboard. Now Dial.
2. Naut. To raise one end of, as a yard, so that that end becomes higher than the other.
—, Intransitive: 1. To tilt; tip; topple over; to tumble. Now Rare.
2. Naut. To rise at one end, as a yard; — usually with up. top, or top up, one's boom. To heave short one's anchor; to start.
top, v. t. To drink at a draft; to drain; — with off. top, n. [Cf. Somali toban ten.] See MEASURE, Table. top-. = TOPO-.
top and butt. Shipbuilding. With the butt of one plank Planks worked Top and Butt.

brought to the top of the other to make up a constant breadth in two layers; — of a method of working long tapering planks. top and tail. Something in its entirety; beginning and end; everything. Obs.
to'parch (tō'pärk; tŏp'ärk), n. [LL. toparcha, fr. Gr. toparchēs, fr. topos place + archein to rule.] A ruler or principal man; specif., the governor of a toparchy. to·par'chi·a (tō·pär'kĭ·ȧ), n.; pl. -CHIAE (-ē). [L.] Toparchy. to·par'chi·cal (-kĭ·kăl), adj. Being, pertaining to, or characteristic of, a toparch, or toparchy.
to'parch·y (tō'pär·kĭ; tŏp'är-), n.; pl. TOPARCHIES (-kĭz). [L. toparchia, fr. Gr. toparchia.] A small state, consisting of a few cities or towns; a petty country governed by a toparch; as, Judea was formerly divided into ten toparchies. top'-ar'mor, or top'-ar'mour, n. Naut. A railing of canvas or netting around a top. to'pass (tō'păs), n. Also to'pas, to'paz (-păz). [Pg. topaz, of obscure origin.] A Christian Indo-Portuguese half-caste. Hence, a soldier of this class; also, a sweeper on board ship. India. Hist.
To'pa·to'pa (tō'pȧ·tō'pȧ), n. [From Topatopa Range, north of Santa Clara Valley, Ventura Co., Calif.] A formation of the California marine Eocene. See GEOLOGY, Chart.
to'paz (tō'păz), n.; pl. TOPAZES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119). [ME. topace, fr. OF. topace, topase (F. topaze), fr. L. topazos, topazion.] 1. Mineral. a An orthorhombic mineral, occurring frequently in transparent prismatic crystals, and then classed as a semiprecious stone. Its characteristic color is yellow, varying from canary to deep orange, but it is also white, greenish, bluish, etc. Yellow topaz is sometimes made pink or red by heating. Topaz is found also in translucent or nearly opaque masses. Chemically, it is a fluosilicate of aluminum. H., 8. Sp. gr., 3.4–3.6. b The yellow sapphire, a precious stone of great value; — called specif. Oriental topaz. See CORUNDUM, SAPPHIRE. c A yellow variety of quartz, either citrine or cairn-gorm changed in color by heating; — called specif. false topaz.
2. Either of two large brilliantly colored South American hummingbirds (Topaza pella and T. pyra). In the male the two tail feathers next to the central ones are much longer than the rest, curved, and crossed. The throat is metallic yellowish green, with a tint like topaz in the center, the belly is bright crimson, the back red.
3. A brown color, yellowish red-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
4. Her. Or; — in blazoning by precious stones.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

topaz-colored	topaz-tailed	topaz-tinted topaz-green	topaz-throated	topaz-yellow to'paz·fels' (tō'păz·fĕls'), n. [topaz + G. fels rock.] Petrog. A brecciated contact rock composed of fragments of quartz, tourmaline, and topaz, in a matrix of quartz; — called also topaz rock.

to'paz·ine (tō'păz·ĭn; -ēn), adj. Like a topaz in color or luster. to'paz·ite (tō'păz·īt), n. [topaz + 1st -ite, 4.] Petrog. A rock consisting only of quartz and topaz.
to·paz'o·lite (tō·păz'ō·līt), n. [topaz + -lite; cf. F. topazolithe.] Mineral. A topaz-yellow (or green) variety of garnet.
to'paz·y (tō'păz·ĭ), adj. Topazine. top beam. = COLLAR BEAM. Rare.
top block. Naut. A block hung under the cap of a lower mast, used in lowering the topmast. top boot. Automobiles. A covering to fit over the top of a phaeton when it is down. top boot; pl. TOP BOOTS. A high, solid-legged boot, often with light-colored leather bands around the upper part, worn mostly by riders, as in hunting, or in livery; — usually in pl.
top burton. Naut. See BURTON, n., Cit. top buttons. = TOP, n., 14 d. top canch. See CANCH, n., 1 b. top'cap' (tŏp'kăp'), n. Mach. The top part of a journal housing.
top card. = TOP FLAT.
top cart. = TOP TRUCK.
top chain. Naut. A chain for use as an emergency support for the lower yards. Obs. exc. Hist. top cleaner. See CLEANER, n., c. top cloth. Nav. A canvas used to cover the hammocks which were formerly lashed to the tops in action to protect the topmen. Obs. exc. Hist.
top'coat' (tŏp'kōt'), n. An outer coat; specif.: a A lightweight overcoat. b A woman's loose coat, esp. one worn over a suit. — top'-coat'ed, adj.
top'coat'ing, n. Overcoating. top crop. The last picking of cotton, consisting of the top bolls. Dial. U. S. top cross. Breeding. A cross in which superior or pure-bred breeds or individuals (usually males) are mated with inferior stock; a generation of ancestors in which one parent has superior qualities; the product of such a cross; often narrowly, a paternally superior cross only. Cf. TOP, v. t., 10. — top'-cross', adj.
top crust. a The upper crust of a pie. b Slang. The highest social class. top'-cut'ter, n. Coal Mining. A turret cutter. top dog. One who comes out on top in a hard-fought competition or conflict; the dominant person, part, race, etc.; — in allusion to a dog fight. Cf. UNDERDOG. Colloq.
top'-drain', v. t. To drain the surface of, as a field.
top drawer. a The highest drawer in a dresser or cabinet. b Slang. The upper class or classes. — top'-draw'er, adj.
top'-dress', v. t. To apply material to (land, a road, etc.), without working it in; as, to top-dress a macadam road.
top'-dress'ing, n. The act of one who top-dresses soil, as with fertilizer, a road, as with crushed stone, etc.; also, the material so applied.
top drill. A disk drill. See 1st DRILL, 1 b. tope (tōp), v. i. & t.; TOPED (tōpt); TOP'ING (tōp'ĭng). [F. toper to cover a stake in playing at dice, to accept an offer, tope agreed!, prop., I accept, fr. Sp. topar, 1st pers. sing. pres. ind., topo, orig., to butt with the horns, hence, to strike against, to meet, fr. tope upper end, point, fr. OF. top. See TOUPEE. From its use in play, it came to be, in English, a drinking term, prob. at first in closing a bargain or wager.] To drink hard or frequently; to drink strong liquors to excess; also, to drain one's glass in a draft. Cf. 7th TOP. Archaic.

If you tope in form, and treat. Dryden.

tope, interj. Prob., drink; — used in pledging. Obs.
tope, v. t. & i. = 6th TOP. tope down or over. To fall alseep; to die. Dial.
tope (tōp), n. [Origin uncert.] a A European shark (Galeorhinus, syn. Galeus, galeus), which reaches a length of about five feet. The term is often extended to related species common in most warm seas, as the soup-fin shark, and sometimes to others, as the smooth dogfishes. b Australia. The school shark.

Tope (Galeorhinus galeus). ⅛ tope, n. [Tamil tōppu.] A grove or clump of trees; an orchard; as, a mango tope. India.

tope, n. The wren. Local, Eng. & Scot. tope (tōp), n. [Hind. top, prob. fr. Pali thūpo, fr. Skr. stūpa a tope, a stupa.] Buddhist Arch. A round, cupola-topped building erected as a Buddhist shrine; a stupa. See STUPA. tope'chee (tōp'chē), n. [Turk. topji.] An artilleryman. Obs.
to·pee', to·pi' (tō·pē'; tō'pē), n. [Hind. topī.] A hat or cap, esp. a pith hat or helmet, generally made from the sola plant and called sola topee. India.
to'pee·wal'lah (tō'pē·wŏl'ȧ), n. Also to'pi·wal'a. [Hind. topī-wālā, lit., a hat man. See TOPEE; WALLAH.] Anglo-Ind. a Any European. b A topass.
to'peng (tō'pĕng), n. [Jav. topeñ mummery, masquerade.] A Javanese dramatic performance in which the actors wear grotesque masks and act in pantomime.
to·pep'o (tō·pĕp'ō), n. [A blend of tomato and pepper.] A tomatolike vegetable supposed to be a hybrid between the tomato and the red pepper Capsicum grossum.
top'er (tŏp'ẽr), n. One who topes; a drunkard; a sot.
top'er (tōp'ẽr), n. A tope (shark). top'er's-plant' (tŏp'ẽrz·plănt'), n. The salad burnet. top'es·the'si·a, top'aes·the'si·a (tŏp'ĕs·thē'zhĭ·ȧ; -zhȧ; -zĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. top- + esthesia.] Physiol. Determination of locality by sense of touch.
top facing. A finishing piece of leather or fabric appearing at the top of a shoe lining and frequently bearing the maker's trade-mark.
top fermentation. An alcoholic fermentation during which the yeast cells are carried to the top of the fermenting liquid. It proceeds with some violence and requires a temperature of 14–30° C. (58–86° F.). It is used in the production of ale, porter, etc., and of wines high in alcohol, and in distilling. Cf. BOTTOM FERMENTATION.
top'filled' (tŏp'fĭld'), adj. Brimful. Obs.
top flat. In a carding machine, any of a series of flat cards arranged in an endless chain and guided by rollers over the main cylinder, to remove the short and broken fibers.
top'full' (tŏp'fōōl'), adj. [top + full.] Brimful. top'gal'lant (tŏp'găl'ănt; naut. tŏ·găl'ănt), n. [See 1st TOP, 21; GALLANT, adj.] 1. Naut. Originally, a top above the topcastle, or top (1st TOP, 21); later, and now only, a topgallant mast or sail.
2. Figuratively: a Anything loftier or more elevated than others of its kind or other parts of the same structure. b The topmost point; the pinnacle; summit.
3. A very great gallant. Rare.
top'gal'lant, adj. 1. Naut. a Situated above the topmast and below the royal mast; designating, or pertaining to, the spars above the topmasts; as, the topgallant mast, sail, yards, braces, and the like. See SHIP. Illust. b Raised above the adjoining portions; — applied to a rail, bulwark, or deck; as, a topgallant forecastle. c Such that topgallant sails may be used; fresh but light; as, topgallant breezes or weather.
2. Figuratively, very exalted; grand; of the best or most excellent of its kind.
topgallant bulwarks. = QUARTER BOARDS. topgallant forecastle. Naut. An extra deck above the forecastle in the bows of some vessels. topgallant mast. See 3d MAST, 1. top gear. In the transmission system of an automotive vehicle, the gear giving the highest ratio of driven to driving speed and the lowest multiplication of torque.
top'-graft', v. t. Hort. To graft the tops of, as orchard trees.
top grafting. Hort. Grafting in which the cions are inserted in the top or branches of the plant. Cf. CROWN GRAFTING, ROOT GRAFTING. top grass. A tall grass, suitable for hay.
top gun. Nav. A rapid-fire gun placed in a military top.
toph (tōf), n. Also tophe (tōf). [L. tophus. See TUFA.] Tufa. toph (tōf), n. [Heb. tōph.] Music. A small Hebrew drum. to·pha'ceous (tō·fā'shŭs), adj. [L. tophaceus, tofaceus.] Pertaining to toph or tophus; gritty; sandy; rough; stony.
to·phaike' (tō·fāk'), n. [Turk. tufeng, colloq. tufek, fr. Per. tufak (dahan) blowgun.] A Turkish musket. top hamper, or top'-ham'per, n. Naut. a The upper rigging, spars, etc., of a ship. b Rigging, spars, etc., not needed for the time and hence in the way. top'-ham'pered, adj. Naut. Having too much or too heavy rigging aloft; top-heavy. Rare.
top'-hand', adj. At the top of any scale, as in rank, price, etc. Colloq.
top hat. A man's hat, usually of beaver or silk, with tall cylindrical crown, sometimes belled for formal wear; — called also beaver, high hat. Cf. OPERA HAT. top'-hat'ted (66), adj. Wearing a top hat.
top'-heav'y (tŏp'hĕv'ĭ), adj. 1. Having the top part too heavy for the lower part; lacking in stability or in danger of toppling over because of such improper distribution of weight; as, a top-heavy vase or boat
2. Figuratively: a Of an organization or personnel, overofficered, esp. at the top. b Of a nation, etc., carrying a crushing weight, as of debt or expense. c Of a financial structure, overcapitalized.
— top'-heav'i·ly (-ĭ·lĭ), adv. — top'-heav'i·ness, n.
To'phet, To'pheth (tō'fĕt), n. [Heb. tōpheth.] 1. A word of uncertain meaning and etymology, occurring several times in the Old Testament. Some, as Milton, have taken it to be another name for the valley of Hinnom, but more scholarly opinion holds it to have been a place, a fireplace, pyre, or furnace, in the valley, where human sacrifices by fire, esp. those of children to Moloch, were performed.

And he defiled Topheth, which is in the valley of the children of Hinnom. 2 Kings xxiii. 10.

2. [often not cap.] Hell, or a place likened to it; utter chaos, confusion, darkness, etc. Literary.

A place black as Tophet. Conrad.

to·phet'ic (tō·fĕt'ĭk), to·phet'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Of or like Tophet; hellish. top'-hole' (tŏp'hōl'; 66), adj. Excellent; tiptop; first-class. Slang, Chiefly Brit. to'phus (tō'fŭs), n.; pl. TOPHI (-fī). [L., tufa. See TUFA.] 1. Tufa, esp. calcareous tufa, or travertine (tophus stone). Obs.
2. Med. a A concretion in the body; specif., one of the mineral concretions about the joints, and in other situations, esp. the cartilages, in gouty persons. They consist usually of urate of sodium.
top'hy'per·i·dro'sis (tŏp'hĭ'pĕr·ĭ·drō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. top- + hyper- + hidrosis.] Med. Excessive localized secretion of sweat.
to'pi (tō'pĭ), n.; pl. -PIS (-pĭz). [Of Bantu origin; cf. Swahili t'ope, Yao ndope, Zigula ntohe.] An antelope (Damaliscus corrigum jimela) of eastern Central Africa, having a glossy purplish-brown coat with a watered-silk appearance. Also, any of various related varieties native to districts south of the Sahara. to·pi' (tō·pē'; tō'pē). Variant of TOPEE. to'pi·a (tō'pĭ·ȧ), n. [L. (sc. opera) ornamental gardening, fr. Gr. topos place.] Rom. Antiq. Mural decoration representing landscapes of diverse and fanciful character.
‖to'pi·a'ri·a (-ā'rĭ·ȧ), n. [L. topiaria (sc. ars). See TOPIARY.] Topiary art or gardening.
to'pi·ar'i·an (-ăr'ĭ·ăn), adj. Topiary; of or pert. to topiary art.
to'pi·a·rist (tō'pĭ·ȧ·rĭst), n. One skilled in topiary gardening; a landscape gardener.
to'pi·ar'y (tō'pĭ·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. topiarius belonging to ornamental gardening. See TOPIA.] Designating the work or art of training, cutting, and trimming, trees or shrubs into odd or ornamental shapes; also, characterized, as a garden, by such work.
to'pi·ar'y, n.; pl. TOPIARIES (-ĭz). 1. Topiary art or gardening; also, a topiary garden.
2. A plant, esp. a box or yew, shaped by topiary art; also, such plants collectively.
top'ic (tŏp'ĭk), n. [L. topica, title of a work of Aristotle, fr. Gr. topika, neut. pl., fr. topikos of or for place, concerning topoi, or commonplaces, fr. topos a place.] 1. Rhet. & Logic. a One of the various general forms of argument employed in probable as distinguished from demonstrative

---

top. † TAP. [THESIA. top'aes·the'si·a. Var. of TOPESto·pal'gi·a (tō·păl'jĭ·ȧ), n. = TOPOALGIA. to·paz'i·on, n. [L.] Topaz. Obs. topaz rock. Petrog. = TOPAZFELS. top'cast', n. = TOPSWARM. top'cas'tle, n. = 1st TOP, 21. Obs. top'chrome', v. t. & adj. Dyeing. = AFTERCHROME. to'pek. Var. of TUFEK. top'er·dom, n. See -DOM. to·per'ish, v. i. [See TO-.] To perish utterly. Obs. top'ful. adj. [top + -ful.] Exalted; lofty. Obs. top'ful'. Var. of TOPFULL.
To'phel (tō'fĕl). Bib. to'phet·ize, v. i. See -IZE. top'hon'ors, n. pl. Topsails. Obs. to'phous (tō'fŭs), adj. Tophaceous. Obs. to'pi·ar'i·us (tō'pĭ·ăr'ĭ·ŭs), n. [L.] = TOPIARIST. Rare.

N O P Q R S T

reasoning, denominated by Aristotle topoi (literally, places), as being the places or sources from which arguments may be derived, or to which they may be referred; also, a prepared form of argument, applicable to a great variety of cases, with a supply of which the ancient rhetoricians and orators provided themselves; a commonplace of argument or oratory. b pl. A treatise on forms of argument; a system or scheme of forms or commonplaces of argument or oratory; as, the Topics of Aristotle.

In this question by [reason] I do not mean a distinct topic, but a transcendent that runs through all topics. Jer. Taylor.

2. An argument; a reason; a consideration.
3. A heading as in an outlined argument or exposition; a phrase summarizing what is, or is to be, presented in a discourse or a section of it; as, to use topics only while preaching.
4. The subject of a discourse or any section of it; the theme; hence, subject matter, as of talk or thought; as, that is the topic of his book; to suggest inflation as a topic for discussion; topics of the day.
5. Med. An external local application or remedy, as a plaster, a blister, etc. Obs.

top'ic (tŏp'ĭk), adj. Obs. a Constituting or pertaining to a topic, maxim, or commonplace; also, containing such topics. b = TOPICAL, adj., 1.

top'i·cal (tŏp'ĭ·kăl), adj. [Gr. topikos. See TOPIC, n.] 1. Of or pertaining to a place; local or designed for local application; as, a topical remedy.
2. Of or pertaining to a topic, or heading or subject; using or characterized by the use of topics; as, a synopsis in topical form.
3. Referring to the topics of the day; containing allusions of local or temporary interest (often humorous); as, topical allusions in Ben Jonson's plays; a topical song.
4. Rhet. & Logic. a Of or pertaining to a topic (sense 1) or topics; according to topics. b Obs. Resembling a topic; hence, not demonstrative, but merely probable.

Evidences of fact can be no more than topical and probable. Sir M. Hale.

top'i·cal, n. Motion Pictures. A topical film.

topical coloring. Textile, esp. calico, printing; — so called from the color being applied to limited areas.

top'i·cal'i·ty (tŏp'ĭ·kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. The quality of being topical, esp. of local or immediate interest only.

top'i·cal·ly, adv. of TOPICAL.

topic sentence. Also topical sentence. In composition, a sentence which states the main or central thought of a paragraph or of a larger unit of discourse, usually at or near the beginning.

top'i·nam'bou (tŏp'ĭ·năm'bōō), n. [F. topinambou, topinambour, fr. Pg. tupinambor, tupinambá, for batata tupinambá Tupinamba potato.] The Jerusalem artichoke.

Top'i·nish (tŏp'ĭ·nĭsh), n. An Indian of a Shahaptian tribe now living on the Yakima Reservation in Washington.

Top'–Ka'pu (tōōp'kä'pōō), n. [Turk. Tōp Qāpū, lit., cannon gate, a quarter of Istanbul.] A kind of modern high-grade rug woven in Istanbul, both in silk and in wool, and reproducing antique patterns, esp. of Ghiordes and 16th-century Persian rugs.

top kick. = TOP SERGEANT. Slang.

top'knot' (tŏp'nŏt'), n. 1. A knot of ribbon or lace, a tuft of feathers, etc., forming an ornamental headdress; specif., a commode. Cf. COMMODE, n., 1.
2. A crest of feathers, as on a cock; a tuft of hair on the top or forward part of a person's or animal's head.
3. An arrangement of hair in a knot on top of the head.
4. A head; the hair on one's head. Slang.
5. A small European flounder (Phrynorhombus regius) having the anterior rays of the dorsal fin elongated; also, any closely allied species.
6. Any crested fowl.

Topknot (Phrynorhombus regius). (¼) topknot pigeon. A crested Australian wild pigeon (Lopholaimus antarcticus).

top'knot'ted, adj. Having a topknot.

top'less (tŏp'lĕs; -lĭs), adj. Without a top; often, Poetic, so high as to seem without a top; reaching up beyond sight or estimation; supreme or supremely high.

Topless fortunes. Beau. & Fl.

top lift. The outside lift of leather on a heel; the lift on which a shoe rests when standing upright.

top light. 1. Naut. A lantern or light at one of the tops of a vessel, sometimes indicating a flagship top'line' (tŏp'lĭn'), n. The outline of the top of an animal's body, usually from the head to the tail.
2. Light from above, as from a skylight; also, a skylight. — top'light'ed, adj.

top line. A line at the top, or in the most prominent position, type, or the like; a headline; specif., the first line in a list of actors or performers, as in a theatrical advertisement.

top'–line' (66), adj. Named in the top line or lines; most featured or prominently advertised; leading.

top liner. A top-line person or thing; specif., a top-line actor or performer; a star. Colloq.

top lining. The lining of a top; specif., Naut., a chafing cloth on the after side of the lower cloths of a topsail.

top'–lit' (tŏp'lĭt'), adj. Toplighted.

top load. Logging. A load of logs more than one tier high.

top loader. Logging. A man who places the logs on the top of a load. U. S. & Canada.

top'lof'ti·cal (tŏp'lŏf'tĭ·kăl), adj. Toplofty; manifesting toplofttiness; elevated above the average man's taste or understanding.

top'loft'y (tŏp'lŏf'tĭ; 66), adj. Very lofty in air or in attitude; haughty; contemptuous of the average or ordinary; disdainful. — top'loft'i·ly, adv. — top'loft'i·ness, n. All Colloq.

top'mak'er (-māk'ĕr), n. Wool Mfg. One who makes, or commissions others to make, wool into tops. — top'mak'ing, n.

top'man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). 1. A workman such as: a A top sawyer. See SAWYER, n., 1. b A workman who releases coke or coal to charge furnaces, retorts, etc. c One who clarifies beer, etc., by the addition of finings. d Mining. A man employed at the surface.
2. = TOPSMAN b.
3. Naut. a A sailor or marine stationed in a top. b Obs. A vessel having a top.

top'mast' (tŏp'mĭst'; -măst), n. Naut. The second mast from the deck; — in a square-rigged ship that which is next above the lower mast and below the topgallant mast, in a fore-and-aft rig the upper and smaller mast.

top maul. Naut. A heavy hammer for use aloft.

top milk. The upper layer of milk in a container, enriched by whatever cream has risen.

top minnow. Any of numerous small viviparous surface-feeding fishes which constitute the family Poeciliidae, esp. Gambusia patruelis, abundant in sluggish streams and ditches in the southern United States (see GAMBUSIA). The term is applied also to certain killifishes of the genus Zygonectes, esp. Z. dispar, of the central United States, having the same habits.

top'most (tŏp'mōst; -măst), adj. Highest of all; uppermost; as, the topmost cliff or branch of a tree. — top'most·ly, adv.

top netting. Nav. A netting of small rope formerly placed round a top of a man-of-war. Obs. exc. Hist.

top notch. The highest point possible or attainable. Colloq.

top'–notch' (tŏp'nŏch'; 66), adj. Highest or best attained or attainable; tiptop; first-rate; unsurpassed. Colloq.

top'notch'er (-ĕr), n. Someone or something that is top-notch. Colloq.

top note. a The note representing the upper limit of a singer's compass. b The highest point possible or desirable.

top'o- (tŏp'ō-), top-. A combining form, Greek topo-, top-, from topos, meaning place, as in: toponeural, toponeurosis, topopolitan, topotactic, topotaxis.

to'po (tō'pō), n. [Sp. topo, tupo, fr. Quechua tupu.] See MEASURE, Table.

top'o·al'gi·a (tŏp'ō·ăl'jĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. topo- + -algia.] Med. Local pain, esp. when without apparent cause.

top'o·chem'i·cal (-kĕm'ĭ·kăl), adj. [topo- + chemical.] 1. Pert. to or designating a locally confined chemical reaction, as one which takes place at the surface of a liquid only.
2. Zool. Of, pertaining to, or designating, a combined tactile and chemical (olfactory) sense, as that of the antennae of insects.

top of the house. The number 99 in the gambling game of house (keno). Soldiers' Slang, Australia.

top of the morning. a Now Rare. The early hours of the morning. b Ir. As a greeting, good morning; as, the top of the morning to you, sir. Top translates Ir. barr, crown, cream, choice.

top'og·no'si·a (tŏp'ŏg·nō'sĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. topo- + -gnosia.] Also top'og·no'sis (-sĭs). Psychol. Recognition of the location of a stimulus on the skin or elsewhere in the body.

top'o·graph (tŏp'ō·grăf), n. Rare. a A model or draft of a place. b A topographic description. c A kind of surveying instrument.

to·pog'ra·pher (tō·pŏg'rä·fĕr), n. [Gr. topographos.] One who is skilled in, or who practices, topography; one who describes, maps, etc., the topography of a particular place or region.

top'o·graph'ic (tŏp'ō·grăf'ĭk), adj. [Gr. topographikos.] Of or pertaining to topography; descriptive or delineative of a place or its topography; as, topographic studies, surveys, reconnoissance, or relief.

topographic adolescence or youth. Phys. Geog. The condition of a district soon after the beginning of erosion by streams, when main branches have well-developed, narrow valleys, but the areas between the streams are little modified.

top'o·graph'i·cal (tŏp'ō·grăf'ĭ·kăl), adj. 1. Topographic; concerned with or exhibiting the topography or configuration of a region; as, a topographical description or map; a topographical survey.
2. Psychoanalysis. Of or pertaining to the mind conceived as made up of different localities or strata, as conscious, preconscious, unconscious, etc.
— top'o·graph'i·cal·ly, adv.

topographic infancy. Phys. Geog. The condition of a district freshly exposed to the action of surface waters, when the original hollows are still occupied by lakes and ponds and the plains are imperfectly dissected by narrow stream gorges.

topographic map. A map intermediate between a general map and a plan, on a scale large enough to show roads, plans of towns, contour lines, etc.

topographic maturity. Phys. Geog. The condition of a district in which the land is reduced to slopes, the original upland has been completely dissected, and a new plain of erosion has scarcely begun to appear. Many of the individual river valleys are mature but some of the headwaters of the tributaries may still be in the youthful stage. Cf. RIVER.

top'o·graph'i·co- (tŏp'ō·grăf'ĭ·kō-). A combining form for topographic, denoting topographical and, as in top'o·graph'i·co–myth'i·cal topographic old age. Phys. Geog. The condition of a district reduced by erosion nearly to base level. See RIVER, 1.

top'o·graph'ics (tŏp'ō·grăf'ĭks), n. Topography. Rare.

topographic youth. Phys. Geog. = TOPOGRAPHIC ADOLESCENCE.

to·pog'ra·phist (tō·pŏg'rä·fĭst), n. A topographer.

top'o·graph'o·met'ric (tŏp'ō·grăf'ō·mĕt'rĭk), adj. [See TOPOGRAPHIC; METRIC.] Connected with, or devised for, the measurement of heights, angles, and distances, as for topographic maps.

to·pog'ra·phy (tō·pŏg'rä·fĭ), n. [LL. topographia, fr. Gr. topographia, fr. topos place + graphein to write.] 1. The description of a particular place, as a city, town, manor, parish, or tract of land. Obs.
2. The art or practice of graphic and exact delineation in minute detail, usually on maps or charts, of the physical features of any place or region, esp. in a way to show their relative positions and elevations. Cf. CHOROGRAPHY, 1.
3. Localization; geographical distribution. Rare.
4. The configuration of a surface, including its relief, the position of its streams, lakes, roads, cities, etc.; as, a map showing the topography of Ohio; hence, loosely, natural or physical features collectively; lay of the land (which see); as, the topography of one's mind or ship.
5. Topographic surveying; the profession or work of a topographer.
6. a Regional anatomy. See ANATOMY, 2 a. b A chart or illustration showing the location of the parts, bones, organs, etc., as of a bird or animal.

to·pol'a·try (tō·pŏl'ä·trĭ), n. [topo- + -latry.] Worship of, or excessive reverence for, a place. Rare.

to·pol'o·gy (-ō·jĭ), n. [topo- + -logy.] 1. A mnemonic method based on association of ideas with places. Rare.
2. Topographical study of a particular place; specif., the history of a region as indicated by its topography.
3. a Anat. Regional anatomy. See ANATOMY, 2 a. b Obstet. The relation between the presenting fetus and the mother's pelvis.
4. Math. The doctrine of those properties of a figure unaffected by any deformation without tearing or joining; the theory of the invariants of the group of continuous transformations; analysis situs.
— top'o·log'ic (tŏp'ō·lŏj'ĭk), top'o·log'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj.

top'o·nar·co'sis (tŏp'ō·när·kō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. topo- + Gr. narkōsis a benumbing.] Med. Local anesthesia. See ANESTHESIA, 1.

top onion. Agric. One of the bulblets often replacing the flowers in the inflorescence of an onion, and used for propagation. See BULBIL.

top'o·nym (tŏp'ō·nĭm), n. [From TOPONYMY.] A name of a place; in scientific terminology, a name designating a region, as of the body, or indicating the location or place of origin of the thing named, as of a plant.

to·pon'y·mal (tō·pŏn'ĭ·măl), adj. Toponymic. Rare.

top'o·nym'ic (tŏp'ō·nĭm'ĭk), adj. Also top'o·nym'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl). Of or pertaining to toponyms, toponymics, or toponymy.

top'o·nym'ics (-ĭks), n. [toponym + -ics.] The scientific, esp. the etymological, study of place names, or of personal or family names derived from place names. See -ICS.

to·pon'y·my (tō·pŏn'ĭ·mĭ), n. [top- + Gr. -ōnymia. See HOMONYMY.] 1. a The place names of a region or language. b Toponymics.
2. Anat. The nomenclature of regional anatomy.

top'o·pho'bi·a (tŏp'ō·fō'bĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. topo- + -phobia.] Med. Morbid fear of certain places.

top'o·phone (tŏp'ō·fōn), n. [topo- + -phone.] A double ear trumpet for estimating the direction from which sounds proceed, esp. designed for the use of navigators.

top or tail. Head or tail. top'o·type (tŏp'ō·tīp), n. [topo- + -type.] Zool. A specimen of a species collected at the locality at which the original type was obtained. — top'o·typ'ic (-tĭp'ĭk), top'o·typ'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj.

top over tail. Head over heels; topsy-turvy.

top'–o'ver–tail', v. i. To tumble heels over head. Cf. 5th TOP.

topped (tŏpt), adj. Furnished with a top; also, subjected to topping, as oil or a tree.

-topped. A combining form from top, n., denoting having (such) a top, as in:

cloud-topped	round-topped	tallow-topped fir-topped	sharp-topped	tress-topped high-topped	small-topped	turret-topped open-topped	snow-topped	two-topped purple-topped	square-topped	white-topped top'per (tŏp'ĕr), n. 1. A person or thing that tops, or removes the top of, something; as, a turnip topper. Specif.: a A candle snuffer. b A cheater at dice. c A float (file). See 1st FLOAT, 24 a. d One who tops steel ingots. See TOP, v. t., 1 e. e Logging. One who tops trees and clings to the swinging trunk as the top crashes to the ground; a high-climber; a high-rigger.

2. One who tops, or puts a top on, something; as: a A worker who puts a top on boxes, tins, etc. b A worker who finishes the top of shirts, heels, furs, etc. c A stower who piles articles in tiers.
3. Chiefly Slang. One who or that which tops, or is at or on the top; as: a A cover or a top layer or part. b Someone or something first-rate or surpassingly good.

Mother always says he was a topper. Galsworthy.

c Superior fruit, or the like, displayed on top of that which is inferior. d A top hat. e A tobacco leftover, as a cigar stump or the remains in a pipe bowl. f A top note. g A blow on the head.

top pickle. Grain at the top of the stalk. Cf. 1st PICKLE. Scot.

top'piece' (tŏp'pēs'), n. Something at the top; as: a Obs. A masterpiece. b A toupee. c Slang. The head. d Shipbuilding. = TOP-TIMBER.

top'ping (tŏp'ĭng), n. 1. That which forms the top of anything; esp., a tuft of hair or feathers on the head, as a forelock, topknot, etc.
2. Act of one who tops; esp., the action of removing the top or tops.
3. pl. That removed by topping (sense 2); as: a The cut tops of plants. b Refuse separated from hemp in hatcheling. c Dial. (1) The finest bran. (2) Milk skimmings after the thick cream has been removed.
4. Angling. The tail of an artificial fly; — so called esp. when made of a feather from a golden pheasant's crest, or topping.

top'ping, adj. 1. That tops; esp., that rises above; exceedingly high; as, topping mountains; a topping cry.
2. Topmost in rank, quality, degree, etc.; highest in favor, amount, etc.; now usually, Slang, tiptop; first-rate; extremely good, fine, pleasant, etc.
3. Colloq. a Fine; gallant. b Very well; in excellent health. c U. S. Proud; pretentious; arrogant.
— top'ping·ly, adv. — top'ping·ness, n.

topping lift. Naut. A strong tackle or rope running from the masthead, employed to support or raise or top the outer end of a boom or, in old square-rigged ships, a yard.

top plate. Arch. One of a series of plates or timbers, as a pole plate or wall plate, on which a roof is raised. See PLATE, 12 & 16.

top'ple (tŏp'l), v.; TOP'PLED (-'ld); TOP'PLING (-lĭng). [From TOP to tip, tilt.] Intransitive: 1. To fall forward as from top-heaviness; to tumble down; to pitch headfirst; also, Dial., to somersault.
2. To jut out or overhang, as if tottering or unstable.
—, Transitive: 1. To push over, causing to fall by its own weight; to throw down; upset.

He toppled crags from the precipice. Longfellow.

2. To tip or tilt; to make dangerously unsteady.
3. To overthrow, as one enthroned; to eject from power.

top'ple, n. A toppling.

top'pler (tŏp'lĕr), n. One who or that which topples; specif., Dial. Eng., a tumbler (acrobat).

top'ply (-lĭ), adj. In danger of toppling. Colloq.

top'py (-ĭ), adj. Slang. a Inclined to topple. b Showy; stylish; — said esp. of a horse.

top'rail' (-rāl'), n. Naut. A bar, or rail, around the rear part of an old-fashioned top.

top rake. Mach. The angle between that face of a cutting tool which receives the chip, and the normal to the surface being cut; — called also front rake. See CLEARANCE, Illust.

---

to'pi·wal'la. Var. of TOPEWALLAH.

top'l. Topple. Ref. Sp.

top'like', adj. See -LIKE.

top'net. † TAPNET. [Sp.

to·pog'ra·fer. Topographer. Ref.

to·pog'ra·fy. Topography. R.S.

topographical anatomy. See ANATOMY.

topographical engineering. See ENGINEERING, n., 1.—topographical engineer.

topographical latitude. See LATITUDE, n., 6.

to·pog'ra·phize (tō·pŏg'rä·fīz), v. t. & i. See -IZE.

to·pol'o·gist, n. See -IST.

to·pon'o·my. Var. of TOPONYMY.

to·pon'y·mist, n. See -IST.

top pendant. Naut. = TOPROPE.

top'ping-out' course. See top out b, under 2d TOP.

top'-proud', adj. Extremely proud. Obs.

top rider. One riding on top of a vehicle, as a tallyho. top'-road' bridge. A truss bridge with the roadway carried on top of the trusses.
top'rope' (tŏp′rōp′), n. Naut. A rope to hoist or lower a topmast. top rot. Plant Pathol. A rotting of the upper part of a plant, — a symptom of various diseases of sugar cane. top round (of beef). See ROUND OF BEEF. top rung. The highest rung of a ladder; hence, the point of utmost attainment, as in rank, etc.
top'sail' (tŏp′sāl′; naut. -s′l), n. Naut. In a square-rigged vessel, the sail next above the lowermost sail on a mast. In modern ships there are often an upper and lower topsail, the name of double topsails being given to the rig. In a fore-and-aft-rigged vessel, the sail set above, and sometimes on, the gaff. A jib topsail is a small jib set above all. See CUTTER, 9 b; 1st SCHOONER, 1; SLOOP, 1; SAIL, n., 1; SHIP, Illust. — top'sail', adj.
top'sail', adv. Also topsails over. Headforemost. Obs. top'sail'ite (tŏp′sāl′īt; -s′l-īt), n. [From Cape Topsail, Isle of Fontaba, Los Islands, W. Africa.] Petrog. A lamprophyre, somewhat alkaline, intermediate between kersantite, spessartite, and camptonite. It carries phenocrysts of plagioclase, augite, and titanomagnetite in a groundmass of acid plagioclase, microcline, biotite, augite, and barkevikite. topsail schooner. Naut. A two-masted schooner having square-rigged topsails on the foremast and, rarely, on the mainmast. Once very popular, they are now rare.
top'sail'-tye', n. Also top'sail'-tie'. A tye used on the topsail.
tops and bottoms. Literally, those at the top and those at the bottom; the extremes: a In music-hall cant, the top liners and those listed at the bottom of the billing. b Small rolls of dough, baked, cut in halves, and then browned in an oven, used as food for infants. tops and drops. See 1st TOP, 13 f.
top sawing. The work of a top sawyer. top sawyer. 1. See SAWYER, n., 1.
2. Colloq. A superior person; esp., one who is prominent, as in social or political life.
top sergeant. The first sergeant of a military company, battery, or troop. Colloq.
top'-set' beds. Geol. The nearly level layers of sediments that rest on the top of a delta and slope. Cf. FORE-SET BEDS. top'-sew', v. t. To hem or seam by sewing over and over; as, to top-sew a pillowcase.
top'-shaped' (tŏp′shāpt′), adj. Having the shape of a top. top sheet. See TYMPAN, 4. top shelf. The highest shelf; or, by extension, the highest place, rank, quality, etc. — top'-shelf', adj.
top shell. Any marine snail of the family Trochidae, having a spiral, usually regularly conical, shell with a flat base and rhombic aperture and a multispiral operculum. A few species are used to make pearl buttons.

Top Shell (Trochus sisyphinus).

top'side' (tŏp′-sīd′; 66), n. 1. Bottom of a round of beef. See ROUND OF BEEF. Eng.
2. Naut. The portion of the outer surface of a vessel on either side above the water line or, sometimes, esp. in war vessels, above the main deck; — usually in pl.
top'side', adv. On deck; figuratively, on the top; in the commanding position. Colloq.
top sights. Ordn. A fixed notched rear sight and plain point front sight used in roughly testing guns.
top slicing. Mining. A method of mining large ore bodies from the top downward by consecutively removing a series of horizontal slices under a caved capping.
tops'man (tŏps′măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a Scot. & N. of Eng. A chief or headman; specif., the chief drover of a herd of cattle. b Slang. A hangman.
top'soil' (tŏp′soil′), n. Surface soil, as distinguished from subsoil. top'soil', v. t. To remove the topsoil from (land). top spit. Topsoil to the depth of a spade. See 6th SPIT. top starter. Beekeeping. A sheet of wax foundation placed in a frame, not extending to the bottom of the frame. top stock. Cards arranged in the shuffle to be brought to the top of the pack in dealing for the draw, esp. in poker.
top'stone' (tŏp′stōn′), n. A stone that is placed on the top, or which forms the top; a capstone. top story. The topmost story or floor of a building; also Colloq. & Humorous, the brain.
top'swarm' (tŏp′swôrm′), n. The first swarm of bees from a hive. Scot. & N. of Eng.
Top'sy (tŏp′sĭ), n. In Mrs. Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin a young negro slave girl whose ignorance and unconscious humor provide comic relief. Her replies to questioning, "Never was born" and "I spect I grow'd," have made her the symbol of that which originates spontaneously and develops aimlessly. top'sy-turn' (-tûrn′), v. t. & i. To turn upside down, or topsy-turvy. Now Rare.
top'sy-tur'vi-cal (-tûr′vĭ-kăl), adj. Topsy-turvy in character, operation, etc.
top'sy-tur'vi-fy (-tûr′vĭ-fī), v. t. Also top'sy-tur'vy-fy. To make topsy-turvy. — top'sy-tur'vi-fi-ca'tion (-fĭ-kā′shŭn) n. — top'sy-tur'vi-fi'er (-fī′ĕr), n.
top'sy-tur'vy (tŏp′sĭ-tûr′vĭ), adv. [Earlier topsy-tervy, prob. for top so tervy, that is, the top so turvy, as it were turvy, where turvy prob. means, overturned; cf. ME. terven to roll, AS. oftyrfan to stone, torfian to throw, to stone, tearfian to wallow, to roll.] In an inverted posture; with the top or head downward; upside down; as, to fall topsy-turvy; hence, in confusion or disorder; in a state where proper or normal places, values, standards, etc., are reversed.
top'sy-tur'vy, adj. -TUR′VI-ER (-vĭ-ĕr); -TUR′VI-EST. Turned topsy-turvy; reversed in position, order, value, etc.; confused; greatly disordered. — n. A topsy-turvy condition. top'sy-tur'vy, v. t.; -VIED (-vĭd); -VY-ING. To turn or render topsy-turvy.
top'sy-tur'vy-dom (-dŭm), n. A topsy-turvy state, existence, or world; also, an instance of topsy-turviness.

top tackle. A tackle for hoisting and lowering the topmast.
top'tail' (tŏp′tāl′), v. i. To dive so as to turn the tail up, as a whale.
top'-tim'ber, n. Shipbuilding. Any of the highest timbers on the side of a vessel, being above the futtocks. top tool. A tool used on top along with a bottom tool.
top truck. Ropemaking. A truck, or carrier, on which the top is moved as the rope is formed from strands. top water. Water over the oil in a pool. top water plug. See PLUG, n., 6. top weight. Horse Racing. The heaviest weight carried; also, a horse carrying it. top'-work' (tŏp′wûrk′), v. t. -WORKED′ (-wûrkt′); -WORK′-ING. Hort. To top-graft.
-topy. A combining form, from Greek topos, place, denoting position, location, as in heterotopy, isotopy.
top yeast. a Yeast producing top fermentation. b A yeast that develops or is active at low temperatures. Hansen.
toque (tōk), n. [F., of obscure origin. Cf. TUQUE.] 1. A type of round hat made of a fabric folded or twisted into shape or drawn over a frame and now, esp., small and brimless.
2. A pad worn under hair dressed pompadour fashion. Obs.
3. The bonnet monkey or any monkey having a similarly tufted head; esp., Macaca pileata of Ceylon.
4. U. S. = TUQUE.
‖to·quil'la (tō-kē′yä; -kēl′yä; 170), n. [Sp., dim. of toca headdress. See TOQUE.] A very flexible and durable fiber derived from the leaves of the Jipijapa, from which Panama hats and other wares are plaited.
tor (tôr), n. [AS. torr. See TOWER.] A high, craggy hill; a rocky pinnacle or peak; also, Scot., a burial mound.
tor (tôr), n. Corrupt. of TAW. to′ra (tō′rä), n. [Amharic.] An East African hartebeest (Alcelaphus tora). to′rah, to′ra (tō′rä), n.; pl. -ROTH (-rōth). [Heb. tōrāh.] Jewish Lit. a A law; precept. b Divine instruction; revelation. Tora, . . . before . . . Malachi, is generally used of the revelations of God's will made through the prophets. T. K. Cheyne. c [cap.] The Pentateuch, or "Law of Moses."
The Hebrew Bible is divided into three parts: (1) The Torah, "Law," or Pentateuch. (2) The Prophets . . . (3) The Kethubim, or the "Writings," generally termed Hagiographa. C. H. H. Wright.
d Biblical law in general.
To·ra′ja, To·ra′dja (tō-rä′jä), n. One of a pagan people of Celebes, closely related to the Dyak of Borneo and to the Igorot of the Philippines. to′ran (tō′rän), To·ra·na (-rä-nä), n. [Skr. toraṇa.] Indian Arch. A gateway, commonly of wood, but sometimes of stone, consisting of two upright pillars carrying one to three transverse lintels. It is often minutely carved with symbolic sculpture, and serves as a monumental approach to a Buddhist temple. Cf. PAI-LOU, TORII.
tor'ban·ite (tôr′băn·īt), n. Also Torbane Hill mineral (tôr′băn). [From Torbane Hill, near Bathgate, Scotland.] Boghead coal. — tor'ban·it'ic (tôr′băn·ĭt′ĭk), adj. tor'bern·ite (tôr′bĕrn·īt), n. [After Torbern Bergman, Sw. chemist.] Mineral. A tetragonal mineral of micaceous structure, occurring in green tabular crystals or foliated form. It is a hydrous uranium copper phosphate, $Cu(UO_2)_2(PO_4)_2.8H_2O$. H., 2–2.5. Sp. gr., 3.4–3.6. tor'cel (tôr′sĕl), n. [Origin uncert.] The larva of a South American botfly (Dermatobia hominis), that lives beneath the human skin.
torch (tôrch), n. [ME. torche, fr. OF. torche, fr. (assumed) VL. torca, for L. torques, torquis, a twisted necklace or collar, something twisted like a rope; akin to L. torquere to twist. See TORTURE; cf. TORQUES, TRUSS.] 1. A flaming light, carried usually in the hand and formed of some combustible substance, as resinous wood or twisted tow soaked with tallow, or a chimneyless lamp attached to a pole; a flambeau.
With the countless torches lit, with the silent sea of faces and the unbared heads. Walt Whitman.
2. Something that flames, burns, illuminates, or enlightens, like a torch; — often with allusion to the lighting of one torch from another or the passing on of a lighted torch as in a torch race; as, succeeding generations have the duty of handing on the torch of knowledge.
The torch of discord with its fiery hair. Shelley.
3. a Any of various flowers which suggest a torch, as in being flame-colored, long-stemmed, and raceiform, or whose stalks are treated so as to be used for torches. b Specif., the common mullein, or torchwort.
4. Any of various portable devices for emitting a hot flame, as for vaporizing oil to start an oil engine, burning off old paint, melting solder, or the like; as, an acetylene torch. See BLOWTORCH, Illust.
5. A small, battery-operated, portable electric light; a flashlight. torch, v. t. To light, as with a torch. — v. i. To flame (up) like a torch; also, U. S., to use torchlight, as in fishing. torch, v. t. Plastering. To point (slating) with a mixture of lime and hair. torch'bear'er (tôrch′bâr′ĕr), n. 1. One who carries a torch, as in a race or procession.
2. One who serves as a guardian or transmitter of the light of knowledge, civilization, truth, etc.
Every land has its torchbearers, but nowhere else do they all profess to carry the sacred fire. Agnes Repplier.
3. See CAMPFIRE GIRL.
— torch'bear'ing, n. & adj.
torch cactus. The torch thistle. torch course. = TORCH RACE.
torch dance. A festival dance in which lighted torches are carried. torch'er (tôr′chĕr), n. a One that gives light, as with a torch. Shak. b U. S. Specif., one who torches, as in fishing at night.
torch'er, n. One who torches slate roofs.
‖torch'ère' (tôr′shâr′), n. [F.] A small, high, delicate candlestand used in the 18th century, usually having a tripod base.
torch'-fish', n. A largemouthed deep-sea fish (Linophryne lucifer) having a stalked luminous organ above the snout.
torch flower. = PRAIRIE SMOKE a. torch holder. A support for a torch; a device for holding a torch.
torch'light' (tôrch′līt′), n. 1. The light of a torch or of torches.
Now and then a face glowed . . . in the torchlight. S. Kaye-Smith.
2. Dusk; nightfall. Rare.

torch'light' (tôrch′līt′), adj. Composed of torchbearers; also, illuminated by, or as by, torchlights; as, a torchlight procession; a torchlight political rally.
torch'light'ed (-līt′ĕd; -ĭd), torch'lit' (-lĭt′), adj. Illuminated with torches. torch'like' (-līk′), adj. Resembling or suggesting a torch, or the light of a torch. — torch'like', adv.
torch lily. a Any plant of the genus Kniphofia. b The spear lily (Doryanthes excelsa). torch'man (tôrch′măn), n. A torchbearer. tor'chon (tôr′shŏn; F. tôr′shôn′), n. [F., a dishcloth, dustcloth.] Short for TORCHON LACE, TORCHON PAPER, etc. torchon board. Pasteboard made of torchon paper, used for water-color drawings.
torchon lace. A strong bobbin lace made of coarse linen thread in simple geometrical patterns; also, a similar lace, of linen or cotton, made by machinery.
torchon paper. [F. papier torchon.] Paper with a rough surface; esp., handmade paper of great hardness for the use of painters in water colors.
torch pine. a The pitch pine Pinus rigida. b The ocote pine. c In England, the loblolly pine Pinus taeda. torch race. A race by men carrying torches; esp., Gr. Antiq., a lampadedromy. torch song. Music. A popular sentimental song of unrequited love. Hence, torch singing, torch singer. torch staff; pl. STAVES. A staff bearing a torch. Shak. torch thistle. Any of several columnar cacti of the genus Cereus. Their stems are used for torches by the Indians.
torch tree. a Eng. The loblolly pine Pinus taeda. b An East Indian shrub (Ixora parviflora) with scarlet flowers. c = OCOTILLO a. torch'-tree' fam'i·ly. The Fouquieriaceae. torch'weed' (tôrch′wēd′), n. Any plant of the genus Gutierrezia (family Carduaceae). torch'wood' (-wŏŏd′), n. a Any tree of the genus Amyris, esp. A. elemifera, the Florida balsam; also, its inflammable resinous wood. b Guam. The shrub Bikkia mariannensis (family Rubiaceae); also, its resinous wood. torchwood family. The Burseraceae. torch'wort' (-wûrt′), n. The common mullein. See TORCH, n., 3 b. tor'cu·lar (tôr′kū·lĕr), n. [L.] a Obs. A press, as for wine. b Also ‖tor'cu·lar He·ro'phi·li (hĕ·rŏf′ĭ·lī). Anat. = CONFLUENS SINUUM. c A surgeon's tourniquet.
‖tor'dion' (tôr′dyŏn′), n. [F., prop., a turning, contortion.] A dance forming the third part of an early French danse basse, and performed like the galliard, but slower.
tor·dril'lite (tôr·drĭl′ĭt), n. [From Tordrilla Mts., Alaska.] Petrog. A leucocratic extrusive rock, corresponding in composition to the plutonic alaskite, and formed essentially of a fine crystalline aggregate of quartz and alkali-feldspar.
tore (tōr; 181), n. [W. tor.] A pommel, esp. an ornamental knob, on a saddle; an ornamental knob on an article of furniture. Obs.
tore, n. [F., fr. L. torus. Cf. TORUS.] 1. Arch. = TORUS, 2.
2. Geom. a The surface described by a conic section, esp. a circle, rotating about a straight line in its own plane. b The solid of revolution inclosed by such a surface; — sometimes called anchor ring.
tore, v. i. [Cf. ON. tōra to lounge, linger.] To plod along; to persevere. Dial. Eng.
tore, n. Long pasture grass. Dial. Eng.
tore. Past tense & dial. past part. of TEAR. tor'e·a·dor' (tôr′ē·ä·dôr′; tôr′ē·ä·dôr′; 277), n. [Sp., fr. torear to fight bulls, fr. toro bull, fr. L. taurus. See TAURUS; cf. TORERO.] 1. A bullfighter; esp., a mounted bullfighter. Cf. TORERO.
2. The color Dutch vermilion. See VERMILION, n., 3. to-rend', v. t.; past tense & past participle TO-RENT. [AS. tōrendan.] To rend asunder or in pieces. See TO-. Obs.
To·re'ni·a (tō-rē′nĭ·ä), n. [NL., after Olaf Toren, ship's chaplain.] Bot. a A genus of chiefly tropical Asiatic and African herbs (family Scrophulariaceae), having simple opposite leaves and tubular 2-lipped showy flowers with four perfect stamens. T. fournieri, with blue-and-yellow flowers, is popular in cultivation. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.
‖to·re′ro (tō-rā′rō), n.; pl. -ROS (-rōs). [Sp. See TORE-ADOR.] A bullfighter on foot. to·reu'ma·tog'ra·phy (tō·rōō′mä·tŏg′rä·fĭ), n. [ML. toreumatographia, fr. Gr. toreuma, toreumatos, toreutic work. See -GRAPHY.] The description of toreutic work or methods. to·reu'ma·tol'o·gy (-tŏl′ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. toreuma embossed work + -logy.] The study or the art of toreutics.
to·reu'tic (tō-rōō′tĭk), adj. [Gr. toreutikos, fr. toreuein to bore through, work in relief.] Sculp. Pertaining to or designating work wrought in metal by embossing, chasing, etc., or, less commonly, similar work in other materials, especially when comparatively minute and highly finished; — not applied to the sculpturing of statuary.
to·reu'tics (-tĭks), n. Sculp. Art or process of making toreutic work. See -ICS. tor·fa'ceous (tôr·fā′shŭs), adj. [Cf. ON. torf turf, peat, G. torf. See TURF.] Cespitose. Rare. tor'fel, tor'fle (tôr′fĭl; tûr′fĭl), v. i. [Origin uncert.] Scot. & Dial. Eng. a To pine away; to die. b To draw back; to be recreant. — v. t. To toss about; to overexert (oneself). Scot. & N. of Eng.
Tor'gau Ar'ti·cles (tôr′gou). A statement prepared by Luther and his associates at Torgau in 1530, describing changes in ecclesiastical usage insisted on by the Reformers. They were made the basis of the second part of the Augsburg Confession.
Tor'got (tôr′gŏŏt), n. sing. & pl. Also Tor'god (-gŏŏt), Tor'gut (-gŏŏt). One of a division of the Eastern Mongols who migrated to the Volga in the reign of Genghis Khan, but later returned to the valley of the Ili. tor'ic (tôr′ĭk), adj. Pertaining to, resembling, or shaped like, a tore, or segment; as, he wore eyeglasses having toric lenses. See TORIC LENS.
toric lens. A simple lens having for one of its surfaces a segment of an equilateral zone of a tore. Such a lens has different refracting power in different meridians and is often used in the lenses of eyeglasses.
to-rights' (tōō-rīts′), adv. Colloq. & Dial. a Straight; in order; as, to put back all the furniture to-rights; after the most difficult negotiations, the ambassador was able to set everything to-rights again. b Just right; perfectly.

tops (tŏps), n. pl. Forestry. = 2d SLASH, 4. top'side-tur'vy, adv. Corrupt. of TOPSY-TURVY. top'si-turn'. Var. of TOPSYTURN. top'si-tur'vy. Topsy-turvy. Rif. Sp. top's'l. Contraction of TOPSAIL.
Top'sy-fash'ion, adv. See -FASHION. top'sy-tur'vey, top'sy-tur'vey-ly, etc. Vars. of TOPSY-TURVY, etc. top'sy-tur'vi-ly, adv. of TOPSY-TURVY. top'sy-tur'vi-ness, n. See -NESS. top'sy-tur'vy-hood, n. See -HOOD. top'sy-tur'vy-ism, n. See -ISM. top'sy-tur'vy-ist, n. See -IST. top'sy-tur'vy-ize, v. See -IZE. topt, adj. Intoxicated. Cf. 7th TOP. Obs. topt. Var. & ref. sp. of TOPPED. to-pull', v. t. To pull to pieces. See TO-. Obs. top'wise', adv. See -WISE.
tor. + TOWER. to-race', v. t. [to- + race (or rase) to tear.] To slash or tear to pieces. Obs.
tore (tôrk), n. = 1st TORQUE. torch'et, n. A small torch. Obs. torch'less, adj. See -LESS. torch'y, adj. Torchlighted. Obs. tor'cu·lus (tôr′kū·lŭs), n. [L., pert. to a wine press.] Medieval Music. See NEUME.
Tor'de·sil'las (tôr′dā·sēl′yäs), n. See TREATY, Table.
tored. Dial. past tense & past part. of TEAR. tor'goch (tôr′gŏx), n. [W., fr. tor belly + coch red.] = SAIBLING a.
To'ri (tō′rĭ), n., pl. of TORUS.
To'rie. Var. of TORY.
To'ries, n., pl. of TORY.
To'ri·est, adj. Occasional superl. of TORY.
To'ri·ly (tō′rĭ·lĭ). Var. of TO-RYLY.

to'ri·i (tō'rē·ē), n. sing. & pl. [Jap.] Jap. Arch. A gateway, or gateways, of light skeletonlike post-and-lintel construction designed with delicately curved lines, commonly built at the approach to a Shinto temple. Cf. PAILOU, TORAN.

Torii.

‖to·ril' (tō·rēl'), n.; pl. TORILES (-rē'lās). [Sp.] Bullfighting. A cell from which a bull issues to the ring.

Tor'i·lis (tôr'ĭ·lĭs), n. [NL., fr. L. torus cushion.] Bot. A genus of 20 species of annual weedy herbs of the carrot family (Ammiaceae), found in the Northern Hemisphere. They have pinnately decompound leaves, compound umbels of white flowers, and fruit with five primary and four secondary ribs. The European T. anthriscus is naturalized in North America.

To'rin·ese' (tō'rĭn·ēz'; -ēs'), adj. [It.] Of or pertaining to Turin. — n. sing. & pl. A native or inhabitant of Turin; the people of Turin.

To'ri·ness (tō'rĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 181), n. Tory character or influence.

tor'ma (tôr'mȧ), n.; pl. -MAE (-mē). [NL., fr. Gr. tormos tenon, trunnion.] Zool. One of a pair of small sclerites lying between the clypeus and labrum in the higher Diptera.

tor·ment' (tôr·mĕnt'), v. t.; -MENT'ED; -MENT'ING. [OF. to(u)rmenter (F. tourmenter).] 1. To subject to extreme cruelty; to inflict racking pains upon, as in punishing or persecuting; to torture; as, to torment prisoners of war. Now Rare.

2. To cause acute physical suffering or mental anguish in; to distress; afflict; as, to be tormented by a disease, a piercingly cold wind, or doubts.

3. To put into great agitation; to stir up.

[Angels], soaring on main wing, tormented all the air. Milton.

4. To rack or distort to serve one's purpose, design, ideal, etc.; to force or strain; hence, to make unnatural, oversophisticated, or the like; as, to torment a text or one's style.

5. To vex; tease; harass; as, to torment one with questions, out of one's wits, or into tears.

Syn. — TORMENT, TORTURE. To TORMENT is to inflict extreme pain or suffering; in present usage the verb often signifies little more than to vex or harass greatly (see HARASS), a weakening of meaning in which the noun has not so fully shared; TORTURE, both verb and noun, still implies the infliction of exquisite pain, whether bodily or mental; as, a horse tormented by flies; tormented with doubts and fears; "In hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments" (Luke xvi. 23); "every little living nerve . . . round the tortured lips and brow" (Shelley); "a scream of agony, by torture lengthened out" (Coleridge).

Ant. — Soothe, comfort, ease.

tor'ment (tôr'mĕnt), n. [ME. torment, t(o)urment, fr. OF. tourment, torment (F. tourment), fr. L. tormentum an engine for hurling missiles, an instrument of torture, a rack, torture, fr. torquere to turn, to twist, hurl. See TORTURE.] 1. A military engine for casting stones. Obs.

2. A torturing device, as the rack or wheel; also, the infliction of torture, or the torture inflicted by it. Archaic.

Drag him away to torments; let them be Subtle and long drawn out. Shelley.

3. Anguish of body or mind; distress; agony; as, to live in torment until out of debt; — sometimes in pl.

Till then I am in torments, ineffable torments. W. Beckford.

4. That which gives pain, vexation, misery, or the like; a source or cause of physical or mental suffering or agitation; also, a tormentor; as, for him there is no greater torment than failure; to be a constant torment to his parents; you little torment!

5. Specif.: a A tormenting storm; a tempest; — now tourmente. b Dial. Hell or hell fire.

6. The act of tormenting; persecution; also, Rare, an object of torment, or persecution.

tor·men'ta·tive (tôr·mĕn'tȧ·tĭv), adj. Prone to torment. R.

tor·ment'ed (tôr·mĕn'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. That has been subjected to torment; suffering; greatly annoyed or harassed; also, distorted; strained; racked. — tor·ment'ed·ly, adv.

tor'men·til (tôr'mĕn·tĭl), n. [F. tormentille, fr. ML. tormentilla, fr. L. tormentum pain. So called because it is said to allay pain. See TORMENT.] A yellow-flowered Eurasian herb (Potentilla tormentilla), the root of which is powerfully astringent, and is used sometimes in medicine and in tanning and dyeing.

tor'men·til'la (-tĭl'ȧ), n. [NL. See TORMENTIL.] a [cap.] Syn. of POTENTILLA. b Tormentil.

tor·ment'ing (tôr·mĕn'tĭng), adj. That torments. — tor·ment'ing·ly, adv. — tor·ment'ing·ness, n.

tor·ment'ive (-tĭv), adj. Tormenting. Rare.

tor·men'tor (tôr·mĕn'tĕr), n. Also tor·ment'er (-mĕn'tĕr). [OF. tormenteor.] 1. One who or that which torments; a torturer; also, Obs., an executioner.

2. A long iron meat fork, used by sea cooks.

3. A toy, usually of wood, which, when drawn down the back of a person, makes a sound like the tearing of cloth; also, a tickler.

4. Agric. Mach. An implement for reducing a stiff soil, resembling a harrow, but running on wheels.

5. Motion Pictures. A screen covered to prevent echo during the taking of scenes.

6. Theaters. A fixed wing or curtain on each side of the stage directly behind the proscenium arch and often projecting slightly beyond it toward the stage.

tormentor wing. A piece of scenery on each side of the stage, extending to, and hiding from the audience, the front end of the side wall or the projecting edge of the front side wing of a stage setting when the latter comes entirely within the opening of the proscenium arch.

tor'ment·ry (tôr'mĕnt·rĭ), n. [OF. tormenterie.] Torture; pain. Archaic.

tor·men'tum (tôr·mĕn'tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tȧ). [L. See TORMENT.] A torment; specif., Rom. & Medieval Antiq., any war machine for throwing projectiles.

tor'mi·na (tôr'mĭ·nȧ), n. pl.; sing. TORMEN (tôr'mĕn). [L.] Med. Acute, colicky pains; gripes. — tor'mi·nal (-mĭ·nȧl), tor'mi·nous (-nŭs), adj.

tor'mo·dont (tôr'mō·dŏnt), adj. [Gr. tormos socket + -odont.] Zool. Having, or designating, teeth set in sockets. Rare.

‖tor·na'da (tôr·nä'dȧ), n. [Pr.] The envoy of a canzone.

tor·nade' (tôr·nād'), n. A tornado. Rare.

tor·nad'ic (tôr·năd'ĭk), adj. Pertaining to, of the nature of, or characteristic of, a tornado.

tor·na'do (tôr·nā'dō), n.; pl. -DOES, -DOS (-dōz). [Sp. tronada thunderstorm, fr. tronar to thunder, fr. L. tonare. See THUNDER.] 1. Obs. a A tropical thunderstorm. b The season of such storms.

2. Hence, under the influence of the supposed derivation from L. tornare, to turn: Meteorol. a A squall off the west coast of Africa in which a violent wind revolves beneath a broad arch of threatening clouds, analogous to the gust that precedes any severe thunderstorm. b A whirling wind accompanied by a funnel-shaped cloud, very violent and destructive and progressing in a narrow path often for many miles over the land. It occurs in many parts of the world, but most frequently in the central Mississippi Valley. The wind is too violent to be measured, and the barometric pressure falls so rapidly (though rarely more than one tenth of its normal value) that wooden structures are often lifted and burst open by the air confined within them. Cf. CYCLONE, 4.

3. Any violent or destructive windstorm; a whirlwind.

4. Something suggestive of a tornado's violence or sweeping force.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:
tornado-breeding, tornado-haunted, tornado-swept.

tornado cellar or pit. A cyclone cellar.

tornado insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1.

tornado lantern or lamp. A lantern so made that its flame is undisturbed by violent winds.

tor·na'ri·a (tôr·nā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), n.; pl. -IAE (-ē). [NL., fr. L. tornare to turn.] Zool. The peculiar free-swimming larva of Balanoglossus and most other Enteropneusta, somewhat like an echinoderm larva. — tor·nar'i·an (-nâr'ĭ·ăn), adj.

torn'-down' (tôrn'dōōn'; tôrn'-), adj. Unruly; riotous; rough; violent. — n. An unruly person. Both Dial.

tor·ne'se (tôr·nā'zā), n.; pl. -NESI (-zē). [It., lit., of Tours.] A minor coin of base silver or copper, struck in many of the Italian states prior to the unification.

Tor'nit (tôr'nĭt), n. [Esk.] One of a fabulous race in Eskimauan mythology, to which is ascribed the construction of various stone buildings, of unknown origin, the ruins of which are found in Labrador and Baffin Island.

tor'note (tôr'nōt), adj. [Gr. tornōtos rounded with a lathe. See TORNUS.] Having blunt extremities — n. A monaxonic tornote sponge spicule.

tor'nus (-nŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. tornus lathe.] Zool. The inner or anal angle of an insect's wing, esp. of moths. — tor'nal (-nȧl), adj. & n.

to'ro (tō'rō), n. [Sp.] 1. A bull.

2. a = CATALUFA. b A cavalla, as Caranx hippos. c A cowfish (Acanthostracion quadricornis).

to'ro (tō'rō), n. [Maori.] A New Zealand tree, Myrsine salicina, with reddish, figured wood used for inlaying.

to'roid (tō'roid), n. [tore + -oid.] Geom. a A surface generated by the rotation of a plane closed curve about an axis lying in its plane. It is a generalized form of the tore. b A curve parallel to an ellipse. It passes through the extremities of equal normals of the ellipse. As the length of these normals increases, the curve gets more like a circle. — to'roid, adj.

to·roi'dal (tō·roi'dȧl), adj. a Of or pertaining to a tore or toroid. b = TORIC.

toroid coil. A helical winding on a toroid surface.

to'ro·lil'lo (tō'rō·lē'yō; -lēl'yō; 170), n. A common tropical American shrub or small tree (Randia armata), with very spiny branches, and an oval fruit used to stupefy fish.

To'ro·mo'na (tō'rō·mō'nȧ), n. An Indian of a Tacanan tribe dwelling between the Beni, Madidi, and Madre de Dios rivers in northwestern Bolivia. See TACANAN.

‖to·ron'ja (tō·rōng'hä; 162), n. [Sp.] The grapefruit. Mex.

To·ron'to'ni·an (tō·rŏn'tō'nĭ·ăn; tŏr'ŏn·tō'nĭ·ăn), n. A resident of Toronto.

to·ro'ro·kom'bu (tō·rō'rō·kŏm'bōō), n. [Jap., fr. tororo gruel.] Kombu in the form of a stringy pulp.

Tor'o·sau'rus (tŏr'ō·sô'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. L. torus a round place, protuberance + E. -saurus.] Paleontol. A genus of dinosaurs of the group Ceratopsia of the Laramie formation.

to'rose (tō'rōs; tō·rōs'; cf. -OSE), adj. [L. torosus full of muscle, brawny, fleshy. See TORUS.] a Bulging, as with muscles; muscular. b Having the surface covered with rounded prominences; knobbed; esp., Bot., cylindrical with alternate swellings and contractions.

to·ros'i·ty (tō·rŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being torose.

to'ro·to'ro (tō'rō·tō'rō), n. [Native name.] A kingfisher (Syma torotoro) of New Guinea, having an orange-colored beak.

to'rous (tō'rŭs), adj. Torose.

‖torp (tôrp), n. [Sw. See THORP.] Croft; small leased farm.

tor·pe'di·neer' (tôr·pē'dĭ·nēr'), n. [See -EER.] One whose duties include the setting and discharge of torpedoes.

Tor'pe·din'i·dae (tôr'pē·dĭn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See TORPEDO; -IDAE.] A family of elasmobranchs (order Batoidei) consisting of the electric rays. Syn. NARCOBATIDAE.

tor·ped'i·nous (tôr·pĕd'ĭ·nŭs), adj. Being or affecting like a torpedo; benumbing; stupefying. Rare.

tor·pe'do (tôr·pē'dō), n.; pl. -DOES (-dōz). [L. torpedo, -inis, stiffness, numbness, torpedo (the fish), fr. torpere to be stiff, numb, or torpid. See TORPID.] 1. An electric ray (fish); a crampfish or numbfish (see ELECTRIC RAY).

2. [cap.] Zool. a The typical genus of electric rays. Syn. Narcobatus. b Syn. of MALAPTERURUS.

3. Someone or something that paralyzes, benumbs, or stupefies. Now Rare.

4. An engine or machine for destroying ships by blowing them up. Specif.: a A metal case containing explosives, anchored in a channel, under water or at the surface, or set adrift and so arranged that it will be exploded on contact by a vessel, or electrically by an operator on shore; — now generally called submarine mine. b A case containing high explosives carried on a long spar projecting from a war vessel or launch and exploded by contact or electrically; — called specif. spar torpedo. It is now rarely used. c A dirigible, self-propelling, cigar-shaped, submarine projectile carrying an explosive charge, and projected from one vessel, often designed for that purpose, against another vessel at a distance. The motive

Torpedo, 4 c. Section of Whitehead Torpedo. 1 War Nose; 2 War Head, containing wet guncotton, and Primer Case p, with dry guncotton; 3 Compressed-air Flask; 4 Immersion Chamber; 5 Engine Room; 6 Afterbody, containing o Steering Gear, and b Bevel Gears; 7 Tail, with Rudders (r, r), Vertical Vanes (v), and Propellers (p, p).

power is usually supplied by compressed air, and devices for keeping the torpedo on its course and at a given depth are provided in one of its chambers. In some early forms motive power and direction were transmitted over a wire unreeling from the torpedo. Modern torpedoes are generally 14 to 21 inches in diameter, 18 to 20 feet long, having a range of 2,000 to 10,000 yards and a speed of 26 to 35 knots.

5. Automobiles. An automobile with open body somewhat resembling a torpedo (sense 4 c).

6. Fireworks. A small firework which explodes when thrown against a hard object.

7. Mil. A charge of explosive enclosed in a container or case. In military use there are various kinds of torpedoes, as the aerial torpedo, submarine torpedo (see sense 4, above), etc.

8. Petroleum. An explosive cartridge or shell lowered or dropped into a bored oil well, and there exploded, to clear the well of obstructions or to open communication with a flame source of supply of oil.

9. Railroading. A kind of detonating cartridge or shell placed on a rail, and exploded when crushed under the locomotive wheels; — used as an alarm or fog signal.

tor·pe'do (tôr·pē'dō), adj. Pertaining to or like a torpedo; carrying torpedoes.

tor·pe'do (tôr·pē'dō), v.; -DOED (-dōd); -DO·ING (-dō·ĭng). Transitive: 1. To paralyze; benumb. Rare.

2. To destroy by, or subject to the action of, a torpedo or torpedoes.

3. To mine, as a channel, with torpedoes.

4. To explode, or bring to naught; to wreck; shatter; ruin; as, to torpedo a plan of action.

5. Petroleum. To ignite or explode a charge in (a shaft or well); as, to torpedo a well at 2,500 feet.

—, Intransitive: To use torpedoes; to discharge a torpedo or torpedoes.

torpedo battery. Fort. A land battery in coast-defense works for discharging torpedoes.

torpedo boat. A vessel designed for firing torpedoes; specif., a small, very fast, thinly plated vessel with one or more torpedo tubes, carrying only light guns, and relying on speed and inconspicuousness to get within torpedo range. See under SUBMARINE, n. — tor·pe'do–boat', adj.

tor·pe'do–boat', v. t. To provide or protect with torpedo boats.

tor·pe'do–boat' catch'er. An early form of torpedo-boat destroyer intended more to catch torpedo boats than to operate against larger war vessels. Cf. TORPEDO-BOAT DESTROYER.

torpedo–boat destroyer. A larger, swifter, and more powerfully armed type of torpedo boat, originally intended principally for the destruction of torpedo boats, but later used also as a more formidable torpedo boat. See DESTROYER.

torpedo body. An automobile body which is built so that the side surfaces are flush. Cant.

torpedo boom. A spar having a torpedo on its end.

torpedo catcher. A torpedo-boat catcher. Rare.

torpedo cruiser. A cruiser fitted with torpedoes and tubes. Obs.

torpedo director. Nav. a An instrument consisting of a sector and sliding arms, both graduated, which, when the speeds of a vessel and of a torpedo are known, can be adjusted so that the torpedo will strike the vessel if discharged at the moment the vessel is sighted along an arm. b Any similar device for controlling the fire of torpedoes.

tor·pe'do·er (tôr·pē'dō·ĕr), n. One who or that which torpedoes.

tor·pe'do·ist (-ĭst), n. 1. A torpedoer.

2. Nav. One skilled in the theory or use of torpedoes; also, one who favors the use of torpedoes.

torpedo mine. A submarine mine. See TORPEDO, n., 4 a.

torpedo net or netting. Nav. A netting made of steel links stretched by booms around a vessel and extending beneath the surface of the water, as a protection against torpedoes. It is not used in the United States Navy.

tor·pe'do·plane' (tôr·pē'dō·plān'), n. An airplane specially fitted for carrying and discharging torpedoes.

torpedo ram. Nav. A ram having a torpedo tube in her bow, and intended to torpedo an enemy's vessel at the time of ramming. The type has been abandoned.

torpedo room. Nav. The compartment in which are located the submerged torpedo tubes, together with the torpedoes and their accessories.

torpedo sand. A coarse, clean sand, the particles of which all pass through a ⅜ inch mesh.

torpedo school. Nav. A school for teaching and training officers and men to handle torpedoes, as at a torpedo station. Cf. TORPEDO STATION.

torpedo shell. Ordnance. A shell longer than a deck-piercing shell and intended to effect its damage by the explosion which follows on slight resistance. It is used chiefly in 12-inch mortars. Obs.

torpedo spar. Nav. A torpedo boom.

torpedo station. A headquarters for torpedo boats and their supplies, usually having facilities for repairs and for instruction and experiments. The principal torpedo station of the United States is at Newport, R. I.

torpedo stern. A broad stern without overhang, flattened on the bottom, used in some torpedo and fast powerboats It prevents settling in the water at high speed.

torpedo tube. Nav. A tube fixed below or near the water line through which a torpedo is fired. On torpedo vessels the tubes are on deck and usually in broadside, on larger vessels usually submerged in broadside (but formerly sometimes in the bow) and fitted with a movable shield which is pushed out from the vessel's side to protect the torpedo until clear. In submarine torpedo boats they are in the to·rive', v. t. & i. [See TO-.] To split or burst asunder. See TO-. Obs.

---

tor'men, sing. of TORMINA. Rare.

tor·men'ta, pl. of TORMENTUM.

tor·ment'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

tor'men·ta'tion, n. = TORMENT. Rare.

tor·ment'er, Var. of TORMENTOR.

tor'ment·ful, adj. See -FUL.

tormentise, n. = TORMENT. Obs.

tor·men'tous, adj. = TORMENTING. Rare.

tor·men'tress, n. Fem. of TORMENTOR.

Tor'mes, La'za·ril'lo de (lä'thē·rēl'yō dā tôr'mās; 170). See PICARESQUE, adj.

tor'mit. Dial. Eng. var. of TURMIT.

torn (tôrn; 181), past part. of TEAR.

torn. Var. of TORN. Obs. exc. Dial.

torn. ✝ TOURN.

tor'na·chi'le (tôr'nä·chē'lā), n. = LONG PEPPER c. Mex.

tor·na'do-esque', adj. See -ESQUE.

tor·na'do-proof', adj. See -PROOF.

tor'na·ment. ✝ TOURNAMENT.

‖tor·na'ta (tôr·nä'tä), n. [It.] = TORNADA.

tor'ney (tûr'nĭ). Aphetic form of ATTORNEY. Now Dial.

tor'ney. ✝ TOURNEY.

tor·nil'ja (tôr·nēl'yä; -nēl'yĭ; 170). Var. of TORNILLO.

tor·nil'lo (tôr·nēl'yō; -nēl'yō; 170), n. [Sp., a screw.] = SCREW BEAN b.

tor'ni·quet. Var. of TOURNIQUET.

tornsal, tornsole. ✝ TURNSOLE.

to·ro'ro·ko'bu (tō·rō'rō·kō'bōō), -kon'bu (-kŏn'bōō). Vars. of TORORKOMBU.

tor·pe'do·like', adj. & adv. See -LIKE.

tor·pe'do·proof', adj. See -PROOF.

tor·pe'do·shaped', adj. See -SHAPED.

tor'pe·fy. Var. of TORPIFY.

---

bow, and may also be in the stern or on the broadsides. When the tube is submerged, compressed air is used for ejecting the torpedo.

tor'pent (tôr'pĕnt), adj. [L. torpens, pres. part. of torpere to be numb.] Torpid. Rare.

tor·pes'cent (tôr·pĕs'ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [L. torpescens, -entis, pres. part. of torpescere, incho. fr. torpere. See TORPID.] Becoming torpid. — tor·pes'cence (-ĕns; -'ns), n. Both Rare.

tor'pid (tôr'pĭd), adj. [L. torpidus, fr. torpere to be stiff, numb, or torpid; akin to Lith. tirpti to become rigid, and perh. to E. starve. See EXTIREPATE; cf. STARVE, TORPEDO.]

1. Having lost motion, or the power of exertion and feeling, as a hibernating animal; dormant; numb; benumbed; sluggish in functioning or acting; as, a torpid frog, liver, or limb.

2. Lacking in energy or vim; inactive; inert; dull; stupid; apathetic; as, a torpid mind, congregation, or electorate; also, torpifying; as, the torpid cold of winter.

Syn. and Ant. — See INERT.

— tor'pid·ly, adv. — tor'pid·ness, n.

tor'pid, n. Eng. a [usually cap.] Oxford Univ. (1) A clinker-built, eight-oared racing boat in which the races of the Lent term are rowed and which, orig., was the second boat of a college. (2) pl. The races rowed in such boats. b At Harrow, a boy in the first or second year of school and, as such, eligible for the second eleven.

tor·pid'i·ty (tôr·pĭd'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). State or quality of being torpid; sluggishness; torpidness.

tor'pi·fy (tôr'pĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [L. torpere to be torpid + E. -fy.] To make torpid; benumb; stupefy.

tor'pi·tude (-tūd), n. Torpidity. Now Rare.

tor'por (tôr'pĕr), n. [L., fr. torpere to be torpid.] 1. A state of mental and motor inactivity with partial or total insensibility; suspended animation; dormancy; sluggishness or stagnation of function.

A deathlike torpor has succeeded to her former intellectual activity. Prescott.

2. Mental or spiritual sluggishness; lethargy; apathy.

My torpor to reprove. Wordsworth.

Syn. and Ant. — See LETHARGY.

tor'por·if'ic (-ĭf'ĭk), adj. [L. torpor torpor + E. -fic.] Producing, or tending to produce, torpor; torpifying.

tor'quate (tôr'kwāt), adj. [L. torquatus wearing a collar.] Collared; having a torques, or ring, around the neck.

tor'quat·ed (-kwāt·ĕd; -ĭd), adj. [L. torquatus.] Having, wearing, or formed like, a torque, or twisted chain.

torque (tôrk), n. [L. torques a twisted neck chain; akin to L. torquere to twist. See TORCH.] 1. A collar or neck chain, usually twisted, esp. one such as was worn by ancient barbaric nations, as the Gauls, Germans, and Britons.

2. [L. torquere to twist.] a Mech. That which produces or tends to produce rotation or torsion; a moment (of forces); specif., the product of a tangential force multiplied by the radius of the part it rotates; the turning moment of a tangential effort. The torque of measuring instruments is usually expressed in millimeter grams. The deflecting torque of an instrument is the moment produced by the quantity measured that acts so as to cause the deflection of the pointer. The restoring torque is the resultant moment acting to return the instrument pointer to a position of equilibrium, usually zero, when displaced from that position. The starting, or static, torque of an electric motor, or the like, is the torque at standstill; for an induction motor it is the minimum torque for any angular position of the locked rotor. The pull-in torque is the maximum constant torque under which the motor will accelerate from rest to approximate normal speed. The pull-out torque is the maximum torque a motor will carry without an abrupt drop in speed. b Optics. The twisting or rotatory effect of certain crystals and liquids upon the plane of polarization of plane-polarized light traversing them.

torque arm. In automotive vehicles, an arm to take the torque of the rear axle. At the rear it is connected with the differential case (either rigidly or by a joint); and at the front it is always jointed to a cross member of the frame.

torque converter. Automobiles. A device for converting the speed and torque at the driving shaft to that required by the driven shaft.

torqued (tôrkt), adj. [L. torquere to twist, turn, wind.] Twisted; formed like a torque.

tor'ques (tôr'kwēz), n. [L., a necklace. See TORQUE.] 1. = TORQUE, n., 1. Now Rare.

2. Zool. A cervical ring consisting of hair, feathers, or modified integument distinguished from the adjacent surface by color or structure; a collar.

torque tube. In automotive vehicles, a tube surrounding the propeller shaft to take the torque, usually a unit with the rear-axle housing at the rear but with a universal joint at the front where it is supported by a cross-frame member or by the rear end of the transmission case.

tor're·fac'tion (tôr'ĕ·făk'shŭn), n. [F. torréfaction, fr. L. torrefacere, torrefactum, to torrefy. See TORREFY.] Act or process of torrefying, or state of being torrefied.

tor're·fy (tôr'ĕ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). Also tor'ri·fy (-ĭ·fī). [F. torréfier, fr. L. torrefacere, fr. torrere to parch + facere to make. See TORRENT; -FY.] To subject to heat; to dry or roast by a fire; to parch; scorch. Specif.: a Rare. Metal. To subject to scorching heat, so as to drive off volatile ingredients; to roast, as ores. b Pharm. To dry or parch, as drugs, on a metallic plate till they are friable, or are reduced to the state desired.

Tor're·jón' tor·ma'tion (tôr'rā·hōn'; 162). [Sp. torrejón turret.] Geol. A rich fossiliferous Lower Eocene formation of northwestern New Mexico, lying upon the Puerco formation and under the Wasatch formation.

Tor'rens sys'tem (tôr'ĕnz). A system of registration of titles to land (as distinct from registration of deeds) introduced into South Australia by the Real Property (or Torrens) Act (Act 15 of 1857–58), drafted by Sir Robert Richard Torrens (1814–84). Its essential feature is the guaranty by the government of properly registered titles. The system has been almost universally adopted in Australasia, also to some extent in Canada, and in a modified form in South Africa. Between 1896 and 1915 it was adopted in 12 States of the United States and a uniform State law on the same lines has been drafted by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and is beginning to be adopted by the States. This system of registering titles obtains also in central Europe.

tor'rent (tôr'ĕnt; 185), n. [F., fr. L. torrens, -entis, fr. torrere burning, roaring, boiling, pres. part. of torrere to dry by heat, to burn. See TORRID.] 1. A violent stream, as of water, lava, or the like; esp., a rushing stream of water, as a flooded river, or one suddenly raised by a heavy rain or thaw and descending a steep incline.

2. a In Europe, a mountain channel (sense 1) which is often dry, though filled with rushing water at certain times or seasons. b An intermittent branch. See BRANCH, n., 10.

The roaring torrent is deep and wide. Longfellow.

3. A violent or rapid flow; a strong current; a flood; a downpour; as, a torrent of abuse, words, or notes; the rain or gifts came in torrents.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

torrent-bitten	torrent-braving	torrent-mad torrent-borne	torrent-flooded	torrent-swept tor'rent (tôr'ĕnt; 185), adj. [See TORRENT, n.] Of or like a torrent; rolling or rushing in a rapid stream.

Waves of torrent fire. Milton.

torrent bow (bō). A fragmentary bow of the nature of a rainbow, formed over a torrent.

torrent duck. Any of several ducks allied to the mergansers and constituting the genus Merganetta. They inhabit rushing streams of the Andes from Colombia to Chile.

tor'rent·ful, adj. Torrential. — tor'rent·ful·ness, n.

tor·ren'tial (tō·rĕn'shăl), adj. 1. Pert. to, or having the character of, a torrent; as, torrential rains; also, caused by, or resulting from, action of rapid streams; as, torrential gravel.

2. Like a torrent in violence or rapidity of flow, copiousness, etc.; vigorous and rushing; outpouring; overwhelming; as, torrential anger; a torrential attack or correspondence.

tor·ren'ti·al'i·ty (tō·rĕn'shĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Character of being torrential. Rare.

tor'rent·ine (tôr'ĕn·tĭn; tō·rĕn'tĭn; -tīn), adj. Torrential. Rare.

tor·ren'tu·ous (tō·rĕn'tū·ŭs), adj. Moving or expressing oneself in torrents.

Tor'rey·a (tôr'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after John Torrey, Am. botanist.] Bot. A genus of Asiatic and North American trees (family Taxaceae) having two-ranked, often ill-scented linear leaves and a large ovoid drupaceous fruit. Syn. Tumion. See STINKING CEDAR, CALIFORNIA NUTMEG.

Tor'rey, or Tor'rey's, pine (tôr'ĭ, -ĭz). A tall coniferous tree (Pinus torreyana) of California, with dark-green needles in fives and long, cylindrical cones; — called also Sabine, Soledad, gray-leaf, pine.

Torrey tree. The stinking cedar. Local, U. S.

Tor'ri·cel'li·an (tôr'ĭ·sĕl'ĭ·ăn; -chĕl'ĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Torricelli, an Italian physicist and mathematician, who, in 1643, devised the experiment by which the Torricellian vacuum is produced and the effect of atmospheric pressure demonstrated. See BAROMETER.

Torricellian tube. A glass tube, open at one end and hermetically sealed at the other, of such length that when filled with a liquid, as mercury, and immersed at the open end in a vessel of the same liquid, allowing the enclosed liquid to descend till it is counterbalanced by the pressure of the atmosphere, as in the barometer, a vacuum (the Torricellian vacuum) will be produced at the upper end. See BAROMETER.

Tor'ri·cel'li's law (tôr'rĕ·chĕl'lēz). Physics. The law that the velocity of efflux of a liquid from an orifice is equal to that of a body falling freely through a distance equal to the head of the liquid.

tor'rid (tôr'ĭd; 185), adj. [L. torridus; cf. F. torride. See THIRST; cf. TORRENT.] 1. Parched; dried with, or exposed to, heat, esp. of the sun; arid and hot; as, a torrid plain or desert.

2. So hot as to scorch, parch, or the like; burning; parching; as, a torrid climate. "Torrid heat." Milton.

3. Of emotion, etc., highly inflamed; exceedingly passionate; ardent.

— tor'rid·ly, adv. — tor'rid·ness, n.

tor·rid'i·ty (tō·rĭd'ĭ·tĭ), n. State or quality of being torrid.

Tor'ri·do'ni·an (tôr'ĭ·dō'nĭ·ăn), adj. [From Loch Torridon, Scotland.] Geol. Designating reddish Pre-Cambrian sandstones (Tor'ri·don sand'stone' [tôr'ĭ·dŭn]) which occur in Scotland. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

Torrid Zone. Geog. The belt of the earth between the tropics, over which the sun is vertical at some period of the year. See ZONE, n.

Tor·ru'bi·a (tō·rōo'bĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after José Torrubia, Sp. naturalist.] Bot. A genus of about fifteen species of tropical American shrubs and trees of the four-o'clock family (Nyctaginaceae), with fleshy leaves, greenish, dioecious, panicled flowers, and fleshy fruit. T. obtusata, the blolly, is common in southern Florida and the West Indies.

tor·sade' (tôr·sād'), n. [F.] A twisted cord; also, a molded or worked ornament of similar form.

The crown decked with torsades of pearls. Harper's Mag.

torse (tôrs), n. A torso.

torse, n. [MF. torse, torce, wreath. See TORCH.] Her. A wreath as used for the support of a crest, composed of twisted strands.

torse, n. [ML. torsum something twisted. See TORSION.] Math. A developable.

torse, adj. Twisted spirally.

tor'sel (tôr'sĕl; -s'l), n. [From tossel, fr. tassel, fr. OF. tassel (F. tasseau), fr. (assumed) VL. tassellus, fr. L. taxillus a small die, but influenced by L. tessella square piece of stone, cube.] A piece of stone, iron, or wood, to support the end of a beam or joist and distribute the weight.

tor'si·bil'i·ty (tôr'sĭ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Resistance to torsion; hence, tendency, as of a twisted rope, to untwist.

tor'si·graph (tôr'sĭ·grăf), n. [See TORSION; -GRAPH.] A torsion meter.

tor'sile (-sĭl; -sīl; 155), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, torsion.

tor'si·o·gram' (tôr'sĭ·ō·grăm'), n. [See TORSION; -GRAM.] A diagram drawn by a torsion meter showing the characteristics of certain torsional vibrations.

tor'si·o·graph' (-grăf'), n. [See TORSIGRAPH.] A torsion meter.

tor'sion (tôr'shŭn), n. [F., fr. LL. torsio, tortio, fr. L. torquere, tortum, to twist. See TORTURE; cf. CONTORTION.] 1. Act of turning or twisting, or state of being twisted; the twisting or wrenching of a body by the exertion of a lateral force tending to turn one end or part of it about a longitudinal axis, while the other is held fast or turned in the opposite direction.

2. A griping or wrenching pain; tormina. Obs.

3. Math. The limit of the ratio of the infinitesimal angle between two planes osculating a twisted curve at two neighboring points to the infinitesimal arc of the curve between the points; — sometimes called second curvature.

4. Mech. The internal moment or couple of restitution which arises in a thread, wire, or rod, when it is twisted.

☞ PHRASES are:

torsion angle, torsion axis, torsion curve, torsion screw, torsion spring.

tor'sion·al (tôr'shŭn·ăl), adj. Of, pertaining to, causing, or resulting from, torsion. — tor'sion·al·ly, adv.

torsion balance. 1. An instrument used to measure minute forces, as electrostatic or magnetic attraction and repulsion, by the torsion of a wire or filament, the angle of torsion being proportional to the amount of force exerted.

Torsion Balance, 1.

Description of Illust. 1 Fine Wire suspending Shellac Rod with Pith Ball a; 2 Removable Glass Rod with Pith Ball b; 3 Scale; 4 Torsion Head, a graduated disk movable independently of the Tube (5); 6 Index; 8 Calcium Chloride for keeping air dry. The Torsion Head is turned until the index is at zero; the Cover (7) with 5 can be turned until a and b touch opposite zero (0). When a and b are electrified, their attraction or repulsion is shown by the angle of torsion.

2. A variety of the spring balance in which the weight is balanced by the torsion of a wire.

torsion basin. Phys. Geog. A basin formed in the earth's surface by torsional force.

torsion electrometer. Elec. A torsion balance used for measuring electric attraction or repulsion.

torsion galvanometer. Elec. A galvanometer in which current is measured by torsion.

torsion head. That part of a torsion balance from which the wire or filament is suspended.

tor'sion·ing, n. The act of twisting, or producing torsion, esp. to close an opening, as of a cut artery.

torsion meter. An instrument for determining the torque on a shaft, and hence the horsepower of an engine, torsional vibrations, etc., esp. of a marine engine of high power, by measuring the amount of twist of a given length of the shaft; — called also torsimeter, torsiometer, torsometer, torsiograph, torsigraph.

torsion pendulum. = PENDULUM, 2.

torsion scale. A weighing scale in which the fulcrums of the levers or beams are wires or strips acting by torsion.

tor'sive (tôr'sĭv), adj. Bot. Twisted spirally.

torsk (tôrsk), n.; pl. TORSK or TORSKS (tôrsks). See PLURAL, Note. [Dan. & Sw.; akin to ON. thorskr a codfish, G. dorsch.] a See CUSK a. b The codfish.

tor'so (tôr'sō), n.; pl. TORSOS (-sōz), TORSI (-sē). [It., also, stalk, fr. (assumed) VL. tursus, for L. thyrsus a stalk, stem, thyrsus, fr. Gr. thyrsos. See THYRSUS.] 1. The trunk of a sculptured representation of a human body; esp., and usually, the trunk of a statue mutilated of head and limbs; as, the torso of Hercules.

2. An impressive or structure-revealing part or fragment of an unfinished or mutilated work.

But his (Macaulay's) History, magnificent torso though it be. Lord Balfour.

3. The human trunk; the human figure, as body or, Rare, as personality.

tor'so (tôr'sō), n. [F. tors, past part. of tordre to twist (fr. L. torquere), colonne torse a spiral column. See TORSION.] Arch. A twisted or spiral shaft or column.

tor'so·clu'sion (tôr'sō·klōō'zhŭn; 242), n. [See TORSO-OCCLUSION.] 1. Dentistry. Torsoocclusion.

2. Surg. A cupressure combined with torsion.

tor'so·oc·clu'sion (-ŏ·klōō'zhŭn), n. [ML. torsus twisted + E. occlusion.] Dent. Malocclusion characterized by the rotation of a tooth on its long axis.

tort (tôrt), n. [OF., fr. (assumed) VL. (ML.) tortum, fr. L. tortus twisted, crooked, past part. of torquere to twist, bend. See TORTURE.] 1. Wrong inflicted; injury. Obs.

2. Law. Any wrongful act (not involving a breach of contract) for which a civil action will lie; a civil wrong independent of a contract. See WRONG; cf. TRESPASS, DELICT.

This technical use of the French word tort (which at one time was nearly becoming a synonym of wrong in literary English) is not very ancient, and anything like systematic treatment of the subject as a whole is very modern. . . . An offense which is punishable, but for which no one can bring a civil action, is not a tort. Encyc. Brit.

tort, adj. Twisted. Obs.

tort, adj. Erron. for TAUT.

tort (tôrt). Var. of TOWARD. Obs. exc. Dial.

tor'ta (tôr'tȧ), n. [Sp., a cake, fr. LL. torta. See TART.] A flat heap of moist, crushed silver ore, prepared for the patio process.

‖tor'te (tôr'tĕ), n.; pl. TORTEN (-tĕn). [G. See TORTA.] Literally, cake, esp. of a rich variety. Specif., a sticky cake made of nuts, fruits, white of egg, often crumbs, and very little, if any, flour.

tor'teau, tor'teaux (tôr'tō), n.; pl. TORTEAUS, TORTEAUX (-tōz). [F. See TORTA.] Her. A roundel gules.

tort'–fea'sor, n. Law. One who commits a tort.

tor'ti·col'lar (tôr'tĭ·kŏl'ĕr), adj. Affected with torticollis.

tor'ti·col'lis (-lĭs), n. [NL., fr. L. tortus twisted + collum neck. See TORT; COLLAR.] Med. An affection of the neck due to irregular contraction of the muscles and causing twisting of the neck and an unnatural position of the head; wryneck; stiffneck.

tor'ti·cone (tôr'tĭ·kōn), n. [L. tortus (past part. of torquere to twist) + E. cone.] Paleontol. A turreted spiral cephalopod shell, as distinguished from one with coils in one plane.

tor'tile (tôr'tĭl; 155), adj. [L. tortilis, fr. torquere, tortum, to twist.] Twisted; coiled; also, twistable. — tor·til'i·ty (tôr·tĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

‖tor·til'la (tôr·tē'yȧ; 170), n.; pl. TORTILLAS (Sp. -yȧs). [Sp., dim. See TORTA.] A thin flat unleavened cake, as of maize, baked on a heated iron or stone. Sp. Amer.

tor'til·lé' (tôr'tē·yā'), adj. [F., past part. of tortiller to twist.] Her. Wreathed with a twisted band, as a Moor's head.

‖tor'til'lon' (tôr'tē'yŏn'), n. [F., a twisted thing.] In charcoal drawing, a small rolled-paper stump for delicate work. See STUMP, n., 4. tor'tious (tôr'shŭs), adj. [From TORT. Cf. TORTUOUS.] 1. Injurious; wrongful; also, distorted; misleading. Obs.

2. Law. Implying or involving tort, or private injury (not a breach of contract), for which the law gives damages.

tortious conveyance. Law. See CONVEYANCE, 4.

---

tor'por·ize, v. i. See -IZE.

torr. + TOR, n.

tor're·a·dor'. Var. of TOREADOR.

tor're·fi·ca'tion (tôr'ĕ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [L. torrere to parch + -ficare to make. See -FY.] = TORREFACTION.

tor·ren'tial·ly, adv. of TORRENTIAL.

tor'rent·less, adj. See -LESS.

tor'rent·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tor'rent·wise', adv. See -WISE.

tor'ret, n. [OF. toret, touret, fr. tor, tour, circuit. See TOUR; cf. TERRET.] A ring for fastening a string or chain, as on a dog collar. Obs.

tor'ret. + TURRET.

tor'ri·fy. Var. of TORREFY.

tor'rion, n. [MF., fr. It. torrione.] A large tower. Obs.

tor'sal. Var. of TORSEL.

tor'si (tôr'sē), n., pl. of TORSO.

tor·sim'e·ter (tôr·sĭm'ĕ·tĕr), tor'si·om'e·ter (tôr'sĭ·ōm'ĕ·tĕr), n. = TORSION METER.

tor'sion·less, adj. See -LESS.

tor·som'e·ter (tôr·sŏm'ĕ·tĕr), n. = TORSION METER.

tortes, tortays, n. [OF. tortis, tortis.] A kind of light. Obs.

tort'til. Tortile. Ref. Sp.

tor'tion (tôr'shŭn), n. [LL. tortio.] = TORSION, 4. Obs.

tor'tious·ly, adv. of TORTIOUS.

tor'tis, n. [OF. tortis, torkis.] A large wax candle. Obs.

tor'tive (tôr'tĭv), adj. [L. tortivus.] Twisted; wreathed. R.

tor'toise (tôr'tŭs; -tĭs; 277: see note below), n.; pl. TORTOISES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119), sometimes TORTOISE. See PLURAL, Note. [Earlier tortose, tortuce, tortu, fr. ML. tortuca, and fr. F. tortue, fr. (assumed) VL. tortuca, prob. fr. L. testudo, testugo, with influence of L. tortus crooked, twisted (with ref. to the feet). See TESTUDO; cf. 2d TURTLE.]
1. Any reptile of the subclass Chelonia; a turtle; — generally restricted to the land and fresh-water species, or sometimes to the former only. In China it is an emblem of longevity. Cf. GIANT TORTOISE.
2. A person or animal that moves slowly or comparatively slowly; a laggard.
3. Tortoise shell; also, a tortoise-shell comb or the like.
4. A brown, red-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
5. Rom. Antiq. = TESTUDO, 1.
☞ The pron. tôr'tŭs (cf. PORPOISE) apparently prevails in both American and British good usage, but tôr'tĭs (see Etymol., and cf. LETTUCE) is nearly as common, at least in American use; tôr'toiz, -tois, -tĭz are also heard.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tortoise-footed	tortoise-paced	tortoise-roofed tortoise-headed	tortoise-rimmed	tortoise-shaped tor'toise, adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or like the tortoise, as in structure or rate of movement.

2. Made of, or in imitation of, tortoise shell.
3. Of the color tortoise.

Tortoise Beetle (Coptocycla bicolor).

tortoise beetle. a Any of numerous small tortoise-shaped beetles of the family Chrysomelidae. Many of them have a brilliant metallic luster. The larvae feed upon the leaves of various plants. The golden tortoise beetle (Coptocycla bicolor) is found on the morning-glory vine and allied plants. The black-legged tortoise beetle (Jonthonota nigripes) feeds on the same plants and sometimes injures sweet-potato vines. b Any of several Australian tenebrionid beetles of Helaeus and allied genera, having broad margins to the elytra and prothorax.

tortoise flower. The turtlehead Chelone glabra.

tortoise plant. = ELEPHANT'S-FOOT, 1 b.

tortoise shell. 1. The substance of the horny plates covering the shell of certain turtles, that of commerce being obtained almost exclusively from the hawksbill turtle. It is rich brown mottled with yellow. It can be molded and welded when hot, and is used in inlaying and in making various ornamental articles.
2. Short for TORTOISE-SHELL BUTTERFLY, CAT, etc.

tor'toise-shell', adj. Made of tortoise shell, or having a mottled coloration suggesting tortoise shell.

tortoise-shell butterfly. Any of several handsomely colored butterflies of the genus Aglais, as A. milberti and A. j-album, both of which in the larval state feed upon nettles.

Tortoise-shell Butterfly (Aglais milberti).

tortoise-shell cat. A black-and-yellow mottled variety of the domestic cat.

tortoise-shell pottery or ware. Pottery decorated with colored glazes sponged irregularly over the surface.

tortoise-shell tiger. The clouded tiger.

tortoise-shell turtle. The hawksbill turtle.

Tor·to'ni·an (tôr·tō'nĭ·ăn), adj. [From Tortona, Piedmont, Italy.] Pertaining to or designating the upper division of the European Miocene, esp. in France. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

Tor·tric'i·dae (tôr·trĭs'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See TORTRIX; -IDAE.] Zool. a A family of small moths usually having a stout body, oblong lightly fringed wings, threadlike antennae, and a tuft of scales at the end of the abdomen. Many of the larvae are leaf rollers, others live in various fruits, galls, etc. With a few closely allied families it forms a superfamily Tor'tri·coi'de·a (tôr'trĭ·koi'dē·ȧ), or Tor'tri·ci'na (-sī'nȧ). See LEAF ROLLER. b Syn. of ILYSIIDAE. — tor'tri·cid (tôr'trĭ·sĭd), n. & adj. — tor'tri·cine (-sīn; -sĭn; 156), adj. & n. — tor'tri·coid (-koid), adj.

Tor'trix (tôr'trĭks), n.; pl. TORTRICES (tôr·trī'sēz). [NL., fr. L. torquere, tortum, to twist.] Zool. a A genus of moths, type of the family Tortricidae. b [not cap.] A moth of the genus Tortrix or family Tortricidae. c Syn. of ILYSIA.

tor'tu·la (tôr'tŭ·lȧ), n. [NL.] One of the Tortulaceae.

Tor'tu·la'ce·ae (-lā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. LL. tortula a small twist + -aceae.] Bot. A large family of acrocarpous, usually low-growing, mosses (Bryales), having a peristome, when present, of sixteen entire or divided and often twisted teeth. Syn. Pottiaceae. — tor'tu·la'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

tor'tu·ose (tôr'tŭ·ōs; see -OSE), adj. [L. tortuosus. See TORTUOUS.] Tortuous; specif., Bot., flexuous.

tor'tu·os'i·ty (-ŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [LL. tortuositas.] 1. Quality or state of being tortuous; sinuosity; crookedness; deviousness.
2. A bend or twist; a winding; flexure; a distortion.

tor'tu·ous (tôr'tŭ·ŭs), adj. [ME. tortuos, fr. OF. tortuous (F. tortueux), fr. L. tortuosus, fr. tortus a twisting, winding, fr. torquere, tortum, to twist. See TORTURE.]
1. Bent in different directions; full of twists or curves; winding; labyrinthine; as, a tortuous stream or road; a tortuous leaf or corolla.
2. Injurious; wrongful; — by confusion with tortious. Obs.
3. Not straightforward; devious; confusingly roundabout; circuitous; sometimes, deceitful; crooked; as, a tortuous policy.
4. Astrol. Oblique; — applied to the six signs, Capricorn to Gemini, which ascend obliquely. Chaucer.
5. Math. Having nonzero torsion; nonplane; — said of a space curve.
Syn. — See CIRCUITOUS.
Ant. — Undeviating, straight, straightforward, candid.
— tor'tu·ous·ly, adv. — tor'tu·ous·ness, n.

tor'tur·a·ble (tôr'tŭr·ȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being tortured. — tor'tur·a·ble·ness, n.

tor'ture (tôr'tŭr), n. [F., fr. LL. tortura, fr. L. torquere, tortum, to twist, to rack, torture; akin to Gr. atraktos spindle, Skr. tarku, G. drechseln to turn on a lathe. Cf. CONTORT, DISTORT, EXTORT, NASTURTIUM, RETORT, TORCH, TORMENT, TORSION, TORT.] 1. Act or process of inflicting severe pain, esp. as a punishment, in order to extort confession, or in revenge; specif., act of inflicting such pain under judicial or other authoritative order, as by water or fire, by the boot or thumbscrew, by the rack or wheel, etc. As a judicial procedure, torture, common among primitive peoples, survived in Europe until modern times, but is now obsolete in most civilized countries.

> Torture . . . was inflicted for the last time in England in the month of May, 1640. Macaulay.

2. Extreme pain; anguish of body or mind; agony; torment. "Ghastly spasm or racking torture." Milton.
3. Something that causes agony or pain; as: a Obs. A torturing instrument, as the rack or wheel. b An affliction; a torment; an occasion of suffering, annoyance, etc.; a painful or utterly trying experience; as, music that was torture to his ears; to find all formal affairs a torture.
4. The exertion of undue pressure or force; violent straining, distorting, etc.; a tormenting of sense, thought, or the like; as, to justify an interpretation by torture of a text.

tor'ture (tôr'tŭr), v.; -TURED- (-tŭrd); -TUR·ING (-tŭr·ĭng). [Cf. F. torturer.] Transitive: 1. To put to torture, or pressure through torment, as on the rack; to punish with torture; now less concretely, to inflict severe pain upon; to be a cause of anguish to; to cause to suffer acutely; as, to torture a prisoner with the third degree; to torture his family by his bad habits.
2. To subject to undue strain; to wrench or twist; as, trees tortured by winds; a plastic material or a design tortured for the sake of an effect; a text tortured or distorted for proof of one's point, etc.
3. To arrange by wrenching or twisting; as, to torture one's hair into an elaborate coiffure.
4. To torment; subject to pain or distress; as, to torture one's mind with fears.
5. To force out or extract by torture; as, to torture a confession from a prisoner.
—, Intransitive: To cause excruciating pain or anguish.
Syn. and Ant. — See TORMENT.

tor'tured, adj. That is or has been subjected to torture; tormented; racked; violently strained or wrenched; extremely twisted or distorted; as, a tortured witness or prisoner of war. — tor'tured·ly (tôr'tŭrd·lĭ), adv.

> Intricately tortured chairs and armchairs. Arnold Bennett.

tor'tur·er (tôr'tŭr·ẽr), n. One who tortures.

tor'tur·ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of TORTURE. Hence: adj. That tortures. — tor'tur·ing·ly, adv.

tor'tur·ous (tôr'tŭr·ŭs), adj. [AF. (OF. tortureus).] Involving, giving, or resulting in torture; cruelly painful; violently distorted or twisted. — tor'tur·ous·ly, adv.

to'ru (tō'rōō), n. A New Zealand tree, Persoonia toru, with reddish wood, similar to toro.

tor'u·la (tŏr'ōō·lȧ), n.; pl. -LAE (-lē). [NL., dim. fr. L. torus a semicircular molding.] 1. Any of certain yeasts which are not spore-bearing and do not produce alcoholic fermentation but are chiefly acid formers. They sometimes cause failures or undesirable fermentation in brewing.
2. [cap.] Bot. A form genus of chiefly saprophytic imperfect fungi (family Dematiaceae) having very short conidiophores and conidia in chains.
— tor'u·la'ceous (-lā'shŭs), tor'u·loid (tŏr'ōō·loid), adj.

tor'u·li·form' (-lĭ·fôrm'), adj. Like a torula, as in shape. Rare.

tor'u·lose (tŏr'ōō·lōs; see -OSE), adj. [L. torulus, dim. of torus. See TORUS.] Bot. & Zool. Somewhat torose.

tor'u·lo'sis (-lō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Torula + -osis.] Med. & Veter. Infection with the parasitic fungus Torula histolytica. The lesions are in general similar to those of tuberculosis and occur chiefly in the brain and leptomeninges, and to a less extent in the lungs, liver, spleen, kidneys, and other organs.

tor'u·lous (tŏr'ōō·lŭs), adj. Bot. & Zool. Torulose.

tor'u·lus (-lŭs), n.; pl. -LI (-lī). [NL., dim. See TORUS.] Zool. The socket in which the antenna of an insect articulates.

to'rus (tō'rŭs), n.; pl. TORI (-rī). [L., a round, swelling, or bulging place, an elevation. Cf. TORE.] 1. Anat. A smooth rounded protuberance.
2. Arch. A large molding of convex profile, commonly occurring as the lowest molding in the base of a column or pilaster, next above the plinth. See MOLDING, Illust. (4).
3. Bot. a That part of the axis of a flower which bears the floral leaves; the receptacle. It is usually somewhat enlarged or thickened, and its structure is often diagnostic. b The thickening of the membrane closing a bordered pit.
4. Math. The surface or solid formed by rotating a conic section about a straight line lying in the plane of the curve but not intersecting the curve; specif., an anchor ring (which see); — called also tore.
5. Zool. a Thickened vertical ridge bearing rows of uncini, on the segments of many annelids; — more fully ‖to'rus un'ci·ni'ge·rus (ŭn'sĭ·nī'jĭ·rŭs). b ‖to'rus lon'gi·tu'di·na'lis (lŏn'jĭ·tū'dĭ·nā'lĭs). [NL.] Zool. A pair of longitudinal projections extending downward from the roof of the midbrain, conspicuous in teleosts.

to'rus pa'la·ti'nus (păl'ȧ·tī'nŭs). [NL.] Anat. A smooth rounded protuberance on the surface of the hard palate, marking the junction of the intermaxillary and palatomaxillary sutures.

‖to'rus tu·ba'ris (tū·bā'rĭs). [NL.] Anat. A protrusion on the lateral wall of the nasopharynx marking the pharyngeal end of the cartilaginous part of the Eustachian tube.

‖to'rus u're·te'ri·cus (ū'rē·tĕr'ĭ·kŭs). [NL.] Anat. A muscular band joining the orifices of the ureters and forming the base of the trigone of the bladder; — called also Mercier's bar.

tor'vi·ty (tôr'vĭ·tĭ), n. [L. torvitas.] Severity; grimness; sternness.

tor'vous (-vŭs), adj. [L. torvus.] Sour or severe of aspect; stern; grim.

To'ry (tō'rĭ; 181), n. [Ir. tóruidhe pursued man, robber, prop., pursuer; akin to OIr. toracht pursuit, progress, Gael. tóir pursuit.] 1. [sometimes not cap.] One of the evicted Irish of the 17th century who took to agrarian outrages and highway robbery for a living; later, by extension, any armed Irish Papist or Royalist. Obs. exc. Hist.
2. [not cap.] An outlaw who terrorizes; a bandit; marauder. Obs.
3. Eng. Politics. One who sought to maintain the extreme prerogatives of the crown; a member of the party of conservatism, now called the Conservative party, as opposed to the progressive party formerly called the Whig, and now the Liberal, party. See CONSERVATIVE, adj., 4; LIBERAL, adj., 7; WHIG, n., 2. The word Tory, as applied to a member of an English political party, first occurs in 1679, during the struggle in Parliament due to the introduction of the bill for the exclusion of the Duke of York from the line of succession, and was applied by the advocates of the bill to its opponents as a title of obloquy or contempt. The Tories later became one of the two great English parties, standing in general for the authority and power of the crown and the Established Church; and their leading principle has been the maintenance of existing political and ecclesiastical conditions. The name is now applied only to a Conservative of extreme conservative views.
4. Amer. Hist. One who, in the time of the Revolution, favored submitting to the claims of Great Britain against the colonies; an adherent of the crown; a loyalist.
5. [often not cap.] An extreme conservative, or die-hard, in any state or party; in general, one opposed to change in the existing and constituted order.

> You tories are all ostriches. Stuart P. Sherman.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

Tory-hating	Tory-leaning	Tory-ridden
Tory-Irish	Tory-Radical	Tory-voiced

To'ry (tō'rĭ; 181), adj. [often not cap.] Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of a Tory or Tories.

To'ry, v. i. & t. To be or call a Tory. Rare.

Tory Democracy. The principles of a group of English Tories who around 1880 espoused Liberal doctrines. Hence, Tory Democrat. Hist.

To'ry·fy (tō'rĭ·fī), v. t. To make Tory; to influence by Tory principles or propaganda. — To'ri·fied (-fīd), adj. — To'ry·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ·kā'shŭn), n.

to'ry·hill'ite (tō'rĭ·hĭl'īt), n. [From Tory Hill, Monmouth township, Ontario.] Petrog. A nephelite rock, differing from nephelite-syenite in containing albite instead of potash feldspar.

To'ry·ism (tō'rĭ·ĭz'm), n. Tory principles or practices; also [not cap.], ultraconservatism; standpattism. — To'ry·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

To'sa fowl (tō'sȧ). [From Tosa province.] The Japanese fowl.

tos'a·phist (tŏs'ȧ·fĭst; tō'sȧ-), n. A writer of tosaphoth.

tos'a·photh (-fōt; -fōt), n. pl. [Heb. tōsāphōth, lit., additions.] Critical and explanatory glosses on the Talmud, usually marginal.

To'sa school (tō'zȧ). [After one of its masters who assumed the family name Tosa.] Painting. The school of painters who flourished in Japan after the 12th century; — called also Yamato school. Their subjects are chiefly human figures, single or in groups, at rest or in motion, and their manner is gentle and refined. The school has produced most of the ye-makimono.

‖tos'ca (tŏs'kȧ), n. [Sp.] 1. A deposit of calcium carbonate, occurring in the loess of the pampas. Cf. CALICHE.
2. A soft coral limestone deposit in Puerto Rico, used as a farm building material, for road surfacing, ballast, and as fertilizer.

Tos'ca, La (lä tŏs'kä). The title and heroine of an opera (1900) by Puccini, based upon a melodrama of the same name (1887) by Sardou.

tos'ca·nite (tŏs'kȧ·nīt), n. [It. Toscana Tuscany.] Petrog. An extrusive rock, intermediate between rhyolite and calcic-dacite, composed of phenocrysts of hypersthene, biotite, diopside, much labradorite, and less sanidine, in a groundmass of gray or brown glass, often with microlites of diopside, biotite, and sanidine.

To·seph'ta (tō·sĕf'tȧ), n. [Aram. tōsephta addition.] Jewish Lit. A collection of rabbinic interpretations of Biblical law, dating from the period of the Tannaim, and, in general, arranged like the Mishnah. It contains many traditions fuller than those in the Mishnah, but it is not, as a whole, regarded as of equal authority with the latter.

tosh (tŏsh), adj. [Cf. OF. tonsé shorn, clipped, and E. tonsure.] Neat; tidy; also, familiar; intimate. — adv. Neatly; also, intimately. — tosh'ly, adv. All Scot.

tosh, v. t. To make tosh, or neat; — usually with up. Scot.

tosh (tŏsh), n. [Origin unknown.] 1. Nonsense; trash; bosh. Slang. Chiefly Brit.
2. A bathtub; esp., a portable bath.
3. Rubberized canvas used for the bellows of player-pianos.

tosh, v. i. & t. To take a bath; to drench or souse. Both School Slang.

tosh. Var. of TUSH. Obs. exc. Dial.

to'sha·kha'na (tō'shȧ·kä'nȧ; 165), n. [Per. tōshahkhānah, lit., provision house.] A department of a government treasury for keeping articles received as presents. India.

tosh'er (tŏsh'ẽr), n. [See 3d TOSH.] A wharf thief, esp. one who steals copper from ships' bottoms. Slang, Brit.

tosh'er, n. [Origin uncert.] A small fishing vessel. Brit.

tosh'er, n. [Corrupt. of unattached.] A student not attached to any college. Eng. Univ. Slang.

tosh'nail' (tŏsh'nāl'), n. A toed nail. — tosh'nail', v. t. Both Dial. Eng.

tosh'-up', n. A tidying up. Scot.

tosh'y (tŏsh'ĭ), adj. [See 1st TOSH.] Neat; clean. Scot.

tosh'y, adj. [See 3d TOSH.] That is or is like tosh; trashy.

to-side', n. One side; — used in the phrase a to-side, at one side. See TO, adj.

Tosk (tŏsk), n. sing. & pl. a One of the southern divisions of the Albanians. Cf. GHEG. b The Albanian dialect of the Tosks; — called also Tosk'ish (tŏs'kĭsh). See INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table. — Tosk, Tosk'ish, adj.

toss (tŏs; 185), v.; TOSSED (tŏst) or, Obs., Poetic, or Ref. Sp., TOST; TOSS'ING. [Origin uncert.; cf. Nor. dial. tossa to scatter, to spread, Dan. dial. tusse to stir, to move.] Transitive: 1. To fling continuously about or to and fro; to keep throwing here and there or backward and forward; to cause to pitch, roll, heave, or the like; hence, to drive involuntarily or aimlessly from place to place; to buffet; as, a ship tossed by waves; the wind is tossing the leaves.
2. To stir up; agitate; disturb; disquiet; harass.

> Whom devils fly, thus is he tossed of men. Herbert.

3. To keep actively in play or circulation in one's own or others' minds; to bandy as in heated debate or lively interchange of gossip; to consider or discuss all the pros and cons of; as, to toss a matter over in one's mind for some days; her name has been tossed about for years.
4. To keep turning the leaves of (a book or books), as in study or investigation; hence, to apply oneself diligently to the study of.
5. To throw with a quick, light, or careless motion or with a sudden jerk; as, to toss a ball to the pitcher, a book aside, a bouquet to one's bridesmaids, or, as a horse, a rider from its back.

---

tor'toise-like', adj. & adv. See -LIKE.
tor'tor, n. [executioner. Obs.] [L.] Torturer; also, tor·tu'ga, n. [Sp. See TORTOISE.] A turtle. Obs. tor'tu·lous (tôr'tŭ·lŭs), adj. [LL. tortula a small twist.] = TORULOSE. Rare.
tor'ture-proof', adj. See -PROOF. tor'ture-some, adj. See -SOME.
to-ruf'fled, adj. [See TO-.] Disarranged. Obs. tor'u·la·form', adj. Erron. for torve (tôrv), adj. = TORVOUS. Rare.
tor'vid (tôr'vĭd), adj. [LL. torvidus.] = TORVOUS.
To'ry-dom, n. See -DOM.
To'ry-ess, n. Fem. of TORY.
To'ry-ish, adj. See -ISH.
To'ry-ize, v. See -IZE. to'ry-ro'ry, adj. & adv. Obs. [Origin uncert.; cf. TORY, 1; ROAR.] Harum-scarum; roistering. Obs.
To'ry-ship, n. See -SHIP. to'ry-weed' (tō'rĭ-wēd'), n. = HOUND'S-TONGUE a.
tos. TOSS. Ref. Sp.
tos'a·fot (tŏs'ȧ·fōt; tō'sȧ·fōt), tos'a·fist (-fĭst). Vars. of TOSAPHOTH, TOSAPHIST. tos'-and-fros' (tōōz'ănd·frŏz'), n., pl. of TO-AND-FRO. to-scat'ter, v. t. To scatter utterly or in pieces. See TO-. Obs. tose. † TOZE.
To·sef'tas (tō·sĕf'tȧz). Var. of TOSEPHTA. to-shake', v. t. To shake to pieces. See TO-. Obs. to-shend', v. t. To destroy. See TO-. Obs. tosh'er-y (tŏsh'ẽr-ĭ), n. = 3d TOSH, 1. Slang. to-shiv'er, v. i. & t. See TO-. Obs. to-shred', v. t. See TO-. Obs. to'sie (tō'zĭ). Var. of TOSY. Scot.
to'si·ly, adv. of TOSY.

6. To flip or fillip; to toss up. See toss up, below.
7. To lift, as a weapon, with a sudden upward fling; hence: a Poetic. To raise; uplift; rear.

Not to the skies in useless columns toss. Pope.

b To fling or throw up, as one's head, with a sudden, spirited, or vigorous motion.

There at them thou thy tail may toss. Burns.

8. To toss off.
9. To fling away; to get rid of lightly.
10. Ore Dressing. To stir, or to agitate, (ground ore) in a keeve or similar receptacle. Cornwall.

—, Intrans.: 1. To be pitched, flung, or thrown to and fro, etc.; to be tossed about or up and down; to sway or rock.

Silver-green lanterns tossing among windy branches. Amy Lowell.

2. To be agitated; to be restless; to fling oneself about as in sleep; as, to toss all night long.
3. To move with a quick, spirited or disdainful gesture; to fling one's body, head, or skirts in moving; as, to toss out of a room.
4. To toss something; esp., to toss up a coin; — often with an ethical dative. See toss up, below.

The best way will be to toss for it. J. M. Barrie.

5. Handball. To serve.
Syn. — See THROW.
toss in. To throw in a remark; to interject.
toss oars. Naut. In a boat rowed by several oarsmen, to raise the oars smartly to a vertical position at the end of a stroke, each oar held squarely in front of the man holding it, with blades in line fore and aft.
toss off. a To drink at a draft; to drink hastily. b To dispose of or accomplish quickly and with little effort; as, to toss off a dull hour, a task, or an essay.
toss out. To trick out; to dress smartly. Rare.
toss up. a To toss (a coin or the like) into the air to wager on which side it will fall, or to determine a question by its fall; also, to toss a coin for such a purpose. b Also toss together. To prepare quickly, and often carelessly, as a meal; to concoct quickly.
toss up (in) the sponge. See under SPONGE, n.
